Perhaps you'd like to lose a few pounds, but you think it will be too expensive. Of course, if you insist upon eating steak three times a day, it will be. This is not necessary, however. Milk, eggs, poultry, cottage cheese are all good substitutes for meat.

Here is a typical 1200 calorie diet—but it is not a prescription!

Breakfast

- ½ cup orange juice
- 1 boiled egg
- 1 slice of bread or small serving of cereal
- 1 level teaspoon of butter
- 1 glass of milk (8 oz.)
- Clear coffee or tea

Lunch

- ½ cup cheese, or 2 oz. meat, or 2 eggs
- ½ cup raw salad
- ½ cup cooked vegetable
- 1 glass of milk (8 oz.)
- ½ cup raw fruit, or cooked or canned without sugar

Dinner

- 3 oz. meat, fish, or poultry
- ½ cup vegetables
- 1 small potato or 1 slice of bread
- 1 level teaspoon butter
- 1 glass of milk (8 oz.)
- ½ cup raw fruit, or cooked or canned without sugar.

This diet includes eggs, cheese, and milk as well as meat in quantities to supply the protein you need to rebuild worn muscles. The servings of vitamin rich fruits and vegetables should also help you keep feeling tip-top.

Potatoes and bread which also contain proteins, minerals and vitamins will supply your body with the extra energy it needs for hard work or play.

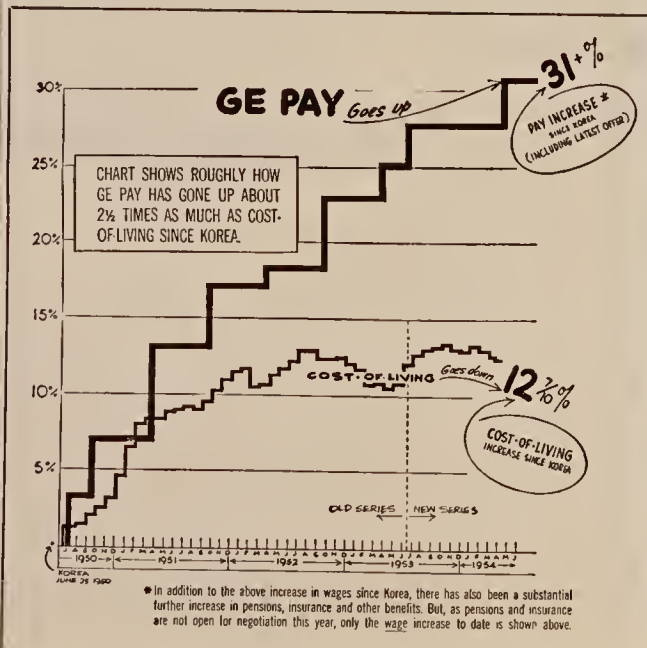

It's important to remember when you're dieting not to miss meals. Start off with a good breakfast. If you find yourself feeling hungry during the day, settle for clear coffee or tea. Most of all don't try to lose a great deal of weight without consulting your physician. He will want to keep a close check on you to see that you lose at the right rate, and to check periodically on your progress and health.

We send a note of cheer to Bob Dent, who is in the hospital. Bob, just because the nurses are getting prettier every day, don't plan on making that hospital your permanent home. . . Little Kathy Jo made her appearance at the home of the James Murphys this week. The mother, Joan, is an employee in our office. Congratulations to the new parents. . . Donna Guiff was one confused girl when she came in to work and her "Wonder Flower" had bloomed into a beautiful red tulip. Then the next morning it was a gorgeous yellow flower. It surely is a crazy world isn't it, Donna. . . Now, since Walt Kryder has an office of his own, he is wearing snazzy bow ties. Maybe it is because his string ties have a way of shrinking in length. . . Dorothy Askren had a nice long letter from Pat Overmeyer, who has joined her husband, stationed in Texas. Pat says that she goes swimming nearly every day and is also learning to play golf. Here is her address for any of her friends who want to write to her: Mrs. David Overmeyer, 403 E. College St., Sequim, Texas. . . Can you imagine Harry Chism without his long black cigar or with long black hair? How about that, Harry?

Two GE Drivers to Compete In Truck Rodeo June 6th

Clyde Kreigh and Fred Heaston, both of Bldg. 14 and members of the GE drivers' fleet, will participate in the annual Truck Rodeo Sunday, June 6.

This year's event will take place at the Sears-Roebuck parking lot at the corner of Rudisill and Clinton Court. It will begin at 10:45 a.m. The contest is sponsored by the Fleet Safety Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and is open free of charge to the public.

A total of 35 professional truck drivers in the Fort Wayne area will compete for top honors in the event.

The entrants will take a written examination in South Side High School beginning at 8 a.m. Afterward there will be an orientation period, luncheon, interview and inspection. Each driver will be able to pick the type of truck he wishes to drive in the event.

Actual driving events will consist of backing, entrance through off-set alley, parallel parking, alley dock parking, and straight line driving.

Carl Rehling, Bldg. 20-2, is serving as field test judge in this year's meet. To be eligible for the contest drivers must have had an accident-free record for the past year, must work out of Fort Wayne, and drive for a fleet entered in the Fleet Safety Contest.

Attendance prizes will be awarded. In order to be eligible for one of the prizes, the individual must visit each of the exhibits that will be on display Sunday at the location. Ivan Martin, manager of the Chamber of Commerce Safety Council, is serving as chairman of the 1954 Rodeo.

Construction to Begin This Year On New Plant at Shelbyville, Ind.

The General Electric Company will begin construction this year of a new $5 million plant at Shelbyville, Ind., to manufacture industrial furnaces, induction heating equipment, and heating devices.

The announcement was made in Schenectady by E. W. Cunningham, general manager of the company's Industrial Heating Department, which will headquarter at Shelbyville.

When completed in 1955, the new plant will accommodate manufacturing operations now located at Schenectady and Pittsfield, Mass. It will be located on a 50-acre site, two miles east of the downtown area of Shelbyville.

The Industrial Heating Department is part of the GE Measurements and Industrial Products Division, headed by Vice-President Harold S. Strang.

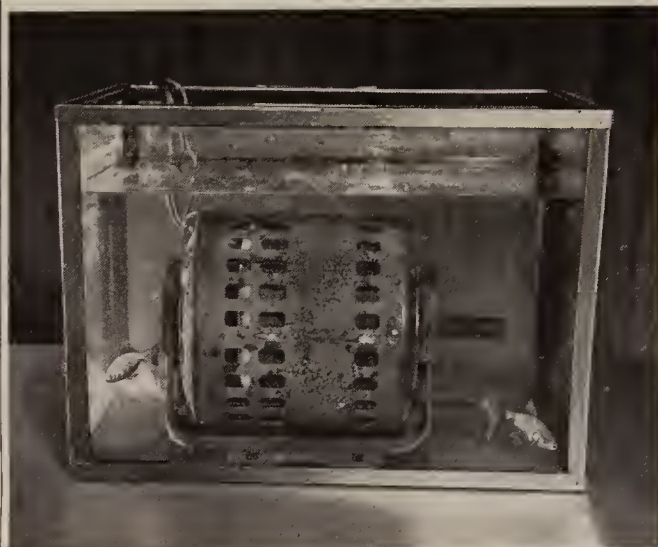

In explaining the move, Mr. Cunningham pointed out that "it will allow consolidation of facilities now located at Schenectady and Pittsfield, which are not sufficient to keep pace with the expected market increase." These operations cannot be expanded due to limited space, he added.

Construction of the new plant is expected to begin in September of this year, with actual production getting under way some time in 1956. Employment eventually will be about 800.

Typical of the products to be made at the plant are industrial furnaces, induction heating equipment, immersion and air heaters, soldering irons, and General Electric Calrod units.

Shelbyville is located about 28 miles from Indianapolis.

MOTOR JOINS FISH...STILL RUNS—It's definitely not a good idea to soak a general purpose motor in water, but a six-month test at Taylor St. proves it can be done and the motor will still run. The motor has been submerged since early December. P. S. The fish survived the experiment, too.

C'MON IN--WATER'S FINE!

GE Motor Turns Mermaid; Still Runs After Long Bath

A good selling point for General Purpose motors is their moisture resistance. To demonstrate just how good it is, a motor was put under water last December 8—and it's still going strong.

Most motors have paper insulation which breaks down in contact with water, causing the windings to short out. Not the GE motor. The unified insulation system of DuPont Mylar polyester film, GE Formex wire, and GE Glyptal varnish make the stator winding strongly resistant to moisture, as well as heat, aging, and electrical stresses.

The DuPont Mylar used for the slot and between phase insulation and GE's Formex wire are dipped in red Glyptal varnish to form a cohesive unit of the whole stator assembly.

Engineers emphasize, however, that while the test proves a motor can turn fish and survive it's still not a recommended procedure even for a GE motor.

General Purpose Announces Organization Of Employee Relations Manager's Staff

The organization of the General Purpose Component Motor employee relations section has been announced by Charles E. Slater, manager of employee relations.

The following comprise Mr. Slater's staff: Jack C. Farris, supervisor of employee services; Alvin C. Hartman, safety and suggestion specialist; Richard L. Stauffer, supervisor of employment; Max E. Greeno, union relations specialist.

Jack C. Farris

Mr. Farris came to the company in 1950 and entered the Test Engineers Program at Evendale. He later completed the course here and in 1951 went on the Fort Wayne Manufacturing Training Course. Upon completion of this course he went into planning assignments in central Fractional Horsepower Motor planning.

In 1952 Mr. Farris entered wage rate in Section 114 at Taylor St. He was named a foreman in that section in 1953. Prior to his present position he was education and training specialist in the department.

A graduate of the University of Oklahoma, Mr. Farris received his BSEE degree in January, 1950. He is a member of the GE Squares Club. Mr. and Mrs. Farris and their two children reside at R. R. 10, Fort Wayne.

Alvin C. Hartman

Mr. Hartman joined General Electric in 1916 and entered production work in Bldg. 17-4. He later served as an assistant general foreman and general foreman. He served in the latter capacity in the Series Alternating Motor Department, Series and Specialty Motor Department and in Fractional Horsepower Motor Department at Taylor St.

In 1947 Mr. Hartman was appointed coordinator of the Fort Wayne and branch plants suggestion system and had this position until his present appointment.

Mr. Hartman is a member of the Supervisors Club and Quarter Century Club, of which he served as secretary in 1947. The Hartmans have one son and two grandchildren. They reside at 1206 W. Lexington.

Richard L. Stauffer

After coming to GE in 1942 Mr. Stauffer was a production expeditor in Bldg. 4-5. He went to Winter St. in 1946 as assistant to the supervisor of production and later had the same position in Section 401. In 1953 he entered the employment section at Broadway where he was an interviewer until his present assignment.

Mr. Stauffer received his AB from Indiana University in 1932. He is a member of the Supervisors Club. The Stauffers have one son and live in Harlan, Ind.

Max E. Greeno

When he came to the company in 1941 Mr. Greeno entered the Apprentice School. In 1943 he entered the U. S. Navy. After serving two years overseas he was discharged in 1945 and returned to GE. He graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course in the Apprentice School in February, 1947 and became a toolmaker in Bldg. 19-4 and later in Bldg. 4-3.

In 1952 Mr. Greeno went into union relations work in Bldg. 18-2. Last year he moved to Taylor St. in the same work and was in that location at the time of his present appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Greeno have three children and live at 2025 Miami Ct.

fraternity. Jerry has received the Rector scholarship for 1954-55 also. He is majoring in chemistry research.

A 1952 graduate of South Side High School, Jerry was a member of the four-year honor roll and the National Honor Society. He received the Bausch and Lomb Plaque in high school for outstanding scholastic work in science. He was active in several clubs and athletic organizations in high school also. Jerry's home address is 3310 Oliver St.

Phyllis A. Greene
A June, 1954 graduate of Central High School, Phyllis A. Greene, 18, ranks third scholastically in a class of 235. She plans to attend either Drake University or Indiana State Teachers College and major in music education and mathematics. Her high school activities include: member of orchestra four years and president of it one year; member of band and school dance band, membership in Math Club, History Club, Latin Club, Music Club, and secretary-treasurer of English Club. Phyllis also had a newspaper route. She is also the recipient of the Tri Kappa sorority scholarship. Phyllis lives at 917 Hanna St.

James J. Lowe
James J. Lowe, 17, graduates from Elmhurst High School this month. He is second scholastically in a class of 100. Jim plans to attend the University of Michigan where he will take a pre-legal course of study. His high school activities include National Honor Society, president of the Freshman and Junior classes, president of Red Cross Club, varsity basketball and baseball for three years, National Athletic Honorary Society, school paper on which he was sports editor and editor-in-chief, Quill and Scroll, dramatics, lead roles in two class plays, Government Club, Physics Club, Speech Club, president of Lettermen's "E" Club, sports editor of yearbook, and president of Methodist Youth Fellowship.

William Pomp
A June, 1954 graduate of Central High School, William Pomp, 17, is in the upper 10 per cent of his class. He was Junior and Senior Class president, a member of the National Forensic League, Math Club, in varsity basketball, football, and baseball, Anthony Wayne Club, DeMolay, YMCA, and worked on school paper. William has a newspaper route and is a recipient of a Fort Wayne Newspapers, Inc. scholarship for the coming school year. He plans to attend either Indiana University or Wabash College. William lives at 1030 Wilt St.

Test Engineers Club Elects New Officers
Reid Allen, Winter St. was elected president of the Test Engineers' Club Tuesday, May 25.
Other newly-elected officers are: Don Nelson, Taylor St., vice president; Al Munster, Bldg. 19-1, social chairman; Don Wood, Winter St., treasurer, and Fred Ray, Bldg. 8-2, secretary.
The elections were held following a tour of the Centlivre Brewery.

William Tope
Graduating from Wren High School, Wren, Ohio this month, William Tope, 18, was valedictorian of his graduating class. He plans to attend Purdue University where he will major in engineering.

De-Wired Blankets On Sale at Store
A supply of de-wired salvage blankets are available to employees for $4.95 at the Employee Store, Ray Fishbach, store manager, announced today.
The blankets are in all colors and in both single and double bed sizes. The wires have all been removed.
There are also a few Class E electric blankets for single beds available for $20 each.

Congratulations to Ed Elzey on his 37th anniversary with the General Electric Company. . . . We hope Blanche Kanning had a nice vacation last week. . . . Ernie Clark missed some good programs the other night trying to make up his mind if WKJG needed a new transformer or he needed a repair job on his TV set. He was getting a lot of snow. . . . It's odd how Rose Kreig's husband has to keep reminding her where she lives. . . . Lorraine Papp was a welcome guest in the department last week. . . . Ruth Freeland went dress shopping. She tried on twenty and bought two. . . . Congratulations to Lena Forker on her 15th wedding anniversary. . . . George Mannisto is home ill with the chicken-pox. We wish you a speedy recovery, George. . . . Jim McGill says he has the gout but he is still able to be about. . . . With "Fire Ball" Brattain and "Red Eye" Carpenter among us, we're wondering if our co-workers are a couple of pirates. How do they get such peculiar names?

17-3 NEWSIES
by Wilhelmina Beeth
Mary Shumm didn't know her little boy was going fishing. She found it out when she got home. There was a catfish swimming in the kitchen sink. We are still wondering if Madaline Briggs was coming or going. We are just sure she had her dress on backwards last Thursday. . . . Something we never thought we would see. Walter Kryder wearing a bow tie. . . . Ruth Lember's daughter, Jeanne Lember Smith, presented her dance pupils in a revue last week. Ruth's granddaughter and Violet Brower's granddaughter was in the revue. Charlie Rice had two daughters in the revue also. All that attended enjoyed it very much. . . . Esther Fox had to chase her tray almost to the kitchen when she forgot to pick up her dinner check in the cafeteria the other day. . . . To the family of Loretta Bloom, we extend our sincere sympathy.

New GE Movie Has Premier In Schenectady

The world premiere of General Electric's newest motion picture, "The Atom Goes To Sea" was held this week at the Plaza Theater in Schenectady. Simultaneously, the film began a run at the Garde Theater, New London, Conn., home of the first U. S. Naval Submarine base and the Electric Boat Company. These premieres signal the release of the film to commercial motion picture theaters throughout the nation.
"The Atom Goes To Sea" brings to the screen for the first time a comprehensive story about the atomic submarine. Specifically, it is the story of the second of the Navy's two atomic subs, the "Sea Wolf" and the "USSN-575."
The new movie runs ten minutes and was filmed in black and white in order to enhance its newsreel-documentary flavor. It is in effect a progress report on an unfinished project—a project in which General Electric plays a leading part.
The questions, "What's so difficult about building an atomic engine?" "Why did they choose the submarine to be powered by atomic energy?" "How does an a-sub work?," are answered in a readily understandable animation sequence. Live action scenes at the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory in Schenectady and the West Milton, New York Reactor Test Site add interest and subtly emphasize the underlying theme that General Electric has applied some of the finest creative engineering and industrial skill to its submarine reactor project.
"The Atom Goes To Sea" is the 17th film in General Electric's continuing "Excursions in Science" series of theatrical short-subjects.

REACHES 30TH YEAR—Loretta L. Himbert (right) reached her 30th General Electric anniversary May 27. Two of her co-workers congratulating her on the event are Eda Hassinger and Myrtle Rauner. Miss Himbert is currently employed as a clerk typist in the Section 113 office at Taylor St.

Personnel Association Elects Slater Director

Charles E. Slater, Taylor St., was elected a director of the Indiana Personnel Association at the 23rd annual Personnel and Industrial Relations Conference at Purdue University May 17 and 18. He will serve in the office for a three-year term.

Employee relations manager in the General Purpose Component Motor Department, Mr. Slater is a past president of the Fort Wayne Personnel and Industrial Relations Association.

The annual conference is sponsored in cooperation with Purdue University and the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce.

Joyce M. Kuckuck, former Section 417, Taylor St. employee, reports that she will be returning to the U.S. soon to be discharged. She completes four years in the Waves. Joyce sent her thanks and appreciation for the letters she has received from former co-workers and for the Elex boxes and GE NEWS sent her during her period in the Service.

ROUNDS OUT 30 YEARS—Raymond H. Trumbower (center) rounded out his 30th year of service with the General Electric Company May 25. Congratulating him are Kenny Van Meter (left) and Ed Trabel. Mr. Trumbower was a pattern maker in Bldg. 12-2 when he first came to GE. He is now a carpenter in Bldg. 10-1.

TOP FLOOR TOPICS BLDG. 26-5 by Jack Lea

Jordan Gunkel is having so much trouble with the game warden at the lake that "Wanted" posters are appearing on the floor. Dead or alive! . . . Henry Webster knows where he stands with the stacking girls. The girls bring Smitty pie and Web gets onions! . . . John Babb shows a couple of samples of fish caught in his favorite fishing spot. One is a nine pound bass. . . . Walt Mertz and Spike Wickliffe are available for mowing lawns after work, as they both recently bought power mowers. . . . Stag party tonight! Lea's mansion — refreshments and cards. This offer is open to all except Louie and Norb Sordelet and Buss Groves, who didn't invite us to their party.

ECHOES from 19-2 by Fred McIntyre

Charles Hughes and Mart Hieden, retired employees, were recent visitors in Bldg. 19-2. . . . Glenn Bice's wife has returned home from the hospital where she underwent surgery. Glenn says she is getting along fine. . . . Homer Hibler had his usual luck recently. He won a basket full of groceries at the Kroger store. . . . Birthday greetings go to Charles Britton. . . . Lee Bryant, formerly of Bldg. 19-2 and now in the Armed Forces, visited his former co-workers recently. He will be stationed in Germany or England when his leave is up. . . . A couple of cats were serenading Russel Flaugh beneath his bedroom window at 2 a.m. the other night. Not appreciating their music, he broke it up by dropping a firecracker between the two cats, accidentally of course. . . . Ray Wiese and Joe Laisure took a golf lesson from Myron Cox last week. Wiese took 10 strokes on one hole and quit counting. . . . Carl Dicke no longer has to go down to the corner to watch TV. He bought a deluxe GE set.

Middlewest GE Plants to Stage Fire Prevention Conference Here

A two-day fire prevention and control conference including all General Electric plants west of Buffalo, N. Y., will be staged at the Fort Wayne Broadway and Taylor St. plants Tuesday and Wednesday, June 8 and 9. The Insurance Services Department is presenting the session which is the first such conference in three years.

Norman O. Chadbourne, manager of fire insurance, Schenectady, is general chairman of the event. Approximately 65 GE fire chiefs and plant protection officers and supervisors will attend the meetings.

Fort Wayne employees attending the meetings will include Robert Wylie, Donald Brayer, John Lare, Wallace Howard, Robert Whitaker, Ernie Hanauer, and Merle Morkoetter. Meetings will take place in Bldg. 16-3, Room 20.

The following program has been announced:

Urban K. Hawk, 68 Dies in Retirement

Urban K. Hawk, 68, 5655 S. Anthony Blvd., died April 28 at 8:35 p.m. in the St. Joseph's Hospital, where he had been a patient for 16 weeks.

Born in Ohio, Mr. Hawk had lived in Fort Wayne about 30 years. Mr. Hawk left the company Oct. 1, 1950 for retirement with over 22 years of service.

Mr. Hawk was first employed at General Electric in 1926 as a helper in Bldg. 6-1. In October of that same year, he became an unloading man. Since 1934, Mr. Hawk had been a freight handler until his retirement.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Eugene Mansdorfer, Mrs. Albert Johnson, and Mrs. Robert Younghaus, all of Fort Wayne; a sister, Mrs. Carrie Herrman, Rockford, O.; eight grandchildren and a great-granddaughter.

General discussion and exchange of ideas.

Adjournment

Arkwright Mutual Fire Insurance Company underwrites GE fire insurance and is one of eight members of the Factory Mutual Insurance Companies.

ANNIVERSARY LETTER—Elsa H. Frede (right) reads a letter of congratulations on her 30th General Electric anniversary to Malinda Gehle (left) and Carl Metker. Miss Frede, who has been with the company since 1924, is now on repair and connect work in Bldg. 4-3.

TRANSFORMER TATTLES

by Dutch Norwalt

Louie Swager wishes to announce that he has lost 9 lbs., 7½ oz. . . . We understand that Max Kimble doesn't carry any change in his pocket. It seems that if he gets over 30 cents in his pocket, he walks with a tilt. . . . Earle Baring bought a new almanac so he would be able to answer George Finkbeiner's questions. . . . Oris (call the sheriff) Cagnet is pressing for an investigation of the office check pool. It seems he went two straight weeks without winning. . . . Gene Scherer thinks a potholder is a girdle. . . . Jim Voirol is really going all out now days. He has a brand new two-tone Buick Super and last but not least he now comes to work with two-tone socks on—a different color for each foot. How do you do it, Jim? . . . There are lots of different kinds of people in this world and all kinds of different reactions from watching TV. Some people get red eyed, sleepy eyed, and blurry eyed but Edna DeLeury tops them all. You should see the nice shiner of Edna's from her TV, so she says. . . . Rolland Menne-wisch appeared at work (late as usual) last Monday with a brand new look but the same old line. . . . Richard Goller, outstanding foreman of Bldg. 26-4, is very ably taking over for smoke-eater Noah Kuntz. The fire whistle blew last Wednesday and Richard chased the girls all out into the street only to find the fire over on the east side of Broadway. . . . Grace Lobdell returned to work after four months of illness.

SPECIALTY MOTORS

Shipping—Receiving—Order
Service

by Mabel Fisher

Sympathy is extended to Gertrude Koldeway and her family in the death of her brother-in-law. . . . George Hill is grandpa. No gold star this week! . . . We all wish a speedy recovery to Betty Kemp's father-in-law, who is confined to the Lutheran Hospital. . . . Eva Westrick spent a wonderful week-end in Chicago and also a life's savings. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Phyllis Poling's little niece, who broke her leg recently. . . . The sleepy look Viola Haiber has now is due to the fact she has a new TV. . . . Ed David has a hobby it seems, crocheting. . . . Della Abel left us today to join her husband in Washington, D. C. The office gave her a gift and good wishes. It was nice to work with you, Della. . . . Happy birthday to Paul Thomas, Faye Ann Christlieb, Harry Price, and Helen Risser. While this week wasn't National Candy Week, our office has had candy every day this week. Oh, oh, there goes our streamlined figures. . . . One June 9 Dixie Lee Hogg graduates from S. S. High School. However, Dixie has been working with us since the first of February. Congratulations, Dixie, and may we add it has been a pleasure working with you. . . . Never let it be said that Herschel Smith doesn't appreciate a secretary. He was seen on the bus last Friday morning struggling with a huge box of baked goods and his comment was "in consideration of secretary week." What we never did learn was whether he was taking it to a secretary or judging from the size of the box maybe he considers everybody's secretary.

WIRE RAVELINGS TAYLOR ST.

by Art Rasor

Our deepest sympathy goes to Emmitt Ort on the death of his sister. . . . Mrs. Warren Harding wants a rose trellis, but Warren thinks they are a bit expensive and that they could use the money for necessities. The boys at work think he could at least go to Sears and get a "Do It Yourself" book and make his wife happy. . . . Steve Bobay decided a long time ago to buy his boy a graduation present, so he finally bought him the electric razor he (Steve) has wanted for a long time. . . . Bob Baals had a good laugh when Don Firks' drew car number 32 in the 500 mile race, but he didn't have the last laugh when his number was 33. . . . We are glad to hear that Mrs. Brubaker is coming along nicely after a recent illness. . . . When Dick Spice heard that Benny Penkul was getting "birdies" on the golf course he thought he would play it smart and carry a shotgun in his golf bag to see if he could get "two birds with one stone." . . . Congratulations to Carl Junk on his recent award for a suggestion. . . . From now on you can call him "Tonto" Mountz, or better yet, you can wait to see if he learns to ride well enough to become a TV cowboy. . . . That fuzz on top of Ed Sterns' head is what most of us would call a crew cut, but that's what can be expected when one gets a haircut in Columbia City. . . . Several of the girls in the Wire Mill office attended a bridal shower on Thursday night at the home of Mildred Vogt, honoring Barbara Cross, who formerly worked in the Wire production office. . . . It is reported that Wimpy Lemper had a wonderful time at his wife's sorority convention in Memphis, Tenn. . . . Bill Irwin has moved to his new home on Melrose St. . . . Vaughn Sheets is back at work after a few days of battling with the flu. . . . Bill Rohe is still waiting for his two new 70-in. davenports to be delivered. He is anxious to have them come so he can take a couple of "long rests." Congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Arnold, who celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on Saturday, May 29.

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

These new Fords certainly must have lots of speed and power. Walter Lorenz can attest to that fact when he was over-hauled near Detroit by a cop, who calmly proceeded to arrest him for speeding. Now you have proof positive, Walter, that the new cars are all they claim. . . . Elmer Brown always brags about how healthy he is and claims that drinking milk has kept him erect and vigorous. How then does he explain why he was so bent over and in obvious pain the other day? . . . The limit some people will go to in order to get money was illustrated when Max Decker, in trying to put a dime in the milk machine, had it fall under the machine. The next sight was Max flat on the floor, doing his best to retrieve the elusive coin. . . . We don't know what the conversation was, but it was so engrossing that Carl Alter dropped his cigar and then without hesitation picked it up and continued smoking. . . . Quite a crowd turned out for the Boy Scout Scouting. During the progress of the pageant various men were depicting the four winds. When it was the turn of the South Wind to present himself, who should blow in but that gentle (?) breeze, Ed Klomp. . . . We were quite honored the other day to have the Dapper Dan of the floor pay us a visit, none other than Chuck Ostrander dressed, and we mean dressed, to the teeth. . . . Mike Lowe has returned to us after a long siege of illness and is beginning to look like himself again. . . . Our cost girl, Irene (mumps) Henline, also is back again minus the swelling that goes with that type of illness. . . . Whether the judge figured it might end in a hung jury or not we don't know, except that our jurist, Clarence Nussel, returned after only a short stay in that capacity. From now on we'll all have to watch our step for fear that we may have to come up for trial and he will be in the driver's seat. . . . We bid farewell to Irene Henline, who is leaving us to resume her duties as a housewife. We extend a welcoming hand to her replacement, Barbara Kroemer. Hope you like it here with us, Barbara. . . . According to Edna Ward, her lake cottage is finally and completely cleaned and polished for the summer, but all she got out of it was a cold. . . . Rollie Miller put his entire field out in a new crop, but Jerry Holgrave says that his best luck has been in raising black ones while Rollie staunchly sticks to the red ones. . . . Can't Cy Seymour make up his mind? One day he is for Boston. The next day it is either Brooklyn or Baltimore. . . . Don't greet Larry Reed in a certain way or he'll shake you loose from your socks. . . . Bill Hurtt was deeply grateful to Carol Norman for the very lovely and delicious cake she baked, even thought he wound up with only the crumbs left on the plate. . . . Quotation for the week: "Two things a man should never be angry at: what he can help and what he cannot help."

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Last Friday Roy Bower, President of GE War Vets; Pondo, Vice Commander of Post 82, and Tony Mandra conducted Memorial Day services here at GE. . . . George Ellison celebrated his thirty-fifth wedding anniversary and his birthday last week by passing out candy and cigars. He must have been a child bridegroom as he says he is only 39 years old. . . . Jim Burns was checking the varnish tank last week and dropped the gauge into the full tank. Jim put on a rubber glove and started fishing for the gauge. The more he fished the more varnish would slip over the top of the glove. Finally Jim took off the glove (which had more varnish in it than the tank had), rolled up his sleeve another notch, and secured the lost gauge. We're heard of sticky fingers, Jim, but you had a very sticky arm. . . . When Vi Elliot entertains guests she goes all out, even though it is noon the next day before she wakes up. . . . Thelma Purdue went fishing and somehow or other the live box lid was up and Thelma sat right down in it. The boat wasn't the only thing that had a wet bottom. . . . Henry Pliett's eyes were tired and burning the other night so he went to the medicine cabinet and took out a bottle that he thought contained eye drops. It did, only it was a solution to dilate the eyes. Henry was the only guy at GE with two different size eyes for almost a week. . . . Welcome to a new addition at the Gene Riley's, a daughter. . . . Martha Beugnot is on her third week's vacation. . . . Harold Dalman is on the sick list. He knew when to get sick, what with all of the moving that is going on. We are only joking, Harold. Here's wishing you a speedy recovery from all of us.

REPRESENTING THE SERVICES are a group of General Electric employees who took part in the Memorial Day services last week.

SPECIAL SPEAKER — E. A. Barnes, former general superintendent of the Fort Wayne Works, says a few words at the ceremonies. Mr. Barnes was instrumental in the forming of the War Veterans Association. Roy Brower (left), president of the Vets Association, was in charge of the services. Mr. Brower expressed the thanks and appreciation of the committee in charge of the services to all of those who participated in the event.

PLACING THE WREATHS—Three wreaths are placed at the War Memorial in front of Bldg. 19 in honor of GE employees who gave their lives in World War I, World War II, and the Korean War.

GE Awards $35,000 in Fellowships To 11 Outstanding College Graduates

Eleven outstanding college graduates will study next year under $35,600 worth of post-graduate fellowships awarded to honor two former presidents of the General Electric Company.

Kenneth G. Patrick, GE manager of educational relations services, said today that the trustees of the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund had awarded fellowship grants totaling $22,400 to the 11 graduates and also had awarded a total of $13,200 to the institutions which they will attend.

The fellowships, which honor Charles A. Coffin and Gerard Swope, first and third presidents of General Electric, call for $2,100 awards to married students and $1,400 awards to unmarried students for the academic year.

In addition, $1,200 will be granted each college or university chosen by the students for the advanced study. Ten of the students are married and one is unmarried.

Awards to graduate students may be used to defray living expenses while the institutional grants are earmarked for payment of tuition and other related costs.

The five Coffin Fellowships for study in physics, electricity and chemistry bring to 213 the total of such awards granted since establishment of the fellowship awards in 1923 to honor one of the founders and first president of GE.

Six of the students will continue their studies in aeronautics, chemistry, mechanical engineering, mathematics, physics and business administration under the Swope fellowships. This brings to a total of 61 the number of such fellowships awarded since 1945 to honor the company's third president.

The winners of fellowships were selected from 191 applications representing 97 American colleges and universities.

Providing for fellowships is one of the many facets of the General Electric Company's broad interest in educational assistance through its Educational and Charitable Fund, Patrick said.

Those selected, their hometowns, colleges from which they were graduated and the ones they will attend are:

Coffin awards: Peter L. Bender, 328 Harold Avenue, Leonia, N. J., Rutgers '51, will study physics at Princeton; Frank S. Boxall, 180

Almond Ave., Los Altos, Calif., Stanford '51, will study electrical engineering at Stanford; James W. Corbett, 242 Whitney Avenue, New Haven, Conn., University of Missouri, 1952, will study physics at Yale University; Joshua S. Dranoff, 620 George Street, New Haven, Conn., to graduate from Yale in June, 1954, will study chemical engineering at Princeton; Stuart A. Rice, 69 Mt. Vernon Street, Cambridge 40, Mass., Brooklyn College, 1952, will study chemistry at Harvard.

Swope fellowships: Arnold Brooks, 225 A Marshall St., Princeton, N. J., New York University, 1948, will continue study in aeronautical engineering at Princeton; Frank A. Cotton, 4245 Marple Street, Philadelphia, Pa., graduate of Temple University, 1951, will continue chemistry studies at Harvard; John E. Meyer, RD 8, Box 492, Pittsburgh, Pa., graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology, 1953, will study mechanical engineering at Carnegie Tech; William C. Swift, 502 Brewer Drive, Lexington, Ky., University of Kentucky, 1950, will continue studies there in mathematics; Tage P. Sylvan, 520 E. Buffalo Street, Ithaca, N. Y., Bowdoin College, 1952, will continue physics studies at Cornell University; Charles C. Townsend, Jr., Bishop Hollow Road, RD 1, Media, Pa., Princeton, 1951, will continue business administration studies at Harvard Graduate School of Business.

Both Cotton and Meyer held fellowships during the present academic year.

Award winners were selected by representatives of six leading engineering and scientific organizations and the General Electric Company.

Selections were made by: Alex

D. Bailey, retired, of Chicago, representing the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Dr. J. W. Beams, head of the physics department of the University of Virginia for the National Academy of Sciences; J. L. Callahan of the Radio Corporation of America Laboratories Division, for the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; Professor R. H. Wilhelm, head of the Chemical Engineering Department of Princeton University, for the American Chemical Society; Professor Peter Kusch of the Pupin physics laboratory, Columbia University, for the American Physical Society; Dean B. R. Teare of Carnegie Institute of Technology for the American Society for Engineering Education; Dr. C. G. Suits, GE vice president and director of research, and George F. Metcalf, consultant-engineering surveys and studies, General Electric Company.

LIKE MOTHER—LIKE DAUGHTER—That is the case with beautiful Joan Bennett and her equally lovely daughter, Melinda Markey, shown here as they appear in the drama, "You Are Young Only Once," seen on "The General Electric Theater" Sunday, at 8 p.m., CDT, over WKJG-TV. The story is about a mother who has become so embittered by the tragedy of having lost her husband and son, that she deprives her only daughter of love and affection.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

Paul Richter likes eggs so well that he nearly paid twice for a dozen of them. He bought a dozen at work and on the way home stopped in a grocery, absent-mindedly putting the eggs on the counter with the rest of the groceries. Of course, the grocer charged for the eggs and Paul didn't find out about it until he got home and began wondering why he had paid so much. After hearing the story the grocer gave Paul his money back but we wonder if the grocer knows that Paul practices sleight-of-hand. . . . Clyde Spangler must have thought he was driving a tank when he drove his tractor into a three-foot hole and had to have a wrecker from town come out to extract him. . . . It was a slightly chilly morning last week when a group of riders, including Lewis Stocker, came to work, but to Lewis it seemed extra cold. Later he found out the draftiness was caused by a rip in the seat of his pants. Better check before leaving home next time, Lewis. . . . The newest candidate for absent-minded professor is Wilbur Lane. He decided to get his car greased and oiled one morning last week, left his riders off at the gate, and took his car to the garage. That evening he ambled over to the parking lot and looked high and low for his car. All sorts of thoughts of thievery and skulduggery passed through his mind before it finally dawned on him that he had left the car at the garage. . . . Ralph Steward is looking for a used air hammer. He says it pains him deeply to watch his wife and the neighbor woman breaking up an old concrete walk with heavy sledge hammers. Such thoughtfulness deserves commendation, or was the noise just bothering you, Ralph? . . . Verdan Stuckey is nursing a bad cut above his eye. He says he fell through a raised platform but it looks like he was talking when he should have been listening. . . . Glenn Hoon is complaining to the manager of the grocery he patronizes that they should put comfortable chairs at the magazine section of the store so he can read the comic books in comfort. . . . Linberg Bryant prides himself in his work and manner of neatness. Lindy was called back as he was leaving home one morning by his wife, who insisted he put on clean clothes which he did. That day he decided to clean out the oil drain pans on some of the lathes. Not having done this job before, he ran into a little trouble and did a beautiful job of getting his nice clean clothes spotted with dirty oil. Let's not blame it on the little woman now, Lindy. . . . John Neukam had a field day fishing a week ago Sunday in the St. Joe River. He hooked a 12½-lb. carp that gave him a good battle. John was surprised to find the fish was full of eggs, six lbs. of them to be exact. Now he is considering going into the caviar business. . . . You have heard of people who like to dunk everything in coffee before they eat it. Paul Chronister did a bang-up job of dunking his lunch the other day. He was investigating a leaking lunch pail when he discovered his whole lunch floating in coffee. He ate his lunch out that day. . . . Paul Yentes sleepily walked off the elevator at the fourth floor the other morning and it was only through the gentle reminders of his co-workers that he got the right floor. . . . Charlie Bracht sold tickets to a square dance last week which had already been put on the preceding Saturday. Charlie was last seen leaving

SICK LIST

The following people have been reported on the sick list, dismissed from the hospital, and returned to work:

Sick List

town in a hurry. . . . Our sympathy goes to Henry Wittber on the death of his mother last week. . . . The holiday week-end was spent by the following people in the following ways: Sharon Matthews was at Hamilton Lake; Gordon Yaeger spent Sunday at Coney Island, Ky., and Monday at Turkey Run; DeWayne Schele helped his father-in-law plant potatoes, and Eric Bluhm took a trip to Hurley, Wis. . . . Bob Calkins has turned swimming instructor and is teaching his 17-month-old son to swim. . . . If your TV set blanks out between 11 and 12 a.m. on June 20 blame it on Frank Lebrecht. His great voice will be among a group singing then. . . . DRIVE CAREFULLY: Spring brings out the sap in some drivers.

WITH GE 30 YEARS—Alfred B. Rondot (center) talks over his 30 years as a General Electric employee with (l-r) Ed Sonday, A. J. Rose, Tom Staley, and Bruce Rohn. Mr. Rondot came to GE as an apprentice in Bldg. 26-5. At the present time he is supervisor of planning in Bldg. 4-2.

DECATURITES

by George Laurent

Now that spring is here the tool room's adenoid tenor, Jerry Kohne, has decided that it is time for his fellow workers to suffer again. Sympathy cards will be appreciated. . . . There has been an addition to the Oscar Teeple family, five of them to be exact. If you wish to obtain a nice kitten for a pet, contact Oscar before he gives all of them away. . . . I thought all good people were born in March, but with all the birthdays last week I am beginning to wonder. A great big happy birthday wish goes to Mary Fennig, Vera Geimer, Earleen Steffen, Wanda Bailey, and Nyla Wilkinson. Here's wishing you many more happy birthdays and a million thanks for the treats. . . . We are a little late but still think James Lovelette's original poem of May deserves to be read so here it is:

MAY

When winter time has come and passed
And spring is really here at last,
Old Mother Nature takes a hand
And things turn green o'er all the land.

Before we know it May is here,
With azure skies so bright and clear.
It's good to see the wild flowers grow
And feel the balmy breezes blow.

The mushrooms spring up through the ground
In sheltered spots where they are found.
The fruit trees blossom pink and white
And scent the air so warm and light.

With sweet perfume from God's own hand,
Who makes all things so good and grand.
He even makes the month of May,
When young and old can look and say,
"We thank thee, Lord, for all you've done.
You've given us springtime, rain, and sun."

SMOKEHOUSE

by George Winans

Congratulations from all of us to Lester Bland, who became the proud papa of a fine, big baby boy. . . . Vern Pease, our truck driver, enjoyed a vacation last week and Gabby Meehan says he enjoyed a vacation, too. Gabby took Vern's place while he was away. . . . Officer Tieman has a new hobby, gardening. That explains the blisters and the limping, eh, Sarge? . . . Eugene Miller finally got his Mercury out of the hospital after that woman driver almost demolished it, and guess what happened. Yep, that's right, another woman driver! She really smashed one this time, as she was thrown clear out of the car. Miller says from now on whenever he meets a woman driver, he's taking the sidewalk. . . . Alma Newhard, our steno, got herself a Red Riding Hood outfit, cape, shoes, and all. Little Red Riding Hood had only one wolf to contend with, Alma. You have a whole building full! . . . The years are taking their toll on John McNearlin. Last Thursday he was seen smoking a cigar and a cigarette at the same time. "Just a case of not letting your right hand know what your left hand is doing," says John. . . . The time: Saturday. The place: Skinner Lake. Al Mason and his wife are out in the boat. Mrs. Mason is fishing. She's catching them right and left, as fast as she can bait the hook and pull them in. Mr. Mason isn't fishing, at least he isn't catching any. He's just dangling his pole in the water. Rumor has it that the little woman caught so many fish that there wasn't room in the boat for Al and he had to swim ashore. We don't print rumors, however, we just want the facts. Dum-dum-dum. P.S. Is that why you bought another boat, Al?

GE GOLFERS MEET STUDEBAKER SUNDAY

Owls Open with Two Wins; Hower Hurls One Hit Game

by Bob Crosby

The GE Owls started the softball season off with two wins. They defeated Zollner in the first game, 15-3, scoring 12 runs in the second frame, in the win. They scored three runs in the first two innings to beat Eckrich, 3-1, in the nightcap.

Bud Hower came within one of starting his season off with a no-hit game. With two out in the seventh inning, Harold Hanks hit a clean single over second base. This hit also scored the only Eckrich run of the game. Brancefield was on base at the time due to an error. Eckrich didn't have a man on base from the first to the seventh inning.

GE scored 12 runs on six hits, five walks, and five errors, as 17 men batted in the second inning against Zollner. This big inning wrapped the ball game up for the Owls. Blodgett held the hard-hitting Zollner team to three hits.

The Owls play every Wednesday morning at McMillen Park. All fans are urged to attend and see their team in action.

Harold Somers, GE catcher, had the little finger of his right hand broken in the sixth inning of the first game. He will probably be out for the season. This will be a great loss to the Owls.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Jeanne Cirks, Bldg. 6-4; Jack Wilson, Bldg. 6-8; John Oldenkamp, Bldg. 6-10. A very happy birthday today to our Charley (loud shirt) Wurm. And many more (birthdays, that is) save us a little from more loud shirts. . . . THE TAM DOELLS have moved to their new home southwest of Fort Wayne. It's wonderful to have a brand new home, brand new car and an all-electric kitchen, and we hope you will be very happy. . . . IT'S HARD TO KEEP UP WITH OUR SPECIALTY PEOPLE—so many are moving to new homes or in the process of building, or having babies, or getting married. . . . The Bob Susdorfs just recently moved to their new home at 1830 Berkley, where they are awaiting a very important visitor. . . . OUR SYM-PATHY is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gebfert on the recent death of Mrs. Gebfert's father. . . . OH JOE! Your bow tie looked so "cute" and natural on you, that's why so many of us didn't even notice you were wearing one. How about a bright red one? . . . THE SHORT HAIR CUT CLUB has a new member. Her name is Phyllis Faulkner. Incidentally, did you notice how young Phyllis looks after her short hair cut? . . . THREE TIMES IS A CHARM on a golf course, I hope. This is the old saying Jack Jennings kept saying to himself when he started to hit his third shot off the same tee. His first two shots went out of bounds. So he hit his third ball and what do you think happened? Yes, he lost his third ball. "Oh well," said Jack to himself, "I take six strokes on this hole anyway. These jerks that I'm playing with won't know any better anyway." That's what you think Jack, our pal. . . . STRAWBERRIES! STRAWBERRIES! Who'll buy my strawberries." In two years from now that is what Marian Leiter will be saying with those extra special kind she has—500 berries to a plant, "by cracky!" . . . PATTY CURTIS certainly goes to a lot of bother to keep people from wearing her clothes. It's a cinch no one will put them on in a hurry with knots tied in the sleeves. . . . WE ANNOUNCE the birth of Steven Allen Bray, 8½ lbs., born to Fran and Glenn Bray in California. Fran formerly worked in our office. . . . Doris and Raymond Klug are the proud parents of a seven pound girl, Linda Susan, born Friday, May 28, at the Parkview Hospital. Doris and Linda are at home now.

One of the summer sport highlights is the annual golf match between the cream of the GE golf leagues and the Studebaker AC of South Bend.

This year the match will be held Sunday afternoon at the beautiful Brookwood golf links. The starting time is 12:30 p.m. Those who have been picked to represent GE have been notified by golf commissioner Harold Braden or their respective league managers.

If tradition holds, this will be a win for the local lads. The home team has come up with a win on almost every occasion. One of the long rivalry headlines has been the annual match with Walt Sunier, the dean of the GE group, and W. E. Holmes of Studebaker. Last year

Sunier upset Holmes on the Notre Dame links and he thinks he can repeat this year.

Included in the list of GE linksters will be Red Braden, Warren Wickliffe, Carl Saaf, Ray Hills, Bill Kayser, Paul Billman, Willie Adams, Jack Steel and Bob Hanna. Besides W. E. Holmes the local lads may encounter Allen Holmes, Mike Garback, and many other old rivals.

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

Whoever the gent was who invented this game of golf, he must have had his eye to the future. What other form of exercise permits a person to work off the rough edges, both physical and mental, and yet leaves him with a warm glow of accomplishment? I know; I'm prejudiced.

Last week the spectacular action happened in the Tuesday league. Jack Jennings and his Divot Diggers either don't read press notices or else they felt they were all the bunk because they pulled the shambles that Red Braden's crew of 19th Holers have been making of league play down on their heads and really clobbered them, but good, by 22 points. The loss dropped the 19th Holers to third place behind the Dubs and the clobbering Divot Diggers. The Dubs moved into the top slot by beating the tail-end Gas House Tigers by nine points. Despite a neat 38 by Jim Walley the 49ers were held by the Optimists. Fred Ulrich paced the Optimists with a 40.

shoving them into fourth place. The Rough Riders held to second spot with a nine point win over the long shot Dark Horses. Ray White and Harold Dimke led the league with 41's.

Owl League

My heart and mind still goes to Brookwood on Thursday mornings when my old buddies, the Owls, tangle. My team, the Birdies, are on the bottom. Look, fellows, you're the champs; what gives? Last week Bud Hower's Pars with Dave Mumma's 42 beat the champs by 10 points. Always rough and tough, the Eagles beat the Bogeys by seven. Paul Billman chipped in a 42 for the winners. Despite a 41 by Lloyd Grider and a 42 by "Old Pro" Warren Wickliffe, the Hot Shots squeaked out a two pointer over the Aces.

Beat Ben Hogan

Tomorrow all of golfdom from topnotcher to hacker will match strokes with the one and only Ben Hogan.

The third annual National Golf Day will be observed wherever there is a orchard pool layout. All of the proceeds will go to the U.S.O. and National Golf Fund.

Bantam Ben will be playing at Baltusrol in Springfield, N. J. and his total will be the score to shoot at. If any golfer beats or ties the Mighty Mite according to the Callaway system of handicap, he will receive a medal. Special certificates will be given for ties. The medal will be inscribed "I Beat Ben Hogan."

This event sponsored jointly by P.G.A. and LIFE Magazine saw more than 100,000 compete last year. The entry fee is one dollar.

All GE golfers are invited to take part in this big golfing event.

Early Monday League

In Charlie Briggs' section of the Monday league two matches ended plus one, minus one, and the other wound up plus 11, minus 11. The Benny Penkul Wire Mill team paced by Carl Saaf's 39 continued to lead the pack but squeaked by with a one point win over the Highballs. Close on the leader's heels are Becker's Transformer lads who walloped Financials by 11. Glen France carded a 43 for the winners. The Divoteers picked up a point from the Putters. Les Glougie dropped in the only birdie on the par 4 fifth.

Late Monday League

The Lost Balls made the biggest gain in the second section of the Monday league by pasting the Rovers by 13, but failed to improve in league standings. The Pros moved from second spot to the cat bird seat with an 11 point beating over the leading Turf Toppers,

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

It is the month of June. Then, if ever come perfect days, when pleasant sights salute the eyes, and pleasant scents, the noses. . . . Realizing the necessity for fire protection in St. Joe Township and being quite instrumental in obtaining such for their community were Don Arnold, Herb Saurer, and Brice Martin. The new fire-fighting equipment was purchased and housed in a neat new building directly across the road from Herb Saurer's residence. He was appointed assistant chief; Don, building custodian; while Brice is to be chief polisher of the equipment. Early Sunday morning an alarm was sounded. Herb, being the first arrival of the volunteers, tried to find the key to the fire house. Being unable to locate one among the other rookie firemen, they finally decided to break a window and open the door from the inside. (We always thought that a fire house was open 24 hours a day without lock and key.) Brice, hearing the alarm from a distance and not being able to start his car decided to ride his high-speed bull. However, he arrived at the fire house quite some time after the smoke eaters had departed. . . . Men love to wonder and that is the seed of our science. Our sensational wonder this week is whatever prompted Howard Knight to dispose of his famous 1939 Pontiac and take over a brand new sleek-looking 1954 model. Perhaps the opening sentence of this item is the answer. Some of Howard's co-workers are of the opinion that Charles Clawson, seeking safe and dependable transportation to and from his lake home, was the one who persuaded Howard to jump off the deep end. . . . A few weeks ago Ora Goff spent a week in Florida. While there he sent a postcard to his co-workers. The card arrived a day and a half after Ora had returned to work. He surely must have burned up the highways on the return trip, driving day and night in order to beat that card here.

Claude Gill took his wife on a camping trip last week-end and not only did they enjoy the trip but they caught a big quantity of fish. They are going to try their luck again real soon. . . . Hazel Stauffer is glad she is not any taller than she is, as she would have had that much farther to fall down. No bones broken, just her dignity ruffled. . . . When John Figley's electric razor broke, we thought he might be going to help Warsaw celebrate their centennial. Now that he is having it fixed, we think he is getting ready to rent it out for the big kill after the centennial. Remember, John, this party that is fixing it can't wear a tie, but she does like chocolate coated nuts. . . . Have Sam Taylor give you a demonstration of an old woman on the phone. . . . Don Mason had two dog tags made lately. Why two, Don? You afraid you will get lost looking for the dog? . . . Jay Michaels made a quick trip to Baltimore, Md. over the week-end. . . . Vacation time is near for a lot of folks. Frank Gamec is fishing on his vacation. Luella Hockemeyer has gone to Nebraska. Gertrude is going to Ohio. Esther Walborn is going to stay home and do some sewing. . . . Fern Hollowell showed up at work with a stiff neck. That is what she gets for falling asleep on the davenport while watching TV. . . . We extend our sympathy to Ralph Gilbert in the death of his mother and to Ed Ort in the death of his sister. Ed Ort is also on his vacation this week. . . . Al Edwin is going to Michigan to fish in the Muskegon River. He has been wearing his heavy underwear for two days to get used to the itching as it isn't spring up there yet. . . . Emery Tucker is going to Harbor Springs close to Petosky. Both of them are going to try and bring some fish back. . . . Grace Ober was off to the races at Indianapolis, sitting right up with the dignitaries. . . . Sorry to hear that Betty Minard is on the sick list. Hurry and get well, Betty. . . . Harold Nagel went to Annapolis to see his son graduate. . . . Oh, yes, I almost forgot. Bill Charleston is going on his vacation too. . . . Bill Crane is pulling for Eddie Arcaro in the Goyamo Special at the 500 mile classic but won't be surprised when Acaro shows up at Belmont Park instead of Indianapolis. . . . If any one didn't get a GE News last Friday, see Mardo

Tobias as he has all the extra copies at his house. He will be glad to bring you one. . . . Yes, Helen White does wear a hat once in a while. She looks pretty snappy in that blue one. . . . Ray Soest is back after a week's vacation. . . . Carl Kensey bet Ed Taylor we would be on four days this week. We were. We had Memorial Day off.

SHAFT SHAVINGS BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

Pat Christle was seen the other evening in his late Dodge. He also was wearing a checkered cap. The fellows were wondering, Pat, are you going to enter it in the 500-mile race in Indianapolis. Anyone wishing to see Pat's car, get a copy of the "Horseless Carriage" magazine published in Los Angeles, California. . . . Kenny Hart is still on the sick list. Here's hoping this column is finding you well on the way to recovery. . . . Herb Wendt paid us a visit last week. . . . Marten Heeder came out of hibernation to pay us a visit last week. He says that Sand Lake is still wet. . . . A belated happy birthday to Russ Greene. . . . We say good-by to John Tuto, who left us to go to Winter St., and Darwin Klenke, who went to Bldg. 31-2. Good luck, fellows. . . . It seems that when they were selling the Legion poppies, Herman K. Zuber got out his from eight years ago and dusted it off and wore it. . . . A few people in Bldg. 19-3 are having TV fits: For one, Clayton Dafforn found out his father's picture tube works better in his set. Joe Burton seems to be having a contest with himself to see how many tubes he can buy for his set. . . . Anyone having an extra alarm clock, please give it to Frank Elder. It seems that he came to work a little early the other morning. What is wrong, Frank. Is someone playing tricks on you and setting your clock wrong? . . . Russell (Slim) Neireiter made the cartoon post with his "Rub-a-Dub, Dub, I got a Tub," cartoon. . . . Frank Enderle was basking on the shores of Shoaff Lake last week. . . . Dennis (Dugan) McKerring, our plumber, met with an accident last week. We are happy to say Dugan is back at work and feeling fine. He says that you can't keep a good Irishman down.

Women who are too unselfish make the best wives and the worst husbands.

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlaffen

Norbert Meyer came up with a new one this week. In order to clear his television screen of too much snow, he will cut down the snowball bushes in front of his home. . . . Our deepest sympathy to Kathryn Allridge, whose mother passed away May 24, and to Horace Harmon who lost his wife. . . . Blanch Mounts visited Father Charles Banet at St. Joseph College in Rensselaer, Sunday, May 23. . . . Since Paul Fremion and Ross Harder are feuding, everything is quiet in Test and Inspection. . . . Louise Lambole's daughter Suzanne was confirmed May 30 at Holy Cross Lutheran Church. . . . Good-by to Duke Doeppke, who went back to the Apprentice School. . . . Welcome to Don Sordelet who will work in the Tool Room. . . . We understand the TV bug has hit Bill Lavine hard. . . . Kathleen and Eddie Jencks spent the holiday at Tower Lakes in Illinois, and Dorothy Money was in Jackson, Mich., at the home of her daughter. . . . Wilmer Kruckeberg's daughter is going to marry her Marine. Congratulations, kids. . . . Carl Kloepper is taking his vacation early in June to get in on the good fishing. Carl went fishing the other day and claims to have caught a 21½-inch pike. If it hadn't been for his little boy, Mikie, he would never have landed the fish. . . . Arnold Berning shot a 38 in golf and beat Carl Reynolds at Garrett. No comment from Louis Shattuck. . . . Dorelyn Forde's brother from California was home the week-end of May 24. There were 41 people there, all in the immediate family. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rodenbeck are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary traveling through the Smoky Mountains. A second honeymoon, as Ray puts it. Congratulations. . . . Everett Mullen, Elmer Jockel and their respective families attended the Tulip Festival in Holland, Mich., and reported it was a sight to behold. . . . The girls in Switches took a bumpy ride Saturday. Lela Schlagenhauf seems to have been the most affected. Anybody have a spare pillow? . . . Kenny Johnson is reportedly going to trade his DeSoto for a Ford. Oh, come now. . . . FLASH: Buck Sessler is on the wagon—no more chocolate malts.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

Welcome to Wilma Welburn, the new girl in Telegraph. . . . We say farewell today to Joyce Joseph, who leaves us to be a full-time housewife. . . . Happy birthday greeting to Norma Durnell on her birthday this week. The strawberries and ice cream were delicious. . . . Congratulations to Dick Bohde and his new bride, Janice Stanton, who were married May 29. . . . Eddie Blotkamp, being the Scotch type, saw a little hole in a new shirt and decided to wear it a few times before taking it back and exchanging it for a new one. . . . Margie Watkins and her husband spent Memorial Day in Indianapolis, attending the 500 mile race. . . . We are wondering about the big smile from Ruth Sorg. Some say all that glitters isn't gold. The last item was contributed by Peggy Ford. . . . Sharon Shearer was running around the office the other day with a black eye. Everyone was looking at her and wondering who gave her the black eye. It turned out to be only dirt.

LITTLE LEAGUE SEASON OPENS

Opening day ceremonies in the Hamilton Park Little League will be held Monday, Jack W. Bendure, Taylor St., chairman of the ceremonies, said today. The GE team will see their first action the following night in a game with Allen Dairy.

The program will start at 5:30 p.m. with Glenn Schimmele as master of ceremonies. Boy Scouts from Troop 15 will present the colors, and Craig Smith, Little League commissioner, will give a talk. Other persons taking part will be Harvey VonGunten, of the Park Board; and representatives of the four teams in the Hamilton Park League. K. W. Michael will represent GE.

Lee Harter, president of the league, will introduce the managers, coaches, and players of the four teams.

The game which is expected to get under way shortly after 6 p.m. will be between Allen Dairy and Patterson Fletcher.

Charlie Wilt, manager of the GE team, has announced the following player roster: David Schenher, Roger Head, Karl Zimmerman, Tom Bell, and Richard Snyder, all age 12; Charles Wilt, Jr., George McAfee, and Victor Heck, all age 11; William Rainey, James Parker, Duane Northcutt, and Fred Noll, all age 10; and Steven Esterline, Roger Macy, and Daniel Bennett, nine-year-olds.

FIRE CONFEREES—Going over the program for the two-day fire prevention and control conference staged here this week for Midwest GE plants are (l-r): George M. Wile, vice president of Arkwright Mutual Fire Insurance Company; Norman O. Chadbourne, manager of fire insurance, Schenectady, and general chairman of the event, and Robert Wylie, manager of contributing manufacturing, which is responsible for fire prevention and control operations here.

More Than Half of GE Employees Now Receiving New Pay Increase

More than half of the GE employees are receiving the new pay increase averaging more than five cents an hour contained in the company's offer of May 24, according to reports received in New York.

The offer had been accepted by 43 local unions in time to make it retroactive to June 1, while some 40 odd other unions still had an opportunity to get retroactivity as we went to press. This was because of later contract reopening dates for some of them and because of company management's physical inability to arrange simultaneous discussion meetings with the rest. These unions were all given the same two weeks' time for discussion and consideration of the offer after its presentation.

IUE-CIO and UE leadership let the last day for acceptance of the company's offer with retroactivity pass without coming to an agreement. Thus, some 100,000 employees they represent lost over $200,000 in extra pay they would have gotten the first week in June and

Right Turn Only On Fairfield Light

Employees who use the parking facilities of the Fairfield Ave. parking lots have been reminded to observe the regulations set up for persons driving their automobiles from the lots, A. R. Vegalues, GE police chief, stated this week.

Drivers leaving either side of the Fairfield lots should turn right only, when they have the green light, the regulations state. When they turn left they prevent pedestrians from crossing Fairfield. The traffic light installed at this location was placed there to enable pedestrians to cross the street.

MODERN LAYOUT PROGRAM UNDER WAY

Manufacturing to Start August 9 At Transformer's Hanna St. Plant

Manufacturing operations at Specialty Transformer Department's Hanna St. Plant will begin Monday, August 9, the day after vacation shut-down. Robert W. Barker, superintendent of Section 88, which will be housed in the new location, made the announcement this week.

Section 88 will be the first of the department's self-contained manufacturing areas and will manufacture general purpose transformers, known as M's and D's.

Not only will modernization and straight line production be displayed in the new layout, but some new machines and methods resulting from engineering redesign will be incorporated in the operations. Changes are being made in both the Type M and Type D lines to bring about improved quality.

Modernization of Section 88 is the first step of a department-wide long-range program set up to meet the greatly increased competition in the transformer field and to prepare for future business increases. The program is the first such effort on this scale since the department was organized in 1947.

It is estimated at this time that approximately 150 employees will be located at the Hanna St. site,

Mr. Barker stated this week.

Preparatory work at Hanna St. is well underway. Workmen are installing equipment such as paint ovens which loom 26 feet above the floor, preparing foundations and renovating the building. Equipment, old and new, will carry out a color scheme dominated by a shade of green.

As areas are equipped, employees who will work at the plant will have the opportunity to visit the location and see where they will work and become familiar with the layout.

The plant is an L-shaped struc-

Flag Day

Meeting in Philadelphia on June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress adopted a resolution declaring that "the Flag of the United States shall be of 13 stripes of alternate red and white with a union of 13 stars of white in a blue field, representing the new constellation."

Tradition says that the first Stars and Stripes was made by Betsy Ross, of Philadelphia, at the request of George Washington. A contemporary description said that the stars of the flag "represent a new constellation rising in the West. The blue in the field is taken from the edge of the Covenanters Banner of Scotland, significant of the covenant of the United States against oppression. The stars are disposed in a circle, symbolizing the perpetuity of the Union, the ring signifying eternity. The 13 stars show the number of the united colonies and denote subordination of the States of the Union as well as equality among themselves. The red, the color which in the Roman days was a symbol of defiance, denotes daring, and the white, purity."

It was not until 1889 that any observance of our flag's birthday was noted, and it began with the idea of George Bloch, principal of a free kindergarten for the poor in New York City, that the day should be marked with patriotic exercises. Shortly afterward, New York's State Legislature passed a law for the observance of Flag Day, June 14, in the public schools.

Not a legal holiday in any of the states, June 14 is, however, marked generally throughout our land by the schools and by patriotic organizations, in exercises which feature the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

There are so many new people coming into Section 401 that I am afraid I'll miss someone's name, so I'll take this opportunity to welcome each and every one of you. . . . Glen Fernwalt is looking for a pet for the house. . . . We are sorry to hear that Edna Houser was shaken up a bit in an automobile accident over the weekend. . . . Freda Farley is back after a week's vacation. . . . We are glad to see Modene Smith, Maureen Brake, and Olka Johnston back again. . . . A young couple thought they had a way of beating the cost of the admissions to the drive-in theater until she was caught crawling out of the trunk. They had to pay the extra price anyway. . . . Ginny Burkett had tears of joy in her eyes. Her husband is back in the States and will be discharged and soon home for good. . . . Kathryn Gilbert is increasing her family on Saturday. Her son is being married. Good luck to the newlyweds. Hazel Stauffer is to be the organist for the wedding. . . . Congratulations to the Leon Groveskys on the new baby boy at their house. The boys all thank you Leon, for the cigars. . . . Earl Sexton says Rome City is fished out. No more fish are left except little ones to grow bigger. . . . Betty Minard is back at work after being sick. . . . The supervisors party for George Prince, who is retiring the first of July, was held at Walt Dreyer's St. Joe River cottage. There are no known casualties so far. George received a glass rod and spinning reel and all the trimmings as a gift from the gang. From Sections One and Two he got a Johnson outboard motor. Now he is all ready for a fishing expedition. We all hope you enjoy your leisure time now that you are retired. . . . ## A Way to Weight Control

People who maintain a normal weight seem to—

1. have more vitality;
2. develop fewer cases of diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure and other diseases;
3. have a longer life expectancy;
4. in general, enjoy life more fully.

People who carry around 15 or more extra pounds usually tire more easily. Their hearts have to work harder to keep the blood circulating. They place extra strain on their hearts. Slimmer people don't seem to develop heart ailments as frequently as their stouter friends.

We all want to live longer and to have more vitality to enjoy life more fully. It's fun to buy clothes to cover a slim figure and to be able to buckle our belts in the same notch as we did in our youth. Actually we should be able to do both of these things if we follow our doctor's advice.

Physicians pretty much agree that if we are not seriously underweight or overweight at age 25, we ought to maintain this weight for the rest of our lives.

To do this we may have to change our thinking a trifle. We may find that in order to hold our weight down, it will be necessary to switch from cake to fruit, from whole milk to skim milk.

This matter of switching is becoming considerably easier. We can now buy dietetic packed fruits—fruits canned with no sugar; protein (fat free) bread; low calorie soft drinks; skim milk to which we can add powdered milk; sucaryl and saccharin sweeteners; and fresh fruits and vegetables all year through.

The extra effort made to limit the sugar and fat intake will in many instances be enough to control those pounds.

Let's face it. It will pay us extra dividends in a feeling of well being, longer life expectancy, and better appearance.

Gill is going to put all his equipment under lock and key after this. The guys with the honest faces, such as Buckmaster, are usually the guilty ones, Claude. . . . Anyone having a good used car to sell see Harry Meyers. He blew a tire and after he had it fixed he drove about one-half mile down the road and threw a bearing. . . . Harley Heckley had to unlock his trunk to show the law officials he didn't have the Bern bank loot. I didn't think he was that suspicious a looking character, did you? . . . Mary Nute carried her coffee cup to the locker on her way home and put it down with her purse. After she got her coat on and had rung out and was out of the building she discovered she was still carrying her cup. She brought it back the next day. . . . The program on TV didn't suit Veva Healy so she turned it off and turned on her radio. Imagine her surprise when she heard Liberace and his brother, George, on a very interesting program. . . . Sam Taylor is trying to compete with John Figley in the red cap section. We are afraid that when winter comes Sam's red cap will have turned to brown. . . . Don Mason took his family on a fishing trip out to the river at Cedarville. Guess who caught all the fish. Not Don, his wife was the lucky one this time. Don ate some, though. . . . Sam Taylor was looking all over Bldg. 4-1 for an object called a scribe. He just knew he had left it there. Imagine his embarrassment when little Sammy Warren found it under Sam's bench right on 4-4, just where he had left it.

Primer on Communism: No. 8

What is the Communist View on Labor Unions?

Unions, if Red-dominated, can be powerful instruments of Russia. By international directive, therefore, Communists must try to worm their way into union control. Lenin wrote that they, if need be, must "resort to all sorts of devices, maneuvers and illegal methods, to evasion and subterfuge in order to penetrate into the trade unions."

Communists not only set up the World Federation of Trade Unions but they campaigned in American trade unions. Failure of their 1929 policy to split unions of the AFL turned them to the CIO, where they seized control of or heavily infiltrated unions of maritime, longshore, electrical, mine, transport, fur, warehouse, retail, office and other workers. Control was used to further the party line but by the late 1940's the CIO expelled infested unions.

The outing will take place at Franke Park Saturday, Sept. 11. In addition to attendance prizes given all those attending the outing, door prizes will be given. The door prizes will be in the form of gift certificates redeemable at the Employee Store.

'Operation Alert' To Sound Monday Throughout City

Monday, June 14, "Operation Alert," civil defense test exercise, will take place in Fort Wayne and throughout the nation. Together with other sirens in the city, the three air raid warning sirens installed at the Broadway, Taylor St., and Winter St. plants will be sounded at 10:15 a.m. to signify that a simulated attack by hostile aircraft is imminent.

The sirens will be sounded the second and final time at 1 p.m. announcing the all-clear situation. There will be no interruption of working schedules at any of the three plants.

Purposes of the test exercises are to promote increased operational capability, test communications facilities, provide training in civil defense, and develop increased interest in civil defense.

The operation will assume that the A-bombs will be detonated about 2700 feet above the ground where Lewis St. crosses Calhoun St. The total damage area will be assumed to include territory within a circle having a radius of .75 mile with its center where the two streets cross.

Six children of Fort Wayne and Decatur Plant employees are recipients of General Electric scholarships and a loan award for the 1954-55 academic year. The scholarships total $500 each and the loan award is $250.

Shirley A. Dickinson, 18, daughter of Donald H. Dickison, Bldg. 4-2, has received a GE scholarship for her second consecutive year. She completed her freshman year at Ball State Teachers College this month. Shirley is majoring in secondary education and plans to teach English and Spanish.

Phyllis A. Greene, 18, daughter of Mrs. Mildred Greene, Bldg. 4-4, graduated from Central High School this month and ranked third scholastically in a class of 235. She plans to attend either Drake University or Indiana State Teachers College and major in music education and mathematics. She is also the recipient of the Tri Kappa sorority scholarship for the coming school year.

James J. Lowe, 17, son of Myron Jay Lowe, Bldg. 17-4, graduated from Elmhurst High School in June, 1954. He ranked second scholastically in a class of 100. Jim plans to attend Yale University where he wants to take a pre-legal course.

Jerry D. Pontius, 19, son of Mrs. Vera Sowards, Winter St., also received a GE scholarship last year. He completed his sophomore year at DePauw University this month and is majoring in chemistry research. He has also received the Rector Scholarship for 1954-55.

William Tope, 18, son of Russel L. Tope, Decatur Plant, graduated from Wren High School, Wren, Ohio, this month. He plans to attend Purdue University where he wants to major in either electrical or chemical engineering. He was co-valedictorian of his class and secretary-treasurer of the Senior Class. He also took an active part in sports and music in high school.

William C. Pomp, 17, graduated from Central High School this month. He is the son of William J. Pomp, Bldg. 27. William received the $250 GE loan award. He ranked in the upper 10 per cent of his graduating class. He plans to attend either Indiana University or Wabash College. William also received the Fort Wayne Newspapers, Inc., scholarship.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER — Angela Lansbury and Hugh Marlowe star in "The Crime of Daphne Rutledge," the gripping drama of a desperate wife trapped in a murder scheme, on "The General Electric Theater," Sunday, June 13, at 8 p.m. (CDT), over WKJG-TV network.

Daphne Rutledge (Miss Lansbury) is a waitress who falls in love with wealthy Fred Rutledge (Marlowe). Their marriage, however, is an almost immediate failure because they must live with his overhearing and possessive mother, Marian. (Frieda Inescourt).

Out riding one evening, Daphne and Fred argue, and in a rage, Daphne strikes her husband with a searchlight as he is fixing a flat tire. Hysterical, she tries to drive away, but backs up over her injured husband instead. He is found by police and taken in critical condition to a hospital.

Marian accuses Daphne of attempted murder, and despite her son's condition, she is delighted with what has happened because she feels she can not bring the impossible marriage to an end. Marian's mistake is letting Fred see this reasoning, and only then does he understand and forgive his wife's actions.

Next week, "The General Electric Theater" presents Miriam Hopkins, James Dunn, Faith Domergue and John Agar in "Desert Crossing."

British Cuddle Around Small TV—It's Warmer

Why do the British, who've had television since 1937, prefer the 17-inch picture tube size while Americans prefer the 21-inch size?

The answer lies largely in the difference between home heating systems in the two countries, according to a British electronics specialist who visited General

Electric's picture tube plant in Syracuse last week.

H. G. Foster, managing editor of "Electronic Engineering," a British publication, said Americans, with central heating in their homes, can spread out in their living rooms and watch TV from a distance.

In England, Mr. Foster said, the common living room coal fireplace tends to group people more closely, making the smaller screen size preferable.

We are happy to learn that Gertrude Koldewey's niece, Becky, is improving. . . . When Betty Swift throws a ball she really should look to see where the ball is going. Morris Petgen might have a black eye next time. . . . Wedding bells will soon be ringing for Paul Richter and Lois Schmidt. . . . Happy birthday to Harry Limbach. . . . Marlene Niccum was honored with a baby bunting shower Friday evening at the home of Mabel Fisher. The girls who attended the party were Betty Swift, Sue Stewart, Helen Brown, Marlene Niccum, Ruth Bentz, Evelyn Tibbles, Gertrude Koldewey, and Mark Balough. Her gifts were lovely and useful. . . . Congratulations to Dixie Hogg, who is in Telegraph. She graduates from South Side Wednesday. . . .

Mabel Keppler in IBM celebrated her first wedding anniversary over the week-end. . . . In case of disaster we will all be safe. Fred Wheeler has joined Civil Defense as a policeman.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

We welcome Henry Mason, inspector, to our floor from Bldg. 26-1. So long to Ed Englert, who is returning to Bldg. 26-4. . . . It seems we have a floating mouse in the office as Jim McGill, George Lambroff, and Wilbur Giltz can testify. Who said the stronger sex won't jump at a mouse? . . . As of Friday, June 4, our floor has completed three years without a lost time accident. Hearty congratulations, everyone, for a job well done. Let's keep up the good work. . . . Charlie Adams went mushroom hunting while in Michigan. He says he got a bushel basket full, so why doesn't he fulfill his promise and share with a certain party? . . . Wanted: Someone to explain to Lonnie Rockstroh why door knobs are placed on doors. . . . ## Walter Kryder Named Hermetic Planning Specialist

Walter M. Kryder has been appointed planning specialist in the Fort Wayne operations of the Hermetic Motor Department, Stephen E. Kelker, supervisor of planning, announced this week.

When he joined the company in 1924 Mr. Kryder was a winder in Bldg. 19-2. Later he went into finishing and testing series specialty motors. In 1926 he went on inspection and test in Bldg. 17-2.

In 1928 Mr. Kryder became a leading operator on rotors in Bldg. 17-2. Later he was named assistant foreman on inspection. He was named a foreman on winding, Bldg. 17-3, in 1937 and has held this position until his present appointment.

Mr. Kryder is a member of the Quarter Century Club and Supervisors Club and is on the school board of Cedar Creek Township. The Kryders, who have two children, live at R. R. 2, Grabill.

COUNT OFF SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Ruby Stoops

Louise Sinn and Bernie Warner paid us a visit last week. We were very happy to see them. . . . Carl Reidel was seen looking at his knees. Do you suppose he has ideas of wearing the latest thing in men's wear, walking shorts? . . . We wish to welcome the second trick girls on days in group 17x510. . . . Clara Gidley and Rose Cuney are having their third week of vacation. Have fun, gals! . . . Ruth Cavendar was taking a vacation last week spreading dirt, on her back yard, that is. . . . We want to welcome Marge Leahman in the lead section. . . . Florence Weimer and husband spent an enjoyable week-end at their cottage in Michigan. . . . We all hope that Ruby Stoops is well again soon after her recent operation. . . . Linda Wahrer is quite the harmonizer in group 17 x 510. . . . Birthday greetings to Edna Baker. . . . Vadas Putt is enjoying her third week of vacation.

DMM Stag Outing Set for June 19 At Limberlost

Limberlost golf course in Rome City will be the site of the Decimal Minute Men's stag outing Saturday, June 19. The stag will get under way at 9 a.m. with golf, fishing, softball and cards.

A chicken dinner with all the trimmings will be served at noon. Tickets are $2.50 each and today is the deadline for reservations. Prizes will be awarded in the various competitions as well as attendance prizes.

Eldon Moodie, president, and Vern Boyer, chairman of the steering committee are in charge of the outing.

Pay Increase

will lose again as much for every week that acceptance is delayed.

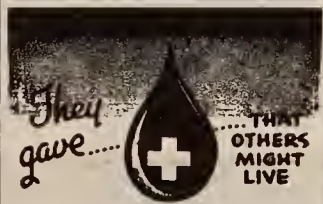

"We are genuinely and deeply distressed that maneuvering by IUE and UE leaders is making it necessary for us to forego paying this extra $200,000 a week to employees in IUE and UE units," a company spokesman said.

"We sincerely want to pay these employees this money, but their leadership insists on denying it to settle primarily for what seems to us to be competitive political reasons."

"The offer is a good one and was made in good faith. In the interest of our employees, we hope it will soon be possible to put it into effect for all of them."

It was pointed out that "the bargaining process is still a two-way street in theory, and we are sure our employees want it to be that way in fact."

"We sincerely feel we are not called on to put the pay increase and benefits into effect for the period ahead unless we in turn get from the union leadership the small protection that comes from a properly executed contract which is of course intended for the protection of both sides."

Section 93 Folks Prove Safety Contagious; Wind Up Three Accident-Free Years June 4

Proving that "Safety is Contagious" employees of Specialty Transformer Section 93 completed three years work without a lost-time accident June 4.

During this period they have worked a total of 1,868,000 man hours. Commenting on their record, Don E. Waldrop, safety specialist, said that employees of this section have done a fine job in establishing safe work habits.

They have shown that "Safety is Contagious," he said.

A large bulletin board on the wall in the center of Bldg. 26-3 has been devoted to safety news as it affects employees. Recently an electric eye was installed by the board. When anyone walks down the aisle where it is located, the sign lights up, calling attention to safety news appearing on it. Farold Schuman, Bldg. 26-3, introduced the idea of using the electric eye mechanism.

John Collins is safety chairman of the section. Members of the safety committee are: Marjorie Fowler, Edna Waterson, Ruth Freeland, Robert Jackson, David Gilbert, Morris Felger, Harry Rollins, Gary Miller, Eugene Gallo-way, Norma Suelzer, and Ralph Foreman.

DECATURITES by George Laurent

Eileen Freeby is so fond of Lib-erace that she even splurged and spent ten cents for his picture. . . . Edna Callow had a rather mean hat trick played on her not long ago. It seems that Edna isn't too fond of hats, but her son was getting married, so she celebrated the occasion by buying a new chapeau and burning "old faithful" which she had had for years. After the wedding she went to visit some friends and left her hat in the car with the door open. Almost before she knew it her nice new hat was racing across the fields being torn to shreds by her friend's ornery pups. Oh well, it was nice while it lasted. If anyone has an old hat laying around the house, I'm sure Edna would appreciate your donating it to the cause. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Nellie White and Virginia Raudenbush who celebrated recently. Nellie treated the gang with candy and Virginia treated with cookies. We hope you have many more birthdays. . . . No, that isn't an Indian working on the shaft line. It just happens to be Lawrence Franklin, who recently returned from a two-week fishing trip in Canada. . . . Greetings to Ada Owens on her birthday June 11. . . . Rumor has it that Erman Johnson will celebrate his birthday on June 13. I wonder if they will use firecrackers instead of candles on his cake? . . . Belated birthday greetings to Bill Mowery, who celebrated on the second. . . . GE CLUB PICNIC AUGUST 20.

Rites Held June 5 For Perry Shober, 73

Perry A. Shober, 73, died Thursday, June 3. Services were conducted Saturday, June 5, at the D. O. McComb & Sons Funeral Home. Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

A Quarter Century Club member, Mr. Shober came to General Electric in April, 1917, as an assembler. He held positions later as a stockkeeper, stock accumulator, and packer. Prior to his retirement January 1, 1946, he was a patrolman.

Survivors include his wife, Jennie M.; one son, Neil; one step-daughter, Mrs. Ray Deen, and two grandchildren.

HITS 30-YEAR MARK—The above group paid a call on Joseph J. Shelly (seated center) on his 30th anniversary with the General Electric Company June 3. Standing (l-r) are James C. Bartholomew, K. R. McDougall, and (seated), Ty Sherman and G. E. Jamieson. Mr. Shelly is an engineer in the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department.

Krasienko Named Value Analyst In Specialty Transformer Dept.

The appointment of Chester A. Krasienko as value analyst in the Specialty Transformer Department has been announced by Harold F. Briggeman, manager of production.

When he came to General Electric in 1946, Mr. Krasienko went on the Test Engineers Program in the Wire Mill, Taylor St. The following year he transferred to the Wire and Cable Department, Bridgeport, and returned to Fort Wayne in 1948. At that time he entered the Specialty Transformer Department where he completed the program a few months later. In April, 1948, he went to the Danville Plant on assignment. Prior to his present appointment he was a design engineer working on magnetic materials and their processing.

From October, 1942, until December, 1944, Mr. Krasienko served in the U. S. Army. He graduated from Purdue University in 1946 with a BSME degree. He is a member of the GE Squares Club and FWAGEE and teaches algebra at the Apprentice School.

Mr. and Mrs. Krasienko reside at 4226 Lillie St.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

A party was held last Saturday in honor of George Prince, who retired Wednesday. It was held along the river and everybody must have had a good time from all reports. Lee Lindeman's husband attended but was supposed to pick her up in Huntington at 9 p.m. The refreshments were so good that Everett didn't get there until 11 p.m. Lee thought for sure that she had been "stood up." . . . Welcome back to Bob Honaker and Bill Crain, who are returning to work in Bldg. 6-4. . . . Bob Pence is in the painting business and he is getting more paint on himself than on the house. . . . Pat Patterson, former co-worker, has moved his place of business from Broadway to Wells St. and Lois Tibbles was his first customer. . . . Thelma Purdue did it again. She brought what she thought was a hard-boiled egg in her lunch. . . . Donna Hahn attended a dance at the Van Orman Hotel last Saturday evening. She was overheard telling Carl Brenner that she never was so surprised as when she saw him playing in the orchestra. He replied, "That's only one of my many hidden talents." "Donna, that boy is one of the best. For your information he once played for Hoagy Carmichael. . . . Happy birthday to Carol Sanderson and Pete Espich. . . . Belated birthday to Virginia Curtis. See, we didn't forget.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Alma Elliott

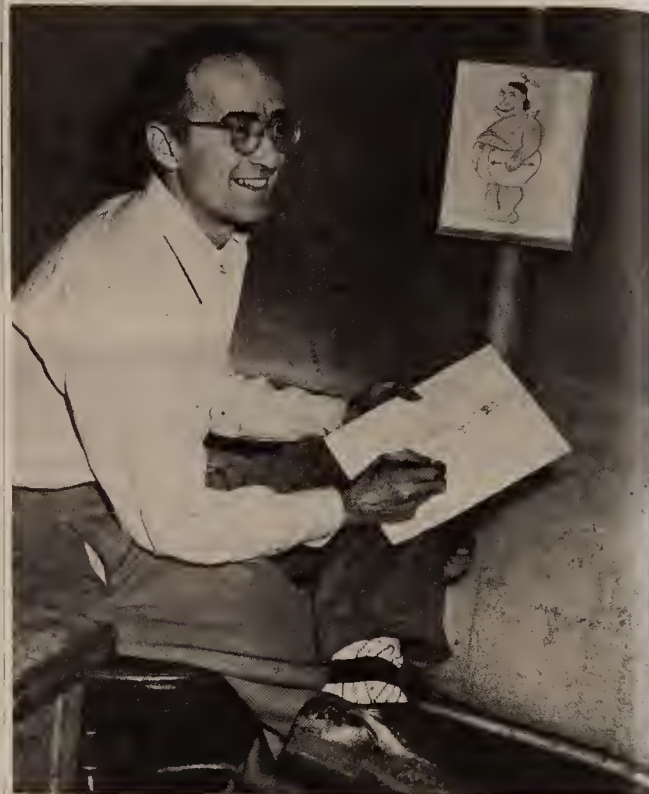

It looks as though summer is finally here. . . . Congratulations are due this week to Bob Messmer and his new wife. Best of luck to both of you! . . . The girls in Marketing Section treated Carolyn Piepenbrink recently with a dinner at Hall's Prime Rib. Carolyn, as you all know, is a bride-to-be of June 19, 1954. . . . We bid farewell for a while to Bob Faller, who is leaving Tuesday for the East where he will be married Saturday, June 12. . . . It certainly looks like almost everyone is getting the marriage bug around here. Always surprises! . . . The golf pros are at it again. We hear that Eileen Salman is a wicked golfer with that club in her hand. How about it, Eileen? Someone suggested the other day that the girls of Winter Street SIM get together a golf team. Wouldn't that be something? . . . Our new people we're welcoming this week are: Jeanne Dangler in Engineering; John Whiteman, our new plant patrolman; June Haines, the new mail girl; Sarah Sherbondy in Engineering; Karen Slater in Marketing; and Ed Burnworth in Production. . . . The people that are transferring into our SIM plant in the factory are: Freeda Green, Earl Dixon, Arthur Brown, Gayle Griffith, Delbert Thornburg, Thelma Dammeier, Roselyn Yeiser, Eva Decker, Thelma Harmeyer, Luvada Degraffenreed, Clellah Christman, Estella Thompson. We're saying welcome to each of them. . . . We are sorry to report that Dianne Linn's father is in the Lutheran Hospital. From all reports we understand he is getting along just fine. . . . Happy birthday this week to Mary Berghoff on the 10th, Don Lynch on the 8th, and Devon Britton on the 8th. We hope you all have many more. . . . It was reported to us that Jan Conroy now runs a taxi service between the office building and the parking lot. She surely did her day's duty the other day when it was raining so hard.

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Hazel Davis

We are glad to see Margaret Turney back to work again. . . . We wish a very happy birthday to Mary Stewart. We do feel a little sorry for Mary when her husband keeps her guessing about her gift. . . . Meredith Hauer and her husband went to the zoo at Toledo, Ohio. . . . All of us Elex members looked well fed and happy after the smorgasbord at Baer Field last week. . . . Fred Pyle is a man of many good traits. That we won't deny. One of his best has just come to light. This one has to do with his economical nature. It is rumored that Mr. Pyle loves to park his car at a meter on time left by the previous occupant, saving a few coppers in doing so. I imagine if one were mathematically inclined he could figure out a tidy saving accumulated over a great period of years in this manner. Mr. Pyle's intentions may be graded as excellent, however his timing is faulty as he is continually making trips to the City Hall to make another payment of one dollar for overtime parking. We believe a good accountant could figure a larger loss than gain from Fred's method of economy. Therefore in all good faith we advise Fred to drop his nickel in the slot along with the rest of us poor timers.

GE NEWS Columnist Cartoons Life and Times of Co-Workers

Artist at Work

Whenever anyone on the west side of Broadway finds a cartoon on the wall in his area about him, chances are it was drawn by George Winans, Bldg. 22.

George, who also writes the GE NEWS column, "Smokehouse Sayings," has been putting the funny incidents happening to his co-workers down on paper in cartoon form for the past ten years.

He says he has enjoyed drawing since he was a child in school. Today, he carries out his artistic efforts at home by making wooden yard decorations of many fictional characters. Mention the subject of photography and George begins talking about another of his favorite pastimes. He also likes to go roller skating with his six children.

There was a time, in the early 30's when George spent his spare time singing in clubs in the Fort Wayne area. At present, he is treasurer of an organization composed of former employees of the Boss Manufacturing Company. Employed at GE since 1942, George is an expeditor in Bldg. 22.

THE BIG WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Rachel Mounsey

Congratulations to Sarah Pulver, who became Mrs. Donald Rinehart. We wish the best of luck to both of you. . . . We are glad to have Fred Adams back with us again after a long illness. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Ruby Stoops, who underwent an operation Saturday morning. . . . We want to welcome Martha Bennett, Berniece Gasper, and Blanche Lattimore on days. . . . Louise Current, Wanda Carter, and Olka Johnson have left us for now. . . . We wish Ethel Koontz's husband, Al, an early homecoming from the hospital. . . . Marvin Van Skyock was confused when he poured charcoal into his cooler instead of ice. . . . Darrell Emerick is in his second childhood, riding his motor scooter back and forth to work. . . . Claire Forbes hid his truck the other day so no one would use it. When he wanted it he couldn't even find where he had hidden it. . . . Mary Green looks like the breath of spring in her new skirt. . . . We were glad to have Goldie Arms come into visit us. . . . Dallas Patton wants it known that his wife didn't come in for his pay check. She just said, "Hi," while going from one job to another. . . . Bob Hienzelman is going into the poultry business. Bob, being soft-hearted, started to feed the ducks last winter. When spring came the ducks had little ones, so they brought them to Bob to take care of. Bob claims he can't eat any as they are like the family. . . . Kate O'Connor was really caught short-handed over the week-end. She had almost finished painting a room when she ran out of paint. . . . Welcome to Garland (Bing) Herron on days.

"I hear your son is doing quite well."

"I'll say so! Two years ago he was wearing my old suits. Now I'm wearing his."

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlaffen

We sincerely extend our sympathy to Dale Irwin and his family in the death of his mother on June 3. . . . Mike Brayer's daughter, Nancy, graduated from Central Catholic High School on June 4. She received awards for 4-year honor roll and Quill and Scroll. Congratulations to the graduate. . . . Happy birthday to Carl Reynolds on June 8. We suppose he will be 39. That seems to be as old as men get. . . . We miss Dorothy Money who is off because of illness. Please hurry back, Dorothy. . . . We wonder which finger Frank Conley will wear his wedding band on. That's really a tough break, Frank, and we think you've been very brave about it. . . . Congratulations to Opal Cuney, who will mark 25 years with General Electric on June 9, and to Arnold Bienze, who will have been with us for 30 years on June 10. . . . Hugh Neely came back with a beautiful sunburn and so did Lou Ann Beauchamp. . . . Welcome to Norman Gertz, who is working with Carl Reynolds. Norman will be a senior at Purdue this fall. . . . Kathleen Jenck's sister from Rhode Island is going to arrive in Fort Wayne this week for a visit. . . . We hear there's going to be a quartet formed by several girls in the office. More details will be given later. . . . Congratulations to Bob Till who received $215 for his suggestion. . . . It seems Bob Duras never has any news. What about your golf, Bob? . . . Ed Hines is going to take a trip to Pennsylvania, business this time, no women. Now where have we heard that before? By the way, Ed's driving student passed her driving test with flying colors. . . . Edna Hall, a former co-worker, had a baby daughter on May 29. . . . Blanche Mountz was seen taking her spite out on her machine. Now, Blanche! . . . Since Bill Lavine moved to Jimmerson Lake, he has been lost four times in the "wilds" of northern Indiana looking for a place to get a haircut. Si, please note. . . . Vondy and Harry Diem have made a solemn pledge never to talk about the fish they catch. . . . Herb Lindenberg has entered his Studebaker in the "500" next year. Herb Tons says his Kaiser will fly lower and faster than any Studebaker. . . . Mrs. Herbert Kellermeyer underwent surgery at the Lutheran Hospital on May 27. She is recovering nicely and should be released from the hospital soon. I am sure we are all glad to hear it. . . . When Henry Carnall placed a poster of an ape trying on a pair of safety shoes on the wall in the Hi-bay area, he had no idea that the boys would choose one among them to be the goat of their imagination. When Ted Brochmeier was sent to look at his picture, Ted was very gracious about it all and remarked that inasmuch as we were descendants of apes, it was very appropriate for all concerned. . . . Loyd Foulks has returned to work after a long absence. Welcome back! . . . Johnny Miles certainly grows beautiful roses. Let's see more of them, Johnny.

Two GE Men Named To Red Feather Posts

Two General Electric employees have been named to Red Feather posts. Paul Breimeier, 1302 Sheridan Ct., has been elected treasurer of Lutheran Social Services, a family service agency supported through the United Fund.

Paul M. Deal, 2525 Westbrook Drive, was recently appointed to serve a three-year term on the Community Chest budget committee.

Two Appointed to New Posts In Hermetic Motor Production

Richard C. Lare

Donald A. Williams

Two appointments in Hermetic Motor production were announced this week by Preston W. Slack, supervisor of production. Richard C. Lare has been named supervisor of order service. Donald A. Williams has been appointed foreman of dispatching and stockkeeping.

In 1940 Mr. Lare joined GE as a wedging machine operator in Bldg. 17-3. Two years later he went on a production training course and after completion of the six-month training became a dispatcher. In 1948 Mr. Lare went into scheduling and inventory control. He became chief dispatcher in Section 401 in 1950. Prior to his present appointment, he was in scheduling and inventory control in Section 316.

Mr. Lare is a member of the Supervisors Club and Young Men's Industrial Club. He has completed two years at Purdue University Extension, majoring in mechanical engineering subjects. The Lares have two children and live at 1001 W. Jefferson St.

When he became a GE employee in 1943, Mr. Williams was a stockkeeper in Bldg. 17-3. He completed a production training course in 1945 and became a dispatcher in Bldg. 17-2. This was his position at the time of his present appointment.

Mr. Williams is a member of the Foremen's Association. The Williams and their two children reside at 3111 E. State St.

Roy Rediger Elected To First AIIE Board

Roy Rediger, Bldg. 18-3, was elected to the first board of directors of the Fort Wayne Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers Tuesday evening.

The occasion was the installation of the local chapter of AIIE and presentation of the group's official charter by Wyllis G. Stanton, founder of the organization.

Mr. Rediger will serve a one-year term on the board.

Bernard B. Byanski, who is accustomed to acquiring things by the bucket full, is hoping he needs a bucket to bring back his share of the estate of his deceased aunt who lived at Mendon, Michigan. Bernie did not know the aunt and can only dream about the possible value of the estate. Art Dicke is already taking reservations for people who wish to spend their three weeks of vacation on the Byanski Ranch in Michigan. Whatever you fall heir to, Bernie, we're sure you'll acquire some priceless articles, one way or the other, Bernie says he'd keep right on working like one of the boys in case he'd suddenly become rich, but just in case, we're going to keep the aisles clear and the stairway door open until he is notified. . . . Hayden Rice, the fisherman, likes to fish so well that he threw a bed spring off the end of his dock to give the fish something to bed on. . . . Marion More, wholesale cat supplier for the Dunlap farm, ran into a snag last week when Bud Dunlap couldn't pick up a family of cats belonging to Marion's aunt in time to save them from eviction and a trip to the cat pound. Marion is working on the possibility of last minute connections and maybe all will be well for everyone except the rodent population on the Dunlap ranch. . . . Jim Mattes overhauled his car recently and had too many parts left over so he let a garage finish the job. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoevel on the arrival of a baby girl. . . . Gus Mittermaier's definition of diplomacy is being able to say "nice doggie" long enough to pick up a rock. He came through a minor dog incident without much trouble on the way to work the other morning. . . . Lamarr Brant, Ralph Obringer, Don Hoffman, and Jim Uebelhoer attended the "little 500" races at Anderson recently. Jim Uebelhoer also was on hand for the big "500" at Indianapolis with a big patch of adhesive over one eye, the result of a fall off a truck the night before in which he also lost his glasses and broke his binoculars. We wish a speedy recovery to Don Voorhees, who is recuperating from an operation. The same goes for Mrs. Ernie Pfeifer. Hurry up and get well, folks. . . . The old Smokehouse had a little excitement last week when a falling beam struck a high voltage wire, causing a fire that burned up all of Pappy Wright's clothes which were in a nearby locker. Al Mason peered into the locker to see how much damage was done, just as Red Juergens cut loose with a fire extinguisher. Anyone who says that Al can't run fast just doesn't know what they're talking about. Pappy put in a fairly chilly day working in his shorts. . . . Don Dresdan had a combination lock for his locker so no one could open it but himself. Then he forgot the combination. A hammer opened it very nicely, but I'm afraid the lock was a total loss. . . . Good-bye and good luck to Patricio Amerilla, who leaves us to go to Bldg. 19-2. Welcome to his successor, Jerry Mowery. . . . Red Juergens' wife washed his hair with Halo last week and he couldn't do a thing with those springy curls. He looked like a red-headed Liberace. . . . The old lady stood on the street corner staring at the other side as if she wanted to cross but was afraid to. Finally in a timid voice she spoke to the character next to her, "Young man?" "Yes?" "Those street car tracks out there if I step on them will I be electrocuted?" "No, ma'am," was the gruff reply, "not unless you put one foot up there on the trolley wire!" . . . "That reminds me, I forgot to wind my watch!" said George Feltz, as the office gal waltzed by.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO Forrie Carlson on June 13 and Ruth Epperson the 20th of June. Incidentally, we have been wondering why you looked so happy lately, Ruth. Is it because of your coming birthday or because your husband will be coming home from Korea? . . . Happy birthday to Ruth Burris and many, many more. . . . WE WELCOME back Shirley Doster after an eight-week illness absence. Also, we hope Joe Donahoo is back to stay. . . . WELCOME TO SPECIALTY ENGINEERING: The new face in Jim Walley's group is Hugo Kaiding. Hugo is married and comes to us off the test program. He is a graduate of N. Y. U. College of Engineers. He has a degree in electrical engineering and he comes from Westerlo, New York. His hobbies are wood-working, cars, and chess. . . . HELLO to the new TE in Max Barrow's group. Frank is married and is from the New York State Agricultural and Technology Institute. His home town is Binghamton, N. Y. This is his first test and he likes hunting, fishing, wood-working, and radio for hobbies. . . . CONGRATULATIONS to the Kenny Wymans, who recently added a new member to their family in the person of Gordon Scott. This makes two boys now for the Wymans. You will remember Ken as a former employee of Specialty Motor Engineering. . . . JUST IN CASE you missed Ray Beight's "Leisure Time" last Sunday in which he made the announcement that Harriet Whonsetter would be his guest on this Sunday's program, we suggest you make it a point to watch our local TV program at 1 p.m. next Sunday. I am sure you will all enjoy it. You know, of course, that Harriet is the daughter of our own Walter Whonsetter, the poet. What a talented family! . . . FAREWELL to Robert Chiabrandy, who is leaving us; also to Domenico Coceano, who is going to Utica, New York. . . . WHAT A SURPRISE Johnnie Boeckel got when he saw his little daughter last Monday morning. She was wearing polka dots (measles). . . . "WATCH THE BIRDIE" didn't impress the cute little robins in Paul Lange's bird bath. He finally had to set up a complicated rigging so he could snap their pictures unobserved in their own little private pool.

The Commutator section doesn't have a "Who's Who" book, but they have a "What's What" book on T. L. C. dynamometers. They are now in full production with "Curly" McCormick, Rudy Rastenburg, and Henry Becker at the helm. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Willie Irmischer, who broke his ankle. . . . Slim Neireiter seems to be catching the Ford bug. He seems to know all the new improvements on the latest models. . . . We are glad to see Kenny Hart back at work after being off ill for a few weeks. . . . Paul Gruber said he is getting a lot more mileage out of his "Caddy" since he had his brakes relined and has a new set of tires. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Kenny Hand-schy's wife, who fell and broke her knee. . . . Bob Miller, who worked in the maintenance section, left us to work at Winter St. . . . The new nature boy of Bldg. 19-3 west is Hubert Risser. I understand that Frank Elder is running a close second, though. . . . Happy birthday to Donald Vorndran. . . . Elmer Warner went to Wisconsin on a fishing trip during his vacation last week. . . . We received a letter from one of our servicemen who used to work in Bldg. 19-3. He said he would welcome a letter from us. So let's write him. His address is:

James Scarbrough is putting the finishing touches on his garage that he built. He is going to bring in a snapshot of it when completed and let us take a gander at same. I'll bet it's really nice, Jim. Anyone needing garage building advice, just ask Jim. I know he'll be glad to oblige. . . . We are wishing a speedy recovery to Esther Dalmann. She's one in a million. . . . Our other indisposed gals, Helen Staley and Mildred Resser, are getting chipper by the day. It must be nice to take life easy, eat and sleep, and make your husband do all the work. (There will come a day, though). . . . Charlie Fisher is on the mend, too. We are glad to hear it. . . . George Grote spent his third week of vacation out in the wild, woolly West. Virgil Carmean redecorated his house. We wonder who had the most fun. Mary Ann Goodman and Leonard Staskelunas were playing a bit of golf over the holiday and Kenny Strong was doing likewise. Kenny, not wearing a business suit (natch), but instead a tee shirt, etc., made a different appearance on the green. Anyway to make a long story short, Kenny spoke from afar; so did Lenny and Mary. Then Mary asked, "Who's that?" Lenny said, "Your boss." Mary took quite a ribbing on Tuesday. . . . GRIN AND BEAR IT: A mother asked her first grade daughter what she had learned on the first day of school. Daughter replied, "I guess not too much. I have to go back tomorrow." . . . Everybody can't go to college. There has to be someone for the college graduates to work for. . . . The man who gets to the office at 10 o'clock either is an executive or never will be. . . . How come the prices preceded by "only" are the ones we can't afford? . . . Last month the nation observed Mother's Day. This month it observes Father's Day. Men appreciate the sentiment even though it is just an after thought. . . . Old jokes, like old soldiers, never die; they just fade in on TV.

Burden of traffic planners—urban, suburban, and bourbon drivers.

STORMY WEATHER

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

The Ray Bowers household welcomed a new baby over the weekend, just a breath of a boy, only 10 pounds. We're happy to report both mother and son are doing well. Oh yes, so is the father. . . . At the Engineers' outing Saturday, Clarence Nussel was very unfortunate and had a losing streak. (That can't be true, can it?) . . . We envy Don Thomas his collection of power tools and we know of one person who is especially interested in them. . . . Another lucky third week vacationer is Carl Freygang. . . . The Vans' baseball game Saturday night presented an interesting sight. Buck Lydy was securely wrapped in two blankets as protection against the cold and his poor wife was valiantly but in vain trying to get her share in order to keep from freezing. . . . In that same vein, Carol Norman must have contracted a slight case of frostbite at the Dance Revue in Franke Park watching Alice

Hahn's little girl perform. Of course as an excited parent, Alice wouldn't have noticed the cold. . . . No one recognized Cy Seymour at the fish fry because he was wearing his porcelain choppers but his voice gave him away. . . . Our mighty hunter, Ray Pfueger, did his best to capture some baby raccoons who were following their mother the other night, but when one of them started to bite and scratch, Ray decided that the prize wasn't worth the risk and gave it up. His wife, Alice, though, suffered that night when she had to argue against going to a reunion; bake two cakes and seven dozen cookies, never learning if they arrived at the bake sale; fix up an icebox and deliver it only to have all the water run out of it; and then to top it all off was nearly run down in her car by a careless driver. According to Alice, she never should have gotten out of bed that day. . . . There's a little fear on the part of Maxine Baker since the circus is fairly close to her. She remembers that picture "Elephant Walk" and doesn't want a repetition of that around her house. . . . The proof of his growing ability was displayed by Sol Andorfer when he brought in some mighty large and delicious looking strawberries. . . . Now that Bernice Mertz has a short haircut we know she's the youngest looking grandmother we've seen. . . . Quotation for the week: "No bird soars too high if he soars with his own wings."

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

After last week's weather we began to wonder what was so rare about a June day. . . . Our "We wish you happiness" mat is out for Paul Ramsey and Verna Bullerman, who said, "I do." . . . Stella Kempf came in with a red nose from fishing. However, she was just feeding the fish. . . . It's a happy birthday to Bud Junk. . . . There was a little activity at Jo Matter's house. They jacked up the old license plates and ran a new red Mercury under them. . . . Tillie Nuttle was wearing two aprons. I guess she put on a dirty one over the clean one to keep it clean. . . . Mary Zirkle and Helen Feiertag are on the sick list. We hope to see you back soon.

Here Comes the Bride

Every year, about this time, happy smiles on familiar faces remind us that June is still the month for marrying. So perhaps we are already a week over-due in paying a well-deserved tribute to the thousands of Miss Americas who will step out of the confetti and rice this month as the newest Mrs. Americas.

We have long believed that a large part of America's growth, prosperity, happiness and respect for the honest human virtues has been wrought by the gentle hands of America's wives and mothers.

The desire to provide for each new generation a standard of living and well-being higher than that of the previous generation has sparked an American progress which is still unbelievable to many less fortunate nations. Certainly, the presence of Mrs. America at the polling booths has had much to do with the growth, the depth and breadth of our democratic political system. And it's the "little woman" who has been the big force in making right—rather than might—the basic undercurrent in most of our actions as individuals and as a nation.

And no one can challenge Mrs. America's importance as a provider of more and better jobs for everyone in America. This month, nearly 200,000 brides will step out as the wise buyers of everything that contributes to our American way of life.

We know that our marketing men and their dealers, won't actually be waiting at the church when these brides put aside their bouquets and turn to their household budgets. But they will be waiting, and selling with all of the energy they can muster when these brides become customers a few weeks from now. By winning the bride's confidence in GE on her first wifely purchases, we can be fairly sure in keeping her confidence on subsequent purchases for years to come. That's important—because Mrs. America—through her purchases of electricity and the peaceful devices motivated by electricity, provides a bigger part of our job security than military goods can ever supply.

TOOL BITS BLDG. 19-4 and 5 by Howard Demsey

We're all glad that Chester Burgette and family came through their frightening experience with lightning with no more serious results. Chet is thinking of starting an exclusive club composed of human lightning rods. So far he knows of three people besides himself who are eligible; namely, Myrwood Dunlap, Woodrow Hursh, and Ernest Brown. We could all stand a review of safety precautions during a thunderstorm: Stay away from trees or exposed or high places when outdoors. When indoors stay away from large metal objects. . . . Although the calendar says summer isn't here officially the thermometer and Norman Koon's haircut say it is. . . . Chet Reynolds, coach of the White Sox Little League at Decatur, says his team had the game in the bag last week until two White Sox pitchers walked ten men in one inning to score seven runs for the opposition. Chet's team lost 10-9. . . . Walter Crampton still hasn't gotten his car back after it was stolen about three weeks ago. Walter is very active in Little League teams around Tri-Lakes and being without his car is quite a handicap. . . . Keith Jamison tried a little submarine experiment with his outboard motor over the week-end but found it would only move in one direction under water—down. He retrieved the motor along with some of the lake and is in the process of separating the mixture. . . . We are sorry to hear about the accident Russel Sage's father had on the farm some time ago. He is now in St. Joseph's Hospital. We hope he is getting better and can soon go home. . . . When Earl Brandon's wife asked him for some bus tokens, Earl transferred some tokens from his token holder to his wife's. Everything would have been all right except that Earl put both holders in his pocket and came to work. . . . Norm Jackemeyer has a new sideline now. He tore down his combination car-truck-tractor and made a trailer, and had the beginning of a used parts business left over. . . . After two weeks of investigation it seems that Granville Gorrell has bats in his bedroom instead of his belfry (the flying kind, of course). . . . Lowell Welker and his wife were doing some painting around the house last week on Tuesday night. They had a scaffold between two ladders and work was proceeding according to plan until the Liberate program came on and his wife left to view TV. Lowell, feeling a little tired, took advantage of the boss's absence and lay down on the scaffold for a short rest, expecting his wife to return shortly. Instead, she went on to bed after the program and Lowell fell asleep and slept on for some time before he awoke and climbed down all in one piece and went to bed. Liberate doesn't have the same effect on all people. . . . Don Eme offered to take Roy Paulson down town to save him a bus ride one afternoon last week. When they got to the parking lot old faithful had a flat tire. Roy says he goes transit because he doesn't have to help change a flat on the bus. . . . Bill Hunt will be a bachelor for the next two weeks while his wife and children are in Michigan for a vacation. . . . The machine design section welcomes Gene Mittermaier, a designer. He is a member of the Packard-buying family and not one of the Studebaker fans. . . . Sharon Matthews passed out some candy last Friday in celebration of her 21st birthday. . . . If you know anyone who can "get it for you wholesale" see Paul Shive. He's planning his Christmas buying already. . . . Jack (Grandfather) Schemehorn was up all night Sunday with his son-in-law, pacing the floor just like it was his own blessed event. Jack tells us he is so proud of his new granddaughter that after payday he intends to pass out cigars and candy. Of course, he forgot to say which payday. . . . Last week Walter Greiner did his duty by driving some nails at Lutherhaven, getting ready for the dedication next Sunday. . . . After finding out all about New York City from "Skyline" Lloyd Welbaum, Wilson Gorman decided it wasn't worth it and is spending his third week of vacation at Otter Lake. . . . Bud Dunlap wishes to thank everyone for all the cats and says they can stop sending them out to his farm now. He has plenty. . . . Carl Mosser took several Boy Scouts on a trip to some Southern Indiana parks for merit badges on hiking. Carl and his friend rode in a car for the whole hike while the Scouts trudged through 90 degree heat. On the way home they stopped at French Lick Springs and found Carey Baker drinking Pluto water. Carey was attending a Lions convention there.

COUNT OFF SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Ruby Stoops

Birthday greetings go to Virginia Buesching. Thanks for the candy, Ginny. May you have many, many more birthdays. . . . Flash! A baby girl arrived in the Miller family, the first girl in 26 years. Glenn Miller is the proud grandfather. . . . Laura Gerber spent a delightful week-end in South Bend. . . . Ollie Ragan and husband visited relatives in Warsaw Sunday. . . . The fish story of the week! Sarah Moore almost caught a fish so long. Isn't it strange that the big fish always get away? That's too bad, Sarah. . . . Clarabelle Whiteman helped do some nailing on her brother's new home this week-end. . . . Barbara Eifred has been transferred to the Winter St. plant. . . . Ed Bandt is on his third week's vacation. He says that all he is going to do is cut the grass. . . . Sydonna Fox had company from Chicago over the week-end. . . . We hope that Walter Solberger and Ed Bowser will soon be back to work as they both are on the sick list.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

Dolores Widner and husband are spending the next two weeks vacationing in sunny Florida. . . . The girls in Telegraph would like to thank LaVerne from Bldg. 31 for the candy she sent them the other day. . . . Virginia Archbold is all smiles these days since she moved to her new home in Indian Village. . . . Evelyn Mayfield came to work this morning with blisters on her hands. She was out fishing Saturday afternoon and was rowing the boat. . . . Welcome to Thelma Hamilton, the new typist, who was transferred from Bldg. 26-2. . . . We found Pat Davis down on her knees looking for a nickel. Better be careful, Pat. Easy come, easy go. Take a lesson from the rest of us and hold onto that money. . . . If anyone has accused Wayne Jones of passing them on the street and not speaking you can rest assured that it won't happen again. He has procured some snazzy new glasses. He can now see all.

THE BIG WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Rachel Mounsey

Congratulations to Mary Raub on her 30th anniversary which was Monday. . . . Bill Springer celebrated his 30th anniversary last week and we congratulate him, too. . . . Mildred Orr spent the week-end in Peoria, Ill., at her daughter's. . . . Fred Adams is liable to be seen going the wrong way on a one-way street if he doesn't get his gear shift straightened out. . . . Iris Allen went fishing over the week-end and reports the fish were really biting. She caught her limit. . . . Maxine Cavinder has joined us on days again. . . . Regina Didion is all smiles and who wouldn't be over a new car all your own! . . . Welcome, Eldon Burns, and Fredia Hobrock, to our gang. . . . One good boat or surfboard is for sale. Whatever you want to call it Woody Winters bought a rowboat sight unseen. He couldn't pass up the bargain, but when he saw the boat he found out why he got it so cheaply. Now Woody is trying to peddle it to one of our bunch. Beware of Woody and his boat.

Are There Labor Unions In the Russian Empire?

Yes. In name and structure the Soviet world has labor unions with an estimated membership of more than 50,000,000—a join-or-else proposition. These Red unions are not dedicated to betterment of workers. Instead they are run by the Communist party to insure labor discipline and to increase labor's output. Communists hold leadership and the unions are instruments of the state for control of workers. Secret police see to it there are no strikes.

The number of slave laborers in Russia has been estimated as high as 20,000,000—all under direction of secret police, making them the world's largest single employer. Such laborers are unpaid, kept behind barbed-wire barricades, fed erratically, clothed in rags and frequently worked to death—literally. For, after all, the Soviet government owns human beings the same as it owns all real estate and other property.

Lab to Build Sound Room Near Bldg. 21

54 Unions Accept New Pay Offer

More GE employees began to cash in on the $30 million in pay increases and other benefits offered by the company this month, as the number of unions which have made agreements rose to 54 at press time.

A majority of GE employees are now receiving the increase which ranges from four to eight and more cents an hour and averages over 5 cents per hour.

Employees in bargaining units which have not accepted the offer that has been available since June 1 have already lost about $600,000 in higher pay.

A company spokesman said: "The higher pay is still available to the employees not now getting it as soon as the necessary agreement can be worked out with their union."

A building to house sound room facilities for the Fort Wayne laboratory will be erected in the area next to the Bldg. 21 employment office at the corner of Broadway and Swinney Ave., Claude M. Summers, manager of the laboratory, announced this week.

The structure will provide improved facilities for measuring sound in present and future designs of fractional horsepower motors, transformers, and ballasts. It will be used as a testing ground to determine vibration and resonance characteristics. The improved facilities will enable engineers to provide the customer with a product assuring him of good performance at a low sound level.

Construction is expected to begin soon and will be completed this fall. The structure, which will be 54x60 feet, will be divided into two rooms. The main one, the sound room, will rise 20 feet above the ground and extend approximately 10 feet below ground. Surrounding it on two sides will be the laboratory room, which will be 12 feet high.

The selected location was chosen because it is the best readily available site, Mr. Summers stated. The red brick building will be surrounded by a cement sidewalk. There will be an entrance facing Broadway for personnel and a Swinney St. entrance for receiving equipment. Generating equipment for the building will be located in Bldg. 19 basement.

Motors as small as the thumb and up to about 2 feet in diameter will be tested as well as transformer units as large as 6x6x6 feet.

The sound room is a room within a room. Its most unusual feature will be the soundproof material used on the walls, ceiling, floor, and double doors. The material placed on these parts will be in the shape of ridges, or wedges, two feet apart and extending out from the surface about three feet. The material and its placement will eliminate reflection of sound.

A steel grating platform six feet wide will extend the length of the room from the door. Tracks will be placed on this and the product to be tested will be rolled on tracks to the center of the room. There will be no other equipment in the room except microphones and wires leading outside to equipment used in testing and recording. This eliminates distracting sounds created by testing devices.

The room itself will be floated on 100 springs supporting a concrete deck. This will provide better vibration isolation. Surrounding the walls will be a second wall and door, which will help isolate

Elex to Set Up New Pensioners Group

Plans are under way to establish a new chapter of the Elex Club for women pensioners only, Irene Meyers, club adviser, announced this week.

Any woman pensioner of the General Electric Company will be eligible to belong to the chapter, which will be organized in September.

Anyone interested in belonging is asked to contact Miss Meyers, Ext. 555, during the summer months.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Frenchy Chilcote is vacationing this week and hopes to catch a lot of fish at Lake Wawasee. . . . Jim Witzgreuter has poison ivy. We wish him a speedy recovery. . . . Delores Stapleton and Audrey Oberley celebrated their birthdays last week. . . . What was the trouble with Lena Forker Monday morning? She was searching everywhere and accusing people of taking her apron when she had it on all the time. . . . Ed Lauer says his swollen face is the result of a deer-fly bite. What a powerful insect it must be! . . . Flash! The ground is beginning to get hard so the Yankees will make a sieve out of the infield. Jim McGill predicts the Yankees to be in first place by July 4. He is going to Chicago this week-end for the kill. . . . Nancy McCrea found a shoe store where she can buy size 11 shoes. . . . We welcome Lorraine Papp back to the winding section. . . . We envy Art Pequignot, who is taking his vacation this week.

The low level area design will give noise and vibration reduction equivalent to that of the atmosphere three or four miles from the earth. The design of the building was developed by Fort Wayne plant engineers and its construction will be carried on in cooperation with GE Realty Corp. engineers. George Wolfert, Bldg. 28-2, acoustics engineer, has done much of the acoustical design for the sound room.

Two General Foremen Appointed In Winter St. Manufacturing Units

Two appointments in the Small Integral Motor Department were announced today by Oscar L. Weitzman, manager of manufacturing. Ray T. Klotz has been appointed general foreman of the Hermetic Motor Unit. John H. Andrews has been appointed general foreman of the Standard and Special Motor Unit. Both appointments are effective today.

Mr. Klotz joined General Electric in 1928. He entered the Winter St. plant then and has continued to work in that location. He was a grinding operator and in 1929 became a leading operator. In 1937 he was named a foreman.

In 1940 Mr. Klotz entered time study work and the following year went into planning methods and tools. He was a foreman in the SIM Hermetic Section prior to his present appointment.

Mr. Klotz is a graduate of the Alexander Hamilton Business School and he also completed a drafting and design course with the Kiracoffe School of Drafting. He is a member of the Quarter Century Club and Foremen's Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Klotz have one son and three grandchildren. They reside at 5616 Plaza Dr.

When he came to the company in 1945, Mr. Andrews went on the Test Engineers program at Schemm. He became head of Bldg. 16 motor and generator test in the same location the next year. In 1947 he went into the Creative Engineering program.

Entering the Harvard University graduate school of Business Administration in 1947, Mr. Andrews received his masters degree in 1949 and returned to GE. At that time he entered the Factory Training program at the River Works.

After moving to the Somersworth Plant Mr. Andrews was named cost reduction analyst and later was a foreman. He was on special assignment to the superintendent at Somersworth and last year was appointed supervisor of production in SIM at Winter St.

In 1945 Mr. Andrews graduated

Ray T. Klotz

John H. Andrews

from Yale University with a bachelor of engineering degree. He is a member of the ASME, AIEE, Supervisors Club, and GE Squares

Club. In 1942 and 1943 Mr. Andrews served in the U. S. Army.

The Andrews and their two children reside at 4717 Tacoma Ave.

MTP Wives Slate Two June Events

The MTP Wives Club has slated two events for the month of June. Tomorrow evening they will have a Dutch dinner dance with their husbands and June 23 they will entertain incoming members at a party.

The dinner dance will take place at Howard Johnson's Ivy Room. It will begin with the serving of dinner at 7:30 p.m. Dancing will follow. Tickets are $2 per person and may be secured from John McLaughlin, Winter St.; Jack Steel, Bldg. 12-2, and Dusty Foulks, Section 113, Taylor St. The Howard Johnson restaurant is located on R. R. 30, Lincoln Highway East.

The June 23 party will begin at 8 p.m. New members and those who are leaving the club will be entertained. Refreshments will be served. Members will be notified of the location of the event. Hostesses are Mrs. Ron Roth, Mrs. Russell Taylor, Mrs. Alex McLaund, Mrs. Frank Boyd, Mrs. William C. Mackey, and Mrs. Stan Stocki.

Independence Day 1954

All departments and sections of the Fort Wayne plants, including leased warehouses, in general, plan to close Monday, July 5, in observance of Independence Day.

GE DEATHS

Marcus J. Harrigan

Marcus Harrigan Dies In St. Joseph Hospital

A retired Quarter Century Club member, Marcus J. Harrigan, 71, died Sunday, June 13 in St. Joseph Hospital. He had been a patient there for five days. Services were conducted Wednesday, June 16, at the Getz & Cahill Funeral Home and St. Patrick's Catholic Church. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. D. Lawrence Monahan officiated. Burial was in Greenlawn Memorial Park, Marion.

Mr. Harrigan joined the company in April, 1920, as an inspector. Prior to his retirement in April, 1948, he was a foreman at Taylor St.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Lucile Harrigan, and Mrs. Theodore Appleman; one sister, Mrs. Clarence Hopkins; three brothers, Harry, Floyd, and Roy, and one grandchild.

John G. Stickley

Services Held June 11 For John Stickley, 67

Services for John G. Stickley, 67, were conducted Friday, June 11, in the C. M. Sloan & Sons Funeral Home. The Rev. Richard Howell officiated. Mr. Stickley died Wednesday, June 9, in St. Joseph Hospital. He had been ill six months.

Mr. Stickley came to General Electric in 1942. He was a mason at Taylor St. prior to his retirement November 1, 1951.

Survivors include his wife, Bernice; one son, John Stickley, Jr.; one daughter, Mrs. Joseph Herbert; two stepsons, Donald and Edward Klint; a sister, Mrs. Amos Hibler, and four grandchildren, all of Fort Wayne.

Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

Lawrence R. Andorfer Found Dead at Home

A former employee, Lawrence R. Andorfer, 56, was found dead in bed at his home, 250 W. Main St., June 8. Services were conducted at the Mungovan & Sons Mortuary by the Rev. Sebastian J. Kremer. Burial was in the Catholic Cemetery.

Mr. Andorfer became a GE employee in 1944. He worked at Winter St., Taylor St., and in Bldg. 4-4 until leaving the company in November, 1952.

Surviving are one daughter, Joan; three sisters, Mrs. Hazel Wyburn, Mrs. Joseph Panyard, and Mrs. John Gibson, all of Fort Wayne; and one brother, George Andorfer, of Columbia City.

Everett Hamilton, 55 Dies Unexpectedly

A Bldg. 26-4 employee, Everett Hamilton, 55, died unexpectedly Tuesday, June 15, at the Lutheran Hospital. He was taken there from his home at 6910 Bluffton Rd. He had worked Monday, June 14.

Services were conducted yesterday at the Waynedale Methodist Church by the Rev. P. B. Smith, Jr. Burial was in Covington Memorial Gardens.

A leading operator in Bldg. 26-4, Mr. Hamilton came to GE in 1920. He was a stock clerk and later had positions as a coil worker, stacker, assembler, and enamel furnace helper. He was a Quarter Century Club member.

Survivors include his wife, Goldie; one son, Dale Eugene; his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Keller; one sister, Mrs. Robert Young, and a brother, Howard E. Hamilton.

Edwin Bueker Rites Conducted Yesterday

Services for Edwin E. (Butch) Bueker, 69, were conducted yesterday at the Klaehn Funeral Home. Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery. Mr. Bueker died June 14 in the Lutheran Hospital where he had been a patient three weeks.

In 1926 Mr. Bueker came to General Electric as an assembler. He retired March 10, 1950. Prior to retirement he was an elevator operator in Bldg. 4.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Merlin G. Pattee and Mrs. Harold V. Barrick; seven grandchildren; two brothers, Carl F. and Ernest W., and three sisters, Mrs. Frederick Jaebker, Mrs. Edwin Beard, and Mrs. Earl Murley.

SPECIALTY MOTORS

Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

Our newly-married girl, Fay Ann Betley, is back with us. She treated us all with candy Monday, her birthday being June 5. . . .

STORMY WEATHER BLDG. 17-4

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

Our congratulations go out to the Dick Gottschalls on the arrival of a baby daughter, Barbara Ann, weighing 6 lbs. Dick can now move his chest up where it should be. . . . There seems to be quite a bit of disgruntled comment from Elmer Brown, alias Dr. Brady, who now claims to be able to write better than a couple of people who shall remain nameless. Isn't it strange where hidden talents will pop up? . . . Who takes more of a beating than Larry Reed on his Tigers? It just seems to be chicken one day and feathers the next. . . . Warning has gone out to beware of that strange caged animal "Pinus Nusselmas" which has recently come to infest our floor. . . . Edna Ward has given up all rights to chicken and noodles and now says that she is strictly a spaghetti girl. . . . If you hear a lot of cackling from the winding section you'll know that Alice Hahn has reverted to a feathered form since she has been eating nothing but two eggs every day for lunch. . . . Sandy Bennett was the recipient of three lovely ball-point pens. As yet we don't know how effective they are when it comes to writing. Then to top it all off, he proceeds to palm off one of them on his poor unsuspecting friends for a package of cigarettes. . . . Most bench men keep tools and the necessary equipment in their tool boxes but not Andy Chrystler. He has to be different. . . . For someone who knows nothing about baseball, Edna Ward does all right. At least she makes it pay her and that's important. . . . A cheese sandwich to end all cheese sandwiches was brought in by Clarence Nussell. The boys haven't figured out if he can't afford anything better or does he really like the stuff that well. . . . The story Larry Reed gives as to the cause and result of the banged-up nose he has is that a two-by-four slipped and hit him there. The more popular version is that someone clipped him with a frying pan. Take your choice, fellows. . . . After finding a sheeplined coat hanging on the coat rack during the recent hot spell, Herman Deister says that now he's seen everything. . . . The end product of the butter that was made in the test department, namely buttermilk, during a recent test for that purpose, proved quite tasty for those who got to sample it. . . . All you have to do to bring a smile to Clem Harris' face is to say, "Dig those crazy house slippers." . . . We apologize for saying that Buck Lydy was the guilty party who wouldn't give his wife any blanket at the baseball game. It turns out that it was really Herb Buck. . . . A mother's wish was realized when Lenora Hanes attended the graduation exercises of her daughter at Franklin College. . . . Quotation for the week: "All change is not growth, as all movement is not forward."

Paul Richter will be marching to the tune of Mendelssohn Saturday. The office gave him a gift Friday. Best wishes to you both, Paul. . . . Phil Nearing in IBM wore out his knees and his patience over the week-end building a boat. Hurry up and finish it, Phil; we want a ride. . . . Dorothy McCoy's husband helped build a garage over the week-end. These people who build things when it is 100 in the shade! Hardy folks, I'd say. . . . Our coke machine is very popular with everyone these days. What wouldn't we give for a nice, cool breeze. . . . P. S. Yours truly had a nice birthday.

C of C to Present Fire Program at T. St.

Thursday, June 24, the annual city-wide fire protection demonstration will take place at the GE firemen's training grounds, Taylor St. Plant, Merle Morkoetter, GE battalion chief and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee in charge of the event, made the announcement this week.

The two-hour demonstration will begin at 6 p.m. The public is invited free of charge to the program. Outdoor industrial, commercial, and public fire safety demonstrations will be presented.

Included on the program are methods of meeting emergencies involving solvents and chemicals, low pressure gases, and waste materials. Uses of various types of fire extinguishers will be shown in addition to methods of evacuating injured persons from burning buildings. The presentations will show basic techniques of fighting fires that could confront anyone.

Persons attending the program may park in the West Taylor St. lot and should register at the west gate there.

The demonstrations will be set up and presented by GE Fire Chief Ernie Hanauer, Mr. Morkoetter, and GE fire inspectors.

Members of the C. of C. fire safety demonstrations committee of the Safety Council assisting the chairman with arrangements are in addition to Fire Chief Hanauer: Clinton Baals, city fire department chief; Arnold Dicke, U. S. Rubber fire chief; Clarence Degitz, Tokheim fire chief, and Louis Kern, Wolf & Desauer.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to L. Diegel on June 24. . . . CONGRATULATIONS: If you wonder why J. C. Duryee is walking around with his head in the clouds, it is because he has just become a grandfather. He has a grandson, born June 13. . . . WELCOME to Don Kinsey, who is working for Fred Suhr. . . . FIESTA TIME? Last Friday was a gay day in the Series Engineering group. Dee Giltz promised to wear her squaw dress (and we think it's very lovely, especially on her), if she had a little more moral support. Harry Balz appeared with his Floridian print sport shirt, Ed Kinningham with his red polka dot sport shirt, and Wes Power with lavender-pink shirt and chartreuse slacks—WOW! Also deserving recognition was George Schroeder's three-piece matching ensemble. (You could only see two pieces, however). On Monday Jack Robinson appeared in a robin-egg blue knit sleeveless shirt. Upon questioning him about it he said it belonged to his sister. Hmmm. Have we come to that? . . . HAPPY VACATION? The scratches on E. M. "Stan" Stanbery's hands, he said, happened when washing his hands in the lake. A pike thought that he was something good to eat. That's a good fish story if we ever heard one. He spent his third week of vacation fishing with his cronies in Canada. . . . EXPENSIVE JOY RIDE: The Ted Ross family were "cooling off" last Sunday on a late afternoon joy ride. At Harlan the weather was too much for the Frazer and it refused to go another inch. They had to leave it at Harlan and the kind gentleman from the garage loaned them his car to return to Fort Wayne. Incidentally, Ted, there are other good automobiles besides a Frazer. . . . IT IS AMAZING how many talents we find among our engineering people. Just last Friday E. M. Stanbery was seen reading palms. Was it a good fortune he foretold for you, Bonnie? . . . THE SMILES on Frank Sedlar's face are due to the arrival of his wife. She doesn't care for our lovely summer weather. . . . TOMORROW is the big day as the third annual Small Motor Drafting Stag party is to take place at the Sparta Lake Conservation Club. We hope you boys will have a good time and you softball players, too. I hope you boys know that Warren Berkeheiser is planning to pitch and Gil Baker is planning to catch. You ball players better watch out for your heads. We hope that Harvey Von Guntem will not get dunked in the lake this year. Also we hope that H. P. Love finally learned to run his put-put boat. We don't want him to row his boat across the lake again as he did last year.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Short hair cuts and pajama tops are the latest styles in Bldg. 6-4. . . . Harold Dalman bought himself a new, bright red Buick. He wants to know what he could put on it that would be noticeable. . . . Does anyone have a spare room? Walt Richardson sold his house before he had a chance to buy another one. . . . If you're wondering who the new girl was in 2x32 last Monday, it was none other than Arno Winebrenner. The reason she didn't look the same was that she didn't have the usual jeans on. She sunburned her legs so badly that she wore a skirt and blouse. (It should happen more often.) . . . We hear that Carol Klinger's husband is now a member of the hen-pecked husbands. How about that, Carol? . . . Ronnie Elliott paid us a visit the other day. It was good to see you, Ronnie. . . . Congratulations to Martha Jesse. She has a new daughter-in-law. . . . Merle Keesler, Bob Pence, Jr. Zollinger, and Pondo had a golfing date last Tuesday. There have been no reports on how they made out. . . . Bernice Winters caught so many fish last Sunday that she was wishing for a stringer like George Prince gave Carl Metker. . . . Dorothy Duff's husband is in St. Louis for three weeks. He called her and told her he was lonesome so Dorothy will spend this week-end in St. Louis. . . . Mary Lou G. hasn't been blushing the last few days. She is suffering with a sunburn. . . . Eleanor Whitehouse attended a shower in Peru last Monday night. . . . Selma H. and Ida May H. don't mind the hot weather as long as they can go barefooted. . . . The tale can now be told. Bessie France's parakeet has no tail. The bird was in the habit of biting her so she bit him and his tail feathers fell out. . . . Joan Armstrong was tripping the light fantastic in the parking lot the other day and fell flat on her face. . . . Nora Ritley was busy wrapping Father's Day presents last Sunday when her son informed her Father's Day wasn't until this Sunday.

HOW A SALE IS SOMETIMES MADE—An official of Ryan Industries, Inc., Detroit, Mich., visited here recently to discuss the application of a specialty motor on an anti-radar disseminator. Also represented were the Detroit GE Apparatus Sales Office, and Specialty Component Motor Department marketing, engineering and manufacturing sections. Left to right are C. B. Smith, Bldg. 6-2; R. P. Loveland, Bldg. 4-6; W. F. Konow, Bldg. 6-3; H. A. Folsom, Detroit Office; C. A. McKay, Bldg. 4-6; H. A. Brown, Ryan Industries; and J. W. Taylor, Bldg. 4-6.

Concert Sunday to Close Aeolian Season

The 60-voice Aeolian Choir from the Decatur Plant will present the final concert of their 1953-54 season Sunday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Trinity E. U. B. Church of Decatur.

Sunday's concert will be the choir's eighth appearance since the beginning of their season last September. D. E. Foreman, president of the choir, states that the choir has performed before an aggregate audience of 7,000 people this season in their performances for the Fort Wayne Chamber of Commerce, Fort Wayne Quest Club, Northeastern Indiana Grain Dealers Association, Columbus Grove, Ohio, Women's Club, Decatur Rotary Club, Annual Rally E. U. B. Church, of Lima, Ohio, and the Portland Music Club.

David C. Embler, director of the choir since its inception in 1943, said that Sunday's program for the "home folks" will be in two parts. The first will consist of varied sacred choral compositions which will be presented in the church proper. After this, the audience and choir will gather in the church's social hall for the second part of the program which will be strictly "short hair."

Eileen Freeby, accompanist for the choir for the past seven years, will take part in Sunday's program.

There will be no admission charge and the public is cordially invited to attend, Mr. Foreman said.

192 Volunteers Enrolled In 1954 GE Fire School

A total of 192 volunteer firemen from the Broadway and Taylor St. plants is enrolled in the 1954 GE Fire School currently in progress, Ernie Hanauer, GE fire chief, reported this week.

Each of the men will receive 10 hours of training over a five-week period. Beginning their third week of training Monday, June 21, the group will receive schooling on various fire protection methods in their individual departments. Each man will become acquainted with the possible fire hazards in his working area and the location and proper use of equipment to fight any fires occurring in his section. They will receive training in the sprinkler system and the valves controlling it.

In the following weeks of the school, the volunteer fire fighters will get practice in laying hose from various areas and the correct use of it. Actual practice sessions at the training grounds at Taylor St. will give the men training in putting out fires with all types of extinguishers used in the plant.

This year's school was begun with inside demonstrations showing what causes fires. After pointing out the elements that are involved in a fire, extinguishing agents for these were demonstrated. Tours of the outside valves that control the sprinkler systems were conducted and the trainees were shown how the valves work and their importance.

Assisting Hanauer and Merle Morkoetter with the school are the eight GE fire inspectors. They are: Walter Seidel, Arthur Seidel, Darrell Richmond, Howard Colby, Harold Smith, Iva Dennis, Robert Gehart, and Jerry Koehl.

Store Inventory

The Broadway and Taylor St. Employee Stores, will be closed for inventory on Wednesday, June 23, Thursday, June 24, and Friday June 25. They will be open for business as usual on Monday, June 28.

Company Mails 57 Million Shares To Stockholders

"Operation Stock Split" of the General Electric Company reached its climax last weekend (June 12) when 57 million shares with a market value of about $2¼ billion were mailed to the company's 249,000 share owners.

GE share owners voted at their annual meeting in Schenectady April 20 to convert the company's 35 million authorized shares of common stock to 105 million shares with a $5 par value. Approximately 28½ million shares of the common stock were outstanding at the time the conversion took effect May 5.

Share owners are being mailed two shares of stock for one formerly held, with instructions to retain the certificates they held, thus giving each share owner three shares of the new stock for each one he formerly held. The stock is currently quoted on the market at about $38 per share.

The company recently announced a dividend of 40 cents per share on the new stock payable August 2

GE Squares Announce Committee Chairmen

The summer schedule of events for the GE Squares Club and committee chairmen for the coming club year were announced this week by Robert Rescorla, Bldg. 18-3, president.

The following program has been set up for the summer months:

July 10—Athletic stag, Voigt's Retreat.

July 17—Golf stag.

August 14—Family picnic.

August 28—Beach party.

Committee chairmen appointed by the president are: William Garvey, Winter St., social; Dick Abraham, Taylor St., stags; Ted Briles, Winter St., mixed parties; Guy Bradley, Bldg. 31-2, dances.

Membership chairman is James Germanson, Bldg. 18-3. He will be assisted by John Smaxwell, Bldg. 4-6, and Dick Gebert, Bldg. 12-2. Others include Bill Biega, Bldg. 26-2, contact chairman. Contact leaders for the 1954-55 year are Ken Frankenstein, Bldg. 4-6; Earl Elwonger, Bldg. 31-2; Don Klas, Winter St.; Mike Charmin, Bldg. 28-2; Art Fortier, Bldg. 26-2, and Frank Ross, Taylor St.

Handling publicity for the group this year will be Earl Helmers, Bldg. 18-3. Athletic chairman is Roy Woodard, Bldg. 4-4. He is being assisted by Milt DeJean, Bldg. 4-6. Glen Seabold, Bldg. 2-2, is house chairman and Glen Rout, Taylor St., is bar chairman.

to share owners of record June 25. Based on three shares of the new stock the share owners will receive $1.20, an increase of 20 per cent over the dividend declared in the first quarter of 1954.

The issue of new stock will be followed in a week by the mailing of 20,200 shares of stock to GE employees who have been participating in the company's Employee Savings and Stock Bonus Plan. Under the company's plan, all employees who purchase U. S. Savings bonds through a payroll deduction plan and leave them on deposit for five years receive 15 per cent of the purchase price in company stock. The first bonds were purchased in 1948 and as a result of the stock split more than 20,000 employees are going to receive one share of stock. Many of them will thus become GE share owners for the first time.

The huge mailing is the culmination of weeks of work by the General Electric Company and the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, registrar of the stock.

Three types of certificates are being issued. One is for less than 100 shares, another for 100 shares and the third for more than 100 shares. A seven-days-a-week operation has been conducted by GE in Schenectady since share owners authorized conversion of the stock. The conversion necessitated the engraving of nearly one million certificates.

GE Corporate Services Division took over one of the company's four-story office buildings and put a staff of 200 persons and scores of machines to work on the task of issuing the new certificates.

John Leininger

John Leininger SIM Supervisor Of Production

John Leininger has been appointed supervisor of production in the Small Integral Motor manufacturing section, Oscar L. Weitzman, manager of manufacturing, announced this week.

In 1943 Mr. Leininger came to GE and entered the central methods section, Bldg. 18-3. Later he went into central purchasing. In 1949 he entered Fractional Horsepower Motor purchasing as a buyer. After transferring to Winter St. in 1952, Mr. Leininger was a procedures analyst and buyer in purchasing. This was his position at the time of his present appointment.

Mr. Leininger graduated from Indiana University in 1942 with a BS degree in the School of Business. His wife, Dorothy, works in Bldg. 18-4. The Leiningers reside at 2236 Muscoday Pass.

From the time each certificate was delivered to the company until the last one was placed in the post office, an extensive system of checks and counter-checks was employed to see that none became lost.

The plan called for issuing of the minimum number of certificates to each share owner. Each certificate had to be prepared to show the name and address of the owner and the number of shares it represented.

The operation continued 18 hours a day, Sundays included, to complete in five weeks the volume of stock certificate issuing and record keeping which would normally be handled in about seven years.

Pretty Faith Domergue plays a leading role in "Desert Crossing" on "The General Electric Theater" on Sunday, June 20, on CBS-TV. Miriam Hopkins stars in the drama, which features James Dunn and John Agar.

BRAD STARTS CAMPAIGN FOR MAYOR BUT JOAN DAVIS CUTS HIM DOWN TO SIZE—When you decide on a career of public service you'd better have plenty of self-confidence, especially if your ambitious and unpredictable wife happens to be comedy star Joan Davis. That's what Judge Bradley Stevens (Jim Backus) finds out, to his acute discomfort, on the Wednesday, June 23, telecast of "I Married Joan" over NBC-TV at 7 p.m., CDT.

The Mayor has asked Brad to run for City Council President. But Brad, lacking self confidence, says no. Joan embarks on a campaign to give Brad the needed confidence, with the help of her friends and sister Beverly (Beverly Hills). They make Brad think he is a philosopher, adroit politician, mathematics wizard and an all-around great.

They are so successful that Brad decides to run for Mayor instead of Council President. Joan conducts her own poll and finds out that Brad doesn't have a chance. Then she starts a campaign to deflate her courtly husband. With the aid of a small newsboy, who asks the "candidate" loaded questions, Brad's ego is brought back to normal. Finally Joan tells him about her plan, bringing the show to a surprising climax.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER—Miriam Hopkins and James Dunn star in a heart-warming story about faith and marriage in "Desert Crossing," the drama on "The General Electric Theater," Sunday, June 20, at 8 p.m., CDT, over WKJG-TV.

Jennie Hatfield (Miss Hopkins) and her husband, Bill (James Dunn), own a desert cafe and motel. Jennie knows all about movie stars because she fills her lonely days listening to Hollywood gossip reporters and reading their columns.

She is very familiar with the pending divorce of a glamorous young Hollywood couple, John and Marian Wright, (played by John Agar and Faith Domergue.) When the Wrights stop at the Hatfield motel on their way to Reno, Jennie arranges to be alone with the young bride because she wants to help the girl save her marriage.

When Marian tells Jennie that her marriage is about to end because she believes that her husband has been unfaithful, Jennie feels she must help the girl reestablish her faith in John and thereby end their estrangement. She accomplishes this by citing a similar experience early in her own marriage to Bill, and points to the happiness they have known through the years.

Next week, "The General Electric Theater" presents "Confession," starring Mark Stevens and Robert Newton.

DECATURITES

Waldo Eckrote has returned to work after an extended absence due to surgery and illness. . . . At the time of this writing "Lank" Linn is reported to be getting along satisfactorily following recent surgery. Hurry back, Lank! . . . Leona Omlor is recuperating from minor surgery which she underwent recently. Leona expects to be back within a couple of weeks. Fern Dierkes has taken over the second shift nurse's duties during Mrs. Omlor's absence. . . . Milt Brown has been absent from work due to a recurrence of an aggravating skin disorder on his hands. Milt expects to be back soon. . . . Hez Cochran, who has been ill and off work for several weeks, is up and around and regaining his strength. Hez also expects to return soon. . . . Ralph Rabbitt was in to see us recently. Ralph looks good and has recovered to a point where he expects to be back at his inspection job soon. . . . Dan Foreman has returned to his duties as foreman of shipping and packing after a short illness. . . . Decaturites wishes one and all of our convalescents a speedy and full recovery. . . . Emma Goldner went to Muncie last week to attend commencement exercises for her daughter, Kathryn Ann, who majored in speech therapy. . . . Loren Burkhead was quite surprised one night last week when he woke up in the night and thought he had bugs. He did! It seems Loren had helped a friend shear his sheep and afterwards had taken a nice long bath (with good old Dial soap), but to no avail. One little pesky sheep tick just didn't want to leave him. It must have been love at first sight.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

by Sherry Varner

Calvin Case, who worked in the core section, left us last week to enjoy a life of retirement. Good luck, Casey. . . . We have news of some who are on vacation: Herb Boltz is traveling to Delaware to see his new grandson. Joe Burton is enjoying a week's vacation at his cottage at Golden Lake. Bill Gallmeyer has returned from his vacation and reported he spent most of it at home. . . . We welcome Paul DeVor who comes from 19-B to take Kenny Handschy's place. Kenny is going to Bldg. 22 to work. Good luck to both of them. . . . William "Arky" Bellamy didn't report to work the other day. The fellows would like an explanation, Arky. . . . "Curly" McCormick has changed his day to get his haircut. He used to go on Friday, now he goes on Wednesday. Could it be that there is a special rate for cutting "Curly's" hair on that day? . . . Paul and Mary Gruber celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary on June 10. . . . It seems that Frank Enderle has the title for cow puncher and rope slinger of the east end. . . . There is a new face in the east end office, Jerry Galland. He is going to take Paul Gruber's place. . . . Anyone interested in a factory shower bath see Paul Lichtsinn. . . . Just wondering: Is the heat getting Phil Burney or what? It seems that Phil was fishing the other day and caught a dogfish in a nearby cemetery. Phil didn't know what to do. . . . Anyone having an extra alarm clock give it to Hubert Riser. It seems that he was three minutes late ringing out the other night. . . . Pigeons for Sale: Anyone interested in buying some corn-fed pigeons see Carl Conrad, Bldg. 19-3, west end. . . . Has Melvin Green converted his Hudson to a Diesel? We hear he is putting kerosene in the fuel tank. . . . Anyone interested in giving painting lessons see John Redmerski. Lately it seems he is getting more paint on his trousers than on the cables he makes. . . . Clarence Hipp, the fisherman, has sworn off fishing again this year.

Three Recent Idea Awards...

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST. by Luana Oehlaffen

We congratulate Mrs. Carl Reynolds on her beautiful yard. She was busy all day Saturday, June 5, mowing the lawn, weeding the garden, and trimming the hedges and lawn into a veritable show place. Carl said he had one of his most enjoyable days at golf and one of his best scores. . . . All the boys in Test and Inspection are looking forward to seeing Fritz come back from Germany. Fred left Monday, June 14, for the U.S.A. . . . Congratulations are in order for Paul Clendenen's daughter, who recently graduated from South Side High School. . . . We hear that Earl Greenlee is building a seat on his garden tractor so he won't have to walk when he works in his garden. . . . All we hear from Bob Kapke, who was a trainee in Section 114 and is now stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, is that he spends most of his time playing golf. . . . Bill MacKay is moving his trailer to the lakes next week. Smart boy! . . . Welcome to Lois Goble who transferred to our office from Shipping. . . . Carl Reynolds' father-in-law from Orlando, Florida, is going to be visiting here soon. . . . Walter Holloway paid us a visit on June 9. Walter seems quite content, and he greeted everyone with a big smile. . . . Johnny Miles has been keeping Abbie Hartman (lucky girl) well supplied with roses. They certainly are beautiful, Johnny. . . . The girls in the Switch Section are wondering what will happen when Joe Monahan runs out of grease. . . . Edna Hall has expressed her thanks for the lovely gifts for Janice Sue. . . . Congratulations to Johnny Holloway's daughter who graduated from the eighth grade. . . . What's wrong with Helen Platt? We hear she can't take much of this night life. How about that, Helen? . . . We wonder why Stan Marquardt wants to have a build like Horace Grime's. . . . Dick Anderson will move into his new home shortly, even if the sidewalks are a bit soupy. . . . Bill Lavine told Herb Tons he was going to hang a "For Sale" sign on Herb's cottage, so Herb moved his wife and son up to the lake to make sure he didn't. . . . The boys in the Tool Room were making parts for Cliff Bieber's new Oldsmobile the day after he got it. . . . The girls in Section 114 office had a picnic at Foster Park last Monday night. Boy, did we eat! Hic!

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST. by Hazel Davis

Dave Brown is looking for the person who "lifted" his ciggies. They left a note thanking him. . . . 21 Frame gals appreciate the fan Fred Pyle got them. . . . Faye Christie's daughter graduated from Central last week. . . . We wish Ginnie Free a happy birthday. "21 last week," she says. . . . Art Huble gained another year last Friday. We all wish him many, many more. . . . Morrie Siples is looking for ducks wobbling around the 51 frame line. A guy really has to be sharp, doesn't he, Morrie? . . . Dorothy Hart is proud of her new grandson. She hopes to see him out in California during vacation. . . . Marcella Goyer moved her belongings into her new home last Friday. She says it is just like starting life all over again. . . . Bob Sweeney is building an addition to his home. He has about all his nails (and fingers) and spikes pounded by now. . . . Ruth Gunn says her stone wall is almost finished and it better be as her back about is. . . . We wonder why a guy would paint a garage floor. . . . The lead department says so long to Joe Lothomer and Myron Disher. It has been nice working with you fellows. . . . Barbara Nix is also leaving us to resume full time household duties. . . . When Hedy Klejnot got to work today she was minus her keys. She remembered just where she left them. After contacting lost and found at a downtown store she made a bee-line after them. . . . Margaret Kenyon spent the week-end at Lake Manitowish. Stay away from the lakes, Marge, and you won't have to spend all week getting the tar off your car. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Arleen Helberg's mother, who has been quite ill.

ECHOES from 19-2 by Fred McIntyre

We wish Bob Lagerman's mother, who suffered a broken hip in an auto accident a speedy recovery. The last report is that she is coming along fine. . . . It must be great to own a new car. Ask Glenn Bice. He bought a new Plymouth. . . . Joe Laisure says it makes no difference what color socks are as long as you have two of them on. He wore one black and one blue sock to work one day last week. . . . Heine Muhlenbruck and Leon Stabler report a fine third week of vacation spent last week. . . . Paul Hathaway, whose birthday is June 16, also the opening of the fishing season, says that his wife is always good to him on his birthday. This year she will row the boat for him while he tries his luck at fishing on opening day. . . . Elmer Yordy had an experience one day last week, the outcome of which left him perplexed. He was standing on the corner of a busy Indianapolis street intersection, waiting for the light to change in his favor. He was approached by an elderly man who asked his assistance in crossing the street. Elmer replied that he was a stranger in Indianapolis but would help him across the street. The man asked Elmer where he was from and he replied Fort Wayne. "Oh," said the man, "an Allen County Republican." Just then the light changed in their favor and Elmer took the man by the arm to assist him across the street. However the man released himself from Elmer's grasp and said, "I don't need your help." Elmer says he must have been a Marion County Democrat.

SICK LIST

The following people have been reported on the sick list, dismissed from the hospital, and returned to work:

BLDG. 4-3 and 4

by Helen Engle

The girls didn't know what Katie Gilbert was more excited about, her son's wedding or the new calf that arrived the day before the wedding. . . . We are all going over and see Ruby Chrysler's month-old granddaughter. She claims she is crawling already and they are afraid to leave her on the big bed by herself. . . . We think Frank Voirol had better offer a reward the next time he loses a wrench. Earl Sexton has a rule of never returning anything without something for it. . . . Russel Rose claims he got tired cleaning all 160 bluegills. . . . Congratulations to Floyd Truelove, who is a new grandfather. . . . We all know Earl Sexton claims there are no fish in Rome City. In order to have meat on the table he runs over turtles to solve the food problem. . . . Helen White spent last week-end in Chicago. . . . Melinda Behrman is back after a week's vacation. . . . Ardola Metker climaxed her vacation by helping her cousin get married. . . . Evelyn Foulks was a very sad person the other day when her little dog, Sandy, died. . . . Robert Maxwell was caught off guard when rocking in his chair. He had a surprised look when he thought the chair was going over backwards. . . . Stella Mailand is working the second trick this week. . . . Lloyd Jacobs says he got in no golfing and no fishing over the week-end as he painted his garage. . . . We are glad to see Peg Phillips back at work after a sick leave. . . . Mary Nute is going home to mother this week but not in the general sense. Dear husband is working out of town and Mary doesn't like to stay alone. . . . Paul Ginder is the proud owner of a new Mercury. . . . Paul Arnold really worked at his new house over the week-end. He has all the partitions in now and is almost ready for the plasterer. If Paul had kept up on all his friendships it might have been done by now. Don't worry, Mrs.

MANY GIFTS AT RETIREMENT—Ethel Brown (left) shows the many gifts she received at retirement to Helen Reinking, June Mizzel, and W. H. Crouse. She had been with the General Electric Company since 1928 when she did transformer work in Bldg. 26-2. She was a preliminary assembler in Bldg. 26-5 when she retired.

Arnold, sooner or later you will get into the new house. . . . Harry Meyers is in the money. He traded his old car for a Ford and is all ready for the winter as this one came equipped with snow tires. . . . I wonder what changed Merlin Heller's mind about retiring and going to Florida to live. . . . John Zimmerman bought the wrong kind of TV and on top of the cost of buying a set has to go to additional expense for outside entertainment. He can't seem to get the right kind of reception. He'll learn not to buy an off brand like that when you can get something good like GE.

WIRE RAVELINGS

TAYLOR ST.

by Art Rasor

Our deepest sympathy goes to George Andorfer in the death of his brother, and to Harold Barriek on the death of his father-in-law. . . . It's "Korn Kob Pipe" time as the two "shiftless skunks" from Pucker Huddle puff away. They drew back with a wild look on their faces as the rubber bands in the tobacco were meant only for "Wimpy" Lemper, and not for Herb Thompson. . . . Julia Inman, seven-year-old daughter of Dean Inman, was injured by an automobile last week, but we hear she is doing nicely. . . . Wilbur Gray is in the Lutheran Hospital for observation and Francis Fulk is off work with the mumps. . . . "Tiny" Wright ran into trouble at the dispensary last week when they had him appear for a physical examination. The scales would register only 300 lbs., and "Tiny's" weight is a mere 315. Then the second X-ray was needed as the first sitting was not strong enough, drawing a blank on the negative. The next time I'll bet they are prepared for an emergency. . . . When Al Swift left for work one morning his boy said he would be over to pick up the car in the parking lot. Nothing more was said and without notice Al went home that evening to find that his car was still in the lot and he had to make an extra round trip to get it home. I suggest a two-way radio would help so Al could call his boy to see if he came after the car.

PAY for TWO KINDS of WORK

OPENING CEREMONIES—GE's Little League season was officially opened last week with flag raising ceremonies at Hamilton Park. The following night the GE team saw first action in a game with Inca. GE won by a score of 8 to 3. The next game is Tuesday, when GE will again meet Inca at Hamilton Park. Snider pitched for GE. Charlie Wilt manages the General Electric sponsored team in the Hamilton Park League.

Majors Win Six Straight; Guy Fans 70th Victim

The GE Club major league nine chalked up their sixth straight victory Monday night behind the sensational pitching of young Tom Guy, beating Maroney 5 to 2. Guy had a no-hitter going for six innings, then after a walk, the last man up hit a home run.

Guy had 14 strike-outs in this game to bring his total to 70 in six games. Norb Cowan had a double and a home run for the Club. Bob Bales worked behind the plate.

Last week, the GE Club team scored another 5 to 2 victory over Allen Dairy, as Guy held Allen Dairy to two hits, striking out eight men.

Cowan had two doubles and Bob Guarrard had three hits to lead the batting for the night. Guy also had a home run to help the winning cause.

Interdepartment Lead All Tied Up As Squares, Lab Teams Win Again

Continuing their winning streaks, the Squares and Lab teams remained in first place in the Interdepartment Softball League at the end of the third week of action. Each team has three wins.

With all the teams seeing action Wednesday, June 9, the Squares started out their game against Winter St. with 14 runs in the first inning and ended the game with a 25 to 1 victory. Gil Carl pitched a strong game for the victors.

Lab men downed the TE's by a 8 to 3 score. Timbrook hit a homer for the winning team with no one on base and his teammate Greider pitched a four hitter. The Lab was just one up on the TE boys until the last inning when they got four runs across.

The Vets topped the Apprentice School by a 9 to 7 count. Jack Enyeart, Apprentice, and Zimmermanley, Vets, scored a home run apiece. This gives both teams a 1 and 1 count in league standings.

The MTP's proved too strong for the AST team as they won by a 24 to 8 score. One of the better plays of the game was a double play by AST men Ryan, Germanson, and Soder from third to second to first.

Team managers were announced this week by Dexter Marshall, league manager. The men who have been responsible for organizing and coaching the teams are: Dave Jones, Apprentice; Roy Tomlinson, Vets; Paul Beltz, Works Lab; Ken Frankenstein, TE; Jack Steel, MTP; Dick Webber, AST; Dick Miller, Squares, and Bob McClain, Winter St.

GE Club Jr. Feds Win Three Games

The GE Club Junior Federation League team continued its high caliber of play this week as the boys battered their way to the victor's box in three games.

Wednesday, June 9, the boys won their second game of the season from City Light. Sunday, June 13, they chalked up an easy victory over Waynedale Merchants with a final tally of 14-1. The game, which was played at Waynedale, included a homer by Bobby Ware. Menefee had 15 strikeouts and gave up two hits for the winners.

In Monday's game against Renner's Express the team bounced back from a trailing score to win 12-11. Three runs in the eighth inning did the trick for the lads. GE's boys were at a 10-1 disadvantage until the seventh when they caught fire with an eight-run streak. This game was played under the lights at McMillen Park.

The GE players will meet Fort Wayne Merchants Sunday, June 20, at McMillen Park and will return there Thursday, June 24, to greet the Waynedale Merchants.

"Why did you give your lodger notice?"

"Well, I am not one to suspect people and do not distrust them but when a man always hangs his hat over the keyhole, there is something mysterious."

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

The best score of the season in any league was fired by Ray Hills playing for the Wire Mill team last Monday afternoon in Charlie Brigg's league. His score, a 37, came about as follows: 3-3-5-3-2-5-6-4-6.

Monday Afternoon
Benny (two league) Penkul's Wire Mill team retained the league lead by beating Transformer by four points. Jack Steel chipped in a 39; Penkul, a 40, and Hills, 37, to turn the trick. Ed Becker led the losers with a 42.

Tony Wichman, an ex Owl, led the Putters to a 21-point clobber job of the High Balls by carding a 39. Mosshammer was low for the losers with 46.

Financials gave the Divoteers a 14-point lesson. Two 52.4 average players, Eddington and C. Miller, shot 49 and 45, respectively, to lead in the win.

Ray Hills with 38.6; Willie Adams with 39.1, and Jack Steel with 39.3 are the big three in this early section of the Monday leagues.

Monday Evening
Skeets Lahrman's Pros have opened a big lead in the second section of the Monday leagues. They beat Dick Kent's Rough Riders a disrespectful 13 with Skeets' 40 leading the way. The loss pushed the Rough Riders out of second into fourth spot.

Meanwhile the Turf Toppers took over second by beating the Lost Balls to the tune of 8 points.

The Dark Horses pushed the Rovers deeper into the league cellar with a nine-point win.

Tom Staley carded a neat birdie 4 on No. 16 but followed it up with a big fat 10 on No. 17. Hole No. 13 suffered the most. Three golfers birdied the hole.

Skeets Lahrman at 42, Nate Horton at 42.7 and Bob Hanna with 42.9 round out the big three.

Owl
Things have been plenty rough for the champion Birdies and the ex-5 time champ Hot Shots. The Birdie's rest on the bottom and the Hot Shots, Lloyd Grider and Co. are in fourth place.

Bud Hower's Pars moved up into the second slot by clipping the Aces by 17 points.

The Birdies snapped out of their doldrums (I must have charged them up last week), and tramped on the Bogeys for 12. Norm Wolf shot a 41 for the Birds.

The league leading Eagles and the Hot Shots squared away and had a ding dong dandy. Grider's lads won by one. Warren Wickliffe and Grider carded 40 and 41 for the winners while Paul Billman shot his "terrible" 40 for the Bob Markey Eagles.

It's big four in the Owl league; Grider 41, Wickliffe 41.3, Sternberger 41.7 and Billman 41.8.

Tuesday
"Butterball" Poyser's league faced almost certain wash out when a downpour hit the city about 4:15 but the weatherman relented and gave up the nicest evening this league has had this year.

The nicest that is for four teams. The Divot Diggers and the Dubs were afraid to get their shoes mugged up and rescheduled their match for another day.

The 49'ers resting on the bottom of the league heap were picked up by Lew Gossman who went under his average to lick the 19th Holers by three points. Big "Red" couldn't do it by himself with a 39.

Fanning's Gas House Tigers picked up two points in a win over the Optimists.

In the rescheduled match Perry Esterline carded a 39 to lead the Divot Diggers to a 15-point win over the Dubs.

Jim Walley with 40.2, Red Braden with 40.3 and Bill Kayser 40.5 round out the Big 3.

Gun Club Range Is N. of Elmhurst High

The GE Rod and Gun Club's new outdoor range is located one mile north of Elmhurst High School on the Sam Dinova farm. The range is on the Hayden Road, one-half mile south of the Engle Road.

The range saw its first action Tuesday evening. Only .22 caliber rifles and pistols are used because of the closeness to the city limits.

TOP SHOT—Ray Atkinson, Bldg. 31-2, added to his many honors in pistol shooting last week-end when he won the state individual pistol championship at Putnamville State Police Post. High point man Atkinson got the highest score in .22 caliber, .38 caliber, and .45 caliber contests to annex the championship.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Two more newcomers to Bldg. 22, Max Brickley and Kenny Handschy, are welcomed to our group. . . . Our sympathy goes to Frank Mathews upon the death of his sister. . . . Pat McCutcheon mashed his foot last week. We are sorry to hear it, Pat. We hope it mends really fast. . . . We are glad to see Officer Tieman back on the job after his recent illness. Tieman has quit smoking cigars since he has been sick. He says they taste like rubber. Weren't they? . . . Charlie Nord wants to know what kind of shenanigans goes on in his booth on second shift. Every morning he finds bobby pins on the floor. . . . If any of you have been wondering why Ferroll (Cupid) Hill has been looking so dejected lately, his wife received a phone call from John D. Young on the Dinner Winner program and couldn't answer the question. She lost the truck load of goodies. However, six skinless frankfurters and a box of crackers to the little lady! . . . I knocked the rear end out of my car last week and before deciding to have it fixed I thought I would shop around for a later model. I stopped at a place called Jolly Joe's and did he have the cars! I haven't seen as many cars in one place since Liberace played the Coliseum. Jolly Joe was a heavy man with shifty eyes and a bar fly's nose. "Howdy, friend, what will you have?" says he, slipping me a hand that felt like a wet mop. I explained that I was just looking. "Well, don't look too long," he replied, "These cars won't last long!" I had to agree with him there. Some of them didn't look as if they'd last until you got them home. Finally I found one that didn't look too bad. "How about this one," I asked. "I was hoping you wouldn't find that one," he confessed. "I was saving it for a friend. That one is a honey. No money down and no payment until next fall and then only $90 a month." "Ninety dollars a month for how long?" I asked. "What do you care how long? You'll trade it back before it's paid for anyway." Then I asked about a little red car. "Now you're getting smart. That one belonged to an old lady, hardly been used, $10 down and two years to pay." "Yeah, but how much money is it going to cost me?" I wanted to know. "Looky here, bub," says Jolly Joe, "you're too nosey." "Go on and get out of here!" Gosh, I surely hope they can fix my car because maybe Jolly Joe won't sell me any now.

We can't understand it. There must not be any strawberries this year. No one has complained of having a case of the "strawberry stoops." . . . We wish lots of luck and happiness to Catherine Salmon. She will change her name to Mrs. Edgar Gorman on June 26. . . . Laura Starnier was on vacation last week. . . . It's "hup-two-three-four" for Frank Beck. He is leaving us to join the payroll of Uncle Sam. . . . We wish Ann Kensis the best of luck on her new job in Bldg. 8-2. . . . We light another candle on the cake and wish a happy birthday to Ruth Lemert and Cecil Phillips. . . . Also we wish a happy birthday to Mary Schlaw. Mary isn't with us at the present time, but she remembered us with some delicious candy. . . . Herb Wiegman was chewing on his fingernails. One of the girls thought maybe he was hungry, so she gave him a sack of peanuts. . . . The next time Mildred Huntine does any furniture buying, she will probably measure before she buys. She changed her kitchen by moving the refrigerator and had all the connections ready for her new stove. When it was delivered, it wouldn't fit. She had to send it back and get a smaller size. . . . Vickie Clayton doesn't like to work nights. She misses Liberace. . . . Ida Sinn couldn't find her glasses the other morning. You guessed it. She had them on because she had worn them to bed the night before. . . . Esther Knapp locked her keys in the car and left the motor running. One of the firms that makes keys helped her out of her trouble.

TALES from TAYLOR

SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

The following bit of wisdom we deem timely and worthy of passing on to our readers. These words were spoken by a great American and statesman, Woodrow Wilson, in a speech before Congress in the year of 1916. "One cool judgment is worth a thousand hasty counsils. The thing to do is to supply light and not heat. At any rate, if it is heat it ought to be white heat and not sputter, because sputtering heat is apt to spread the fire. There ought, if there is any heat at all to be that warmth of the heart which makes every man thrust aside his own personal feeling, his own personal interest, and take thought of the welfare and benefit of others. . . . The gendarmes grabbed Russ! Russ! Russ! De-Veny was breezing alone merrily to the tune of 80 miles per hour between here and Garrett the other afternoon when suddenly the arm of the law reached out and nailed him. As one of the officers reached the car of our offender, he said, "No argument now, you were going at the rate of 80 miles per hour." Russ retaliated with, "My speedometer must be wrong." The officer came back at him with, "Or your eyesight must be very bad." Nevertheless Russ had to pay the piper, thereby enriching the coffers of the State Police. . . . We were pleasantly surprised one day last week when we were paid a visit by Al Woodward. No doubt a lot of our old-timers will remember him. Woodie used to jockey those early electric industrial trucks around the plant. We were very glad to see him as it is the first time that we have laid eyes upon him for 10 years. Does he look fine! Time has certainly treated him kindly. One would think that he is not a day over 50, but number 75 is coming up. . . . For weeks Evan Morris has been trotting around the plant with his hair in a very shaggy condition. At first we thought that he might be letting it grow, intending to come up with a pageboy bob. However, last Monday morning he appeared upon the scene with above all things a crew cut. If he does not resemble a peeled onion we surely will miss our guess.

2-2 TALES

by Belle Buchan

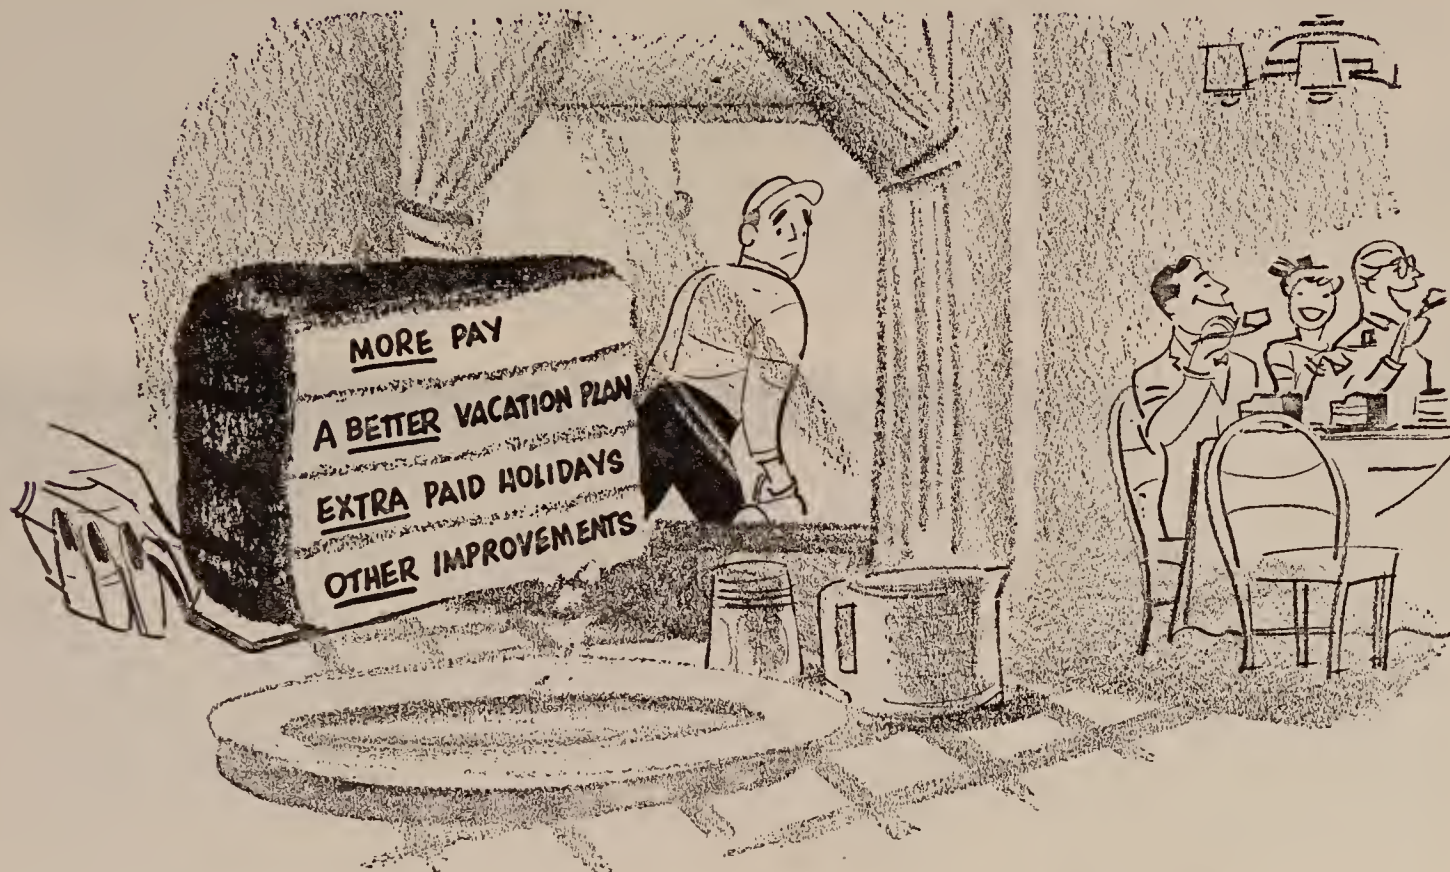

It's nice to have Bob Dent back at his desk after his recent illness. . . . Vic Cartwright now answers to the name of Virginia. Vic says that he answers to a lot of names, but we think that Virginia is the nicest of all. . . . Herb Habig can have a birthday every week as far as we are concerned. Herb treated us to a whole birthday cake this week. Now we know why he is a contented married man. It's because Veora is such a good cook. You know the old saying, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach." . . . With all of the graduating going on now, there are some proud parents and grandparents in our office, among them are Vern Castle, whose daughter, Ruthie, graduated from St. Francis, and Pres Slack, whose son, Jim, graduated from Utah State. After the exercises Pres and his family flew to California for a few days. Also, my grandson, Jerry Blake, graduated from Central High and we are justly proud of him. . . . Two of our girls left us this week. They were Jenny Hey, who is in Bldg. 6-3, and Nancy Weinley, who is being transferred to another division.

"Mark my words, he won't stop until he's borrowed everything he owns!"

COPYRIGHT 1954 CARTOONS-OF-THE-MONTH

We want YOU to have YOUR share !

ON June 1, thousands of G-E employees—both in and out of union bargaining units—started to cash in on their part of the extra payroll dollars of the 1954 G-E offer for more than $30,000,000 worth of pay increases, better vacation provisions, extra paid holidays and other improvements.

The offer became automatically effective June 1 for employees who are not in bargaining units, since they didn't have to wait until union officials decided to accept the offer for them.

It also became effective on the same date for thousands of employees who are in bargaining units. Their union officials recognized the offer was responsive to what had been represented as most desirable for our employees. Agreement had accordingly been reached with the Company within the two-week offer period.

The offer can become effective for thousands of other General Electric employees as soon as their union officials work out the necessary agreement with the Company.

Meanwhile we want those of you, who have already lost more than a half-million pay dollars and who continue to lose pay at the rate of over $200,000 a week, to know our position:

We want YOU to have YOUR share !

In the face of the current trends and the many uncertainties in the business picture, General Electric's 1954 offer is for a very substantial increase in pay. It would average more than 5 cents an hour. No employee, regardless of his job, would get less than a 4-cent boost in his hourly rate. Some would get as much as 8 cents.

To those who are losing this 4 cents or 5 cents an hour—or more—we repeat:

We want YOU to have YOUR share !

The wage increase would be good for 15 months—with no strings attached. For example, there is no cost of living "escalator" clause by which our employees would be gambling on whether their wages would go up or down. Instead, the Company is prepared to make a firm upward commitment for the 15 months ahead—as we have for those employees now enjoying the increase.

The Company wants to make this commitment with every union that represents General Electric employees where negotiations are appropriately open now because:

We want YOU to have YOUR share !

In addition to the wage increase, the Company's offer includes:

A Better Vacation Plan—Improvements offered for the vacation plan would: (1) guarantee full vacation pay rather than pro-rata amounts—to qualified employees regardless of absences during the vacation year resulting from such causes as layoffs, terminations, sickness, etc., and (2) compute vacation pay on the employee's rate at the time of vacation or at the end of the preceding calendar year, whichever rate is higher.

Extra Paid Holidays—When any of the seven listed holidays falls on Saturday, an alternate holiday with pay will be observed on the preceding Friday. This would mean that most General Electric employees would get holiday pay for two extra days this year because both Christmas and New Year's fall on Saturday.

Other Improvements in provisions for overtime pay for more than 16 consecutive hours of work, in-grade progression, continuity of service credits and holiday pay for employees on continuous operations.

All in all, General Electric's 1954 offer is in direct contrast to the trend of the times. It was made only after exhaustive and earnest consideration. It was made with all cards face up on the table—with nothing held back for later haggling. More than half of all General Electric employees—in and out of union bargaining units—are already beginning to enjoy the results of our offer.

Unfortunately, however, there are still thousands of other G-E employees who are still losing pay because their union officials have not accepted it for them. General Electric sincerely regrets that the good increases now being enjoyed by a majority of employees cannot yet be extended likewise to all

169 SHARE $2866 IDEA JACKPOT

Club Votes To Give Up GG Tourney

The GE Club Board of Directors has voted to discontinue sponsorship of the Golden Gloves tournament in Fort Wayne, Bill Schible, club president made known this week.

Decreasing spectator interest with increasing financial responsibilities was given as the reason for the club's abandoning the project after 25 years of participation. The GE Club co-sponsored the tourney with the Journal-Gazette for 23 years. In 1953 and 1954, the club cooperated with Radio Station WKJG in bringing the amateur boxing clashes to Fort Wayne.

Mr. Schible said he made the announcement with regret but it was the opinion of the board that the club's energies should be channeled into activities where there is more interest among employees.

The tournament was held for many years in the GE Club gym. Later it was moved to North Side High School gym, and last year to the War Memorial Coliseum.

IDEA TILL—Robert Till took $215 out of the suggestion till in May for his idea to install a micro-switch on the shaft milling machine to eliminate maintenance and repair work. The top suggester is employed in Section 114 at Taylor St.

With $215 Suggestion Award Taylor St. Man Tops May List

A total of 169 employees shared a suggestion jackpot of $2,866 in May according to reports received from suggestion secretaries in the various departments.

At the top of the list was Robert Till, of Section 114 at Taylor St., who earned $215. His award-winning idea was for the installation of a micro-switch on the shaft milling machine to eliminate maintenance and repair work.

A Bldg. 17-2 employee, Franklin O. Bly, was close behind him with a $180 award. Mr. Bly suggested making divided plate of malleable or copper so that when plates burn down at point of weld, they can be rotated and used at new points of contact.

Carl M. Junk, of the Wire Mill, is $135 richer for his suggestion for an improved method of applying insulation to aluminum wire.

Louis B. Sinn, Taylor St., received $110. She suggested injecting the main and the starts in separately to eliminate the pounding to get them wedged and the scratching of wire when shooting them together.

Three $100 Awards

man, and Frank A. Brohman, both of Bldg. 17-2.

Mr. Cornell suggested the use of a grinding fixture for grinding certain carbide tools, thus reducing lapping time by about one-half. Mr. Eshelman earned his award for suggesting that crooked bores and shifted irons could be eliminated by inserting pins. An idea to mount two pins in bottom plates of rotor core to prevent shifted irons brought an award check to Mr. Brohman.

A $90 suggestion check went to Doris Salge, Bldg. 26-4, for her idea to improve the insulation of certain transformers to save winding time.

Leo J. Neuman, Bldg. 19-5, was paid $82.50 for suggesting the elimination of transformer and magnetic switch by substituting another kind of switch, thus reducing cost of electrical equipment.

New Food Wagon Schedule Becomes Effective Monday

A new time schedule for the food wagon stops on the west side of Broadway will go into effect Monday, Darriyl Long, cafeteria supervisor, announced today.

The new schedule, which eliminates a stop on Bldg. 26-3, is as follows:

Bldgs. 26-1 and 26-2—5:42 to 5:58 p.m.

Bldg. 26-4—6 to 6:22 p.m.

Bldg. 26-5—6:24 to 6:40 p.m.

Bldg. 19-1—6:48 to 7:04 p.m.

Bldg. 19-4 east end—7:06 to 7:22 p.m.

Bldg. 19-4 west end—7:24 to 7:36 p.m.

Employees from the second and third floors of Bldg. 19 are served on the Bldg. 19-1 stop, 6:48 to 7:04 p.m.

It is hoped that the new schedule will help eliminate waiting periods, Mr. Long said.

The food wagons carry hot food, pie, coffee, fruit, salads, and sandwiches to second shift employees on the west side of Broadway which is not readily accessible to the cafeteria on short lunch periods.

Elex Announces Trip Tour Guides

Voyce Brumbaugh, Winter St., and Roqua Wibel, Broadway receptionist, will be tour leaders for the Elex sponsored trip to California during vacation shutdown.

A total of 130 persons has registered for the 12-day trip, which will begin Saturday, July 24.

Reservations for the trip will be taken until July 1 and all payments must be made by July 12. Persons interested in taking the trip should contact the Women's Activities office at Broadway, Bldg. 18-1 or at Taylor St., or Miss Brumbaugh at Winter St.

AIEE OFFICER—Claude M. Summers of the Fort Wayne laboratory, has been elected a vice president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, it was announced this week at the organization's convention in Los Angeles.

Mr. Summers and Robert K. Drake, Bldg. 28-2, chairman of the Fort Wayne Section of AIEE, are attending the five-day meeting.

Holding both local and district offices in the organization, Mr. Summers has served as secretary, chairman, vice chairman, and on the board of directors of the Fort Wayne Section.

50 Purdue-GE Math Fellows To Visit Fort Wayne Plant

Fifty high school mathematics teachers now studying under General Electric's Mathematics Fellowship Program at Purdue University will make their first field trip to the Fort Wayne plants Wednesday, June 30.

The fellows will arrive on chartered buses in the morning.

After a greeting by L. C. Swager, manager of employee and plant community relations, Clarence A. Brenner, superintendent of Manufacturing in the Advanced Manufacturing Development Section, will present the topic, "How Math Is Used in Tool Manufacturing."

In the afternoon session K. W. Michael, manager of community relations, will speak on "Being a Good Employer and a Good Neighbor." This will be followed by a visit to the Apprentice School, Bldgs. 12-2 and 12-3, and to Bldgs. 19-4 and 19-5.

The fellows come from 11 middle west and east central states. The program also offers fellowships to science and math teachers at Union College, Schenectady; Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland, O.; and Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute, Troy, N. Y.

Offer Accepted By 59 Unions

Still more acceptances reported by mid-week added more GE employees to the majority already enjoying their share of the over $30 million worth of increased pay and other benefits offered by the company.

Acceptances had been received from 59 union groups operating under separate contracts.

Lodge No. 70, IAM-AFL ratified the agreement at their regular monthly membership meeting Monday evening.

...AND $30 MILLION MORE IN '54

...And $30 Million More in '54

More than 100,000 GE employees are now sharing the benefits of the latest GE wage increase. This raise, the ninth given by our company since mid-1950, boosts our pay to a point 31 per cent higher than it was four years ago—even though living costs have risen only 12.7 per cent in the same period. So the '54 wage adjustment, which gives employees in 132 plants an average of 5 cents more per hour with a minimum of 4 cents seems to merit one GE employee's description—"a super-deluxe model in a lean year."

Certainly, thousands of men and women outside of GE—some of whom have accepted wage cuts in recent weeks—have some cause to envy those of us who work for GE. And hundreds of merchants, professional men, and non-industrial employees in our plant cities have good reasons for echoing our own pleasure over the '54 GE pay raise, which will add $30 million more to the GE labor cost during the next 12 months if all unions accept the increase for their members. We might pause, however, in our frank pleasure over the new wage adjustment, to consider where all payroll money comes from.

Right now, everyone in America is spending money cautiously—searching far and wide for the best values available. In the face of this sharp shopping by all consumers of "hard goods," it seems highly unlikely at this time that GE customers would be willing to pay more for our handiwork this year. That means that we must all do everything possible to turn out our products at less cost to cover the increased wages. Only in this way can we get Mr. and Mrs. America to buy more of our output at the same or lower prices in effect before the wage increase went into effect on June 1st for all employees not in bargaining units and for members of some 30 unions which accepted the increase before the June 8th deadline.

This year, as always, it is the customers' dollars spent on GE products that puts money in the company till so that we can draw our wages each week. A year ago, GE customers had to show over $3 billion worth of confidence in GE to supply the about $151 million paid to us in wages and salaries. On the same basis, our marketing men must move an additional $100 million worth of GE merchandise in the year ahead to cover the roughly $30 million which management has offered in increased pay and benefits this year.

Granting of this increase, at a time when the cost of living is actually falling, is money-in-the-employee's-bank evidence that our management has confidence in the future of GE. But the winning of customer confidence is still in our hands. If we continue to turn out better values than our competitors can furnish, the unseen Mr. G. E. Customer—the man who really signs our paychecks—will continue to put his confidence in us.

BOAT SAFETY

by Carl J. Potthoff, M. D.

Boating and fishing contribute immeasurably to health as well as pleasure. Parents who foresee hazards to their children at this time of year from rowing, canoeing, and sailboating might encourage them to take a skills and safety course such as the Red Cross offers free. With few sports other than boating can one so surely and completely avoid dangers by observing simple precautions.

Small-boat accidents take a significant toll, about 1,200 a year or almost one-fifth of all drownings. This is greater than the toll from most communicable diseases. Boating accidents occur because people are heedless when a storm threatens (often because the fish start hitting) or because of patently reckless behavior, drinking, gross inexperience, overloading, leaky boats and defective motors. Every year some people go too near dams or waterfalls, above or below, and are caught in the current. About 90 per cent of the victims are men or boys; and the supposedly careful 25 to 44 year olds contribute at about the same rate as the 15 to 24 year olds. A recent study of a selected group showed that 60 per cent of the victims were fishing, 60 per cent were using small motors, and that few were sailboating.

What to Do

1. A boat or canoe that is made of wood, or a metal boat with buoyancy chambers, will not sink even though filled with water. Use it to support you if it capsizes. Take out only a boat that will float if capsized.

2. Include a life preserver in your boating equipment. Obviously its regular use would prevent virtually all drownings. Even though the boat will float, the life preserver adds a greater measure of certainty to self rescue. Any sizable floating object has some buoying value; "swim it ashore if indicated, resting frequently. Or possibly you can sit or lie upon it and paddle ashore.

3. If an alternate possibility of saving yourself exists, do not try to swim ashore unless positive you can make it. There are three dangers, even to good, young swimmers: (a) the distance to shore is usually far greater than first estimated; (b) clothes greatly handicap the swimmer though the distance be short, unless he is experienced in the proper technique—slow swimming with the arms beneath the surface at all times; (c) cramps sometimes affect him because he may not have swum for weeks or longer, he may have eaten shortly before, or the water may be cold.—(Reprinted from TODAY'S HEALTH.)

Do Communists Resort Much to Armed Force?

From the very start they have used armed force. They took over Russia by armed revolt and developed a number of tactics based on armed force. These include sporadic uprisings and sustained insurrections by guerrilla forces. Recent examples are many: Korea, Greece, French Indochina, Malaya, China and the Philippines—to list a few. Russia has variously supplied revolutionists with money, arms, advice and, in some instances, personnel.

The example of the United States is diametrically opposite. Here the world's highest living standards have been attained along with social advances within the constitutional framework of democracy.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Departing from our usual program of nonsense we present as a change a column of common sense. . . . If a man proves too clearly and convincingly to himself that a tiger is an optical illusion, he will find out he is wrong. The tiger will himself intervene in the discussion in a manner which will be in every sense conclusive. . . . I belong to the Great Church, which holds the world within starlit aisles; that claims the great and good of every race and clime; that finds with joy the grain of gold in every creed, and floods with light and love the germs of good in every soul. . . . Sir, I think all Christians, whether Papists or Protestants, agree in the essential articles and that their religious differences are trivial, and rather political than religious. . . . When you see a man with a great deal of religion displayed in his shop window, you may depend upon it, he keeps a very small stock of it within. . . . Sloth makes all things difficult, but industry all easy; and he that riseth late must trot all day, and shall scarce overtake his business at night; while laziness travels so slowly that poverty soon overtakes him. . . . I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good therefore that I can do or any kindness that I can show to any fellow creature, let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it for I shall not pass this way again. . . . Whenever I assemble a column such as this, which is not very often, one gets some comical reactions such as this comment of one of my co-workers to another, "Parker surely has gone soft. Did you read the copy he wrote for this issue?" Well, to this person I will say that I have gone 'cushy' again.

Arguing with a woman is like trying to read a newspaper in a high wind.

GE Honored as National Leaders In Bond Sales

The General Electric Company and its employees were honored in New York today for being the nation's leaders in the sale and retention of United States Savings Bonds.

Ralph J. Cordiner, GE President, received a scroll from the United States Treasury Department on behalf of the company and its employees who have $100 million in U. S. Savings Bonds on deposit in the GE Employee Savings and Stock Bonus Plan.

The citation was presented by Earl O. Shreve, National Director, U. S. Savings Bond Division, U. S. Treasury Department and former President of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Shreve is a former General Electric Vice President who retired from the company in 1948 following 44 years of service.

The scroll reads in part:

"Citation to the General Electric Company in recognition of the outstanding achievements of GE employees who have on deposit more than $100 million, at cost price, of United States Savings Bonds which they purchased under the General Electric Employees' Savings and Stock Bonus Plan.

"In making this plan available, the company has helped each participating member of the General Electric family to provide for his own future security. By pioneering this means of encouraging employee savings through company-distributed stock bonus, the company has set an example of public services and enlightened employee relations for American industry and business. By their support of this plan, these employees are benefiting the nation as well as themselves in setting an outstanding example of thrift for all Americans.

"George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury."

General Electric employees have purchased under company plans more than $425 million since the plans were initiated May 1, 1941.

More than 85,000 GE employees are now purchasing the bonds at a cost price of $30 million annually under a payroll deduction plan whereby bonds left on deposit for five years earn their owners a stock bonus equal to 15 per cent of the purchase price of the bonds.

Within the past few days, 20,200 GE employees who purchased U. S. Savings Bonds when the GE plan was started in 1948 and left them on deposit for five years, received one share of GE stock each. These same employees will receive their first dividend on the stock, 40 cents a share, when GE pays its second quarter dividend in August. More than 42,000 GE employees received checks totaling $233,000 in March and bonds costing $3,500,000 which had been on deposit since 1948. At the same time GE stock with a market value of more than $1 million was credited to their accounts.

Since then, GE shareowners have authorized a three-for-one stock split with the result that 20,200

VACATION SAFETY was the topic of discussion when Trooper William Hunter, of the Indiana State Police, addressed members of the Taylor St. safety committees recently. He emphasized that safety is an important item off the job as well as on the job, especially with the holiday and vacation coming up for GE employees.

Human Head Main Traffic Problem State Trooper Tells Taylor St. Group

"The only thing that is a traffic problem is the human head," Trooper William Hunter, of the Indiana State Police Safety Education Division, stated when he addressed members of the Taylor St. safety committees recently.

With the Fourth of July and vacation coming, the driver who is planning a motor trip can do a lot to insure the safety of his trip by the way he plans and his attitude, Hunter stated. Safety precautions should start before the trip gets under way and continue throughout the vacation.

About 70 per cent of vacation travel in the United States is done during the six months between April and September, placing a definite load on the nation's highways in summer months, a National Safety Council report states. This means that the driver must prepare himself for a safe trip and return by keeping safe practices in mind and carrying them out.

Trooper Hunter gives the following tips to remember before taking that motor trip:

Have your car checked completely for safety.

Plan for emergencies by taking first-aid kit, maps, keys, permits, passes, identification, spare tire, flashlight, flares or fuses, tool kit.

Plan for sufficient rest stops. Fatigue and safe driving seldom go together.

Prepare for changing traffic laws when going from one state to another. Remember, being a tourist doesn't entitle you to special privileges. You must know the laws of states you visit as well as you know those of your own locality.

Load your automobile with luggage and vacation equipment so that the driver will have full, clear vision on front, sides, and rear. Be especially careful not to obscure rear-view vision.

Kindling Available

Kindling orders are now being taken at the Employee Store, Ray Fischbach, store manager, said today. Price is $2 per load.

New Eye Protection Program Launched at Winter St. Plant

An eye protection program has been inaugurated at the Winter St. Plant requiring all employees in the manufacturing area and all visitors to that area to wear safety glasses, John W. Braden, safety specialist, reported today.

All present manufacturing area employees have safety glasses and new employees are given overall safety glasses to wear until they receive their individually fitted glasses.

A sign emphasizing the importance of wearing these glasses has been placed in the Winter St. Employee Store. It shows a glass eye like those used to replace a human eye after an injury to it. The sign states that "These (glass eyes) are on sale for those who do not wear safety glasses."

National Safety Council figures show that over 2,000 industrial workers in the United States lose the sight of one or both of their eyes each year in accidents. About 98 per cent of these accidents can be avoided by wearing safety glasses, the report states.

PROTECT YOUR EYES by wearing safety glasses and you won't need a glass eye, as the sign at the Winter St. Employee Store points out. Russell Sills, Winter St. employee, looks at the sign through his safety glasses.

Phillip Reed Says U. S. Companies Bet on Prosperity

Despite so-called "recession" talk, American companies are betting billions of dollars on the country's continued growth and prosperity, Philip D. Reed, General Electric's Chairman of the Board, writes in the current American Magazine.

His own company, Mr. Reed adds, expects to produce and sell as much electrical equipment in the next ten years as in the entire 75 years of its existence.

Other great companies like American Telephone and Telegraph, DuPont, Chrysler and Standard Oil of Indiana are also spending "vast sums" on expansion and modernization, Mr. Reed continues in his American Magazine article, "We're Betting You'll Be Prosperous."

This bet, by American companies big and little, on the country's future is based on very solid ground, he writes, and details six major reasons for it:

First and most important is America's great "social change." More babies are being born and people are living longer while at the same time there is a competitive labor demand for people in the 15-24 year old bracket because of our low depression birth rate. In addition, more families than ever have leisure time, individual families are growing larger and there is an expanding movement to the suburbs.

Second, is the great number of scientists and the enormous amount of dollars being devoted to research which will bring new truths, methods and materials.

Third, there are the urgent projects crying for fulfillment because of the depression years and the dollars spent on national defense.

Fourth, there is the potentially great and growing market abroad for U. S. goods.

Fifth is the attitude of the present administration in Washington which is stimulating all kinds of business enterprise.

And sixth, Mr. Reed concludes, is the American make-up of "dynamic restlessness" which is "one of the springs of our great progress."

Henningson Assigned To Michigan District

E. Robert Henningson, shaded pole motor proposition engineer in Bldg. 4-6, is leaving today for the Detroit Sales Office for assignment in the Michigan district. Henningson came to Specialty Component marketing March 1, after 16 months at Taylor St. in the General Purpose marketing group.

A native of Hanna, Wyo., with a BSEE degree from the University of Wyoming, Mr. Henningson joined the company April 16, 1951. After tests in Pittsfield, Schenectady, Evendale, and Milwaukee, he was assigned to General Purpose in 1952.

The Henningsons and their two daughters have been residing at R. R. 11, Lima Rd.

SPECIALTY TRANSFORMER CUSTOMERS—Representatives of the Crosley Division, Avco Manufacturing Corp., Evendale, Ohio, recently visited the Bldg. 26-5 manufacturing facilities of Specialty Transformer Department. Discussing their electronic transformer requirements with General Electric representatives are: P. H. Ward, Specialty Transformer specialist, Cincinnati GE; C. R. Speckman, Crosley Division; N. D. Sturm, general salesman, Cincinnati GE; W. B. Hughes, proposition engineer, Bldg. 26-2; F. Fette, mechanical engineer, Crosley Division.

Parker Named to Accounting Post In Hermetic Motor Department

Richard B. Parker has been appointed supervisor of procedures, auditing, and payroll administration in the Hermetic Motor Department, Edgar F. Waldschmidt, manager of finance, announced this week.

In January, 1948, Mr. Parker joined the company and became a cost accounting trainee in the Air Conditioning Department at Winter St. The following year he was named supervisor of budgetary controls in that location and later became supervisor of accounting.

After transferring to the Broadway Plant in 1952, Mr. Parker was a member of the FHP accounting decentralization committee. He was named government contracts accountant for the Specialty Component Motor Department later that year and had this position prior to his present assignment.

From 1943 until May, 1946, Mr. Parker served in the U. S. Marine Corps. He was stationed in the Pacific theater of action for 18 months during that period. He is a 1943 graduate of Indiana University from which he received his BS degree in business administration.

Mr. Parker is a member of the Supervisors Club, GE War Veterans Association, and National Association of Cost Accountants.

Richard B. Parker

He served as auditor for the Mt. Vernon Park Association for one year. Mr. and Mrs. Parker and their son reside at 4925 Bowser Ave.

WEDDING MIXUP SPARKS PLOT ON "I MARRIED JOAN"

As their tenth wedding anniversary nears, Joan Davis and Jim Backus (as Judge Bradley Stevens) follow a nostalgic urge to plan a repeat performance of their wedding, which leads to typical Joan Davis complications. It happens on the Wednesday, June 30, telecast of "I Married Joan" titled "Double Wedding," over WKJG-TV at 7 p.m., CDT, an episode that proved one of the most entertaining of the series when it was first presented Dec. 30, 1953.

The wedding reproduction is to be staged with another couple with whom they were originally married—Bill Bishop and Natalie Lyons. While preparing for the event, Joan and Brad discover that the justice of the peace had issued their marriage license to Bradley J. Stevens and Natalie Lyons. In other words, Brad would be married to Natalie and Joan to Bill Bishop.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER—Mark Stevens and Robert Newton, two outstanding Hollywood personalities, star in the drama, "Confession," on "The General Electric Theater," Sunday, June 27, at 8 p.m., CDT, over the WKJG-TV network.

Stevens is seen as Fred Graham, a young war shock victim whose first week-end pass from a mental institution nearly ends in tragedy.

Graham, out of the hospital for the first time in two years, is on a suggestion which saved material in the winding of transformers.

The following employees received awards of less than $50 in amount: Robert Bunyan, Bldg. 26-1, $45; Roscoe L. Martin, Taylor St., $40; Charles Adams, Bldg. 26-3, $35; Gladys Cleland, Bldg. 4-2, $35; Earl Greasley, Bldg. 26-5, $32.50; John H. Kleinknight, Taylor St., $30; C. E. Boren, Taylor St., $30; Robert Sealover, Taylor St., $25; and Clarence Morgan, Decatur, $25.

There were 147 awards of less than $25 in amount.

have served on the committee since its origin.

Three other employees who were members of the original committee are Walter Dreyer, Nick Little, and Sam Newland. Other charter members of the group were E. A. Barnes, Bill Wehrs, and Andy Snodgrass.

The boxing committee was originally set up to provide boys with an opportunity to receive training in boxing rules and methods, and to develop a sense of fair play and further their physical and mental development.

Suggestions

A suggestion to use the supplier's laboratory information to cut down on both material and labor paid $60 to Herb Rodermund, Bldg. 31-1.

Fifty dollar awards were paid Charles Timmerman, Bldg. 26-4, Otto Borkenstein, Bldg. 20-1, and jointly to Francis Isenbarger and Russell LeBeau, of Bldg. 12-B.

Mr. Timmerman's idea was to install check valves in certain treating equipment, thereby reducing maintenance cost; Mr. Borkenstein suggested the use of solenoid valves in treating equipment, thus cutting down on maintenance; and Mr. Isenbarger and Mr. LeBeau received their joint award for

Employees not in bargaining units and those represented by the 59 unions which have accepted the offer are getting the higher pay. The pay increase, which ranges from four cents to eight cents and more an hour and averages over five cents an hour, will also be reflected in pay for their July 4th holiday and in their vacation pay.

Meanwhile, employees in IUE-CIO and UE units are not receiving the pay increase, and by next week the loss will have exceeded $1 million if they continue to delay acceptance.

GE representatives met again in New York this week in separate national negotiation sessions with IUE and UE, but there were no significant developments at press time.

Golden Gloves

The GE Club boxing committee was organized in 1929 to give free boxing lessons to employees. They staged the first city-wide amateur boxing tourney in that same year. The following year, the club accepted the offer to co-sponsor the first Fort Wayne Golden Gloves event with the Journal-Gazette.

Two employees, Frank Newport, Bldg. 19-1, and Dr. H. W. Garton

RETIREMENT DAY—Calvin W. Case (left) is congratulated on his retirement by Kenneth D. Strong on behalf of his many General Electric friends. Mr. Case retired this month with nearly 35 years of service with the company. He was employed in Bldg. 19-3 as a punch press set-up man and operator.

JAM SESSION at Harry Reinking's home combines three GE musicians who play with local dance bands in the area. Knocking out a number are Bud Pearson, Bldg. 4-B; Harry Reinking, Bldg. 8-2, and Carl Brenner, Bldg. 6-4.

OFF TO WORK as a part-time musician with a dance band, Louis Pooler, Bldg. 4-2, carries one of his drums out to the car. It's times like this when he might wish he played the flute.

STRIKE UP THE BAND!

Strike up the band—and whether it's a parading group of musicians or a dance combo, the crowd gathers. Whatever the type of band music, some of it has an appeal for everyone.

Providing this musical enjoyment in the Fort Wayne area are many organizations and in almost all of them the crowd will find at least one GE employee among the musicians.

Many of our co-workers spend their off-work hours as part-time professional musicians. They can be found in the American Legion and Shrine bands marching in parades, at dances on the band platform, and in combos. Some don't limit their activity to just one group, but play in two or three bands. There are times also when they answer the call to substitute at the last minute in a group of which they are not regular members. These employees also compose part of accompanying orchestras for such visiting celebrities as Liberace.

Shown here are some of the employees who have developed their interest in music into a satisfying hobby and part-time activity.

SOMEBODY GOOFED as Frank Elder, Bldg. 19-3, and his son, Larry, 11 years old, practice at home. Frank plays with several bands in town and Larry hopes to follow in dad's footsteps.

HERE COMES THE PARADE and its four GE members of the Shrine Band in full dress uniform. Providing marching music are Omer Meyer, Section 113, Taylor St.; Cary Baker, Bldg. 19-4; Eugene Barrett, Section 113, Taylor St., and Arthur Bireley, Taylor St.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

Al Nebur went fishing with his neighbor and son to try out the neighbor's new fly rod. As it turned out Al decided the fly rod had more spring in it than did his legs. As he scampered down the river bank Al turned and bruised his ankle which made it tough for poor Al to move about. To make it still worse, Al's friend and son moved down the river about a quarter of a mile with all the bait and Al had to fish with an empty hook. Better luck next time, Al! . . . Did you notice the big grin on the face of Louis Paluszak last Friday morning? He had a double reason for that grin. First it was Louie's birthday, and second he had just received the news that he had a new grandson. Louie has only one regret, his grandson just missed being born on his own birthday by two hours. . . . After his experience the other day John Snyder is thinking of joining the fire department. Some wiring on his car caught fire, but John had everything under control and the fire out in no time. . . . Jay Gaff is so proud of his new grandson that he bought a new Ford to go and visit him. . . . Clyde Spangler made a bad bargain the other day. He butchered a cow that was eating the grass on his place and sold some of the beef to Allison Van Wormer, who, in turn, sold Clyde a used power mower to cut the grass. . . . Charles Risk made arrangements with Kenny Smith to bring him in to work one morning. Came 6:45 and no Kenny, so Charlie called the Smith home and was assured that Kenny had just left. Charlie waited until after seven and had his wife bring him to work. It was 9 a.m. when Kenny remembered his previous engagement and he couldn't even think of a good excuse to give Charlie. . . . Bob Mosshammer had his troubles by the trailer full. He is building a house at the lake and on his way to pick up a load of wood the tongue on the trailer broke and caused him to lose a half day's work to repair it. Then while hauling some other items he blew out a tire, which, being of unusual size, caused a three-hour search for another one. Some days it just doesn't pay to get up. . . . Clyde Spangler pays 5 cents per peanut now. He bought peanuts and milk for a snack one morning and for some reason left them unguarded for a short time. Now he doesn't know whether it was man or mouse that ate all but one of the peanuts. . . . The studious look on Gale Bowser's face is caused by a three-day stay at the Indiana University dormitories. . . . We are happy to welcome Glen Bowers to the special machines section from Bldg. 26-2. . . . Also welcome to the same section to an apprentice, Richard Bridge. . . . The man you see at the saw in Bldg. 19-5 is Luther Ogg. . . . Congratulations to Glenn Staight on his recent birthday. Following the usual procedure in the check room, he brought in a wonderful cake for his co-workers. You'll notice we didn't mention any age; the only people who know are full of cake. . . . Hayden Rice drove to Milwaukee last week-end and would have traded his Studebaker for a Model T if he could have found one. Every time he stopped he would run his battery down trying to start the car, and then finally would have to get a push. He practically tore the car apart at every one of these forced stops, but didn't get around to checking the points until only a few miles from home. With an adjustment to the points he remedied his trouble and breezed the rest of the way home. . . . Paul Richter was a father-in-law again June 19. His son, Paul, Jr., took the vows on that date. . . . Congratulations to another first time grandpa, Eldon Mee. His granddaughter's name is Cynthia. . . . Paul Richter may be able to pull rabbits from a hat and do all sorts of card tricks, but Clarence Meeks and Ed Kammeier will vouch to the fact that he can't get eggs from a mold. . . . We are sorry to hear that Earl Lenz's father is in the hospital and we hope he is getting along all right. Earl had his vacation to Bellevue, Ohio, and Detroit shortened by his father's illness. . . . We're sorry to hear that Mel Crews was involved in an auto accident. . . . Last Saturday night the storm tore the doors off Bob Truelove's barn. Bob says his barn is still there. . . . Willie Garman has a cottage on Otter Lake but spends all his time fishing the 100 other neighboring lakes. We didn't hear about any tremendous catches but he did get a nice sun tan. . . . Hayden Rice said his boat only leaked a few drops but Art Thieme and Walter Greiner think it would make a better submarine. Art would take two casts and then bail out three buckets full of water. . . . We wish a happy twenty-second wedding anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Einsiedel. . . . Also we extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brenner on their thirty-first wedding anniversary. We understand Clarence and his wife celebrated the event by drinking two 7-Ups apiece. . . . Henry Frey tells us he is going to check the next time he goes to a wedding to see if it is to be a dry party or schnapps permitted. . . . Woody Hursh thinks he should have at least half a picture in the GE NEWS after he gave one gallon of blood. . . . Bill Akers and Bernie Byanski were scheduled to leave at 4 a.m. for Hog Lake but when Bill got to Bernie's house and pounded on the door for a half hour with no response, he decided to go on alone to catch his own plus Bernie's usual bucketful. If Bernie tells a whopping big fish story this week, don't believe it because he only dreamed it up. . . . Glenn Staight says, "Play safe! Handle guns as if they are loaded and cat-sup as if it will pour."

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Welcome to Ronald Davis and Floyd Jackson. . . . Our deepest sympathy is extended to Waymond Morton upon the death of his mother. . . . What's this we hear about the game warden chasing Ferroll (Cupid) Hill and his wife all over the lake? It is a good thing you threw that minnow back, Violet! . . . Alma Newhard, the Tillie the Toiler of the welding shop, is back with us again after a bout with the flu bug. Sue Wagner took her place while she was away. In another week we will have our own little steno, Mildred Messer, back again after her lengthy illness. They're all such nice girls, boss. Why can't we keep them all? . . . Ernie Pfeffer and Officer Tieman are trading cigars now. We know who's going to get the worst end of that deal, don't we folks? Tieman, by the way, has found out how to beat these high coffee prices. He found a place where they sell coffee in those little bags with a string on them, like tea. He just pours each member of his family a cup of hot water, dips the bag in each cup for a minute, and then hangs it up on a nail by the kitchen sink until the next meal. . . . Did I ever tell you how Bouncey Becker got his name? Well, when he was a little boy a friend of his took him and a gang of his playmates to a ball game. There wasn't room in the car for all of the kids so Becker rode 75 miles per hour on the back bumper, holding for dear life to the spare tire. . . . Last week when my car was in the garage, a little neighbor boy who was playing down at my house missed my car and asked in his childlike way, "Where's you 'cah', George?" "Why, it's in the garage getting fixed," I replied. "What's uh mater wif it," he asked. "The rear end is broken," I told him. That evening I met the little fellow's mama and she asked me what in the world was wrong with my car. "Why, I knocked the rear end out of it," I told her. "Well, I wondered," she said laughingly, "my little boy came home and said George's car has a busted fanny."

COUNT OFF SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST. by Ruby Stoops

Betty Graft had a birthday Saturday, June 19. We hope that she feels as young as her new nephew, who was born that day. Do you, Betty? . . . Birthday greetings go to Ollie Ragan, Vadas Putt, Eddie Bandt, and Herb Reichter. Happy birthday! . . . Doyle Sheets became the proud father of a baby girl. . . . Leonard Deal's son is home on a 21-day furlough from Texas. . . . Anyone wishing a puppy, get in contact with Laura Gerber, as she has five new puppies at her home. . . . We have decided that Hulda Stefton sleeps in her bathing suit so that she will be ready for a midnight swim. . . . Bernie Warner heard a strange noise one night. She investigated to find the cat after her parakeet and her dog after the cat. Bernie got into the act by chasing them both with a towel she had handy. . . . Louise Sinn delivers eggs any hour and in all kinds of weather. She appeared at Bertha Burnau's house Saturday night looking like a drowned rat. . . . Something new has been added to the finishing group, a bass stringer. Anyone wanting information should contact Jessie Roby. . . . Does anyone have any old, split, cracked, splintered, broken, or otherwise second-hand fish poles they would like to sell? Elmer Shearer is in the market. . . . We are sorry to hear that Clark Holmes is on the sick list. We hope that he gets well soon as we surely do miss him. . . . He probably feels it is safe to stay home now as his wife has her house cleaning done. . . . Ruby Stoops is feeling much better and should be able to come home from the hospital this week. How am I doing, Ruby?

'Plan Before You Pack' Is Elex Advice to California Travelers

Want to insure a happy vacation for yourself even before you leave home? This can be done partly by planning in advance to travel light. No matter what your vacation destination or how you are traveling, chances are you will enjoy your two weeks with pay more if you travel light.

A little advance thought about what you will need for your trip and planning in packing can eliminate the picture of you as a human baggage rack during your vacation.

With this idea in mind the Elex Club has issued a suggested list of clothing and other items to take on their 12-day trip to California. The list is a basic one that can be adapted to the individual lady traveler. Each traveler should plan her wardrobe around a basic color such as black, blue, gray, or brown. This makes traveling light much easier by eliminating the need for many accessories.

Items suggested to wear and to pack into one medium-size suitcase include two or three sport dresses of wrinkle resistant materials and one or two afternoon dresses of nylon, silk, or rayon for those special occasions.

A topcoat and lightweight suit are recommended also. These will be appreciated on the cool nights and even on the air conditioned trains Elex members and their friends will be riding. An extra skirt, nylon blouses, and a sweater or wool stole might come in handy.

Since California does have its days of liquid sunshine, it's a good idea to take either a plastic raincoat or folding umbrella.

A pair of shoes that are comfortable for walking and another pair for dress are listed. It is suggested that Elex travelers take two hats, one for traveling and a small packable one for dress, and a head scarf. A pair of gloves in a basic color for traveling is recommended along with two pairs of white gloves to be worn after reaching the destination.

A lightweight robe and two pair of pajamas or nightgowns of nylon are suggested along with a pair of slippers or scuffs. The slippers should be packed near the top of the suitcase so they may be gotten out easily to wear on the train trip.

In addition to the handbag she will carry, the California bound vacationer may take one other small envelope type bag for dress. Three pair of hose, all in the same shade, and two sets of lingerie complete the wardrobe.

For the cosmetic case which goes into the suitcase, the list suggests the following not-to-be-forgotten items: tooth brush, tooth paste, tweezers, deodorant, wash cloth, needle and thread, pins, razor and blades, powder, cream, eye pencil, nail polish and remover, bobby pins or curlers, rouge, aspirin, and small clothes brush.

Handbag articles to be remembered are compact, lipstick, small package of tissues, nail file, comb, ball point pen, notebook, sun glasses, and billfold.

An important item to take is a camera and enough film for use on the train. Since the Elex group will spend a few days on the train, playing cards are suggested to help occupy any free time.

NOT-TO-BE-FORGOTTEN items that she may want to use while traveling to her Elex vacation destination are packed by Doris Salge, Bldg. 26-4. Such items include sun glasses, slippers, playing cards, camera and film, and a folding umbrella for those possible dewey days in California.

READY AND WAITING for her trip to California with Elex, Gladys Fox, Bldg. 31-1, shows a wise selection of what to wear on the train. She wears a summer suit with dark accessories that will not show soil while traveling.

CALIFORNIA CLOTHES—Gladys Fox shows Doris Salge one of the costumes she plans to wear while in California. Travel wise, packable items are the small hat and flat envelope handbag worn by Gladys.

STORMY WEATHER BLDG. 17-4

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

Another happy and retired ex-worker, Ernie Freuchtenicht, paid us a visit. . . . Now it can be told—Jerry Holgreve has always wondered as to the actual truth concerning Cy Seymour's strawberries, so he went to Cy's house and picked some himself. Your reporter was a witness to the size of them. While we do not like to hold anything up to ridicule, we must admit they made quite an impression on us, that is, if you like red colored peas and use two gallons for one short-cake. . . . While painting at home one day, Max Decker decided that it being hot, he would partake of the foaming liquid while doing the job. With the glass beside him he would take a sip and then paint a while. After painting for a time he thought the refreshment had a strange taste and on further investigation found that at intervals he was dipping his brush in the glass. Who knows but what this might revolutionize the whole industry. . . . More wives should be like Alice Pflueger for when they were passing out buttermilk she saw to it that Ray received his share by bringing it to him personally. . . . It's with regret that we say so long to our carboloy grinder, Fred Divelbiss, who leaves us to assume his new duties in Bldg. 19-5. . . . Clara Kleint opened her lunch the other day and drew out the dessert jar but quickly put it back. The act wasn't quite quick enough to hide the fact that her husband had substituted a jar of horseradish instead of fruit. Now the question is: Was it done on purpose or not? . . . The cheering section of Mettler, Klomp, and Hattendorf has been in fine voice lately, urging on their favorite boy. He doesn't seem very happy with their concentrated efforts and even threatens to lock the door during lunch hour. . . .

According to Barbara Kroemer, it doesn't make any difference what check you use in the check pool as long as it's yours and you win! . . . Quotation for the week: "He who commences many things finishes few."

17-3 NEWSIES by Wilhelmina Beeth

Rain: That wet stuff that comes down at quitting time when your umbrella is at home or out in the car on the parking lot. . . . Virginia Pelz was pleasantly surprised when she got home from work. Her son, Bob, had arrived home from France on a 30-day furlough. Bob is a former GE'er. . . . You can't tell when Lucille Ross and Mary Foster blush. Both are a pretty cranberry pink from the sun. . . . Button poppin' Peggy Wood was up to see us and tell us all about her new granddaughter. . . . Double congratulations to Bertha Furge. She is the proud grandma of twins, a boy and a girl. . . . Velma Seibt had a party. She served a cherry cobbler. It was good eating until they found out that the cherries hadn't been pitted. . . . The other morning Maggie Lowe dropped her purse. As she was gathering up the contents she said, "My! My! I've got everything in that purse but a sewing machine." . . . Congratulations to Roy and Violet Brower on their 34th wedding anniversary. . . . It's a happy birthday to Esther Knapp. . . . I wonder if Mildred Briggs serves towels with her showers. Virgie Mayer doesn't think so. . . . Kaye Dolan thought, "Dig those people going east on Jefferson street when I'm going west." She must have thought she was on Washington. . . . Mildred Briggs has a new son-in-law. We wish the newlyweds lots of happiness. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Luella Masson, Ethel Shifflet, and Elma Kaiser, who are on the sick list.

First Semesters of Three Advanced Engineering Programs Merged With Advanced Technical Course

Combining of the first and second semesters of the Advanced Technical Course and the first semester of the Advanced Engineering, Creative Engineering, and Process Technology Programs was announced this week by L. W. Warzecha, course supervisor. The 34-week, full-year course, which will retain its Advanced Technical Course title, serves as a prerequisite for the second year of the three advanced programs.

Decision to merge the training into a full year was made on the basis of last year's achievement in combining the first four months of these programs into the first semester of the Advanced Technical Course.

After completion of the first semester of the Advanced Technical Course last year, trainees had the option of taking the Advanced Engineering Program, Creative Engineering Program, Process Technology Program or continuing with the second semester of the Advanced Technical Course.

This year the Advanced Technical Course will again be given for the entire year but the Advanced Technical Programs will not begin until the end of that year. Successful completion of the Advanced Technical Course is necessary before further study on these programs.

The ATC is designed primarily for new men in the company in the Engineering, CheMet and Physics Programs who are interested in design and development engineering work. The purpose of the course is to develop in these young engineers and scientists a sound understanding of engineering fundamentals and a logical approach to engineering problems. This training prepares a man to take his place in design and development engineering. A few permanently assigned engineers may be accepted with the approval of their departments.

Both analytical and creative techniques will be stressed in solving engineering problems in all the major technical areas. Typical fields to be covered are dynamics, elasticity, vibrations, electromagnetic fields, heat transfer, fluid flow, materials application, statistics and systems.

The course will begin during the week of September 13 at eight major locations. These locations and their class supervisors are Lynn, W. J. Roths; Pittsfield, G. H. Epstein; Schenectady, H. F. Larkin and M. D. Levin; Philadelphia, L. J. Lane; Syracuse, T. H. Glasser; Erie, J. F. Dullmeyer; Evendale, B. F. Wagner; Fort Wayne, R. E. Chestnut. Men on rotating assignments will be able to transfer between these plants without losing course continuity.

Informative discussions about the educational opportunities at General Electric will soon be scheduled at major plant locations. At this time, the Advanced Technical Course and other engineering courses, such as the Applications Course and the Engineering Design Course, will be discussed so that each technical program member may determine the course which will give him the most effective training.

Following these discussions, men interested in ATC may apply for the course. Selections will be based on personal interviews and performance on a homework qualification problem.

Q. Who were the Amazons?

A. According to legend, as related by Herodotus and other ancient Greek writers, they were a nation of female warriors who lived in Asia Minor, on the shore of what we now call the Black Sea. There is a difference of opinion as to whether the legends had any basis of fact. Their name was applied to the Amazon River after a 16th-Century Spanish explorer named Orellana reported on a battle he had fought in that region with the natives and in which, according to his story, a large number of their women took part.

Q. What is nitroglycerin?

A. Its chemical name is glyceryl trinitrate and it was first prepared about 1846 by an Italian chemist named Oscanio Sobrero. Nitroglycerin is a colorless oil which burns quietly if ignited in small quantities, but if heated rapidly it explodes violently. It can also be exploded by mechanical shock, making it difficult to handle, so it is generally used in the form of dynamite. This is nitroglycerin mixed with some inert material such as sawdust, and it can be handled safely, with proper precautions. Dynamite was invented by the Swedish scientist, Alfred Nobel (founder of the Nobel prizes) in 1867.

Q. Will scientists ever be able to reach absolute zero in temperature?

A. Probably not. Absolute zero is the temperature (273.16 degrees below zero Centigrade, or 459.69 below zero on the Fahrenheit scale) at which all molecular motion would cease. It was a considerable technical achievement when 10 degrees above absolute zero was reached, and it was several times as difficult to get to 1 degree absolute. Now temperatures down to about 0.001 absolute have been attained, but each decrease of absolute temperature by a factor of 10 has increased the technical difficulty of reaching that temperature by roughly the same amount. Thus it seems unlikely that we shall ever reach absolute zero, although we may get down to temperatures as low as 0.000001 degree or even lower. Scientists see no reason to suppose that at absolute zero the properties of matter to be substantially different from what they are at 1 degree.

Q. How many kinds of animals are there?

A. According to one authority, something over 900,000 species of animals are known at present, of which about 675,000 are insects. Of animals with some sort of a stiff spine, the "chordates," there are about 45,000 species. Some 25,000 of these are fishes, 2500 are amphibians (frogs, etc.) 4500 are reptiles, and 8600 are birds. The remaining 4400 are mammals, including man and most of the familiar animals.

POCKETS $110—Louise Sinn (right) explains her $110 idea to Charles Prine and Art Sporhase. She suggested injecting the main and the starts separately to eliminate the pounding and the scratching of wire when shooting them together. Miss Sinn is employed in Section 417 at Taylor St.

GE Honored

GE employees received their first share of stock this week under the Bonus Plan.

Under the plan, employees receive the bonds at the end of a five-year period together with a check for the accumulated income and any full shares of stock which have been credited to their accounts. Fractional shares remain to the employee's credit until the addition of fractional shares earned in subsequent years entitles him to a full share or the employee requests cash payment for the value of the fractional shares.

General Electric has had various savings plans for its employees since 1917. Under the present plan whereby employees buy U. S. Savings Bonds through the payroll deduction plan and leave them on deposit for five years, they are assured a higher return and have the advantage of savings which are readily available in case of emergency, according to John D. Lockton, GE Treasurer, whose Treasury Service Division administers the plan.

The plan can be geared to suit nearly every employee's budget with deductions ranging from a minimum of 75 cents to a maximum of $10 a week. Participants may increase or decrease or stop their deductions whenever they choose.

Russell W. Scherrer, an employee in GE's Specialty Component Motor Department, Fort

The following employees from the Hermetic Motor and DC Motor and Generator Departments donated blood during the week ending June 18:

Charles R. Atkinson, Waveland H. Bernardin, James H. Capps, William David, Jr., John H. Jackson, Sally A. Lepper, Maurice Allen, Ab Martin, Kenneth W. Michael, Charles Brown, Robert C. Rescorla, Donald E. Dannecker, Richard R. Didrick, Kaye D. Schinbeckler, Robert E. Dimick, Frank G. Schlink, H. D. Egger, Kenneth C. Highland, Duane F. Shidler, Willard C. Hughes, Charles F. Shipman, Ivan O. Standish, Robert Stout, Dean W. Thompson, and R. M. Turschman.

Wayne, contributed the 100 millionth dollar toward U. S. Savings Bonds under the Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan.

A member of the Quarter Century Club, Mr. Scherer joined GE in 1923. He purchased bonds all during World War II and joined the Stock Bonus Plan in 1948 when it was initiated. H. A. MacKinnon, GE vice president, congratulated Mr. Scherer.

EARN $135—Carl M. Junk (center) receives a $135 suggestion award from Louis Maier (left) and T. R. Buckles. Mr. Junk earned his award for suggesting an improved method of applying insulation to aluminum wire. He is employed in the wire mill.

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

The weather has finally gotten hot and so have the golfers. Three fellows took a cue from the heat and carded even par 36 scores. Dick Szink of Winter St.; Warren Wickliffe, of the Owls; and "Big Red" Braden, of the Tuesday group, turned the trick. Here is how the cards looked. Szink and Wickliffe played the front nine, while Braden toured the back.

Szink	444-543-543—36
Wickliffe	544-533-534—36
PAR (in)	434-434-545—36
Braden	436-434-534—36

Monday Afternoon

Leo Almindinger's Putters provided the fireworks by bumping the leading Wire Mill team out of the first spot. Willie Adams and Tony Wichman fired 39 and 41 to lead in the eight point win. Benny (it's 3 league now) Penkul tried to help with a 49 but to no avail.

Hank Brandt of the Divoteers paced his team to a 16-point wallowing of Transformer.

Financials slipped by the Highballs by a single point. Expectant father Les Glougie of 14 stroke fame had had the EF jitters and carded seven sixes for Financials.

Ray Hills, erstwhile league leader, "killed snakes" all over the place in carding a 44 after last week's 37 effort.

Winter St.

Things have been happening in the Stu Fisher League. The Niblicks, Drivers and Putters are deadlocked in first place with plus 17 scores.

The Niblicks were on top all alone last week but took it on the chin from the Mashies by two points.

Bill Irwin's Drivers could do no better than pick up one point from the Brassies.

The Putters, the third club in the first place deadlock, with Dick Szink's stellar par performance latched on to a four pointer over the cellar dwelling Spoons.

Tuesday Evening

The league leading Divot Diggers opened a 20-point spread between first and second place by beating the lackadaisical Forty Niners to the tune of nine points. Only Lew Gossman of the Forty Niners kept the leaders from administering a super clobber job. "Butterhall" Poyser, hot as the weather, carded a one over par 37 for the winner.

Braden led the Nineteenth Holers to a three point win from the Gas House Tigers. The Club house lads are in second spot.

The Optimists are in the third slot with the help of a two pointer over the Duhs and the loss of the Gas House Tigers.

Owl

The high flying Eagles, Bob Markey and company, have opened a lot of daylight between the top perch they sit on and the second place. They are riding with a plus 35 to a plus 2 for the second spot. Hot Shots, Paul Billman and Carl Kuzeff carded 39 and 41 to give the leaders an 11 point edge over the Aces, Pappy Garland and company.

The Hot Shots needed Vicks' 36 to down the Birdies by two.

Modock Runyon's Bogeys derailed the Pars' bid for second place with a one point win.

Carl Pitches Squares to Top Of Interdepartment League

Gil Carl pitched the Squares team into undisputed possession of first place in the Interdepartment Softball League last week with a no-hit, no-run game against the MTP lads. The final tally was 15 to 0. For the winners, Miller had a double and two singles and Martin connected with two doubles.

The Works Lab team dropped into second place when they were beaten by the Apprentice team by a 4 to 1 score. The game turned into a pitchers' duel between Lytal and Weber.

Tying for third place, the GE Vets gained an easy victory over Winter St. The Vets hit and scored freely and also got a triple play to ring up a 23 to 1 final mark. Catcher Elliott, third baseman Sturm, and first baseman Timmerlee produced the triple play.

A final score of 19 to 8 brought a break into the win column for the TE's who won over the AST team. Art Pehrson had a homer with one man on for the winners.

Merchants Break GE Jr. Fed Nine's Winning Streak

The GE Club Junior Federation League team broke its winning streak in a game Sunday, June 20, when the Fort Wayne Merchants beat the GE lads by a 10 to 8 score.

GE's loss puts Butler in first place as the only team with no losses in the league thus far. However, the GE boys hope to change that when they meet Butler July 4.

In a Friday night games, the GE team won a victory over the Red birds by a 11 to 1 tally. Menefee and Blanton were the winning pitchers and Owens, Pepper, and Sheehan pitched for the losers.

Last evening GE met the Waynedale Merchants at McMillen and they are slated to meet City Light and the Redbirds in competition next week.

DECATURITES

by George Laurent

Aboard the Yankee-White Sox GE Special to and from Chicago, Saturday and Sunday, June 19 and 20: Jay Moser was the skipper. He had plenty of volunteer help from C. P. O. Herman Keller. Herman was so busy directing the show that he didn't even see the double-header on Sunday. The "bunny-hop" by Jay and his specialty troop was the feature attraction on the trip to Chicago. They weren't in the same mood on the return trip. Between games on Saturday p.m. and Sunday a.m. the gang spent their time visiting such famous Chicago spots as Cicero, Maxwell Street, and others. Of course, some of the boys just couldn't help taking advantage of the long double-header and the "soft-cushioned" seats at Comiskey Park to get in their week-end nap. The sentiment, pro-Yankee and pro-White Sox, was about even. Jay says he didn't care who won just so it wasn't the Yankees. Denny Dowell, a comparative newcomer to our midst, got his first real initiation with Decatur's fun-loving baseball-minded fans. Says Denny, "I'd know all of the gang anywhere and from any angle."

For fear of missing some of the highlights of the trip, you can contact any of the following GE fans for further stories: Tony Murphy, Lloyd Kreischer, Buford Dull, Gerald Light, Bill Porter, Waymon Patrick, Chet McIntosh, Mickey McDougal, Oran Schultz, Herman Keller, Denny Dowell, J. K. Eady, or Jay Moser. . . . Belated greetings go to Charlotte Gephart and Lenore Little, both of whom celebrated their birthdays on June 18. The treats were enjoyed by the gang in spite of the hot weather. . . . We also wish to extend our wishes for many more happy hirthdays to two of the fellows celebrating soon. "Tibi" Gehrig will celebrate his birthday on June 27 and "Sobby" Lord will celebrate his on June 30. . . . Some people seem to think that they have to mark an X where they are located in a group picture. But we are able to recognize them without such flamboyant marking. Sure, "Speck," your picture in the group is proof to us that you were really there. . . . "Bingo" Betty she was known as, Betty Moran won $100 playing Bingo the other night. How is that for living? Mamie Bashara was close. . . . Chet Klein-knight and Lou Boudreau are having the same troubles. Their teams are a little off pacc but there is a lot of time. . . . In going to a ball game at Chicago, many methods of transportation should be used. wheelchair, police squad car, etc. . . . All of us should be as thoughtful as Herman Keller. He bought a present for a newly acquired friend, a 72-year-old man who is very visibly a White Sox fan. . . . Things to see at a ball game: Mickey McDougal selling popcorn on a train; Buford Dull sitting on a bench waiting for a cab; and Bill Porter taking a siesta at the game.

SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlaffen

Congratulations to Ralph Fishback who became a grandfather on Wednesday, June 16. The little boy's name is Gary Michael. . . . Our deepest sympathy is extended to Ed Hines whose brother recently passed away after an operation. . . . Congratulations go to Virgil Snyder, who is celebrating 25 years with the company. . . . We wish a happy birthday to Ray Brown on June 18 and to Earl Greenlee on June 20. . . . We welcome Jim Linzell and Ernie Roman. Jim is from Columbus, Ohio, and graduated from Ohio State College. He will work for Mike Brayer in Planning and will replace Frank Conley who will soon be leaving us. Ernie is from Lynn, where he graduated from the Lynn Works Apprentice School. He will work for Louis Shattuck in Cost. . . . Congratulations go to Helen Platt and her husband whose anniversary is June 21. . . . Russell Frey will start his vacation on the 21st. Have fun, Russ. . . . Hugh Neely has invented a new turtle gun. It consists of a sawed-off shotgun, parts of a cross-bow, a pinch of gun powder, and a spinning reel. All you have to do to use this gun is to sneak up on a sleeping turtle, put some salt on its tail, and hit it with a ball bat. . . . The girls had two very distinguished guests at their picnic. They were the Messrs. Robert Duras and Ewald Stinsmuehlen. Next time they'll have to sing for their supper. . . . Harry Diem has at last found a use for his super duper baits. He says they make a swell tie clasp. Well, that's one way of getting your money's worth out of them. . . . Don Sardeler is taking orders for book racks. . . . The line forms to the right for Ross Harter's autograph. . . . FISH STORY—Bill Lavine lost his limit of 10-inch bluegills through a hole in his fish sack. HA! . . . The gang in the office presented Frank Conley with a toaster as a wedding gift.

If any unfortunate husbands are in the doghouse, you can make money on the deal. Ruby Brandt is looking for a doghouse. Anyone having one to sell or give away see Ruby. . . . After that card game at Lea's, Ernie Kern sported a new pair of shoes the next day. Of course, Lea got a new shirt on the deal, too. . . . Al Miller is around bragging again. He's a grandpa. . . . Bob Ramsey learned it doesn't pay to be a Good Samaritan sometimes. Bob attempted to stop a fight and ended up holding the bag or should we say bruises? . . . Bill Mills couldn't understand why they laughed when he talked of getting a wage increase, roper-active. . . . Someone should tell John Herney that a driver's license isn't valid forever. Every once in a while it has to be renewed. . . . One of these days we're going to hear a fish story to end all fish stories. If you go fishing at the same lake as Lillian Mallo, watch out for a fish sporting an upper set of false teeth. Lillian lost hers as a result of a sneeze while on the lake! . . . We wonder why Ceal Taylor has to take a day off. Was it neighbor trouble? . . . Mertz has been chuckling about going to the dispensary every day. Monday he came back limping. The doc operated on his knee this time.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY to Charles C. (Tommy) Thomas! He becomes a Quarter-Century member today, June 25. . . . We would like to introduce William R. Isaacs, new TE in Max Barrow's group. Bill comes to us from his previous assignment at the Dev. Lab., Louisville. He is a graduate of the University of Louisville and has a degree in electrical engineering. There is a Mrs. who hopes to join him in Fort Wayne soon. His home town is Louisville, Ky. . . . Also, we'd like you to meet Kenneth Moxness, single, and a graduate of the N. D. State College. He will graduate in December of 1954 with a BSEE. His home town is Ambrose, N. D. He spent his previous test in STAB. . . . WELCOME BACK to Bruce Curley after an absence of one week due to illness. . . . OH HAPPY DAY! The John Taylors have now received word that they may bring their infant identical twin sons, Ronnie and Donnie, home from the hospital. They were held at the hospital until they reached a certain weight level. Since they are showing rapid improvement they were allowed to join their proud father and mother. . . . We welcome Gale H. Buzzard, who is working for Mr. Dochterman. . . . We welcome back again Jerome Williams from the University of Illinois. He is working for Mr. Suhr. . . . Anyone who wants to help arrange furniture in a new house should go to 3933 Central Drive. Here you will find Bonnie Lepper and her husband. Bonnie says she is glad she does not have any housecleaning to do this year. . . . Another club was formed last week. It is called the New Car Club of Bldg. 4-6. As usual, Charley (Hard Top) Wurm, is one of the members. The other is Jim Bain. How does it feel now, boys, being broke, that is, no more money? . . . The third annual Small Motor Drafting Stag party is now over with no mishaps except a little one to H. P. (Flat Tire) Love. His nickname is the mishap. Everyone at the party seemed to have a good time, even Chuck (Sunburn) Kelso. We heard that Chuck (Sunburn) Kelso got his nickname because he tried to hog all the sunshine and got burned from it. Also talking about hogs, Carl Leitch and his partner, Clark Stevens, stole the show at the softball game. We also can't forget about the good softball game that these so-called ball players played, whose names are (Fireball) Berkheiser, (Wrong Road) Baker, (Water Wings) Perry, and also (Wobble Legs) Poyser. . . . The new name in the file room, Lois Richter, is not a new girl. She just changed her name last Saturday from Lois Schmidt to Mrs. Paul Richter. Your wedding was very lovely and we hope you have a very long, happy, married life together. . . . We wish happy birthdays to Arlein Yates next Tuesday, June 29; Milt DeJean, June 25, and Dick Seely, June 28. . . . A happy Father's Day it was indeed for Bob Mee. Mrs. Mee presented Bob with a 6 lb., red-haired daughter the evening of Father's Day. Mother and baby Cynthia are doing fine at the Lutheran Hospital. They hope to spend their vacation in California to introduce Cynthia to her maternal grandparents.

Rover: "What'll I say?"

OVER OUR WAY

by Clara Volz

There's a little fellow in Bldg. 22, (quite a cartoonist), that certainly is getting absent-minded here of late. It seems that he drove to a supermarket. When he arrived he noticed a lovely young miss in shorts going next door into the drug store. After "what his name" realized he was in the wrong store, he dashed over to the supermarket. The funny part was that his wife was sitting in the car watching him. When he came out again, she asked why he went into the drugstore. He replied, "Oh, I just got carried away, I guess." . . . You can't tell me these farmers don't make something besides hay. Jim Blake moved out to his new farm outside of Columbia City. How about a nice big chicken dinner for the gang sometime, Jim, old boy? . . . Dick Miller and John Norris went fishing when the bass season opened. They ate meat for supper. . . . Have you ever noticed the reaction of some people when the 7 o'clock whistle blows around here? Some of the industrious ones start right in pitching. Still others like to linger over that last joke told by one of the boys. George Winans manages to get in a few stretches before he saunters into "salt mine 22." Come on boys, let's GO-GO-GO! . . . Frank Matthews is very adept at giving his two boys some pointers on the fine art of baseball. He doesn't want any southpaw on his home team.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

Elmer Schoenlein is now being seen driving a new Cadillac around. Russell Neireiter also has a new car, a Ford. It isn't a Victoria, but it is a painted job like a "Vic." . . . Leroy Cook has a new sideline. We didn't know of it until he appeared on television. His professional name is "Rocko." . . . Joe Burton has returned to work but the question is: What happened to his thumb? Did a bluegill jump up and bite him? . . . Happy birthday to Glenn Goshorn, Bob Aldridge, and Fred Bucholz. . . . Anyone wanting weighed see Russ Neireiter or Leroy Cook. It seems that they will try to guess your weight and if they don't they will buy you a free coke. So far, Ted Schlup and Melvin Greene have beaten the boys. . . . We wish Paul Gruber a lot of luck. He left us to work in Bldg. 19-2. . . . WARNING: Employees of Bldg. 19-3 beware and proceed with caution when approached by "Long Change" Wygant. His behavior was discovered when he approached a certain party for change for 50 cents. An inventory of that party's pocket change revealed a quarter and three dimes. Whereupon "Long Change" Wygant, with an air of righteousness, indicated that was all right. However, don't be too alarmed. The extra nickel was returned without prosecution.

Henry Mason contributed some extra money to the support of the city. We suggest he slow down a bit or leave for work earlier. . . . Herman Curry was vacationing last week. We hope the fish were biting good. . . . We welcome some new additions on our floor: Helen Boyer and Bertha Miller to the finishing section; Viola Germann to the stacking section; Eugene Cecie to inspection; and Kenny Fisher to the winding section. . . . Millie Haslup has some extra spending money since she won the heavyweight fight pool. Lucky girl! . . . Harry and Gladys Freeman have a new 1954 Pontiac. Some more lucky people! . . . Lawrence Schuster, who now lives in Florida, sends word he would like more gossip about our floor. Apparently our personnel's behavior is above reproach or we don't find out about what they do. Keep looking, Lawrence. If we find anything good we will print it. . . . Frank Shultz and Dave Gilbert had their troubles fishing. They located a good spot on the lake but since the gas tank went dry their excess energy was nearly used up rowing. Are there any blisters, boys?

- BABY CARE—Mrs. E.'s nursery. H-0773.

THANK YOU

The family of Anthony Gross wishes to extend their appreciation to the union and group in Bldg. 26-1 for all the kind expressions of sympathy and flowers, in the death of Anthony Gross, father of Frank Gross.—The Gross family.

THANK YOU

To our host of friends in General Electric Mrs. Atkinson and I shall be forever grateful for the many expressions of sympathy extended us in the loss of our son. Ray Atkinson.

Chick Kortum got in the wrong car last week after work. He waited in that car for his regular driver to arrive and was very much embarrassed when a stranger showed up. We suggest that you wear your glasses when you go home. . . . Earl Sexton has a new GE television set. He said the hail at Rome City was as big as baseballs, and it got so cold he had to close the windows and doors. . . . Russell Rose should have his freezer full of fish soon at 160 per week. . . . Carl Kinsey has a sunburn from working out in the garden until 10 o'clock at night. The sun surely shines late at Markle. . . . It was nice seeing Walter Blomberg again. . . . Art Knoll visited us last Wednesday. . . . Mardo Tobias went to Holland, Mich. over the week-end. . . . Marie and Sally will fix your fan for you good. It does the rhumba when they get through. . . . Carl Kinsey went to Chicago to see the ball game. . . . Vern Burkett is back at work after two years of army life. . . . Why does Ed Ort answer and blush to the name of Peaches these days? . . . Fred Ginzle's wife, Irene, really took advantage of the opening of the bass season. Her prize catch was a 4-lb. bass which was 21 inches long. . . . Ardola Metker was really burned up when Carl went home and left her waiting for him at the gate house. Something must have told him because he didn't get too far until he turned around and came back for her. It took her a long time to cool off though. . . . Birthday greetings to Bernie Lake on June 28. . . . We are sorry to hear that Cecil Foor's niece drowned last Sunday. . . . Tommy Linn is new in 1x21 and Russell Hinch is new in 1x20. . . . We of Division 401 extend our sympathy to Ed Hines in the death of his son, and to Henry Grepke in the death of his brother. . . . John Figley is afraid he might catch pneumonia now that he isn't wearing a cap during working hours. . . . We think Merlin Heller owes John Zimmerman an apology. It seems Merlin laid it on pretty thick when John got a television and it wasn't GE. So what did Merlin do? He got an air conditioning unit and it isn't the right brand either. . . . Fred Uhrick spent the week-end in Chicago. He claims he went to a ball game but when he showed up with all those scratches we thought he must have gone to the zoo. Who was it on the bus who said, "Oh, these buildings are taller than in Fort Wayne." It must have been a long game as he didn't get to work until Tuesday morning. . . . Paul Arnold has the grass cutting situation well in hand. He invites the neighbor's goats in to eat their fill. . . . Helen Struver has four of a kind now, another grandson, Richard Allen. . . . Hazel and Al Niswonger are driving a new Plymouth these days. . . . Marcella Winicker has moved into her new home and is quite happy. . . . Evelyn Foulks has a new dog, a cocker named Rusty. She forgot her key and had to crawl in the window the other night and in the process fell and skinned her knee.

Frances Jailor had a lovely trip over the week-end with the Three Rivers Camera Club. They saw Toledo and had a trip up the Maumee River to the lake, seeing industry and the loading of the barges. It is amazing how much a barge will hold and still float. . . . Betty Swift was lovely as a bridesmaid in the Richter-Schmidt wedding Saturday. . . . William Dell, Helen Eggeman's father, is much improved from a recent illness. . . . Doris Kennedy has a cute little brown Swiss calf at home, the beginning of a herd. We understand it is mostly white, turning brown or black as it gets older. . . . Mary Jane Wise has returned from a week's vacation. She will help keep things going while we are on our vacation.

WILL THIS BE In Your Mailbox IN CASE OF DISABILITY?

Every year payment of thousands of dollars in weekly sickness and accident benefits is made to members of the GE Insurance Plan who are absent from work because of illness or accident.

Benefit payments range from $25 to $40 a week depending on earnings. For those whose average straight time annual earnings are between $4000 and $4500 the payment is $37.50 a week.

Eligibility for benefit payments begins on the eighth day a member is home ill or earlier if he or she is hospitalized. Payment may extend for as long as 26 weeks.

This weekly sickness and accident benefit is only one of the many provisions of the GE Insurance Plan. Life insurance, accidental death and dismemberment insurance, hospital and surgical insurance, physician's attendance and maternity benefits are also included in the Plan.

Be sure you are one of the more than 225,000 employees enrolled in the GE Insurance Plan.

GE CLUB ANNOUNCES ELECTION SLATE

Q-C Club Celebrates 40 Years

The 40th anniversary of the Quarter Century Club will be celebrated at the annual outing set for September 11.

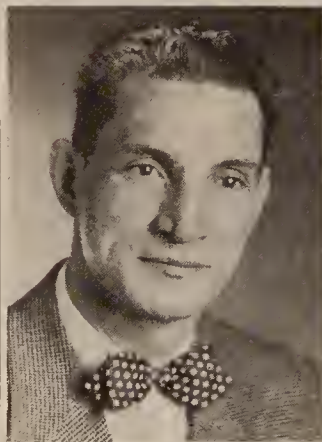

A record attendance is predicted for the 40th anniversary picnic, according to reports from committee chairmen.

The outing committee, after a meeting June 25, revealed that plans were under way to entertain a record 1700 people at this year's party. This figure includes 350 new members, eligible this year.

The new outing site, which is Franke Park, is also expected to swell the crowd as it will be more convenient to transportation and the News-Sentinel Outdoor Theater offers better facilities for the entertainment program.

The Quarter Century Club was organized October 2, 1914, and was the third organization established by GE employees.

Candidates for President

William Schible

Joseph Kramer

Blood Donors Give 610 Pints To Red Cross in Six Months

During the first six months of 1954, 610 pints of blood were donated by GE employees at the Fort Wayne-Allen County Red Cross Regional Blood Center.

Alfred O. Schell, director of the Center, congratulated GE employees this week for their donations, which he said were an important contribution to the Center and the community.

Kenneth W. Michael, head of the GE Blood Program, extended his thanks to employees for their co-operation in the program. With such a fine start, we hope to double the 771 pints contributed in 1953 by the end of this year, he stated.

Blood is available free of charge to members of the community in cases of illness and accidents. With summer vacation travel reaching its peak in July and August, the need for plasma will increase as accidents increase.

Employees who have already signed a GE donor card are contacted at intervals by representatives in their individual departments. Appointments for specific times on either Tuesday mornings or Thursday afternoons can be made by employees.

Those who have not signed up and wish to become a donor may do so by contacting the following representatives in their departments:

Specialty Component Motor, Jean Meyers, Ext. 2213.

General Purpose Component Motor, Adelia Forsythe, Ext. 360.

Specialty Transformer, Nancy Brooks, Ext. 547.

Hermetic Motor, Sally Lepper, Ext. 2805.

DC Motor and Generator, Joyce Grieser, Ext. 2836.

Small Integral Motor, Alma Elliott, Ext. 296, Winter St.

All Employees to Get Ballots With Paychecks Next Week

William Schible, Bldg. 20-1, and Joseph Kramer, Bldg. 4-5, are candidates for the office of president of the GE Club, it was announced today by the nominating committee.

Ballots will be distributed with paychecks Wednesday, July 7, and Friday, July 9, to all employees. The completed ballots should be dropped in time card boxes. All votes are due by July 14 and July 16.

Other candidates for office are:

1st. Vice President

Lester Shroyer, Bldg. 31-2

Robert Glenn, Bldg. 26-2

2nd Vice President

Mary Saxton, Taylor St.

Eileen Vandegrift, Taylor St.

Secretary

Charles Winans, Taylor St.

Joseph Gardt, Taylor St.

Director

Jerry Duryee, Bldg. 4-6

Carl Reynolds, Taylor St.

Chairman of the nominating committee was Erven Huth, Bldg. 8-2. Assisting him were Virginia Mollet, Bldg. 31-2; Gordon Smith, Taylor St.; Jerry Duryee, Bldg. 4-6, and Sam Baumgartner, Bldg. 27.

61 Unions Accept Company Pay Offer

Current developments confirm more and more the fact that the company's offer of increased pay and other benefits is a fair and generous offer under all the circumstances.

The fairness of the offer has also been recognized by the 61 union groups operating under separate contracts, including CIO, AFL and independent unions, which had accepted the offer at midweek. These acceptances added still more GE employees to the majority already enjoying their share of the $30 million worth of increased pay and other benefits

ONE OF 610 pints of blood donated by GE employees in the first six months of 1954 is held by Arthur Busch, Bldg. 26-2, as he looks at his first donation to the Red Cross Regional Blood Center.

BIG SEND-OFF—After 49 years of service, 26 years of which he was supervisor of the Apprentice School, Walter Wolf retired Wednesday. Boosting him up on a chair are Joe Rowan, John Leffers, and Sam Lahrman, three of hundreds of apprentice alumni who honored Mr. Wolf at a party this month. Mr. Wolf joined GE in 1905 as an insulator. He was assigned to his present position in 1928.

A FEW LINES FOR READING ON THE FOURTH OF JULY

They say that you're fearful, afraid, Indiana, Utah, Maine, and the Carolinas, Georgia,
Ohio, and the Dakotas—States. People. Americans . . . They say that you're fearful, Vermont, California—

Fearful of what? Of whom? And why? Why is the big Question, Oregon, Washington—(Washington, who were you named for, anyway?) Illinois, Montana, Arizona, Nevada, Oklahoma, Missouri—All the Great 48—all fearful, afraid

They say. They—fearful little men in big city towers, in ivory towers, Whispering, muttering: words, maledictions, woes, predictions, Suspicions
—GLOOM . . . DOOM—

Fearful little men with books and pens,
Oracular, vernacular, picture-tubes, mikes—

Do they know America? Do they feel America? Do they know you, great united states, great plains and mountains?

You're not afraid, are you? Louisiana.
Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma . . .
Or are you?

Remember, today the Fourth of July, that there was a July 4, 1776, when 13 puny Colonies with no Army or Navy, no nothing at all but brave, brave hearts—13 poor little patches of patriots, Americans, who stood up bold to the King of England and the might of his Empire, and boldly, bravely

"RESOLVED: That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown; and that All political Connections between them and the state of Great Britain is, and Ought to be, Totally Dissolved."

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

And you, Forty-eight, are Afraid Today?

"I only regret," said Nathan Hale, "that I have but one life to lose for my country."
... "I have not yet begun to fight," said
John Paul Jones. . . . Remember them?

And the pioneers, the covered wagons, the unknown, the savages, the vast unexplored, the frontiers, the hardships — Remember
Daniel Boone, Kit Carson, Jim Bridger, Davy
Crockett; General George Custer on the Little Big Horn? Remember Sam Houston, the Alamo—What if they had been afraid!

Remember the Marines on Iwo Jima?

What is a heritage, Americans—a faint, fearful heart?

If we're afraid today, the Question is, Why?

We've got the Hydrogen Bomb, we know how to wipe out cities, to vaporize people—

Have we discovered that and lost God? ?

UNITED WE STAND—DIVIDED WE FALL

If someone asked that I compose a poem
Appropriate for Independence Day.
I wonder, if they did, just how I'd start it—
And if I started, what I'd have to say?
Of course, I must admit, no one has asked me,
Which isn't difficult to understand.
While some enjoy to read a little poetry,
The fact remains, it hasn't much demand.

With that, I find I have my poem started;
My only worry is what to say.
Just, what would you, if you enjoyed poetry,
Desire to read on Independence Day?

One hundred, three score, eighteen years of Freedom,
Is why this day we celebrate, no doubt;
So Freedom, with its cherished Independence,
Should be, I'm sure, the thing to write about.

If I can somehow in a rhythmic fashion Compose a poem with thought provoking style,
And stimulate some unity in thinking,
I'll feel my effort will have been worth while.

Politically, our nation is divided;
But this I'm sure is how it ought to be.
Our parties serve as checks upon each other,
A system that has always kept us free.

Republicans and Democrats are scrappers;
And the party out of office always gripes.

Though opposed in politics, they fight together
As Americans beneath the Stars and Stripes.

No aggressor in the past has ever found us
Disunited, and we're very proud of that.
When we get behind our leader, no one questions,
"Is this man Republican or Democrat?"

At Arlington beneath a slab of granite,
There lies a soldier, honored, but unknown,
His politics, his class, his creed, his color,
Will be forever known to God alone.

His grave, to us, must always be a symbol Of the sacrifice that's made to keep us free;
Our freedom and our cherished Independence
Were purchased and maintained by such as he.

I've always felt, when people fight for Freedom
Eventually, somehow they're bound to win
Especially if they remain united
And keep themselves alert and strong within.

And that is what I feel is most important
To think about on Independence Day.
We have our Freedom and our Independence,
But there's a chance they both could slip away.

There's something in our present national picture
That makes me feel a little sick at heart.
We can't be strong and won't remain united,
If our government begins to pull apart.

When the pots begin to call the kettles dirty,
There's trouble brewing in the kitchen sink;
And that same is true when senators and generals
Begin to raise an awful national stink.

These individual stars won't win the pennant,
It takes coordination as a team.
And there's nothing that can cause so much dissension
As a skimmed-milk player thinking he's the cream.

United, we have prospered as a nation,
Free and Independent, we have grown great.
In God we Trust has been our national motto
One hundred years, plus seventy and eight.

Divided, we will soon begin to weaken;
Distrust among ourselves is just the start.
Lack of faith among our leaders is a symptom
Of a government about to fall apart.

This spring review we've seen on television
Has opened up a lot of people's eyes.
It's evident, that under oath some leaders
For truth are telling quite a lot of lies.

So on this day of National Independence,
Let's begin again to function as a team.
Let's awaken from our governmental nightmare,
That to communists is such a pleasant dream.

Let's awaken and with trust and faith and courage,
Chart a course that is acceptable to all.
Then let's block and guard and run the interference
For the one, whom we've entrusted with the ball.

And let's guard against these intercepted passes,
If we fumble, let's recover if we can.
But for heavens sake, must we, for every fumble,
Call a meeting and investigate the man.

Just so long as we have leaders who are human,
There will be mistakes in judgment made, no doubt;

KEEP YOUR DISTANCE FROM

Poison Ivy

This is a bushy or climbing plant with three shiny leaves, greenish flowers or white berries. It flourishes in all states.
Leaves may take one of the four forms illustrated, but are always present in groups of three. One variety of poison ivy is known as poison oak because of the similarity to an oak leaf.

Poison Sumac

This plant grows in the form of a tall bush or small tree. Branches are made up of from 7 to 13 leaves. It bears greenish flowers or white berries and lives in swamps. Sumac with red fruits are non-poisonous.

Preventive: Learn to recognize these plants and stay away from them. Teach your children to spot these plants. People who are highly susceptible can now receive injections that will usually prevent severe reactions in cases of accidental contact. Such injections can be administered only on the advice of your physician.

Immediate Remedy If Exposed: Wash the exposed parts of the body with plenty of water and alkaline laundry soap (yellow bar). Lather the exposed parts well and allow the lather to dry on the skin. Repeat this treatment every three or four hours until you get to your physician.
Keep your hands away from the inflamed areas.

If your skin is inflamed, or itches, or small blisters appear in a line, you have probably been exposed to a poisonous plant. Avoid use of your usual soap. Ordinary toilet soaps help to spread the rash. Get to your physician as soon as possible. He will prescribe a treatment which will spare you hours of unnecessary suffering.

But I can't believe we have elected leaders
Who deliberately conspire to sell us out.
So let's vow on this our day of Independence,
That the government we have must never fail.
But remember that the picture isn't unity.
We see, when looking at a family brawl.

Primer on Communism: No. 11

What Are Fellow Travelers And Communistic Fronts?

A fellow traveler is a person who knowingly supports Communist policy and collaborates with Communists without actually being a member of a Communist party. He is useful in reaching and influencing people who would find it abhorrent to deal directly with Communists. Organizations as well as people can be fellow travelers.

Communist fronts are organizations which generally fall into two groups; both pose as non-Communist and serve progressive causes. One type is founded for that purpose and controlled by Communists. The other is an organization which may have originally been non-Communist but which has been captured by Communists.
In either case the fronts play upon the credibility of many people who would not join hands openly with Communists.

Gregg Named Manager in Specialty Product Planning, Market Research

Vincent P. Gregg has been appointed manager of product planning and marketing research in the Specialty Component Motor Department, Joseph J. Horan, manager of marketing, announced this week.

In 1945 Mr. Gregg entered the Fractional Horsepower Motor Department here on the Test Engineers Program. Later he went to Lynn and Schenectady on the program. He joined the Apparatus Sales Training Program at Schenectady and in 1947 was placed in charge of training and placement for the program.

Vincent P. Gregg

After entering the purchasing section in 1949, Mr. Gregg became a buyer. Later he was assistant purchasing agent, purchasing agent, and manager of purchasing for non-ferrous metals. In August last year, he returned to Fort Wayne and was a product planner in Specialty Component Motor until his present appointment.

A graduate of State College of Washington, Mr. Gregg received his BSEE degree in May, 1945. The Greggs and their three daughters live at 1709 Randalia Dr.

ECHOES from 19-2

by Fred McIntyre

Our congratulations go to John Kokosa. He has a new baby girl at his home. . . . Joe McGinnis and Anthony Lupe have returned to work after several weeks' absence. . . . Gordon Thomley, formerly of Bldg. 19-2, and now with GE in Toledo, Ohio, and Robert Trobollet, former employee, now in the armed forces, were recent visitors to the department. . . . Ray Wiese's brother had an eye operation recently. He is improving rapidly. . . . Charles Seslar's mother has been taken seriously ill. We wish her a speedy recovery. . . . Since Gabby Meehan's wife has undergone surgery and is confined to the hospital, Gabby has been doing his own cooking. You should see all the empty tin cans as evidence of his prowess as a cook. . . . We welcome to 19-2 Paul Gruber, who came from 19-3 to work in the coil section. . . . For safety's sake, Glenn Bice should hang a sign on his back, "Beware of sunburn, do not slap."

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

Jean Hockenberry has a hard time keeping up with her son. Especially when he wants to go horseback riding all day Sunday. A job standing up isn't so bad after all, eh Jeanie? . . . Pat Davis has a new nickname, "Half Pint" Davis. The Red Cross would only take one half pint of blood. Well, Pat, you did your best anyway. . . . Evelyn Mayfield returned to work Monday all refreshed after a week's vacation. . . . Dolores Miles also returned Monday all thrilled about her vacation in Florida. . . . Joan Schuler spent the whole day Monday blushing. Seems as though she was out in the sun over the week end. . . . Among those who are going on vacation next week is Rosie Ort who will spend hers at the lake, Dorothy Long is going to spend hers working around the house.

A Male Girl Scout Leader Guides Troop to 12 Badges

Claiming a title that few men in the United States hold today, Ezra C. Hill, Bldg. 26-2, is a registered Girl Scout leader. Although there are more than 30,000 men in the country who are registered Girl Scouts, Mr. Hill is one of few who are troop leaders.

As leader of an intermediate troop in Fort Wayne, Mr. Hill began his volunteer job about a year and a half ago. At that time, he and Mrs. Hill found that their daughter's troop had lost its leader. Parents of troop members met to find a leader but were unsuccessful. Instead of letting the group drop all activity, Mr. and Mrs. Hill met with the girls and taught them amateur photography, which is one of his favorite hobbies.

When no women were found available to assume leadership of the troop, Miss Helen V. Shaw, executive director of the Girl Scout Council of Fort Wayne and Allen County, asked Mr. Hill to take the job. After being assured that there were a number of men in Girl Scout activities, he accepted. He took the 18 hours of leadership training required for troop supervisors and assumed his duties in February, 1953.

During the time he has been a leader, Mr. Hill has been assisted by his wife and Mrs. Dale Steward, who is chairman of the troop committee. He reports that their aid has been very helpful. Under his leadership the seven girls in the troop have completed work for 12 badges, fulfilling requirements for intermediate scouting. Next fall they will enter a senior troop. In addition to the first class rating earned by each of the girls, two of them earned the Curved Bar, which is the highest rating in intermediate scouting.

The group met twice a month in the Bethany Presbyterian Church and also took hikes and tours. Mr. Hill says it was a good thing the girls had received training in cooking before he took over the leadership, but he has supervised them in the 11 other projects. These are photography, good grooming, my troop, trees, games, junior citizen, my community, world gifts, clerk, design, and speakers.

The past year and a half of working with the troop has meant a lot of work in addition to supervising the meetings for Mr. Hill. Records of activities had to be kept and reports filed with the Council. Mr. Hill says it has been very interesting and he has enjoyed holding this unusual community job.

SIGNS MEMORY BOOK—Ethel O'Leary gets Clarence Gardt to add his name to her memory book as she retires from General Electric. Mrs. O'Leary had been employed at GE since 1943. Her last job was as a finisher in Section 417 at Taylor St.

IDEA PAID—Herbert Rodermund (left) earned $60 in May on a suggestion to use the supplier's laboratory information to cut down on material and labor. Fred White is shown with him. Mr. Rodermund is a production clerk in Bldg. 31-1.

ATTENTION: To whom it may concern. Paul Winters would like to receive a tailor-made dustpan, something substantial, for his birthday in August. . . . We hope he stays with us for a while. . . . Paul Winters and his wife attended a family reunion at Coldwater, Mich. . . . Mae Debolt will think she got a raise. She finally worked a full week. . . . We hope that she has a speedy recovery. . . . Jean Gladieux is a new member of group 17 x 510. Welcome, Jeannie! . . . Laura Gerber had a free boat trip to Europe on the Queen Mary. She received a very interesting letter from a girl friend who described the trip so well that Laura felt like she had taken the trip herself. . . . "Liberace" Glenn Miller, we all enjoy his change of pace. . . . Hilda Stepton says she doesn't need a bathing suit for a midnight swim. It was the coolest thing she had to wear. . . . Paul LeCoeque was pleasantly surprised Saturday when his sister arrived from Florida. He hadn't seen her for eight years. . . . Clarabelle Whiteman received a very nice sunburn swimming at Pokagon Park Sunday. . . . Ruby Stoops is coming along just fine. Maybe one of these days we will see her smiling face again. Hi, Ruby.

ATC Deadline Set for July 9

Technical Education Services has announced that Friday, July 9, will be the deadline for applications in the Fort Wayne area. Men from the Technical Education Services Section will be at the plant Tuesday, July 6 to give information about the Advanced Technical Course and answer any questions. All interested members of the Engineering, Chemet and Physics Programs are urged to contact their training program supervisors and TPR's to find out the exact time and place of these meetings.

Fireworks Taboo Safety Men Warn

Individual use of fireworks is prohibited in Indiana by the State's 1939 law which limits the use of fireworks to public displays conducted under supervision and bond.

With the Fourth of July coming up, safety sections remind employees of the law, which was passed for the safety of Hoosiers to prevent any unfortunate accidents that could occur with fireworks used by an individual.

Keep your July Fourth holiday a happy one by observing this law, safety specialists advise.

Bear in mind that everybody has some faults and that, surprisingly enough, includes you and me.—W. Maxey Jarman.

POINTS OUT IDEA—Charles Timmerman shows Darrell Hirschfelder and Russell Grove and William R. Crouse, how his suggestion to install check valves in certain treating equipment will reduce maintenance costs. Mr. Timmerman, who is employed in Bldg. 26-4, earned $50 on his idea.

Company-Fred Waring Reach Agreement On Four Special TV Shows Next Season

The General Electric Company and Fred Waring have reached a verbal agreement on the presentation of four extraordinary musical television shows during the 1954-55 season. A contract is now being negotiated.

The special half-hour productions are to be seen as a part of "The General Electric Theater" on Sunday at 8 p.m. over 120 stations of the CBS-TV network. To be known as "The General Electric Theater Presents the Fred Waring Show," the programs will be introduced by Ronald Reagan who will appear regularly on the dramatic program. The new GE Theater with the addition of these four Waring programs will now consist of 22 live dramatic shows from Hollywood and New York and 13 films.

At least one and probably two of the Waring programs will be seen in compatible color. All of the programs will be produced by Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc. Depending on the Waring concert schedule, it is expected that two of the programs will originate in New York, with one each coming from Hollywood and Chicago.

It is expected that the first Waring spectacular will have a patriotic theme and will be seen between Election Day and Armistice Day. Two others will be seen at Christmas and Easter — periods with which the music of Fred Waring has been traditionally associated. The final program is expected to have a public service theme.

Although Fred Waring had announced his intention to concentrate on concert tours, his publishing business, recordings and music school at Shawnee, he has been prevailed upon to do these four extraordinary shows for General Electric, with whom he has been closely associated in radio and television for the last eight years. Fred admits that an important factor in his decision was the opportunity to work in color, which he foresees as a new era for television musical productions.

THE GENERAL ELECTRIC THEATER — Handsome Peter Lawford, one of Hollywood's most popular leading men, and a stellar cast featuring Marilyn Erskine, Virginia Bruce and Otto Kruger are seen in the comedy, "Woman's World," on "The General Electric Theater" Sunday, July 4th at 8 p.m. (CDT) over WKJG-TV.

It's a case of mistaken identity which gets Sally Hamilton (Miss Erskine) into a fix which nearly causes her husband John (Lawford) to lose his job. Sally wants to help John in his career, and decides to ask his boss and wife to dinner. However, instead of inviting John's immediate superior, she calls Adele DeLongpre (Virginia Bruce) whose husband, Charles, (Kruger) owns the company where John works.

Mrs. DeLongpre accepts, believing that the Hamiltons are not employees, but another Hamilton couple whom her husband has been trying to win over as new clients.

Sally's preparations for dinner, which include a menu Mr. DeLongpre's diet won't allow him to enjoy, become so involved that the results are nearly tragic.

AN UNWILLING BUTLER—

Peter Lawford, shown here with Marilyn Erskine, resents having to play the role of butler as well as husband in the comedy, "Woman's World," seen on "The General Electric Theater," Sunday, July 4th at 8 p.m. over WKJG-TV. The story is about a young wife who invites her husband's boss and wife to dinner with almost disastrous results.

Beauty shop gossip keeps comedy star Joan Davis preoccupied during her date with the hairdresser, played by Alan De Witt, during the Wednesday, July 7, telecast of "I Married Joan" over WKJG-TV at 7 p.m. CDT. The result is disastrous, as Joan discovers that she's been shorn of her lovely locks.

JOAN GETS A "NEW LOOK"—Joan Davis gets a "new look" all her own when she gets shorn of her locks for a "panda" hairdo on the Wednesday, July 7, telecast of WKJG-TV's "I Married Joan" at 7 p.m., CDT.

Joan makes an extra date at the beauty shop in anticipation of the college reunion which her husband, Brad (Jim Backus), is so anxious to attend. However, in typical fashion, she gets carried away by the gossip going on about her and fails to keep her eye on the shears.

As a result, her hairdresser misunderstands her instructions and when she comes out of the dryer she finds herself minus most of her hair and sporting the new "panda" cut.

Savings & Stock Bonus Plan

More Than 20,000 Get Bonus in GE Stock

On June 18th, a share of the new GE stock was mailed to each of more than 20,000 of the participants in the General Electric Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan who joined this plan in 1948.

This bonus, worth about $800,000 at current market value, followed action taken at the company's annual meeting April 20th when share owners approved a three-for-one split of GE common stock.

Employee-participants throughout the company shared in the bonus, with a full share of the new stock going to every participant who had qualified for at least 34/100 of a share of the company's former stock when the first five-year holding period ended Dec. 31, 1953. The maximum bonus credited to any single participant on U. S. Savings Bonds purchased during the three months in 1948 when the plan was in effect was 49/100 of a share of the former stock.

Employees who participate in the GE Savings and Stock Bonus Plan by purchasing U. S. Savings Bonds through payroll deductions and who leave their bonds on deposit with the company for the specified five-year holding period, receive a 15 per cent bonus in GE common stock.

Celos Fountain directs Addressographing operations being performed by Mrs. Jeanne Chase, Addressograph machine operator at Schenectady, as the Share Owners Record Section starts the task of preparing certificates representing about $800,000 worth of new GE stock for mailing to Savings and Stock Bonus Plan participants. Mrs. Irene Damphier (right) is reading proof on more than 20,000 employee-participant names. Mailings in June completed the three-for-one stock conversion approved by share owners April 20.

Mrs. Dorothy Carr holds a certificate for shares of the new $5 par value GE Stock. Following the recent change in the company's stock, similar certificates were mailed to 249,000 share owners in the familiar GE envelopes held by William Baker. Prior to this mailing, these vaults at Guaranty Trust Company, New York, held 57 million shares of GE stock, worth about $2¼ billion at current market prices. Approximately 28½ million shares were outstanding April 20 when share owners voted to convert GE's authorized 35 million no-par stock to 105 million shares of $5 par common stock.

One of 20,000 employee participants in the GE Savings and Stock Bonus Plan, Albert Lesh, Bldg. 10-2, greeted postman Alex Choka with a grin when his stock certificate was delivered last week. At current market prices, the stock bonus represents an $800,000 "extra" this year for General Electric employee-participants in the Plan.

Worth more than $40 at current market price, the share of GE stock received by George C. Hartman, Bldg. 19-4, is the center of attention at the Hartman house as twins Melvin and Maurice, 13 years old, and Mr. and Mrs. Hartman look at the stock. The share of GE stock marks Mr. Hartman as a participant in the GE Savings and Stock Bonus Plan since its inception in 1948.

by Al Happel

Warren Berkheiser has just been voted into the Loud Shirt Club this week by president Charley Wurm. We heard that Warren thought it was a real thrill. His shirt that drew the attention of the president was a bright red, white, and blue. Anyway, Warren, we think you are very patriotic. . . . Jack (checked kid) Jennings just inherited himself a nickname too. It was because of his unusually bright, checked, clothing which he had on last Thursday. He even had a checked tie on. What was last Thursday, Jack, your birthday or something? . . . Happy Birthday to Doris Klug on July 1 and Phyllis Faulkner on July 6, also to Harold Dimke on July 7. . . . Myron Tupper is now a permanent employee and is working in Mr. Dochtermann's group. . . . A few weeks ago Cliff Denney, Skeets Lahrman, Karl Feiertag, Harold Dimke, Fritz Schulz, and Jerry Duryee decided they would like to go to Chicago and see a ball game and maybe get away from some of the Fort Wayne heat. They got so far away they almost froze. Of course they were dressed for the good old summertime which was the wrong way to dress for this particular day. I guess they were covered up with about anything they could find. They not only saw one game, but the one they chose was a double-header. With the weather the way it was, they thought sure they were going to see a football game instead of baseball. . . . In case anyone is looking for Mr. and Mrs. Irvin L. Cirks, they moved. They are now in their own home in the 2000 block on Kenwood. Drop in sometime, the latch string will be out. . . . The Barrows plucked the young'uns out of their nice warm beds, loaded them in their car, and were off on part of their vacation in Southern Indiana. I understand they were to have a picnic breakfast. . . . Cal Wheeler was seen dashing about after getting an SOS from home. The home freezer motor stopped operating, so the engineer left as fast as he could to fix his mom's freezer. . . . New faces in Specialty Motor Engineering—Welcome to all our new Test Engineers. Kenneth Anderson is in

Bob Loveland's group. Ken's home town is Springfield, Ill. and he hopes to graduate in February, 1955, from the University of Illinois with a BSEE. He is single and his hobbies are model boats and planes; Don Chambers with Bill Rutledge's group. He is also single and his home town is Portland, Ore. He holds a BSEE from Oregon State. He likes model planes too, and all sports; George Halpin with Mr. Stanbery's group. He calls Telluride, Colo. his home town and is a 1954 graduate of the University of Colorado. He is married and has two children. He too likes sports. Then we have Erwin A. Ulbrich (Big Boy), single and from Oak Park, Ill. He has a BSEE from Rose Poly. Inst. He can be found in Jim Walley's group. Jim also has an honor student by the name of "Fritz" Bartlett who will be working with us during the summer months. Fritz graduated this year from South Side High School with very high honors. He won the four year Griffin Scholarship to Purdue University. . . . How many times did Ray Solga give a descriptive story of how he caught his six pound pike on a four pound line while trolling last week end? Well, I guess at that it would be quite a thrill. . . . Glen Stapleton will be absent from the office for several weeks. He will undergo surgery at St. Joseph's hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery. . . . Goodby to Don Edam who left us this week for his next assignment at Ithaca, N. Y.

Separate Meter and Instrument Departments Established at Lynn

The formation of two new General Electric Company organizations, a Meter Department and an Instrument Department, has been announced in Lynn, Mass. by Harold E. Strang, vice-president and general manager of GE's Measurements and Industrial Products Division.

An additional step in the company's decentralization program, the move divides the former Meter and Instrument Department into two separate units. The Meter Department will make its headquarters at Somersworth, N. H., while the Instrument Department will remain in Lynn.

In announcing the change, Mr. Strang said "this is basically an organizational development, as facilities for the manufacture of meters have been in operation at Somersworth since 1948, and only a few key personnel will be transferred to that location."

"This division of responsibilities," he said, "will enable separate managements to devote full time to the meter and instrument businesses which have grown large enough to warrant them being established as individual organizations in their own right."

Managers Announced

C. Howard Black, formerly general manager of the Meter and Instrument Department, has been named general manager of the new Instrument Department, while D. E. Craig, previously manager of the Somersworth plant, has been appointed general manager of the new Meter Department, it was also announced.

Concurrent with their appointments, the new general managers announced the following staffs for their departments: Instrument Department—J. C. Garrett, manager-marketing; I. F. Kinnard, manager-engineering; L. P. Hannaway, manager-manufacturing; H. P. Schott, manager-finance; J. H. Dennis, manager-inspection; and N. F. Schlegel, manager-employee and plant community relations.

Meter Department — Bruce B. Gravitt, manager-marketing; G. Rodger Sturtevant, manager-engineering; Richard B. Gray, manager-manufacturing; John J. Greeley, manager-finance; and Clifford H. Miller, manager-employee and plant community relations.

C. Howard Black

A native of Baltimore, Md., Mr. Black was graduated from Johns Hopkins University with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering. He joined GE at Schenectady as a student engineer in 1924.

Following various assignments in the switchboard department, he was transferred to Philadelphia where he served as an application engineer. In 1929, he was named supervisor of the switchgear model room and secretary of the switchgear development committee. In 1930, he was placed in charge of engineering for metal-clad switchgear equipment and, the following year, was appointed engineer of the air circuit breaker division.

In 1942, Mr. Black was transferred to the company's Trenton, N. J., switchgear plant where he was put in charge of engineering and manufacturing operations. Two years later he was named manager of engineering for the Switchgear Department, Philadelphia and, in 1948, was appointed manager of engineering for GE's Construction Materials Division.

Mr. Black was made general manager of the former Meter and Instrument Department in 1951, the post he held until his present appointment.

He is a member of the AIEE, the Lynn Chamber of Commerce, and the company's Quarter Century Club. He is married and has a daughter Joanne, a music teacher in Detroit, Mich. public schools, and a son, James, a midshipman at the U. S. Naval School.

D. E. Craig

Mr. Craig was born in Sioux Falls, S. D., and was graduated from South Dakota State College with a B.S. in electrical engineering in 1932.

He joined GE in 1936, following service with the Northern States Power Company in South Dakota, Iowa, and Minnesota.

In 1937 he was assigned to the distribution systems division where he held a number of supervisory posts, becoming manager of unit substation sales in 1945.

He was named manager of the Somersworth, N. H. plant in 1952, the post he held until this appointment.

A 1953 graduate of the Advanced Management Program of Harvard University, Mr. Craig is an executive member of the AIEE, a director of the Dover, N. H. Chamber of Commerce, and the Somersworth, N. H. Industrial Commission.

He is married and has two children, Susan C., and Richard D. Craig.

Three new lads and one repeater are in the select group of GE par busters. Jimmy Sternberger, of the Owls; Willie Adams, of the Briggs section in the Monday leagues; Dick Hensler and Dick Szink, of the Winter St. group joined the elite. Szink accomplished the feat for the second week in a row. All four played the back nine of Emma Klein's Brookwood layout.

Par	434-434-545	36
Sternberger	435-434-445	36
Adams	435-435-345	36
Hensler	444-334-545	36
Szink	633-444-435	36

Note that Adams card included an eagle three on the par 5, number 16.

Winter St.
Vern Foulks' Niblicks hopped all over Bill Irwin's Drivers who were co-leaders last week and pounded them down to a weak third place with a 14 point clobbering. Foulks along with Bob Klas carded 38's. Dick Hensler's par effort was to no avail for the losers.

The Putters led by Captain Dick Szink's second straight 36 managed only a seven point win over the Mashies and now find themselves in second place behind the un-rushing Niblicks.

Jack Skevington and Hal Staley needed the 39's they carded to enable the Brassies to win by two over Stu Fisher's Spoons. Fisher came in with a neat 38.

Owl
From now on, the race in the Owl league is for second place. By walloping the last year's champion Birdies by 16 the high flying Eagles are almost a cinch for top spot. Bob Markey and company have a 44 point lead over the second place pars.

Despite an even par round by Jimmey Sternberger and a 38 by Warren Wickliffe the Pars handed the Hot Shots a 6 point lesson. In turning in the trick the Pars shot 21 strokes under their team average.

The Bogeys picked up two points from the Aces.

Dave Mumma my old buddy comments, "It was a great day for the ones that were on."

Monday Afternoon
The Briggs league king pins, the Putters, added to their first place lead by clipping the Transformer team by 21 points. Adams' 36 led the parade.

Penkul's Wire Mill skinned by Financials by one measly point. They needed Carl Saaf's 37 and Jack Steel's 38.

The Bill Borah Divoteers beat the poor Highballs by four.

Monday Evening
No report from Denny Pease.

Tuesday
Big scores dominated the outcomes of Shortie Poyser's league. The Divot Diggers further enhanced their first place position by smacking down the Gas House Tigers to the tune of 18 points.

The second place 19th Holers tried to keep pace with the leaders but fell short by 6 points in a 12 point win over the Optimists.

The Dubs wanted no truck with the cellar so they hammered out a 17 point win over way-down-low Forty Niners.

Braden, Kayser and Poyser lead the league with 39, 39.7 and 41 average respectively.

GE's Little Leaguers won the fifth game out of the last six Tuesday night, downing Allen Dairy 15 to 7.

Monday night they edged Patterson-Fletcher 3 to 2. The GE youngsters tallied all three of their runs in the first inning.

Pitcher Dick Snyder struck out 16 Patterson-Fletcher batters, giving them only one run in the first and another in the fifth.

Nine-year-old Roger Macy played a great game behind the plate. He caught the entire game, handling the 12-year-old pitcher's throws with ease.

Dave Schenher got the only extra base hit in the game, a double in the first inning.

Tuesday night, the GE Little Leaguers put on their hitting clothes and clobbered Allen Dairy for 13 hits, 2 homers and 5 doubles. Final score was 15 to 7.

Little Victory Heck pitched the full game for his first start of the season. He contributed a double to the hitting barrage to help in the scoring.

Karl Zimmerman hit a long line drive home run over the left field fence with two men on in the first inning. Dave Schenher hit a grand slam home run over the center field fence in the second inning scoring Heck, Head and Northcutt ahead of him. Davey's drive carried 200 feet on the fly.

The GE boys are currently in first place in the Hamilton Park League standings.

In previous games, GE downed Inca 8 to 3; Allen Dairy, 8 to 3; Inca, 5 to 4; and lost to Patterson-Fletcher 4 to 5.

There are no games scheduled in the Hamilton Park League over the holiday week-end. GE's next game will be Wednesday, July 7, with Allen Dairy.

Interdepartment Softball action last week resulted in the GE Squares maintaining their lead with a win over the Apprentice team by a 11 to 10 score. It looked like an easy victory until the last two innings when Apprentice men scored 7 runs to almost catch the Squares.

Works Lab wrapped up a game with the MTP's by a 12 to 5 tally. The Lab did some effective bunting in the clash and the losers scored 4 of their 5 runs in the last two innings.

Winter St. got its first win of the season. Apparatus Sales Trainees were the losers in this game. The final score was 8 to 7 as a last inning rally by the AST's fell short of the mark.

The GE Vets started their game against the Test Engineers with 7 runs in the first inning and went on to a 13 to 1 victory.

Who pays for the delay?

RIGHT now the majority of all General Electric employees are enjoying their share of the extra pay of the 1954 G-E offer of more than thirty million dollars worth of pay increases, better vacation provisions, extra paid holidays and other improvements.

There is still a minority of G-E employees who have not yet started to get their share because they or their union officials are delaying agreement. As a result, these employees are suffering a needless loss of increased pay which is melting away at the rate of well over $200,000 a week.

This sacrifice, by the time you read this, will be over a million dollar pay loss while the majority of our employees are enjoying the increase and, of course, suffering no loss.

The offer is a good one. Our G-E employees mostly think so, say so, and a majority are getting their share right now. It is still available for all employees where negotiations are appropriately open now.

If you are paying for this delay, we hope it will soon be possible for you to start getting your share, too.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

John Neukam claims that to catch fish you must have plenty of bait. Last week he asked a neighbor boy to try to get him some night crawlers and John agreed to buy them for a cent apiece. When the boy came back, John, to his surprise, suddenly found himself in the bait business with $5 worth of worms. Better set a limit next time, John. . . . We wonder if Paul Weaver is trying out his truck in preparation for a trip across the desert. After driving in all the recent hot weather, Paul decided he would take the cardboard shield away from in front of his radiator. . . . Jim McFeely, Gus Wiedelmann, and Charlie Bracht spent Sunday at Glenn Klein's cottage. Everyone brought his own beverage and food. When the time to eat came, Charlie's contribution was conspicuous by its absence. It wasn't until the affair was all over that Charlie found out that his supplies had been eaten with the others and he hadn't even recognized them. Maybe it was because he had worked up such an appetite by rowing his small niece and Gus's daughter around the lake. Gus thought he needed some exercise too and took the girls for a boat ride, but they ended up rowing him around the lake. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bobay on the arrival of a baby boy. . . . Walter Reynold's wife always makes him up a wonderful lunch box, but he just can't remember to bring them to work, and has to eat at the cafeteria. Did you have to eat the lunch for supper, Walter? . . . We used to hear about the red or yellow raider in the toolroom; now it's the Glockenspiel. They're pretty touchy about the subject, so be careful who you ask about it. They're liable to hang one on you. . . . Bernie Byanski was on time last Saturday for his fishing trip. Bill Akers didn't have to use drastic means to arouse Bernie at 4 a.m. this time, but B. B. didn't get his bucketful and now wishes he had slept on through. . . . Henry Frey says an old dog is never too old to learn, so he is taking up golf. We wonder if the old dog has any trouble staying away from the trees on the fairway. . . . Woody Hursh may not be a farmer but he sure can toss the hay around. Ask his neighbor. . . . Congratulations to Jake Gongaware who was married last week. Jake is currently associated with the I. D. O. group of Gongaware, Hagenjos, and Smith. We always have trouble remembering those odd names like Smith. . . . Summer certainly must be here if the haircuts being worn by Dick Arnold and Louie Peduto are any indication. Everyone wonders if they both fell in front of the same lawn mower. . . . Elwin Coolidge has settled for an Olds 88 instead of the Cadillac he has been dreaming about for so long. . . . Those week end visits to Muncie by Gordon Yaeger are certainly rough and tumble affairs. After a recent visit Gordon showed up for work with scratches on his face and arms which were the result of falling down on some corn stubble. Now this week he came dragging in to work limping on a skinned leg. This time he claims to have been swimming and dived into a portion of the pool that had no water in it. Both explanations are very logical and, we might add, better than none at all. . . . Ken Brown's Studebaker is back in the news again. For the second time in five months his car was run into while parked on the street in front of the house. This time luckily only the paint was scratched. . . . Bill Owens claims he has the fastest car in town now. He says he can pull up to a stop with his Dodge and the speedometer still indicates 58 mph. Who else shifts into first at 58? . . . Jule Franke tells of an incident at his house that goes something like this: His wife became annoyed at their boy for teasing the dog by squirting water on it with the garden hose. The boy persisted and Jule's wife grabbed the hose to pull it away. When the boy let go suddenly, the nozzle flipped back and hit her on the lip, cutting quite deeply. Julian had to take her to the hospital to have the cut sewed up. He is thinking of having some cards printed up reading, "I didn't do it" for people who didn't get the facts. . . . Paul Richter had better examine all items on his property or he may become a statistic some day. It seems his wife had just hung up four lines of clothes when the main post, which evidently had rotted through, broke and let all the clothes fall on the ground. Luckily or unluckily, depending on the male or female point of view, Paul wasn't home at the time. . . . DRIVE CAREFULLY. Narrow minds need wide roads.

by Sherry Varner

Willie Irmischer is still at home nursing a broken ankle. . . . Fred Buchholz is visiting the Mammoth Caves on his vacation this week. . . . Happy Birthday this week to Otto Pfeuffer, Charles Dixon, and Andy Weisbrod. . . . Calvin Case, who retired last month, celebrated his birthday last week. May you have many more, Casey. . . . In the new car department, I hear that Harold Thraxler has a new Ford. It sure is a pretty snappy looking car, Harold. . . . Ralph Ayers is hard to get along with since a few of his friends started calling him the Roanoke "cutie". . . . I understand that Harry Todd bought some bed springs for his station wagon. They will be of good use when he goes on his trip to the Smokey Mountains next month. . . . Joe Burton wants it to be understood that a bluegill did not bite his thumb. . . . Mr. Herman Zuber, better known as "Pinky", is about the happiest man in Motor Generator. An ardent Daisy fan, he is quite proud of his team since they have taken first place in the league. . . . This week end being a holiday, here's hoping everybody has a safe and happy Fourth of July.

2-2 TALES

by Belle Buchan

If you happened to see the girls around Herb Habig drooling, it was because he was telling them about the swell cherry pie a la mode that John Magley invited him to partake of. You see, Johnny had a birthday and he treated the gang in Bldg. 8-2; We all hope that Johnny's future is as good as that pie. . . . Twenty-two girls of the Birthday Club congregated recently at "Buchan Acres" for a picnic supper. Regardless of the rain, the girls played badminton and croquet in their bare feet. Mickey Crawford and Dorothy Askren even pitched horseshoes bare footed. As their hostess, I am glad to see that no one got pneumonia. . . . George Howell is back at his desk after getting his family settled in their new home in Indian Village. If you think that moving is a cinch, just ask George. . . . Bob Tuerschman is on his vacation this week, we haven't heard where he went, but it is our guess that he went with Peggy to a convention in Illinois. . . . Vic Cartwright is counting the days until his vacation. He is going to Arizona where the weather is nice and cool, Oh Yeah! . . . Vern Castle has made himself comfortable for the summer with a cool looking crew hair cut. . . . To all of the girls who have left us recently, I want to say that we have not forgotten any of you. We hope that you will all turn out for our next party.

TALES from TAYLOR

SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

One day last week with the temperature reading 93 degrees, Al Voltz decided to put to a test the old theory that what keeps the cold out will also keep out the heat. There happened to be a long brown overcoat on one of the hangers in the locker room so Al put it on, buttoned it up, and put the collar up over his ears. Then he walked out into the super-heated air. He made the trip to the gate house without mishap, but upon the return trip several of the boys who were observing the procedure saw him swoon and rushed to his assistance. They dragged him into the building, stripped him of the coat, and ducked his head into cold water, which revived him pronto. Al tells us that this old theory is just no good. . . . Johnny Keck needed a hair cut and decided on a crew cut with the hot weather. When he arrived at home and unveiled his dome before Mama she just did not like it too well. She complained that it was not short enough and ordered him to return to the barber's and get it clipped closer. He did, and now the top of his head resembles the landing deck of an aircraft carrier. . . . Irene Bowman desires that it be known that she will do baby-sitting certain evenings each week. Besides looking after the children she also will sit with any pets you might have, such as dogs, cats, mice, and bats. At the present time she is sitting with an aquarium of tropical fish. Irene tells us that she will sit with most any animal with the exception of skunks, porcupines, mountain lions, and wart hogs. . . . Russ DeVeny, our erstwhile speed demon, attended the races held Saturday evening at the South Anthony Speedway. He attended to get a few pointers on the technique of high-speed driving. While there, he was caught in the downpour and was thoroughly drenched. He said that there were no gendarmes around to help him out, explaining that they are on duty in dry weather.

3 Days To Do As You Please, But Please...

IN YOUR CAR

Drive carefully, obey all signs. Signs warn you of approaching dangers.

Have your car checked before starting your trip. Brakes, tires, steering, lights should all be in tip-top operating condition.

Plan your trip in advance. Allow yourself plenty of time. Fog, rain, darkness or heavy traffic call for slower operating speeds.

IN THE SUN

If you are lily-white, take the sun in short doses. You can acquire a beautiful tan, if you are sensible.

Wear a hat in the sun. This will help prevent sunstroke, protect your hair, and prevent sunburn on top of the head.

If the temperature is in the 90's be sure to drink plenty of water and to eat sensibly.

AT THE BEACH

Go bathing in groups. Have someone on shore keep an eye on you, if you can't find a water buddy.

Be sure boats and canoes are seaworthy before you launch them. Life preservers should be standard equipment on all larger boats.

Never overload a row boat or canoe. Should such a craft overturn, it will float if you don't climb on it. Hang on to it until help arrives.

IN THE WOODS

Patronize established camp sites as far as possible. They will be less likely to be infested with mosquitoes, other insects, or poison ivy.

Keep campfires under control. Douse fires with sand and water before leaving. Never leave a fire unattended.

Be sure to have a first aid kit. In it include an antiseptic, adhesive bandages and aspirin.

IN YOUR OWN BACK YARD

Have and use the correct equipment such as ladders when installing a TV antenna or painting the house.

If it's hot, take it easy. Dress coolly and remain in the shade. Drink plenty of liquids and eat sensibly.

Wear a straw hat and loose shirt when gardening. These will help to protect you from too much exposure.

Chairman of the games committee is Sam Macy, Bldg. 26-3. He is being assisted by Grover Rhoads, Dwight Jackson, and Richard Blair, all of Bldg. 26-4.

Volunteer Firemen to Stage Annual Stag Picnic July 17

Saturday, July 17, members of the Volunteer Firemen's Association will stage their annual stag picnic at the Southwest Conservation Club. The all-day outing will be attended by both present and retired employees who are members of the organization.

Invitations were sent members this week. Those planning to attend are asked to return their reservations to Ernie Hanauer, Bldg. 20-2. Activities for the day will include games, trap shooting, and a program of entertainment. Dinner and refreshments will be served.

Members of the committee in charge of arrangements include Chief Hanauer, Merle Morkoetter, Bldg. 20-2; Paul Arnold, Bldg. 4-4; Mel Kestner, Section 417, Taylor St.; Ray Soughan, Bldg. 26-3; Tom Fox, Bldg. 6-3; Harold Moss-hammer, Section 417, Taylor St.; W. O. Luebke, Bldg. 8-1, and Virgil Patterson, Taylor St.

The outing will conclude the 1954 Volunteer Firemen Training School, which ends next week. The final week of the school will be devoted to actual practice in extinguishing fires with all types of extinguishers used in the Fort Wayne plants. This session will be conducted at the training grounds at the Taylor St. Plant.

GeCode Trip Reservations Close Today

Reservations for the vacation trip to New York City, sponsored by the Decatur Plant's GeCode Club, close today, Dorothy Schnepf, club president, announced.

Those who wish to make reservations may do so with Miss Schnepf or Dora Mae Fairchild, club travel chairman. Price of the trip is $52.50 for members and $54.50 for non-members.

Thirty-three GeCode members and their friends have registered for the tour. They will get together for a dessert party Sunday, July 11 at the home of Miss Schnepf, R. R. 2, Decatur. Beginning at 7 p.m., the meeting will give those taking the trip an opportunity to get acquainted and meet the tour leader, Rosemary Miller. A representative from Miller Tours, which has planned the trip, will discuss the tour and answer questions.

Miss Miller and Miss Fairchild are assisting Miss Schnepf with arrangements for the party.

The group will leave for their vacation Sunday, July 25 by special bus and return to Decatur Friday, July 30.

'Beat Walt Sunier' Is Theme Of GE Squares Golf Stag

"Beat Walt Sunier Day" will be the theme of the GE Squares golf stag to be staged at Brookwood Golf Course Saturday, July 17. The 18-hole tourney will continue throughout the day.

Prizes will be awarded members whose handicap score is lower than Sunier's for the day. The prize trophy will be presented the golfer with the best score of the day. Scoring will be done by the Callaway Handicap System. Normal green fees will be charged.

Members of the committee in charge of arrangements are Bob Langdon, Bldg. 4-6; Dick Kilian, Bldg. 16-3, and Jim Capps, Taylor St.

A veteran GE golfer, Sunier has been well known in golf circles for many years. He is past golf chairman of the GE Club and wrote a column, "In the Rough" for the GE NEWS for eight years. He has represented GE golfers in the Studebaker matches in the past 22 years and came away the winner in the last two matches.

At present, Mr. Sunier is a member of the GE Monday Evening League and his current average is 42.8.

The 1950 winner of the Squares' Best Golfer trophy was Robert Hanna. Since then, James Walley has won the annual award.

68 Unions Accept Recent GE Offer

The number of union acceptances of the GE offer of increased pay and other benefits had risen to 68 at mid-week.

Latest acceptances included the United Electrical Workers (Ind.). The UE conference board on Tuesday approved the negotiating committee's recommendation for acceptance of the company's May 24 offer and submitted it to UE locals for ratification. The effective date of the new UE agreement is July 2, the date of which agreement was reached with the committee.

If the offer had been accepted by June 7, it would have been effective June 1, as it was for most unions which have accepted and for employees not in bargaining units.

Employees in IUE units are still losing pay they might otherwise have at an average rate of about $2 a week while the IUE leader-

A 72,000 POUND Columbia press brake, which exerts a pressure of 250 tons, was moved into the Hanna St. Plant last week. The brake will be used for fabricating sheet steel cases for Type M and Type D transformers. It will have Wales piercing dies. The large brake is one of three that will be installed in the new plant in getting it ready for the opening of manufacturing operations which are scheduled to begin following the vacation shutdown.

"ORDINARILY I AIN'T SO DANG FRIENDLY - BUT HE GOT TALKIN' ABOUT HIS JOB AT GE AND HOW GOOD THE PRODUCTS ARE -"

Help Yourself to Job Security

Job security is very much in the minds of all of us these days and the vacation period, which is just ahead, offers all of us an excellent opportunity to help make General Electric jobs more secure.

We all know that jobs depend upon customers—the number of customers the General Electric Company wins and keeps. All of us can help in bringing more customers to General Electric by taking every opportunity possible to talk well of the company and to praise, recommend, and use General Electric products. And vacation time presents a wonderful opportunity to do this for the obvious reason that vacation is a time when most of us get around more than usual and see a lot of new people.

For example, the cartoon shows a General Electric employee telling some of the people at the local general store about General Electric and its fine products. He's telling them that General Electric is a good place to work, offering good pay, good bosses, good working conditions, and opportunity. He might even mention the liberal benefits offered to a General Electric employee, like the Savings and Stock Bonus Plan, pension and suggestion plans, accident and sickness insurance, and the other benefits that go to make up for added pay. You can be sure too, that he's also telling these people about the superior workmanship of General Electric, its fine products, its good service to customers. His recommendation and praise of General Electric products will undoubtedly speak well for the company—and him, because General Electric is a proud name in industry, and he's a part of that name. As a final clincher he will probably have a GE product along with him—perhaps a portable radio, a lightmeter, or flashbulbs. Maybe his wife has brought along the new GE travel iron for some quick pressing or ironing at the camp.

Well, you get the general (electric) idea. You know that if you talk GE, show GE products, and recommend GE this vacation, you have made a substantial contribution to greater job security for yourself and all employees.

We sincerely hope that you and all the family have one of the best vacations ever, wherever you go, and whatever you do. And remember, as you meet new people, help yourself to greater job security.

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlaffen

A group of fellows from both the factory and the office paid Walter Holloway a visit at Adams Lake on June 29. (Mike Brayer was last getting there because he got lost!) Since Walter is retiring, they presented him with some luggage, a bill fold, and other gifts. Ewald Stinsmuehlen made the presentation. Kitchen discovered the hammock and stayed in it all evening. Now, Walter, we want to see those bags get a trip to Florida. . . . Carl Kloepper came back from his vacation, four days of which he spent at Lake James, looking wonderful. . . . Paul Clendenen started his vacation June 25. We hope you had fun, Paul, and caught loads of fish. . . . Earl Greenlee and Virgil Snyder started their vacations on July 2. Earl intends to lower the level of Fox Lake about four inches with the bluegills he will take out of there. Since Earl's wife has quit work, he now has a full time housekeeper. . . . Eldon Bell had the biggest bass hooked at Barbee Lake, but it got away. He has now purchased some extra heavy equipment. Further details later. . . . Bernard Lauer and Sammy Kunderd have improved considerably in their cuche playing. They delivered a beautiful skunk to Art Bear and his new partner two days straight. If it happens again, Art will get Herb Kellermeier's new dog to run it down. . . . Oscar Fleming's daughter is to be congratulated for the beautiful cake she baked, decorated, and presented to Walter Holloway as a retirement gift. . . . Herb Tons underwent surgery at St. Joseph's Hospital June 29. Latest reports are that Herb is getting along nicely. . . . Doris Rhonemus and her husband got a new Mercury hardtop. Please don't wreck this one, Ronnie. . . . Welcome to Kenny Williams, our new trainee in production. Kenny attended Montana State College. We hope you will like it here, Kenny. . . . Also, welcome to Grayson Knight, a new apprentice in the tool room. . . . Goodbye to Don Sordelet who is leaving us. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fremont. They had a 7 lb. 12 1/2 oz. baby girl on June 30. Paul was so excited he forgot to call Ed Hines to pick up his riders. . . . Cliff Bieber again had a clamp for his muffler made in the tool room. They just aren't building Oldsmobiles the way they used to, are they Cliff? . . . Walt Niemeyer is in mourning. He lost his 13 year old pal, his dog. You have our sympathy, Walt. We all know what it means to lose a loved pet. . . . Fred Vogt was going to bring 20 pounds of German sausage back with him and have the boys over for a party. But the mean old customs officials wouldn't let him. . . . Happy anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Ron Roth, June 28; Mr. and Mrs. Claude Holmes, June 29; and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Brockmeyer, July 7. . . . Also happy birthday to Ted Brockmeyer. . . . SCOOP! Red Dillon's wife caught a horned toad. . . . Mrs. Vern Daseles is now taking up her flowers in preparation for this fall's planting. Vern was certainly proud of his beautiful display this last summer. . . . Ernie Roman is getting so skilled on the calculator he is ready to challenge a Japanese woman with an abacus. Man the dictionary! . . . Dorelyn Forde knows just how many days before her wedding. How many hours, Dorelyn? . . . Some people in this office just don't trust anybody. We really wouldn't have run over you, Jim.

CAR SENSE

Here it is the good old summer time. Of course, you're using your car more, but are you also having your car checked more?

To check accidents and perhaps save your life, see that you check on these 10 important points:

1. Brakes—Have them tested regularly, adjusted and relined when necessary, and fluid replaced.
2. Steering—There should be a minimum of play in the steering wheel. Any tendency of the front wheels to wobble at any speed should be corrected immediately.
3. Lights—See that headlights, tail lights, direction lights, and fog lights are all in proper working order. Be sure that both beams on your front lights are o. k.
4. Tires—Check your tire pressure frequently, including your spare. Be sure adequate tread is present on all tires.
5. Wheels—To prevent undue tire wear, check and correct poor wheel alignment. This is really important.
6. Lubrication and Greasing—Carefully follow the manufacturer's instructions for oiling and greasing. Check the oil level frequently.
7. Battery—Check to be sure water is always present in your battery.
8. Radiator—Have your radiator flushed at least twice a year. Keep the water in the radiator at the proper level. Check with your service station before leaving permanent type anti freeze in the radiator all year round.
9. Shock Absorbers—Have them adjusted and fluid replaced when necessary.
10. Exhaust System—Have it checked regularly for worn parts or leaky joints to prevent carbon monoxide gas from filtering into a closed car.

If your serviceman finds something wrong, have it corrected before using the car. A good driver drives a safe car.

2-2 TALES

by Belle Buchan

The office picnic at McMillen Park was a huge success, with a lot of good entertainment and loads of good things to eat. We want to thank the gals and guys that worked so hard to provide such a swell time for us. Let's do it again sometime. . . . Happy birthday to Ilo Matter, the candy was delicious. . . . Mamie Allen was up to see us recently. She says that she is spending the month of July touring the eastern states. Lucky gal. . . . Agnes Godfrey is a very busy person right now, with one daughter graduating and another one getting married. Agnes is surely going to appreciate her vacation. . . . The Vern Castle family has called a halt to housekeeping for the time being. You see they are entertaining their two little granddaughters from Spokane, Wash. Well, who wants to do housework, when they have two such charming young ladies as guests. . . . Hap Leider was babysitting the other day with his granddaughter, when the little lady decided that she wanted to go down in the field and look at the "Moos". Being a good granddad, Hap proceeded to the field and after one good look at the cows, the grandchild decided that they were pretty ferocious looking animals and set up such a howl that her tired granddad had to run all the way to the house. Such is the life of a doting grandparent. . . . Robert Taylor is on vacation this week. He went down to Spring Mills Park in the southern part of the state, as if it isn't hot enough in the northern part of our state. But of course, the weather is always pleasant when one is on vacation. . . . Purchase order No. HMF 5832 reads as follows: 1 nozzle for blowing hot air into balloons. And who do you think was behind all that hot air? you guessed it—Joe Orbin. But this time Joe was doing all of us a favor. Those balloons were for our office picnic, and even I got some of that hot air, a pretty red one.

How Do Reds Set Up Their International Spy Rings?

Communist parties are main recruiters of secret agents who are under direction of Soviet military intelligence and the MVD (Soviet secret police). These agents work hand in hand with the Soviet diplomatic corps, as revealed in the cases of A-bomb espionage in the United States and Canada.

Communist parties also serve by penetrating government services and winning members for the party in important industries and among research scientists they acquire a vast amount of important information and establish opportunities for the operations of spies. Enormously successful, Communist spies have stolen data ranging from H-bomb and A-bomb secrets to the justice department's espionage files.

Monday Is Last Day For Elex California Trip Reservations

Monday, July 12 is the last day persons may make reservations and complete payments for the Elex sponsored trip to California. Reservations may be made with the Women's Activities offices at Broadway or Taylor St., with Joyce Brumbaugh, Winter St., or with contact girls.

A total of 150 employees, their families, and friends have made reservations for the trip. They will have a "Get Acquainted" party Thursday, July 15 at Weisser Park pavillion. The party will get under way at 7:30 p.m. The group will meet their tour leaders, Roqua Wibel and Miss Brumbaugh, and have an opportunity to check the rooming list. The tour leaders have asked that everyone taking the trip attend the party so that final plans for departure and the trip may be discussed.

With plans for the tour nearing completion, luggage tags have been distributed on the basis of two pieces of luggage per person. This is the amount that will be taken care of on the trip and is included in the total price of the trip. Tickets will be distributed the week before vacation, the tour leaders reported.

Those who wish to take the extra excursion to Catalina from Los Angeles for one day are reminded to make reservations for this trip and pay five dollars extra. Those who do not take this trip will go to Tijuana for the day of August 1. Reservations for the extra jaunt must be made before starting on the trip to California.

El-Par Plans Picnic At Pleasant Lake

Wednesday, July 14 a picnic will be conducted by members of El-Par Chapter of Elex Club at Elsie Logue's cottage on Pleasant Lake.

Reservations are due Monday, July 12 for the all-day outing and should be made with members of the telephone committee. Those planning to attend should take their own table service.

Hostesses in charge of the meeting are Carolyn Hans, Jeanette Adams, Margaret Scott, and Clara Ringenberg.

To get to the cottage, the following directions have been announced: take State Road 27 until you reach U. S. highway 120 north of Angola. Turn left there and signs will direct you to the cottage.

The group has scheduled no meetings for the month of August.

George Saurwein Takes New Post In MG Department

The appointment of George R. Saurwein as procedures analyst in the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department has been announced by William R. David, Jr., supervisor of manufacturing administration and personnel development.

Mr. Saurwein came to General Electric in January, 1953. He en-

Transformer Teamwork

Specialty Transformer teamwork paid off for the Hoffman Laboratory of Los Angeles recently when the laboratory sent an emergency order for 368 special electronic transformers to the department. The shipment had to be in the customer's hands 18 days after the order was received.

Teamwork on the part of commercial, production, and manufacturing men and women in Specialty Transformer Department made it possible for the order to be shipped in time to meet the customer deadline, even though this was an extremely short delivery date for the units.

Representing the three groups of employees involved in producing the units, Cedric Persing, foreman; Herbert Koch, production supervisor, and Gil Carl, proposition engineer, look at one of the finished units prior to shipping.

tered procedures work in DC M & G and was in this location at the time of his present appointment.

A graduate of Defiance College, Mr. Saurwein received three degrees in 1950, BS in business administration, BS in education, and BA degree. From 1943 until 1946 he served in the U. S. Navy and was stationed in the Mediterranean Theater for two years.

CONGRATULATIONS IN ORDER—Russell W. Scherrer, Bldg. 4-5, is congratulated by H. A. MacKinnon, vice president, for contributing the 100 millionth dollar toward the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds under the GE Employee Savings and Stock Bonus Plan. The company and employees were cited by the U. S. Treasury Department for this accomplishment last month.

GE DEATHS

Henry Lenz, 78, Dies In Parkview Hospital

A retired employee, Henry L. Lenz, 78, died June 30 in the Parkview Memorial Hospital. Services were conducted July 3 in the Bethany Lutheran Church. The Rev. C. G. Shira officiated. Burial was in St. John's Lutheran Cemetery.

A native and life-long resident of Fort Wayne, Mr. Lenz came to the company in June, 1906. He was a freight handler when he retired April 1, 1938. He was a member of the Quarter Century Club.

Survivors include his wife, Katherine; one son, Earl; two daughters, Mrs. Helen Scherer and Mrs. Katherine Irwin; five grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. W. H. Harding, and a brother, A. W. Lenz.

Rites Held Tuesday For William Meiners

Services for William Meiners, 55, were conducted Tuesday, July 6 at the Rodenbeck Funeral Home by the Rev. Charles Hartman. Mr. Meiners died July 3 at St. Joseph Hospital where he had been a patient for one day. Burial was in Greenlawn Memorial Park.

Born in Germany, Mr. Meiners came to Fort Wayne in 1926. He joined General Electric in 1929 and was a stockkeeper in Section 114, Taylor St. prior to his death.

Surviving are his wife, Hilda; a daughter, Mrs. John Shikehart; a son, William, all of Fort Wayne; his father, Henry Meiners, and three sisters, all in Germany.

Leo Elward's fellow workers thought he would be ahead if Leo could hire one of the high school summer jobbers to watch his machines for runaways. There would be a possibility for a saving of time and labor if he has someone to stop his machine when his job is about to run out. . . . Birthday greetings to Ted Goll on July 2nd. and to Steve Bobay and Elmer Hamilton on July 3rd. . . . The sport on the right is none other than Nolan Riley, foreman in the enameling room, taken in his big days when he was full of pep and ginger and his feet didn't hurt him.

What Say, Sport?

. . . If Mrs. Bill will take this hint I believe she could buy Melvin a compass for his car as a useful gift. The other day as "Melv" was coming to work he had to detour around Brooklyn Avenue at the railroad crossing. He turned on the Engle Road, then on the Miller Road, but he went south instead of north and arrived at Times Corner. His first glance at all the lights struck his mind that he was in Chicago, but then he came to his senses and finally found his way to work. . . . Eddie White will do his planning a little more carefully the next time, especially when it comes to digging a basement. He is now in the market for a WPA shed as his last shed fell apart when a cave-in undermined it. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kite upon the arrival of Dennis Regan, and Mr. and Mrs. Jose Gutierrez upon the arrival of Gina Maria. . . . Have you noticed the picture at the "time clock"? You will see Elmer Hamilton in the year of '21 when he played baseball for the Little River White Sox. It appeared in the old time sports picture Sunday, June 27. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Streb on their silver wedding anniversary June 27. . . . We wish to welcome Art Speth to the Wire Laboratory. . . . When Cy Ort and two others were at the lake last week they had quite a surprise when the pier they were working on gave way. Like playing "Follow the Leader," Cy jumped into a boat with the other two following. But the boat upset, which only goes to show they should have jumped into the lake just to save any chances of damaging the boat.

ship continues to delay acceptance of the offer. At the request of the IUE committee, another bargaining session—the 22nd—will be held in New York on July 13.

The GE offer includes a pay increase, which ranges from four to eight cents and more an hour and averages over five cents an hour, plus improvements in paid vacation and paid holiday provisions.

Among the unions which have accepted the offer, besides UE, are UAW-CIO, IAM-AFL, USW-CIO, IBEW-AFL, plumbers & steamfitters (AFL), UAW-AFL, AFL Atomic Trades Council at Hanford, and other AFL, and independent unions.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Alma Elliott

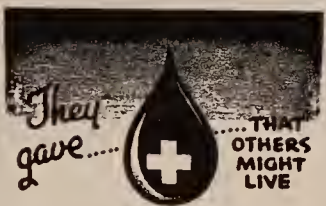

This week the welcome mat is out for Bob Abbe in Materials; Richard VanHorn in Manufacturing; L. J. Nuels, Manufacturing engineer, and Carl Stout, new foreman in Manufacturing. In the factory this week things were kept at a busy pace as we welcomed: Doris Jones, Barbara Daenell, Vida Craft, Betty Neeley, Bernice Hughes, Dorothy Boneff, Dorothy Guiff, Ruth Sparks, Agnes Alломong, Zerline Abernathy, Maude Coomer, Betty Johnson, Hana Stith, Ralph Hume, Daniel Pinkley, Marion Milledge, Calvin Havey, and Nicholas Derloshon. It certainly is good to see Bill Reed back with us after being off ill for so long. . . . Have you noticed how early everyone now comes to work? It must be the air-conditioned atmosphere we have. . . . A real send-off was given to Bob Fallanger last week the day before he left to be married. From the Marketing gang he and his new wife received a beautiful toaster. . . . Last week we extended our best wishes to Carolyn Peipenbrink as she took the fatal step. Saturday was the date. . . . NEWS OF THE WEEK: Congratulations to Jim Brake and his wife on the arrival of their bouncing baby girl. Also congrats to Grampa Walter. . . . Only 14 days left before vacation! Have you all decided what and where you're doing and going? Everyone is scattering this year, every place from California to Maine. It will be interesting to hear about some of these vacations after we come back to work.

Congratulations to Lula McCague. She is now Mrs. Leroy Ooley. Leroy used to work on inspection in 2 x 36. . . . Rosie Diem sure was proud of her little daughter. She was one of the ten cuties picked from 75 little bathing beauties at the Mermaid Festival at North Webster. . . . Dan Tetlow is on the sick list. He is doing fine since his recent operation. . . . Bob Pence is back to work after his third week's vacation. . . . The next two weeks will be the busiest days of the year. Everyone is getting their road maps spread over their benches. They sure cover a lot of ground just sitting at their place of business. . . . C. B. Smith is back with us again. He had to make a hurry-up trip to Iowa last week when his mother fell and broke her hip. She is doing very nicely since her operation.

Robert W. Bastian, Harold Dimke, Richard Gotschall, Julia Medsker, Harry E. Rhodes, James J. Smetana, Dudley Snyder, Donald Stoskopf, Donald R. Teeters, Gale H. Buzzard, Traverse W. Chandler, Marion C. Halleck, Mary R. Hervey, Eric R. Hellwig, Kathleen E. Hogan, Patricia A. Hoover, Harold V. Howell, Wilmer LaVine, Clovis E. Linkous, Troy Long, Hendricks P. Love, Philip E. Lydy, Walter A. Lydy, Lloyd Meads, Paul Minniear, Marie Schmidt, Dennis F. Peterschmidt, Lloyd I. Pinkerton, Marvin L. Schmidt, Albert C. Stilwell, Melvin O. Williamson, and Thomas E. Zolman.

The following employees also gave during the week ending June 25:

Joe L. Allen, and Rex A. Oberlin.

RECIPE FOR COMEDY DISH—A culinary spy is something new in the way of cloak and dagger dramatics, and it would be unpredictable Joan Davis who ventures into such a soupy sequence. On the telecast of Wednesday, July 14, over WKJG-TV, at 7 p.m., titled "Recipe," the comedy star repeats an "I Married Joan" telecast that entertained TV audiences originally on April 22, 1953.

Competing in a soup-cooking contest against a woman whom she dislikes, Joan discovers that her husband's (Jim Backus) favorite soup is the ox tail concoction served at Alphonse's restaurant. Unable to extract the coveted recipe from the chef by conventional methods, Joan takes a job in the restaurant's kitchen to ferret out the secret formula. She winds up—as Joan will—literally in the soup pot on a hot range before the episode is finished and practically all appetites are ruined.

P. J. Wolfson produces "I Married Joan."

All or Nothing?

A man was making application for employment with a certain industry and asked the personnel manager: "Does your company pay my Blue Cross Insurance?"

"No, you pay for it; it is deducted from your salary each month," he was informed.

"Last place I worked they paid for it," the applicant said. "Did they give you a life insurance policy too?" the interviewer asked.

"Sure."

"Profit sharing?"

"Sure."

"Two and three-week vacations?"

"Yes, and they had big bonuses, and gifts for your birthday, and—"

"Why did you leave?"

"The company folded."

New Series on Stocks and Bonds Starts This Week in GE NEWS

Many employees have expressed a desire for information about stocks and bonds lately. Apparently this interest in securities and investment results partly from the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and partly from the fact that as a result of this conversion, over 20,000 participants in the General Electric Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a share of GE stock as a bonus for the U. S. Savings Bonds they purchased under the Plan in 1948.

To try to answer some of the more frequently asked questions, we are beginning today, a series of short articles on the subjects of securities and investment. The series will consist of eight articles in all on the following topics:

1. Who Owns American Business?
- The first in the series appears below.

Who Owns American Business?

All too often the share owner of a business has been pictured as a wealthy individual who smokes big cigars and wears a tall silk hat. At one time it might have been that some of the larger industries in the United States were owned by a relatively small number of wealthy people. This certainly is not true today. Today millions of Americans at all levels of income own shares of our nation's industries.

In fact, a recent survey by the Brookings Institution showed that American businesses are now owned by 6½ million people. That means that about 1 out of every 16 adults in this country has a direct ownership interest in the nation's industries. The startling fact about it all is that in the last three years alone, 1,300,000 people joined the ranks of share owners of American business for the first time in their lives.

The people who own stock of American corporations today are engaged in almost every type of occupation. Many Americans who own shares are: administrative, supervisory, professional and sales personnel; merchants, farmers, clerical, and public service workers; members of the armed forces, skilled and unskilled workers; housewives and students. This turns out to be a pretty good cross section of our whole society, and many of the owners are just average Americans.

Obviously this average Mr. American—or Mrs. American—has discovered that it is not necessary to be a financial wizard to own a part interest in American business enterprises. These share owners know that anyone can acquire an ownership interest in corporations if he has some extra savings to invest and if he is willing to assume the normal risks involved in the ownership of any property.

These are the people then who own stocks—people just like you and the person working next to you. In the next issue we will discuss just what it is these people buy when they invest in securities.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

So long and good luck from the Smokehouse to Charlie Mowery, who leaves us to go into retirement. Come back and visit us, Charlie, whenever you can. . . . Visitors last week were Ben Butler and Eugene Miller. . . . The boss, Al Mason, is enjoying a vacation this week at his lake cottage. His son and family are visiting him and his wife. . . . Charlie Castle went to New York again on business, and also to show off his genuine Panama hat he got for Father's Day. . . . If any of you would have driven down Edgewood Ave. at 3 a.m. the other morning, you would have seen out little steno, Mildred Messer, out in the yard in her pajamas watching the eclipse through her smoked glasses. You may have also seen some of the neighbors watching Millie through their glasses. Millie, by the way, had a birthday July 1. . . . Tragedy struck the household of Ferroll (Cupid) Hill! His old gramophone broke down. Hill says he sure hopes it can be repaired because he hates to give in and buy the family a radio. Who says Jack Benny is close? . . . Bye, Alma.

SLEUTHING in 4-6 by Al Happel

Congratulations to Art Nickerson on completing 25 years with the company. He was presented with his Quarter Century pin and picture at a presentation last Tuesday, July 6. . . . Wow! How did you like that beautiful dark green and white "scrolly" sport shirt a bright red checked (golf) shirt. Wayne Perry wore one day last week? Also, Earl Stauffer had on a bright red checked golf shirt. We hope that you don't start hitting that golf ball up here in 4-6, Earl. Personally, I want to applaud "our men" for "waking up" at last and becoming more versatile in their wearing apparel. Some of the new miracle fabrics are really a boon to the men's summer sportswear, and then too, their bright socks. Well, we just like it! . . . Just call me "Gramps" from now on, so sez Bill Pringle. We'd like to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Pringle, and also the brand new parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Horn (formerly Gayle Pringle). The new arrival by name of Scott Andrew, weighed a little over 7 lbs. and was born Saturday, June 26 in a Columbia City hospital. . . . We welcome to our fold Ken Frankenstein, Laddie Petrucha, and Ralph Church who come to us off test, and who will be spending some time with us in engineering before joining the Marketing section. Also, "Hello" to Eugene Martin who will be a permanent member of Specialty Engineering. He was located in AED for a short time before actually moving in with us. . . . Our new TE's are Melvin E. Stanford working with Max Barrows. He is married and comes to us on his third test assignment having previously been assigned at Utica Ligh Military and engineering test and sign-up at Utica. His college is Texas. He likes radio, television, bridge and all sports. Then we have John Miyasaki working for Bob Loveland. John is single and is a graduate of Ill. Institute of Technology. He has his degree in electrical engineering. His home town is Chicago, Ill. This is his first test assignment with GE. He also likes all sports and radio. . . . Happy Birthday to Wess Goss, July 11.

Cafeteria Favorites

Alma Horton, head pastry cook at the Broadway cafeteria, puts the finishing touches on one of her apple streusel pies.

Some of the most appetite-tickling, tasty tidbits served over the counters at the Broadway cafeteria are the delicious pies that have become a favorite with employees.

Alma Horton, head pastry cook at the Broadway cafeteria, presents her recipe for apple streusel pie. Although she makes many more pies on her job, here is the recipe as she makes it at home for two 9 inch pies.

APPLE STREUSEL PIE

- 4 cups sliced, frozen apples
- ¼ tsp. nutmeg
- ½ cup white sugar
- ¼ tsp. salt
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- 1 Tbs. flour
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 2 Tbs. butter

Mix well sugar, spices, salt, and flour and add to apples; then add butter.

Pie Dough

- 2½ cups sifted flour
- ¾ cup shortening
- 1 tsp. salt
- 5 Tbs. cold water
- 1 tsp. sugar

Mix all ingredients except water into crumbs and then add water. This makes crusts for two pies.

Crumb Topping

- ¾ cup brown sugar
- ½ tsp. salt
- 2 cups flour
- ½ cup butter

Mix sugar, salt, and flour and cut in butter until coarse crumbs are formed.

Place pie dough in pan, add apple mixture and sprinkle topping on it. Bake at 375° to 400° for 45 minutes.

. . . Welcome to William "Bill" Sherman, working for C. J. Herman. He hails from Ann Arbor, Mich. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan. His hobbies are fishing and antique cars. He is married. . . . Welcome to Edward G. Schwarz, working for Mr. Goss. He is from Detroit, Mich. A graduate of Wayne University, he is married. . . . Welcome to Lineu Barbosa, he hails from Brazil and attended the school of Escola Politecnico de S. Paulo. He is interested in swimming and tennis. He works for Dochtermann. Oh yes, girls, he is single. . . . Clarie Mygrant is just about the best behaved little gal in Bluffton these days. Her husband recently became a member of the police force and she's really been soft-pedaling it. . . . Pat Miller took a trip to Niagara Falls over the Fourth week end. She says it's a honeymoon trip but we're all wondering who the proxy is. . . . You girls in the IBM room aren't so much. Better people than you have air conditioning around here. . . . Question of the Week: What in the world was Johnnie Boeckel planning to catch with that bear trap in his desk? . . . If Ray Solga has a few more grey hairs, it's because his little two year old son disappeared Friday about noon. After his frantic mother reported him to the Bureau of Missing Persons he was found about 12 blocks from home. He couldn't find his house and mommy.

Be thrifty when you're young and when you're old you'll be able to afford the things only the young can enjoy.

We express our sympathy to Earl Lenz on the death of his father. . . . Leland Richardson traded a casting rod to Bob Moss-hammer for an indicator. Now when he plans a fishing trip Leland just borrows the rod from Bob. . . . Kenny Sefton went all out when he parked his car in the Jones St. lot the other day. He had the Kaiser parked so well that he had to have a garage mechanic come out to work on the transmission before he could move it. . . . Ralph Steward isn't as agile as he was in his younger days. He used to climb over fences but now he is content to just fall over them. . . . Our newest golfer, Henry Frey, has decided to give up driving the golf ball around in favor of driving a new Ford around. . . . Chet Reynolds had a very red face at the cafeteria the other morning, but it wasn't from a sunburn. Chet was in such a hurry that he was almost through with his coffee before he was reminded of the fact that he hadn't paid for it. . . . Del Stickler plans to take his family to Chicago for a few days during vacation. His children have never been to a zoo, so Del plans to take them to one there. More. Stevie is at the YMCA camp at Blackman Lake this week. Small boys usually get homesick when they are away more than a day, so Stevie's parents were anxious to get the first letter from him. It was four days before he finally got around to using one of the fistfull of stamped, addressed envelopes he had taken along. In the letter Steve inquired about his cat and wondered if his parents would please bring the cat when they came to see him. . . . Art Dicke may think he's a real farmer but we think differently. We heard about his 25 tomato plants in a patch only six feet square. . . . Kurt Martin is figuring on quitting his butter and egg man, Jim Lee. It seems that although the price of eggs has dropped, the number of eggs in a dozen has also dropped. Jim insists he is as honest as the day is long and never shorted any of his customers. We wonder if there's any foul play connected with the fact that every day Kurt gets eggs several of the fellows are standing around eating boiled eggs. Could be, could be. . . . Kenny Smith celebrated his birthday Friday and was showered with enough candy and cigarettes, by his co-workers to last him a month, if he doesn't smoke or eat too much. . . . John Inches also had a birthday Friday and brought in a cake. Said cake disappeared shortly after he brought it in but reappeared in time for eating purposes. . . . They say love is blind, but it's a good thing for Loide Luebke that all drivers aren't blind. She was seen dashing across Broadway one noon amid screeching brakes. The attraction on the other side was her boy friend, home on furlough from the Air Force. Be a patient pedestrian, not a pedestrian patient.

Q. Is it true that submarines have wooden bearings on the propeller shafts?

A. Yes, the hard tropical wood called lignum vitae is widely used in submarines, as well as in other ships, for propeller shaft bearings. The reason is that such bearings are submerged at all times and there is no way of lubricating them, except from the water itself. As a general rule these bearings consist of bronze shells with lengthwise grooves in which lignum vitae strips are installed so as to present their end grain to the shaft. Before assembling, these strips are pre-soaked. They have to be kept moist, in order to prevent shrinkage, until the vessel is launched.

Q. What is the Rosetta stone?

A. This is a piece of basalt, about four feet high, which was found at Rosetta in Egypt by one of Napoleon's officers in 1799, and is now in the British Museum in London. It had been prepared by the priests of Egypt about 200 B.C. in order to publicize one of their decrees. This was given in Greek as well as two Egyptian forms. One was the earlier hieroglyphic and the other was demotic, a more popular form of writing. A French archaeologist, J. F. Champollion, in 1822, showed how it provided the clue to reading ancient Egyptian inscriptions, which had not previously been deciphered.

Q. How can I keep potatoes from turning black after boiling?

A. According to the N. Y. State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, where this problem has been studied, a teaspoonful of lemon juice or vinegar should be added to each quart of water in which the potatoes are boiled. This may cause a little softening of the outside of the potatoes but if they are eaten soon there should be no reduction of their eating quality.

Q. What is meant by a control experiment?

A. A good example might be in a pharmaceutical research to determine the effect of a new drug on animals. It is not sufficient merely to give the drug to animals to see what happens, as some other factor might complicate the effect. Therefore they would be divided into two groups. Both groups would be treated exactly the same except that only one would be given the drug. The group not getting it is called the control, and it would set a standard against which the response of the second group, which did get it, could be checked.

Q. Is it true that there is a layer of granite all around the Earth?

A. Geologists believe that there is a more or less continuous layer of granite beneath the continents. However, it does not extend below the ocean basins. These, it is thought, have a floor consisting of basalt, which is heavier than granite. Basalt contains more iron and magnesium and less silica.

Q. Does light exert a push when it falls on an object?

A. Yes, light does have pressure and this has been used to explain the way the tail of a comet always points from the Sun. It is the pressure of the Sun's light on the material in the tail that pushes it away. In 1900, the pressure of light was demonstrated experimentally, by E. F. Nichols and G. F. Hull in the U. S., and by Lebedew in Russia. Two thin, silvered glass vanes were suspended on a fine quartz fiber inside a bell jar from which air had been exhausted. When a bright light was focused on one of the vanes, it caused the fiber to twist a little, on account of the pressure of the light.

Q. I understand that in a plant in which atomic energy is turned into power, some of the actual matter that makes up the atomic fuel is converted to energy. If matter and energy are thus interchangeable, wouldn't it be true that in ordinary burning of coal a minute amount of the coal is similarly converted?

A. Yes, it is quite true. When coal is burned, by allowing it to combine chemically with oxygen from the air, about 1/10,000,000,000th of the mass of the oxygen and the carbon in the coal is converted to energy.

LUGGAGE FOR RETIREMENT GIFT—Clara Ringenberg who loves to travel was delighted with the luggage gift from her co-workers at retirement. Mrs. Ringenberg has been working in Bldg. 26-1 before retirement. Shown are Elah Greek, Harold Niemeyer, her nephew, Lyda Carter, Mrs. Ringenberg, Fremman Rohlfing, and Mrs. Charlotte Dasher, her daughter.

HITS 35TH GE YEAR—A 35th anniversary with the company was the occasion for a celebration honoring Merland G. Heller (right). Ed Robin and Harley Heckley are on hand to offer best wishes. Mr. Heller first came to GE as a clerk in 1917. He is presently a drill press operator in Bldg. 4-4.

Now don't get alarmed, girls, that wasn't an escaped convict roaming around in the shop the other day. That was just Francis Eady modeling one of the new spring style shirts. Stripes, or checks, or any new style, will be modeled by Francis as soon as they are available to the public. . . . Ralph Roop is busy enjoying a week of vacation. With the temperature as high as it is around here, there seems to be no reason to doubt that most, if not all, of the week will be spent at his lake cottage. . . . A fish story in reverse: Erman Johnson spent quite a bit of time trying to catch some fish recently. Results, well as he says, "they just swam around looking him over and boasting about the big fellow that they kept away from." . . . In case that you missed seeing who the driver was in that new Buick, we will tell you. It was Kenny Beard in his new gas buggy. . . . On a very warm day in June, the 23rd to be exact, just 33 years ago, the wedding bells were ringing out loud and clear. This was the wedding day of Annabelle and Tibbie Gehrig. Congratulations, folks, and just think, only 17 more years and you can celebrate your golden anniversary. . . . Who knows? Was that fish actually that hungry, or was that a very special variety of a fly? All that we do know is this: Bob Owens, one day recently, was just trying his hand at fishing. While fixing his line, he just happened to allow that particular fly to land on the water. Results, a 10½ inch croppie. Not bad since he wasn't even trying to fish just then. . . . We hear that Jay Moser will soon be giving dancing lessons. Several of his students were able to learn the "Bunny Hop" quite well recently. Believe it or not, they learned while on the train traveling to Chicago to attend a ball game. By the way, have you seen Jay's new "shiner"? You look just like a Hollywood celebrity with those sun glasses, Jay. . . . If you see Dort Schnepf dashing around all excited and smiles from ear to ear, it is just because she is so proud of her brand new red Ford convertible. It's beautiful, Dort, and I wish I had one just like it, but I will settle for a ride. . . . The General Electric Aeolian Choir closed their 1953-1954 social season with a dinner and dance for 80 choir members and guests at the Bluffton Country Club Friday evening, June 25. Daniel Foreman, president of the choir, presided as toastmaster and spoke of the choir's closing of a very successful season. He paid tribute to the several high school graduates who are leaving the organization to attend college and enter the armed forces. Dave Embler, director, commended the choir on their performances over the past year and told them of the impending heavy schedule to start in September. He also paid high tribute to Eileen Freeby, accompanist for the choir for the past seven years, who will join her husband at a military installation in Arkansas. Following the dinner, round and square dancing was enjoyed until well after midnight. Fred Bashara's punch and Harper Haubold's exhibition dancing were long to be remembered highlights of this annual event.

Two weeks from today is the vacation shut-down. Purl Hite is starting his vacation early. He had a birthday last week. The one that says he can ring out his clockcard for the last time and bid us goodbye. Next Friday will be the day. On Saturday he and Mrs. Hite will celebrate their 42nd wedding anniversary. Happy birthday, Purl, and wedding anniversary congratulations. We wish you the best of everything in your life of ease. . . . It's also a happy birthday to Marcille Harper and Violet Brower. . . . There has been an increase in the Orville Kaufman household. They have the cutest little pigs. . . . We bid goodbye to Claire Otis. After a two week vacation in Florida, he will be in Cleveland. . . . We were glad to have Clara Ringenberg as a visitor last week. . . . Ida Mae Ernst must have had her mind on that car she purchased. She was holding a stator, turning it back and forth like a steering wheel. . . . Eileen Foor celebrated her birthday. Where she usually eats her lunch, they had a big chocolate cake for the occasion. That still doesn't explain why she carried her shoes back under her arm and wore a pair of the waitress's. . . . Ethel Keller has the rocking chair all oiled up. She will probably be spoiling that new granddaughter. Congratulations, Grandma!

TALES from TAYLOR

SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Don Erchorn came up with an interesting story of a historical nature. Don lives on West Park Drive in Huntington. It seems that the basement of his home being rather shallow, he decided to have it excavated to a depth of ten feet. The workmen hired to do the job encountered massive timbers a short distance below the surface. Upon closer investigation they discovered them to be 24 inches square, some of them being walnut and some oak. Seemingly they appeared to be in excellent condition. On quizzing a local historian about his find, Don learned that his home sets directly in the bed of the old Wabash and Erie Canal and that the banks of this waterway through the city were shored with these heavy timbers which presented quite a problem. The workmen had to saw them into short lengths in order to get them out of the basement. Three layers have been removed, and how many more lay beneath the surface is unknown. We believe that Don has a gold mine under his home. If all of those timbers could be salvaged no doubt they would bring fancy prices. . . . Howard Harold was telling us the other day about the extraordinary yield of his oats crop. He says that it has grown to a height of eight feet. He is in a quandary as to what to do with all of it. He said that if he could not dispose of the crop at the grain elevator, he could bring in several bushels at a time to his co-workers. Someone suggested that he install some heavy rollers in his garage and roll the oats, making it easier to handle and readily edible. . . . Archie Boren surely doesn't have much faith in that new car that he recently purchased. The other morning he brought in an extra heavy tow chain to have it plated. This he intends to stow away in his car. Then if that glorified heap of junk quits him cold, he will be assured of a tow back in to Hunter-town.

Father looked up from his racing form and noticed the baby in the buggy. Turning to his wife, he said: "Baby's nose is running."

His wife snorted and snapped: "Don't you ever think of anything except horse racing."

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

From now on the home stretch drive of the league leaders will get tougher and tougher. Without a doubt most of the contenders wish they could attend the clinic of the Fort Wayne Open to sharpen up their games for the playoffs.

Aces	0	Birdies	0
Pars	0	Eagles	0

In all of the years that I have been the GE NEWS golf reporter, this is the first time that all three matches of league play have ended in a tie. If the scores were not figured on a handicap basis, the outcome would have been much different however. As Dave Munma, the Owl secretary, put it, "These results are almost as unusual as a hole in one."

The Aces spotted the tail end Birdies a 28 stroke handicap and beat them the same amount for a tie.

The Hot Shots gave away 24 points and could only manage the same amount of edge. Jim Sternberger who carded the par of last week soared to a 45. Ozzie Bunch took up some slack with a 38.

Paul Billman and Benny Penkul carded 39's for the front running Eagles who spotted the Pars 12 strokes. Carl Kuzeff a 46 average player for the leaders hacked his way to a big fat 57.

The net result of the days firing in this league was that it just brings the Eagles closer to the final playoff berth.

Monday Afternoon

Leo Almandinger's Putters are almost a shoo-in for the title of this league. They hold a 37 point lead over the Penkul Wire Mill club.

Financials were the latest team to feel the championship surge of the leaders. Tony Wickman's 40 led the way to a 12 point win.

Paul Boedecker's Highballs got tired of sitting in the cellar and beat Becker's Transformer team by five points to give them a taste caboose riding. Becker's 42 didn't help much.

Second place Wire Mill trying to hang on to the leaders tail picked up four points from the Divoteers. A 37 by Ray Hills aided and abetted the winners. Ray incidently was putting four footers for birdies on holes 8 and 9.

Tuesday

With only two weeks to go, the Nineteenth Holers are breathing down the necks of the leading Divot Diggers. These two teams met in a crucial battle with the Braden club house boys taking an eight point verdict despite Pres Slack's hacking up number 15 rough. (Hitting a ball left handed is bad enough let alone having a big dog snap at your shirt tails.) Bob Dent carded the low of 40 for the two teams.

The Forty Niners foreseeing the possibility of vacating the cellar tripped the Black Optimists by two points and crawled to within two points of fifth place.

The Dubs picked up a 12 point win from the Gas House Tigers.

Winter St.

The leading Niblicks and the second place Putters muffed chances to gain ground in the standings by losing by eight and nine points respectively.

Stu Fisher's Spoons derailed the winning express of the Niblicks by eight tallies and the Brassies administered a nine point lacing to the second place Putters.

Jim Geiger's Mashies rudely bumped the Driver's from third to fifth spot with an 11 point beating

GE Pony Leaguers Move Into Second By Downing Zeiss Jr. Sheriffs 8-2

In recent action in the North Pony League, GE defeated the Zeiss Jr. Sheriffs Friday, July 2, by an 8 to 2 score. The win enabled GE to climb into a second place tie with Transport Motors.

Tom O'Keefe went the distance for the winners allowing six hits, striking five, and giving up two walks. Home runs by Jim Haffner and Bob Watson, each with a man on base, gave O'Keefe his first victory against no defeats.

Security Cartage leads the North League after the first three weeks of play. GE and Transport Motors are tied for second and third, followed by Huber's Business Machines, Zeiss Jr. Sheriffs, and Allen Dairy.

and moved into fourth in doing so. Winter St. golfers are reminded to remember the golf stag at Little Crooked Golf Course tomorrow.

Interdepartment Race Tightens As Lab Noses Squares 2 to 1

Tightening up the race in the Interdepartment Softball League, the Lab team handed the league-leading GE Squares their first defeat and tied with them for first place. As a result of the Lab's 2 to 1 victory over the Squares, both teams have a 5 win, 1 loss standing. The game turned into a pitchers' duel between Beltz and Carl Draznik's 3 base hit drove in the winning run.

In other action June 30, it was the TE's over Winter St. by a 10 to 7 score. The TE's Bob Stauffer and Winter St.'s McClain belted in a home run apiece. The score was tied 6 all in the last of the sixth. Then the TE's scored 4 runs in the top of the seventh and McClain connected with his homer in the seventh for the losers.

The Vets added another win to their record with a victory over the AST men 15 to 3. Webber of the AST made an unassisted double play. Pitcher Hoevel of the AST's had trouble with walks. The Vets' Zimmerlee made two outstanding catches 50 feet behind his first base position and Vlasheff hit a homer.

This win by the Vets brings their standing to 4 wins and 1 loss with a rained-out game to make up. This provides a possible three-way tie in the league at this stage of play.

Bill, who got the eggs? . . . It was a strange and unusual sight to see Bernice Mertz at 4 p.m. one day very quickly close her desk, clean up her work, and tear out of the office preparing to go home. However, it was quite a different girl who crept back in again very disgusted and sheepish when she learned the real time. . . . Cy Seymour literally took our breath away when he stated that all good things come in little packages, meaning, people. So, speaking for all the little people, we are duly grateful. . . . For the most even tempered fellow on the floor we nominate Carl (Judge) Chadwick. The riding he takes in the euehre games would blow the lid off an ordinary man. . . . Summer is definitely here, which is proven by the haircut that Carol Norman has. . . . Apparently it is a case of mistaken identity since the cheering section of Mettler, Klomp and Hattendorf distinctly want it known that they are the jeering section and the threat of locked office doors means nothing to them. . . . It seems that the baseball season is over for everyone except Des Walker and Herb Buck, who vow to fight it out on these lines all summer. . . . From now on we will probably have to address Jim as Mr. Schwartz, since he is the proud owner of a new '54 Ford. . . . It's always been a known fact that Charlie Kensill was a man of few words and of more action. That fact was brought to the front by the recent dunking affair. He is now wearing a large and very illustrative badge to that effect. Also, a word to the wise is sufficient. girls. He is no respecter of sex and dunks both male and female without partiality. However, it takes quite a heated argument before he will perform his specialty and the nearness of a suitable body of water. . . . Anyone interested in having stumps removed, see Walter (dynamite) Lorenz. But, for personal and property's sake, make sure the objects to be removed are quite a distance away from everything. . . . To date Mike Lowe hasn't had much success in his attempts to get Alice Pflueger to give up smoking, but Alice has given him an "E" for effort. . . . Before Jim Smith gets through with it, Hunteartown should have the best lighting system in the state. . . . Howard Brooks had a nice combination for his 3rd week's vacation. He attended a wedding and a fishing trip. . . . The usual custom on donating blood is to take just a little to eat, but Buck Lydy abused the privilege by devouring the entire plate of food provided by the Blood Center. . . . Quotation for the Week: "That is a good book which is opened with expectation and closed with profit."

One kind of motorist that never runs out of gas is the back seat driver.

GE Club Jr. Fed Nine Splits Pair; Win From Redbirds, Lose to Maxton

Splitting a pair of games last week, the GE Club team in the Junior Federation League scored a 9 to 2 win over the Redbirds at McMillen June 30 and were on the losing end of the same score after they faced Maxton Motors July 4.

The 9 to 2 loss of GE to Maxton Motors gave the latter team undisputed lead in the league. In the July 4 game, MM scored five runs in the first inning and four in the third. After that Wagner took over and held the Maxton team in check.

Last evening the GE lads faced GMC at McMillen. Next week the club meets Renners July 11 and Butler July 14.

Mid-West Golf Tourney Qualification Rounds Set For Saturday

Qualification rounds for berths on the GE Club team in the Mid-West Industrial golf tourney will be held Saturday, July 10, and Saturday, July 17.

The following golfers have been selected to try out:

Willie Adams, Jack Steel, Carl Saaf, Benny Penkul, Ray Hills, Tony Wiehman, Shorty Poyser, Jim Walley, Bill Kayser, Dick Szink, Warren Wickliffe, Paul Billman, Jack Skevington, and Red Braden.

This will be a 36 hole playoff with summer rules in effect.

BLDG. 19-1

Mildred Messer has returned after a long sick spell. Glad you are back, M. We will miss Elma Newhard when she leaves us for other parts. It's been wonderful making friends with you, Elma, and I know the gang will miss you. . . . The younger set can't put anything over on Jim Kocher. He went out and got himself a crew haircut. He tried to explain to the wife how much he would save on shampoo, etc., but she still didn't like the style. I think you look real "cool" myself, Jim. . . . Kenny McDaniels noticed me flipping over some papers on my desk and asked if I was turning over a new leaf. I thought that was right clever, and so early on Monday morning, too. . . . Clayton Barlick became a grandpa again. He has a new granddaughter by the name of Deborah Marie. Don't spoil her too much, Tate, if you can help it. . . . Also congratulations to Agnes Hilterbrick, formerly of Bldg. 31-1, who recently had a baby girl. "Papa" Hilterbrick is an engineer in Bldg. 31-2. . . . My, aren't we fancy! I am referring to the "Esquire" boys, namely Perry Wright and Henry Wells of Bldg. 22. It seems that when lunch time approaches, these two discard their work clothes, don street attire, then saunter over to the cafeteria or wherever they choose to eat. And I thought women were finicky. . . . Nowadays the dollar dinner is served on white or rye. . . . Most men are against the idea of wearing shorts as summer business attire. It's a matter of innate conservatism, modesty, and knobby knees. . . . It is better to give than to receive, and besides, it's deductible. . . . Few people are killed or injured any more by Fourth of July fireworks. We use autos instead. . . . The Internal Revenue Service is 92 years old this month. Many happy returns.

SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Rachel Mounsey

Gee, now that there are so many of the people gone, things just don't look the same here at Taylor St. . . . Mabel Moser and Luella Ternet have joined the day gang, and Ed Bierely has joined the second trick. Things will be more quiet now with Ed gone. . . . Jack Scott is back at his old tricks again. He gets to work early and goes to sleep in his car and forgets to wake up in time. Jack says he has good dreamy music on the radio. . . . Chet Carey sure can smile and show those new ivories he got last week. . . . Congratulations and best wishes to Loretta Day who become Mrs. Lee House last week. . . . Butch Castle doesn't mind the price of coffee these days. Butch's car broke down in Hartford City the other morning. While he was waiting for his brother to come after him he had five cups. Long wait, eh Butch? . . . Kenny Will and Ward Hall are making preparations for their big trip north. . . . Gene Kelsey tried to quit smoking but he just couldn't do it. He couldn't stand the smoke from the rest of the guys. . . . Dorothy Beasley and Esther Schladenhaefen enjoyed a picnic at Genelda Blessing's place Saturday night. . . . We wish Virginia Johnson a speedy recovery from her recent back operation. . . . Ray Folghum has acclaimed the title of "Old Faithful." When he is here he doesn't do anything, and when he is gone he never knows. . . . Anyone riding to work with "Goody" Cunningham had better make sure they have good walking shoes on. He is in the habit of letting his riders walk home.

Les Glougie, our proud new papa, was on vacation last week. His wife was very happy to have him at home, as he relieved her of doing dishes, diapers, and dunking the baby. . . . Things are again back to normal at the Bill Shryock manse. Bill made a hurried trip to Pittsburgh and returned with his wife and second-born Daniel. . . . Remember Gene St. John, that popular blonde TE from Corpus Christi, Tex., who was on the Sales Training Test Program in Mr. Whearley's section several months ago? He is the one who won the singles and doubles in the city tennis tournament last summer. We have an invitation to his marriage to Dorothy Sue Garner, to take place July 24 in San Antonio, Texas. . . . We have it on good authority, that the people in Mr. Warner's group are very happy to have Tommy Thompson return to his desk after several days' absence due to illness. It seems that not only has Tommy been uncomfortable, but the people pinch hitting for him have also had an occasional rough time. . . . Another person having a very uncomfortable time is Walt Nielsen, who has found that extended boat rides can result in blistered shanks. It seems that a cooling breeze does not deaden the effectiveness of the sun's rays over Fox River. . . . Best wishes to Donna Miller who was married recently to Dan Feber, who is employed at the Winter St. Plant. . . . Everyone in Accounting knows Paul Magnuson has a garden but they didn't know until lately that Paul was expecting his potatoes to grow on vines. Helen Hopple finally enlightened him and told him he would have to dig for this treasures. . . . Vacation-bound Isabel Bartholomew is now basking under the Florida sun at her parents' home in Kissimmee, Fla. Her plans include attending the Florida Rodeo held annually at Kissimmee, the cow capital of Florida. Ride 'em cowboy! . . . George Knight and Glen Clifton just returned from their vacations. Both took trips to the Smokey Mountains, and soon found that this is really a small world. They passed each other several times while enroute, and were quite surprised to find they were both going to the same place. . . . What was Marvin Snyder trying to prove when his chair fell over backwards with him in it? Was it embarrassing, Marvin? . . . Happy Birthday to Kenny French, whose birthday was July 5. . . . The long awaited day has finally arrived for Walt Gerke. He moved into his new home over the Fourth of July week end. . . . Don Miller, a former draftsman now a drafting supervisor at Danville, Ill., paid the GPM Drafting Section a visit Tuesday, June 29. Everyone was very happy to see him. . . . A week ago last Friday, Eugene LaFavour left the General Electric to go in business for himself in a service station located on the corner of Pontiac and Anthony. . . . Welcome to Jim Crowe who took Eugene's job in the reproduction section. . . . We bid farewell to Dick Moskel who is leaving us to go to Cleveland, Ohio. It was good to have you with us, Dick. . . . Have you noticed that extra special sparkle in Delores Hahn's eyes lately? 'Tis a reflection from the diamond she received from Everett Junge. . . . Herman Norr would like for us to believe that the far away look means he is conjuring up some magic way to package motors, but we know better. He is probably thinking about the wonderful trip his daughter and sister are taking through the European countries. . . . And speaking of vacations, Dr. Murdock is planning to visit Hawaii after completing his business in San Francisco. Wonder if grass skirts cause hay fever? Hey! Hey! fever no doubt. . . . If you notice Jack Farris or Al Hartman leave anytime during the day with a dust cloth, they are probably checking their new cars to be sure no dust has marred the gleaming beauties. . . . We are glad to hear that Dick Stauffer's son is improving so nicely after surgery on his arm. . . . This isn't exactly news anymore, but since this is our first column, we want to mention that Alice Rosendahl is now Mrs. Glen Carpenter.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Our congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Curry who celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on June 22nd. . . . We wonder what the comment was that George Harmeyer made to the police officer who told him he could be fined for jay walking. It seems George was in a rather ugly frame of mind when one of the fair sex beat him to a parking space downtown. Anyhow, George wants to forget the whole matter. . . . Anyone who cares to swim can go to Frank Clifton's home. He has a private swimming pool all his own. P.S. It's in the basement. . . . We welcome Art Pequignot back from his vacation. We hope he rested enough to make it work on time each morning. A couple days he made it ten minutes before the whistle. . . . Cornelia Glass celebrated a birthday recently. We hope it was a happy one. . . . You can take Erma Werling shopping with you if you want to spend your money fast and furious. . . . The other evening while Nancy McCrear was shopping, several clerks remarked what a nice looking mother she had with her. Should we ask who the person was? . . . Mildred Strickler has a new dog that she calls "Mona" because she says it moans all night. . . . We are wondering if Ed Lauer is going to get his new chompers in time to eat roasting ears. . . . If Erma Werling wants extra passengers on her vacation trip, we are sure several people would be glad to go. She plans to see the Badlands and also the "Passion Plate". . . . Happy birthday to Art Pequignot on July 12. . . . Dale Amstutz sent his wife downtown shopping while he took their children to the park. To her surprise, she discovered he had given her the endorsed stub instead of the check. We hope she had time to calm herself while waiting for him on the corner. . . . Ask Lois Bailey if she has been standing under that tree lately. If not, she had better try it again. . . . Don't mind if Ed Lauer is acting strange. He is just getting the winders out of his hair. . . . Ray Loveless is a whiz at setting up "96" machines. The winders enjoyed working with him while Art was vacationing. . . . John Collins is just about ready to take the cure on going to Chicago for the production department. On a trip two weeks ago, John ran out of gas. This week, he had a little bearing trouble, but John stayed in there pitching and made it back safe both times. . . . We wish a happy vacation to Willard Lenz and as usual hope the fish are biting good. . . . I want to apologize for the absence of a column last week. It's a sure thing the editor can't publish it if it's laying home on the dresser.

FORT WAYNE, DECATUR PLANTS GET SET FOR TWO-WEEK VACATION SHUTDOWN

Elex Members to Visit State Fair September 4 as First Big Fall Event

"Get acquainted with your state at the Indiana State Fair" is the invitation Elex Club is extending its members this week. Plans to take Elexers to the State Fair Grounds Saturday, Sept. 4, for a one-day visit at one of the largest state fairs in the country were announced by Voyce Brumbaugh, president. The trip is open to members only.

With the exhibitions and judging, whirling ferris wheels, large fashion show, harness racing, parade of 4-H champions, and entertainment provided by Eddie Fisher, Jan Garber, and the Mills Brothers, the day promises to be a big event.

Special chartered buses will leave the Greyhound Station here at 6 a.m., Sept. 4 and stop at the station in Huntington at 6:45 a.m. to pick up girls in that area. Buses will leave Indianapolis fairgrounds at about 10:30 p.m., immediately following the Eddie Fisher show.

Price of the trip for members is 50 cents per person. Membership cards will be checked on each bus. Cost covers transportation only.

Reservations may be made beginning August 9 with contact girls, at the Women's Activities offices at Broadway or Taylor St., or with Voyce Brumbaugh at Winter St. Reservations will close August 20.

The September 4 date of the State Fair will be called "Youth Achievement Day." A state-wide broadcast titled "Salute to Youth, and State Fair" will take place then. Other events slated for the date include a 4-H state dress review, junior livestock and dairy judging, shearing contest, barrow judging, and performance by Irish Horan Hell Drivers.

Offer Accepted By 72 Unions

Seventy-two union acceptances of the company's offer of increased pay and other benefits had been reported by mid-week.

Company representatives met in New York Tuesday and Wednesday with the IUE committee, which has delayed acceptance of the offer while the employees in IUE bargaining units have for almost seven weeks been losing extra pay which the majority of GE employees have been getting in their wages and have been getting or will get in their vacation pay. No further meeting date was set.

GE Acts To Stabilize Jobs; Bids For New Utility Orders

In a frank bid for immediate job-making orders on heavy turbine-generating equipment, GE last week offered to bear part of the costly financial load which utilities companies encounter in their orderly expansion of the nation's electric facilities.

Under a bold job-steadying plan made public by Vice-President G. B. Warren, the company will stand the cost of initial engineering and manufacturing on turbines and related equipment. Utility companies who place orders now, instead of waiting for a general upturn in business, will retain cancellation privileges for six months at only a minimum amount of the contract price.

Mr. Warren said that this cancellation charge would be "much less than the normal customer liability and far less than the actual factory costs incurred by GE." As an additional spur to immediate business from electric power companies, GE will try to work out a means of financing the charges normally made prior to shipment until the financing can be taken over entirely by the customer, he concluded.

Industry observers and a number of newspapers were quick to recognize this latest move by GE management as an important step in maintaining present employment in Schenectady and in many other GE plant cities at levels well above the national average. The turbine action caps a series of company-wide efforts by management to keep GE employment at the highest point in the company's peace time history despite the general drop in business during this readjustment from the Korean crisis.

Commenting on the new sales policy the New York Times said it would "assist the nation's electric utilities in meeting their projected growth, ease the financing process and maintain optimum employment and use of engineering and manufacturing facilities."

The New York Herald Tribune voiced similar optimism in an editorial titled "A New Business Stabilizer."

"The General Electric Company has designed a new equipment-purchasing contract that promises greatly to assist electric utility

Preparations for the vacation shutdown at the Fort Wayne and Decatur plants got under way this week and operating schedules for these locations during the shutdown were announced. No manufacturing is slated for the two-week period.

A total of 824 employees will remain at work during the first week of the shutdown and 778 will be on the job the second week. These employees will handle maintenance, shipping and receiving, accounting and payroll, service engineering, plant protection, medical service, telephone and telegraph, marketing, engineering, and mail service.

Other sections will have personnel on call. To contact any section, persons should call either the guards or telephone operators.

Vacation pay will be made automatically by payroll sections for the actual number of days employees are eligible as of August 8 to a maximum of two weeks. Hourly employees will receive their vacation pay July 21 and salary employees will get their vacation pay July 23. Deductions will be calculated as though each week of vacation pay was paid separately.

Insurance

Insurance claims and other insurance business will be handled by Leola Johnson for all departments.

VACATION PAY

Employees who work during vacation shutdown will receive their pay checks in the usual manner. Broadway and Taylor St. employees who are on vacation but wish to pick up their checks during the shutdown may do so on two days only. These are Wednesday, July 28, and August 4. The checks will be available at the Broadway west gate house from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1:15 to 4:15 p.m. on the two days.

Checks will be distributed to the employee only. He must have positive identification and know his clock number.

Those who plan to pick up their checks at these times may park along Broadway while they get their checks. A. R. Vegalues, chief of plant protection, reported. Employees are asked not to park in front of any of the gates.

Winter St. employees who wish to pick up their checks during the shutdown may do so Wednesday, July 28, and August 4, at the Winter St. guardhouse from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

'BEAT WALT SUNIER' theme of the GE Squares Club golf stag tomorrow at Brookwood Golf Course, will pit veteran golfer Sunier against the field. Taking practice swings at Sunier are Jim Walley, Bldg. 4-6, last year's tourney winner, and Bob Rescorla, Squares prexy. Members who card a lower score than Sunier's tomorrow will receive prizes.

Broadway Guard Saves Young Man From Drowning

Quick action with resuscitation on the part of Ed Parisot, guard at the Broadway plant, saved a young man's life last week in Henning, Minn.

Parisot was on vacation at a lake resort belonging to Rufus Hall. Hall called to him that a man had drowned. The near victim, Bernhard Aune, 18, who was a poor swimmer, had gone bathing in a creek. There was a steep drop-off and Aune was unable to make it to shallower water and sank.

Hall and another man went for a boat and found the body about 12 feet down in calm water. Hall brought the man to the surface and took him to shore.

Parisot, the only man with resuscitation training, decided to

Investment in Creative Capital

The experts at the Bureau of the Census tell us that at the rate our population is growing, we'll have another 7,000 new little Americans on the scene within the next 24 hours—assuming it's an average day for vital statistics. There are about 161 million people in the country today, and by 1960, only a few years off, there will be about 175 million.

A growing population should mean good things for all of us—more demands on business, more jobs, more goods. And if things work out right, better income levels and new, exciting standards of living; more things for everyone.

However, there is one sobering thought. Big, growing populations can be a liability, instead of an asset, if they are non-productive. That is, if the population doesn't have enough of the productive equipment and resources to turn out the goods and services a pace fast enough to keep up with our growing needs. Think, for example, of Asia's teeming millions—at near-starvation levels!

We all know that America's productive capacities are vast; far ahead of anything that other countries or even continents possess. Maybe that makes it easy for us to take it for granted that we will always have a great productive machine equal to anything it's called upon to do. It won't happen that way, though, unless we do something about it. To keep our production up and going ahead, we've got to have investment in our future—investment in America.

There must be a willingness to invest, on the part of many millions of Americans, if we are to keep up with our growing requirements for future production.

"Investment" is apt to sound like a mere dollars-and-cents proposition. But when by investment we mean the building up of our productive equipment for future needs, it is far more than a matter of dollars and cents. It is a creative process—composed of hard work, daring, self-denial, and imagination.

Builders of capital equipment—investors—work for a living, with virtually no exceptions. They've got to be willing to risk. Without self-denial, there would be no savings to see both the needs and the opportunities that lie ahead.

What, then, determines the willingness of people to invest? What decides whether the horizon of investment and future progress is unlimited? To a great extent, is our national tax policy, affecting both incentives and savings.

The burden of high taxes today falls across all income groups. And when tax reductions are possible, tax relief should apply across the board. Tax policy must take heed of the fact that the key to economic progress, to better futures for all of us, is the building of productive equipment. If we are to have the production, the jobs, and the income to keep up with the needs of our growing nation, our tax policy must encourage saving—and stimulate the investment of savings in creative capital.

How Are Pay Scales Set In the Russian Empire?

By the state. Labor is paid by the piece rate. Wages are determined by how much money the government allots for each industry under the five-year plan.

Piece rates, against which labor in the free world has long struggled as unjust, enable the Soviet empire to speed up production continually. As workers turn out more work, piece rates are lowered. "The reduction of pay rates," said the central committee of the Soviet Communist party in 1947, "is an indispensable condition for the reduction of production costs."

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

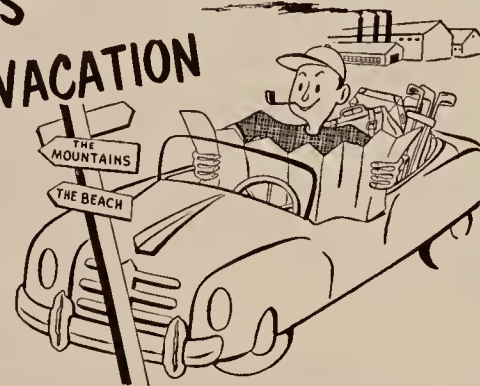

Congratulations to Helen Biddle and Hallie Hosler for being with the company for 25 years. . . . We are a little bit late, but we still want to congratulate Helen Pickett on the pink bootied addition at her home. . . . We are adding another candle on the birthday cake for Mildred Briggs and Mary Monigal. Happy birthday, girls. . . . Mary Hake will be more careful where she puts things. Last week she put her umbrella in the wastepaper basket to finish drying. The fellow came along and threw it out with the wastepaper. Needless to say, she dashed after him to retrieve her umbrella. . . . We have a modern Annie Oakley on our floor. Our own Ivah Grandstaff. . . . Last Thursday 155 co-workers had a farewell dinner for Charlie Rice, Jess Hahn, and Max Decker. They left us this week to be in the office. We wish you lots of luck in your new jobs. . . . If you think Rose Fuhrman looks sleepy these mornings, it's because she has a new TV. . . . Ethel Keller was on vacation last week getting acquainted with her new granddaughter. . . . We are beginning to hear of vacation plans. Don't plan on going fishing in Wisconsin. Art and Gertie Maske will be catching all of them. . . . Violet Brower is going to Florida. . . . Mary Wright, Frances Eckrote and Mildred Huntine will be in California. . . . Mary Foster went over to the vending machine to get some gum. She put in her money, pulled out the handle and got crackers. . . . We see a lot of different faces on first trick this week, as we welcome part of the people from second trick.

SIX NOT SO HOT IDEAS

1. Hot foods in the winter, cold foods in the summer, or vice versa: Whether foods are served hot or cold really makes little difference. It's the food value that counts. There are the same number of calories, the same mineral content, the same energy material in potato soup whether you have it hot or cold. A hot soup may make you warmer while you are eating it, but this feeling soon wears off.
2. People who drink a lot of water are usually stout: Water helps to wash away the wastes of your body, internally or externally. Water helps to keep your body cool in the summer through the proper functioning of sweat glands. Ordinarily all the water you drink is quickly eliminated. It does not add weight. Water is held in your body and adds pounds only if bodily functions are not operating correctly.
3. Unsalted or Unsmoked Pork should never be eaten in the summer: Pork should never be eaten at any time unless it is well cooked. Even salted or smoked pork should be well cooked. Pork is often infected with trichinae—small parasites which if taken internally cause disease in the intestinal tract and muscles of man. This parasite is rendered harmless when pork is cooked at a temperature of 350 degrees for at least 20 minutes per pound.
4. In the summer you should switch from cocktails to beer: A glass or two of beer or a cocktail at any time of the year probably won't do you any harm, but remember, they are pretty high in calories. Lemonade, lightly sweetened, because it is high in Vitamin C, is probably the most fortifying of summer drinks.
5. In the summer, lunches should consist of raw vegetables and fruit salads: All lunches should include at least one of the following—eggs, cheese, meat or milk. Eat the salad if you like, but be sure to supplement it with a glass of milk or a milk pudding. If you prefer to stick to your sandwich lunch, include your salad at dinner time.
6. The quickest way to cool off is with a cold shower and an ice cold drink: Cold showers are all right for those who take them day after day, year in and year out. But, a luke warm one is best for most people. It won't shock your system, but will soothe tired or weary muscles. As for extra cold drinks, they too can be "shocking" internally. Better take your liquids only slightly cooled if you're extra warm. Do remember that in the hot months you do need more fluids than at other seasons. Ample fluids will help to keep your sweat glands operating efficiently. As sweat evaporates, your body is cooled—just like a refrigerator.

EAT AND DRINK SENSIBLY AT ALL TIMES.

Improved Social Security Benefits Urged by Marshall

Social Security benefits should be paid to the eight million aged persons now ineligible and present tax coverage and future benefits coverage should be extended to all gainfully employed persons, according to A. D. Marshall, manager, Employee Benefits Department.

Appearing before the Senate Finance Committee as spokesman for the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Marshall applauded the administration proposal to bring another additional 9.7 million persons into the Social Security System. "This," he said, "is a long step towards universal tax coverage essential to a public purpose program."

Direct payment of Federal Old Age and Survivor's Insurance benefits to the unprotected aged, Mr. Marshall said, would make present Federal grants to the states' old-age assistance programs unnecessary. He pointed out however, that the states would remain free to continue these programs, paying any rate of benefits they chose.

Pay-As-You Go

He recommended that the Administration's bill be amended to finance Social Security on a pay-as-you-go basis and urged that the so-called reserve fund, now $19 billion, be retained as a cushion against possible financial emergencies. Mr. Marshall said that "Only with Social Security on a pay-as-you-go basis can the true costs of benefit increases be appreciated. The cost of today's benefit increases are being assessed against tomorrow's taxpayers. We should be aware of our responsibility to the millions of young people who will have to bear this burden. We must provide a true picture of the costs involved —a brake against a round of benefit increases which seemingly cost nothing."

Mr. Marshall approved the Administration's proposal to substitute a uniform $1,000 annual earning exemption for the present $75 a month exemption.

Mr. Marshall questioned the Administration proposal to require persons covered by Social Security to pay taxes on the first $4,200 of income rather than the first $3,600 as now. This increase in the taxable wage base, he said, would shift primary consideration from the lower earning groups to higher earnings groups.

While supporting the Administration's proposal to increase the minimum monthly benefits from $25 to $30, Mr. Marshall argued against the proposed formula which, he said, would discriminate against the lower wage earner by providing greater increases for the higher wage earners, and it would violate the principle of a minimum floor of protection. He noted for example, the beneficiary whose average monthly wage is $150 would receive an increase of 10 per cent in benefits, while the person earning an average wage of $350 monthly would receive an increase of 28 per cent in benefits.

The incorporation of the disability "freeze" in the Administration Bill would, he said, be prohibitive in cost and require an elaborate Federally-controlled sys-

Robert O. Kirby, 36 Dies at Home July 8

Robert O. Kirby, 36, died Thursday, July 8, at his home, 4423 Weisser Park Blvd. Services were conducted at the Wellman Funeral Home by the Rev. Arthur Radtke. Burial was in Greenlawn Memorial Park.

A graduate of the Apprentice School, Mr. Kirby entered the school when he came to the company in 1936. He graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course in September, 1940, and became a draftsman in Bldg. 4-6. He was a draftsman at Taylor St. until April 1, 1954, when he retired due to ill health.

Survivors include his wife, Leona; one son, Randal; a sister, Mrs. Loretta Hall, and his father, Otto Kirby, of Orlando, Fla.

Services Held Today For Henry Aumann, 79

A retired employee, Henry E. W. Aumann, 79, died Tuesday, July 13 in the Lutheran Hospital. Services were conducted today in the Rodenbeck Funeral Home. Burial was in Greenlawn Memorial Park.

A Quarter Century Club member, Mr. Aumann came to General Electric in 1892 and retired in 1932. Prior to retirement he was a foreman. He was also a member of the Foremen's Association. He was a lifelong resident of Fort Wayne.

In addition to his wife, Elizabeth, survivors include his son, Erwin W. Aumann, who works in Bldg. 31-2, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Koldewey, also of Fort Wayne.

tem of medical examinations which could be utilized as an opening wedge in the ever-present drive for socialized medicine.

"Our aim," he said, "is to strengthen and improve Social Security so that it banishes fear of want in old age and at the same time becomes a bulwark of our competitive enterprise system, the system which makes it possible for us to look forward to something more than bare subsistence living."

Mr. Marshall is a member of the board of directors and chairman of the committee on Social Legislation of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Richard E. Gebert Appointed Supervisor of Apprentices

The appointment of Richard E. Gebert as supervisor of apprentices has been announced by Robert Wylie, manager of contributing manufacturing, General Purpose Component Motor Department.

In 1936 Mr. Gebert came to the company and was a messenger boy. The next year he entered the Apprentice School. After graduation from the machinist-toolmaker course in 1941, he became a toolmaker in the General Tool Section.

After moving to Taylor St. in 1942 Mr. Gebert became a tool planner. From 1944 until 1946 he served in the U. S. Navy. He entered Hermetic planning as a planning leader in 1946 and became assistant to the supervisor of apprentices in 1947.

In 1950 Mr. Gebert was recalled to the U. S. Navy and spent 15 months with the Pacific Fleet Training Command before being discharged in 1952. When he returned to GE, Mr. Gebert became educational courses specialist in Bldg. 16-3. He had this job until his present appointment.

Mr. Gebert is a member of the Apprentice Alumni Association, GE Squares Club, Supervisors

Richard E. Gebert

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Blanche Kanning celebrated her birthday last week. Thanks for the nice treat, Blanche. . . . Wayne Colvin complained of a sore hand one day. It seems the rains came and in the act of shutting the window, his hand landed in his wife's cactus. At last report, the cactus was still in the wastepaper basket. . . . Audrey Oberly let Ruth Goral borrow her car after work. Ruth had only Audrey's description of the car, as she had never seen it. In the process of elimination on two-tone green Fords, Ruth was caught trying to open another person's car. When asked if that was her car, all Ruth could say was that she guessed it wasn't. . . . We don't know if Frank Clifton got a crock hair cut or what style. Anyway, his ears set out further than they did. . . . We express our sincere sympathy to Ruth Freeland on the death of her father. . . . What was wrong with Virgil Buchanan that he couldn't see the telephone pole? Could it be he needs new glasses? . . . We are glad Art Pequignot's wedding anniversary comes only once a year. It must have been a good celebration, as he didn't come to work until noon the next day. . . . We are happy to learn that Louise Lengerich's mother is doing fine after her operation. . . . Congratulations to Mac McCray on his birthday. The cake was delicious, Mac. . . . It is a real mystery concerning Shorty Pequignot's pants. Really, Shorty, we can't believe your story. Anyway, they were ripped from the top to nearly the bottom. . . . Anyone wanting to bring Erma Werling a sandwich, just make it hacon, lettuce, and tomato. . . . Oh, by the way, if you see a mere shadow come in to work, you will know it's Doris Rinehold. We think her wafers have started to work. . . . Cornelia Glass has seen a new make of car. She says it's a convertible with the lid down.

ELECTRICAL HAZARDS were explained and demonstrated last week by Indiana & Michigan Electric Company representatives to more than 400 GE employees at Broadway and Taylor St. in six sessions. Del Wartak, I&M engineer, and Eugene Kabisch, supervisor of safety at I&M, presented the demonstration to the safety committeemen.

After nearly three-quarters of an hour, the drowning man moaned and shortly thereafter began to talk. A doctor who arrived on the scene paid tribute to Parisot and Hall for saving the young boy's life.

Parisot, who received his resuscitation training in the General Electric program, urged today that everyone brush up on his training. "It's a wonderful feeling to be able to do something at times like this," he said.

Eva Weckrick is pretty in her new glasses. . . . Two from our group leave Saturday on trips to the west coast. They will be gone three weeks. Maurice Petgen and Ed Davis are the lucky two. . . . Betty Swift has a lovely coat of tan, the result of a week at the lake. . . . Phyllis Poling returned Monday after a session with house cleaning and a vacation too. . . . Happy birthday to Carl Zich, Dorothy McCoy, Ruth Schroeder, and Paul Klage. . . . Charles Stockert is replacing Tony Settini on the label machine for two weeks. Tony will be absent while taking two week's training with the Air Force Reserves. . . . We congratulate Delwood J. Bucher, who completed 25 years service with the GE company on July 13. . . . Lest you forget, only one more week until vacation. With the temperature at 96 degrees, hope we don't melt before the week is up.

Credit Union Open During Shutdown

The Fort Wayne General Electric Employees Credit Union will remain open during the vacation shutdown, Lee Cupp, secretary-treasurer, announced this week.

For the two weeks of vacation, the Credit Union office will be open Mondays through Fridays from 7:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

companies in carrying through orderly expansion programs. In order to level out peaks and valleys in the ordering of power-generating equipment, the company will undertake the initial engineering and manufacturing work on large orders subject to the provision that such orders can be cancelled up to six months later at only a minimal charge. The effect should be to reduce the tendency of firms in the electric utility field to bunch their orders in times of prosperity and to cut them severely at the onset of a downturn.

"Far from meaning that cancellations will now occur more frequently, the new policy provides a margin of financial insurance that will encourage electric utilities to schedule expansions more smoothly. The larger the number that do so, the greater the contribution that the electric utilities industry and the electric manufacturing industry will make to over-all stability. As stability increases, the need for cancellations will diminish. To increase the certainty of this desirable sequence, the General Electric Company plans to work out new methods of financing charges normally made prior to shipment.

"Although this constructive policy will help GE's customers and should improve its own sales volume and pattern, it has broader significance. The operating and investment policies of private firms have often been so irregular as to aggravate the economy's tendencies toward instability of employment and income. The extension in recent times of the economic power of the Federal Government has been due in substantial part to public demand for a powerful

What Are Stocks?

As a result of the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and because over 20,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a full share of stock as a bonus for the U. S. Savings Bonds purchased under the plan in 1948, a number of employees have asked us for information about stocks and bonds. Therefore, as a service to our readers we are currently presenting a series of eight articles on this subject. The article in today's issue is the second of the present series.

When a person invests in bonds, he is making a loan of money. The borrower agrees to repay this loan within a specified period. In addition, the borrower agrees to pay a certain amount of interest which constitutes the return to the bondholder for the use of his money.

On the other hand, when a person invests in stocks, he becomes part owner of the company or companies which have issued the stock. If you own stock in a company, you own a share of that company. Your share represents an interest in its plants, its production and its business. Your proportional interest depends upon how many shares that company has issued and how many of these you own.

If, for example, a company has 1,000 shares of stock and you own 10 of these, you own 1 per cent of that company. If on the other hand, a company has only 100 shares of stock and you own 10 shares, then you own 10 per cent of that company.

Basically, stocks may be classified as one of two types: preferred or common. Preferred stock is so called because it is usually given certain preferential treatment over common stock. This generally includes (1) the right to receive a fixed dividend before the common stock receives any dividends and (2) in some cases, a prior claim against the assets of the company in the event of dissolution. However, it sometimes has no voting privileges and may be limited to a specified dividend, no matter how profitable the company may become. If the financial condition of the company is such that dividends on the preferred stock must be passed or reduced, there may be provisions that the right to the specified dividend is cumulative.

new stabilizing force. It should be apparent to managers in all industries that it lies within their own power to make major contributions toward national stability. The General Electric innovation is simply one of the many devices that might be employed."

Common stock indicates ownership of a business in a broader sense of the word. The holder of common stock ordinarily has a right to vote in all elections of company directors who, in turn, appoint the President and other officers who are responsible for the operation of the business.

Common stock dividends are determined by the Board of Directors. They determine the portion of a company's earnings which is to be distributed to share owners as dividends and the portion which must be retained for the expansion and growth of the business. As the needs of the business require, the dividends may be reduced or even omitted at times. Ordinarily dividends can be paid only out of the corporation's earnings.

When someone purchases a share of stock, he receives a stock certificate. This stock certificate is registered in his name and signifies that he is a part owner of the corporation and entitled to the rights of a share owner.

In the next issue we will find out why people are willing to invest their savings in these securities.

DECATURITES

by George Laurent

Everybody thought that Jay Moser was wearing dark glasses because of the eclipse of the sun. It finally came out that Jay really got "clipped," but not by the sun. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Oran Schultz are spending their third week of vacation in sunny California. Oran, who is exalted ruler of the local Elks Lodge, is representing that lodge at their national convention. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Harvey and son Mike stopped in Decatur recently with a short visit with the George Laurent family. Gordon, a former resident engineer at the Decatur plant, is now stationed at Danville, Ill. The Harveys asked to be remembered to all their old friends. . . . It's a blue bootie tax exemption at the Dick Schnitz home. The young gentleman arrived June 30 and weighs 7 lbs. 9 oz. Congratulations to the proud and happy parents. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Ralph Rabbitt, who celebrated his birthday on June 30. Ralph has been recuperating from surgery. We hope to see him back on the job soon. . . . Curt Baxter spent the holiday vacation seeing the sights of the city. He spent his holiday in Detroit. . . . Taking advantage of the holiday for extra free time, Oscar Teeple decided to take his third week of vacation.

ments at Broadway and Taylor St. except DC Motor and Generator.

All inquiries should be referred to Miss Johnson at Room 134, Taylor St., Ext. 2519.

DC Motor and Generator inquiries should be referred to L. Culbertson, Bldg. 19-1, Ext. 523 the first week of shutdown. P. G. Dannecker, Bldg. 31-1, Ext. 2168 will handle these inquiries the second week. The Winter St. payroll section will handle all their insurance inquiries.

There will be no cafeteria service and the Employee Store will be closed. Cafeteria operations will begin with the noon meal the day after vacation, August 9.

Nursing service will be maintained in Bldg. 21 at Broadway during the first shift only, Monday through Friday, both weeks. Employees needing medical attention should report to the guards.

Gate Schedule

The gate schedule to be observed for Broadway and Taylor St. plants during the two weeks will be as follows:

INDUSTRIAL CLINIC DEDICATED—GE's constant efforts to keep employees well was dramatized last week with dedication, at Schenectady, of a new million dollar Industrial Clinic for service to the more than 30,000 GE employees in that city. GE will spend approximately $3 million this year on medical facilities for employees.

World Is Our Supply House

A woman dressed in a pure silk dress from the Orient, alligator shoes from Latin-America, an Indian cashmere coat, furs from Canada, and jewels from a South African diamond mine would consider herself exotically and finely arrayed.

And yet, millions of motors which most of us see or handle daily may be composed of even more glamorous materials, scoured from the far-flung markets of the world. The good earth of nearly every country of the world contributes some of its rich resources to our fractional horsepower motors.

Many materials necessary to our products are imported because they are not available in sufficient quantities in this country, or sometimes not available at all.

Not all motors, of course, contain all of the materials shown on the chart, and some motors contain only infinitesimal amounts of them, such as a minute percentage of an alloying material. But any motor can claim an international background in its windings alone.

At times such precious metal as platinum has been used for electrical contacts; gold has been used as a conductor; and rubies have been used as jeweled bearings because of their high resistance to friction.

While steel is made from United States mined iron for the most part, imported materials are sometimes added to increase the hardenability or to cut the annealing time.

Our neighbors, Canada and Mexico, supply many of the vital metals in motors. Both Canada and Mexico are prime sources of copper for windings, lead for bearings, solder, and balance weights, and zinc used for platings on mechanism parts.

Most of the tin used in bearings and in solder comes from Bolivia and Malaya, but some also from Africa, Thailand, and Indonesia. Silver from Mexico, and tungsten from Bolivia, Spain, and Portugal might be found in electrical contacts.

Many parts of motors are plated with chromium, nickel, zinc or cadmium. Mica from Canada, India, South Africa and Madagascar finds its way into commutators.

The list grows and grows when we consider the paints, the plastics, and other synthetics, the paper, rubber, glass that are used each day. Motors take on new glamour and excitement as well as give improved performance, durability and even better appearance because of the proper combination of minerals and materials from all over the world.

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Yes we are starting a new column
And a new editor, too
The Night Winds have all scattered.
And we all have the blues.

Our column has been missing
For a month or more;
Some are in other departments
And some went out the door.

We must keep the ball a rolling.
We few that are left;
Although we have the Jitter Bugs,
We must do our best.

Now, all you folks, on second trick
In Section Seventeen,
Please jot me down the news you have
So our column can be seen.

DhuAine David, formerly of Section 17-660, who was laid off a few weeks ago, has polio. He was in the hospital a short while, but is home now. We all wish him a speedy recovery. Section 17 and 14 gave him a nice donation to show him we think he is a swell person, and wish him and his family the best always. I take this opportunity to thank you all for DhuAine. . . . There have been several weddings, birthdays, and retirements in the past few weeks. We want to congratulate you all and wish you the best of luck always. . . . Mary Rose, who left us a few weeks ago to live in Michigan, was in to visit us the other day. We were all very glad to see you, Mary. Good luck. . . . We welcome Huser to the 21 frame line. Several of us worked with Homer while on the 51 frame. It sure seems good to see him buzzing around in our section again. Hope you like your new job, Homer. . . . We know Bob Brown is a busy man, but we didn't think he had so much on his mind that he would forget to take his car home after work. Bob only lives three blocks from work and he walked all the way home before he thought of his car. Maybe you needed the exercise, Bob. . . . Elmer Gordon lost his apron at lunch time and thought someone hid it. In searching for it he asked Channey Brooks if he had his apron. Channey said, "No, I don't think I have two on," only to discover he did have.

TOOL BITS BLDG. 19-4 and 5 by Howard Demsey

Les Hines, while reading last week's GE NEWS, had occasion to look up an article in a copy of the GE NEWS that was almost a year old. His wife found the copy later on, and thinking it was the latest issue, looked through the apartment ads. She found a good prospect and called a girl friend who was looking for an apartment. The friend called about the ad and was informed that the apartment was rented a year ago. . . . To prove that you are safer at the GE than you are at home, Jack Becker slammed a car door on his hand and has a very black finger to prove it. . . . Bob Pickett always cleans up a tidy sum each Fourth of July by selling standing room on a vacant lot he owns near the fireworks display. We wonder who had the hot dog concession. . . . Ross Cohagen would like to trade in his parakeet for one that is housebroken. . . . Glenn Hoon is buying most of his fishing equipment from Vicksburg, Mich., according to reports. . . . Eddie Kammeier didn't trust his soil too much. He bought tomato plants with the fruit already set on them so as to be sure of a crop. He's taking orders now. Nothing less than a bushel please, he won't cut a tomato. . . . We have an intelligent man in our ranks. He is Willis Hausbaugh, our maintenance man. He just purchased a Nash Ambassador. . . . Max Gollmer is on vacation last week and this week. Vacation, did we say? Well, if you can call two weeks at Camp Williams in Wisconsin with the National Guard a vacation. Have a good time, Max. . . . Lindy Bryant went fishing with his father-in-law last Sunday in the Maumee River and hauled in a large turtle. Lindy "killed" Mr. Turtle and left him on the river bank while he went about his fishing, dreaming of turtle soup. That's all it turned out to be, a dream, because when they were ready to go home they found that the turtle hadn't been as dead as they thought, and was nowhere to be found. . . . The award for the kind-hearted deed of the week goes to Perry Butts. Perry had just cut down a tree when he found two young robins in a nest in the tree. He removed the nest and placed it in another nearby tree, and soon the mother robin found the nest and everyone was happy. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Chet Reynolds, and another couple, plan to spend two weeks at Fort Wilkins State Park near Copper Harbor in upper Michigan. This is copper mining country and Chet hopes to see one of the mines in operation, as well as get a lot of fishing done. As they will live in a tent those two weeks, Chet hopes the bears keep their distance. . . . How honest can a man be? Bud Dunlap's son, Davie, left a sample package of dog food at Dallas Smith's house the other day only to have Dallas return the dog food to Bud at work the next morning. . . . Paul Richter's co-workers were lost without someone to argue with them when Paul was away spending his third week's vacation at his summer estate on Lake James. . . . Harvey Springer took the bus home from work the other day and was about to report his car stolen when he couldn't find it. Then he remembered, he had driven it to work that day. . . . "But, officer, I was riding along on my horse when this cow pulled out in front of me and—" That's how Esmund Jones might have truthfully explained how he broke his collarbone recently. We're glad to see you're up and around again,

THISA & THATA BLDG. 4-3 and 4-4 by Helen Engle

John Figley is seriously considering quitting his part-time barber business in his basement, and going into the second hand business with extension ladders his specialty, such as Don Mason did. . . . Anyone want to swap? John Esmond. . . . Dick Burns will now be able to verify his fishing stories since he just bought a new camera. He says all he has to do is learn to manipulate all the adjustments to get a good picture. . . . George Luker got the chills the other day when he dismantled the engine on his Piper Cub and found a drill someone had left in the crankcase on a previous overhaul. . . . Ed Ellenburg wants everyone to know that the color of his new MG is not plain green but "British racing green." . . . Practice safety at all times. Part-time safety is an all-time loser. . . .

Vacation time is getting near and here is a picture of Woodrow Hursh practicing relaxing and getting ready for the vacation shutdown. From all reports he is doing more relaxing than catching fish.

Figley has a big tent and he will swap it for an electric razor. . . . Congratulations and best wishes to Francine Cyr, who received a beautiful diamond from Jerry Mueller over the Fourth of July. . . . Frank Barnd has a different car, a 1949 DeSoto. . . . Wilford Kinsey's wife got a new TV set. It doesn't work, and of course it isn't the right kind. . . . Earl Sexton was hunting catalpa worms and got a mess of chickens, not fish. . . . We are happy to see Buss Romary back at work. . . . Dorothy Gephart, a former co-worker, has a new baby girl named Linda Sue. . . . There has been a toe breaking binge. Evelyn Foulks and Vickey Heyer both broke their toes. . . . Eleanor Hoffman says what she wants is a pet skunk. . . . Clarence Weimer has challenged Ed Hines to a bicycle race. There should be a lot of heavy betting on that race. . . . Frank Barnes says that after his 59th birthday on July 13 he is having no more birthdays. He leaves on his vacation this week and says he is going to have three weeks' rest. . . . Wonder why Paul Arnold is so interested in the light situation in Huntertown? Could it be that he is in the red with all the merchants and is trying to get off by his selling? . . . We extend our sympathy to Ruth Nurdyke in the death of her nephew, and to Roxie Miller in the death of her husband. . . . Frieda Knoche Poehler is leaving us today to go on pension. Frieda has more than 35 years here at the GE and says she is just going to keep house and work in her garden. . . . Leonard Floyd isn't back yet with his fish stories, or fish, but we know that he will have some fish. Where he was if you don't catch any they give you some to take home. . . . Mardo Tobias had another birthday. He says he is still 40. He was 40 last year, too. . . . Florence Byers went to put on a dress the other day to find out she only ironed half of it. She doesn't know how it happened.

Every day is judgment day—use a lot of it!

RETIREMENT BEST WISHES—Charles R. Mowery (left) is congratulated at retirement by Kenneth D. Strong. Mr. Mowery retired July 9. He first came to work for GE in 1929 on bench work in Bldg. 4-3. He was employed in Bldg. 22 before retiring.

Golfers, like fishermen, have plenty to talk about at the 19th hole. Left to right are Sam Macy, Steve Kelker, Paul Koogle, Herb Koch, and Wendell Miller.

GE Club Golfers Keep Links Lively

As the season draws to a close, golf action in GE Club sponsored leagues keep the Brookwood links busy several nights a week. More than 200 GE golfers are now taking part in golf activities, according to Harold (Red) Braden, GE Club golf chairman.

There are five leagues with six teams per league in the season's most popular sport with GE employees. The close of league competition will coincide with the vacation shutdown, but the climax is still to come, with the Blind Bogey and playoffs scheduled for September 18 this year.

Other league activities during the year include the annual match with Studebaker, which was held in June, and the Midwest Industrial Tournament still to come. Qualification rounds are now in progress for the Midwest tourney.

Leagues are the Owl league, managed by Pappy Garland; Tuesday Office, Harold Poyser; Winter St., Stu Fisher, manager; Monday Afternoon, Charlie Briggs, manager; and Monday Evening, Denny Pease, manager.

Any GE employee interested in playing golf is welcome to take part in league play each year. At the fall awards banquet, the GE Club presents sports shirts to league winners and jackets to the championship foursome.

Joe Laisure uses his special putter to sink a long one.

Willie Adams blasts out of a little trouble last Monday evening.

Going On Vacation? Then Remember This—

Before You Leave . . . On the Way . . .

1. Stop milk, newspaper and other deliveries. Ask a neighbor to keep advertising circulars off your porch.
2. Don't lower window shades. If you are to be gone three weeks or more, arrange to have your lawn mowed. Prowlers watch for such tip-offs.
3. Notify post office to hold mail, or arrange delivery to a neighbor.
4. Lock windows and doors. Remember basement windows and coal chute.
5. Shut off gas and water at main valves. Shut off electricity at master switch unless refrigerator or food locker is to be left on. If current must be left on, disconnect lamps and appliances at wall outlets. If refrigerator is disconnected, leave door open to prevent mold.
6. Inform police how long house will be vacant and where you can be reached in emergency.
7. Service car thoroughly, with close attention to safety features such as lights, brakes, tires, steering, windshield wipers.
8. Put a first aid kit and flashlight in glove compartment. Be sure you have all tire tools.
1. Speed kills—take it easy. Start a little earlier and don't try to cover too great a distance in a day.
2. Long drives at constant speed make you drowsy. Vary your speed and stop occasionally to stretch your legs.
3. Be sure you understand driving techniques in different localities. For example, using the motor compression to assist braking is necessary in mountainous country. A good rule is to use the same gear to descend a grade as you used in climbing it.
4. Don't be impatient to make time. It's unsafe, and it's not restful driving. Watch your passing. On a mountainous road you may have to poke along for miles before it is safe to pass.
5. Signs and signals are not uniform in all states. Read them carefully. They are your best safeguard on strange roads.
6. Scenery can be taken in small doses from a moving car, but if you want to drink in deeply of nature's beauty, pull off the road and stop.
7. If you leave the children alone in the back seat, be sure the doors are locked.

After You Arrive . . .

1. R-e-l-a-x. Don't try to crowd a year's exercise into two weeks.
2. Take the sun in easy doses. Don't nap in the sun. Wear sun glasses.
3. Stay out of the water for at least an hour after eating, and swim in sight of others. Be sure water is deep enough and free of obstructions before diving. Don't try to swim too far.
4. Distribute the load evenly in boats. Don't stand up. If you fall out and the boat stays on an even keel, climb in over the stern. Most boats won't sink, so stay with it until help comes if it capsizes. Check the weather before going far on a large lake.
5. Don't spill gasoline while filling an outboard motor boat. A small amount of gas may spread on the bilge, setting the entire boat afire when the motor starts.
6. Don't sample berries, touch unfamiliar plants, or drink impure water.
7. Carry an insect repellent with you.
8. Stay away from high ground and single trees in a lightning storm.

Q. How can old oil paintings be cleaned?

A. According to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, it is dangerous for an inexperienced person to attempt any extensive operations on old paintings. However, they say that loose dirt and dust may be removed with gasoline-type dry cleaning fluids (which are inflammable and should be used with great care). The fluid can be applied with absorbent cotton or a soft brush. Paint surfaces which have become dull, or coated with grime, can usually be cleaned and brightened with a good quality wax-emulsion cream furniture polish. Follow the manufacturer's directions for fine furniture, and experiment first on a small area near the edge. In such operations the canvas should be firmly and uniformly supported from below, as with magazines and newspapers, piled up to the thickness of the painting stretcher. The museum says that a painting should not be treated, at front or in back with oil of any kind, active solvents such as alcohol or benzol, soap, water, erasers, bread crumbs, raw potato, sliced onion, or strong household cleaners.

Q. What would cause caterpillars to fall out of a tree when an automobile horn was sounded underneath?

A. Caterpillars are known to be sensitive to sound. One species (vanessa) when stimulated by sound, has been observed to contract the back muscles causing the rear end to be raised. Apparently the caterpillars you observed responded in the same way, and so strongly as to lose hold and fall.

Q. How can the size of the Earth be measured?

A. Because of the curvature of the Earth, the height of the stars which are visible changes as we travel north and south. At the north pole, for example, the pole star is overhead; in the United States it is about 50 degrees above the horizon; and it is just about on the horizon at the Equator. Farther south it is not seen at all. Essentially, what is done is to find two places, on a north and south line, where the difference in height of a certain star is just one degree of arc. This is 1/360th of a complete circle, so the distance between the two places is 1/360th of the circumference of the Earth. The circumference can then be determined by actually measuring the distance between the two points, and multiplying by 360.

Q. Does playing a tape recording to a person while he is asleep help him to memorize the material more easily?

A. Psychologists tell us that, under some conditions, a small amount of separate words or poetry, may be learned in this way while one is asleep, so that it is more readily retained the next day when the subject is awake. There is no proof that the effect is a lasting one, and there is some question as to whether such sleep is a state of complete rest, or a hypnotic state. It has long been known that suggestions, given to a person who is hypnotized, may be accurately carried out after he is awake.

Q. What are viruses?

A. Viruses, which are responsible for a number of diseases, e. g., poliomyelitis and measles, are living organisms capable of reproduction, but they also have some of the characteristics of inorganic matter. For example, some of them can be crystallized. They are so small that they can pass through the pores of a fine porcelain filter, and the smallest have a diameter of about a 25,000,000th of an inch. They cannot be seen in the ordinary light microscope, but the electron microscope, which will magnify many more times, will show them. They cannot live by themselves, but grow only in living tissue.

Q. Is nitrogen used in refrigeration?

A. Yes, this gas, which constitutes about three-fourths of the air, boils at about 320 degrees below zero F. Thus, after it is liquefied, it will maintain this temperature until it all boils away. It is widely used in laboratories when a very low temperature is required. One extensive use is in traps connected to vacuum systems, where it freezes vapors of oil, mercury, etc., and keeps them out of the system. It is also used in factories where an extremely tight fit is required, as of a rod in a circular hole. By dipping the rod into liquid nitrogen and thus cooling it, contraction results, so that it may easily be slipped into the hole. Then, when it warms up and expands, it makes a very tight fit.

Q. Does the Moon revolve around the Earth or around the Sun?

A. It depends upon which body you take for reference. Referred to the Earth, the Moon certainly revolves around it, once in about 27.3 days. However, both Earth and Moon are revolving together around the Sun. If you draw a circle 100 inches in diameter to represent the orbit of the Earth as it moves about the Sun every year, the Moon will deviate from it only 1/24th of an inch on each side. It will cross the circle 24 or 25 times each year.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

Happy birthday greetings to George Ingalls who will celebrate next Monday. . . . Millie Kouder and Virginia Archbold spent the week-end at Webster Lake. As yet we haven't heard any of those fish stories, Millie. How about it? . . . Fran Miller has only one more golf lesson. Then she will be trudging over the course, following that little ball around. It's a long walk, Fran! . . . We wish good luck to Cathy Trautman on her new job in Bldg. 19-5. . . . Rosie Ort returned to work this morning looking all refreshed after a week's vacation.

GE LITTLE LEAGUERS WIN FIRST HALF TITLE

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

Once again a holiday curtailed the golf league action. Only the Owls and the Tuesday office leagues have reported. In both of these leagues the issue is all but settled. Bob Markey's Eagles have a 43 point bulge in the Owl league and the Jack Jennings' Divot Diggers lead by 14 in the Tuesday group with only one week to go.

Owl

The Hot Shots tore a page from the record books and planted a 21 point clobber job on the Aces. That is the way Lloyd, Jim, Ozzie, and Warren have done many times in the past.

Even though Johnny Stark carded a 50 the Birdies beat the Pars by six. This was the first time in five years that Johnny hasn't had at least one par on his score. Dave Mumma was in the creek on both 16 and 17 and came in with a 51 for the Pars.

The leading Eagles clipped the Bogeys by nine. Paul Billman shot a 39.

Tuesday

The Divot Diggers stretched out their lead by pasting the Optimists to the tune of 16. With only one week to go Jennings' lads are determined to hang on and unseat the 19th Holers as league champs.

Braden's boys kept on the heels of the D. Diggers by beating the Dubs by 12.

Only six points separate fourth and sixth place but the 49'ers are still on the bottom. Fifth place Gas House Tigers squeezed out a one point win over the tail enders.

Szink Breaks Par In Midwest Tourney Qualification Round

Dick Szink, playing out of the Winter St. league, led the parade of golfers in the first qualification round for the Midwest Industrial tourney. He shot a one under par 71. Szink fired 17 pars and one birdie. The bird was on the par five, No. 16.

Ray Hills had an even par 72 combining a 37-35. Hills plays in the early Monday evening league.

General Electric's Little League team grabbed two more wins last week to take the first half championship of the Hamilton Park League.

Wednesday, July 7, the kids knocked off Allen Dairy 7 to 2 and the next night they bounced Inca by the score of 2 to 0.

In the second game Dick Snyder pitched another near perfect game for GE, allowing only two hits, one a scratch infield single and struck out 14 Inca batters. Fred Noll did the mound work for GE against Allen Dairy.

Snyder leads the GE team in pitching and hitting. His average at bat is a cool .500. Dave Schenher is close on his heels with a .455 average.

Rod & Gun Gives 30 Cal. Schedule

A tentative schedule for 30-caliber rifle shooting for the remainder of the year has been announced by Pat Patterson, Bldg. 31-1, secretary-treasurer of the GE Rod and Gun Club.

Open to all Rod and Gun Club members, the matches will be conducted at the Sam Bowlin farm at Huntington.

The following schedule is set up:

July 18—Tyro Trophy.
August 8—Tillman Offhand Match.
August 29—Major John E. Miller Match.
September 19—Ed Smith Memorial Trophy.
October 10—J. W. Dickens Rapid Fire Trophy.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Ed Whipple Wednesday, July 21. . . . The newest member of the "gay shirt parade" is none other than Owen Vaught. Good for you, Owen! Now let's see some of the others follow through. . . . LADIE PETRUCHA didn't stay with us long. He joined Uncle Sam's big family as of July 9. Good luck, Laddie! . . . CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Perry, who recently added a new member to their family. A baby daughter, weighing five pounds, was born Sunday, 1:40 a.m., July 11, at St. Joseph's Hospital. Baby Margaret Anne has two brothers, aged three and four. Judging from Wayne's happy smile when he passed out his treat, we'd say he is a very proud daddy indeed. . . . CONGRATULATIONS also to Donnabelle Degler and her husband, who became the proud parents of a seven and one-half pound baby girl. Donnabelle, you will remember, was a member of our file room. . . . THE STORY OF THE WEEK is about our champion baby sitter of Bldg. 4-6. His name is Gil Baker. Last Wednesday, Gil came to work with a huge red spot on his forehead. He claims it happened while trying to entertain his small son, to make him stop crying. He picked up the first toy he could find, which proved to be a suction cup. He put the cup on his forehead. Gil's son thought it was very funny (who wouldn't) and so stopped crying. When Champ Baker tried to pull the cup loose, it would not break loose easily, so Gil gave with a hard jerk. With it came a yell of agony and he almost removed the skin. Gil said it felt like his head was coming off. We are sorry about the sore head, but the old proverb is "experience is the best teacher." It's a good thing your skull was there to protect your brain, eh? . . . WELCOME to Ralph Church who has joined Max Barrow's group. He was formerly with Marketing on the Test Program. Also welcome to Bill Hunt, a new member in E. M. Stanbery's group. . . . THE NEW CAR CLUB is sure growing. It just started three weeks ago and we now have three members. The third member is known to us as Harold (Shorty) Poyser. Also talking about cars, we understand that Glen (Fire dome) Stapleton bought himself another car. What is that about you being a lead-foot with your new car, Glen? . . . WELCOME to Dave Blake. He is a permanent engineer and works for Mr. C. J. Herman. . . . BECOMING A PROUD NEW PAPA doesn't seem to make Jean Jansen the least bit nervous. Tell us, Jean, how does it feel to be a member of the House of David, or should I ask "how are you fixed for blades?" Don't tell us you plumb forgot. . . . WE WANT TO WISH Laura Wyatt a speedy recovery from her recent illness. . . . MADELYN STROUD has recently become a member of the happy dog-owner club. Pardon me, madam, but does your dog have papers? . . . WE HAVE IT FROM A VERY RELIABLE authority that our star reporter, Al Happel, promised to put an item in last week's GE NEWS. Since he reneged and didn't keep his promise, we've decided to surprise him with this bit of choice material. Seems like Al and two of his cronies were playing golf at Kendallville recently. He shot into a stream, and in going over the bank to retrieve it he was traveling a little too fast and found himself up to his knees in water. Shoot for the green and not our bovine friends.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

by Sherry Varner

It was quite a big decision for the Harris family to make, a washing machine or a new Ford. The new Ford won out, and Everett decided to let Aldina use the wash board for a while longer. . . . Speech! Speech! Elmer Warner was re-elected president of the Elrey reunion and he kept them spellbound for one hour with his speech of thanks. . . . Milford Crick was seen looking for stray children at the Fourth of July celebration at McMillen Park. I understand he thought he could get rich quick on the rewards offered. . . . Russell (Slim) Neireiter is the new owner of a television set. With his new Ford and TV, he

Pony and Jr. Fed Diamond Action

The GE Club Junior Fed team had its ups and downs last week, winning one game and losing one. July 8 they scored a 8 to 3 win over GMC Trucks. In a close game July 11 they lost to Renner's Express by a 4 to 2 score. This was a night game at McMillen Park.

Sunday, July 18, the GE boys meet the Fort Wayne Merchants team. Maxton Motors is still leading the league.

Pony League

In the North Pony League circuit, rain postponed Tuesday and Wednesday action last week.

In Thursday's game Allen Dairy jumped off to an 8 run lead in the first inning against GE. GE was never able to overcome the lead and AD coasted to a 17 to 5 win.

GE bounced back Saturday behind the 7-hit pitching of Bobby Byrd to hand Security Cartage their first defeat of the season, 4 to 3. Bob Jones was the game's defensive standout as he threw out three potential scorers from his centerfield position.

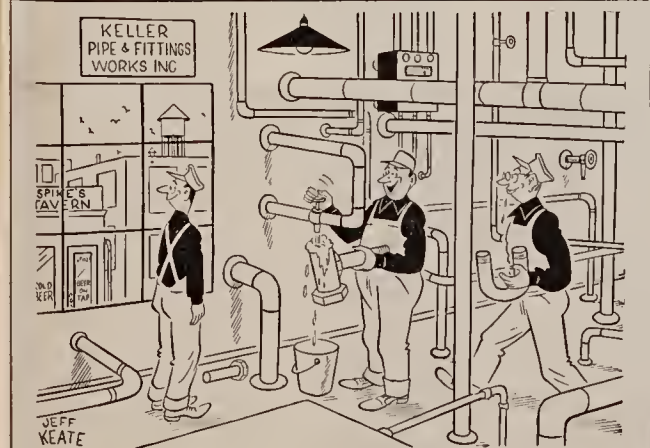

The win enabled GE to remain in a second place tie with Huber's Business Machines.

should be all set. . . . Elmer Schoenlein was wondering if his "Caddy" leaked. The last big rain proved it didn't. . . . Jerry Galland found out it isn't always wise to reach across the table. It seems he got quite a shock reaching across one the other day. . . . Happy birthday to John Bailey. Also Hubert Meyers in Personnel. . . . The absent-minded corps has a new member. Otto Pfueger had a birthday in June and forgot to get his new driver's license. Don't forget there could be a fine to pay, Otto. . . . Harold Traxler is teaching his wife to drive their town car, a lipstick red Ford. Good luck, Harold! . . . If you want Harry Woodward to ride home with you, he has to have a written invitation. Explain yourself, Harry! . . . Frank Kartholl bought a new pair of safety shoes. They felt so light and airy when he put his foot down on the floor, he asked Jerry Galland if his foot was on the floor, yet.

The above picture is one of our glamorous Elmer Wagner at a recent family reunion. He participated in a style show. Some bathing suit, Elmer!

by Art Rasor

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morris upon their new arrival, Patrick Michael. . . . Birthday greetings to Gerald Kummer on July 13, Pat Parnin, July 14; Orval Haver, July 16; Richard Kite, Nolan Riley and Laurence Simerman, July 19; Ralph Hoover, July 20; and Claud Johnson, July 21. . . . Howard Smith is recruiting volunteers for vacation to accompany him to Dock Lake to rope a turtle twice as big as a wash tub, or a bit larger than the "Beast of Busco." Plans are being made for a "turtle soup dinner" the week following vacation. . . . From now on the enamel foremen will keep their eyes on John Ruhl to see that he goes home with his own lunch bucket. The other night he must have been thinking about something else when he carried Louie Maier's full bucket home by mistake. . . . Virgil Nash says it is easier to kick the milk bottle off of the porch than to pick it up, especially when the Mrs. is around to clean it up. . . . George Miller was returning from Ohio Sunday morning when he woke up to see grass and dirt flying by as he was plowing some farmer's field. Now he doesn't know how much to charge for his labor. . . . Ted Goll has only one week-end to go and he will be ready for fishing. For the last three weeks he hasn't done a bit of fishing so he can be all rested up for vacation.

TAYLOR TRIAD

Marylis Lenz
Edith Robertson

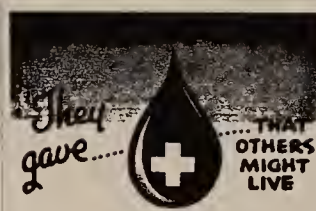

The people of the GPM Department wish to extend their sympathy to the wife and family of Robert O. Kirby, who passed away July 8. Bob was employed in the drafting section. . . . Happy birthday to Marylis Lenz, July 14; Joe Feiertag, July 16; and Berdeen Hutsell, July 17. . . . Has anyone noticed? Jake Sherbondy is sporting around in a new Buick. . . . Introducing our latest arrivals via the GE Test and Trainee programs: Richard Burt comes to us on second test from Morrison. Los Angeles is his home town and Stanford the university. Dick received his BSEE degree in 1952. No, he isn't married. . . . Timothy Cobb from Del Rio, Tex. First test on Employee and Plant Community Relations Training program. Tim received his BA degree in English from the University of Texas in 1953. He is married. . . . Paul Kurtlis, from Scranton, Pa., is on the Marketing Training program. His last assignment was Nela Park. Paul has a BEE degree from Rose Poly Tech and has done post graduate work at MIT. No, he isn't married. . . . Emil Bahnmaier of Chicago is also one of the latest TE's to enter the General Purpose marketing group. This is a first test assignment for Emil, who comes to us from the Illinois Institute of Technology with a BSEE degree. He's single, too. . . . Today we bid good-bye to Curtis Nold, who has been on test with Mr. Whearley's group since March. We have really liked Curt, but Uncle Sam has that same feeling for him. I'll bet we see him around again in about two years. . . . One member of our sales organization who recently returned from visiting sev-

RETIREMENT VISIT—Walter Holloway (seated center) recently was visited at his cottage on Adams Lake by a large group of his General Electric friends, honoring him at retirement. Gifts of luggage were presented to him. Mr. Holloway first began to work for General Electric in 1913. He was employed as a foreman of punch and tool maintenance and equipment in Section 114 at Taylor St. before leaving the company.

eral district offices in the mid-west reports as follows: "I was particularly impressed with the efficiency of the GE air-conditioning units in all the offices visited. The reception I received was literally quite cool." . . . Hazel and Bill Lichtenstiger are looking forward to their first Canadian trip. They will attend the wedding of Bill's brother. . . . Ingrid Swanson will get away from it all for two weeks at Rabbs' El Flat Rancho in Charlevoix, Mich. She plans to visit Mackinac Island, bask in the sun, and just generally relax. Sounds good to us. . . . The gardening rivalry is growing keener among the Sales Accounting people. Virginia France recently moved to the country with her two youngsters. She has a large project under way that promises to really give Paul Magnuson, and the rest of the green thumb people, real competition. . . . The interested group shown gazing at "The Declaration of Independence" in this month's "Better Homes and Gardens," page 43, is our own Betty Foreman and family. We believe, as did the photographer, that this is a typical American family. The picture was taken in Washington last summer. . . . Has anyone seen Jasper? Marcile Oetting reports that one of her kitty-cats has been missing for more than a week. It is not believed Jasper will go far due to the handicap of a poor personality. . . . Carolyn Peterson's counting the days until September 7, when her fiancé will be home from Japan. . . . Elaine Adams flew to Washington, D. C. with her daughter Sharon, who competed in the National Roller Skating Championship. Sharon placed eighth in dance. . . . Production (Jo Barr) and Engineering (Mike Davich) have just developed a new product known as Matthew Stephen Davich. This eight pound one ounce product will not be put on the market (although some morning about 3 a.m. Mike might be tempted); however it will be on display at 4117 Holton Ave.

Melvin Grace, DeWayne A. Schele, Warren G. Spriggs, Robert C. Straub, Carolyn J. Wyatt, Michael Brayer, Martha Christian, Lenis Davis, Frank A. Houlihan, John A. Inches, Lois L. Jensen, David R. Jones, Norman D. Koons, Grayson D. Knight, Robert Mills, Max Oberkiser, Carl W. Reynolds, Everett F. Schmidt, Dallas F. Smith, Floyd E. Snyder, Carl D. Swihart, Arnold J. Werling, Harmon Westrick, and Gordon A. Yaeger.

OTTO WITTE'S FAREWELL—Otto Witte (second from right) says his goodbyes to his co-workers before retiring from General Electric at the end of June. Mr. Witte had worked for GE since 1920, when he was engaged as a trucker. He was a stockkeeper in Bldg. 8-2 prior to retirement. Shown (l-r) are Lawrence Voirol, Carl Turschman, Ed O'Neil, and Orval Koble.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Junior Zollinger got caught in a traffic jam the other night. It took him almost an hour to go from Washington and Anthony to Maumee. Just as he got to the traffic light a tire blew out. From the reports, he had his own Fourth of July celebration with the air blue with words, and horns blowing. While we're on the subject of Junior, last week Evelyn (Eavie) Partee dialed the phone to call the dentist. About the same time Junior picked up the extension phone and said "Hello." Eavie said, "Is this the dentist?" and Junior said, "Yes, what's your trouble?" She said, "I would like to get my teeth cleaned," and Junior said, "It's about time." After talking for a while, and insult after insult, Evelyn spied Junior on the other phone. They're not talking now, only grunting at one another. . . . Dale Bentz has returned from his third week's vacation of touring the south (Mississippi) in his new Packard. . . . Pondo had a lost week-end attending the Legion convention in Indianapolis. Carl Metker asked him if he attended the 500 mile race and that really confused him. . . . Elmer Harshman is now driving a new Nash. He is getting it broken in to take a trip down to old Mexico at vacation time. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Elmer. (What, no candy or cigars?) . . . Fritz Krotke saw a nice looking girl the other evening and told his wife he had seen her somewhere before. After a while he couldn't take it any longer so he asked her if she worked at GE. She replied that she worked the same place he did. Monday morning Fritz said "No wonder she looked so familiar." The girl was none other than Bernice Winters. . . . Welcome to Lowell Teagarden. He's the new tool crib man. . . . Freddie Clark is doing time after his recent operation at the St. Joseph Hospital (Room 400). . . . Mahlon Grubbs is confined to the Veterans' Hospital. He can't receive visitors until after July 18. . . . Congratulations to Arno Winnebrenner, third finger, left hand. . . . Alma Voltz came in half asleep and got off of the elevator at Bldg. 4-3 instead of 4-4. . . . Only one person can do it and that's Rosie Diem. She is taking up golf. The other day she was telling the girls in her group about hitting a gopher with her ball. One of the girls said she had heard of eagles and birdies, but never a gopher. If it can be done, Rosie is the gal to do it. "She's our girl." . . . Our deepest sympathy to Roxanna Miller, whose husband passed away last week.

COUNT OFF

by Ruby Stoops

Ross Strodel has been driving a car and living in Fort Wayne for the past 30 years. He found out that if he made a left turn from Anthony on Maumee and drove west on Maumee that all the other cars were going east. He lost no time turning at the next corner, after all the drivers honked at him and kids yelled at him. He has to learn the hard way and is now making a memo of what streets are one way and which way. He would appreciate anyone helping him find his way around.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

Welcome to newcomers Max Lichty, Bob Rogers, Leroy Ingram, and Byron (Peanuts) Nelson. . . . Ansel Black was our boss last week while Al Mason was pulling the big ones out of Skinner Lake. We were glad to have had you with us, Ansel. Al caught a couple of extra big ones that he was going to bring back and show the gang. He laid them end for end and they began eating on each other's tails. They kept on eating each other and when Al went to get them, they had eaten each other up and there wasn't a trace of them left. . . . Charlie Mowery, who retired last week, wants to thank everyone for their thoughtfulness in remembering him with those fine gifts. . . . Ollie Miller is back with us after enjoying a week's vacation. . . . There comes a time in every man's life when he is right back where he started, (no hair and no teeth). For details see Kenny Evans. . . . Emma McCormick, our one time steno now of Bldg. 31, has a new job and a new Italian hairdo. . . . Charlie Castle brought a souvenir back from New York. A bandaged finger! He caught it in the subway door. Better stick to Ardmore Ave., Charlie, Broadway is too fast for you. . . . I hear by the grapevine that Clara Voltz spends her days off trimming trees for the city. . . . Visitors last week were Charlie Redding and Ed Ball. . . . Bouncy Becker has embarked on a new business career of raising hamsters.

Report on Eldon Bell's fish: Two garfish, one 30 inches long and one 36 inches long. We nominate him for "Conservationist of the Year." . . . There's a lot of competition going on between Lou Ann Beauchamp and Dorelyn Forde as to who can stamp papers the hardest. . . . Be careful when you're around Lois Gobel. She's liable to put cottage cheese on you as she does everything else. . . . Cliff Bieber has about decided to trade his Olds for a Chevy. It seems there are too many "custom made" parts on an Olds. . . . Judy Lehman, champion chicken eater, has challenged all to "out eat" him. Judy says he will even furnish the chickens, since he has a large supply. . . . Charlie Hazen still has a great deal of breakfast food on hand. . . . Welcome back to Frank Conley. Marriage seems to agree with him, he looks swell. . . . Our deepest sympathy to Bill Meiner's family. Everyone here will certainly miss Bill. . . . The switch girls had a picnic the other night. We bet those pictures they took will really be something. . . . Louise Roberts was seen trying to start a new fad. She had on two shoes. There's nothing new about that, but each was a different color! . . . Who is that tall, dark, man who has been seen in our office lately? For details, girls, see Jim Linzell. . . . Ife Holmes was a bachelor all last week. We wonder if he lost or gained weight from his own cooking, and if he got enough sleep, or just blamed TV. But he still played golf anyway. . . . Mel Warner spent his vacation getting a lot of fishing in. . . . Louie Shattuck is on vacation this week. Have fun, Louis. . . . Happy birthday to Lou Ann Beauchamp on July 15. . . . Anna Ruth Clements went fishing last week-end. The only thing she caught that she could keep was a sunburn. . . . Kathleen Jencks is going to Minnesota during shutdown. . . . Others going away are: Frank Boyd, Michigan; Eldon Bell, Colorado Springs; Carl Kloepper, Lake James and southern Michigan; Ralph Fishback, Crooked Lake; O. P. Dobler, Petersburg, Canada, he says he wants to stay close to GE; Mike Brayer, Irish Lake; and Ivan Osterman, New Mexico. . . . Earl Greenlee and Carl Kloepper are going on a one-day safari to Fox Lake. . . . Paul Clendenen says there is no use going to Linton to fish because he caught all the fish. . . . Mike Brayer is anxiously waiting for four weeks from last Monday so he can come back to work. . . . Mrs. William Meiners and family wish to thank the co-workers and friends of William Meiners for their sympathy and kindness in their bereavement.

Preston Hille reports to us that his large garden, located on Abbot St., is doing fine and a bumper crop is expected. He has quite a variety of vegetables on the way. He is taking orders for same as there will be more than he and his family can possibly consume. A large sign is being erected which will read "Moonbeam Vegetable Garden, P. Hille, Proprietor," so if any of our co-workers are interested in obtaining fresh vegetables, just drive out Abbot St. You can't miss the place, as the sign will be illuminated. . . . One morning last week Merritt Simons learned, much to his sorrow, that it does not pay to use other motorist's speedometers. As you know, Merritt lives just a short distance outside Avilla. On his way to work the other morning his speedometer failed to register the miles per hour, so upon reaching the city limits he decided to gage his speed by that of other motorists. This didn't work too well as the gendarmes picked him up doing 45 miles per hour in a 30 mile speed zone. Merritt had to pony up the cash to clear himself and was advised to have his speed indicator repaired. . . . Another motorist of ours came to grief one day last week. She learned that it pays to have the braking system of her car thoroughly checked and in good working order. Mildred Jean Butler and her passenger were rolling merrily along Hanna St. As they approached Creighton Ave. she prepared to stop for the intersection. She depressed the brake pedal which went easily and quickly to the floor. No brakes! Frantically she yanked on the emergency lever. It also failed to retard the speed of her car. Her passenger screamed, "Quick, turn the corner," which she promptly did, taking the stop sign with her. We are happy to report that no great damage was done.

"Pop, what does it mean when it says a man attends a convention as a delegate-at-large?"
"That means his wife wasn't along."

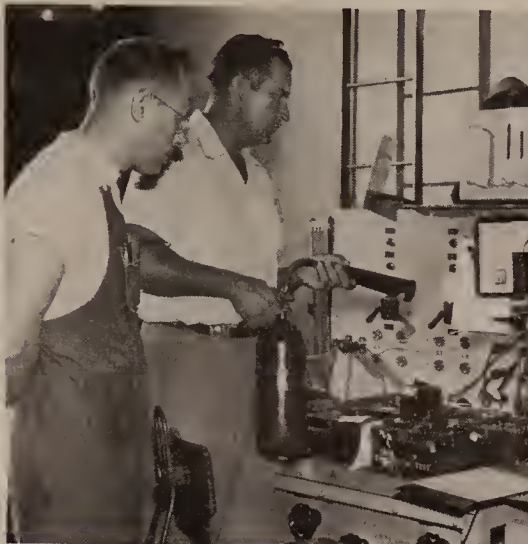

"Everybody and his dog are trying to go to the moon. Professor Fenton has other ideas!"

ILLUSTRATING the three basic steps in using a carbon dioxide extinguisher, Walter Lydy shows Edwin Coburn, Bldg. 17-4 tester, the first step, pulling the pin.

ADJUSTING the horn into position is the second step, as volunteer fireman Lydy shows Mr. Coburn how to extinguish an electrical fire in his work area.

AIMING at the base of the imaginary flame, Mr. Lydy squeezes the handle to complete the third step of operating the extinguisher.

200 Volunteers Complete Fire-Fighting Training

With the conclusion of the 1954 GE Fire School here this week, approximately 200 volunteer firemen will complete training in fire fighting procedure.

The basic training they receive includes the operation of the various types of fire extinguishers located around the Broadway and Taylor St. plants. However, the use of these extinguishers is not limited to the volunteers. The extinguishers are placed and serviced for the use of all employees should the need arise. Operating them is a simple process as Walter "Buck" Lydy, Bldg. 17-4 volunteer fireman for 12 years, demonstrates with a carbon dioxide extinguisher in pictures on this page.

The extinguisher that each of us passes every day is one of five found here. These are the carbon dioxide, dry chemical, water pump can, carbon tetrachloride (or vaporizing liquid), and G-1 powder.

The carbon dioxide is a nonconductor of electricity and does not contaminate or leave any residue to be cleaned up after use. It should be used for electrical fires; paints, varnishes, and solvents, and for small rubbish fires.

Another non-conductor is the dry chemical which is one of the best hand extinguishers for paint, varnish, or solvents fires. It can also be used for electrical or small rubbish fires.

A conductor of electricity is the water pump can. This should be used on rubbish, paper, or wood fires.

The carbon tetrachloride extinguisher is a non-conductor, too. Important to remember when using this is that it gives off gases that are toxic and so it should be used in a well-ventilated area. It may be used on electrical, rubbish, paint, varnish, or solvents fires.

In areas where magnesium is used, G-1 powder is made available and should be used for magnesium fires only. If any of the other types of extinguishing agents is used on a magnesium fire they may cause the fire to burn more rapidly and in most cases spread the flames.

WHICH IS WHICH?—Although all of us pass at least one type of fire extinguisher every day at work, probably quite a few don't know the difference between the various types found at the Broadway and Taylor St. plants. Walter "Buck" Lydy, Bldg. 17-4 volunteer fireman, points out the five basic extinguishing agents used here. From left to right they are: carbon dioxide, dry chemical, G-1 powder, carbon tetrachloride, and water pump can.

Welcome back to Helen Staley after an extended illness. . . . George Prince took a spill in his boat, and consequently suffered some ill effects from it. John Dennis, his buddy, took pity on George, and being the right sort of a guy offered to massage George's back. George declined the offer. I can't understand George's attitude, because I'm sure that John would have done a good job on George. . . . Happy birthday last Sunday to Bill Hoelle. You can always depend on Louie Hopper to remember the birthdays of his friends around the plant. Hope many people return the compliment to you Louie. Many, many more, Bill. . . .

We say farewell to two very fine people who are leaving the company. Robert Mongovan, better known as "Chuggy," is retiring, and Elsie Hart is taking up residence in Florida. We will miss you both, and hope that everything good and wonderful will be in your future undertakings. Come back and see us whenever possible. . . . I see some more crew haircuts sprouting around these parts. Namely, Harold Misegades, and Dave Kelker. I just had a horrible thought. Suppose Mike Sorgen (Liberace) got the notion to part with some of his wavy locks. Heavens to Betsy, anything but that! . . . Those two "Esquire" boys in Bldg. 22 I mentioned in last week's column, started something by getting all prettied up to go out to lunch. Now one of the fellows in our department is doing likewise. Of course, this Hampton Rothwell is a handsome, young, single fellow, and he may have a legitimate excuse. Like maybe meeting a slick chick in the cafeteria, Hamp? . . . George Grote was laid up a few days with the intestinal flu, but is feeling jake again. (Can't keep a good man down, for long anyway.) . . . Art Braun celebrated a birthday last Tuesday. Many, many more, Art.

We want to extend our deepest sympathy to Mel Kestner in the recent death of his mother. . . . Walt Fair, one of our former co-workers before retirement, was in to visit last week. Glad to see you, Walt, come back again. . . .

Leamon Huffman did a pretty good job of smuggling his grandson into Parkview Memorial Hospital, only he forgot which room his daughter was in. . . . Theo Olson wasn't taking any chances on not being ready for bed when she got home from work the other day, so she wore her shortie pajamas under her dress. . . . Belated congratulations to Phyllis Doswell, who became Mrs. John Diver two weeks ago. Phyllis is now working in Section 114. . . . Kenny Will has been in his canoe so much recently he's getting like an Indian. Every time he sees smoke he thinks it's a signal. . . . Marguerite Stahl was pleasantly surprised when her son called for them to meet him in Chicago Sunday morning. He's home for 15 days, then reports back to Washington. . . . Mary Redfern was happy to have her husband home over the week-end from the Veterans' Hospital. . . . Sarah (Pulver) Reinhart forgets to use her new name now that she is married. . . . Dick Pion attended the all-state game in Cleveland. . . . George Graue is planning on a California trip during vacation. . . . Bob Boone found out it doesn't pay to fall asleep in the barber chair. Bob had such a nice crop of hair when he sat in the chair, but when he got up there wasn't anything but skin on top of his head. Bob claims that it's a (real) summer haircut. . . . George Graue really believes in safety first. Friday George had a close call with one of our trucks. Now George looks both ways before he crosses the aisle. . . . George Crickmore was heard mumbling to himself about having to get up in the middle of the night to go to work. You see, George always has worked second trick and never had daylight to go home in.

Duncan Takes New Position at Trumbull; Mayo to Manage GP Finance Section

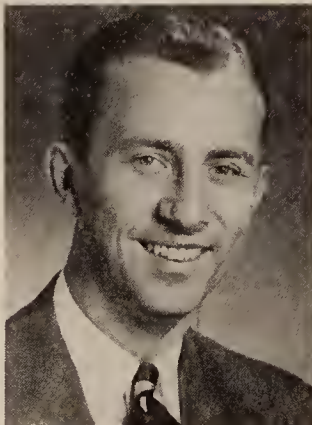

The appointment of Maurice H. Mayo as manager-finance of the General Purpose Component Motor Department was announced this week by Lisle D. Hodell, general manager of the department. Mr. Mayo assumed his new responsibilities July 12 and his office will be located at the Taylor St. plant.

Mr. Mayo is a native of Washington, Iowa, and a graduate of the University of Iowa, where he received his B. S. degree in commerce in 1937. Following graduation, he entered the company's Business Training Course at Schenectady, and upon its completion he was assigned to the traveling auditor's staff, where his duties included assignments in Brazil and Mexico as well as in this country.

In 1948, Mr. Mayo was named a supervisor in the Auditing Department at Schenectady where he served until 1950 when he was appointed secretary of the Appropriations and Defense Committee.

He came to Fort Wayne in January, 1953, as manager-finance on the staff of H. A. MacKinnon, vice president. In line with the company's decentralization program, coincident with Mr. Mayo's new appointment, this staff financial position was discontinued.

The Mayos and their two daughters reside at 4028 Meda Pass.

Maurice H. Mayo

Clifton Duncan

Clifton Duncan has been appointed manager-finance of the Trumbull Components Department, Plainville, Conn. Mr. Duncan's appointment, which became effective July 1, was announced by Lawrence E. Walkley, department general manager.

Mr. Duncan has been serving as manager-finance of the General Purpose Component Motor Department at Taylor St. since June, 1952.

He received a bachelor of arts degree from Colgate University and upon graduation, entered the Business Training Course at Schenectady. He later served as traveling auditor for the company until 1946, when he was appointed plant accountant at DeKalb, Ill.

In 1950 Mr. Duncan came to Fort Wayne as supervisor of cost in the Fractional Horsepower Motor Department. He was administrative assistant to the department general manager until his appointment as manager-finance in 1952.

The Duncans reside at 3813 Hazelhurst Dr.

Decatur GE Club Sets August 21 For Annual Picnic

The annual picnic of the Decatur GE Club will take place Saturday, Aug. 21, at Sunset Park, Oran Schultz, general chairman, announced this week.

Events for the day include games such as the money loaded sawdust scramble, contests with prizes, pony rides, and door and registration prizes.

Box lunches complete with dessert will be served at 11:30 a.m. In addition, hot dogs and ice cream will be available along with soft drinks and popsicles.

The committee in charge is making arrangements for an attendance of more than 2,000 and have planned a varied and full program for the day.

Those assisting the general chairman are: Jay Moser, Harriet Pollack, and J. K. Eady, chairmen of food and drinks; Rosemary Miller, C. Snell, and J. J. Baker, entertainment; and Herman Keller, in charge of arrangements.

The board of directors, headed by Francis Eady, president; will serve on the welcoming and registration committees.

153 Start Elex Vacation To California Tomorrow

Tomorrow 153 Elex Club members and their friends will board a train for a California vacation and the 33rd Elex-sponsored trip will begin. The club has been sponsoring trips since 1935.

Tour leaders Roqua Wibel announced that the vacationers should be at the Pennsylvania Railroad station tomorrow at 1:15 p.m. Central Daylight Saving and Voyce Brumbaugh have

Time, which is Fort Wayne time. The group should go to the train platform at that time and board special coaches which will be ready for them.

Members of the tour are asked to wear their identification badges so they can be directed to the special coaches.

Luggage identification tags should be filled out and attached to the two bags that each person is allowed for the trip. Members of the tour should take their luggage to the coaches and after that the luggage will be handled throughout the trip by porters.

After arriving in Chicago, the group will transfer to the Denver Zephyr train and leave Chicago at 6 p.m. CDST. They will be traveling on five different railroad routes during the trip but will not change trains after leaving Chicago.

During the trip, everyone is asked to be prompt for tours and buses and trains, the tour leaders stated.

Returning to Chicago, the vacationers will travel on the El Capitan train and will arrive in Fort Wayne August 4 at 12:07 a.m. CDST.

Vacation Pay, Insurance, Gate Plans

VACATION PAY

Broadway and Taylor St. employees who are on vacation but wish to pick up their checks during the shutdown may do so on two days only. These are Wednesday, July 28, and August 4. The checks will be available at the Broadway west gate house from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1:15 to 4:15 p.m. on the two days.

Checks will be distributed to the employee only. He must have positive identification and know his clock number.

Those who plan to pick up their checks at these times may park along Broadway while they get their checks. A. R. Vegalues, reported. Employees are asked not to park in front of any of the gates.

Winter St. employees who wish to pick up their checks during the shutdown may do so Wednesday, July 28, and August 4, at the Winter St. guardhouse from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

INSURANCE

Insurance claims and other insurance business will be handled by Leola Johnson for all departments at Broadway and Taylor St. except DC Motor and Generator.

All inquiries should be referred to Miss Johnson at Room 134, Taylor St., Ext. 2519.

LAST MAN OUT—One of the last employees leaving for vacation will be Albert Streb, Wire Mill, who waves a good-bye to guard George Goglein as he leaves the Taylor St. plant to enjoy two weeks with pay. The Wire Mill is the last section in Fort Wayne plants to close down. It will stop operations at 7 a.m. tomorrow.

Let Your GE Confidence Be Your Guide

Vacation time offers us an excellent opportunity to demonstrate our regard for the company we represent and the products General Electric makes, since we will probably be meeting many new people. People are potential customers, and customers are our guarantee for work; the more customers we attract, the greater our job security.

There are many places where vacationing General Electric employees have an opportunity to praise and recommend General Electric products. Many of us will be registering at hotels, motels, and vacation resorts from Maine to California, where the usual query about our place of work will be asked. Certainly this would be an appropriate occasion to speak up for the company we represent. Some of us undoubtedly will spend some time on our favorite beach, where people are usually more numerous, and inquisitive, than in some other places. Here again, it seems quite natural that each vacationing employee will get the chance to win friends and influence customers for General Electric, because the conversation, in any setting, seems to inevitably get around to the question "Where do you work now?" or "What do you do?" This is another opening for a really sincere expression on our part about our company—its good pay, good bosses, opportunity, and fine working conditions. Possibly the conversation will get around to what products General Electric makes and our own evaluation of these products. We might point out to our friends and acquaintances that General Electric produces the finest electrical products in the world; GE employees know, because they make them. Of course, it goes without saying that we will be listened to eagerly by those with whom we talk, especially if we happen to have with us one of the fine General Electric products, like the new travel iron, the exposure meter or portable radio.

Some of us may be staying at home this vacation to catch up on a few chores around the house. If friends drop in we ought to show them our new GE kitchen, TV set, or some other GE product. By showing the products we make, we convince others of our confidence in our work, and our company.

Of course, to our friends and acquaintances, we represent General Electric and because General Electric is a proud name, in American industry we have every right to be proud of it!

And we are convinced that wherever we go or whatever we do if we let our GE confidence be our guide this vacation by praising, recommending, and showing General Electric products to the people we meet, we will be helping ourselves to greater job security.

This vacation, as always, let your GE confidence be your guide.

Your Vacation's What You Make It

It's pretty well agreed that we get out of life just about what we put into it. It's just as true of vacations.

If you put a lot of tension, hurry, bustle into your vacation trip you'll end up harried and frazzled. But if you approach the deal in a relaxed frame of mind; plan carefully so you don't bite off more than you can chew; and take it easy all along the way, you're likely to have a pleasant trip. And you'll return home refreshed.

What's more, you're much more likely to return home safely, especially if you're driving. The hectic hurry of so many vacationing motorists invites traffic accidents.

With time at a premium, too many people grudge an additional minute spent enroute. They speed, they weave in and out of traffic, they take foolish chances. They short-change themselves on sleep and drive when they're tired. They also drive after they've been drinking or over-eating.

And what heels they are! They can't take time to be courteous. They never give pedestrians or other motorists a break. And if anyone infringes slightly on their rights, they bellow. No wonder they're nervous wrecks by the time they get home—if they do get home.

The fellow who takes it easy has a much more pleasant trip. What if he has missed a few points of interest? He's probably made some pleasant contacts that more than make up for it. And it doesn't bother him that he hasn't established any record for miles-per-day. He's had time to enjoy the country side, time to be pleasant and courteous to all he met, and he hasn't worried himself into a nervous breakdown or a serious accident.

If you're taking an automobile trip—Take It Easy. Remember, a vacation is a time to enjoy yourself . . . to get as much pleasure and relaxation as possible . . . to iron out tensions so that you'll come home refreshed.

Make yours a pleasant, courteous, relaxing, AND SAFE vacation trip.

Margaret Wolcott and Naomi Robinson started their vacations this week. . . Bob George is saving money now. He has a new TV, which is keeping him home nights. . . Congratulations on the blue hooted addition at the Glen Geyer home. . . After a look in their tool boxes last Friday morning, Bob Daveson and Johnny Hart found how to get things the easy way. . . Mary Jane Redding must not have had her mind on her lunch. In the cafeteria the other day she put the sho-yu sauce on her salad instead of the chow mein. . . Juanita Dusing's husband is very thoughtful to fix her lunch. However, the other day when he made her a pork chop sandwich, he forgot to remove the bones. . . Mabel Schaaf is a fast painter. She knocks the bucket of paint over and paints the porch in one sweep. . . Last Thursday they had a farewell potluck for Purl Hite. Thanks to Ruth Denton for coming over from the Winter St. plant, and also fixing the turkey. . . Johnny Hart was trying to see just how he would look in walking shorts. He had his trousers rolled up to his knees. Wow! . . . We send get well as quick as you can wishes to Jo Alles, who is on the sick list. . . We also hope that George Howell and his family have all recovered from the mumps by the time this goes to press.

SICK LIST

The following people have been reported on the sick list, and returned to work:

Sick List

George Hill, A. Willison Franklin, Marvin Gehl, Betty Reynolds, Lloyd Foulks, Ross M. Sills, Mildred Schoeff, Grace Hoon, Betty Scott, Lena Ferguson, Eva Johnson, Emma Black (Ellis), Gilbert Cole, Goldia DeLong, Marguerita Fortman, Helen Franklin, Eva Warnement, Lura Wyatt, and Mary Foster.

Every Laboratory Employee Trained In Resuscitation

Achieving 100 per cent participation, every employee of the Fort Wayne Laboratory has completed artificial respiration training, it was announced this week.

A total of 90 employees completed training in the Nielson Arm-Lift Method of artificial respiration. The laboratory safety committee, headed by Edward F. Girvin, Bldg. 28-B, conducted the program. Safety committeemen Paul V. Beltz, Bldg. 28-2, and Richard C. Hosier, Taylor St., instructed the classes.

The sessions were divided into two types, instructions and practice. The training program was set up as a safeguard for one-the-job needs and off-the-job needs, especially during the summer holidays and vacations.

Mildred Carpenter Rites Held Yesterday

Services for Mildred C. Carpenter, 59, were conducted yesterday in the C. M. Sloan & Sons Funeral Home. The Rev. J. W. Hamilton officiated. Miss Carpenter died Monday, July 19, in the Lutheran Hospital where she had been a patient for 19 weeks.

In 1918 Miss Carpenter came to the General Electric Company and was a dispatcher. Later she did assembly work and was a drill press operator in Bldg. 4 until February this year when she took a leave of absence for illness. She retired April 1, 1954.

Miss Carpenter was a Quarter Century Club member. She is survived by a cousin, Ray Barnard, of East Stroudsburg, Penn.

Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

TRANSFORMER TATTLES BLDG. 26-4 by Dutch Norwalt

Col. Walter Pohler is really going places with the General Electric Co. He is now in charge of (The Great Play Back). . . . Edna DeLeury is back in the headlines again with a new short haircut. P. S. Who washed the paint off of Edna's legs? . . . Murder's Row welcomes A. H. Topp after vacation. . . . Dick Goller was just one of the boys when they were (talking) about seining for carp up at Jones Lake. When the work started they found Goller out in

Employees Offered Air Conditioners With No Added Cost for Installation

While they last, the present stock of 115 volt air conditioners are available to employees from General Electric dealers with no additional cost for normal installation, according to Mike Casey, Commercial Electric manager.

Although stocks are limited, Mr. Casey said most popular models were available.

GE air conditioners may be purchased from Schueler Appliances, Schaper Home Appliance Co., Frank's, and Schnelker's.

It was also announced that after July 31 employees will no longer be able to buy the refrigerator-freezer combinations models LM95 and LH11. These models, which are in the 1953 design, will expire from the employee list at the end of this month.

All other models of 1954 model refrigerators and refrigerator-freezer combinations including the new rotary shelf type, remain on the employee list.

the boat with the game warden, directing operations, of course. . . . Tom Freeman brags about how well he likes his lake cottage, but Tommy likes his money better. Guess where he is early mornings and late at night. It isn't at his lake cottage. Check his time card at GE. . . . Russ James has a new route from Goose Lake to Fort Wayne. He goes by the way of Huntington now. It's only about an hour and a half out of the way. Nice short cut, Russ! . . . Murderer's Row was honored with a short visit from Harlan Voetz of Bldg. 26-1 last Friday. . . . Paul Peterson goes all-out on his vacation. He spent a week at the White Sox Ball Park. . . . Al Topp drank a tubful of calorie controlled beer on his vacation last week and gained 10 pounds. How come, Al? Was it the eating between drinks? It couldn't have been the beer! . . . We welcome Pat House to her new job in Bldg. 26-4. . . . Famous last words by Dick Goller: "I Took Care of It." . . . We wonder why Clark Scheid is wearing a long face this week. Interested parties contact Dick Goller and Ted Lauterberg. . . . Famous last words by Clark Scheid: "Will You Do Me a Favor?" . . . Rollic Mennewisch was seen driving his new reducing machine, a new V-8 Dodge. Congratulations, Rollic! . . . It is reported that Al Topp invited Mrs. Tom Freeman to spend a few days at Hamilton Lake so she could have a little vacation from Tom's fishworm business at Wawasee. . . . Edna DeLeury hit the jackpot again. She is now driving a new 1954 Mercury. How do you do it, Edna? . . . Some of us have been in Bldg. 26 for several years and it is with some regrets that we leave our friends and move to Hanna St. However, there will be many advantages such as no more stairs to climb, elevators to wait on, or just miss long walks from the parking lot or to the cafeteria on hot and cold days. Well it sounds good anyway, doesn't it? We'll be seeing you.

ECHOES from 19-2 by Fred McIntyre

Vacation Highlights: Wilma Burkholder, Rod Bradburn, Dewey McDowell, Harley Urbine, Bob Harrod, tour and fish in the state of Michigan. . . . Edna Etzler, Dewey Wickliffe, Florence Hindman, and Gladys McMillan are going with Elex on tour to California. . . . Al Johnson and Russell Flaugh are also making the California trip. . . . Boh Stute and Wayne Young have their sights set on Canada. . . . The bright lights of the big cities of the east beckon Kathryn Walters, Ed Horman, and Joe McGinnis. . . . Shirley Cunningham, Ada Phillips, and Fayne Harter will be looking for a bull fight while they are on tour of Mexico. . . . Don Distel, Myron Cox, Charles Britton, and Paul Scotton will be at Crooked Lake with an occasional trip to the Sunset Lodge for refreshments. . . . The following cities are on call for these people who have friends or relatives there: Frank Bitsberger, Milwaukee, Wis.; Tommy Black, Detroit, Mich.; Louella Boyce, Indianapolis; Junior King, Pierce-ton; Rodney Dush, Akron, Ohio; Martha Musselman, Denver, Colo.; Hollis Taylor, Chicago, Ill. . . . It's the Ozarks for Edna Baker, the Smokey Mountains for John Winstel, and the Black Hills for Ray Sink. . . . These Indiana lakes for the following people: Robert Schieman, Rome City; Ollie Fox, Pleasant Lake; Murry Johnson, Lage Gage; Carl Redding, Webster Lake; Lorwell Matthias, Pretty Lake; Homer Hibler, Shoaff Lake "North Shore"; Frank Schlink, Adams Lake. . . . We extend our sympathy to Harley Urbine and Don Woodward. They both have recently suffered the loss of their

Raymond F. Lucynski

Lucynski Named Hermetic Motor Purchasing Agent

Raymond F. Lucynski has been appointed purchasing agent in the Hermetic Motor Department, Albert E. Leider, manager of production, announced this week.

When he joined General Electric in 1940, Mr. Lucynski entered the Refrigeration Department at Schenectady as an expeditor. The following year he went into purchasing. In 1950 he became a buyer and later went into the General Purpose Control Department as a buyer. Mr. Lucynski was named a value analyst in the same department in January this year and had this position prior to his present appointment.

A graduate of Colgate University, Mr. Lucynski received his AB degree in 1939. He was a member of the Elecon Club at Schenectady. Mr. and Mrs. Lucynski have three children.

fathers. . . . Dick Beck, George March and Pete Prince were recent visitors to Bldg. 19-2. . . . We are glad to hear that Orville Gamble's wife is recovering from a recent operation. . . . So long and good luck to Leonard Michel, who left for Erie, Pa. Welcome to Bill David to Bldg. 19-2, who is replacing Leonard. . . . Catherine Eckenbarger plans a shake-down trip to California for that new Chevrolet she recently acquired. . . . Carleton Peters will paint his house, and Lefty Musser will change the four-tone paint job on his car to a two-tone. . . . Oscar Johnson is now a two-time grandpa. It's a girl this time. . . . Bonnie Aises will see Niagara Falls, but I'll be busy painting walls. . . . Happy vacation to all.

Credit Union Open During Shutdown

The Fort Wayne General Electric Employees Credit Union will remain open during the vacation shutdown, Lee Cupp, secretary-treasurer, announced this week.

For the two weeks of vacation, the Credit Union office will be open Mondays through Fridays from 7:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

SAVED BY A SHOE—Don Distel, Bldg. 19-2, had a close clip with a power mower last week, but no damage was done, thanks to his safety shoes. While attempting to start the mower, the whole machine lifted on to his foot and mowed the toe of his safety shoe. You're not advised to use this as an excuse not to cut your lawn, however—just wear safety shoes on the job.

by Ruby Stoops

A safety idea: It's always the other guy who causes the accident, so don't you be "the other guy." . . . Bertha Burnan is the proud grandmother of a grandson weighing eight pounds, 13½ ounces. His name is Thomas Patrick. That was her reason for wearing the blue safety pin. . . . Kathryn Chilcote, a former co-worker, entertained Ruth Smith, another former co-worker from California, with a wiener bake. Those present were: Bernie Warner, Louise Sinon, Goldie Weikel and husband, Alberta Watt, Betty Bertsch, Russell Chilcote, and Everett Smith. A good time was had by all. . . . It's a good thing that Rosie Johnson tried on her bathing suit before she went to the lake, or otherwise she would have been swimming indefinitely. . . . Ollie Ragan is driving around in a new Plymouth these days. . . . Birthday greetings to Rose Cuney, Helen Howell, and Zella Witte. We hope that they all had happy ones. . . . We have a proud father in our midst today. Charles Barrand became the father of a baby boy. Ted Wayne is the name. . . . We always thought that Eddie Bandt was Hoosier born, but since he has to be shown, he must be from Missouri. Lighters in automobiles do get hot, don't they, Ed? . . . Hulda Stefton really keeps clean on her vacation. We hear that she even washes and irons her "shimmies" while she is gone. . . . Gladys Pantazin spent her third week's vacation in Chicago. . . . Well, folks, read the first line carefully so that we all can be together again after vacation. So long!

SPECIALTY MOTORS Shipping—Receiving—Order Service by Mabel Fisher

We congratulate Dorothy McCoy who will have served the GE Company 25 years on July 30. . . . Ask Virginia Goeglein how she enjoyed the experience Thursday evening delivering News Sentinels. Sorta fun, huh? . . . Dorothy McCoy and Helen Risser are back from vacations looking fresh as daisies and twice as pretty. . . . Friday the office gave Evelyn Tibbles and Marlene Niccum each a gift and lots of good wishes. They are leaving to take up housekeeping as a full time job. It was nice working with you girls. . . . We miss Fred Wheeler who is in Jonesboro this week. . . . The gang waved good-bye to Ed David Friday as he passed by on the Pennsylvania on his way west. Paul Merket swears David waved from a freight car. . . . Paul Klage treated us Monday, his birthday. . . . Happy birthday to Glen Wilson, Edward Dirks, Dorothy Porter, Anthony Settimi, Anthony Koorsen, William Brown, Everett Pace, Paul Baker, James Vevia, and Leland Shaw. . . . Thursday Evelyn Kissinger entertained a group of girls from our office, the event being a stork shower for Betty Kemp. The gifts were hidden from the house to the front porch, so Betty did a lot of hunting and finding. The girls enjoying the evening were Helen Eggeman, Virginia Goeglein, Viola Haiber, Betty Kemp, Carol Symonds, Mary Jane Wise, Beverly Gebert, Catherine Minehart, Eva Westrick, Mary Murphy, Mary Cole, Claudine Gladbach, Dorothy Porter, and the hostess. . . . Happy vacation to each of you.

DECATURITES by George Laurent

July is the wedding anniversary month for several of our fellow-workers. Opal Andrews celebrated her 22nd anniversary on July 9. The Larry Franklins had their 26th anniversary also in July, but it took his wife to remind him of the date. Wonder if he did that to escape buying a present? . . . We are glad to welcome two of our co-workers back after long sick leaves. Hello to Hez Cochran and Ralph Rabbitt. We sure hope that your health continues to improve. . . . "Oh me, oh my, I am so tired that I can hardly stand up anymore." "Say, look at that turtle," said Genny. Gangway, there she goes with all thoughts of being tired forgotten. Ada Owens dislikes turtles enough that she soon forgets to be tired. How large was the turtle, Ada? As large as a silver dollar? . . . Just how anxious can a person get for his vacation to start? We hear that Bob Miller is in such a hurry for his vacation that he keeps his car running for almost five hours at a time while he is working. He surely is planning on a quick get-away! . . . Congratulations to Roger and Joan (Lichtenstiger) Borne upon the arrival of their new daughter, Teresa Jo. Mr. and Mrs. Elias Lichtenstiger are the maternal grandparents, while Mr. and Mrs. Ed Borne are the paternal grandparents. Watch those granddads strut! . . . Congratulations to Wilson Mann who is now a full-fledged Gallon Club blood donor member. We also want to commend the other GE employees and their wives who participated and helped the Adams County Red Cross Chapter exceed its quota last week when the bloodmobile visited Decatur. . . . It's good to see Walt Ryf back on the job after six months personal illness absence. . . . Carolyn McDougal is the little blonde now working in the Production Department. Carolyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mickey McDougal. . . . Janet Smith will have no difficulty remembering the anniversary date of her employment. She was employed in the Wage Rate Section on her 18th birthday, July 7. . . . Dorothy Dorothy Schnepf and Rosemary Miller were hostesses to the 35 girls going on the GeCode New York trip last Sunday evening at a dessert party at the home of Dorothy Schnepf. Mr. Miller of Miller's Tours was present to read the itinerary of the trip and answer any questions the girls might have. Later light refreshments were served by the hostesses and each girl was presented with a travel gift from the club.

STORMY WEATHER BLDG. 17-4

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

Whether it's a throwback to his milking days we don't know, but Clarence Nussel claims that he awoke the other night and heard cows. Does that mean he's dreaming of that farm he plans to retire to when he gets old? . . . On our hottest day Omer Mettler told Lenora Hanes he was getting her a fan big enough to blow her out of the blueprint room, but when they hooked it up, you guessed it, it wouldn't run. . . . Personal demonstration is always very effective, but in Rollie Miller's case it went beyond that. During the recent hail storm his wife didn't believe they could hurt a person until Rollie proved differently by bouncing one off her head, much to her pain and disgust. . . . Yes, the scholarly gentleman with the new glasses is still our own Hattie. . . . The new method of reading teaches you to read a thousand words a minute, but our money still goes on Alice Hahn who can break that record easily. . . . Has Arnold Ley been indulging in calorie controlled beverages in order to attain that sylph-like figure? . . . Although Bill Hurtt and Larry Reed have taken quite a beating lately, they claim that though their heads are bloody they're still unbowed. . . .

Even though others threatened to go home on that day the heat record was broken, Russ Noll remained calm and collected and refused to give up. . . . Many happy returns of the day to Don Baker, who on July 16 attained Jack Benny's old stand-by. . . . Any future arguments can now be arbitrated since Bob Todd has officially been made an umpire. . . . For any weighty, technical, or highly involved subjects we refer you to Casey Jones for all clear and concise explanations. . . . From all his associates in Bldg. 17-4 comes a fond farewell and best wishes for future success and happiness to Leon Diegel of Drafting in Bldg. 4-6. . . . To a very select few, "Wild Bill" Kellmeier is regarded but not appreciated. . . . Davis, our apprentice boy, is leaving to spend a few weeks in the Army. He will return after shutdown. . . . Did they pick the most photogenic subject in the Fire Department when Buck Lydy had his picture spread lavishly over the paper, or was it just the opposite when the pictures all appeared on the back page. . . . We feel sure that if a trip is planned or not on our vacation that everyone will thoroughly enjoy themselves. So until we see each and every one again may we close with these familiar words: "May the Lord watch between me and thee while we are absent from one another."

by Rachel Mounsey

We wish to extend our deepest sympathy to Faye Christie in the death of her husband, Jack. . . . Congratulations to Eula Murry and husband on their new baby boy. . . . Chet Carey spent Sunday at Buck Lake Ranch and saw Homer and Jethro. Chet says they can wreck any piece of music they play. . . . Welcome to Francis Davis on days. . . . Esther Schladenhauffen is going to Niagara Falls on her vacation. We wonder if Esther will come back married. . . . Millie Snider says she is moving closer to the office, and next she is going to be a private secretary. . . . Hazel Hardwick is spending a few weeks in California. . . . Mel Kestner needs a pair of walking shorts for work. It sure would save the wear and tear on his pants legs. He always has them rolled to his knees. . . . Mabel Moser has her daughter Doris home with her from Ball Memorial to spend a month. Mabel is planning on spending her vacation at Blind River Canada. . . . It used to be really easy for Doyle Sheets to play cards one night a week, then came the youngster. Now Doyle can only play an hour or two before he goes home to check on his little girl. . . . Bob Boone really started a trend when he got his hair cut real short. Harold Mosshammer and a couple more from the gang followed suit. Harold claims you can save money by getting it cut short. You don't have to go to the barber shop so often. . . . Woody Winters still has the boat for sale or rent. If anybody cares to use it during our vacation it's anchored at Adams Lake. Woody says you take it at your own risk, or if you want to use it for a surf board it's OK by him. . . . We wish everyone a very pleasant and enjoyable vacation. See you in a few weeks.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

The welcome mat is out this week for Nancy Voirol in Order Service. Nancy is a transfer from Specialty Motors; Robert Gorman in Production, transfer from Specialty Motors; Jim Hess who is new up in Planning. . . . Out in the factory we're saying hello and welcome to SIM to Gladys Blue, Melinda Bradtmiller, Chester Lumm, James Fike, James Perry, Paul Grogg, Vernon Burkett, Clarence Watterson, William Reefer, Fred Wilson, Thomas O'Connell, Jethro Harris, Martin Bradford, Guy Binkley, Virido Jones, and Victor Braun. . . . On the illness list this week we have Bernice Peck, Ireta Gillie, and Betty Hoffman. Hurry back, girls. . . . All the chatter this week is for, of course, VACATION. . . . Have you heard how George Kniss expects to spend his vacation? Beautiful vacation place! He bought a lot, 80 by 250 on a hill overlooking Franke Park. He tells us he plans to sit out all day and dream for two whole weeks. Sounds nice doesn't it? . . . Carl Hofacker and family are going to San Francisco by way of Yellowstone National Park, and they're coming home by way of Death Valley. It certainly ought to be a nice trip, especially since they're driving a new Oldsmobile. . . . Don Zipp is taking his girl friend to New York to meet some of his relatives. . . . Two fellows set an all-time record win for the game of euchre. Walt Zollinger and Eddie Danzel got 29 straight points. . . . The unfortunate partners were W. Johnloz and L. Maggmann. Poor fellows! . . . Congratulations to the baby born a week ago Saturday to the Kenneth Spiker family. A baby girl, and it weighed 11 lbs. and 15 ozs. They named Dorene Kay. Kenny, as you all know, is an apprentice out in the Tool Room. . . . Many of you have been asking about Bill Kelsey. Bill is still in Chicago at the Wesley Memorial Hospital and I'm sure he would appreciate a cheer card. . . . In the Payroll Department last Friday, they had a little farewell party for Alice Chandler who is leaving us for a much better cause, motherhood. They presented her with lovely gifts and she expressed her thanks to everyone. . . . And now we wish everyone a most pleasant and enjoyable vacation and leave you with these familiar words. "When you forget to be careful, you're not driving your car, you're just aiming it."

SHAFT SHAVINGS BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

We had a visitor last week, Jim Feber who is home on leave from the Navy. . . . Happy birthday to Harry Brown and to Blanche Cowell. I believe, too, just between the typist of this column and the readers, Sherry Varner had a birthday last week, too. Happy birthday, Sherry. . . . Ted Schlup can't seem to raise as good a crop on his farm as a few of the other fellows from the east end. At least, that was the report I received this week. . . . "Arky" Bellamy seems to get a kick out of riding to work with Lloyd Germano. Explain yourself, Arky. . . . Forgetful Frank—this is Frank Elder's new name. The other evening, he was waiting for his wife to pick him up. The report the next morning was that after waiting for a while, he remembered his car was sitting in the parking lot. He had driven to work that morning. . . . Joe Burton threw some crappies away. The next day, Ted Schlup brought them to work and tried to tell the fellows they were bluegills. What a story, Ted! . . . The other day, Roy Prince got quite a surprise when he opened his medicine chest at home and found it full of Rapid Shaving Cream. The latest suggestion to avoid that has been decided, Roy. Get a book of instructions next time. . . . Blanche Cowell is wondering who her admirer is that brings her cut flowers. . . . We say good-bye to Mary Murphy who left 31-1 to go to work in Bldg. 18. Good luck, Mary! . . . Mrs. Traxler has decided she doesn't like their lipstick-red Ford, so Harold is changing it for a mint green Oldsmobile. . . . It's vacation time, and here's hoping everyone has a safe and pleasant time. It is better to be patient for 60 seconds than to be a patient for 60 seconds than to be a patient for six months.

WHY DO PEOPLE BUY STOCKS?—People put their savings to work for them for the very same reason they put their muscles or brains to work for them—to make money. When a company is profitable and earns money, a part of its profits are paid out in the form of dividends to the share owners.

Why Do People Buy Stocks?

As a result of the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and because over 20,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a full share of stock as a bonus for the U. S. Savings Bonds purchased under the plan in 1948, a number of employees have asked us for information about stocks and bonds. Therefore, as a service to our readers we are currently presenting a series of eight articles on this subject. The article in today's issue is the third of the present series.

We have discovered that many average Americans are purchasing shares in American corporations and so are part owners in these businesses. Today we will try to answer the questions of why these people want to be share owners.

People put their savings to work for them for the very same reason they put their muscles or brains to work for them—TO MAKE MONEY.

When a company is profitable and earns money, a part of its profits are paid out in the form of dividends to the share owners—so much for every share of stock. If you own one per cent of the company, you receive one per cent of all dividends as your share in the profits. If you own ten per cent, you receive ten per cent of the dividends, and so on. The payment of dividends depends primarily upon the profit earned by a company. Most companies try to pay dividends at a regular annual rate. However, in years of exceptional earnings, this rate may be increased or extra dividends may be paid to share owners. On the other hand, however, reduced earnings on the part of the company may necessitate the reduction or elimination of dividends for a period of time or for all time.

Of 1,069 common stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, 90 per cent of the companies which had issued these stocks paid dividends to their share owners in 1953. Over the last several years, dividend paying companies have paid dividends which average 6 per cent or more of the price of their stock. Over the years, of course, there were times when the dividends were larger than this and there were times when they were smaller.

Some of the companies pay dividends regularly (more than 25 per cent of them have paid dividends for at least 20 consecutive years), and some pay dividends irregularly. However, if you owned a share of stock in each of these companies, you might expect to have received a return which averaged 6 per cent or more a year of the amount you invested since 1947 and as long as you continued to own your stock, you would be entitled to your share of the

Did you know that 35 years ago our general manager, Lisle Hodel, was the first planner in the Fort Wayne Works? . . . Welcome to Dan Griffin who hails from California. He's working with R. L. Hupp in the Standard Group. . . . Berdeen Hutsell had some bad luck. Someone backed into her car and smashed one of the fenders. Tough luck, Berdeen. . . . Norvel (Red) Raney from Linton, was visiting the Accounting Section last week. Red was very enthusiastic when talking about his eight-month old daughter, Karen Fay. . . . Betty Ross played her first game of golf Sunday morning with her husband and Ken Wyman. Wasn't it a little embarrassing, Betty, to play with a couple of pros? . . . Kate Walper, Helen Hopple, and Paul Magnuson were all on vacation last week. They certainly did choose one of the warmest weeks of the year. . . . Lou Staak came to work Monday, June 12, with his hand bandaged. From the story going around he lost his balance when he started the motor on his boat. He fell out of the boat and somehow tangled with the motor. Lou should enter boat races. From what I hear the boat does pretty good without a driver. . . . Margaret Tennison just returned from a few day's visit in Chicago. . . . Surely Dame Fortune smiles on Dick Abrahams. Three weeks in the Pacific Northwest. . . . Time marches on. dividends each time they were declared in the future.

Dividends received as a return on the share owner's investment vary with the particular company whose stock is purchased. Some companies may be so successful that they can pay a higher rate of return, others may experience difficulties and be able to pay little or no dividends.

Inasmuch as the dividends which a company can pay depends on its successful operations from year to year, the amount of return a share receives is tied very closely to the earnings of the company he has invested in. Therefore, he is most interested in its successful and profitable operation.

In the next issue we will learn what determines the price of a share of stock.

William R. David, Jr. Named General Foreman in DC M&G

The appointment of William R. David, Jr. as a general foreman in the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department has been announced by Kenneth D. Strong, superintendent of the shop. Mr. David will be in charge of Area B of the manufacturing section with responsibility for sheet metal and detail; stator coils and windings; rotor, main and edge-wise coils; insulation; and maintenance.

When he came to the company in 1946 Mr. David entered the Test Engineers Program at Schenectady. He completed tests at Lynn and Pittsfield. When he completed the program he entered the Advanced Production Training Course Group 10 in 1948. While on this course, he spent six months in various operating sections in Fort Wayne and finished the course in 1949.

At that time, Mr. David came to M&G as assistant to the supervisor in charge of inventory control. He became supervisor of production services one year later and was subsequently named supervisor of loading and requisition service and production supervisor.

In 1953 Mr. David was appointed services decentralization projects specialist and later the same year was named supervisor of manufacturing administration and personnel development. This was his position until his present assignment.

Belated birthday greetings from Bldg. 4-6 to Harry Connor on July 17, and his daughter Dorothy on July 18. Also happy birthday to Charles "Tommy" Thomas on July 30, and Leon Lahman on July 24. . . . A vacation is badly needed by Bob Ritchey of Engineering. He parked his car early last Tuesday morning, locked the doors, and proceeded to his desk, whereupon he realized he had left his keys dangling in the car. Mrs. Ritchey had to come to his rescue. Tch, tch! . . . Chickens or fish, what'll you have? "D. D." Hershberger needed an additional locker for some chickens he wanted to freeze for future consumption. He rented a locker at Waynedale, and proceeded to carry his chickens in. When he unlocked it, lo and behold, it was filled with Walleyes, belonging to none other than his boss, E. M. Stanberry. Call it coincidence if you wish, but the whole matter was finally ironed out, much to everyone's satisfaction. . . . Congratulations to the Robert Susdorfs who on Friday, July 16, at exactly 10 p.m. welcomed a little stranger to their family circle in the person of Baby Pamela Jean, weight 6 lb. 15 oz. Mother and daughter doing fine at the Parkview Hospital. Now that's what we call a conscientious and precision-minded engineer. He didn't even have to take time off from his job. . . . Seems like walking shorts for men are all the rage this year. A real authority on the subject is Judy Berghorn. Are they out of this world, Jude, or is that where they should be? . . . Wherever you go, whatever you do, a happy vacation we wish for you!

insisted, Mrs. Borah accompanied the children. Bill will travel leisurely down alone via Chevrolet.

WIRE RAVELINGS

TAYLOR ST.

by Art Raso

The Waynedale Little Leaguers have found a new backstop for the baseball facilities on their diamond, but the only trouble is Virgil Nash is opposed to it. While getting behind the screen at home-plate seemed safe enough he still caught a baseball on his forehead. It happened that a warm-up pitcher was out of the bull pen, but just in line for Virgil to become backstop. . . . Birthday greetings to Charles Martin, July 23; Ted Sanderson, July 27; Harry Jones, July 29; Bob Morris and Wilson Lambert, July 30; Hobart Friend, Aug. 1; Louis Maier, Aug. 2; Dillo Patten, Aug. 4; Delmos Dettner, Aug. 5; Lois Connett, Aug. 6; Harry Perl and Alfred Rudasky, Aug. 9; and Aaron (Porky) Schoenefeld, Aug. 11. . . . Let's everyone enjoy our vacation by being as safe as possible, whether it is at home, driving, or on the lake. Let's practice safety on vacation the way we do in the shop so we will all make a safe return.

The girls working on the group 13x52 line have finally come up with a solution to a problem that has long baffled them. The problem being the task of furnishing Mabel Miller enough chicken necks to chop on. July 1 being her birthday, Cecil Gordon presented her with a hen and rooster. Now she can raise her own chicken necks. By the way, after 50 years of life, Mable is still just 39. . . . Besides doing baby sitting, Irene Bowman also operates "The Loving Care Pet Shelter," but there are some pets that are barred. She has absolutely refused to keep Cecil Gordon's pet night crawler "Willie," also "Jake," her pet

R. L. Brokaw Appointment Announced As Apprentice Training Specialist

The appointment of Roy L. Brokaw as apprentice training specialist has been announced by Richard E. Gebert, supervisor of apprentices.

When he came to General Electric in 1951, Mr. Brokaw entered the DC Motor and Generator Department where he was a draftsman. In 1953 he became a designer and had this position until his present position.

A graduate of Bradley University, Mr. Brokaw received his BS degree in 1949 in industrial education. He has also completed work on a Master's degree.

From 1943 until 1946 he served in the U. S. Army Air Force and spent 31 months of that time in the China-Burma-India theater of operations. He is a member of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic honor fraternity, and the Supervisors Club. He is also a life saving and water safety instructor for the American Red Cross.

Mr. and Mrs. Brokaw and their two children reside at 4321 Weiser Park.

snake. We cannot understand this refusal as they are perfectly harmless. They will not bite, all they want to do is slither around the floor keeping out of the way of one's feet. . . . Lottie McFarland is a great lover of that summer delicacy, corn on the cob. So much so that she is collecting dishes having an ear of corn design on them. At present she doesn't have many, and in this manner is asking her co-workers to help her round up more. She will pay top price for them. . . . Nora Furthmiller produces a sandwich that would put a "Dagwood Special" to shame. Monday's creation was composed of three slices of bread, two hot dogs, onions, braunschweiger, and cheese. Tuesday's contained the same amount of bread plus four slices of bologna, three of liver sausage, and two of cheese. It must be remembered that the usual condiments such as pickles, catsup, and mustard graced these productions. If any of you can come up with a better combination, please let us know. . . . Some of the girls of our section are receiving quite a lot of letters from Bob Sedgwick, who at the present is located at Camp Chaffee, Ark. He reports that he is in good shape and very busy doing KP duty and writing letters. He tells us that so far he has been able to keep out of the brig. Bob would like very much to have more of his friends write him, so get busy with pen and paper, me hearties.

Cafeteria Favorites

Preparing a dish of potato salad like that served in the Broadway cafeteria is Esther Kipfer, assistant salad cook.

POTATO SALAD

- |                             |                             |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1 qt. diced boiled potatoes | 2 Tbs. chopped pickles      |
| 6 hard-boiled eggs, diced   | 2 Tbs. chopped red pimiento |
| 2 tsp. chopped onion        | 2 tsp. prepared mustard     |
| ½ cup chopped celery        | 2 tsp. salt                 |
| 2 Tbs. chopped mango        | 1 tsp. sugar                |

Mix together, adding enough mayonnaise to moisten. Makes six servings.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

A few weeks ago a tame rabbit wandered up to Mac McCray's back door and was promptly named "Mr. Harvey," but when Mac gave "Mr. Harvey" to a friend, it's name was changed to "Mrs. Harvey." . . . Buck was seen racing toward the parking lot one morning. When asked why, he replied, "I left the motor of my car running." . . . The girls can't figure out whether Velma Rose has a whim to eat with her fingers or if she is absent-minded. Either way, she passes up the silverware when eating at the cafeteria. . . . Congratulations to Fred Leinker and Ralph Bradtmiller. Fred has a new baby son and Ralph has a new baby daughter. . . . We hope Louise Lengerich had a very happy birthday last week. . . . Bob Mann made a rush trip home from work in George Harmeyer's car. He discovered a defective material tag on an article of clothing he was wearing and had to have a repair job. . . . Audrey Oberley found a pair of men's socks in her car and is still trying to figure out where they came from. . . . Jim McGill was seen wearing some new paper decorations. He was even kind enough to offer somewhat of an explanation. . . . Vacation Notes: Those relaxing at home are Dorcas Colbert, Winifred Coates, Erlinda Werling, Blanche Kanning, Edna Waterson, Lorraine Papp, Mac McCray, Ruth Freeland, Bob Jackson, Bob Wiehe, Murray Sherman, Shorty Pequignot, Lena Forker, and Virgil Buchanan. . . . The Glen Hobbs and Norris Fellers to Minnesota fishing. . . . Helen Studler and Helen Leaman to California with the Elex. . . . Edna Kneubuhler to Edmonton, Canada. . . . Guleia Renier, Annabelle Blair, and Rose Kreig to California. Annabelle to visit her sister and family. Rose will stop off en route at Topeka, Kan., and head on west to see her new grandchild. . . . Audrey Oberley and Carolyn White to Canada and the eastern states. . . . Gladys and Harry Freeman, Calvin Hapner, and Whitey Lieberenz to Wisconsin fishing. . . . Dolores Stapleton is taking a Great Lakes cruise. . . . Ellen Gerbers, Marjorie Fowler, and Betty Warren are spending part of the time with Doris Rienhold at her Lake James cottage. . . . Wayne Colvin to Adams Lake and Benton Harbor, Mich. . . . Frenchy Chilcote is going to his lake cottage and may spend a few days visiting Garland Farrell, a former employee, in West Virginia. . . . The Ernie Clarks to Miami, Fla., and a boat trip to Cuba. . . . Art Pequignot and family to Pretty Lake. . . . The Frank Clibbons to Straight Creek, Ky. . . . Ed Lauer fishing at various Indiana lakes. . . . Nancy McCrea motoring through New York and Canada. . . . Danny Reulle to Chicago to see some baseball and the usual sights. . . . Mary Cordell and "Nipper" to Michigan. . . . Helen Coryell to an Indiana lake but hasn't made up her mind which one as yet. . . . Dave Gilbert says it will have to cool off before he goes anywhere. . . . Mary Reed to Michigan. . . . Lonnie Rockstroh, Ray Loveless, Velma Rose and Vera Hoover to the lake. . . . Ed Becker is a little uncertain, but thinks he may take a short trip and relax at home the remainder of the time. . . . Mildred Leazier will sit in the middle of her 40 acres and watch for the appearance of Oscar, the Beast of Busco. . . . Last, but not least, your editor, to the White Mountains of good old New Hampshire to visit the in-laws. . . . Here's wishing each and everyone a safe and happy vacation.

We hope you'll stay as safe off the job as you do on it.

Ivan Osterman, shame on you! We saw what you did with that wastebasket the other afternoon. We really don't think it belonged upside-down on Becky Lisle's desk. . . . Thanks to Ernie Roman, we at last understand something about a slide rule. . . . If Keith Kalb wears any more ties like the one he wore the other day, everyone in the office will have to invest in a good pair of sunglasses. . . . Paul Smith's daughter-in-law and grandson from New Mexico have been visiting him. . . . Have you seen what Eldon Bell has been driving lately? Quite a jump from a Cadillac, don't you think? . . . We wonder what became of Ernie Cutter's pipe. . . . We sure hope somebody finds that wedding bell because it looks as if we'll be needing it in Test and Inspection. . . . Happy birthday to Carl Hattendorf on July 22, Paul Fremion on July 22 (we won't mention how old Paul is because his wife doesn't know, but it is rumored that he was born in 1925); Ray Bobay on July 22, Walter Holloway on July 30, Dorothy Klug on August 3, Cliff Bieber on August 5, and Johnnie Burnett on August 7. . . . Happy anniversary to Eldon Bell on July 18 and Herb Tons on July 17. Eldon will be with the company 25 years. . . . Louise Lambole was using hailstones in her iced tea the other night. She said they had one that was 5½ inches around. . . . We wonder if Iife Holmes is going to treat everyone. It seems he won at golf the other night. We also wonder if he told his wife. . . . Mike Brayer was seen getting some camping equipment ready for vacation. . . . Frank Boyd and his wife are looking for a tent and some sleeping bags. They are going to see some of the country. Just the old wanderlust I guess. . . . Earl Greenlee is slipping! He only fished for three hours all the time he was on vacation. . . . Welcome to our new Test Engineer trainees, Ben Thompson and Bill Long. We hope you will enjoy your stay here, boys. . . . Mike Brayer's daughter, Nancy, attended the opera at Cincinnati the week-end of July 10. . . . Louis Shattuck was painting his house while he was on vacation. . . . Doris Rhonemus' father was operated on July 16. We hope he is coming along fine. . . . Ted Childs and Herb Lindberg will travel to Bright Lake, Canada, during vacation. We hope they do well. . . . Art Bear purchased some preserved crickets to use on Sewell Lake in Wisconsin. Now if you were a fish what would you bite first, a juicy redworm or a preserved cricket? We hope you get them anyway, Art. . . . Carl Hattendorf and his wife will snuggle down somewhere in Canada to try their luck on the big ones. If Carl puts away as many pancakes for breakfast as he says, the fish will starve to death before he gets his bait in the water. Tighten your belt, boy! . . . Bill Lavine had poison ivy so he went to the dispensary and got some lotion for it. In the meantime, Kitchen lost his tapping compound. He was still looking for it when Bill set the lotion down and went away. You can guess what happened. Ooh, what a gooiie mess! . . . Consumers take notice: Never buy berry bushes from "Indian Giver Lavine." . . . Kitchen has decided to "keep up with the Jones." Yes, he's going to buy a television. . . . Judy Lehman has suddenly lost his appetite for chicken. Wonder why? . . . Vondy and Harry Diem have made a solemn pledge never to tell another fish story. . . . Ray Frederick's son saved his pennies and bought a small outboard motor. He then asked his dad to buy him a boat. Ray balked and suggested they go to a lake and use the motor. Afterwards Ray asked the boy how he liked it. He said he liked it fine, but he still wanted a boat. You just can't win, Ray. . . . HAVE A NICE VACATION EVERYONE, AND PLEASE BE CAREFUL.

Paul Richter and wife will make Somerset Park in Wisconsin their headquarters and make side trips to the Dells. . . . Herschel Odier and family will spend some time in southwestern Indiana. . . . When Charlie Bennett catches up on his farm work, he plans on taking the family to Sturgeon Lake in Michigan for a few days. . . . Leland Richardson also plans on cleaning up his farm work and then taking his boys fishing for a few days. . . . Earl Leichty and family will be at Sturgeon Lake and Bob Mosshammer and Kenny Smith will come up for a few days to learn how to catch fish. . . . Hayden Rice and family will spend their vacation at their home at Big Lake. He says he won't have time to fish though, he'll be working on the cottage. . . . Kenny Smith and family will be at Snow Lake the first week. . . . Bob Mosshammer and family will spend their days at Gilead Lake in Michigan, sleeping in the morning, working on the cottage in the afternoon and fishing in the evening. . . . Floyd Null and family are going to sit at home under the apple tree, leaving home only to go to the corner for ice cream each evening. . . . Lowell Welker is going to Chicago and Michigan. . . . Harry Mitchell will be at Lake Gage. . . . Rhinehold Lepper will visit friends in Jonesboro, Ark. . . . Frank Druhot will visit in Ohio and at Tippecanoe Lake. . . . George Hartman is going to Lake George. . . . Eddie Kammeyer will be at Sand Lake, Mich. . . . Don Martz is going to Lake Wawasee. . . . Richard Poehler is going to travel into Ontario. . . . Lester Fanning is taking his family to Boston via the Pennsy Turnpike. . . . Paul Shive will spend some time in Northern Michigan where it will be cool. . . . Dick Burns and family will try their luck fishing in Minnesota. . . . Gordon Yaeger will be making a fast trip to California. . . . Don Hill, Ken Brown, Chet Burgette and Robert Plasterer will be working on their houses. . . . DeWayne Schele and Ray Steinacker don't know as yet where they will be going. DeWayne says his wife hasn't made up his mind yet and Ray was non-committal. . . . Dick Arnold's wife says he is going to Minnesota. . . . Don Alcott is planning a trip around Lake Michigan. . . . Eric Bluhm will spend some time visiting in Iowa. . . . Look for Fred Koenig, Eric, he'll be in Iowa also, visiting his mother. . . . Marc Junk will be negotiating for a building lot during the shutdown. . . . Bill Owens and family will spend some time at Lake George. . . . Elwin Coolidge retires from the company today and soon will be leaving for an extended trip to the Pacific Northwest and California. We all wish him many happy years of retirement. . . . George Luker will be trying to fly the wings off his "Cub." . . . Sharon Matthews will be changing her name to Mrs. Krinn on Saturday. We wish her every happiness. . . . George Houser will be spending the next three weeks at Lake George. . . . Gene Mittermaier will be overhauling his Packard, hoping to make a better showing at the drag races. . . . Bob Calkins will be fishing when not fixing flat tires. . . . Louie Peduto plans on visiting Washington D. C. and Virginia. Keith Jamison and family will also tour the same area. . . . Gus Mittermaier will be visiting Denver, Grand Canyon and Yellowstone. Bob Benz will also tour the Northwest. . . . Lowell Mason will spend three weeks in the wilds of Canada. . . . Mart Kimble, Milt Ray, Ed Stiles and Clarence Meeks will spend their time around Fort Wayne resting up. . . . John Roemer and family will spend one week at Lake George. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Frick and son are planning a Yellowstone trip. . . . Jack Hurlless and John Steller are going to visit the bears and camp at Porcupine Mountain in Upper Michigan. . . . Karl Zurcher and family are going fishing in Wisconsin. . . . Of course, Ross Coghagen is planning his annual trek to California. The Chrysler had an overhaul job, but it will have the same driver. . . . Rufus Niblick will spend his vacation rowing Roy Paulson around to the good fishing spots in Waldron Lake. . . . Ed Glaser passed out cigars with wrappers saying "It's a Girl." Congratulations, Ed. . . . Bob Pickett will be visiting the South (deep, that is). . . . Don Clark and family spent last Saturday with relatives on a whirlwind trip all over Chicago. . . . Anyone wishing to take swimming lessons during vacation see Al Holthus and Elmer Sauerwein. Al claims he swam at one year old and Elmer at two. . . . Clyde Spangler will spend his vacation perfecting a new waterproof pants pocket he plans to put on the market. . . . Wherever you go or whatever you do make this vacation a peaceful rest, not a rest in peace.

30-YEAR MAN—S. Delmont Shaffmaster (center) recently totaled 30 years of GE service. Mr. Shaffmaster started with GE in 1924 as a student in Bldg. 19-1. He is now an engineering technician at Winter St. Shown with him are (l-r) W. M. Hassenplug, E. H. Perkins, J. H. Behm, and B. P. Miracle.

Bob Bauer found two guns in his yard the other day. They were tossed there by the persons who robbed the Taylor St. grocery. Guess they thought you needed protection, Bob. . . . Gertrude Reichard says our slogan is "Who gets their notice next?" . . . We welcome Bob Hull to the 21 frame as foreman. We also welcome several others who have come from first and third, and those from other departments now to the second trick. . . . Audrey Brindle has joined the lifeguards. She was on the lake trying to get a little three-year-old boy back to shore who was floating around in a boat alone. Audrey says she is spending her vacation at home and enjoying it. . . . Emmet Owen was presented a gift by Section 17 last week for his new son. Congratulations, Emmet. . . . Margaret Kenyon will spend her vacation in the Ozarks. A pleasant trip, Margaret. . . . Minnie Prumm will spend her vacation at home and will probably paint her garage. . . . Mable Altimus says she is staying home on her vacation. Now, Mable, you can stay home when you can't go anywhere else. . . . Alma Raymer has started an orphan's home. She has two stray kittens she is caring for. Speaking of cats, while Alma and a couple of her co-workers were eating lunch, a calico cat came wandering in and came up to Alma. She immediately picked it up and toted it back to the milk machine and bought it a box of chocolate milk. After noticing her mistake she went back and got white milk, carrying the cat both trips. The cat ate its refreshments and wandered on up the aisle. Ruth Gunn overtook it and put it on the chute. Poor cat didn't know what to do on that oily chute. Now, Ruth, you know you are supposed to be kind to animals. . . . Maury Siples is going to work on his new home during vacation. After it is finished we are all going to his place for a housewarming and have a dance. . . . Irene Draben-scot is going to Detroit to visit her folks. A safe journey, Irene. . . . Irma Beard says she is just going to be a tramp on her vacation. The girls say she is going to get married. Who is the lucky man, Irma? . . . Frances Oberholtzer is another one of those getting married gals. She says she doesn't know yet. . . . When we asked Homer Huser for some news for our column he replied, "No news is good news," and so it is, Homer. He says he is going to rest and take his boy Tony for a hike during his vacation. . . . Agnes Sarasizen says she is going to stay home and clean house. . . . Eva Weber is another one of those staying home gals. . . . Helen Orr is cleaning house and may go to see her son at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. . . . Violet Renkenberger is going to Toledo to visit her folks. . . . Press Chaney is planning a trip to Birmingham, Ala., to visit his folks. . . . Alma Raymer says she is going to catch up on her magazines and of course, take care of her cats. . . . Dorothy Hart is taking a trip to San Francisco and Los Angeles with the Elex, but will fly back. She will spend a week with her son Dale and family. Dale has a new son, Roy David, born May 30, and of course grandma is anxious to see him. . . . We wish all the rest of you a very nice vacation wherever you are, and all of you who are traveling, a safe journey. See you after vacation.

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

Here it is July 23 and the vacation is upon us. At this writing, two of the golf leagues have stashed their clubs and shoes away for another year. Last May when the golf wars started, the weather was befit fur coats and wooly gloves and now in the height of the season, we call it quits. There are seven weeks until the Blind Bogey event. Such a business. "Cow pasture pool" in itself is a great game, but the competition in league play makes the game for the majority of us dubs. This writer would like to go on record for a longer league season next year.

Tuesday

With the help of the last place Forty Niners who twice licked the mighty Nineteenth Holers, the Divot Diggers with Jack Jennings copped this league's crown. The new champs insured the crown by beating the third place Dubs by five points.

Big Red's boys fell by the same amount to a team determined to get out of the league cellar and did it with the win.

In the race for the cellar the Gas House Tigers gave the Optimists the pleasure with a five-pointer over the rose colored glasses boys.

Winter St.

With a great big 23 point splurge on the final day Jack Skevington's Brassies waltzed off with top honors. With the loss, Jim Geiger's Mashies find themselves on the bottom of the heap with the same minus total, 28, as the winning Brassies enjoy on the plus side of the ledger. Skev shot a 38.

The Putters can call it a lack of points that denied them the crown. They managed only a 10 point win over the Niblicks. Dick Szink carded 40 for the winners while Vern Foulks, the ex-Owl, had a like score for the losers.

Bill Irwin's Drivers who were in the Winter St. driver's seat for most of the season slipped to a poor fourth in the final standings by dropping a three point decision to league manager Fisher's Spoons who also waited until the last day of the season to get off of the bottom.

Monday Afternoon

Because of two holiday postponements Charlie Briggs' gang still have some scrapping to do. At the present time it has developed into a two team race. Leo Almandinger's Putters and the Penkul Wire Mill team are both in contention.

The Wire Mill lads with Carl Saar's 38 leading the way clipped the cellar dwelling Highballs by 16.

A 13 point Divoteer win over the league leading Putters loosened the leader's stranglehold on first place despite a one over par effort by Willie Adams.

The final match pitted Transformer and Financials and came out a win for the step up, step down, boys by two points.

Monday Evening

From this league for some reason, I can't seem to glean very much information. According to one of the lads what I do have isn't correct. I guess that we will have to draft the dean of GE golfdom, "In The Rough" Walt Sunier, to furnish us with information, or better, far better, get him to write this column as it should be written.

I am sure that all of the golfers in the GE leagues are solidly behind the Fort Wayne Open to be held Thursday through Sunday August 19-21 at the Elks Country Club.

Jr. Fed Ends Season With 12-2 Record

The GE Club team in the Junior Federation League ended its regular season play Sunday, July 18, with a record of 12 wins and 2 losses which was good for second place in league standings.

Tonight the GE boys play their first game in the playoffs. They will face City Light at McMillen Park.

First place in the league went to Maxton Motors of Butler who had a 13 to 1 record for the season. They were handed their only defeat by GE last week. GE won 6 to 5 in a game which saw the winners stage a five-run rally in the eighth inning to pull it out of the fire.

In their final game of regular play, GE beat the Fort Wayne Merchants 6 to 3.

Beltz Hurls No Hitter for Lab Against Winter St.; Win 13 to 0

Opening the second half of Interdepartment Softball League action last week, Paul Beltz, of the Works Lab team, pitched a no-hitter against the Winter St. team. The final tally was 13 to 0 in favor of the Works Lab.

With the first half of league play ending on rained-out games for the eight teams, there is no first half winner yet. The rained-out games will be rescheduled to determine a winning team.

In other action last week, the MTP's gave the Vets a battle but the seventh inning proved too much for the MTP's and the Vets won by a 10 to 9 final score. The Vets took a 4 to 1 lead in the first and the MTP's came back in the fourth with 5 runs. The seventh brought hits and two runs by Ort, Beatly, and Scherer of the Vets to wind up the scoring.

The Squares scored an easy victory over the TE's with a 19 to 6 score. The Test boys had error trouble while the Squares hit freely. Spiker banged out a homer for the winners.

Scoring a win, the Apprentice School defeated the AST team by a 13 to 6 score. The AST's Bob Ryan hit a homer in the game.

Little League Defeats P-F; Loses to Inca

GE Little Leaguers came from behind July 13 to win over Patterson-Fletcher 10 to 8. This was the last game of the first half and gives the GE boys a final standing of 8 wins and 1 loss.

The game Wednesday was halted by a severe hail and rain storm after the first inning. The game, the first in the second half, was replayed Friday. It was a tight pitchers' battle between Snyder of GE and Hazelette and Davison of Inca. Each team got four hits, but Inca was able to squeeze in a run. GE had three men on base

Quartet Chosen to Represent GE Club in Midwest Tourney

by Earl D. Stauffer

A quartet of the GE Golf Leagues' finest will represent the Club in the Mid-West Industrial Golf Tournament to be held in Chicago August 21-22. The 6,856 yard par 73 layout of the Silver Lake Golf Club and the 6,571 yard par 72 course of the Southmoor Country Club will be the scenes of the action.

The quartet consists of Warren Wickliffe, of the Owl League; Dick Szink, of the Winter St. group; Ray Hills, of the Monday afternoon league; and Paul Billman also of the Owls.

It was Wickliffe who came from far in the pack to card the lowest qualification score. Wick carded a sub par 71 along with a previous 76 for a total of 147. Szink slipped to a 77 after a 71 for a 148. Hills added a 78 to a 72 for a 150. Paul Billman playing steady golf added a 77 to a 75 for a 152 total.

Jack Steel, 154; Red Braden, 156; Tony Wichman, 161; and Harold (Shorty) Poyser, 165, were eliminated in the playoff.

The Chicago tourney is jointly sponsored by the Abbott Laboratories and the Acme Steel Co., both of Chicago.

Golf chairman Harold Braden stated that he would be very happy with a 597 total. "A score like that would put the blue and gold well up, if not on the top spot," he added.

In both the fourth and fifth innings, but couldn't take advantage of the situation. The final score was Inca 1, and GE 0.

Inca had 1 run on 4 hits and 1 error; GE had no runs on 4 hits, with 2 errors.

Low Tourney Scorer

Bob Langdon's 71 Beats Sunier In Squares Golf

Shooting a 71, Robert S. Langdon, Bldg. 4-6, staked claim to the lowest handicap score in the GE Squares' "Beat Walt Sunier" golf tourney last Saturday. Langdon's 71 was two points lower than Sunier's handicap score of 73.

Coming in with the same score as Sunier's were Richard W. Dochterman, Bldg. 4-6, and Edward A. Papiez, Bldg. 26-2, who carded 73 for second place in the event.

The three men will receive prizes at the first Squares' meeting in the fall.

In actual score play to determine the winner of the club's golf trophy, Sunier and David W. Manes, Winter St., tied for first place with a 79 apiece. A playoff between the two will take place after vacation to determine who will receive the trophy. The winner will also receive a prize at the first fall meeting.

Forty Squares members turned out to compete in the annual event.

REACHES 30 YEAR MARK—Ellsworth Geller (second from left) is honored on his 30th General Electric anniversary by Harold Staley, Edwin Misselhorn, and Oscar L. Weitzman. Mr. Geller did motor work in Bldg. 20-1 when he came to GE in 1924. He is now an electrician at Winter St.

Wife: "Do you have a good memory for faces, dear?"

Husband: "Of course, I have."

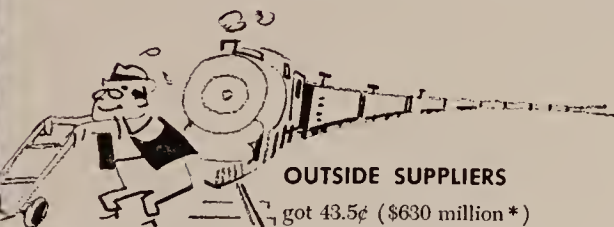

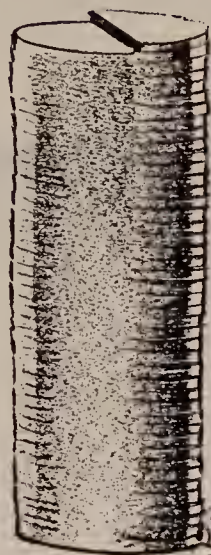

Wife: "That's good. I just dropped your shaving mirror."

Out of every dollar

received during the first six months of 1954

OUTSIDE SUPPLIERS

got 43.5¢ ($630 million*)
to pay for their raw materials, components and services.

EMPLOYEES

got 38.3¢ ($555 million)
in pay and the cost of benefits to pay for the work of their minds and muscles.

OUR SHARE OWNERS

got 4.4¢ ($63 million)
in dividends as immediate pay for the work their savings do.

GOVERNMENT

took directly 11.7¢ ($169 million), set aside for federal, state and local taxes—
but it took a lot more in indirect taxes in the prices we paid our suppliers, in the compensation we paid our employees, and in the dividends we paid our share owners.

REINVESTMENT

took 2.1¢ ($31 million) which the share owners have put back into the business, rather than withdrawn, in order to provide a better and more secure future for all of us.

IN RETURN for our output of goods and services during the first six months of 1954, General Electric received more than 1,447 million customer dollars. Employees, suppliers and direct government taxes took about 93½ cents of each of these dollars. This left 6½ cents for profits, but our share owners took out less than 4½ cents in dividends, leaving the remaining more than 2 cents in the business to work for a sounder future for all of us.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

At long last here we are, going on our annual vacation. Tonight and tomorrow we will shove off for the four corners of the United States and Mexico. Except Carl Brenner who is staying home to supervise the job of re-siding his house. Then he will go to Lake Papakechie for a couple days to fish and relax. . . . Eleanor Whitehouse is going to California with the Elx Club. . . . Walt Richardson is taking a trip to the Smokey Mountains. . . . Bill Curtis is going to the rubber city of Akron, Ohio. . . . Elsie Frede and Clara Hoeh are off for Colorado, and Melinda Gehle to Colorado Canyon. . . . Jackie and Ralph Keller are going to take Jackie's folks and go to Jacksonville, Fla. . . . Marie De-Vaux is going to Virginia. . . . Martha Jesse is bound for Missouri. . . . Thelma Purdue, Ruth Reed, Lois Tibbles, Millie Sittler, Theresa Whitbey are all going to the northern Indiana lakes for relaxation and fishing, as is Junior Zollinger. . . . Herman Buuck is going up to the Straits. . . . George Ludeman is taking a motor trip up north through Canada and the northeastern states. . . . Sarah Chelf is going to Kentucky. . . . Moe Moffiett is headed for Canada for trout fishing. . . . Holley Mee and Dorothy Rebber to Michigan. . . . Rosie Diem to New Philadelphia, Ohio for swimming. . . . Lee Lindeman is going fishing, and last but not least, John Ormiston is going to visit relatives in Florida. Me! New Orleans, here I come, to live on a shrimp boat for two whole weeks. . . . DRIVE CAREFULLY. See you in two weeks.

I thought you would like to know where your co-workers were going to be on their vacations, so with the help of several people this is what we found out: Michigan is calling to most people; Betty Minard, Ethel Bobay, Lorinda Byerlein, Catherine Hepker, Ruth Moodie, Bess Armstrong, Kay Webb, Bill Wickliffe, Henry Vance, Lloyd Dolan, Wilbur Stocks, Ross Hobbs, Emily Nierman, Emery Tucker, Ruth Hine, Paul Henriks, Clarence Hartman, Ray O'Brien, Maude Erhardt, Esther Walborn, Elihu Lee, John Figley, Clarence Weimer. Then Yellowstone National Park is calling, Hazel Stauffer, Yvonne Cecie, Gerna Cook, Neva Lutz and Bea Adams. Minnesota will welcome, Flora Crawford, Ammi Fett, Kenny Kamphues, Arnold Kiefer, Bob Olson, Frank Gamec, Elizabeth Gentner, and Olga Kuzeff. I think the longest distance traveled will be between Ruth Tutwiller who is going to Old Mexico, just 35 miles from Guatemala and Gladys Beal who is going to Seattle, Wash. and other western points. . . . Francine Cyr is going to Maine. . . . Jo Ann Montgomery to Florida, Ind. . . . Ed Brinks, Viola Donahue are going to New Jersey. . . . Wisconsin is calling Glen Castle, Kathryn Ragan, Gus Rutz, Stella Mailand, Serena Slater, Jennings Horn, Glen Carney, and Harold Nagel. . . . Going to Canada will be Norbert Schmenk, Ralph Mennewisch, Al Erwin, and Clara Metcalf. . . . Several of the girls are going with Elx to California and then some others are driving. Those going are Sam Taylor, Wilford Kinsey, Edna Rohrbach, Grace Ober, Evelyn Foulks, Reha Wilkerson, Mary

Harvey, Lorena Heiman, and if you see a big red Buick, look twice as it might be Bill Shueler, Ralph Reed, or Fern Painter. Florida will see Virgil Dalman, Olka Johnson, Peggy Gahde, Olive Elliot is going to Pennsylvania, as is Paul Ginder. . . . Lorena Hahn is going to Texas. . . . Marian Miller and Fern Hollowell are going to Washington, D. C. . . . Going to Chicago are Glen Thomas, Don Lauer, Vickie Heyer. . . . Florence Merri-man left for the West again, and Clarice Fryock is heading for New York. Glen Schwartz is going to Ohio and Jack Moore is going to Virginia. Bob Montgomery is heading for Kentucky. Claude Hoover is going to Missouri. Frank De-Vaux is touring the southern states, as is Charlie Griffith. Nora Dudegeon is going to Williamsburg, Va., and Ida Haupt to New Jersey. Bonnie Wold is touring the East. The local Indiana lakes are calling Delores Hartman, George Haggengos, Eugene Wyss, Reggie Engeman, Geneva Moody, Elmer Rohin, Fred Castor, Virginia Bur-kett, Jim Klinger, Clarence Rump, Janice Egolf, Helen Engle, Fred Ginzle, Evelyn Grawcock, Jessie Hamilton. From what I can gather all others are either staying at home or don't know just what they are going to do. Helen Franklin is going to spend her vacation recuperating from an operation, and we all wish Eva Warnement a speedy recovery. . . . Every one driving be very careful and watch out for the other guy, so we all will be back again. . . . Happy vacation.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

If any of you were victims of the severe storm that visited us a while back, where hailstones the size of tennis balls fell, don't feel too badly about your damaged crops, autos, windows, etc. Just take it in your stride and smile. The smiling fellow in Bldg. 22 is Floyd Brown, who runs a gift shop and souvenir stand east of town. Brownie had several dozen colored glass glazing globes in the yard when the hail fell. "They're pretty strong, some of them didn't break," laughed Brownie. . . . It's sunny California this vacation for Henry and Mildred Wells. Better keep Henry away from those movie stars, Mildred. If Rita or Marilyn see him you may have to come back solo. . . . Kenny Handschy has been making Kool-Ade for the boys during this hot weather. Is lime Tommy's favorite flavor, Ken? . . . Al (Shorty) Kleinrich- art keeps cool with coke (shower-baths). The other day, one fellow wishing to buy two cokes set the first one on top of the machine while he fished around in his pocket for more change. When he put the second nickel in the machine nothing happened, no coke, no nickel. Shorty noticed the fellow's plight and stepped over to offer his assistance. "It's just stuck," exclaimed Shorty as he gave it a good sized bump with the palm of his hand, whereas the coke that was setting on top of the machine slid off and dampened our hero. . . . I read in Clara Voltz's column (Over Our Way) last week where Harold Misegades has a crew cut. I saw that clip job, Clara, and believe me that's no crew cut, that's a shave. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Dan Ferguson. . . . It's a new Kaiser for Red Juergens. . . . Here's wishing everyone a happy and safe vacation.

I thought you would like to know where your co-workers were going to be on their vacations, so with the help of several people this is what we found out: Michigan is calling to most people; Betty Minard, Ethel Bobay, Lorinda Byerlein, Catherine Hepker, Ruth Moodie, Bess Armstrong, Kay Webb, Bill Wickliffe, Henry Vance, Lloyd Dolan, Wilbur Stocks, Ross Hobbs, Emily Nierman, Emery Tucker, Ruth Hine, Paul Henriks, Clarence Hartman, Ray O'Brien, Maude Erhardt, Esther Walborn, Elihu Lee, John Figley, Clarence Weimer. Then Yellowstone National Park is calling, Hazel Stauffer, Yvonne Cecie, Gerna Cook, Neva Lutz and Bea Adams. Minnesota will welcome, Flora Crawford, Ammi Fett, Kenny Kamphues, Arnold Kiefer, Bob Olson, Frank Gamec, Elizabeth Gentner, and Olga Kuzeff. I think the longest distance traveled will be between Ruth Tutwiller who is going to Old Mexico, just 35 miles from Guatemala and Gladys Beal who is going to Seattle, Wash. and other western points. . . . Francine Cyr is going to Maine. . . . Jo Ann Montgomery to Florida, Ind. . . . Ed Brinks, Viola Donahue are going to New Jersey. . . . Wisconsin is calling Glen Castle, Kathryn Ragan, Gus Rutz, Stella Mailand, Serena Slater, Jennings Horn, Glen Carney, and Harold Nagel. . . . Going to Canada will be Norbert Schmenk, Ralph Mennewisch, Al Erwin, and Clara Metcalf. . . . Several of the girls are going with Elx to California and then some others are driving. Those going are Sam Taylor, Wilford Kinsey, Edna Rohrbach, Grace Ober, Evelyn Foulks, Reha Wilkerson, Mary

And Away You Go!

BEFORE YOU GO...

Notify the milkman and the boy who delivers your daily papers that you'll be away.

Make arrangements to have your gas, electricity, telephone and water shut off. But, be sure to keep a home freezer in operation.

Notify the police that you will be away, so they can keep an eye on your home.

See that all windows and doors are securely fastened; adjust window shades to normal positions. Arrange to leave a house key with one of your neighbors.

Be sure that your car has been completely checked — worn out tires replaced; brakes, steering and lights all in good operating condition.

Plan your trip in advance and allow yourself plenty of time both going and returning.

WHILE YOU'RE AWAY...

When driving, obey the rules of the road. Remember, adjust your driving speed to road conditions.

Wherever you're spending your vacation, take it easy under the sun. Avoid over-exposure by covering up. Protect sensitive eyes from glare by wearing sun glasses.

Eat and drink sensibly. You'll feel better during your vacation and on your return if you eat at regular intervals and get adequate sleep.

Swim at beaches that have lifeguards in attendance. Swim in pairs. Watch your children around the waterfront.

In the woods and in the mountains stay away from poisonous shrubs, snakes and insects. See that all campfires, cigars, pipes, cigarettes are carefully extinguished.

Above all, avoid overdoing wherever you spend your vacation. A vacation is supposed to relax you, improve your health and disposition.

Elex Has Tickets For Eddie Fisher State Fair Show

Elex Club members have one more week to make reservations for the one-day trip to the Indiana State Fair which the club is sponsoring Saturday, Sept. 4. Deadline for reservations is Friday, Aug. 20.

The event is open to members only. Price of the round-trip transportation by chartered buses is 50 cents per person.

One of the highlights of the day will be the Eddie Fisher program. A total of 300 tickets for this has been secured by Elex and will be available to members for $3 per person. These tickets may be obtained at the Women's Activities offices, Bldg. 18-1; Broadway or Taylor St., or from Joyce Brumbaugh, Winter St.

Admission tickets to the fairgrounds may be secured from the above locations also for 40 cents per person.

The trip will mark the first time that Elex has gone to a state fair. The event-packed day will begin when special chartered buses leave the Greyhound Station here at 6 a.m., Sept. 4, and stop at Huntington at 6:45 a.m. to pick up girls in that area.

Once at the fairgrounds there will be exhibitions and judging, a large fashion show presented by L. S. Ayres department store of Indianapolis, harness racing, whirling ferris wheels, parade of 4-H

QC Club Ballots Mailed To Members This Week

Initiating a new time to conduct its election of officers, the Quarter Century Club is sending out ballots this week along with invitations for the club's annual outing Sept. 11 at Franke Park.

Previously elections were conducted at the end of the year.

The change was made by the board of directors who voted to amend the constitution to provide for the new time of conducting elections. This was done to combine the mailing of invitations to the outing with mailing of ballots and to give the opportunity to introduce the new officers to those attending the outing. The new officers will assume their duties in January, 1955.

Candidates for offices as announced this week by the nominating committee are:

President

Edward J. O'Neil, Bldg. 8-2.
Herbert G. Siebold, Bldg. 6-2.

Vice President

Walter Johler, Bldg. 26-2.
Charles Winans, Taylor St.

Secretary

Neil R. Hench, Bldg. 18-1.
Kenneth Redding, Taylor St.

Treasurer

Gerald C. Michael, Taylor St.
Burvilles L. Shuler, Bldg. 4-5.

Director

Sam E. Baumgartner, Bldg. 27.
Walter Hazelett, Bldg. 19-4.

A total of 2700 ballots and invitations was sent out this week. A stamped self-addressed envelope was enclosed with each letter sent to retired employees so they can return their ballots. Members who are employed at present will receive their ballots and invitations through company mail and should return them through it. Deadline for returning ballots and reservations for the outing is August 25. They should be sent to G. Ray Lindemuth, Bldg. 18-5.

Members of the nominating committee in charge of the election are: James V. Johnson, Bldg. 16-3, chairman; Arietta Denny, Bldg. 26-5; Edward Gebhart, Bldg. 4-2; Al C. Hartman, Taylor St.; John Rockhill, Winter St., and Kenneth Seymour, Bldg. 27.

Proposed Long-Range Move To Have No Important Effect On Employment Picture Here

Another step in the General Electric Company's "multi-million dollar expansion program" was taken during vacation shutdown with the announcement of relocation plans for the production of motor and generator equipment by Oscar L. Dunn, general manager of the Direct Current Motor and

Production Under Way At Hanna St.

First Phase Completed In Expansion Program

Manufacturing operations at the Specialty Transformer Department's Hanna St. plant in Fort Wayne started Monday, August 9, the day after vacation, and the first transformers were packed ready for shipment on that day, according to Carl H. Rinne, general manager of the department. The plant is under the supervision of Robert W. Barker, superintendent.

Renovation and equipping of the 50,000 sq. ft. leased plant has been in progress since early this year. About 150 people will be employed at this new location, and every effort has been made to provide the best possible working environment, he said. Most of the equipment is new, and machines, conveyors and work benches as well as facilities from other locations are painted a soft grey-green, while brighter colors have been used to make moving equipment more prominent. Banks of fluorescent fixtures create a daylight atmosphere in the assembly area. The plant has its own dispensary, food service center, and adjacent floodlighted parking area.

Production of transformers at the Hanna St. Plant completes the first phase of a plan to expand, rearrange, and modernize the manufacturing facilities of the Specialty Transformer Department, all of which are in Fort Wayne, by the end of next year. Each of the various manufacturing lines will be self-contained and will incorporate the latest machines, processes, material handling equipment, and test facilities.

Generator Department, with headquarters in Erie, Pa. The move, which was first announced several months ago in the GE NEWS, will involve Fort Wayne and two other plant cities, Erie and Lynn, Mass.

The long range plans will include the moving of all integral horsepower direct current motors and generators to the Erie Plant and high speed synchronous motors up to 1500 horsepower to Schenectady.

Time Not Set for Move

No definite time has been set for the move, but it is expected to be completed sometime in 1956. The Fort Wayne operations affected in the plans are presently located in Bldgs. 19 and 31.

H. A. MacKinnon, vice president, concurrently stated that the move will be accomplished on a long range basis and will have no important effect on employment in Fort Wayne. Other production of motors and transformers will be increased here, he said, so that overall employment should remain relatively steady. He also indicated that the space now occupied by motor and generator operations will be utilized by the Specialty Transformer Department, the Laboratory, and the Advanced Manufacturing Development Section which is now using the Perfect Building on a rental basis.

Planned Expansion

Mr. Dunn said the company plans to spend $20 million on the Erie expansion, and another GE spokesman said that Lynn would undergo a $40 million expansion program. The move, by concentrating all direct current motor and generator manufacturing at Erie, will counteract an employment loss there when the refrigeration department is transferred to Louisville, Ky., home of the new Appliance Park.

The step-by-step expansion and modernization program was undertaken after extensive market studies and long-range sales forecasts indicated clearly a large growth potential for the wide variety of quality transformers produced by the department. Mr.

"MY, HOW YOU'VE GROWN!"

The Savingest Way to Security

For as long as we can remember, Benjamin Franklin has been honored as much for his advancement of Thrift as for his vital role in the founding of our Nation. And with good reason. For those of us who work for a living, the great Quaker's comments on savings hold especially sound advice.

"A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose to the grindstone."

Certainly the desire for future security has been a factor in encouraging more than thirty per cent of GE's employees to "save as they get" through the GE Savings and Stock Bonus Plan. Right now, those who signed up for the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds through payroll deductions back in 1948, are getting full shares of GE stock as a bonus for putting a small amount of money aside each pay day.

Another champion of thrift—William Makepeace Thackeray apparently was speaking to these GE employees in a poem written fully a century before the GE Savings and Stock Bonus Plan went into effect.

"And those who save a little, shall get a plenty more."

It is this "plenty more," that you'll see reflected these days in the smiles of more than 20,000 GE employees. Although the individual payroll deductions of the thousands of participating employees have not been large, their total savings now amount to approximately $100 million. Actually, 49,100 of a share of GE stock was the most any single participant had "earned" as of April 20th, 1954 but when GE stockholders voted in favor of a 3-for-1 stock split on that date, a full share of GE common stock was registered for every employee whose bond purchases had earned a third of a share.

So it is that thousands of GE employees who "know how to save as they get" have built up a future security package holding $100 million worth of U. S. Savings Bonds plus 20,000 shares of GE stock worth approximately $800 thousand at this writing. This makes the GE plan just about the savingest way to security anyone could ask for.

SUN POWER

The sun can be a great friend of yours. It can turn your skin golden brown and make you look healthier. But, you must respect the power of the sun.

If a printed dress is hung out to dry too long in the bright rays of the mid-day sun, chances are the colors will fade. If you expose your skin too long during the same period of the day, you'll end up as colorful as the dress is drab.

Take the noon time sun in limited amounts. Those of you with sensitive skins and children should beat a retreat to the nearest shade tree whenever the sun beams down from a cloudless sky.

If you've already collected a mild case of sunburn (we sure hope it's mild), stay out of the sun completely until your scorched skin returns to normal. Do your swimming after the sun dips behind the surrounding trees or mountains.

Be sure to protect your eyes in bright sunlight. Your eyes are sensitive. Blue are more sensitive than brown. Whatever the color of your eyes, cover them with cotton pads and colored glasses when lying in the sun. Especially on bright sunny days at the beach wear colored glasses when not in the water to avoid headaches and squint lines.

Wear a hat to protect yourself from too much heat. Little children, especially blonds, should always wear bonnets or hats in the sun. Protecting your head from the sun's rays will help keep you more comfortable, and protect your hair and scalp.

In between trips to the beach take care of your skin. After showering, it's a good idea to rub lanolin rich oil or cream on your shoulders at least. One suitable for your use can be purchased from the local druggist. This application will help to restore the natural oils the sun has dried out. Summer skin care is as important for men as for women, and doubly important for children.

Is Red Strategy Flexible?

Yes, Communist strategy zigzags dizzily. From 1935 to 1939, Communists feared that Germany would unite nations against the Soviets and accordingly tried to stir up differences between European powers. After Germany went to war with France and England, Russia supplied material to Hitler and said France and England were to blame for the war. At the same time, Communists campaigned to keep the United States out of the war. But from this zig, the strategy zagged when Hitler marched on Russia.

From 1941 to 1945 the war became the "great patriotic war." Communists did everything within their power to increase the degree of American participation and cried loudly for the second front. After the war, Communist strategy was switched again to weaken wartime allies. Meanwhile the Soviets consolidated their occupied countries into little Russias. Their strategy now preaches peace and disarmament again to cover up mounting Soviet war preparations.

(Adapted from the "Primer on Communism," published by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.)

Squares Annual Family Picnic Tomorrow

Tomorrow members of the GE Squares Club and their families will conduct their annual family picnic at Pokagon State Park. Ted Briles, Winter St., is serving as general chairman of the event which will get under way at 12 o'clock noon.

Each family is asked to take two covered dishes for the picnic lunch which will be served at 1:30 p.m. A fee of 25 cents per family will be charged to cover drinks. In addition persons should take their own table service.

Organized games are being planned for the children and there will be recreation for everyone. In case of rain, the lunch will be served in the shelter area, the chairman reported.

Assisting the general chairman with arrangements are Bob Davidson, Winter St., and LeRoy Mollenberg, Winter St. Members of the Squares Wives organization on the committee are Mrs. Earl Elwanger, Mrs. Bev. Miracle, and Mrs. Jim Stafford.

Fred Borch Elected GE Vice President

Fred J. Borch has been elected a vice president of the General Electric Company, President Ralph J. Cordiner announced July 26.

Mr. Borch, formerly of the company's Lamp Division at Cleveland, will serve as vice president-marketing with headquarters at New York. He was named manager of the company's marketing services division July 9.

A native of Brooklyn and a graduate of Western Reserve University, Mr. Borch joined General Electric at Cleveland in 1931 as a traveling auditor and has served in several managerial assignments prior to his present position.

45 YEARS WITH GE—Fred L. Schafenacker (seated) reached the grand total of 45 years as a General Electric employee on July 16. Honoring him for his long service with the company on his anniversary are Fred G. Campbell, F. A. Arnold, and Harold E. Koehlinger. Mr. Schafenacker came to the company in 1909 as a machinist and lathe hand. He has served as a foreman during his service and at present is a mechanical and facilities specialist in the General Purpose Component Motor Department at Taylor St.

Decatur GE Club Discloses Picnic Program for Aug. 21

The complete program for the Decatur GE Club annual family picnic Saturday, Aug. 21, was announced this week by Oran Schultz, general chairman. The event will get under way at 10:30 a.m. at Sunset Park. Dinner will be served at 11:30 a.m. and entertainment will begin afterward.

Added to the program are a treasure hunt, fish pond, and telecast of a national baseball game. Approximately 390 comic books and many silver dollars will await the lucky ones on the treasure hunt. A variety of toys will provide catches for the fish pond. Special arrangements have been made for baseball fans to see the game of the week on TV during the afternoon.

Other games will include the sawdust scramble and various contests. There will be pony rides for the small fry and door and registration prizes will be awarded.

Complete box lunches will be served and hot dogs, ice cream, soft drinks, and popsicles will be available to those attending.

Attendance is expected to cross the 2,000 mark, the chairman stated.

Partizan to Hold Election Aug. 17

Partizan Chapter of Elex Club will conduct its 1954-55 election of officers at a Tuesday, Aug. 17, meeting at McMillen Park, Martha Zehendner, president, announced this week.

The meeting will begin at 12 o'clock noon and will include a pot-luck lunch. Each member is asked to take one covered dish and table service for herself. Ann Fox is serving as chairman of the meeting and is being assisted by Nora Kern and Pauline Gilbert.

Candidates for election are: President, Margaret Tomson and Myrtle Bennett; vice president, Bertha Mattes and Edna Berdelman; secretary, Burnis Cramer and Myrtle Lauer, and treasurer, Betty Miller and Faye Voss.

Credit Union Begins Issue Of Statements

Beginning this week all members of the Fort Wayne General Electric Employees Credit Union will receive statements of their accounts with the Credit Union through company mail. Terrace Colvin, Section 417, Taylor St., chairman of the Credit Union supervisory the process, made the announcement this week.

The mailing out process will be continued for the next few weeks. All members are asked to verify their statements by putting them into enclosed return addressed envelopes and putting them in company mail as soon as possible after receiving them.

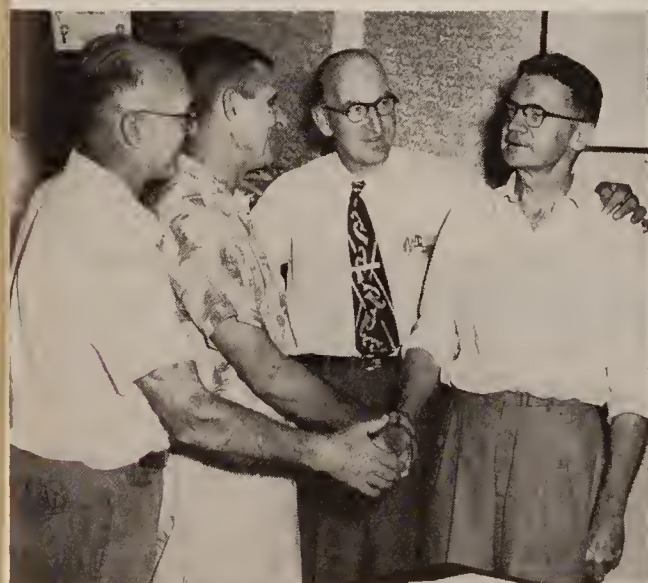

It is important that all employees confirm these statements to enable the supervisory committee to audit the books of the Credit Union, Mr. Colvin stated.

Other members of the supervisory committee are Richard Pinkham, Section 417, Taylor St., and William Spahr, Bldg. 18-4.

Light Diamond Jubilee To Stage Huge TV Show

Light's Diamond Jubilee television show October 24 will be broadcast over more than 310 inter-connected stations of the four television networks. It will be the biggest network ever put together for a single television program.

David O. Selznick, making his television debut, will produce the two-hour program as the climax of the celebration of the 75th anniversary of Edison's invention of the electric light. As yet untitled, the show will be seen in Fort Wayne Sunday evening, October 24 from 8 to 10 p.m. CST.

BOULWARE ADDRESSES TEACHERS—L. R. Boulware, GE vice president of Employee and Plant Community Relations Services, spoke to members of the GE-Purdue University Math Fellowship Program recently here. At an informal discussion are (l-r): Dean W. L. Ayres, of Purdue; Grace Wandke; Mr. Boulware; Roberta Harris, and H. A. MacKinnon, GE vice president.

Rinne explained. Dry-type or air-cooled transformers are used in a multitude of applications in virtually all fields where electricity is utilized, including industrial plants and commercial buildings, machine tools, oil burners, neon signs, aircraft, and electronic equipment.

Fort Wayne has been an electrical manufacturing center since before the turn of the century, and General Electric has been manufacturing transformers here for over 50 years. With the completion of the remaining steps of the modernization and expansion program now in progress, Mr. Rinne said the company is confident of maintaining and improving its position in the highly competitive dry-type transformer business, thereby providing more jobs which will contribute to the security of its present employees and the economic welfare of the Fort Wayne community.

PICK-UPS from 26-3 by Maxine Jordan

Dale Amstutz declared he went home to shave one Wednesday at noon, but we have our doubts. . . . When the city was calling for all available trained men to get our fair city back to normal after the storm, we learned that Frank Clifton, who belongs to the Auxiliary Police, was slinging hash in a restaurant. . . . We wish Wanda Grimm belated birthday greetings. . . . We extend our sincere sympathy to Willard Lenz on the death of his father. . . . Congratulations to Harlan "Pop" Forschner on his new grandson. The baby's mother will be remembered as Elsie Forschner from our office. . . . We appreciated Billie Tucker's visit to our floor and want to wish her a lot of luck. . . . From all reports, everyone had a happy vacation and is looking forward to next year already.

APPRENTICE BROADCAST

A Bldg. 6-4 employee, Wayne E. Worman, 29, died July 30 in Parkview Memorial Hospital of injuries suffered in a near head-on collision on the St. John's road, southwest of Auburn. He suffered a fractured skull, brain injury, internal injuries, and multiple lacerations.

Services were conducted at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Auburn by the Rev. LeRoy Buuck. Burial was in Cedar Chapel Cemetery.

When he came to the company in 1944 Mr. Worman went to work at Winter St. He was a lathe operator in Bldg. 6-4 until his death.

Surviving are his wife, Beverly; three children, Warren, who was riding with his father and was injured in the same accident; Fay, and Arthur; his father, Terry Worman; three brothers, George, Lewis, and Richard; and three sisters, Mrs. Cora Ellen Bauman, Mrs. Betty Laux, and Mrs. Dorothy Kimes.

S. B. LEVANDOWSKY

A retired employee, Stanley B. Levandowsky, 63, of 1913 Smith St., died August 7 in the Veterans Administration Hospital where he had been a patient nine weeks. He had been ill three years.

Funeral services were conducted in the Jule Schone Funeral Home and St. Hyacinth Catholic Church by the Rev. John J. Moskal. Burial was in the Catholic Cemetery.

A Quarter Century Club member, Mr. Levandowsky came to the company in 1918. He was a welder at Winter St. prior to his retirement in May, 1952. He was a veteran of World War I.

Among survivors are his wife, Stella; two sons, Thaddus and Casimir; a daughter, Mrs. Caroline Demetroff; a sister, Mrs. Mary Gadelski; a brother, Walter, and five grandchildren.

T. RALPH CRAIG

A Quarter Century Club member, T. Ralph Craig, 61, died July 23 at Parkview Memorial Hospital. Services were conducted at the Klaehn Funeral Home with Dr. Paul H. Krauss officiating. Burial was in Greenlawn Cemetery.

In 1913 Mr. Craig came to General Electric. He was supervisor of the power plant at Broadway until he took a leave of absence for illness in March this year.

Survivors include his wife, Adele; one son, Dr. Richard Craig, Rochester, Minn.; a daughter, Mrs. Hanes M. Fowler, Dallas, Texas; two brothers, Kenneth, Fort Wayne, and Clyde, South Bend; a sister, Mrs. Walter Warriner, living in California, and six grandchildren.

FRANKLIN E. BENDER

Franklin E. Bender, 29, was killed instantly July 24 when his car overturned and crashed into an embankment on U. S. highway 224 two and one-half miles west of Decatur. He was returning to his home on R. R. 1, Yoder, from Decatur where he had been to help a relative.

Services were conducted at the St. Mary's Catholic Church, Decatur. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. J. Seimetz officiated. Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

In 1944 Mr. Bender came to work at GE. He was an assembler in Section 417, Taylor St., prior to his death.

In addition to his wife, Mary, survivors include three sons, Allen, Larry, and Kenneth; his father, Ray Bowen, and his mother, Mrs. Harold Hankins.

G. W. BAUMGARDNER

A retired General Electric employee, George W. Baumgardner, 68, died July 28 at his home near Bryant after a three month illness. Services were conducted in the home and at Wesley Methodist Church, Bryant. The Rev. Donald Heer officiated. Burial was in Greenlawn Memorial Park.

Mr. Baumgardner came to the company in 1929 and retired August 31, 1950.

Survivors include his wife, Lula; three daughters, Mrs. A. H. Goller, Mrs. Max Putman, and Mrs. Darrell Clouse; two sons, Herbert and Kenneth; two brothers, Birch and Clayton; two sisters, Mrs. Roxie Stewart and Mrs. Edna Stoll; 17 grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren.

W. L. MICHELFELDER

Wayne L. Michelfelder, 48, died of a heart attack July 30 at his cottage on Shriner Lake. Joining the company in 1923 Mr. Michelfelder was a lathe operator at Winter St. until his death. He was a Quarter Century Club member.

Surviving are his wife, Ruth; two brothers, Grant and Harry, and several nieces and nephews.

Services were conducted in the Klaehn Funeral Home and burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

Nancy Ingram took the fatal step during vacation and is now Mrs. Carleton Beecher. . . . John Hacke is the proud father of a baby boy. . . . Brownie J. McBride and Pinky H. Smith are having a swell time on their vacation. . . . I guess Pat Miller had lots of fun on her vacation, but she sure disappointed some of us. . . . Mac McDougall will know better than to offer a puff of his cigar, especially to "Green Millie." . . . Leon Diegel is retiring this week

Cafeteria Favorites

Neva Nordyke, head cook, prepares a serving of the Broadway cafeteria's famous swiss steak.

SWISS STEAK

2 lb. cubed steak	1 tsp. salt
1½ cup flour	½ tsp. pepper
2 cups cold water	2 Tbl. fat

Add salt and pepper to flour. Heat fat in skillet, add steak which has been rolled in flour mixture. When brown, put into baking dish.

Add a heaping tablespoon of flour that is left to the fat in the skillet and brown. Add water and make a thin gravy. Pour this over the steak and bake in oven at 350 degrees for about 1 hour or until tender.

Makes 4 servings.

and is going into the field of mission work. . . . Farewell to Ruth Epperson who is leaving us today to go to college. Her husband will also go to college with her when Uncle Sam discharges him, which will be any day now. We will miss you, Ruth, but we know how much you will enjoy your college work. They will attend Indiana University. . . . Belated birthday greetings to D. C. Bolyard, on Aug. 6, and J. Paul Motter on Aug. 9. . . . Happy birthday to Roy Balke, on Aug. 17, and Pat Boling on the 19th; Claude Voss, on the 17th; Bill Rutledge, on the 16th; Rachel Matthews, on the 16th; Art Wilson, on the 12th; and Art Nickerson on the 14th. . . . We have this week a few exciting tales to tell all after that wonderful two weeks of vacation. One of the tales is about a sailboat and three sailors. The sailors are known to us by the names of Harvey Von Gunten, Charley Wurm, and Charley Kelso. We heard that the three sailors had a wonderful time mastering a trim sailboat at Lake James. We also understand that Harvey Von Gunten expects everyone to call him Captain after his first sail in his tiny sailboat. Captain Von Gunten, we think the exciting adventure should be called Three Captains and the Sailboat. . . . We understand that the Moose Foltz's had a little trouble at the lake. Their little daughter got bitten by a dog as soon as they got to the lake. A couple of days later the little daughter came down with measles. . . . Talking about vacation we have quite a few who traveled during their vacation. Arlein Yates and Larry Diller went east to Virginia. Shirley Doster went west to see Yellowstone Park and Colorado Springs. Bob Knepple went west too, and saw Colorado Springs and the Black Hills in Dakota, Bob Mee spent four days in Chicago feeding the monkeys. Wally Clayton vacationed in Jonesboro, Ark. Pat Curtis also visited Chicago and the dress shops. We heard she has four new outfits. . . . We say farewell to Mary Shields who is leaving us Friday for Santa Monica, Calif. Her husband has just finished school and has a job awaiting him there. We will miss you, Mary. Good-bye and good luck. . . . Many stories are told about how short crew haircuts happen and so we add a new one to the list. Stan Tompkinson appeared Monday with almost a bare spot on the top of his head. The clipper guard came off as the clippers came up the back, and low and behold there was Tommy's scalp peeking thru. He didn't have to pay for the scalping and he gets another one free. . . . Most of the gang are back with varying degrees of sun tan and ambition. Some like Ray Solga stayed home and took short trips. . . . Everett Letsinger put the cement work in his pond.

SCIENCE QUESTION BOX

by SCIENTISTS OF THE G.E. RESEARCH LABORATORY

Q. How is anti-snakebite serum prepared?

A. Venom is secured from specimens of the snake raised for this purpose, and is injected into horses, starting with a very small quantity. This is repeated, with increasing doses, and the animal acquires an immunity which will withstand an amount of venom several hundred times the normally fatal dose. Blood taken from such a horse is the basis of "anti-venin," the serum sold commercially to treat snakebites. Anti-venin is effective only against the same kind of snake as that which supplied the original venom. However by using a mixture of venoms from several species of snake, the horse will become immunized to all of them. In this way, it is possible to prepare a "polyvalent" serum, effective against the bite of several different snakes.

Q. Are northern lights really caused by reflection of moonlight (or sunlight) on the icebergs?

A. No, although this is an old idea. Sometimes the northern lights are seen as far south as Texas, which is pretty far from the nearest icebergs! Actually the lights are due to particles carrying electrical charges which are shot out from the Sun, particularly from sunspots. They are attracted by the Earth's magnetic field, and so pulled in toward the magnetic poles, which are in the same general regions as the geographical poles of the Earth. As the particles pass through the rarefied gases of the upper atmosphere, from 40 to 500 miles high, atoms of these gases are temporarily broken, or "ionized." When the parts of the atoms come together again light is given off, causing the effect that we see as the aurora borealis, or northern lights, and the similar southern lights (aurora australis) in the southern hemisphere.

Q. How is octane rating of gasoline measured?

A. Other things equal, the more the fuel-air mixture is compressed in the cylinder of a gasoline engine, the greater is the efficiency. When the mixture is ignited, it should burn rapidly and progressively thru the cylinder. Knocking is caused when the mixture all explodes at once, or "detonates," and this causes loss of power. Gasolines are combinations of hydrocarbons, compounds of hydrogen and oxygen. One of these, called iso-octane, with very good anti-knocking characteristics, has been assigned an octane rating of 100, while heptane, which knocks very easily, is rated zero. The basic method to determine octane rating of a fuel is to use it in a test engine in which the compression ratio can be varied. The ratio is increased until knocking occurs at the same compression ratio. The octane rating is the percentage of iso-octane which the fuel then contains.

Q. Will a piece of iron attracted to one magnet jump to another?

A. Not unless something is done to make it jump. The attraction of a magnet decreases rapidly with distance, so if the iron is attracted to one magnet, it would stay there until pulled off. You might, for example, bring up a much more powerful magnet, which would finally overcome the attraction of the first and pull the iron away. Magnets lose their magnetism when heated sufficiently, so if you had a magnet holding a piece of iron, and then heated it, the attraction might be weakened enough to allow the iron to be pulled to another magnet nearby.

Q. What is meant by the "greenhouse effect?"

A. The Sun's rays consist of visible light as well as the longer infrared waves. Both kinds carry energy, and when absorbed by an object they tend to raise its temperature. The object itself radiates away some of this absorbed energy in the form of infra-red waves of considerably longer wave-length than those received from the Sun. It happens that the visible rays, like the shorter infra-red, can pass through glass, which is opaque to those of greater wavelength. Solar energy can thus enter a greenhouse through the glass, but after the plants have been warmed, it cannot escape in the same way. Thus, the greenhouse may rise to a temperature well above that of the outside air. This effect is what makes an automobile so hot after it stands in the Sun with all windows closed.

Q. Will ice or snow melt if the temperature is below freezing?

A. No, not under ordinary conditions. However, the melting point can be lowered by large increases in pressure, considerably more than occur in the atmosphere. For example, at 328 times normal atmospheric pressure, the melting point of ice is lowered from 32 degrees F. to 27 degrees. Pressure of 1120 atmospheres lowers it to 14 degrees and 2130 atmospheres to 8 degrees below zero. But even at temperatures below the melting point ice or snow will sublime. That is, it changes from the solid directly to the vapor phase, so snow may eventually disappear even without melting.

Q. How are colored flames produced?

A. Various metal vapors, when present in a flame, generally produce the following colors: sodium, yellow; potassium, violet; calcium, orange; strontium, red; barium, green; and lithium, purple. If chemical salts (such as the chlorate or the nitrate) of these metals are sprinkled on a fire, the various color appear as the metals are vaporized.

Q. About a year ago I painted the windows on my sun porch but they have still not dried. What would cause this?

A. It is difficult to say without more information, but the wood may have been treated with preservative such as oil or wax, which would retard drying of the paint. Probably the best procedure would be to remove the old paint with a solvent, or paint removed. Since the paint has not dried, this should be easy.

MANY GOOD-BY GIFTS—Frieda Knoche Poehler opens some of her many gifts at her retirement celebration, July 16, while her many friends and co-workers watch. Mrs. Poehler came to the company in 1931. She was a lead placer in Bldg. 4-3 before leaving on retirement.

ON HIS WAY—Outfitted with new luggage, a gift of his co-workers, Purl Hite heads for retirement from General Electric. Seeing him off are Max Decker (left) and Roger Crabill. Mr. Hite was a packer in Bldg. 17-3. He has been with the company since 1943.

35 YEARS AT GE—Harry Kessler (second from right) celebrates his 35th year with General Electric with (l-r) Harry Welches, John Brandyberry, and Emil Nord. Mr. Kessler came to the company as a lathe operator in Bldg. 26-2. At present he is a packer in Section 417 at Taylor St.

WHAT DETERMINES THE PRICE OF STOCK?—The price of stock, like the price of clothing, depends on how much the potential buyers are willing to pay for it and how much the owners are asking for it. Some factors which affect the value of stock are the dividend rate paid by the company, the amount of earnings reinvested in the business, and the general reputation of company management.

What Determines Stock Prices?

As a result of the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and because over 20,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a full share of stock as a bonus for the U. S. Savings Bonds purchased under the plan in 1948, a number of employees have asked us for information about stocks and bonds. Therefore, as a service to our readers we are currently presenting a series of eight articles on this subject. The article in today's issue is the fourth of the present series.

Every day hundreds of newspapers all over the country publish a price record of the most active stocks which are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. It is very rare when one of these stocks does not show a daily change in price, even if it amounts to only a few cents a share. Today we will discuss some of the factors that determine the price an investor pays for a share of stock.

Day-to-day fluctuations in the price of stock are determined to a large extent by supply and demand. The price of stock, like the price of food or clothing, depends on how much the potential buyers are willing to pay for it and how much the owners are asking for it. The price of stock at any given moment is nothing more than an indication of what buyers and sellers think of the present and future value of that stock.

Some of the factors which affect the value of stock are the dividend rate paid by the company, the amount of earnings reinvested in the business, and the general reputation of company management.

If a number of owners find at the same time that the stock they hold is selling for much more than they think it is worth or for much more than they paid for it, they may decide to sell. When a lot of people offer a certain type of stock for sale at the same time, the supply is increased. As the supply increases and the demand becomes satisfied, buyers bid lower for the available shares and, consequently, the price of this stock tends to drop. Of course, just the opposite is true if a great many people decide they wish to buy a certain stock. The supply dwindles, demand rises, and so does the price.

In addition to these possibilities, there are other activities which can affect the price of stock at a given time. Among these we have what are known as bull and bear markets.

Occasionally a lot of people will decide at about the same time that it is a good idea to purchase stock. The general buying which results raises the average prices of all stocks, and if this price rise is big enough and lasts long enough, we have what is known as a bull market.

A bear market is just the opposite. The average price of all stock drops because a lot of people suddenly start selling shares at the same time.

In the next issue we will find out exactly how people buy shares of stock.

Ardola Metker was all set to buy a new clock. She looked at one and saw the figures 430 and thinking one. Imagine her surprise when that was the price decided to buy she discovered that was the stock number and the price was $48! Result, no clock! . . . Carl Puttersson's daughter got married just before vacation. . . . Ruth Somers stayed home and admired her new GE washer and dryer. . . . Ralph Reed made it to California and back in two weeks but he says never again. We had our doubts as to whether he would make it or not. . . . Everyone I've talked to says they had plenty of fish and are planning on eating fish for some weeks to come.

. . . Sorry to hear that Janice Egolf's sister, Betty Fordeck, is a patient at Parkview with polio. . . . We are also sorry to hear that Ben Sieler is on the sick list, he is the husband of Hilda. . . . Gut Rutz went to Minnesota last year and caught no fish. This year he decided to go back to his old fishing grounds in Wisconsin, but still no fish. . . . Our sympathy to Floyd Steinbacher in the death of his wife. . . . Bill Widdefield went to town mainly to get some groceries. Imagine his surprise when he got home and found his groceries were still at the store. He forgot to put them in the car. Adding the price of gasoline to the price of groceries we think they were rather expensive last week. . . . Edna Rohrbach says the only movie star they saw in California was Frances the Mule. . . . Emery Tucker says his vacation was a flop. No dog fish! . . . Ray D'Brian is in the gas and oil business. He has a new filling station on Fairfield Ave. No wonder he can open up a new business, he wins all his money on the horses at Detroit. He told me so himself! . . . Philip D. Reed, General Electric Board chairman, said the new funds were established "in honor of the many years of distinguished service rendered" by two former company officials. The funds will be known as the Owen D. Young Fund, honoring the former board chairman who served in that capacity from 1922 to 1940 and during World War II years; and the Edwin W. Rice, Jr. Fund, honoring the company's second president who served as chief executive from 1913 to 1922. Income from the funds, Mr. Reed explained, will be used "for educational and scientific purposes as may be determined from time to time by the trustees . . . bearing in mind Mr. Young's great interest in finance, government and business administration and Mr. Rice's great interest in the fields of engineering."

At the same time, Mr. Reed disclosed the $100,000 addition to each of two $400,000 existing funds, which are named in honor of Charles A. Coffin and Gerard Swope, the company's first and third presidents, respectively.

Mr. Reed said the funds would be administered by the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund, a trust established by the company in December 1952 for "charitable, scientific, literary and educational purposes." The trust now comprises six funds. They are the four "name" funds, the General Electric Employees Education, and the General Funds, all of which are administered by the Fund's trustees.

Securities approximating $1,200,000 in value have been added to the trust for use in the extended educational program, Mr. Reed said.

Awards under the Rice and Young Funds are expected to be made for the 1955-1956 school year, in conjunction with the annual awarding of scholarships, fellowships and grants under the other four funds. All of the funds are expected to be administered in much the same manner.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

The recent hot weather has certainly played havoc with several of our co-workers. In seeking a degree of relief they have had themselves shorn of their crowning glory. Paul Bowman appeared upon the scene with a classy looking pompadour, then came Cecil Sible with one of the same. On looking at Cecil he reminds one of a wrestler that has seen better days. All that he needs now to complete the picture is cauliflower ear. All that we need now to make this story a howling success is to have Harold Hart appear upon the streets wearing shorts and sporting a crew cut. . . . George Cowan has a novel method of chigger extermination. Several weeks ago his legs became infested with these little pests causing him much misery, so he hit upon the idea of using a sun lamp to roast the varmints. Well, he left his legs exposed to the lamp just a little too long resulting in blisters and well-done chiggers. Sensible medication would have cost him little and the discomfort would have been nil. . . . Ralph Dunlap, deciding to move his television set to another location in his living room, failed to mark the leads in the disconnecting process. After the move was made he realized his mistake

HITS 30TH GE YEAR—Everett J. Thomas (center), manager of engineering for the Specialty Transformer Department reached the 30-year mark in GE service this month. Congratulating him are Carl H. Rinne, H. K. Pritchard, Aaron M. Krakower, Richard J. Keyser, Joseph P. Coughlin, and Henry F. Briggeman. Mr. Thomas came to GE in 1924 as a student in Bldg. 19-1.

AWARDS FOR GE CLUB GOLFERS—Five golf bags and one set of matched golf clubs will be awarded six members of the five GE Club golf leagues at the club's fall athletic banquet in September. The awards, which were donated by the Main Auto Sports Shop, 214 W. Berry St., are unpacked by Bill Schible, GE Club president, and Harold Red Braden, golf chairman for the club.

GE Jr. Feds Lose Two out of Three

In the Junior Federation League playoffs, the GE Club team was on the losing end of a 3-game series with a 2 to 1 count. They lost the first game by a 6 to 5 score and came back in the second duel against the Red Birds to score a 19 to 0 victory.

GMC Truck team proved too much for the GE lads and outscored them 6 to 5 in a close game.

Later this month, the GE team will play in the state Junior ABC tourney.

SHAFT SHAVINGS BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

Vacation time is over and we are back to work. Here are a few places that some in Bldg. 19-3 went:

Kenny Hart traveled to Nashville, Tenn. and the Grand Old Oper. . . Herb Bolt went to the lake. . . Also Leroy Cook, whose son caught a good size pike. . . Henry Becker, Frank Enderle, and Dorothy Whonsetler went to California. Blanche Cowell went to Beckley, W. Va., where she attended her son Jim's wedding. . . Russell Greene spent time at the lake in Michigan, but we believe he spent more time mailing post cards. . . Congratulations to Delbert Meyers, who was married during vacation. . . Frank Kartholl had his usual seat at the circus. . . Herman Zuber visited Joe Burton at Golden Lake, but he took along his own fish because he heard that there wasn't any fish in the lake. . . Glenn Goshorn has a new haircut, but we think he went to sleep in the chair. . . There's nothing wrong with having a one-track mind provided you're on the right track.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

With all the new faces up here it looks more like Taylor St. than 6-4. We say hello and welcome to the new faces and a sad farewell to the old ones who are leaving. . . Harold Dalman spent his vacation in Minnesota and by the looks of him he must have met up with an Indian that liked his scalp, as Harold almost lost all his hair. As one of the girls said "That isn't a flat top, that's a hard top." . . . Merle Keesler is now known as Clark (Gable, that is), or he could be called Aly. They both fit him since he started a mustache. Watch your eye brow pencil, girls. . . Charlie Arnett and Sarah Chelf are recuperating in the hospital after their recent operations. . . Jackie Keller went deep sea fishing in Florida. She didn't catch any fish as she was sea sick all the time the boat was out. When she started getting sick she asked the captain where she could go. Knowing old sea captains, I have a good idea what he told her! . . . Last Monday evening as George Schroder was walking to his car in the parking lot, Ray Fendly hollered at him "Why don't you wash your dirty car?" About that time the fellow in front of Ray stopped and Ray plowed into the back of his car. George replied "Why don't you watch where you're going?" . . . Not much news as everyone is still sort of on vacation. . . One of our co-workers gave me this announcement. Public is invited to St. Mark Lutheran Church, one and one half miles east and one half mile south of Yoder on the Thiele Road for a chicken dinner, Sunday, Aug. 22, at 11:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. $1 for adults. Children $.65.

Little League Has Ups and Downs In Four Games During Vacation

During the vacation period the GE Little League team ran into some difficulty and as a result, dropped some very close ball games. They were short four players, which worked a hardship on our team.

On July 27 they dropped a tight ball game by the score of 4 to 3. Dick Snyder pitched a three-hit game, but walks and errors at the wrong time gave Inca the win.

On July 28 the GE little boys hit the ball hard and often. They collected 11 runs on 14 hits while Allen Dairy was garnering only two hits, but nine bases on balls aided them in getting six runs across. The final score was 11 to 6 in favor of GE. Schenher pitched a good game besides collecting three for four for the evening.

On August 3 Patterson-Fletcher trimmed GE's little fellows by the score of 9 to 5. It was one of those nights when the boys couldn't get started until the fourth and time ran out too soon. GE left 12 men stranded. Zimmerman hit a home run for GE. Final score: GE, 5 runs, 8 hits, 2 errors; Patts, 9 runs, 6 hits, 2 errors.

On August 4 the Inca little boys trimmed the GE little men by the score of 11 to 8. Again we were short handed for the fourth night in a row. Snyder was on vacation along with three other GE boys. In the fourth inning Chuck Wilt, Jr., hit a long home run over the left field fence for the first GE run. Then he came up in the sixth with the bases loaded and to prove the fourth inning homer was no accident, he powered one over the center field fence for another homer and drove in four more runs for a total of 5 RBI's for the evening. The game ended with McAfee grounding out and Chuck, Jr., next up and two men left on base. Noll and Heck pitched for GE and Hazelette for Inca.

Totals: Inca, 11 runs, 11 hits, 1 error; GE, 8 runs, 9 hits, 1 error.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

Well, vacation is over and we have been back to work a week already. The sunburn is a little less painful and the mosquito bites have stopped itching a little. I spent half of my vacation at the lakes and the other half at home. I learned a lot too, for instance those TV programs that the little woman puts up with during the day. Ding Dong School, yipes! And those sad, sad give away soap programs! It's a pitiful sight with the contestants crying and the master of ceremonies crying. The contestants have a difficult time trying to count all their winnings with their eyes full of tears. With all those tears and all that soap it's a wonder they don't work up a terrific lather. . . We sincerely hope that by the time this column goes to print Gerry Mowery will have recovered from his recent illness. . . Congratulations to a new grandpoo, Henry Wells. . . Welcome back to Kenyon Settlemyre. . . Hope by this time Dan Ferguson is over his big-head. No, he wasn't indulging. His wife slammed the trunk lid of the car on it.

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

With two leagues all wrapped up for the rest of the season and just waiting for the play-off on Blind Bogey day, the rest is going to be easy. To refresh your memory the Brassies edged the field on the last day in the Winter St. League and the Divot Diggers outdistanced the field on Tuesday night.

Owl League

These boys are just getting started. The power laden Eagles who have been sailing along under a full head of steam are now finding the going a bit rougher. The second place Pars have closed up a wide gap to only a 17-point lead for the Eagles.

Pappy Garland's Aces who are resting next to the bottom in league standings put a burr under the saddle of the Eagles to the tune of nine points. The king pin seat can be a very rough place at this time of the year in the Owl League as past results will attest.

The second place Pars just went out for the exercise and picked up a 10-point forfeit win from the last place Bogeys.

My old team, the Birdies, with Norm Wolf and Johnny Stark firing 38's plastered the vaunted Hot Shots by 15 despite 39's carded by Jim Sternberger and Ozzie Bunch.

One of these days Paul Billman is going to quit dubbing around with 37's and the like and fire some real golf. My spy tells me that his tee shot on No. 10 almost went over to No. 9 fairway clear across No. 1 and still he shot a lousy 37. Gee gosh, I'd like to be that lousy only once.

OWL STANDINGS
Eagles	Plus	42
Pars	Plus	25
Hot Shots	Plus	11
Birdies	Minus	1
Aces	Minus	33
Bogeys	Minus	39

Monday Afternoon

There must be some kind of justice in golf. Leo Almandinger's Putters with an actual won and lost record of five and four left the hen house door open and the Fox (Wire Mill) ran in and took over the coop. The Wire Mill team has a record of eight won and one lost. Win and loss columns don't win any GE golf leagues but once in a while it makes copy to look at the records.

Paul Boedeker's Highballs lifted themselves out of the league cellar in beating the Putters by six thereby giving an assist to Wire Mill. Luther Putman was the big gun for the winners with a 39. "Uncle Tony" Wichman's 38 and Willie Adams' 39 didn't help the Putter cause quite enough.

Steady Ray Hills didn't hurt his average of 39.7 any with the 38 he carded in the Wire Mill 11-point clobber job on the Ed Becker Transformers. The win gives the Mill boys a nine point cushion with only a game or so to go.

In the middle of the standings fourth place Financials smeared third spot Divoteers by 13 points. Bill Borah out shot his rival manager Chauncy Miller 47 to 51 but it didn't help the outcome very much.

MONDAY AFTERNOON STANDINGS
Wire Mill	Plus	52
Putters	Plus	43
Divoteers	Minus	4
Financials	Minus	16
Highballs	Minus	37
Transformer	Minus	38

Monday Evening

Nothing short of a complete collapse on the final league match will prevent the powerful Pros from copping the crown.

Skeets Lahrman and Harold Dimke carded 42's to pace the leaders in a 13-point win over the Rough Riders.

The Dark Horses managed only a two-pointer over the tail end Rovers.

A trade in league standings occurred when the Lost Balls clipped the Turf Toppers by 12.

Monday Evening
Pros	Plus	64
Dark Horses	Plus	13
Rough Riders	Minus	1
Lost Balls	Minus	5
Turf Toppers	Minus	6
Rovers	Minus	65

Don't forget, it isn't too late to get your ticket for the Fort Wayne PGA Open slated at the Elks Country Club August 19 through 21.

Eddie Heshner has returned to work after a week's vacation spent in New York. . . . If a cat with nine lives cannot survive Erman Johnson's singing, how can you expect a human being with only one life to continue to exist? It has been suggested that probably most people are able to build up an immunity to such vocalizing if they are able to survive that long. . . . Birthday greetings to Walt Lister who celebrated on July 12. . . . We also wish to extend our wishes for a happy birthday to Ezra Brandyberry, who celebrated his birthday while on vacation. We were wondering what had become of Ezra because we haven't seen anything about him in the NEWS for a long time. . . . Glad to see Joe Murtaugh back to work after a short absence. . . . Did you know we have a new champion in our midst? Elbert Fuhrman was crowned King of the Chicken Eaters at the annual Legion picnic this year. Keep a close watch on Elbert, he's liable to sprout wings. . . . We wonder if Tom Haubold can remain a bachelor despite that new super deluxe Buick he is driving? . . . We certainly miss Nyla Wilkinson and Eileen Freeby who left us at vacation time. Nyla worked in the plant for many years and was recently transferred to switchboard operator. Eileen has worked in the Accounting Department for the past year. We want to wish you girls the best of luck and happiness and may all your troubles be little ones. . . . Genny and Cleo August were presented with a new grandson July 17. The new Master August has been christened Eric. . . . Chalk up another one for Ray Moser in the Granddad's Club. Ray has a new granddaughter. . . . The post-vacation fish stories are flying thick and fast as usual, but our good friend Walter Ryf made sure there would be no doubt about his experience. Walt sent the editor a Sturgis paper telling about him catching a prize large mouth bass at Eberhard Lake. The fish weighed five lb. two oz. and measured 21 1/2 inches. Walt also has a picture for further verification. Nice going, Walt, and thanks for the clipping. . . . Mr. and Mrs. George Laurent and Vera Geimer spent the major part of their vacation visiting Pvt. Louis Laurent at Fort Riley, Kan. Louie sends regards to all of his former co-workers at GE. . . . The Paul Hancher family visited relatives and saw the sights of Florida. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith had the unfortunate experience of having very valuable luggage stolen from their car during their vacation trip to Chicago. . . . The GE Club golf team came through as champions of the Adams County Golf League with a .650 winning percentage. John Bauman and Kenny Gaunt paced GE and led in the individual averages with 39.7 and 40.0 respectively. Other GE players were Tom Haubold, Sephus Jackson, Denny Dowell, and Paul Hancher. Congratulations Champs!! Other GE employees who played in the league on other teams included Milt Hoffman, E. W. Lankenau, and Guy Koos. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Jay Baker and family spent several days visiting relatives at South Bend. . . . Mrs. Leona Omlor returned to her R.N. duties on the second shift after being absent about eight weeks due to surgery. . . . Herman and Lorena Keller moved into their newly purchased farm residence on east 224 during their vacation. When's the housewarming? . . . Just a reminder, the bowling season is just around the corner, watch for further announcement. . . . The office and plant has been buzzing merrily this past week of tales about vacation. In behalf of the girls on the New York trip, we all enjoyed the big, fabulous city and the beautiful scenery along the turnpike. Among the many sights visited by the group were the United Nations Building, Times Square, Empire State Building, Radio City Music Hall, the Latin Quarter, China Town, Coney Island, and many, many others. All of us were especially impressed by the structural beauty of the United Nations Building and also with the fabulous costumes at Radio City Music Hall and the Latin Quarter. We even got to the 60 second line of the Astor Roof Garden where Sammy Kaye and his orchestra were playing. Several of the girls were lucky enough to get tickets to the theaters and they all report an enjoyable evening. Of the 36 girls on the trip special mention must be given to Maggie White. The highlight of Maggie's vacation was the incident which occurred when we stopped to have our bus checked before going into New York City. Maggie, what is your secret?? Following is a list of the girls who made the trip: Sheila Murtaugh (Elex), Iva Hunter, Eloise Noll, Harriet Fueling, Alice Lake, Phyllis Jacquay (Elex), Agnes Krentz (Elex), Mrs. Hazen Hudson (Elex), Rosemary Miller, Martha Myers, Glennis Barkley, Maggie White, Phyllis Gerke, Helen Mowery, and Phyllis Marks (Elex).

Hello! Everyone is hack from a fine vacation. Hope you all enjoyed every minute of it. We now have 50 weeks to plan another one, good news. . . . Some of our group went on trips. Normal Henshaw went to Kansas. She says it wasn't a bit too warm. . . . Frances Jallor toured the New England States. She saw West Point in full dress parade. . . . Maurice Petgen saw Vancouver, Wash. and all points from here to there. . . . Ruth Bentz spent some time in Nebraska. . . . Dixie Lee Hogg visited Carol Traub in Cedarville, Ohio. Carol worked in Telegraph. . . . Carol Symonds visited in Detroit, at Lake George and saw Niagara Falls, as did Melvin Schrader. He saw a part of Canada too. Neither of them saw the piece fall out of the Falls though. . . . Viola Haiber visited in Detroit, she also entertained her nephews from Washington, D. C. and the Philippines. . . . Mary Jane Wise saw Springfield, Ill. and the Lincoln Memorials. . . . Helen Brown spent most of the two weeks catching up on her housework. It's a good thing you can't see our house, we can hardly enter the place, vacation clutter and stuff. Anyway, we will have topics for conversation for many a day.

I hope that everyone had a wonderful vacation. I don't mean to be piggy, but I could have used about two more weeks. (With pay, of course.) . . . Note to George Winans: There's nothing prettier than trim limbs, especially the female walking kind. . . . Remember that one night a couple of weeks ago when it was so unbearably hot? Well, along about 11 o'clock, Bob Kite just couldn't take it any longer, so he donned his swimming trunks, and cooled off in a nearby pool. Can't say that I blame you, Bob, but how's about using a different one instead of the little kids' pool in your yard? . . . John Dennis had a birthday on the 19th, and Pop Seals came all the way down to test to sing "Happy Birthday" to him. How's that for friendship, old pal, old buddy? . . . Just as long as Charlie Waltemath keeps bringing in a sack of candy to the office every Friday, Bob Buck will be around to help get rid of same. In fact, Charlie thought that Bob had eaten much too much, so Charlie sent Bob a bill for 30¢. Bob wrote back telling in no uncertain terms what he thought of Charlie and his candy. . . . Why is it that when a fellow is busy repairing a roof on his house, that the phone will start ringing? That's what happened to Al Hutchings while he was "enjoying" his third week vacation. He was home alone, and some of the boys at work knew this. So they thought, "Let's have fun with old Al." One even asked Al if he had a permit to do what he was doing. Al sheepishly said no, and went down town pronto to purchase it. Was that trip really necessary, Al? . . . Mike Sorgen is in the same boat as "Seat Cover Charlie". He wants to get a crew hair cut, but his wife won't let him. It figures. . . . Don Kees asked to leave work at 3 p.m. so he would be sure and not miss his rider. At 4 p.m. he was still waiting in the park for his man. Probably had to hoof it to Payne, Ohio in the long run.

"Golf's a lousy game, anyhow!
I'm just glad I don't have to play any more until 7:30 tomorrow morning!"

Clara Billue sojourned in Chetek, Wis. Catch, 23 walleyes. . . . Millie Vermillion and Bettie Waltie, off to California with Elex, enjoyed San Francisco but didn't like Mexico! . . . Eileen Fitch, Denver, Colo., Cripple Creek was her favorite spot! . . . Shirley Girod entertained visitors from California, Canton and Massillon, Ohio, and New Orleans. . . . Phillis Crace canned beans. . . . Carolyn Wyatt toured Miami, Cypress Gardens, and New Orleans. She enjoyed everything but the humidity. . . . Jo Franklin visited Colorado Springs and Denver. . . . Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Miller (Florence) vacationed at Yellowstone Park. . . . Nia Cheney went to California; Carolyn Mallett to Florida; Julia Ray to North Carolina; Martha Brenner to Churchill Downs. . . . Everyone in GPM Engineering is back to work after two wonderful weeks of vacation. The west and south seemed to be the most popular spots. Jim Capps and Elmer Sherbondy were at Yellowstone; Jim Stokke and Ken Wyman to S. Dakota; Walt Gerke and Marylis Lenz went to the Smoky Mountains.

Herb Wise went to the Ozark Mountains; Glen Rout to Washington and Oregon. Last but not least, Lou Saak went to Florida and flew over Cuba. I'm sure a good time was had by all. . . . Jim Crowe, our hero of the day, caught a bat in the hall Monday morning. . . . Birthdays of the week are Betty Ross, Aug. 1, and Walt Gerke, Aug. 6. . . . June Vaughn had a wonderful time in Seattle, 17,000 sailors. Hear they make excellent guides! . . . Mildred Quackenbush flew to Los Angeles. . . . Mr. Schafenacker traveled to Lake Louise and Jasper Park. . . . Joe Hartman vacationed at Houghton Lake, Mich and in Iowa. . . . Mary K. Hostetter's vacation at Lake Webster proved to be quite exciting. They need fugitives at large and prowlers at 3 a.m. . . . Paul Merkey vacationed at Daytona Beach. What's this about no mermaids after dark? . . . While Ruth English was taking two of her friends for a boat ride on Big Cedar Lake, one of her friends asked, "What if the motor would fall off?" Forty-five minutes later it fell in the lake! . . . Ralph Ditton has a mother-in-law who liked nothing better than to sit under the shade of the apple tree in her yard. As his contribution to the art of gracious living, Doc built a patio under the apple tree for her convenience. In taking inventory after our recent big wind, Doc discovered that while the patio was intact the old apple tree had blown away. Wanted: One full grown apple tree to shade patio.

Now that we're all back in the groove after vacation we can begin to think about the remaining 49 weeks before the next shutdown. Whether you're in the groove or just in a rut depends on your state of mind. . . . Bill Walker, Dallas Smith, Herb Mennewisch, and Walter Reynolds are all sporting Florida tans. . . . Charlie Bracht made a tour of the Smoky Mountains and was duly initiated into the South with hominy grits and Virginia ham. . . . Harry Henline spent some time in Muskegon, Mich., but the welcome committee turned off the heat and almost froze him out. . . . Ronald Zimmerman says that Chapman Lake has the largest fish in the area, but since his visit, is minus the largest. . . . Bill Howell is the latest expert on bath room tiling. . . . We hear that Don Eme is running a cut-rate barber shop on the side. He furnished the mirror and current for Roy Paulson to shave the morning after the big storm had left him powerless to shave at home. . . . We're going to try to keep the SPCA out of this, but we have to report that Hank Wittber left on his vacation without a thought of leaving food for the mice and pigeons. He got back to work to find the pigeons waiting outside his window and the mice eating their way through his calendar. . . . John Inches spent his vacation in the Lutheran Hospital. He is now home recuperating from surgery. Hope you're getting along OK and will be back soon, Johnny. . . . It's a small world, Wayne Chrystler met one of his Ossian neighbors in Denver, Colo. . . . ## IUE ACCEPTS COMPANY OFFER

CRANING NECKS—During vacation the hoist carriage of the coal pocket crane behind the Power House was replaced. In the photograph two 95-foot boom mobilcranes raise the new hoist carriage as a complete unit. The two boom hooks were 80 feet above ground suspending the new carriage weight of 10 tons, when the main gantry crane was moved to a point under the load and the new carriage deposited on the bridge rails. (Story on page 5.)

Virgil B. Day, manager of union relations for the General Electric Company, announced that agreement was reached yesterday with IUE-CIO on the company's wage and benefit offer. Mr. Day said his announcement was based on agreement of the union's negotiating committee to recommend acceptance of the offer.

"Bargaining committee members have unreservedly committed themselves to recommend acceptance by the full conference board at a meeting to be called for Sept. 2, the earliest date on which the board could be convened," Mr. Day said.

The settlement consists of a wage increase of 2.68 per cent, averaging slightly more than five cents an hour and ranging from four cents to eight cents and more an hour, plus improvements in holiday and vacation pay and other benefits. The contract will run until Sept. 15, 1955, when the pension and insurance agreements will be open for negotiation.

This makes the 81st union to accept the company's offer. Based on discussions with IUE-CIO bargaining committee representatives on August 12, the increases under this agreement will be effective as of August 2 if approved, as expected, at the Sept. 2 meeting.

GE pay, not including increases in pensions and insurance, has risen more than 31 per cent above the Korea level while the cost of living has risen 13.2 per cent.

His suggestion saves both time and material. (See story on page 4.)

Specialty Component Motor Earns Award of Merit for Safety Record

The Specialty Component Motor Department has received the National Safety Council 1954 Award of Merit for its safety record of more than two million man hours worked this year without a lost-time accident.

By achieving 2,075,000 man hours without a disabling injury from February 17, 1954 to June 2, 1954, the department received the recognition. This is the second such award won by the department. The first was awarded last year, when Specialty Component employees worked 1,482,000 man hours without a lost-time accident.

Employees of the department have continued to keep the accident-free record since June 2 and hope to achieve the goal of three million man-hours without a lost-time accident, Herschel L. Smith, supervisor of safety, reports.

Within the 10 sections of the department, drives are on to achieve one million accident-free man hours. Standings of the departments from January through July are:

Section	Man Hours
401	862,551
402	712,679
419	533,529
423	413,370
455	358,633
476-426-477	334,157
415-420	332,546
403-404-405	326,893
417-418	199,529
Jonesboro	126,240

The Award of Merit is the second highest of four honors presented under the National Safety Council's Award Plan which recognizes good industrial safety records. The awards attainable under this plan for perfect records are:

Award of Honor—3,000,000 man hours.

Award of Merit—1,000,000 to 3,000,000 man hours.

Certificate of Commendation—200,000 to 1,000,000 man hours.

President's Letter—10,000 to 200,000 man hours.

The National Safety Council's Award Plan was officially adopted by the industrial conference and approved by the Board of Directors in January, 1951.

HOW MUCH AM I WORTH?

What Am I Worth?

So many national magazines are aimed, these days, at relatively small segments of the total U. S. population that they rarely have a word for those of us who work for a living. Some fill their pages with news of "high society." Others talk to, and about, "cafe society." Still others appeal to hobbyists or housewives. Hence, we were more-than-a-little pleased to read The American Magazine for June and to find an editorial aimed straight at those of us who make up America's important "plant society." Writing under the title, "Your Market Value," Publisher John McPherrin suggests:

"Let's get down to the big question. How much are you worth to anybody in business. Today or ten years from now, you will be worth as much as it will cost to replace you—but no more. This isn't some trick plan dreamed up by business people. It is the basic principle of America that every man or woman is free to earn money according to his or her individual ability in competition with others."

Publisher McPherrin cites several examples that prove this principle in sharp contrast to the Communist's theory that everybody should earn about the same money regardless of individual jobs or worth.

"A really good (baseball) player is worth more than an ordinary one and many times the cost of a mediocre performer. In show business, those who attract big audiences are worth whatever it costs to get some other theatrical star capable of doing as well."

None of us owns ball teams or theaters. But all of us apply the same rules almost every day—when we play our personal roles as "employers" right here at home. The house needs painting—and you say "how much is this painter worth, or that painter?" The sink leaks—and your neighbor asks "how much is the plumber's skill and knowledge worth?" The butcher, the baker, the men's clothing maker. Every time we buy anything, we are actually asking—and answering the all-American question. "What is that man worth—to me?"

Spending our money more carefully than at any time in a decade, we frequently ask how much other working folks are worth. So perhaps it makes sense to look in our own mirrors, now and then, and ask "how much am I worth?"

Bill Shueler got back from California. He has Terry Moore's autograph. He was really disappointed because she didn't ask him for his. Guess she didn't recognize him for who he is! . . . Hope Hatfield is back after her third week vacation. . . . Helen White got quite a response for her request for a volunteer for a ball team. . . . Marie Griffin's soy, Bobby, is in California having the time of his life. . . . Bonnie LeBeouf borrowed Louise Sinn's apron last Monday and she took it with her to wash and then left it in the insurance office. To say she was embarrassed when she found out she lost it is putting it mild. . . . When Bernadine Warner asked the way to Alabama someone told her to look for a certain road and she looked for a tower. Here she had been going around in circles and had been in Alabama about six times.

. . . What is this we hear about Edna Rohrbach and Luella Knoche getting left in China Town in San Francisco? It seems that they don't hear well, and while some were going one way they went another and got left. . . . Ruth Tutwiller got back from her trip to Mexico, that is Old Mexico, not New Mexico. There is a difference, you know. . . . Don Mason enjoys tomatoes for his lunch, big or small, but the smaller the better. . . . Sam Taylor is really a loyal friend. He needed a haircut before vacation and he told John Figley that if he couldn't find one for less than 35 cents on his trip west, he would wait until he got back and go to John's basement to get it cut. From all looks he must have waited. . . . We also hear that John Figley has a new customer, none other than Clarence Weimer. . . . Abe Richter says no more painting jobs for him. It took him three weeks to paint his house. . . . Paul

How Is Red World Set Up?

The Soviet world is in greater part an empire ruled by the Soviet Union. Russia is the geographic, economic, political and military heartland of this Soviet world. Russia regards itself as the only Socialist state. Poland, Hungary, Romania, Czechoslovakia and the rest of the satellites are "people's democracies."

Force and trickery were basic to the formation of the Soviet empire. After the last war coalition governments were set up in the satellite nations. Communists, although a minority, weaseled into government posts, controlling police, armed forces and propaganda. Then they penetrated rival parties, ousted legitimate leaders and took over. At that point all parties which had not been dissolved were merged with the Communist party. Thus the fake "people's democracies" were born.

(Adapted from the "Primer on Communism," published by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.)

Arnold sure has an odd looking red mark on his neck. . . . Bob Fredrick leaves us for a couple weeks of camp in Wisconsin. . . . There are two new girls in the office, Kathleen Murphy and Martha Wichmann. . . . Birthday greetings to Kathryn Hepker and Ethel Bobay. Ethel didn't want anyone to know she had a birthday. . . . We don't blame Ruby Chrysler for feeling blue last week as her son left for the army and after all, he was her baby! . . . Sorry to hear that Luella Hockemeyer's husband is on the sick list. . . . We extend our sympathy to Louie Barrow in the death of his father, and to Clarence Rentschler in the death of his father. . . . Maude Erhardt wasn't feeling too spry on Monday morning as she didn't get home from the World Council of Churches Conference until 4:45 a.m., but says the loss of sleep doesn't mean a thing as the conference was so wonderful.

SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Now that our vacation period is history and most of our co-workers are back in the fold, we desire to report on the activities of a few of them. Mabel Miller made her usual trip to Kalamazoo to visit her maw. . . . Irene Brown spent her time in Anderson to visit whom we did not learn. . . . Cecil Gordan and Pearl Childs wasted 14 good days in Muncie. Whatever prompted them to spend their vacation there is beyond us. . . . Now Aline Lewis took a worthwhile vacation, spending it in California, while Julie Witte, poor girl, spent most of her leisure time sitting in the dentist's chair. A most interesting and pleasurable vacation. . . . Prior to the shutdown our soldier boyfriend, Bob Sedgwick, who is home on furlough, paid his many friends here in the plant a visit. It is not necessary to say that everyone was delighted to see him. . . . Mildred Dilton spent her time in Canada looking over the scenic wonders of the Province of Quebec. . . . A note of sadness was added to this year's two weeks of festivities when we learned that Aldine Bell fell and broke her leg; while Edna Hardenrider had the misfortune to fracture her wrist. Our best wishes for a speedy recovery to these two girls. . . . Art Brandenburger and his wife spent an enjoyable vacation at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they indulged in some deep sea fishing. Art told us of the thrilling six hour battle his wife had with a seven-foot sailfish. With the assistance of the ship's crew they managed to land this monster of the briny deep. They are having it stuffed and mounted for posterity. We have since learned that it was not a sailfish at all but a gigantic sea going carp. . . . Martha Lee has joined the Liberate Club. She has purchased a TV set for the sole purpose of watching him batter the ivories. Speaking of Liberate, have you ever noticed that Walter Kammerer resembles him, that is in a blond sort of way? . . . Rosamond Schooley took a trip through the west. While in that part of the country she visited Yellowstone where she boiled eggs over the geysers and rubbed noses with the bears. For a detailed report of activities while in the park, contact Rosie.

Scientists, someone reports, are hard at work trying to find a sound that's faster than planes.

WHAT'S YOUR S.S.Q.*?

On the Waterfront

- Do you always acquaint yourself with the water depth and the underwater hazards before jumping or diving in?
- Do you swim only at beaches where a lifeguard is in attendance?
- Do you always swim with a buddy or a group?
- Do you avoid entering the water too soon after eating a large meal?
- Do you come back on the beach before becoming overtired?
- Do you keep your eye on the children at all times and supervise their play in the water?

In the Woods

- Do you see that all cigars, cigarettes, pipes, and campfires are carefully extinguished?
- Do you know the poisonous plants from the harmless ones?
- Can you recognize the dangerous snakes and insects from the harmless ones?
- Do you always boil all drinking water or chemically purify it before using?

On the Home Front

- Do you always leave the garage doors open whenever the car engine is running?
- Do you have the tires, brakes, and steering of your car checked regularly?
- Are your stairs and hallways properly lighted and kept free from articles over which you or others may stumble?
- Do you and your family always use a ladder or stool to stand on to reach high shelves?
- Do you keep children away from the stove and keep matches away from children?
- Do you plainly mark all contents of the medicine chest and keep harmful drugs out of reach of youngsters?
- Do you always read the labels of medicines before using?
- Do you have a rubber mat in the bath tub to prevent slipping?

*S. S. Q.—Summer Safety Quotient. You should be able to answer "yes" to all the above questions. Even one "no" may represent a potential accident with your number on it.

THE CHAMP—Gertrude Curry holds the trophy she and three teammates won as the National Non-Masters Team of Four champions.

Gertrude Currie & Co. Win National Bridge Champinoship

The lady who claims "I'm just an ordinary bridge player" has won a national bridge championship. She is Gertrude Currie, Bldg. 20-2, who along with three teammates won the National Non-Masters Team of Four Championship in Washington, D. C.

Sponsored by the American Contract Bridge League, the championship playoffs brought some 3000 bridge enthusiasts together from the 48 states, Mexico, and the West Indies. And unusually enough, it brought Gertrude together with three total strangers from Gary, Ind.; Raleigh, N. C., and Miami Beach, Fla. These three men became her teammates and the four came out of the 10-day tournament in a tie for first place with one of the other 46 teams entered in the final event.

The championship cup which has been in play since 1938 will be given each of the winners to keep for a while before it is won by another team next year. It will have each of their names inscribed on it.

In addition to winning this honor, the team members received their choice of a trophy or other prizes. Gertrude selected a Swedish mahogany salad set with silver servers. She and her teammates also won trophies for winning the first of two final sessions in the event, which took place during vacation shutdown.

This is the first bridge event Gertrude has won except for a mixed pair championship with her hubby Don here in Fort Wayne. She states emphatically that "Don is the bridge player in the family."

She went to the tournament not thinking of entering any event and never expecting to emerge the winner. When she called her husband, he let out a war whoop at word of the good news.

Gertrude recalls she began her interest in bridge during the days of the depression when "there wasn't much money to spend on entertainment." Since attending her first tourney at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago in the early 40's she has been impressed with the mechanics of bridge—the scoring, progression, and method of conducting bridge events for a large number of people. She organized the Fort Wayne Duplicate Bridge Club in November, 1947, and is currently directing its activities.

In addition, Gertrude is past president of the Northern Indiana unit of the American Contract Bridge League and is on the board of directors of the national group now. Also, she has aided other groups in Ohio and Indiana in organizing bridge clubs. Since May this year, she has done a weekly bridge column for the Journal-Gazette. The column, which appears in the Sunday morning edition, has been a lot of fun to do, she says.

When Gertrude talks of bridge, her eyes shine with enthusiasm as she explains that to her it is a wonderful type of entertainment and relaxation from the every-day world that all types of persons can enjoy. She has played in tournaments against a man in an iron lung and in the recent event in Washington, D. C., played with cards marked in braille for blind persons entered in the tourney.

Volunteer Fireman Plan Family Picnic Tomorrow

The GE Volunteer Firemen's Association will conduct their annual family picnic tomorrow at Franke Park, Paul Arnold, Bldg. 4-4, president, announced this week.

Firemen and their families will get together for a day of fun and relaxation beginning at 11 a.m. when they will meet at the main pavillion. The outing will include lunch and refreshments and games and contests for the children and wives. Children's contests will include tug-o-war, peanut hunt, three-legged races.

Prizes will be awarded for the contest winners among the wives and children and attendance awards will be made also. There will be pony rides for the children also. Mel Kestner, Section 417, Taylor St., vice president, is in charge of the entertainment for the event.

The board of directors of the association are in charge of arrangements for the picnic.

Pensioners to Get Special Welcome At Decatur Picnic

Retired employees of the Decatur plant have been issued special invitations to attend the Decatur GE Club's family picnic tomorrow at Sunset Park, Oran Schultz, chairman, reported this week.

Opening at 10:30 a.m. with registration, the picnic will continue with a fun-packed program throughout the day. There will be complete lunches and food and refreshments during the day. Treasure hunts, a fish pond, and pony rides have been planned for the children with prizes for the winners.

A sawdust scramble and television baseball game of the week are slated for adults in addition to other games. Prizes valued at $525 will be awarded during the day, the chairman stated.

Committees responsible for the many events include: Treasure hunt, Norma Poorman, chairman; Barbara Geyer, Charlotte McDaniels, Betty Crone, and Marjorie Shook. Bingo, Paul Hancher, James Staley, Helen Mowery, and Shirley Fuelling. Pony rides, chairman, Clem Snell; Junior Lake, Erman Johnson, Guy Koos, and Dowell Singer. Fish pond, chairman Mary Fennig; Mick Odle, Norma Gentis, Janet Evans, Mary Maloney, and Lorena Keller.

Production Record

Breakfast customers at the Broadway cafeteria one morning last week got double their money's worth, thanks to some advanced production methods on the part of certain chickens in the area.

Neva Nordyke and Ruth Commers, of the cafeteria fried 10 dozen eggs for breakfast. Of these, 109 had double yolks, two had triple yolks and nine single yolks.

Taisho — All American Cat!

Sniffing a rose, CFA Grand Champion Ammon Ra's Taisho acts nonchalant about the many honors she has won in cat shows this past year, as her owner, Lillian Magner, retired employee, beams at her. And no wonder! Two-year-old Taisho walked away with the highest honor attainable in feline competition in the United States when she won the All American Cat award recently. This was presented by the Cats Magazine. She also won the title Female Cat of the Year for 1954 among entries from all parts of the U. S. and Canada.

This is only the second time that a Siamese has achieved such an honor of being tops among all breeds. To qualify for her award, Taisho won the title of Best Cat nine times (four times in all-breed shows); Best Short Hair 11 times, and she was awarded the honor of being best champion four times.

Lillian has been showing Taisho since the cat was one year old. They have traveled to shows by bus, train, and even plane.

$2275 PAID IN SUGGESTION AWARDS

According to the June suggestion list released just prior to vacation shutdown, 84 employees took home $2275 in awards. The biggest slice of suggestion money went to Howard Winters, Bldg. 26-5. He earned $185 as an additional award to a previous suggestion to change the winding method of certain transformers, thus saving both time and material.

Phillip H. Kraft, Bldg. 17-4, received $125 for suggesting a way to eliminate shrink holes of a field frame by plugging the air outlet in the top plate so the metal is locked in a ring.

Three employees in the Specialty Component Motor Department were paid $50 awards. They were Marlowe Shepler, Bldg. 4-4; Floyd Loraine, Bldg. 4-2, and Jay Cornell, Taylor St. Mr. Shepler suggested a change in the method of machining shafts. Mr. Loraine earned his money for changing the thickness of mica insulation on a commutator, leaving a well to stand the ground test, so that pure rejections from grounds only are received. Mr. Cornell's idea concerned trying to get a tool number and a drawing for a boring tool so it could be put in regular stock and save time thereby.

Other awards were Carl T. Ahlersmeyer, Taylor St., $40; Edward M. Sharp, Taylor St., $30; Richard C. Mix, Taylor St., $25; Forest E. Grimm, Taylor St., $25; and Charles McClure, Bldg. 27, $25.

More were Arthur Garner, Bldg. 26-1, $30; Charles Elzey, Bldg. 26-3, $30; Norman Voelker, Bldg. 12-1, $30; Irma C. Hanney, Bldg. 6-4, $40; and W. J. Guschung, Bldg. 4-2, $25.

IUE

the IUE committee two letters confirming explanatory information presented at various times in the course of the negotiations with respect to the company's expansion policy and its effects on employment, and about the possible completion next year of a company analysis of the existing contract, but not constituting any commitment or changing the offer in any way.

Here in Fort Wayne, employees represented by Lodge 70 and those not represented by any union have been receiving the higher pay since June 1.

Services Held Today For Albert Hettler, 81

A former employee, Albert Hettler, 81, died Wednesday at his home, 612 E. Masterson St. Services will be conducted today in the D. O. McComb & Sons Funeral Home. Burial will be in Lindenwood Cemetery. The Rev. Ervin E. Petznik will officiate at the services.

Mr. Hettler came to the company in May, 1923. He left in 1932 and later went to work at the Pennsylvania Railroad before retiring.

Survivors include his wife, Grace; a sister, Mrs. Addie Nietert, a half-brother, Urban Ehinger; a granddaughter, and several nieces and nephews.

Offer a modern child a penny for his thoughts, and you'll usually find he's thinking of a quarter—Kay Ingram.

Karl M. Feiertag

Feiertag Granted Ninth U.S. Patent

Karl M. Feiertag, Bldg. 4-6, has been granted his ninth patent, according to an announcement from the United States Patent Office.

The patent covers a type of unit bearing motor using formed steel structural parts. The structural parts supporting the bearings are fastened to structural parts supporting the stator to a spherical seat which provides a degree of self-alignment which compensates for a variation of the parts due to the manufacturing tolerances.

Mr. Feiertag attended Purdue University where he majored in civil engineering. He came to the company in 1920 and is a design draftsman in the Specialty Component Motor basic development section at present.

The Feiertags, who have two children, reside at 615 Sturgis St.

Q. Can a sailboat on the water be struck by lightning and would the mast act as a lightning rod?

A. Yes, a sailboat may be struck. A wooden mast would not act as a lightning rod. If struck, it would probably splinter, up to the point where the metal support wires and halyards are attached. The stroke then would go through these wires to the places at which they were fastened to the hull. Then it would spark into the water, and might rip the planking on the way. Most damage could be avoided if a complete metallic path were provided from the top of the mast to the water. This could be done with a number six wire extending from the upper ends of the guys to the top and even above the mast, and additional wires fastened to the halyards on each side of the hull, and trailing in the water. A copper plate might be fastened to the bottom of the boat, and connected to the guy wires for a more permanent installation.

Q. Does a person's body absorb vitamin D when he is heavily suntanned?

A. Vitamin D, which prevents rickets, is not "absorbed," but is formed by the action of ultraviolet rays on certain compounds present in the skin. These rays produce sunburn as well as suntan. As the skin is tanned, the pigment is deposited close to the surface, and may absorb some of the ultraviolet which would otherwise result in formation of vitamin D. However, only small amounts are required, and the body also can get it from various foods. Thus, even a very heavily suntanned individual would still get plenty of this vitamin.

Q. What happens when cider is made into vinegar?

A. A double fermentation process occurs. When a sweetened liquid such as cider is allowed to stand, it may ferment, by the action of yeasts that are usually present in the air. In this process the sugar is converted into alcohol. The second fermentation is caused by certain bacteria, which convert the alcohol to acetic acid, characteristic of vinegar. This process takes place at a temperature of 85-95 degrees F., somewhat higher than that required for yeast fermentation.

Q. What is the difference between a negative and a positive lens?

A. A positive lens is one that magnifies and it is thicker at the center than the edge. When light rays pass through it they are made to converge, and such a lens may be used to form an image, say of a candle flame, on a white surface. The negative lens is thinner at the center than at the edge. It causes light rays to diverge and cannot form a real image. If you look through it, the object you are looking at appears behind the lens, reduced in size, in what is termed a virtual image.

Q. How do meat tenderizers work?

A. These are compounds known as enzymes, obtained from plants, and when applied to tough meats they break up the fibers by a chemical process and make them easier to chew. The enzymes usually used are papain, obtained from the papaya; bromelin, from pineapple; and ficin, from figs. The juices in the stomach contain enzymes which produce similar effects when meat is digested, so tenderizing is really a form of pre-digestion.

Q. Can a wood fire produce poisonous gases?

A. Yes, if it does not get sufficient oxygen. Wood contains carbon, and when this burns it unites with oxygen from the air to form carbon dioxide, which is not in itself considered to be toxic. However, if the supply of air and oxygen is restricted, it may form poisonous carbon monoxide. This is a union of a carbon atom with one atom of oxygen instead of the two in carbon dioxide. At temperatures of a few hundred degrees F., even below the point at which it catches fire, wood undergoes "destructive distillation," with such compounds as acetic acid, acetone and wood alcohol being formed. These may all be harmful, and might be produced in a faulty wood stove. If the stove pipe leaked, they might cause some trouble.

Q. From what earlier flower was the rose developed?

A. It is difficult to say. The rose, one of the most popular of all flowers, has been crossed and recrossed a great many times in past centuries, and thus it is hard to trace our present cultivated rose back to its original wild form. However, it is believed that many of the older types may be descended from the Provence rose (Rosa gallica) which is native to Central and Southern Europe. The name rose is often applied to other plants not related to the true rose. Some authorities list as many as 250 different species of the true rose, and there are many hundreds of varieties.

Q. How can a stain caused by milk be removed from a dress?

A. It may be very difficult if the milk has dried, because the milk will set, and may even combine chemically, to a certain extent, with the material. Before the milk dries it can be removed by sponging with warm water. This will remove the proteins and other water soluble products. With warm water the fats will be removed also. Carbon tetrachloride will also dissolve the fats, but it should be used with great caution, and in a well-ventilated place.

Q. What is the difference between radio and radioactivity?

A. Radio generally refers to methods of communication (broadcasting, television, point-to-point, etc.) by means of electromagnetic waves which are sent out into space by a transmitter and are picked up by some sort of receiver, utilizing various electronic devices. Radioactivity refers to the properties of elements which change spontaneously to other elements. In the process they give off alpha particles, or nuclei of helium atoms; beta particles, which are high-speed electrons; and gamma rays. These latter, which are like X-rays, are also similar to the waves of visible light, although a great deal shorter. Radio waves, as well as light waves, but much longer. Radioactive materials do not send out radio waves.

Neck - Stretching Job Done on Bldg. 9 Crane

A neck stretching job was completed at the Broadway plant during vacation, when the hoist carriage of the coal pocket crane behind the Power House, Bldg. 9, was replaced.

This crane supplies coal by means of a one and a half cubic yard clamshell bucket lift from the coal pocket into three coal hoppers on the roof of Bldg. 9. The hoppers feed coal by gravity to the automatic stokers of the main boiler plant.

The crane dates back to 1918. Renewal of the hoist carriage was planned in 1953 for execution during the 1954 summer vacation, when there would be a minimum demand for steam in the plant.

Two 95-foot boom mobilcranes raised the new hoist carriage as a complete unit. The two boom hooks were 80 feet above ground suspending the new carriage weight of 10 tons when the main gantry crane moved to a point under the load and the new carriage was deposited on the bridge rails.

The procedure saved time and expense as compared with stripping off some of the operative mechanism of the new hoist carriage and then having to reassemble the mechanism on the carriage after it was in place.

Edward O. Bowser, Sr.

Rites Held Tuesday For Edward O. Bowser

Services for Edward O. Bowser, Sr., 52, were conducted Tuesday, Aug. 17, at the C. M. Sloan & Sons Funeral Home by the Rev. Paul Paino. Mr. Bowser died Saturday, Aug. 14, in St. Joseph Hospital.

A Quarter Century Club member, Mr. Bowser came to GE in 1920 as a clerk in Bldg. 10-3. He did analysis, report, and repair work in Section 417, Taylor St. until May of this year when he took a leave of absence for illness. He had been a member of the Volunteer Firemen's Association for the past 13 years.

Surviving are his wife, Lucille; two daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Heller and Mrs. Robert Wilkerson; one son, Edward Bowser, Jr.; a sister, Mrs. J. W. Hursh, and four grandchildren.

Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

SICK LIST

The following people have been reported on the sick list, dismissed from the hospital, and returned to work:

Sick List

Dismissed from Hospital

George Redfern, Clark Holmes, Melrose Bryson, Alma Wilkinson, Mabel Altimus, Marie Schmidt, Russell Ramel, Emma Ellis, Charles Martin, Jr., Fred Clark, Elton Swank, Yvonne Cecie, Robert Packwood, Edith Canfield, and Floyd Wygant.

Returned to Work

Eldon R. Cunningham and Lawrance W. Wightman receive joint patent

Two GE Men Awarded Joint Patent On Water Cooled Electric Motors

A joint patent has been granted to Lawrance W. Wightman and Eldon R. Cunningham, both of Bldg. 4-6, it was announced recently by the United States Patent Office.

In eight claims, the patent covers water-cooled electric motors for operation in high altitude aircraft where normal cooling of motors is inadequate or impossible. Their idea covers a motor which has a water chamber with a pressure valve set for a definite blow-off temperature and pressure. This blow-off pressure would determine the limiting temperature of the motor but would be utilized only if the motor actually got to that temperature. It would mean that the water would not normally be used up during low altitude flights.

Mr. Wightman graduated from the University of Kansas with a BSME degree in 1937 and came to General Electric that same year. He is manufacturing engineer in the Specialty Component Motor Department at present. The Wightmans and their two children live at 340 W. Woodland.

A 1942 graduate of the University of Idaho, Mr. Cunningham received his BSME degree. He joined the company in 1942 and is a design engineer in the basic development section of Specialty Component Motor. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham have two children and reside at 2711 Hoagland.

Franklin E. Deyo

Franklin E. Deyo Takes New Post In SIM Finance

Appointment of Franklin E. Deyo as budgets and measurements specialist in the Small Integral Motor audits, budgets, measurements, and procedures section has been announced by Martin L. Kresge, manager of finance.

In 1950 Mr. Deyo came to the company and entered the Business Training Program at Schenectady. Upon completion of the program in 1953 he went on special assignments in the Accounting Services Division. This was his location prior to his present appointment.

A 1950 graduate of Ohio State University, Mr. Deyo received his BS degree in business administration. He is a member of the Supervisors Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Deyo and their two children reside at 1921 E. Rudisill Blvd.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Bldg. 22's three top fishermen (so they say) are Don (Windy) Castle, Ralph (Highpockets) Garrett, and Al (Shorty) Kleinrichart. They returned safely from Wisconsin (even thought they did have to push Ralph's Nash part of the way) and brought back a wash boiler full of fish. Hill says there's fish right here in these Indiana lakes that you can't even get in a wash boiler. . . . While we are on the subject of fish, the one in the picture is a 14-lb. pike caught by

Lucky Lynch and Fish

Walter (Lucky) Lynch at Brimley, Mich. . . . Our office steno, Mildred Messer, and her sister-in-law, Marge Messer, took their husbands on a fishing trip up in Canada during the shutdown. Marge says the best bait they found were those little one-eyed oats bugs. They all had a good time but Mildred says she didn't sleep well up there. She says she slept all right in the mornings and at night, but in the afternoons she just rolled and tossed. . . . If I'm boring you with these vacation stories please bear with me for one more because I just gotta tell this one. Frank Schlink and Fred McIntyne (editor of Bldg. 19-2 Echoes) rented a cottage at Adams Lake and were just rowing in to shore after having spent some time out on the lake fishing. "Boy, am I thirsty!" says Fred. "Me too," says Frank. "While I tie the boat, Fred, why don't you run up to the cottage and get a couple of cold drinks out of the refrigerator and bring them out here?" Fred got a couple cold ones out of the refrigerator, opened them and started out of the cottage when a man stepped up to the door and asked him what he thought he was doing. After giving the nosy stranger a sharp reply, Fred took the refreshments out to Frank with the stranger following close behind. "Where did you get these?" exclaimed Frank. "Why, up at the cottage," says Fred. Whereas Frank explained that they didn't have any such cold drinks as that and Fred must have gotten into the wrong cottage. If you think that was an embarrassing situation for Fred, wait till I tell you who the stranger was. A Fort Wayne policeman! Dum-de-dum dum. . . . Thanks to Elma Newhard for her card from Kentucky. . . . Welcome back to Eugene Miller.

He was unpacking his lunch. All the fellows were watching as he unwrapped a parcel about 18 inches long.

"My wife was too busy, so I made a pie myself," he explained. "It's a little long, isn't it?" asked one of the on-lookers.

"Sure it's long. Why shouldn't it be? It's a rhubarb pie."

35-YEAR LETTER—Floyd Loraine (left) reads a letter of congratulations on his 35th General Electric anniversary to Ivan Jones (center) and Sam Buckley. Mr. Loraine joined the company as a messenger in Bldg. 18-2 in 1919. He is now an assembler in Bldg. 4-5.

IT IS AS EASY TO BUY A SHARE OF STOCK in a company as it is to shop at the corner grocery store. Just consult a stock broker or bank representative. They will give you advice and service in connection with purchasing stock.

How Do People Buy Stocks?

As a result of the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and because over 20,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a full share of stock as a bonus for the U. S. Savings Bonds purchased under the plan in 1948, a number of employees have asked us for information about stocks and bonds. Therefore, as a service to our readers we are currently presenting a series of eight articles on this subject. The article in today's issue is the fifth of the present series.

Contrary to what many people believe, there is really nothing complicated about buying stocks. As a matter of fact, it is about as easy to buy a share of stock in a company as it is to shop at the corner grocery store.

The first thing to do is consult a stock broker or bank representative. Either of these people will be prepared to give you advice and service in connection with purchasing stock.

If you choose to buy stocks which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange through a broker, you should look for a broker who is a member of the New York Stock Exchange. All members of the Exchange are required to meet certain standards of reputability and can surely give you the guidance and service you need.

A lot of people hesitate to consult stock brokers because they are afraid that brokers may only be willing to do business with people who want to invest thousands or tens of thousands of dollars at a time. That's not true at all. Most brokers will be happy to be of service to you no matter how little you have to invest. And you don't have to be a millionaire to do business with them. In fact a surprisingly large number of their customers are people with average incomes. For example, one of the larger brokerage firms in the country made a check recently and found that about one-third of their customers were people who had incomes of less than $5000 a year.

When you visit with a stock broker or banker about purchasing stock, he will want to know how much you would like to invest, what type of industry you would prefer to invest in, whether you are interested more in the large payment of dividends from year to year or in stocks which may be expected to increase in value over the years, and other information. He may have suggestions to offer you about your purchases and will be able to quote current market prices on most of the traded stocks.

While a good stock broker will be anxious to discuss these things with you, he will not force his opinions on you. However, if you want his advice in choosing stock or in determining which type of investment will best suit your personal needs, he will be glad to help you. In any event, the final decision will be entirely up to you.

Once you have decided which stocks you want to buy, and how many shares, your broker may then inquire whether you want to buy the stock at the market or whether you prefer to place a limit order.

If you tell him to buy the stock at the market, it means that you want him to fill your order immediately and at the best price that prevails when your order finally reaches the floor of the Stock Exchange. This price may change a few cents or more between the time you place the order and the time it can be filled. By instructing your broker to buy at the market, however, it means that you want him to buy a certain number of shares despite any change in price which might have occurred between the time you placed your order and the time when the actual purchase was made.

On the other hand, if you wish to buy shares of stock at a price below the present market, you place a limit order and your broker will buy only if the price of the desired stock drops to a particular level within a certain period of time. For example, in placing a limit order you might tell your broker to buy so many shares of "XYZ" stock if the price drops to 25¼ ($25.25) per share within the next month. If the price doesn't drop to that level within the month, your broker will not buy any stock. He will discuss the situation with you and ask whether you want to extend your order for another period of time or if you want to cancel it altogether. As always, the decision would be entirely up to you.

Once you have finally placed your order with the broker, you can sit back and relax. He and the Stock Exchange will do the rest. Within a short time, generally not more than a few days after you have paid the broker for the shares of stock, you will receive your stock certificates and become a registered share owner in the company whose stock you have bought. It's as simple as that! However, when you receive your stock certificates, you should be certain to store them in a safe place. They should be well guarded against loss by fire or theft because they are difficult to replace.

In the next issue we will learn how stock purchase orders are filled and what fees are charged purchasers by those who perform these services.

Community Ambassador From Germany Visits General Electric This Week

Walter Peffekoven, of Bonn, Germany, who is spending two months in Fort Wayne under the auspices of the Fort Wayne Junior Chamber of Commerce's Community Ambassador Program, visited General Electric this week to see what makes American industry tick.

Twenty-two year old Walter spent the day touring the Wire Mill and parts of the Hermetic Motor Department. In excellent English, only touched with an accent, he asked and answered hundreds of questions. Under the program which provides for an exchange of young people between countries, Walter spends several days each with various families in Fort Wayne, plus a week on a farm near Decatur. His General Electric family was Mary and Russell Fox. Mary works in Bldg. 21 and her husband is a Bldg. 19-2 employee.

Now a student at an engineering college in Aachen, Germany, Walter hopes to become a civil engineer in another three and a half years. For the past three summers, his family "adopted" an American under the Community Ambassador Program. This year, he was one of those selected to represent Germany in the United States.

"I've never been homesick," he stated, "I scarcely feel like I'm in a foreign country, everyone is so good to me."

One of the highlights thus far in his American adventures was a week-end in Chicago. He saw a baseball game, which didn't impress him too much, and "Cine-rama," which he thought was wonderful. As for Chicago, Walter will take Fort Wayne. He claims he is not a city-type. He much prefers Fort Wayne which is the same size as his native Bonn.

One of his greatest impressions of America is how much people are able to buy on their wages. "Just a look at the cars on the streets shows you that," he commented. He also said that the average German has to work about 20 minutes for a loaf of bread. The average American only works half as long for his bread.

He couldn't find too many differences between Germans and Americans in their family way of life, but he noted that Americans are much more concerned with politics than Germans. "Germans may talk

Happy birthday greetings to Nona Hedges, who recently returned to our floor. . . . Blanche Kanning returned from vacation with some new and different earrings, namely miniature (?) bananas and strawberries. Audrey Oberley, at Blanche's request, attempted to shorten the bananas. The net result is one banana on each earring. . . . Marge Fowler was excited about her husband appearing on a TV sports program. Congratulations, and many more under par golf scores. . . . The Ernie Clarks visited Lawrence Schuster on their trek through Florida. They report he looks fine and sends a big "hello." Lawrence has a milk route and thoroughly enjoys it. . . . We welcome Ilean Young, Aylene Speice, Margaret Plummer, and Ruth Klopfenstein to our midst for a few days. . . . Dale Amstutz believes in keeping his soda pop cool, even the empties. It seems his little daughter capped a couple empties and Dale innocently put them in the freezer unit. ## Cafeteria Favorites

Beef Stew is the tasty dish that Frances Kipfer, Broadway cafeteria cook, is preparing.

BEEF STEW

1½ lb. cut beef for stew	1 cup cut celery
2 Tbs. ground suet	1 cup cut carrots
½ cup tomato puree	1 cup cut onions
4 cups boiling water	2 cups cut potatoes

(Cut the celery carrots, onions, and potatoes in 1-inch lengths.)

Melt the suet in a heavy pan or dutch oven. Add the meat and brown lightly. Add 3 cups of water, puree, and salt. Cook over low heat 1½ hours. Add celery, carrots, and 1 cup water. Boil 15 minutes. Then add potatoes and onions. Cook 25 minutes longer or until potatoes and onions are done.

Thicken with white sauce made with 2 tablespoons flour and ½ cup milk. Makes 8 servings.

a lot about politics," he said, "but they don't really care what the politicians do." However, he added that West Germans aren't the least bit interested in Communism. In fact, communists are a joke to them. "We live too close to them," he explained. "We know what a Communist government is like."

Al Ralston spent his vacation seeing the sights of fabulous New York City. It was reported that a squirrel chased him clear across Central Park! . . . There were some casualties over vacation. It seems that Ewald Stinsmuehlen broke his wrist. We won't say how, but keep all sacks away from him. . . . Congratulations to Dorelyn Forde and to Jim Linzell who were both married on July 24. Not to each other, silly! Dorelyn is now Mrs. Richard Kessens; Jim is still Mr. Linzell. . . . Happy birthday to Blanche Mountz on August 11, to Wanda Hunt on August 12, and to Ife Holmes on August 15. . . . We are happy to welcome Donna Smith and Juanita Rhodes to the Switch Department. . . . Gladys Disler has been giving the Switch girls a lift for the past several weeks. Sorry to have you leave, Gladys. . . . Herb Lindberg caught a blue catfish in Canada over vacation. It is reported to have been 29 inches long. Ask Herb for further details if he isn't too hoarse from telling everyone about it. . . . Everybody is getting itchy for bowling to start again. There have even been reports of practice sessions already. . . . Walt Niemeyer got lonesome for his in-laws, so he went to St. Petersburg, Fla., over vacation. He was supposed to stay here and paint his "ranch" instead. . . . Clarence Weist took a trip to Michigan and Wisconsin. Maybe that's the reason he didn't make it Monday, he had to rest. Do you suppose it could be that car? . . . Johnnie Burnett was another lucky one who went to Florida. . . . Congratulations to Myrna Foor who was also married over vacation. . . . Katy Auker was grandma again. This time it was a girl, her first granddaughter. Congratulations! . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brown went to Florida on their vacation. Ray, everyone is wondering what sort of places you visited in Key West! After seeing Florida, Ray reports he is ready to retire. . . . Louise Lamboley and her family visited a glass factory in West Virginia. So for any glass blowing you want done, be sure to contact Louise. . . . Mary Ensley was at Lake Erie. It certainly sounds as if she had a wonderful time. . . . Cecelia Sidner tried to see which was the harder, a brick wall or her head. She wound up in the hospital. . . . Rosie Koons spent her vacation loafing at Lake of the Woods. . . . Florence Schloner flew to South Carolina. We hope she was in a plane. . . . John Mann was on duty at the new cemetery. Burrrrrr! . . . Mabelle (always in a hurry) Curry is now in a home of her own on the coolest street in town. . . . Dick Didion went north with his new bride. . . . A belated birthday wish to Ray Bobay on July 22. Sorry, Ray. . . . Margaret Cowan spent her vacation with her parents in the Black Hills. . . . Carl Reynolds worked during vacation. We think he deserves a medal or something! Our sympathy to Carl at the death of his sister-in-law. . . . We hope Cliff Witham will soon be back with us. He has been off because of illness. . . . As we go to press, all of the score cards aren't in yet, but we know that Ife Holmes will do us proud in the City Golf Tournament. . . . Among the others who went to California are Becky Lisle and Dorothy Money. We all went a different way, but we all had a wonderful time. . . . Fred Campbell spent his vacation at home. We are beginning to think he is one of the really smart ones. At least he didn't come back to work tired and broke!

Three New Appointments Announced In Winter St. Manufacturing Section

Three Small Integral Motor appointments have been announced by Oscar L. Weitzman, manager of manufacturing. Robert W. Branning has been appointed foreman of second shift operations. Paul C. Carter has been named supervisor of plant protection and office facilities. John J. Mosley has been appointed supervisor of production in the production unit of the materials section.

In 1940 Mr. Branning came to the company and entered the Apprentice School. After graduation from the machinist-toolmaker course in 1943 he became a toolmaker at Taylor St. The following year he entered the U. S. Navy. When he was discharged from the Service in 1946, he returned to the company and went to the toolroom in Bldg. 26-5. He transferred to Winter St. in 1952 as a toolmaker and had this position until his present appointment.

Mr. Branning is past president of the Apprentice Alumni Association and a member of the GE War Veterans Association. The Brannings and their two children reside at 1508 Park Ave.

Paul C. Carter

Mr. Carter came to GE in 1929 and worked at the Winter St. Plant as a finisher. He had various jobs in that location and in 1940 went into planning in plant engineering. In 1950 he became a guard and had this job until his present appointment.

Mr. Carter is also chief of the Volunteer Fire Department at Winter St. He is a member of the Quarter Century Club. The Carters, who have three daughters, reside at 517 Lawton Place.

John J. Mosley

When he came to the company in 1947, Mr. Mosley became a schedule clerk at the San Jose plant. The next year he became a leader in order service and in 1949 was named supervisor of order service and customer billing at San Jose. This was his job until his present appointment.

From May, 1941, until September, 1945, Mr. Mosley served in the U. S. Navy. He spent 52 months in the American, European, and Pacific theaters of action. He is a member of the Supervisors Club. Mr. and Mrs. Mosley have three children and live at 340 W. Maple Grove.

Herb Mennewisch still doesn't have all the sand removed from under his fingernails after digging for buried goodies on Treasure Island in Florida for three weeks. . . . After the report last week of Ross Cohagen getting arrested for going 70 mph in New Mexico everyone wants to know where the long slope down hill is located. It might be considered as the new site for the soap box derby. . . . Carl Mosser is having his painting troubles. Exery time he even thinks about painting, it rains. . . . Norm Jackemeyer finally gave in and bought a TV set. Then he went all out and got all new living room furniture to match. . . . Leland Richardson sure is slipping. He can't catch his own fish so he accepted a mess of bluegills and trout from Bob Mosshammer. We wonder who gave them to Bob. . . . Ross Cohagen came to work in a brand new shop apron, the last one, he says, he's going to buy. His next purchase is going to be shorts for sunny California. Better take along some hip boots for those dewy days, Ross. . . . Henry Nagel retired from the company on August 1. We all wish you many happy years of retirement, Henry, and hope to see you back for a visit now and then. . . . The boys in Bldg. 19-4 welcome Bob Sowards back to the vertical mill from the Perfect Building. . . . Also, welcome back to the department to Richard McNiece from Bldg. 31. Dick is working with D. Bartle in the Special Machine Section. . . . Purl Shoeff and his wife and party report a real fisherman's paradise at Spider Lake in Minnesota. Purl said they got their limit every day and brought back a swell bunch of pike, bass, and crappies. All of you frustrated fishermen better follow Purl next year. . . . Don Alcott blew out a tire on the last leg of his 1,300 mile vacation trip. That was all the coaxing he needed and he turned in the old faithful bus and is now driving a '51 Olds. . . . Ken Brown returned to work after a bout with the flu last week. . . . Gordon Yaeger installed a set of dual pipes on his Olds over the week-end. He says milling the heads comes next and then he's going to give the drag races a try. Gene Mittermaier took the Packard to the drag races Sunday and it was a dead heat in competition with a '41 Pontiac. . . . Donna Cupp has taken over the secretarial duties for the machine design unit. . . . Frank Druhot and George Hartman returned from three weeks of vacation looking fit as a fiddle. . . . Gus Mittermaier is also back from a trip through Colorado, Utah, and Nevada, and reports he coasted up all the mountains in overdrive in his "mountain-flattening" Studebaker. . . . Lowell Welker was so interested in having everything ready for the start of his third week vacation that he took off a day early to be sure he'd get everything done. . . . Hershel Odier is also taking his third week this week. . . . Anyone interested in Michigan peaches should contact Hayden Rice. There may be a follow-up story on this later. . . . Be a careful driver; safety is no accident.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

Welcome aboard to Audrey Rice, Kaye Schadenhaufen, and Pat Fuhrman. Good luck to you girls on your new jobs. Hope you enjoy working with us. . . . Wilma Niernan returned to work this morning after spending her honeymoon in Wisconsin. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Thelma Hamilton, and greetings to Peggy Ford today, and to Joan Schuhler tomorrow. Many more happy birthdays, girls. . . . The person you saw flying down town Wednesday night just about closing time was Evelyn Mayfield. She was in a hurry to show some toys, so she could spend her evening playing with them. . . . Dorothy Long-Sharon Shearer, and Jean Hockenberry have found out that it isn't only the youngsters who spill things while eating in the car. What was the matter girls, haven't you learned your table manners yet? . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ray Turnbaugh of Bad Axe, Mich., are the proud parents of a baby boy born August 10, named Kevin Duane. Edna Turnbaugh was a former employee. . . . For the next two weeks I'll think of all you folks while I'm driving along the highways of Michigan and Wisconsin.

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Yes, the night wind is gradually blowing out in Section 17, only a few of us left. We wish all who have left us the best of luck wherever you are, and hope you all get a good job. . . . Congratulations to all who had birthdays since vacation. . . . We all had a wonderful time on our Elex tour, and are looking forward to another next year. . . . Bob Hull, foreman of Section 17-660, went home ill last week. We wish him a speedy recovery. . . . Did you know we had a couple of movie stars in our division? Morrie Siples and Dale Brown came down the aisle last week and one of the girls from the 21 frame line remarked, "There go Liberace and George." Morrie as Liberace and Dale as George. . . . Audrey Brindle has left us on a leave of absence. Audrey is fond of bananas and has them in her lunch often. She says now she won't have to eat bananas every day for a while. Well anyway, Audrey, we hope to see you back soon. . . . Mable Altimus is in the hospital for an operation. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

Well, two more leagues climbed into coffins until next May, but one didn't give up without a ding dong struggle. The Pros of the Monday evening league repeated as champions. The Charlie Briggs section of the Monday gang presented an altogether different story. Wire Mill is the new champ.

Monday Afternoon

One hour after the league action had been completed, a jubilant Wire Mill team thinking they had won the league crown by a single point over their arch rivals, the Putters, found their happiness was just a little premature. An error had been discovered on a score card of the Putter opponents, the Transformer team. This single stroke threw the Wire Mill and the Putters into a tie with an 18-hole playoff in the offing to decide the champ.

To gain the tie, the Putters beat Transformer by 12 points while the Wire Mill lads picked up only three at the expense of the Divoteers. Both wound up with a plus 55 for the season's play. The other match was anti-climax with the Highballs winning over the Financials by three.

The 18-hole struggle led by crafty Ray Hills, the Wire Pullers pulled out all the stops and dumped their rivals by eight on top of an eight-point spot. Hills carded the best nine and 18-hole scores that I can ever remember in any GE Club league. (Correct me if I am wrong.) A very beautiful 33-37-70, two under par for the Brookwood layout. Jack Steel also of the Mill team evened par with a 72 to aid in the win. Tony Wichman was low for the losing Putters in carding an 81.

Par out	544-443-534-36

That, boys and girls, is beautiful golf.

Monday Evening

It was the same old story in Denny Pease's Monday group. The champion Pros had so much daylight between them and the rest of the league that there was no contest from mid-season on. There were 57 points between the champs and the second place Dark Horses. Denny summed up the year's action like this. "That's it! Another year—new players—new thrills—same old champs. Old Pros never die, they—well, suit yourself."

Owl

The Snake Killers had a field day. Lou Barney shot a 52, Benny Penkul gathered a 45, and Johnny Stark came in with a 48. Golly, there must have been dead snakes all over the place.

In league action the Aces beat the Bozeys by a pair of points. The leading Eagles clipped the Birdies by three and the Hot Shots picked up an arm chair 10 spot on a forfeit win over the Pars.

MONDAY AFTERNOON (Final Standings)

Wire Mill	Plus 63
Putters	Plus 47
Divoteers	Minus 6
Financials	Minus 19
Highballs	Minus 31
Transformer	Minus 50

MONDAY EVENING (Final Standings)

Pros	Plus 67
Dark Horses	Plus 10
Turf Toppers	Plus 21
Rough Riders	Minus 2
Last Balls	Minus 4
Rovers	Minus 77

OWL

Eagles	Plus 45
Hot Shots	Plus 15
Pars	Plus 15
Birdies	Minus 4
Bozeys	Minus 37
Aces	Minus 40

Bowling Notes

Anyone interested in bowling in the Ladies' Monday Night League is asked to contact Ardyth Hawley, Section 417 Taylor St., Ext. 2641.

Women who would like to bowl in the Ladies' Friday Night League at 6 p.m. in the GE Club, should contact Bertie Koldewey, Ext. 531, or Ginny Mollet, Ext. 466.

Women who wish to bowl in the Tuesday Afternoon League at 3:30 p.m. in the GE Club may contact Edna Bailey, Ext. 307, or Mary Nute, Ext. 2798. Bowling starts Sept. 14. Beginners are welcome.

GE'S MAIN AUTO NINE WIN DISTRICT TOURNEY

GE's Main Auto League softball nine brought home the trophy from the ASA district tournament this week. The game which clinched the title for the boys was played at Ossian with the Republican Club. GE won 1 to 0 in nine innings.

Tommy Guy, pitching for GE, gave up only two hits and struck out 14 men. Not a runner got past second base. The winning run was scored by Jim Lehman when he homered in the ninth inning.

The team played in Warsaw last night in the regional tourney. Results were not available at press time. The regional winners will play at Zollner Stadium the end of August.

In other tournament games, GE defeated Wolf Lake, 3-2; Harlan, 3-0; and Zanesville, 3-2.

With the return of Guy who was injured early in the season, the GE nine have won the last eight games he has pitched.

Happy birthdays to Helen Kasen and Joey Baclawski on Sunday the 22nd., also to Harry William Balz on Wednesday, Aug. 25, also to Wade Reed on Aug. 20th, and Dan Geary on Aug. 25th. . . . We hear Ray Devere Jones is quite adept at water skiing. Next Sunday he proposes to use one ski. The show will be held at Dewart Lake if you're up that way. Let us know how you made it, Ray. . . . We offer our sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Poyser on the recent death of Mr. Poyser's father. . . . Welcome to Lew Klomp, new design engineer in Claude Voss's group. Lew is married and comes to us off test. He is a graduate of Michigan State College and has a BSME degree. . . . Congratulations to Millie Hartman and her husband who recently became the proud parents of a baby boy which they call Richard Allen. . . . Absent-Minded Professor: Herb Reitz is a loyal citizen of our fair city, paying his bills on time, etc., but what do you think of a guy who'd send a check to pay his light bill and later finds the bill itself still in his pocket? . . . And then we hear that Marge Murphy found herself at the table without silverware at the recent luncheon honoring Ruth Epperson. Ah well, it'll take a while for us to get back to normal after our vacation, eh? . . . We hope that by the time this is seen in print, we will have our boss, Ted Ross, back in his office. He picked up a nasty old germ while spending his vacation in the east and has been confined to his home with a virus infection. We do miss you very much, so please get well soon. . . . Quiz for the master minds: If you have two bottles, one holding three quarts and one holding seven quarts, how would you go about putting six quarts of water in the seven quart bottle. You do not have to use the same water you start with. How many steps will it take to accomplish this feat? For correct answer (if you need help) contact Lee Omspach. . . . We want to wish Geneva Buckmaster a fond farewell on her departure from the accounting section. Be sure you send us an announcement, Ginny. . . . Welcome to Shirley Roman who is taking Geneva's place. . . . We can tell by the look on Evelyn Campbell's face that another year has rolled around, huh Jude? Happy birthday, Evie! . . . Slowly

League Bowling to Open Sept. 13 on Club Alleys

The 1954-55 league bowling at the GE Club will open Monday, Sept. 13, Joe Kramer, Bldg. 6-11½A, bowling chairman, announced this week.

A total of 16 leagues will be rolling this season. This is one more than has been set up previously. The new league is the Squares League and will bowl at 8:30 p.m. Fridays.

There are still openings in the leagues for teams and keggers, the chairman reports. Those interested in joining a league or team should contact the league secretary which is listed below.

Further bowling information is available from Charlie Wilt, Ext. 742; Les Shroyer, Ext. 2112, or Mr. Kramer, Ext. 2180.

The 16 leagues, times of bowling, and secretaries are shown below.

Bowling League Schedule

but surely the vacationers are drifting back and with them come fabulous tales of their adventures and there will be pictures to prove it happened. Please don't use spray on the Catalpa tree in front of Lee Omspach's house to kill those little green worms. They were planted there for next year's bait. What sun bathed, freckled red-head claims the dubious distinction of catching seven bluegills and one bass on one-half of a catalpa worm, cut and prepared to her own formula? . . . A letter from Laddie Petrucha states that he is well, not losing weight (it's just shifting position), hopes to have the world problems settled, and be back at GE in short order. . . . Welcome to Charles Dodd, a draftsman working for J. C. Dur-ye. We all hope you will like working here.

Butie? . . . Anyone wanting to know about bargains on baked hams see Phil Burney. It seems he purchased some while on his vacation. . . . I want to correct an error I made in last week's column. It was Everett Harris, instead of Kenny Hart who went to the Grand Old Opry, during vacation. I did hear though that Kenny Hart does have a new TV set. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Floyd Wygant, the dispatcher in Mr. Wagner's office, who had a heart attack. He is now at home and his address is R. R. No. 2, Roanoke. . . . Welcome to Gene Wittacker who is helping out in Mr. Wagner's office for a while. . . . Oddity: The other day Elmer Wagner went out in his yard to check on his rhubarb and found cucumbers growing along with them. He has no explanation. . . . Leland Brown has a new TV set. As his wife is boss on the inside of the house she chose one on a revolving table. Brownie seems real pleased with the set though. . . . Question of the week: What were Ray Williams and Elmer Schoenlein looking at the other morning?

He: "Do you use toothpaste?" She: "No. My teeth aren't loose."

We had a visitor last week, Hank Beusching who used to work in the sheet metal section. It looks like a life of retirement is agreeing with him. . . . Has anyone seen Doug Heckman and his new red

Vets, Squares Pace League On Two Wins

Action in the Interdepartment Softball League got under way last week after a three-week rest due to vacation and one rained-out session. The Vets and Squares kept their pace by winning their second game each in the second half of play.

A real struggle turned up between the Works Lab and Apprentice School and the game ended in an 8 to 8 tie. Darkness halted the game. Both teams got off to a shaky start with most of the runs scored in the early innings as the boys made a few errors.

The Test Engineers broke into the win column with a victory over the Apparatus Sales Trainees. Don Beall, a new southpaw pitcher for the TE's, pitched fine ball. He struck out 6 of the 14 men he faced and gave up 1 hit. Ken Frankenstein hit a homer for the TE's. The final score was 24 to 0.

Hitting freely, the Squares scored a 14 to 2 win over the MTP's, who lost some of their players due to transfers to other plants. Carl and Junk hit home runs for the Squares.

The GE Vets won a 9 to 0 forfeit game from Winter St. Only 6 players from Winter St. appeared.

For Summer Comfort... LET YOUR CONFIDENCE BE YOUR GUIDE

Summer is an ideal time to check your needs for better living and year-round comfort. Maybe the kitchen needs a new refrigerator, electric range or washer. When it gets hot and sticky around the house, what wouldn't you give for one of those attractive, quiet G-E room air conditioners, or better yet, a complete unit which cools the entire house in the summer and heats to your comfort during the cold weather?

Now's the time to do something about the heat. The liberal G-E Employee Sales Plan makes it possible for you to enjoy real summer comfort this very week—and at a cost less than you might think! You'll want to see the new line of G-E appliances and air conditioning units to help you plan.

Whether you buy one or all of the items illustrated, now or later, remember, for real dependable comfort—let your confidence be your guide. Buy G.E.

Your Employee Store Manager will be happy to give you all the details about where and how you can buy the G-E products shown, as well as the many others that help make summer living a "breeze".

ROOM AIR CONDITIONER

all summer long!*

COOL, quiet comfort is yours with this wonderful G-E Air Conditioner. It's quiet as a kitten, a honey for handsome appearances... as easy to operate as tuning your radio. ENJOY the finest air conditioning right in your own home—a quiet, filter-fresh, delightfully cool atmosphere. Get yours today and beat the heat.

G-E KITCHEN

The most important room in your home—your kitchen-laundry

IT'S WONDERFUL LIVING—easier living surrounded by a wonderland of work-saving conveniences you'll find in G-E Appliances. And, your new kitchen-laundry can be as beautiful as the one shown.

YEAR-ROUND AIR CONDITIONER

G-E Year-Round Air Conditioner cools your entire home in summer—heats it in winter—automatically!

WHAT A WONDERFUL WAY TO LIVE!

In summer, you'll sleep cool—even on the muggiest nights. You can bake, iron, entertain, even on the hottest days—and enjoy it! In winter, you'll enjoy uniform warmth, floor to ceiling, room to room. No furnace-tending, less cleaning.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leifheit on the arrival of Lisa Joan, weight 9 lbs. and 10 ounces. Walt reports both mother and daughter are doing nicely. . . . Transferring this week to Joe Horan's section, Broadway, are Dan Bryan, Dick Cox, and Dick Strain. Dick Burt leaves us this week for Lynn, Mass. . . . Bob Lund is the recent arrival in the Accounting Section. Bob is a University of Wisconsin graduate and is on the Business Training Course. . . . Best wishes to Jean Weist and Paul Hendricks, recently engaged. Such a pretty ring! . . . Does anyone know of a little yellow Angora kitten that would like a good home? Ginger, Marile Oetting's kitty-cat, failed to yield the right-of-way to a car recently and is now deceased! . . . We continue to receive vacation reports. Barbara Haley had a grand week at Lake Manitou. Her companion was Janice Huff of Huntington, who formerly worked in Accounts Payable. . . . The girls in accounting are still talking about the potluck they enjoyed during the shutdown. From all reports the food was really "super." If you doubt this you might ask Bill Liehtenstiger. We understand he was really well repaid for carrying in Hazel's two pecan pies. . . . This idea of bringing in food really appealed to Carolyn Wyatt. So much so that she is now the owner of a new completely equipped lunch bag. . . . Mary Wells didn't get very far away from home on her three weeks' vacation. However, every time she and Mel gaze out their back door there is that big barn bright and shiny under a new roof and 59 gallons of white paint! . . . Leola Johnson has a ear only for the telephone these days. Donald Nelson is expected back from Korea. . . . Thelma Bentley moved into her new home. Now when is the housewarming? . . . Louis Brunner will be with the Employee Relations Section for the next three months. . . . R. D. Abraham and G. D. Rout returned from the Pacific Northwest with some descriptive reports of salmon fishing in the Puget Sound. They could hardly be scoffed at as they brought back a 16 pound king salmon as proof. Last words: "Had to take the smallest one as trunk space was at a premium." . . . Welcome to John Cernius who hails from Flint, Mich. He is a graduate from Dartmouth College, and is single. . . . Harold Buck moved into his new home on Fairfield. . . . Nancy Grosh had quite a time on her vacation. It seems she and her mother went somewhere on the other side of Hometown. When they got there her dog jumped out of the car and they didn't miss her until that evening when they were back home. So the next day they drove back again, and who should come prancing down the road, none other than her dog. Next time Nancy better watch her a little closer. . . . Jack Sheak's wife was in the hospital during vacation for an emergency operation. Hope she is feeling better, Jack.

APPRENTICE BROADCAST

by Charles Wilson and Ronald Young

Fore! That was the signal for the apprentice golf league to resume action after a two-week lay-off. The race for first place is still very close, with only a few points separating the leaders and last place, and only one more week of play remaining. . . . Welcome to the new apprentices. Drafting James Smith, Frederick Weidemann, and Harry Wild, Jr., and on the machinist-toolmaker course are David Frazier and William Eisberg, Jr. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Crews on the arrival of a baby daughter. . . . Coming back to Bldg. 12-2 this week are: Frank Miller, Mahlon Hutchison, Max Gollmer, Dean Hardy, and Ben Conner. Welcome back, fellows. . . . Ed Sharp left for Winter St. along with a number of other fellows going to new assignments. Stan Reidenbach went to Taylor St.; Carl Hauke, to Bldg. 4-1, and Jim Webber went to Bldg. 4-4. George Bice and Ron Young went to the Die Plant. . . . Dick Putnam is getting to be quite a shot on the golf course. It seems when Dick yelled, the fellow in front turned the wrong way and was beamed. No one was injured though. . . . NOTICE: A misprint in last week's column listed Ned Spehger and Charlie Wilson as proud papas instead of happy newlyweds. Sorry!

Five Acts Booked for 40th Q-C Outing

HAPPY HALL

Reservation Deadline Today For Elex State Fair Jaunt

Today is the deadline for making reservations for the Elex Club sponsored one-day trip to the Indiana State Fair, Saturday, Sept. 4. Price of the bus trip, which is open to members only, is 50 cents per person.

Reservations may be made with contact girls, at the Women's Activities offices, Bldg. 18-1 or Taylor St., or with Voyce Brumbaugh, Winter St. There are no more tickets available for the Eddie Fisher show to be presented the evening of Sept. 4 at the fair. However, members who have not secured these tickets and wish to do so may at the fair.

Admission tickets to the fair are available through Elex for 40 cents per person. They will be sold on the special buses as the members make their trip to Indianapolis. Admission tickets will be available at the fairgrounds also, but will cost 60 cents per person there.

Members are reminded that they should take their membership cards along with their bus tickets when beginning the trip. One member will be in charge of each bus. After arriving at the fair, members will be on their own to do as they wish and see as many of the exhibits, shows, and parades as they wish.

Those who plan to take the trip should meet at Lindley Avenue across from the Lindley parking lot at 6 a.m. sharp Sept. 4. Special chartered buses will be at this location to take the girls to Indianapolis. Members who wish to drive to the bus may leave their automobiles in the Lindley lot during the day of Sept. 4 and then pick them up when they return from the fair that evening.

JOAN BECOMES BRAD'S SECRETARY—Employing one's wife as a secretary would almost inevitably lead to chaos, but when the lady happens to be as unpredictable as Joan Davis the results can be catastrophic. This is adequately demonstrated on the Wednesday, August 25, telecast of "I Married Joan" over WKJG-TV at 7 p.m., CDT. The program was first presented Dec. 9, 1953.

When dignified Judge Bradley Stevens (Jim Backus) decides to hire a secretary and his wife shows up for the job he is determined to show her how difficult the duties can be.

Joan manages to foul things up from the start. Ordered to put a certified check for $10,000 in the safe, she discovers later that she's locked the safe without putting in the check. She takes it home, hides it, and promptly forgets where it's hidden.

Finally, Joan locates the check and places it in a book, which Brad returns to the public library. The panic really is on when Joan, her sister Beverly (Beverly Wills) and everyone who can be recruited start a frenzied search for the check amid a mountainous pile of books in the library.

Five professional entertainment acts will be booked for the 40th anniversary Quarter Century Club outing, Saturday, Sept. 11, at Franke Park, Gordon L. Smith, entertainment chairman, reported this week. The entertainment program will be presented in the Open Air Theater.

Two of the acts which have been booked are "The Chicagoans" and "Happy Hall." The Chicagoans are an outstanding barbershop quartet which has won many firsts in state competitions. They have appeared professionally throughout the country. Happy Hall, billed as "The Roller Dyn-O-Wiz of Taps," is a versatile performer who presents a fast-moving program. He has appeared at leading hotels and theaters in the United States. The other acts will be announced later.

All employees who will have completed at least 25 years of service with General Electric by the end of 1954 are eligible to and are invited to attend the outing. Invitations were sent to approximately 2700 members and those who will become members this year. Along with the invitations, ballots for the election of officers for the 1955 year were sent. The deadline for returning reservations and ballots is Wednesday, Aug. 25. They should be returned to G. Ray Lindemuth, secretary, Bldg. 18-5.

If any member, active employee or retired, has not received his invitation and ballot yet, he should contact Mr. Lindemuth to secure one.

Candidates for office in the election are:

Edward J. O'Neil, Bldg. 8-2.

THE CHICAGOANS

Foreman's Association to Stage Picnic at Robinson Park

Saturday, Aug. 28, members of the Foremen's Association will stage a picnic at Robinson Park on the Leo Rd., William Rodecker, vice president and chairman of the event, announced this week.

The picnic will give both first and second shift members an opportunity to get acquainted.

Opening at 11 a.m. it will continue until 6 p.m. lunch and refreshments will be served. Entertainment will be provided also.

Reservations are $1 per person and may be made with contact men. Assisting the chairman with arrangements are Kenneth Hyman, Bldg. 17-2; Neil Allen, Bldg. 4-1; Freeman Rohlfing, Bldg. 26-1, and Carl Hattendorf, Bldg. 17-4.

The event opens the organization's fall and winter season of activities.

They had to wait until they got to old Mexico to find out that bit of advice. . . . We are still looking for our cards that Luella Knoche sent while on her trip. She sent them air mail. . . . Here we have Cheryl Lynn Smith having a tete-a-tete with Francis the talking mule. Cheryl Lynn is the granddaughter of Ruth Lemert. They stopped at the studio in Hollywood. . . . ## Lock That Car!

Employees using company parking lots are asked to be sure that their automobiles are locked when they leave them on the lots. A. R. Vegalues, chief of plant protection, announced this week. In addition to locking the doors, they should lock the glove compartments and trunks, he stated.

Recently some automobiles that were left unlocked were entered by children playing in the parking lots and this week vandalism and looting occurred in the Fairfield lots. Property from the automobiles was stolen and strewn about. The three youngsters who were caught performing the looting and vandalism were questioned and detained by the Police Juvenile Aid Division.

Elex Membership Drive Starts Sept. 7

Q-C MUSICAL CAPERS—Getting in tune for the Quarter Century Club outing Sept. 11 are Q-C musicians who will perform at the event. From top to bottom are: Earl Gebert, Bldg. 4-2, piano; Jim Fay, Bldg. 31-1, trumpet; Glen Miller, Taylor St., saxophone; Ray Kreigh, Bldg. 8-1, drums; Dale Weaver, Winter St., string bass, and Chick Abbott, Bldg. 19-4, guitar. Bernie English, Bldg. 6-2, is chairman of the orchestra committee.

Reservations Hit New High For Quarter Century Outing

Soaring to a new high, reservations for the Quarter Century Club outing reached 1922 this week, Wallace E. Beer, president, reported. Last year's outing brought 1635 reservations.

Celebrating the 40th anniversary of the organization, the outing will take place Saturday, Sept. 11 at Franke Park and is open only to members of the QC Club and those who will become members before the end of 1954.

With interest mounting in the "Green Thumb" gourd and pumpkin contest, prizes to be awarded were announced this week. First, second, and third place prize ribbons and cash prizes of $5, $3, and $2 will be awarded five classes of gourds: largest gourd, smallest gourd, most unusual gourd, group arrangements of large gourds, and group arrangements of smallest gourds.

Also ribbons and cash prizes of $10, $5, and $3 will go to the owner of the first, second, and third heaviest pumpkin.

The contest is open to retired employees who are QC members. They were sent gourd and pumpkin seeds earlier this year and will take the results of their gardening efforts to the outing. Reports from many of these members indicate that they are looking forward to the contest and eyeing the first places. One member sent word that he would be unable to attend the outing but plans to enter his gourds nevertheless.

Al Mettler, retired employee, has been appointed chairman of the

"Our Best Drive in '55" is the slogan Elex Club has set up for its 1954-55 membership drive which opens Tuesday, Sept. 7, and continues until Tuesday, Sept. 21.

The club year has been revised to extend from September, 1954, until May, 1955, and dues have been lowered to $2 per person for this year only. Elex will open its new year with the Purdue Glee Club under the direction of Al Stewart Oct. 11 at the GE Club.

Other activities which have been slated for members during the coming club year include a candle-light tea at the Women's Club, style show, theater party, book review by Kathryn Turney Garten, Christmas party and gift for each member attending, mother and daughter party with a gift for mothers, supper meeting with varied programs, and excursions during the year.

Contact girls will have flyers outlining the club's coming activities and membership cards. They will see women employees in their sections during the drive. Women employees who wish to join may also do so at the Women's Activities offices at Broadway, Bldg. 18-1 or at Taylor St. or with Joyce Brumbaugh, Winter St., president of the club.

According to the club constitution, membership for all persons on payroll closes October 1. Only those persons off for lack of work or on a leave of absence may join after that date. New employees will also be able to join.

The club will conduct its annual election of officers September 22, 23, and 24. All members will receive ballots. The new officers will be installed October 2 and then the club will open its fall activities October 11.

STARTING A NEW YEAR—With the opening of the Elex Club membership drive coming up September 7, Elex contact girls Georgette Hetzel, Bldg. 26-2, and Mabel Fisher, Bldg. 6-3, count out membership cards and flyers for all contact girls to distribute to women employees.

Gov. George N. Craig to Welcome 400 Elex Members at State Fair

The Governor of Indiana, George N. Craig, will personally welcome the 400 Elex members who are taking the one-day trip to the Indiana State Fair Saturday, Sept. 4. He will greet the Elexers when they arrive at the fairgrounds.

Traveling in 10 chartered buses, the group will have a state trooper escort from Noblesville to Indianapolis city limits and a motorcycle escort from there to the fairgrounds.

Members taking the trip are asked to be at Lindley Ave. across from the parking lot at 6 a.m. sharp Sept. 4. After loading, the buses will go to Huntington to pick up girls from that area taking the trip and then go non-stop to the fairgrounds. Admission tickets to the fairgrounds, which are 40 cents per person, will be sold on the buses. Members are asked to have the correct change for the tickets. Everyone taking the trip should have her membership card along with the bus ticket when she goes to the buses.

After a day packed with activities at the fair, including the

God Left the Challenge in the Earth

When God made the Earth, He could have finished it. But He didn't. Instead, He left it as a raw material—to tease us, to tantalize us, to set us thinking and experimenting and risking and adventuring! And therein we find our supreme interest in living.

Have you ever noticed that small children in a nursery will ignore clever mechanical toys in order to build, with spools and strings and sticks and blocks, a world of their own imagination?

And so with grown-ups, too. God gave us a world unfinished, so that we might share in the joys and satisfactions of creation.

He left oil in Trenton rock.

He left the aluminum in the clay.

He left electricity in the clouds.

He left the rivers un-bridged—and the mountains un-trailed.

He left the forests un-felled and the cities un-built.

He left the laboratories un-opened.

He left the diamonds un-cut.

He gave us the challenge of raw materials, not the satisfaction of perfect, finished things.

He left the music un-sung and the dramas un-played.

He left the poetry un-dreamed, in order that men and women might not become bored, but engage in stimulating, exciting, creative activities that keep them thinking, working, experimenting, and experiencing all the joys and durable satisfactions of achievement.

A man in Florida turned a miserable old green-water swamp, mosquito-infested and snake-inhabited, into a beautiful garden.

Once a sanctimonious visitor, who was inspecting it, exclaimed, "Oh, dear brother, what a beautiful garden you and the Lord have made from that swamp!"

"Yes," came the reply, "but you should have seen it when the Lord had it all by Himself!"

So it is with all the world. There is no Shangri-La where our every want can be supplied by wishing. There is no substance to the philosophy of "getting by." There is nothing worth while gained by chance.

Work, thought, creation. These give life its stimulus, its real satisfaction, its intriguing value.

In Oberlin, Ohio, there is a woodshed, and by the woodshed, a grave. There lies Charles Martin Hall. For years he experimented in that woodshed on how to get aluminum out of clay at less than the then market price of $500 a pound. He risked his time and money. He suffered discouragement after discouragement. But when at last he found the way, he created an industry which today employs a quarter million workers.

Each year thousands of high school and college graduates leave their study halls to seek jobs. A few with ability to experiment will accept the challenge of raw material as did Charles Martin Hall. In realizing their dreams they will enlist the support of others with faith in them and the courage to back that faith, at the risk of their savings, through periods of discouragement and disappointment. Then management know-how will translate those dreams into buildings, machinery, stable jobs—to make life better for all Americans.

That is how our nation has progressed from a wilderness frontier. That is how we will reach a standard of world civilization yet undreamed.

Progress comes, not by some magic word and not by government edict, but from the thoughts, the toil, the tears, the triumphs of individuals who accept the challenge of raw material—and by the grace of God-given talents produce results which satisfy the needs of men.

—Dr. Allan A. Stockdale.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

Happy birthday greetings to Francis Miller and Ruth Sorg who will be celebrating within the next few days. . . . Evelyn Mayfield is spending her last week's vacation just resting at home. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Jean Hockenberry's little boy who had the misfortune of running a splinter under his toe nail while swimming Sunday at the lake. . . . Max Biggs has found it is a lot cheaper to ride with one foot on the brake. Hope you are feeling better, Max. . . . Peggy Ford is getting younger each year on her birthday. She got a box of balloons, penny candy, ice cream cones, and toys. Better be careful next year, Peg, it may be a baby bottle. . . . He who laughs last usually laughs hardest. This wasn't the case with Ruth Sorg. When we thought she'd be sailing along the highways of Michigan on Monday morning, we found she hadn't even started her vacation. She was still occupying the same old chair. We knew you were one of the pillars during the shutdown, but we didn't realize you were still holding the place up.

SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlaffen

Did you know that Carl Reynolds locked himself out of his car at a ball game recently, and someone had to take him home to get another set of keys? . . . Dorelyn Kessens promises not to be one of the "crew cut" girls. . . . Cliff Bieber is an adviser for Junior Achievement from GE. Quite an honor, don't you think? . . . Why is Keith Kalb making so many trips evenings out to that wild stretch of farmland west of Waynedale? . . . Have you noticed Louis Shattuck's new specs? Pretty sharp! . . . Herb Lindenberg's fish are beginning to smell as bad as his fish stories. Maybe Herb thinks no one believes him any more. . . . We want to welcome Stan Reidenback, our new apprentice, to the tool room. Also, good-by and good luck to Kenny Johnson who is going back to school. . . . Now that vacation is over, and we have returned to a more normal way of living, it would be well to reconsider some of the things we did and saw. A fish is always bigger coming in

TIPS ON KEEPING COOL

A lousy feeling during periods of high temperatures may be caused by not eating properly. Eat three regular but not large meals a day and try to include a helping of meat, cheese, eggs, fish, poultry or milk at each one. Your body will have less difficulty digesting food, and you'll remain cooler, if you avoid tremendous meals.

* * *

Your body's "cooling" system will need more water to perform efficiently when temperatures soar. Be sure to drink adequate amounts. Only under extreme conditions are salt tablets necessary. They are made available to employees on those jobs where excessive perspiration eliminates a lot of salt or depletes the body salt. In ordinary circumstances, get your extra salt on your food. It is more palatable this way.

* * *

Adequate sleep is very important even in hot weather. Move your bed away from the walls. Walls absorb the day time heat and give it off at night. If you can put your bed in a room with cross ventilation, by all means do so. If you use a fan, never let it blow directly on you. Place it where it can do the best job of circulating the air. Consider installing an attic fan. It will keep your home degrees cooler during sleeping hours.

* * *

Alcohol and soft drinks are packed with calories. Even gin and tonic and Tom Collins drinks in quantities will make you much hotter. You'll feel better and keep cooler if you consume alcohol and all soft drinks in moderation only. Some people swear by hot tea as a summer time drink. Try it and see what you think. And remember the popularity of lemonade as a summer time drink is not mere coincidence. It provides Vitamin C, more necessary than usual to your body in hot weather.

* * *

Cooling colognes, witch hazel, or even water splashed on your skin will help to keep you cool. They help along your body's natural cooling system which operates through evaporation.

Above all don't fret and worry about the heat. Worry of any kind will only make you hotter. The summer is no time to worry about or get angry about the weather or any other problem. Try to keep busy, to at least occupy your mind. You have survived such or worse ordeals many times and will again.

Good-by and good luck, girls. . . . Happy birthday to Juanita Rhodes August 23. . . . Judy Lehman says he has lost all faith in fish. It seems they just won't cooperate with him any more. . . . Glenn MacNamara is on vacation this week. We hope you're having fun, Mac. . . . Cliff Witham underwent surgery Aug. 23. We hope he is feeling much better by now. . . . Fred Campbell has moved into his new home in Ludwig Park. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. Vern Daseler followed the golf tournament around the greens. . . . Anyone having scrap lumber, no matter how small or large the pieces, see Bill Lavine. He will buy them so long as they are thoroughly soaked with water. Bill says they must be wet so all the house can shrink the same when it dries out.

Primer on Communism: No. 16

What About Communists And American Negroes?

The Communist party in the United States poses as a militant champion of Negroes but most Negroes have shunned it. A prime aim of Communists has been to build up racial grievances into violence. Their first strategy was to turn Negro against Negro—factory workers against the middle class and the handful of capitalists. This ignored the fact that the bulk of the Negro population is on farms.

Next, Russia decreed that Communists should weld all Negroes into a block. Since then the tune has changed several times, approximately following the regular party line. At present Communists thump the tub for Negroes to "stop Wall Street imperialism," meaning let Russia pursue its conquests without opposition.

D. A. Hamilton Named Product Planner in SIM Marketing

David A. Hamilton has been appointed product planner in Small Integral Motor marketing, L. Dean Fowler, manager of marketing, announced this week.

In 1941 Mr. Hamilton joined GE and entered the Test Engineers Program at the Cleveland office. Later he went to Schenectady where he completed the program. He became a requisition engineer in the Industrial Control Department in 1943 and later went into the Commercial Department.

David A. Hamilton

After transferring to the Induction Motor Department in 1946, Mr. Hamilton became a sales engineer. He moved to the GE Supply Corp. at Indianapolis in 1947 and was a power apparatus specialist in that location prior to his present assignment.

A graduate of Ohio University, Mr. Hamilton received his BSEE degree in 1941. He is a registered professional engineer in Indiana and is a member of the Supervisors Club and GE Squares. The Hamiltons and their three children reside at 3832 Hiawatha Blvd.

Future TV Screen, Thin as Painting Pictured in New Collier's Magazine

General Electric scientists envision the TV set of 1964 with a picture screen so thin that the complete unit could be hung like a painting on your living room wall. The circuitry would be built into the picture frame and would use printed wiring and miniaturized components. Controls would be located in a small box beside your easy chair.

The POW, or "picture on the wall" TV receiver is just a glint in the scientists' eyes at the moment. But they are convinced such a unit can be developed and have designed a dummy receiver to help visualize the future TV unit which is pictured in the current issue of Collier's Magazine. The article is entitled "Stereotronics—A New Science That Will Change Your Way of Life."

Of for those who might prefer a table model, the thin picture screen would be mounted like a vanity mirror, attached to slender arms extending upright from a small oblong cabinet which would house the circuitry and controls.

These futuristic models, at least 10 years off, would receive color as well as monochrome pictures.

As explained by Dr. Lloyd T. DeVore, manager of the GE Electronics Laboratory, the POW vision of the future stems from development work being done in Syracuse, N. Y., on new miniature electronic components, and from a complex project under way to speed the plotting of aircraft in military filter centers.

At present, this aircraft plotting, essential to successful interception of enemy planes, is done manually. The planes are followed by radar operators and information fed to plotters who pin-point the planes with crayon on the transparent wall-size plotting board.

The plotting would be done automatically with the POW type of board.

J. H. Staak Earns 3 More Patents

Jules H. Staak

Three patents were awarded Jules H. Staak, Bldg. 4-6, in July by the U. S. Patent Office. The patents are concerned with improvements in dynamo electrical machinery.

A graduate of Purdue University, Mr. Staak received his BS degree in electrical engineering in 1918. He has been with General Electric for 35 years and is a commercial engineer in the marketing section of Specialty Component Motor Department at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Staak, who have one son, reside at 2114 Dodge Ave.

GE Squares to Hold Beach Party at Pokagon

GE Squares Club members and their ladies will get together by the lakeshore for a beach party at Pokagon State Park beach tomorrow. Ted Briles, Winter St., is serving as general chairman of the event.

Beginning at 3 p.m. the party will include free food and free refreshments, the chairman stated. Reservations should be made with Mr. Briles.

Pokagon State Park is located about 45 miles north of Fort Wayne on Route 27.

6-4 AIRLINERS by Moe Satterthwaite

Fritz Krotke and Chuck Coffman went fishing last Friday evening after work. They were only going for a few hours, but when Chuck picked up Fritz, Fritz had a jacket, boots, fly rod, casting rod, and cane pole. Chuck said, "Why so much stuff, we're not going up into Canada, I gotta be home yet tonight?" Fritz said, "I want to be prepared." They started for Appleman Lake (Holly Mee's relation rents boats there.) They got there about 5:30, unloaded the car into the boat, shoved off from the bank, got almost to the center of the lake, and Fritz said "I don't think these oars match." (He kept hitting his fingers), and Chuck said "OK, let's go back and get the right ones, but while you're rowing back I'll do a little fishing." "Where are the worms?" They forgot to put them in the boat and they paid 50 cents a 100 for them plus a quarter tip. When they reached land someone had relieved them of the worms. They had a few night crawlers and after getting another set of oars started out

TE Club Plans 'Shipwreck' Party Tonight

Test Engineers Club members will entertain their friends at a "Shipwreck Party" this evening in the American Legion Post 47, Jerry Hurtgen, Taylor St., chairman of the event, announced.

Beginning at 8 p.m. the informal record dance will be an optional costume affair. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes and a "Miss Flotsam" and "Mr. Jetsam" will be crowned. Refreshments and snacks will be served.

Tickets are still available from contact men and may be obtained at the door this evening. They are $1.25 per couple.

New elected officers of the organization are: Al Munster, Bldg. 16-3, president; Hampton Rothwell, Bldg. 19-1, vice president; Frank Randolph, Bldg. 4-6, secretary; Dennis Peterschmit, Winter St., treasurer, and Jerry Hurtgen, social chairman.

Big Jim Jellison (left) smiles his appreciation for a large order of Tri-Clad "55's" he received from Jim Brehm, sales manager for Lancaster Pump & Manufacturing Co. Inc., Lancaster, Pa. Jack Honor (center), Philadelphia Office motor specialist, beams his feelings about the business. The order is the largest received to date from a pump manufacturer in the Philadelphia area. The motors will be used on a new line of pumps just off Lancaster Pump's design boards. So far this year, Jim, who worked in Fort Wayne from 1949 to 1951, has also gotten orders for Form G motors from this customer and expects to get more before the year ends. A graduate of Hermetic Motor Sales at Broadway and General AC Motor Sales at Taylor St., Jim has built up GE business with Lancaster Pump in Fort Wayne this year.

Charley Rice had his first airplane ride recently. When asked what he liked most about the trip, he said, "the stewardesses of course." . . . Our newest young mother, Barbara Houser, was in to see us this week and guess what she talked of most? Little Jan Denise, naturally. . . . If you don't see Elmer DeBolt around for a while, the chances are he has been arrested for car theft. Elmer was to take Joe Orbin's car to Winter St. on business. When he got out to the parking lot, he took the car with the keys in the lock, which happened to belong to Wally McKay. Wally thought his car had been stolen and called the police. You see, the cars are alike and how was poor Elmer to know the difference. Incidentally, let that be a lesson to all of you. DON'T LEAVE YOUR KEYS IN YOUR CAR. And that applies to you, too, Wally. Next time it might not be someone you know who takes your car. . . . Do you suppose the fellow at "Old Settlers Day" at Columbia City was kidding Virginia Philo when he guessed her age about seven years short? Anyway, Ginny got a prize and a lift to her ego besides. . . . This week we said good-bye to Laurel Winans, who went to the Hanna St. plant to work, and Joan Murphy returned after taking time out to add to the Murphy population. . . . It seems that Joe Orbin has more experiences with his car. Again he loaned it, this time to a bunch of the fellows in the office who forgot to shut off the radio. The battery went dead, for which Joe gave the gang the "Old Harry." Then the next morning, Joe got 100 pennies for his battery charge. Some friends! . . . We extend our deepest sympathy to Charlie Rice on the death of his mother.

Take it easy and be good to yourself and others. . . . I hear that George Santon and Bill Hoelle are in the varnish and paint removing business. Bill says if he does a good job on the door of his house, his wife will probably have him do the other five doors. Get wise boy, so you do a crummy job, so you get out of work. (Just kidding, Nellie.) . . . Gee, it must be nice to sport around town in a green station wagon. Ain't that right, George Winans?

It was nice to see Adam Farrell again. He dropped in on the gang recently. . . . While Helen Stahl was on vacation at the lake, she found a small pine tree, and dug it up. With some small colored clothes pins and fish sinkers, she decorated her tree. With the tree in her arms, she proceeded to serenade her neighbors with Christmas songs. That I would have loved to see. . . . Howard Funk ordered 600 night crawlers from Oscar Martin's hardware store. So Oscar put the worms in a bucket of dirt, and sat it aside till Howard came to pick same up. In the meantime someone took the worms out of the bucket, and sold them, not knowing they had already been sold. So Howard came next day, picked up the bucket, paid Oscar (who incidentally didn't know about the missing worms), and went up to Michigan to fish. Comes time to put a nice fat worm on the hook, and none are to be found. Bet

GE Neighbor's Pet Cat Found; Bldg. 26 Folks Get Candy Reward

The good neighbor policy was illustrated here this week when Bldg. 26-5 employees not only received a lot of satisfaction over finding the owner of a lost cat that had strayed to their floor but also received a big box of candy for their efforts.

Mrs. Rodney R. Reck, who lives at 1056 Swinney Ave., called the GE NEWS recently reporting that her trained cat, "Tinker Belle," had become lost during the vacation shutdown and might be inside the plant.

Bldg. 26-5 employees found the cat on their floor, saw the ad in the paper, and notified A. R. Vegalues, GE chief of plant protection. He returned Tinker Belle to her owner.

Happy that the cat had been returned to its home, the employees were surprised this week with a big box of candy and a note of thanks from Mrs. Reck. She also sent candy to Chief Vegalues and the GE NEWS, expressing her appreciation for her good neighbors at GE.

GE DEATHS

E. Keith Wolfe

Services Held Monday For Keith Wolfe, 53

Funeral services for E. Keith Wolfe, 53, were conducted Monday, Aug. 23. He died Friday, Aug. 20 in St. Joseph Hospital where he had been a patient for six weeks. Services were conducted in the Leo Methodist Church by the Rev. Morris Knisel. Burial was in the Leo Memorial Cemetery.

A Quarter Century Club member, Mr. Wolfe came to General Electric in October, 1922. He was a foreman of telephone and standardizing in Bldg. 20-2 prior to his death. He had been on a leave of absence since March this year.

Surviving are his wife, Flossie; two sons, Edward and Jack; two daughters, Mrs. Wilma Martin and Mrs. Doris Rhonemus; three brothers, Lester, Arthur, and John; two sisters, Mrs. Leota Niles and Mrs. Emma Shumaker; his father, Arthur; his mother, Mrs. Julia Wolfe, and six grandchildren.

Charles L. Saurbaugh Dies at Home Aug. 19

A retired employee, Charles LeRoy Saurbaugh, Sr., 65, died Thursday, Aug. 19 at his home, 628 W. Fourth St. He has been ill three weeks. Services were conducted Saturday, Aug. 21 in the Fort Wayne Gospel Temple by the Rev. Forrest Weddle. Burial was in Greenlawn Memorial Park.

In 1917 Mr. Saurbaugh became a

GE employee and was a clerk. He was a traffic specialist in Bldg. 6-2 prior to his retirement November 1, 1953. He was a member of the Quarter Century Club and an honorary member of the Fort Wayne Transportation Club.

In addition to his wife, Clarice M., survivors include three daughters, Mrs. Walter Miller, Mrs. Henry Vorholzen, and Miss Mary Catherine; one son, Charles L. Saurbaugh, Jr., and six grandchildren.

SPECIALTY MOTORS

Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

Welcome to Ralph Miles in IBM. He takes Leland Shaw's place who went into sales accounting. Hope you like us, Ralph. . . . Fred Wheeler is the lucky one in our office this week. He has a new clock radio which he won the other night. . . . Mary Jane Wise says she and her husband are making a sojourn to Brown County this week-end. Hope she takes some colored pictures so we can see too. . . . We have several Elex members in our office and everyone is all agog what with September 4th being State Fair Day with Elex. We will be gone from early morning until. . . . Nice to have an extra day to recover from the fair. Wonder if it will rain? . . . Happy birthday James Vevia, Pauline Badman, Floyd Brown, and Ruth Ann Bentz.

Elex Club members received a note of thanks from George Weaver, who worked in Bldg. 26-3 prior to entering the Service. He said, "I wish to thank you for the packages I received during my tour overseas. I want you to know I received them at appropriate times—during my stay in the hospital and in Korea at Christmas and Easter.

"In about one month from now I'll be out of the Army. I plan to work for General Electric and return to school."

Cpl. Weaver's address is:

Cpl. George J. Weaver, U. S. 55328110
7th Inf. Div. Band
APO 7 c/o Postmaster
San Francisco, Calif.

The following employees have entered the Armed Forces: Darwyn L. Herbst, Ralph E. Helper, and Robert E. Schilling.

To Show New Film

In connection with Light's Diamond Jubilee which will be celebrated in October, a film called "Eager Minds" will be shown to community groups in Fort Wayne this fall.

The 27 minute film has just been released by the electrical industry. It tells of America's electrical future and the part young scientists will play in it.

The film will be shown to high school groups, and civic clubs.

According to Light's Diamond Jubilee Committee, the movie should do much to further public interest in the electrical progress of our county.

Employees May Borrow Films to Show To Civic, Church, or Social Groups

If you'd like a film to show to your civic, church, or social group, the Community Relations Office has a wide variety available to loan to employees.

There is no charge for the use of the films and they may be obtained through K. W. Michael's office, Ext. 2293. Some of the films are very popular so it is suggested that any employee interested should contact Mr. Michael's office as far as possible in advance of the date the film is needed. All films are 16 mm.

Films currently on hand are as follows:

A Is For Atom

20 min. Color Sound

A cartoon in full color giving the principles of nuclear fission in an interesting and entertaining manner.

Voice of Safety

18 min. Color Sound

A safety indoctrination film for GE employees.

Freedom and Power

29 min. Color Sound

Recounts the development and importance of electrical power against the background of our nation's struggle for independence and progress.

It's Everybody's Business

22 min. Color Sound

A U. S. Chamber of Commerce film showing how our business system operates. It emphasizes the importance of protecting our economic freedoms and helps correct misinformation on business.

Target U.S.A.

20 min. Sound

A helpful guide to a practical atomic defense plan for every establishment where many people work or live.

The Inner Man Steps Out

29 min. Sound

Named the best industrial training movie in 1952 by the Cleveland Film Festival, it is an educational study of the psychological aspects of human relations.

Clean Waters

20 min. Color Sound

Tells the story of the dangers of water pollution and the corrective measures to be taken.

By Their Works

45 min. Color Sound

The dramatic story of General Electric and its people, their research, engineering and manufacturing activities. The Aeolian Choir of the Decatur Plant is featured.

America and Sons Unlimited

20 min. Sound

A saga of achievement against a background of American traditional and folk music.

Crossroads for America

40 min. Sound

The story of how Communism infiltrates industry woven through a fictional story of an individual and his struggle against Communism.

We Are What We Eat

Nutrition experts pretty well agree that we are what we eat. No doubt much still remains to be learned in this area, but nutritionists have accumulated much evidence demonstrating that people who eat right feel better, produce better and all in all have a feeling of general well being. You may have heard some talk about the basic seven foods which for reasons of health should be incorporated in your daily diet. Here is an explanation of what the basic seven consist of and why your body needs them:

1. Leafy green and yellow vegetables

You need one or more servings daily for they supply Vitamin A, necessary for healthy eyes and skin; iron for blood; and roughage for good elimination.

2. Citrus Fruits, Tomatoes, and Raw Cabbage

One or more servings supply the Vitamin C necessary for healthy gums and strong blood vessels. These foods also supply roughage.

3. Potatoes, —other vegetables and fruits

Two or more servings daily supply vitamins and minerals and roughage.

4. Milk and Milk Products

Adults need 1 to 1½ pints of milk or milk products daily for calcium to protect teeth and bones. Milk products are also rich in protein, minerals, and vitamins.

5. Meat, Fish, Poultry, Eggs

Adults should have at least one daily serving of meat, fish or poultry plus at least five eggs a week. These foods are rich in protein which aids in the repair of body tissue. Iron and vitamins are also present.

6. Bread, Flour, and Cereals

Every meal should include one or both. These foods supply calories for energy. Whole grain cereals provide vitamins, iron and roughage.

7. Butter, Margarine, Oils

2 to 3 tablespoons a day are necessary for adults. They supply calories for energy. Butter or butter substitutes are rich in Vitamin A.

HERE 30 YEARS—Robert L. Pence (right) reached his 30th anniversary with General Electric this month and on hand to congratulate him were (l-r) C. B. Smith, M. E. Keesler, and Emmett Zollinger, Jr. Mr. Pence came to the company as a coil spreader in Bldg. 8-2. He is now a set-up man on winding machines in Bldg. 4-3.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stiles on the arrival of an 8 lb. 3 oz. baby boy. Also, congratulations to Melvin Guillaime and wife on their new baby boy. Both fathers are now experts at folding those square napkins. . . . The bent-over look on Bill Walker was caused by two weeks of beach-combing on Treasure Island in Florida. He says he was looking for certain kinds of sea shells. . . . The special machines section welcomes Apprentice Dick Hess, who replaced Ned Speheger. We understand that Ned, who was just married, got quite a shock a few weeks ago when he read in another GE NEWS column that he had become a father. The misunderstanding has been all straightened out and Ned's nerves have almost calmed down to normal. . . . Julian Franke is taking his third week vacation this week. He planned to rest up the first part of the week so he could do a good job of relaxing the rest of the week. . . . Hershel Odier came back from his third week vacation this week reporting absolutely no cooperation from the weather while he was trying to get some material for a few good fish stories. . . . We are all sorry to hear that Carl Schone is back in the hospital. He had just returned to work a few weeks ago after a long sick spell. Hope you are back with us real soon, Carl. . . . Louis Paluszak had a sick spell last week but was back at work in a couple days telling about the milk and cream diet the doctor ordered. So if you fellows drop in on Louie some evening you might be served a malted milk or milk shake. Watch your weight now, Louie. . . . Bob Mosshammer caught about a dozen nice 10-inch bluegills recently. When it was time to go he pulled in the burlap sack and found two lonely fish waiting their turn to make an exit through a hole in the bag. Now that he thinks it over Bob recalls that some of those fish looked very familiar. Now he wonders how many trips through the fish sack some of them made. . . . Gus Ormsby feels he was a co-sponsor of the PGA golf tournament. He received two tickets to the event as partial payment on a debt owed him by a member of the Jaycees and had to attend the tourney to get his money's worth. . . . Did you notice anything queer about Paul Chronister's eyes last Monday? He got a TV set on Saturday. How do you do it Paul, TV and a pair of shoes all in one week? . . . Carl Mosser and his son are planning a trout fishing expedition to the Au Sable River in Michigan. . . . Gene Mittermaier had his Packard weighed on the city scales the other day and has the weight slip to prove he has 4400 pounds of iron to buy gas for. Gene wishes to add that this weight does not include the tender. . . . Gordon Yaeger is suddenly very quiet about the Oldsmobile after he was seen by many being pushed to the garage by a Plymouth last week. . . . The Machine Design Section welcomes Earl Hall who joined their ranks last week. Also, welcome to Barbara Ealing who is working with Betty in the print room. . . . Purl Schoaf was so excited about the good fishing on his vacation that he almost forgot to mention the little breakdown on his car that set him back a tidy sum. This will probably set him back a few notches in bragging up said automobile. It can happen to anyone, Purl. . . . The squirrel season opened last Saturday, but so far we haven't heard any wild stories. Lindy Bryant says just in case someone does get more than he wants he will be more than happy to take them off their hands. Good luck, Lindy. . . . Little Dean Spangler looked up at father Clyde and asked him to go on the ferris wheel with him. Clyde looked up at the height of the ferris wheel and you guessed it. All Clyde rode was his automobile home. Clyde claims he wasn't afraid though, he just wasn't sure if his life insurance had lapsed or not. . . . Besides co-sponsor, Gus Ormsby, the following men were trying to catch a few pointers from the golf pros over the week-end: Paul Yentes, Granville Gorrell, Don Martz, and Carey Baker. . . . Bobby Truelove was glad to see his mother and dad at the Noble County 4-H Fair. Bobby was staying on the fairgrounds with his exhibit and had gone broke due to the concession stand being so close and was quick to put the bite on Bob, Senior. . . . The wine makers, Kurt Martin and Mart Walsh, are at it again. Mart found he had a wild cherry tree right in his own back yard after thinking they were poison berries all the time. . . . Since Walt Greiner's wife and daughter are away to Texas for two weeks Walt has been batching it. He reports there is nothing hard about doing your own cooking, it's having to eat it yourself that makes it rough. . . . Woody Hursh claims to be champion tool room fisherman. Since he alone catches all the fish in a boat no one wants to go with him, and he has to talk his wife into going along to verify his catches. . . . A hazard eliminated means an accident won't get to happen. . . . Bill Palmer had his head up in the air last week. It was not a new car, but a 9 pound 15 ounce baby boy. Mother and baby are doing fine. Oh yes, Bill is in good shape, too. . . . Chuck Fike is off sick. Hurry back, Chuck. . . . When Ed Stahl can see a ball game he is happy. He saw one at Cleveland so he had a good vacation.

APPRENTICE BROADCAST

by Charles Wilson and Ronald Young

Dick Wagner couldn't decide whether to put a swimming pool or aquarium in the basement of his new house after a heavy rain last week. . . . William Hale left on August 13 to enter Rose Polytechnical Institute at Terre Haute. Good luck, Bill. . . . Harold Friedrich received his draft notice and left for two years in the Army on August 24. . . . We would like to extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Crews on the arrival of a baby daughter. . . . Welcome to Harold Kastan who is on the manufacturing course. . . . Several apprentices have been moved out of the shop this week. They are: Bob Doelling and Andy Chrysler to Winter St. Planning; Pete Zook and Duke Doepke to Bldg. 19-4; Kenny Gerber to Bldg. 19-5, and John Ellenwood to the Die Plant at New Haven. . . . The apprentice school league golf tournament will be held at Fairview with Duke Doepke defending his last year's title. . . . All apprentices will soon be dusting the dust and cobwebs from their school books. School starts on September 7. We will know more about the beginning of classes soon. . . . A late scoop from the Die Plant indicates one of the troubles little men are beset with. It seems Bill Scheimann got a pop on the beeper and before he could find a box to stand on to return the blow, the assailant had fled. Our sympathies, Bill.

Frank and Betty Ross enjoyed the week-end in Chicago. They attended the Chicago Music Festival, which they report was quite spectacular. . . . We are all glad to see Mr. Beard back from his trip west. . . . Congratulations to Nancy Grosh who is sporting a beautiful diamond. The lucky fellow is Jim Galuoppo. . . . All of you who remember Jean Scheef will be glad to know that she is the proud mother of a baby girl, 8 lb. 9 oz. Congratulations Jean and Ed. . . . Barbara Haley is wearing a mighty good looking ring these days. Our very best wishes to Barb and Ted Lorenz, industrial designer, Winter St., on their recent engagement. . . . We are happy to report that Marcile Oetting has found a very successful replacement for Ginger, recently deceased kitty-cat. The new product, christened Nutmeg, has a very sleek appearance and as smooth a purr as a Form "G" motor. . . . Ensign Robert J. Scheel, formerly in Mr. Warner's Section, visited us recently. Bob is assigned to the Naval Security Station, Washington, D. C. . . . Two new members in sales are Fred Conrad and Don Nelson. Fred has a BSGE degree from Portland University. His identical twin brother is with GE at DeKalb. Don has a BSEE degree from Geneva College in western Pennsylvania. Both men are married and Don has two youngsters. . . . Paul Gellert returning from a three week's vacation in Minnesota remarks, "You don't have to catch many fish when they are as big as the ones I caught." . . . Dick Burt has completed a test assignment in Mr. Whearley's section. His next test will be for six months in the GE plant at Coxackie, N. Y. . . . Hamp Rothwell is the new test man replacing Dick. Hamp's home is in Washington, D. C. He has a BSEE degree from North Carolina State. . . . Steve Miles, returning to Fort Wayne on State Road 9, after a squirrel hunting expedition, had a few moments of grave concern. He was flagged down by State Police. Seems they had run out of gas and wanted some sent out from La-Grange. . . . Food for Thought: What prompted Helen Powner's husband to bring home a new cook book? Is it Helen's cooking or an earnest desire on the part of friend husband to be helpful? . . . Irma Harris is "visiting" in Edison Room for four weeks. She gets the honored job of typing the budget. She is married to Johnny Harris, application engineer in Mr. Whearley's section. Irma has completed one year and plans on starting her second in September at St. Francis College. . . . Clarice Peters, test engineer's wife, is our brand new newcomer. She hails from Butte, Mont. Another westerner in our midst! Her husband is a TE at Winter St., and they are just now starting the "on test" process. . . . Those of you who enjoyed the PGA Tournament at the Elks Country Club should thank Hal Robertson, one of the Jaycees kept very busy last week-end.

Two torch bearers are the most photographed subjects in all New York—Prometheus in Rockefeller Plaza and the Statue of Liberty.

ANNIVERSARY CONGRATULATIONS—A 35th anniversary with the General Electric Company brought congratulations to John J. Rockhill, Aug. 18. He is shown at right receiving best wishes on the occasion from Oscar L. Weitzman. Mr. Rockhill was employed as a machine operator at Winter St. in 1919. He is now a foreman at Winter St.

ANNIVERSARY LETTER—Thomas D. Collins receives a letter of congratulations on his 35th GE anniversary and reads it to (l-r) Oscar L. Weitzman and Ed Misselhorn. Mr. Collins first came to GE in 1919 as a truck driver in Bldg. 6-1. He is now a leading operator and power plant attendant at Winter St.

MEET YOUR GE CLUB BOARD—Walter Lamboley, Taylor St., director; Betty Puff, Bldg. 4-6, director; Charlie Winans, Section 113, Taylor St., secretary; Les Shroyer, Bldg. 31-2, first vice president; William Schible, Bldg. 20-1, president; Mary Saxton, Taylor St., second vice president;

Robert Meyer, Bldg. 4-5, treasurer; Dick Kent, Bldg. 18-5, past president, and Kenneth Michael, Bldg. 18-2, company representative. Absent when the picture was taken: Carl Reynolds, Section 114, Taylor St., who serves as a director.

Let's Get Acquainted With Our GE Club!

BALANCING THE BUDGET of the GE Club is the job of the Budget Committee, which is composed of Robert Meyer, Les Shroyer, Walt Lamboley, and Kenneth Michael.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST. by Harry Parker

A few days ago Richard Freygang had a very disappointing dinner. It seems that his wife prepares his lunch for the next day the evening before, wrapping it all in a neat package, then placing it in the refrigerator. In the morning all that is necessary for Dick to do is place it in his lunch kit and take off. This is just what he did on this particular morning, but when time to eat arrived he opened his lunch, which much to his dismay contained raw pork chops. You guessed it, he grabbed the wrong package. . . . Old Ralph "Heavy Foot" Dunlap did it again. Not being content with putting his TV set on the blink he had to go and get himself in bad with the law. The other day he set out for a nice long ride through the countryside. Approaching the city of Bluffton and not paying much attention to his speedometer until he heard a police siren, he looked into his rear view mirror and observed a State Police car with red lights flashing bearing down on him. The officers signaled him to stop, then put the bite on him for traveling at a speed far in excess of the limit (75 mph). So perturbed was his wife that she took the keys to the car away from him for two weeks. . . . Dick Johnson, formerly employed in our section but at present working Sect. 114, built up quite a reputation dealing in dogs of questionable ancestry. He also peddled a lot of hamburger around the plant. Clarence Stove has gone so far as to accuse him of mixing ground dog with the old bull meat he sold for Grade A ground beef. Dick has embarked upon another venture, that of raising goats. So be prepared folks, as ground goat in all probability will appear in his hamburger.

Drive as though the other drivers were crazy, too!

Promoting recreational, educational, and social activities among employees of the Broadway, Taylor St., and Winter St. plants is quite a job! But that's the objective of the GE Club.

Each of us automatically becomes a member of the Club when we become an employee, and we contribute to its treasury every time we make a stop at any of the vending machines. From the money earned from the machines, the Club is able to present professional entertainment, sponsor a large and varied sports program, provide sporting equipment for employees to borrow, provide a meeting place, and keep the clubhouse in repair.

Board of Directors

Supervising all activities of the Club is the board of directors. A new board was elected by employees recently and is shown above. This ten-member group consists of seven elected members, two appointed by the company, and the past president who serves on the board until a new president is elected.

The president is William Schible, Bldg. 20-1. Other elected officers are Les Shroyer, Bldg. 31-2, first vice president; Mary Saxton, Taylor St., second vice president; Charlie Winans, Section 113, Taylor St., secretary; Carl Reynolds, Section 114, Taylor St., director; Walter Lamboley, Taylor St., director, and Betty Puff, Bldg. 4-6, director. Robert Meyer, Bldg. 4-5, who is treasurer, is appointed by the company as is Kenneth W. Michael, Bldg. 18-2, company representative. Dick Kent, Bldg. 18-5, is a member of the board by virtue of being past president of the Club.

Meets Monthly

The board meets regularly once a month and has an average of another special meeting once a month. These are conducted in the evenings and each member spends about five hours a month in such meetings supervising Club activities, policies, and its budget.

INSPECTION TOUR of the GE Club building is taken by Charlie Winans and Carl Reynolds, who are members of the House Committee. This committee, which is headed by Dick Kent, gives the Club a thorough going over to find areas that need repairing.

Within the board are two committees, house and budget. The house committee reviews the building, located at the corner of Broadway and Swinney Ave., and reports repairs that need to be made and checks to see that they are completed. The budget committee considers the amount of funds the Club has and how much should go to each activity. Its report is presented to the entire board for discussion and approval.

Striving to live up to its objective, the Club board members are always looking for new and better activities of interest to employees and they welcome suggestions from employees.

In addition to the board, four other committees function. Chairmen of these are appointed by the president and the chairmen in turn name committee members. The four committees are athletic, entertainment, bowling, and golf.

Cafeteria Favorites

Cafeteria cook, Ruth Commers, Bldg. 16-1, prepares blanket franks.

BLANKET FRANKS

1 1/8 cups sifted flour	1 egg, slightly beaten
3/4 cup corn meal	3/8 cup milk
2 Tbs. sugar	1 lb. wieners
1 1/2 tsp. baking powder	8 wooden skewers
1/2 tsp. salt	Lard for deep fat frying
2 Tbs. lard

Sift together flour, corn meal, sugar, baking powder, and salt. Cut in lard until mixture has a fine, even crumb. Combine egg and milk and add to corn meal mixture, stirring until well blended. Insert wooden skewers into ends of wieners and roll in corn meal batter. Drop into deep hot lard (350° F) and fry until well browned. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

Happy birthdays to Stan Dasca-loff today, Aug. 27; Wally Clayton, Sunday, Aug. 29; Mary Harper, Tuesday, Aug. 31, and Ray Devere Jones, Sept. 2. . . . We were very happy to see Ted Ross return to his office last Monday, even if just for a short time. We sincerely hope that you will be in perfect health in very short order. . . . We say farewell and good luck to Frank Sedlar who is leaving us today for his next assignment. . . . We wish to correct a typographical error in last week's problem. It should have been a four quart and a seven quart bottle instead of a three quart and a seven quart. The problem was how to put six quarts of water in the seven quart bottle.
. . . Eager Beaver Arlein Yates would do most anything to get her name in the GE NEWS, so we are told. When she saw Marge Murphy's name in last week's issue because she forgot to pick up her silverware at the cafeteria, Arlein thought she'd try the same thing.
Well anyway, your stunt worked!
. . . Glen Stapleton claims the reason he is winning all the pools is that he is just living right, but we say the law of averages will catch up some day. . . . It seems some people can't believe other people's fish stories so they try their magic formula to see if it holds magic for them. Ray Solga tried the lowly catalpa worm for bait and lo and behold he caught fish, some he could legally keep.
. . . If Howard Stark comes to work and his costume does not harmonize it is because he is partly with the Indians. He is in the process of moving to his new home in Indian Village and hopes to complete the operation by the end of the week. Howard, look out for the house warmers. . . . By now Bonnie Leazier's calendar looks like cross stitch embroidery.

Every day she checks it off her calendar with an X. Why are you in a hurry to pass the days so fast? Is it the joy of Christmas, Bonnie? . . . A nice recovery:
Lineu Barbosa was just in time to get the ticket off his tray at the cafeteria before it went down to the kitchen.

Middle age is when a man must look fit as a fiddle or look like a bass viol.

RETIREMENT VISIT—Henry Nagel says good-by to some of his friends who recently paid him a visit after his retirement. Left to right are Clarence A. Brenner, Leo Schlaudroff, Jim McFeely, and Charles Bracht. Mr. Nagel came to the General Electric Company in 1917, and has been a bench machinist since 1922. He worked in Bldg. 19-4 before leaving the company August 1 on optional retirement.

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Ruth LaPradd left the 21 frame for Sect. 114 days, while Ruth Gunn and Gertrude Ruchard are victims of Broadway. The best of luck, girls. . . . Mildred Snyder is back on second trick to learn a new job, in spite of her boss saying he wanted the good looking girls on days. She has to do her stuff on second first. Mildred says if she has to stay until she makes out she will probably be working alone. Anyway, Millie, we are happy to see you on second again.
. . . We were glad to see Mabel Altimus in to see us last week after her operation. Glad you are recovering so nicely, Mable. . . .
Dorothy Hart celebrated her 55th birthday last week. . . . Margaret Kenyon had to drive to Kendall-ville in that storm last week, but she is a good driver and make it
O. K. Margaret loves to squirt water. She plays tricks on us sometimes with it and we think the roof is leaking. . . . I asked Alma Raymer for some news for our paper last week and she said coffee is coming down. So Alma has decided with what she saves on coffee she can take in the State Fair with the Elex girls. Have a nice time, Alma. . . . Charley Barnhouse went on his vacation this week. We wonder how he rates having his vacation when he wants it? . . . We are happy to see Bob Hull back at work after being ill for a few days. . . . We are sorry to hear Violet Renkenberger is in the hospital. We wish her a speedy recovery. Her co-workers gave her a gift, and I take this privilege to thank each and every one for Violet. . . . Helen Orr's son Alan is visiting her from Ft. Leonard Wood. He has been promoted to corporal, and on returning to camp will go to Ft. Sheridan, Ill. . . .
Cletus Spiek is getting one of those bumps that so many of us have gotten. We wish you the best of luck wherever you go, and want to say it's been nice knowing you.
. . . A raise in production has made the girls on the 21 frame happy for the time being at least. The second trick will stay on a while longer. . . . Dorothy Hart will be in Elkhart Saturday visiting friends. She will attend Buck Lake Ranch Sunday, meeting her son

$50 WINNER—Jay Cornell (left) is congratulated on his recent $50 suggestion award. Mr. Cornell suggested trying to get a tool number and a drawing for a boring tool so it could be put in regular stock and thus save time. He is a tool grinder in Section 113 at Taylor St.

THISA & THATA BLDG. 4-3 and 4-4

by Helen Engle

Perhaps if Bill Shuler would attend obedience school he could have been on TV too. Bill's wife entered their pomeranian in a dog show while they were in California and it was shown in Fort Wayne last week. . . . Francine Cyr is convalescing from her recent operation. She'll be leaving St. Joseph Hospital soon. . . . Virginia Davies left us Friday to take her place among the ranks of "Full Time Housewives." She received many nice gifts from her co-workers.
. . . We all extend our sympathy to Cora Rice in the death of her mother. Cora's mother was burned so badly that it caused her death.
. . . Harry Meyers had a big fight with some wasps. He had to have his hands all bandaged up due to the stings. . . . Birthday greetings to Cecil Foor, and thanks for the candy. . . . Butch Claymiller has adopted a dog. He took quite a liking to the little dog and is taking it home. If you think the dog might be yours, see Butch and he might give it back to you. . . .

Don Mason says he rates right along with the boss on the tomato deal. John Figley brings the boss one and Don one too. Too bad he smashed the boss's tomato in his pocket last Friday. . . . Agnes Robinson thinks they picked the wrong time to remodel. When they have to chop a hole in the floor to let the water out, she says it is time to put the roof back on. . . .
The big fish stories have now been changed to the story of the lowly squirrel. Francis Harter was able to get three last Saturday. . . .
Clarence Weimer, the youngster from 1x20, is really using his head.
He says, "What is the use of going to Figley's basement for a 35 cent haircut when I will have to go to a real barber to get it straightened up and the steps taken out?" . . . It seems John Figley is keeping very quiet about the night he went to the corner with a couple of his buddies and his sweater covered pooch, and then sleeping in the clothes closet when he arrived home. Let's have the whole story, John. We haven't heard of his being out since. . . .
Congratulations to Paul Henricks,
Jr., on his engagement to Jean Weist. . . . Russell Rose had to buy a larger refrigerator to store all the fish he's been catching. His wife even caught a 17-inch bass.
. . . Sorry to know that Louise
Sauers has been in the hospital.
He is now at home and recuperating nicely. . . . Emily Niernman otherwise known as "Black Jack Gum" is well supplied for the next few days. That is, if she rations the chew! . . . Sympathy to Irma Fredricks in the death of her father-in-law. . . . Kenny Kampheus better put two locks on his locker to keep itchy fingers out of it. . . . Edith Juillert is a very proud first time grandma. Her daughter has a new daughter. . . .
Our sympathy to Margaret Mc-
Kerring in the death of her uncle.
. . . Ed Taylor sure was working hard this week. He broke three broom handles. . . . Mardo Tobias is grandpa again, or should we say "grandma" as it is another granddaughter?

Expected soon is a fuel-mileage meter for your car so that, like the taxi rider, you can see what it costs as you ride along. However, say the oil people, your car'll be getting 50 per cent more mileage per gallon of gas than cars of 20 years ago.

DECATURITES by George Laurent

Not many of us knew that Dick C. Meyers and Eddie Dietsch are "co-incident" twins; they don't look much alike but both were born the same day, Aug. 25, 1905. Happy birthday, Dick and Eddie. . . . Seeing is believing! The past vacation fish stories flew thick and fast, but the ones substantiated by pictures are usually the best. First it was Walter Ryf with pictures showing his prize catch; now we have seen prize catches by Harold Baughn and John Welch. Wisconsin, Michigan, and Northern Indiana (pick your favorite spot) are the fishing Meccas for most of GE's fishermen. . . . L. V. (The Admiral) Baker finally had a lifetime dream come true. He has always wanted to see the native land and first hand proof of the real Hawaiian dancers. This vacation he set out for and visited the pictorial Hawaiian Islands. It would take a book to describe L. V.'s enthusiasm and another book to describe what he saw. L. V. motored to San Francisco and took a plane to the islands. . . . The GE Club picnic was a big success; more than 2,000 adults and children were there. Many pensioners came to renew old acquaintances. The little tots were fascinated by the pony rides and the many other games provided. The box lunch was superb. A well organized committee of employees, under the chairmanship of Oran Schultz, saw to it that everything rolled along in scheduled order. Oran wishes to use this column to express his thanks to all who attended, and to all of his committee co-workers for the part they had in making the 1954 picnic another successful activity on the GE Club calendar. . . . Is George Buckley trying to set a new style in men's apparel by wearing different colored socks? . . . Congratulations and best wishes to Kay B. Miller and his bride. We hope you have many many years of wedded bliss. . . . "A button, a button, my kingdom for a button," was the wish expressed by Carl Roberts. Carl says that he does not have much faith in "them thar new-fangled contraptions" called zippers. . . . The latest report on the singing career of Erman Johnson is far from good. It seems that the ghosts of the cats he murdered with his singing are now serenading him every night. Erman says that he gets rid of them very quickly though, he just starts to sing, "How Much Is That Doggie In the Window?" . . . Another candle for another year. Mable Eyanson celebrated her birthday Aug. 17, so we all join together to wish her many more happy birthdays. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Milt Chronister, who is ill at his home. Milt ended his vacation by becoming ill and so has to spend extra time at home. Now, Milt, don't you know that is no way to extend your vacation? . . . Worry, worry! After all she only had a half hour to get home for lunch and then back to work. After waiting and wondering why no one came to take her home for lunch one day recently Betty Frauhiger started to walk home. Before she had gone very far it suddenly came to her. She had driven the car to work that morning. . . . Shooting stars, flying saucers or rolling chairs? Whichever it is will cause you to blink your eyes and look again. But when that chair shot out across the floor and hit those pans with such a loud bang we thought that someone had thrown the chair. The real fact is this: The chair slipped away and Frank Braun sat on the floor instead. . . . While on a trip through the southern states Catherine Young acquired a new hobby, that of a snake charmer. Gosh that sure looked like a very slippery, wriggling sort of a pet to tame, Catherine. The one wearing the fur coat looked much more friendly. After all you do have the pictures to prove your story. . . . Say, did you join the safari recently when they were hunting the monkey? The pet monkey belonging to the Dowell Singer family escaped and really led them a merry chase. After about two days of freedom the monkey was finally found. Sure was too bad the family couldn't understand his language for he sure was glad to get home and tell of his trip. . . . Hear ye, Hear ye! At last here comes the announcement that we should have made before vacation time. Ada and Forrest Ownes have another grandson, born July 10th. So sorry folks that we are so late telling it. We will try to do better next time. . . . Rumor tells us that Nile Butler never uses an alarm clock. He just doesn't need one, he has a rooster that wakes him each morning. After seeing him come in late recently two mornings in succession we have formed the opinion that he must have eaten the alarm clock rooster. . . . Congratulations to Dick and Helen Drake on the arrival of the blue booted tax exemption at their home. This is the second son in the family. . . . Haste makes waste, or some such thing. Mary Fennig was in such a rush to get back on the job in time, with the result that she had to make a hurried trip home again first. To some this doesn't make sense but to Mary it was a cause for much embarrassment. Tough luck, Mary, was it only the dress torn? . . . The mystery of the week: Who is the mysterious, anonymous person or persons sending those illustrated cards with so much sentiment and meaning to Vilas Bollinger and Oscar Teeple? . . . Congratulations to Pat Abbott who became Mrs. Fred Bittner recently.

MAN OF DISTINCTION—Carl Saaf, Bldg. 12-1, joined the exclusive Hole-In-One Club ranks last week when he hit a hole-in-one on Brookwood's 14th hole. He made the 165-yard shot with his No. 5 iron. Witnessing the big event were Jack Steel, Bldg. 12-2; Al Leakey, and Al Speckman.

Hear about the musician who plays a shoe horn? The only thing he plays is footnotes.

ECHOES from 19-2 by Fred McIntyre

When Elex arrived at Knott's Berry Farm in California, we were surprised and delighted to see John Felmlee and Art Kabish. Art was touring the west and John's home is in California since his retirement. We had the pleasure of having Mr. Felmlee joining us for our chicken dinner. John is looking good and wearing a nice California tan. He sent his regards to all his GE friends. (OLD FRIENDS.) . . . Belated congratulations to Cliff Ramer, who is the proud father of a new son, and to Lewis Biddle, who was recently married. . . . Dale Bice, who underwent surgery during vacation, is improving rapidly and hopes to be back at work soon. . . . Harry Ehrsam, who is taking his third week of vacation this week, will spend most of it in the woods hunting squirrels and slapping mosquitoes. . . . Martha Musselman, Eileen Gault, Gladys McMillian, and Cecile Hinton are planning to attend the State Fair, the main attraction being Eddie

Art, Gladys, and John

Fisher. . . . Glenn Bice, who moved from Harlan to Fort Wayne during vacation in order to gain an hour or so more of sleeping time in the mornings, started out on Monday morning by being late. He forgot to set the alarm. . . . Glenn Baker and Roy Lawrence still had enough money left after vacation to be able to trade the old bus in on a newer model. . . . The condition of Lloyd Brown's son, who was seriously injured in a recent accident, is showing marked improvement for the best. . . . Anthony Lupe is looking for a home for a mother cat and her two kittens. He says he won't have room for them when he moves into his new home.

Pensioners Parade

Word comes to us this week in a round about way from John W. Felmlee, who is living in sunny California. He happened to meet Arthur R. Kabisch, Bldg. 7-2, when Art was in California with the Elex trip during vacation shutdown. John sends his best regards to all his old friends here and those who are retired. Mr. Felmlee retired from DC Motor and Generator in October, 1945. His present address is: 924 Irwin Ave., Englewood, Calif.

Main Auto Wins Two

The GE Club Main Auto League team won two league games from Capehart last week, by scores of 7 to 0 and 5 to 0.

The GE Club boys lost to Warsaw in the district tourney last week 1 to 0.

Bowling Notes

Women who wish to bowl in the second shift league at 12 noon are asked to call H-75832 before 12 noon any morning or attend the meeting at Scott's Bowling Alley at 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 18. Beginners are welcome.

Anyone interested in bowling in the Ladies Friday Night League at 6 p.m. in the GE Club should contact Ginny Mollet, Ext. 466, Bldg. 31-2, or Gertie Koldewey, Ext. 531, Bldg. 6-3.

What Goes on Behind The Scenes?

As a result of the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and because over 20,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a full share of stock as a bonus for U. S. Savings Bonds purchased under the plan in 1948, a number of employees have asked us for information about stocks and bonds. Therefore, as a service to our readers we are currently presenting a series of eight articles on this subject. The article in today's issue is the sixth of the present series.

Let's suppose you have decided to purchase a certain stock. You may then ask your stock broker to buy some shares for you at the market. He writes down your order bids you "good-day," your work is over. You sit back and relax while he gets the "wheels rolling." In a short time he sends you a bill, you pay him and receive your stock certificate. Just like that you become a share owner! But a lot goes on behind the scenes after you place your order.

Once you have decided on which shares you wish to purchase and how many, the broker sends a buyer's order to the firm office in New York. From there it is phoned to the firm's booth on the floor of the Stock Exchange. Then a floor broker representing the firm goes to the trading post at which the shares you have requested are being sold. There are 18 such posts on the floor, each handling shares of about 80 different companies.

At the trading post, the floor broker asks for the prevailing market price and listens to other brokers who are making their bids for the same shares. He doesn't reveal whether he wishes to buy or sell because he will be hoping to get a better price by bargaining.

Bargaining on the Stock Exchange is similar to bargaining anywhere else. Some person offers to sell at a price, and somebody else offers to buy at a price. The two, of course, must come to an agreement. When the negotiation is completed between the two individuals, the purchase is made.

Once the purchase is completed, a report of the transaction is phoned back to the local broker's office. The broker then contacts the buyer, tells him the order has been filled and what price was paid for the shares.

Shares may be bought in either round lots or odd lots. Round lot orders are orders in units of 100 shares. However, when a buyer orders less than 100 shares, this smaller unit is known as an odd lot and the purchase involves a slightly different procedure.

When a broker receives an order for less than 100 shares, he generally has to buy that stock from an odd lot dealer. The odd lot dealer is a sort of wholesaler. He buys stock in 100-share units and breaks them up into smaller lots for sale to people who want to purchase less than 100 shares. Like other wholesalers, he never does business directly with the public. He deals only with other brokers on the Stock Exchange floor.

In this way, odd lot dealers make it possible for people to buy small units of stock. Naturally, however, the average cost of shares bought in small quantities is slightly higher than the cost of shares bought in round lots.

In general, members of the Stock Exchange charge the same rates for carrying out the transactions described above. These rates vary with the size of the order and are a little less, proportionately, on large orders than on small ones. Here is about how brokers' commissions are figured.

Amounts of $100 or less—amount of commission determined by mutual agreement.
Amounts between $100 and $1,999.99—1% plus $5.
Amounts between $2,000 and $4,999.99—1/2 of 1% plus $5.
Amounts of $5,000 or more—1/10 of 1% plus $35.

In addition, when less than 100 shares are bought at a time, the odd lot differential amounts to 2 1/2 cents a share for stock selling over $40 a share and 12 1/2 cents a share for stock selling under $40 a share. However, there is a $6 minimum charge on all orders.

In the next installment we shall discuss who may afford to invest in securities.

Fun for Firemen's Families

FUN FOR FIREMEN—Although most of the day's activities were centered around contests for the wives and children, the firemen took time out to enjoy a few games such as pitching horseshoes.

"Lost" and "Found" articles must be cleared through the Plant Protection Office, Bldg. 10-2, or the Plant Receptionist, who will place the Ad-let and otherwise advertise the article.

No ad will be received over the telephone.

Only one ad per employee may be inserted. Each ad must be limited to 20 words and cannot be repeated. All articles mentioned must be personal property of the employee. Ads will not be accepted unless accompanied by the name, pay number, and division of the employee. No plant building or telephone number may appear in any ad except transportation ads, only the home telephone number or address.

Send all ads to G-E NEWS office, Bldg. 10-1.

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

Congratulations on the pink-footed addition at the Ralph and Betty Pressler home. The mama is a former co-worker. . . Glad to see Margaret Zumbrum and Mada Caudel ringing in their clock cards again. . . Congratulations to Hal-lie Hosler and her husband on their 36th wedding anniversary. . . Johnny Hart has bat trouble. One got him out of bed the other morning at 3:30. He also thinks that the switch boxes on the main winding machines should be air conditioned, too. Then he wouldn't have to stand and fan them to keep them cool. . . Ella Arn must have a green thumb. She brought in some yard long beans, two of which would make a panful. . . When Florence Lea answered the telephone the other evening, she gave the magic answer. She was a Dinner-Winner. . . Lucy Alexander has returned from an extensive trip through Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Missouri. . . We light another candle on the cake and wish a happy birthday to Dick Gidley. . . Now we have heard the fish story to end all fish stories. Mary Jane Redding was going fishing. The first day she forgot the line. The second day she forgot the tackle box. The third day she forgot the fish poles. We still don't know if she finally made it. . . Elmer Debolt doesn't care what kind of car he drives, as long as it is a Pontiac. The other day he wanted to make a trip to the Winter St. plant and borrowed Joe Orbin's car (so he thought). Wally McKay came out to use his car and it was gone. He reported it to the police. All the time Elmer had had it hy mistake. . . Frances Eckrote's stomach must be on fast-track. She was all ready to go to dinner at 11 a.m. We eat at high noon. . . Sorry to report that Faye Kittredge is in the St. Joseph hospital again. . . We extend our sincere sympathy to Charlie Rice and Louie Hoffman on the loss of their mothers.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

Bldg. 22

by George Winans

With regret, we say good-by to Leroy Ingram. Hope it won't be for long, fellow. . . Welcome back to Don Voorhees, who returns after having recuperated from his operation. . . The flash flood last week turned Bldg. 22 into a miniature sea with each welder marooned on his table like Robinson Crusoe on his island. Mildred Messer, our office steno, demonstrated her ability as a housekeeper when she mopped up the flooded office floor with a skill equal to that of any scrub woman in town. . . Frank Mathews' wife has been slipping a razor and a tube of shaving cream into his lunch here of late. Frank says she must be getting absent-minded because he doesn't eat shaving cream. Didn't it ever occur to you, Frankie, that it might just be her way of saying, "Why don't you shave, you bum?" . . . Officer Tieman has been painting the kitchen cupboards for his wife while she has been away. He says he wants to surprise her. She'll be surprised all right, because he got the paint cans mixed one night and the cupboards are two different colors. . . Last week's visitor: Adam Farrell. . . We are glad to hear that Mildred Wells is a lover of animals. Her husband says she is crazy about blue tailed flies and pink squirrels.

Q. How fast do waves travel in the ocean?

A. In deep water their speed varies with their length, that is, from the top of one wave to the top of the next. Waves a foot long would travel about a mile and a quarter per hour while those of ten feet can go about 4.4 m.p.h. Hundred-foot waves have a speed of more than 12 m.p.h., while those a thousand feet in length would make nearly 44 m.p.h. As waves move into shallow water, their speed is reduced.

Q. Why is it that after a vegetable garden was fertilized with manure there were many more weeds than there were before?

A. The fertilizer not only stimulates the plants you want to grow, but the weeds as well, so if the weeds were there, they might grow better than before. Also, it may have been that additional weed seeds were brought in with the fertilizer, and that the tilling of the soil, which probably accompanied the application of the fertilizer, turned up older seeds already there.

Q. When will there be another eclipse of the Sun?

A. The next will come this year on Christmas day, but it will not be total. Along a path over the South Atlantic Ocean, Africa, and the Indian Ocean, the Moon will come in front of the Sun. A ring of the Sun's surface will remain visible around the dark disc of the Moon. Over a larger area, extending to Antarctica, the Sun will be partially eclipsed. The next total eclipse will occur June 20, 1955, visible along a path over southeastern Asia and the Philippines, and partial over a more extensive region. Where it lasts longest, near the Philippines, the Sun will be hidden for 7 minutes 8 seconds, which is only a little less than the maximum possible duration of 7½ minutes. The next total eclipse easily visible in any part of the United States will be seen in Maine (and Canada) on July 20, 1963.

Q. What is the origin of the noise of thunder?

A. It is caused by the sudden heating of air as a lightning stroke passes through it. The heated air rapidly expands and a pressure wave travels outward from the stroke, at a speed of about 1100 feet per second. When it judges, Mr. Beer announced.

As members who will have contest entries register at the outing, they will secure information of where to take their gourds and pumpkins.

In connection with the 40th anniversary of the club, 40 attendance prizes will be awarded and attendance souvenirs will be given all members attending the all-day event.

In addition to the two professional acts already booked for the program at the outing, a third was signed this week. She is Virginia Page, a versatile, good looking performer who does a novelty act including juggling, baton twirling, and rolling globe. The other acts already signed are the Chicagoans, a barber shop quartet, and Happy Hall, roller skater, tap dancer. Two other acts will be announced next week.

reaches a person's ears, this wave causes the sensation of sound. Since a stroke may be a mile or more in length, sounds from the nearer parts will reach the observer a number of seconds ahead of those from farther away. This, and echoes from mountains, hills and clouds, causes the long drawn-out rumblings.

Q. Please tell me something about the planet Pluto.

A. Pluto, which is generally farther from the Sun than any of the other eight major planets, was discovered in January, 1930, by Clyde Tombaugh, with the aid of photographs taken at the Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Arizona. It would have to be increased in brightness some 4000 times in order to be just barely visible to the naked eye, so it can only be observed with large telescopes. Since it is so far out from the Sun and gets so little light it was named after the god of the underworld. It revolves around the Sun in 248 years, at an average distance of 3,670,000,000 miles, about 40 times as far as the Earth. Its orbit is very elliptical so it can come as close to the Sun as 2,761,000,000 miles, which is nearer than Neptune. Its diameter is not known exactly, although one measurement a few years ago put it at about 3550 miles.

Q. Why can't large springs be put in automobiles and wound up so as to provide power when they unwind?

A. Springs are often used to drive toy automobiles, and they have been suggested for use in full-sized cars. In fact, around 1500 Leonardo da Vinci proposed such a spring-driven vehicle. However, the amount of energy that can be stored in a spring is very small compared to other means of storing energy now available. In units of foot-pounds (the amount of energy required to raise a weight of one pound one foot) a spring can only store about 32 foot-pounds for every pound of its own weight. A storage battery, of the type used in automobiles, can store 2840, compressed gas 14,509 and a spinning flywheel 22,600 ft. lbs. per lb.

Q. Do gold fish need air in their water?

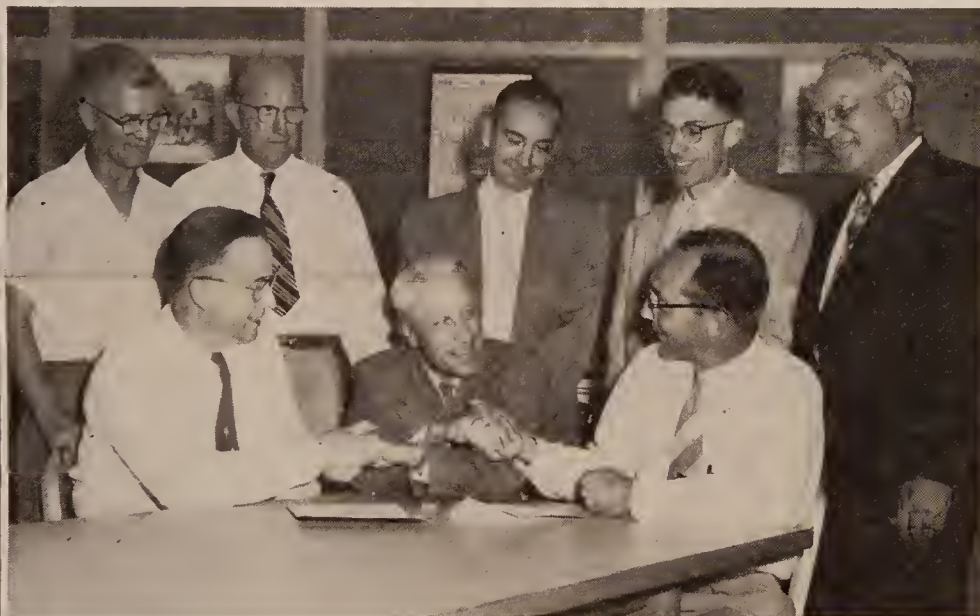

A. Yes. Fish "breathe" as water passes through their gills, giving up dissolved oxygen. Although water consists of a chemical combination of hydrogen with oxygen, this is not available to them. If well-water is used in an aquarium it may contain too little dissolved oxygen. In that case it might help to let the water stand in a bowl for a day or two, perhaps pouring it from one bowl to another several times, or air may be bubbled through. This will cause the water to absorb oxygen.

Q. Just what happens when a thing burns?

A. Usually, when a thing burns, it unites with oxygen from the air. Natural gas, for example, consists of carbon and hydrogen; when it burns the carbon unites with oxygen to form carbon dioxide, while the union of oxygen with the hydrogen forms hydrogen monoxide, which is water. Paper and wood are largely cellulose, a carbohydrate, consisting of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen, the last two in the same proportion as in water. When wood or paper burns, the carbon again forms carbon dioxide, while the hydrogen and oxygen come off as water. As heat energy is liberated in the process there is a chain reaction. One part of the wood burns, heats the next part, starting its combustion. This starts the next, and so the process continues.

Q. What is saccharin?

A. Saccharin is a chemical compound which was first prepared in 1879 by Remsen and Fahlberg, two chemists at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. It is 300-500 times as sweet as ordinary sugar, and the sweet taste is still detectable in a solution as dilute as one part in 70,000. Since it has great sweetening power but no food value, it is sometimes used by people who want to avoid overweight. It is also used by diabetics, whose systems reacts unfavorably to sugar.

War Veterans Schedule Stag Picnic Sept. 18

The General Electric War Veterans Association will have a stag picnic Saturday, Sept. 18, at the VFW Post, Herbert Koch, Bldg. 2-2, chairman of the event, reported this week.

The picnic will be free to all members and they must show their membership cards at the Post, which is located at 2202 W. Main St. Beginning at 9 a.m. the event will continue until 6 p.m. Lunch and refreshments will be served and entertainment will be provided.

Assisting the chairman with arrangements for the picnic are Fred Rathert, Winter St.; William Sivits, Taylor St.; Ed Martin, Bldg. 17-4; and Pondo Vlasheff, Bldg. 6-4. Mr. Koch has asked the committee to meet at the post at 8:30 a.m. the day of the event to complete final arrangements.

Members of the Vets Association and their wives have been invited to attend a dance at the post following the picnic Sept. 18.

GE Squares Open Membership Drive

Today marks the opening of the 1954-55 GE Squares Club membership drive, Robert Rescorla, Bldg. 18-3, president, announced. He has appointed Howie Brust, Bldg. 31-2, general chairman of the drive.

Plans for a new house for the Squares and the calendar of events for the coming year are being sent prospective members this week to launch the campaign. Contact men will see these persons also.

Dues, which are $7.50 per person, cover the club year of activities from September to September. Assisting the general chairman with arrangements for the drive are: Earl Helmers, Bldg. 18-3; Jim Germanson, Bldg. 18-3; Bill Biega, Bldg. 26-2, and Bill Garvey, Winter St.

The drive will continue until Friday, Sept. 17, when a semi-formal dance will be conducted as a finale. The dance will be open free of charge to all members and their ladies. It will take place at the Chamber of Commerce. Bob Wiebke and his orchestra will provide music for dancing from 9:30 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. There will be refreshments available. Al Larmann, Bldg. 26-2, and Guy Bradley, Bldg. 31-2, are co-chairmen of the dance.

Headed by George Morgan, Winter St., the new house committee has been operating since June, 1954, to seek larger, more adequate facilities for the membership. The committee will present its first report to the membership later this year.

Other members of this committee are: John Taylor, Bldg. 4-6; Dick Quinn, Bldg. 26-2; Bev Miracle, Winter St.; John Bradbury, Winter St.; Harry Hill, Bldg. 18-2; David Day, Bldg. 26-2; Jim Walley, Bldg. 4-6; Ted Ross, Bldg. 4-6; and John Harris, Taylor St.

Social activities of the organization include dances, stags, mixed

"YOU MAKE 'EM HAPPY AND I KEEP 'EM HAPPY!"

"You Make 'Em Happy — I Keep 'Em Happy!"

In the time it takes to read this far, someone—somewhere in the world—will be putting cold cash on the line in some GE sales outlet in exchange for one or more GE products.

Today's purchase may be a toaster—or a turbine. The purchaser may be a small-town bride—or a big city businessman. This may be the buyer's first encounter with our handiwork—or his umpteenth. In every sale of any GE product, one thing is certain.

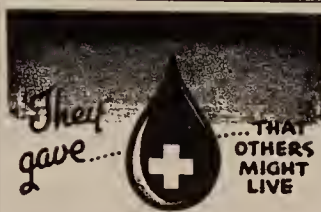

Our best-made product will stay sold only if it serves the customer well—according to his standards of performance. And today's best customer will continue to be a good customer tomorrow, only if every GE product we sell continues to perform well long after the purchase price is forgotten.

That is why all of GE's more than 200,000 employees can properly applaud the GE Service Shop and Service Station employees for the role they play in our over-all job security picture. It is their skill, care, ability—and tact—that keeps our handiwork sold long after it leaves the factory floor.

This year, for instance, upwards of a million American homes will welcome GE electric irons. Some will enter as gifts. Others will be bought directly by the majority of American housewives who have found the GE iron best by ironing board test for a half-century. In either case, every GE iron—like every other GE product—will be backed by close-at-hand servicemen—GE employees whose only product is service.

They won't be called often, because GE electric irons rarely fail to perform in the home with the same efficiency they show on final test at Ontario (Calif.). But when GE's servicemen are called, their courtesy, good humor, competence and speed in satisfying customers will be building something bigger than confidence in GE electric irons.

They'll be adding to the customer confidence that leads brides and businessmen alike to all sales outlets where the GE monogram is displayed.

The following employees from the General Purpose Component Motor and the Specialty Component Motor Departments donated blood during the week ending August 20:

The Importance of Breakfast

BREAKFAST as a word means to break the fast. Remember when you eat your morning meal, you've been fasting for some 12 hours.

When you start the day, it's important that the foods you eat supply the nutrients needed to keep your body operating smoothly and efficiently.

The kind of breakfast you eat determines how efficiently you will be able to produce energy during the day. Energy is produced in your body by the burning of sugar alone or sugar and fat together. Doctors and other nutrition people can measure the amount of energy immediately available to your body at any time by measuring the amount of sugar in your blood. The trick, of course, is to keep your blood sugar at a normally high level so you feel full of pep, think clearly, are free from hunger, and have little or no desire for sweets.

Those who have done much work with blood chemistry have found that foods high in sugar or starch content supply abundant sugar to the blood almost immediately after they are eaten. They have discovered, as well, that the blood sugar content is not well sustained when only such foods are eaten. People who confine themselves to a breakfast of orange juice, doughnuts and coffee are likely to become tired after they are up and about for only an hour or two.

By eating an adequate breakfast, you can provide your body with the energy needed until noon time rolls around. By including protein rich foods plus fats in your morning meal you can raise your blood sugar level and keep it high. You will feel better, look better, and enjoy life more if you eat a breakfast that includes:

- (1) Fresh fruit or juice
- (2) 1 or 2 eggs and bacon if desired
- (3) 2 slices of toast with butter and jam
- (4) 1 glass of milk
- (5) Coffee or tea

If you prefer pancakes or waffles, skip the eggs and toast but eat sausage, ham, bacon or extra milk. Actually you may eat any kind of high protein food you enjoy in place of the bacon and eggs. The English like lamb kidneys for breakfast; so do some Americans. New Englanders eat codfish cakes. In some parts of the country waffles are served with creamed chicken or meat—or whatever left overs the refrigerator affords. Even chicken livers or liver and bacon make a tasty breakfast dish.

If your problem is one of overweight, a good breakfast is even more important. You'll not want to indulge in the high calorie foods such as waffles, sausage or ham. You can still consume the protein and get the potential energy you need by eating an egg and drinking fat free skim milk which is low in calories but high in food value.

The next time you feel listless and grumpy around 10 a.m. think of what you ate at 7 a.m. Was it really adequate?

ever of the church and now Clarence is trying to collect from Sam. Maybe you could deduct the expense from your income tax, Clarence. . . . Paul Arnold blamed his wife for the trouble with his wiring in his new house. He claimed she hit the wire with nails while putting rock lathe on, but come to find out after blowing three fuses, he had a dead short in the wiring and he was the guy that did it! . . . Cora Rice says "thank you" to everyone for all the nice things they did. . . . It is good to see Louie Sauers back at work. It must have been some miracle medicine to make him get well so soon. . . . ## Primer on Communism: No. 17

What Is Titoism?

Basically, Titoism, a form of communism, is a protest by a small, economically underdeveloped country against economic and political oppression by Russia. It holds to the belief that communism should remain within the framework of the nation instead of under the international thumb of the Russian empire.

Tito successfully opposed Stalin's attempt to dictate Yugoslav policy, including Yugoslavian industrialization and collectivization. Tito's success largely hinged on strength derived from American and British aid and absence of Russian armed forces from Yugoslavia. Less fortunate were Tito-like Communist leaders in Bulgaria and Hungary. They were executed.

25-Year Folks to Observe 40th Anniversary of Club; 2,000 Members Expected

A total of 2008 reservations for the Quarter Century Club outing Saturday, Sept. 11, has been received, G. Ray Lindemuth, secretary, announced this week. Invitations sent out to active and retired employees who are members totaled 2680.

Transportation to Franke Park, scene of the event, will be provided from the Broadway gate house the day of the outing beginning at 9 a.m. Return trips will be made following the afternoon program.

The day's program begins with registration in the morning and time for getting acquainted. Dinner will be served at 11:30 a.m. There will be a choice of swiss steak or baked ham, plus a full dinner menu.

Athletic events and games for both men and women have been planned, including a battle in the skies with model airplanes.

The "Green Thumb" contest for retired employee members will be conducted during the day with cash prizes and ribbons going to the first, second, and third place winners in five divisions of gourds and to the owners of the heaviest pumpkins.

At the afternoon program, which will take place at the Franke Park outdoor theater, Wallace E. Beer, Bldg. 18-1, president, will welcome the group and Ab Martin, Bldg. 18-3, general manager of the Hermetic Motor Department, will speak.

Five professional acts will present a program of entertainment for the group. The Quarter Century Club orchestra will present a musical interlude also.

Concluding the afternoon program, 40 attendance prizes will be awarded, signifying the 40th anniversary of the QC Club.

Oscar E. Miller Dies; Ill Since January

Decatur Plant employee, Oscar E. Miller, 62, died Saturday, August 28 at his home in Willshire, Ohio. He had been ill since January.

Mr. Miller joined the General Electric Company in 1944 and worked at the Decatur Plant until his illness.

Surviving are his wife, Hilar; five daughters, Mrs. Heber Alsbaugh, Mrs. Calvin August, Mrs. Louise Ross, Mrs. Clair Kelsey, and Mrs. Gordon Suman; six sons, Hilton, William, Robert, Paul, Jay, and Jimmy; 28 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; a half-brother, John Miller; a half-sister, Mrs. Flossie Boroff, and a step-brother, Jess Michaud.

Services were conducted Wednesday, Sept. 1 in the Zwick Funeral Home at Decatur and in the United Brethren Church in Willshire. The Rev. E. E. Bragg and the Rev. Lawrence Dellinger officiated.

Burial was in the Willshire Cemetery.

Congressman Adair to Give Elexers State Fair Send-Off

U. S. Representative E. Ross Adair will greet 405 Elex members tomorrow morning at 6 a.m. as they board special buses for a one-day trip to the Indiana State Fair. The Fourth District Representative will meet the girls at Lindley Ave. where they will board ten chartered buses.

When they arrive in Indianapolis at the fairgrounds, Gov. George N. Craig will extend a special welcome to the Elexers. Those taking the trip are reminded to be at Lindley Ave. at 6 a.m. sharp tomorrow morning. They should have their club membership cards and tickets with them.

Highlighting a day packed with a variety of activities at the fair will be the Eddie Fisher show with the popular singer appearing in person. Jan Garber and his orchestra and the Mills Brothers will also appear on the program.

The special buses will arrive in Fort Wayne about 2:30 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 5.

WELCOME TO FORT WAYNE by H. A. MacKinnon (center) was given (l-r) G. L. Phillippi, comptroller; A. F. Vinson, vice president; R. J. Cordiner, president; Mr. MacKinnon; John D. Locton, treasurer; A. R. Hines, Apparatus Sales Division; A. L. Marshall, Research Services Division; Robert Paxton, executive vice president, and S. J. Prymas, Accounting Services Division.

MTP Wives Slate Sept. 7 Meeting

The MTP Wives Club will conduct their first fall meeting Tuesday, Sept. 7 at the home of Mrs. John Frey, 818½ Runnion Ave. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Martha Nash, of the Ravens-Croft School of Beauty, will be the guest speaker. She will discuss good grooming, hair styles and coloring, and fall trends.

A question and answer period will follow. Refreshments will be served. Mrs. Versal Shearer will serve as assisting hostess.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

This week the Smokehouse welcomes two more new employees, Joe Braun and Lawrence Satterwaite. If you are a new employee and your name hasn't been mentioned in this column, please don't be offended as it was an oversight and we are glad to have you in the gang. . . . Last week's visitor—Charles Mowery. . . . It's like old times again with Don Voorhees back with us explaining all the superior qualities of his automobile to us. His latest topic is the supreme accuracy of the speedometer. It seems that he and a friend, who drives a car in the same class but of a different make, took a 500 mile trip over the same highways and his friend's car had a speedometer reading 32 miles higher than our hero's. Thus the other fellow isn't getting near the gas mileage he had thought he was. Perhaps it hasn't occurred to Don, but the hood of his car is sixteen inches longer than that of his friend's and in 500 miles that would make a difference of 31.6/10 miles. Why quibble over 4/10 mile, Don? . . . The girls in Bldg. 31 have started a new fad. They are wearing live grasshoppers in their hair. Emma McCormick was in last week with a couple of the green critters nestled in her blond locks and she looked stunning. Matched her eyes too. . . . Eugene Miller, our absent-minded saw man who gets the saw blades in backwards sometimes, had quite an experience the other day. He put his sport pants on backwards and forgot to zip the zipper. He went downtown shopping but his mistake wasn't discovered (we hope) until he returned home. He bent over to tie his shoe lace and his wife thought he ripped the seat out of his pants. . . . Last week while I had my car parked on a parking lot someone stole a hub cap and chrome wheel cover off of it. The insurance company will only buy me one because that is all that was stolen and the auto accessory stores and junk yards will not sell just one. You must buy a complete set. So if the so and so who swiped my wheel cover will please come back and swipe the other three we will both have a set.

A review of your own personal financial security program is necessary to find out whether or not you can afford to invest in securities.

Can You Afford Securities?

As a result of the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and because over 20,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a full share of stock as a bonus for the U. S. Savings Bonds purchased under the plan in 1948, a number of employees have asked us for information about stocks and bonds. Therefore, as a service to our readers we are currently presenting a series of eight articles on this subject. The article in today's issue is the seventh of the present series.

Up to this point we have discovered what stocks and bonds are, who owns them and why. We have also learned what determines the price of stock, how they are bought, and what happens behind the scenes at the Stock Exchange when a prospective buyer makes a purchase order. Now the question arises: "Who can afford to invest in securities?"

In this installment we shall discuss the major questions which everyone should carefully consider before he decided to purchase stock. These are:

- (1) How are you meeting your regular financial obligations?
- (2) How adequate is your insurance program?
- (3) Are you providing for adequate retirement income?
- (4) Do you have an adequate cash reserve on hand?

It goes without saying that no person should purchase stocks or bonds with the money which is needed to meet his regular weekly, monthly or annual financial obligations such as rent, mortgage payments, food, clothing, taxes and so on. These are among his first and foremost responsibilities and he must carry them out so that his basic needs and those of his family will be satisfied without going into debt.

In order to insure that one's illness will not seriously upset his budget and to make certain that his death will not destroy the financial security of those who rely upon him for their sustenance, every responsible individual should provide adequate life and health insurance coverage for himself. In addition he should be certain that he has budgeted for the illness of his dependents.

We at General Electric are especially fortunate to have life and health insurance available at low cost to employees through the General Electric Insurance Plan and for our dependents through an insurance plan or local Mutual Benefit Associations, depending on where we are located. In addition to the insurance protection which is available through these programs, one can, of course, provide further protection through other sources such as savings or personal insurance policies. In whatever way and to whatever extent one chooses to protect himself against financial emergencies, he must make certain that his protection is adequate before he undertakes to invest any of his earnings in the purchase of securities.

Another important thing to remember is that everyone grows older and as he does, he shall arrive at the day when he can retire and enjoy his well-deserved leisure. Therefore, before one considers the purchase of securities, he should be sure that he is taking measures to provide an adequate retirement income for himself. Fortunately, in General Electric we have two sources for providing a basic layer of retirement income. One is Social Security, the other is the General Electric Pension Plan through which we can obtain a retirement pension at extremely low cost to us. You may wish to set aside further savings under the company's Savings and Stock Bonus Plan to be used after you retire for some of the special plans you have in mind which may require extra money.

A person's overall financial security program may be well on its way toward soundness when he has budgeted his earnings so as to provide for his regular expenses, his health and life insurance program, and his retirement income. However, strictly speaking, no financial security program is complete until one has set aside some ready cash. This cash reserve is an emergency fund, necessary to meet the type of bills which crop up when your car needs a new tire, when fuel bills climb because winter is longer than expected, or when a member of the family suddenly needs special dental care. Therefore, before one decides to buy securities of any sort, he should be certain that he has enough ready cash available to meet those bills which cannot be specifically foreseen but which are nonetheless expected to arise during the normal course of every day living.

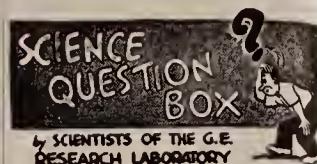

Only a person who believes that the elements of his financial security program are otherwise provided for should consider purchasing securities of some company or companies of his choosing. He must realize that some risk is involved. No one, therefore, should invest in stocks, money which he will need for other purposes. However, while he must not expect to become rich overnight, an investor with a well-planned, long term investment program may generally look forward to a fair return on his extra savings.

In the next installment, which will be the last of this series, we shall discuss the type of investment procedure which may bring desirable results for the average investor. Be sure to read it. If you have decided that you can now afford to invest in securities or if you think that you can at a later date, you will want to learn how you might get favorable results in terms of your present circumstances and your plans for the future.

HANNA ST. NEWS

By Dutch Norwalt

We hear that Florence Converset takes an alarm clock to the beauty parlor now. If it is to wake you up, why wrap it all up, Florence? . . . Richard Goller no longer believes that when "Better cars are built Buick will build them." Since his motor exploded into plenty of pieces, he thinks Buick should build better cars. He is now in heavy correspondence with General Motors. Beware used car dealers for a much used very fragile stripped Buick about to be peddled by Richard Goller. . . . There is so much water at the Hanna St. plant, Tom Freeman thought it was Lake Wawasee and moved his fish worm business into the test section. (Richard rates.) . . . The transformer division burned their bridges behind them when they moved from Broadway to Hanna

Q. What are detergents?

A. Strictly, any cleaning agent, including soap, is a detergent, but the name has come to be applied to the synthetic detergents developed in recent years. These are various chemical compounds, made of molecules whose ends, like those of a soap molecule, are highly "polar." That is, one end has a structure that dissolves in oil, while the other end dissolves in water. In this way they can surround particles of "dirt," particularly those which contain oil or grease, and thus keep them suspended so they may be rinsed away.

Q. Should refrigerators and other electrical appliances be disconnected during a thunderstorm?

A. No, this is not considered necessary. While there is a very slight chance that a surge in the current may damage the equipment, this does not normally happen, especially in thickly settled areas such as cities and towns. Even where the risk is somewhat greater, as in an isolated location at the end of the distribution circuit, lightning arresters can be installed to prevent such damage.

Q. How much of the light received from the Sun is invisible?

A. Of the rays from the Sun, about half are found in the infrared or heat region, consisting of waves too long to be detected by the eye. About 12 per cent are in the ultraviolet, of waves too short to be seen. This leaves about 38 per cent to form of the waves of visible light.

Carl Brandt Named To Credit Union Post

Carl H. Brandt, Bldg. 12-3, has been appointed by Terrace Colvin, chairman of the supervisor committee of the Credit Union, to fill the unexpired term of William Spahr as a member of the committee. The next Credit Union election will be held in January.

Steady passengers are Dutch Norwalt and Leo Vachon. What's the matter, boys, don't you trust Chrysler products? Riding in a Chevrolet, shame. . . . It is reported that Al Topp went over to visit his buddy, Dutch Norwalt. Dutch ran him off without his dinner. Shame on you, Dutch. . . . Bill Fowler is the show piece of the Hanna St. plant with his new maternity dress. . . . Tom Freeman is in full charge of the Hanna St. goat farm. Watch out for the mad dog. . . . ## Poll Shows GE Males Are Shocked By 'H-Look' Explosion from Paris

From the international pace setter of fashions, Parisian Christian Dior, came news last week that aroused the interest and indignation of females and males everywhere. Dior announced his capital "H" look, which he claims creates an illusion of a long, slender torso for milady.

If it's any indication, the reaction of male employees polled here will not boost sales of this newest of looks in the fashion world. The men agreed heartily that they preferred the "old look" with its natural waistline and curves, as the three comments above show.

Giving her impression of this latest fashion innovation is Rita Alspaugh, Bldg. 4-6. Rita also agreed that she is not too keen about the Dior "H" look.

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST. by Luana Oehlaffen

It is reported that Cliff Witham is getting along fine at the St. Joseph Hospital, where he underwent surgery. . . . Lucky Johnnie Burnett was on vacation this week. . . . Otto Brandt who had surgery August 13 is reported to be doing fine. . . . Walt Niemeyer has a 1901 Montgomery Ward catalog. We think he is going to trade his Pontiac on a fringe-topped Surrey. . . . Happy birthday to Oscar Flemming, Aug. 28; Henry Carnall, Aug. 27; Polly Line, Sept. 4, and to Rose Ulrey. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ewald Stinsmuehlen, who recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. Incidentally, in about three weeks, Ewald will be able to take the cast off his arm. . . . Lou Anne Beauchamp was all wet last Sunday in more ways than one. She wasn't swimming either! . . . Eldon Bell doesn't have a little boy any longer. On Aug. 20, Norm was 21. . . . Welcome to June Getty to our switch section. . . . Congratulations to Herb Tons and Neil Allen on celebrating 25 years of service with the company. . . . Fred Campbell's daughter, son-in-law, and new grandson visited him last week. Becky Lisle went to Indianapolis over the week end. We hope she didn't pass every car on the road. . . . Jim Linzell and his new bride went to Clear Lake last week end. Jim got water skiing lessons and a beautiful sunburn. . . . We bet Agnes Brown is happy. Her son is home on leave from the Navy. . . . Cleo Crews who used to work in the switch section had a baby girl, Karen Sue. . . . Guy Bragg and his wife seem to be ardent fishermen. You can almost always find them at Sylvan Lake. . . . Herb Tons has returned to work after a two month absence. He is feeling good and says he is ready for business. That's the old go-go, boy. . . . Carl Miller will take up new duties in the GE Club about September 7. We hope he enjoys his new work. The boys in Hi-Bay will remember him very well. The best of luck, Carl. . . . Frank Boyd played golf and got his best score and a sunburn over the week end. . . . Mike Brayer's son is president of his high school fraternity. Must be quite a boy. Right, Mike? . . . Carl Kloepper stayed home last week end because it was supposed to rain. Silly boy, he believed a weather report. . . . Paul Smith put a new copper pump in his basement. Oh, my aching back!

As the feller said, taxation is a "Capitol" way to make money!

PICK-UPS from 26-3 by Maxine Jordan

Annabelle Blair, Millie Haslup, and Marjorie Fowler had an enjoyable third week vacation. You lucky girls! . . . Happy wedding anniversary to Doris Rinehold and many more of them. . . . Mary Williamson is the proud owner of a new fish pole, one of those new-fangled action poles. . . . We hear Jim McGill has trouble telling numbers over the phone. . . . Murray Sherman was well on the way to setting a record the other morning. He had two flats enroute to work. Murray plays it smart though and carries two spares. . . . We welcome Glen Watson, Eva RETIREMENT GIFT—Edward Wygant holds one of his retirement gifts at the celebration honoring him as he retired from General Electric last month. Mr. Wygant had been with GE since 1943. He formerly worked at Taylor St. and was a Bldg. 17-2 employee at retirement. With him are (l-r) John Imel, Fred Kuker, Herb Winters, Mr. Wygant, Max Clum, John Anderson, Sam Johnson, and Ray Grotian.

Johnson, Frank Shultz, and Clara Cohagen to our floor. Clara has been on the sick list. . . . Lots of luck to Henry Mason and Ivan Lepper who were transferred to Hanna St. . . . Happy birthday to Mary Reed, Lena Forker, and Danny Reuille. Mary treated us to some delicious cupcakes. . . . Congratulations on the new arrivals to Jim Witzigreuter, a baby boy; Mildred Strickler, a new granddaughter; Joe Reising, who formerly worked on our floor, a baby boy, and Frenchy Chilcote who became a grandfather for the first time. It's a 6 lb. 10 oz. boy named Richard, Jr. . . . We guess the roasting ears will be gone before Ed Lauer gets his new chompers. . . . Frank Clibon was called home from work to take care of his private swimming pool. We might mention it was raining that day. . . . Art Pequignot thought Mr. Uhley from Sweden called him the other evening. After Art went through his mile long lingo, the gentleman at the other end of the line said he was Mr. Uhley who lives on Warsaw St. Art's face must have been red. . . . Rose Kreig has joined the sleepy crowd. She just purchased a new TV set. . . . The finishing girls enjoyed working with Susie Pequignot last week. . . . Nancy McCrea and Vera Hoover appreciated the rabbit Art and Frank gave them for dinner. They still aren't sure what they were eating, although there were reports it was groundhog. Vera says it was good, anyway. . . . Rose Kreig really enjoys our GE NEWS. So much, she doesn't understand why the paper isn't here on Thursday. . . . We wonder what explanation Danny Reuille would give if we ask him how he happened to take that piece of chalk he was holding for a cigarette.

SICK LIST

The following people have been reported on the sick list, dismissed from the hospital, and returned to work:

Sick List

Pearl Carder, Eva Gault, Wilbur Poehler, Russel Gerardot, James Thatcher, Albert Laubscher, Beatrice Allen, Howard Knight, Earl Anderson, Elmer L. Minnick, Emma Hagan, Robert O. Vore, Myron Biggs, Charles W. Fike, R. C. Niblick, Carl Schone, Farris L. Thomas, M. Marie Dunn, Norma Arnold, Joseph Bacon, Betty Carper, Virginia Curtis, Josephine Durnell, James Hyde, Clarence Miller, Alice Snyder, Arnold Linne-meier, and Louis Sauer.

Dismissed from Hospital

Raymond Eller, Aldine Bell, Pearl Carder, Carl Schone, Rufus Niblick, Herbert Edgar, Farris Thomas, Virginia Curtis, Ray Swartzel, and Francene Cyr.

Returned to Work

Walter Sollberger, Virginia Gordon, Arlene Underhill, Herbert Tons, Carl Junk, David Harkless, Mable Altimus, George Redfern, Walter Poehler, Violet Trekenberger, Harold Harmes, Clem Myers, George Foerster, Eugene Dean, James Alexander, Myrtle Barfell, Elmer Hatfield, Eva Warnement, William Meek, Mary Berger, Russell Ramel, George Halpin, Viola Jacobs, Velva Smith, Velma Goudy, Herman Everding, Mildred Pfaller, and Elma Keiser.

DECATURITES

by George Laurent

Yes, it can be done. Surprise parties can be managed by the women. Grant Fry was very much surprised recently on his birthday. He just didn't think that they could put anything like that over on him and that he would not suspect anything. . . . An unwelcome visitor caused a lot of excitement and confusion at the Earl Mounsey home in the early morning hours. The elusive and repulsive visitor led them all a merry chase but was finally cornered and to end our story, hang, went the gun, and that was the end of the story, also the end of the rat. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Annabelle Gehrig who has to spend quite some time at home under the doctor's care. . . . The food was on the floor and the laugh was on Harriet Pollock when she flipped her loaded tray in the cafeteria last week. . . . Ira Huber has been on the sick list since the vacation shutdown. The latest report is that Ira is getting along satisfactorily and expects to be back to work soon. Hurry back, Ira! . . . You don't have to be a Scotch descendant to be thrifty. We hear that Grant Fry has system of his own that proves something or other. Seems as though Grant can buy just one magazine and still when he gets home, have one for himself and another for a gift for a friend. Just how do you do it, Grant? . . . Robert Owens, president-elect of the GE Club, has announced the appointment of Sephus Jackson as bowling chairman. Sephus has in turn announced the following appointments to the bowling committee: Mary Miller, Evelyn Plasterer, Jim Harkless, Junior Lake, Clem Snell, Bob August, Ned Myers, and Paul Briede. Anyone wishing to bowl, and if not already listed on a team, is asked to contact any one of the above committee. Factory leagues will start Monday, Sept. 13th. . . . We're happy to have Richard E. King back with us after two years with Uncle Sam's Army. Dick is working in the rotor section in Bldg. 1. . . . We have been unable to check the accuracy of this item, but we understand Dorothy Schnepf tried for many minutes a recent Saturday night to open the trunk of her Ford convertible. It is further reported her mother lent her moral support. This item is unusual only because Dort's car is a very bright red and the car she attempted to open was a very deep blue. Verifications or denials accepted. . . . Buford Dull missed a recent after-hours poker session, not because he couldn't stay awake, but because he had received definite orders from his wife concerning this particular session. He attempted to excuse himself to his friends and was assured by each that he need not apologize, they fully understood who was the boss at his house. . . . We wish to extend our sincerest sympathies to the family of Oscar Miller, whose death occurred Saturday, August 28 at 10:30 p.m. Oscar had been employed at Decatur since 1944 up until February of this year. Although he had been ill since that time his death was unexpected. We all will miss Oscar's smiling face and genial disposition.

An Englishman is a person who does things because they have been done before. An American is one who does things because they haven't been done before.—Mark Twain.

Cafeteria Favorites

Audella Rinehart, assistant pastry cook in the Broadway cafeteria, serves raspberry cobbler.

RASPBERRY COBBLER

2 lbs. frozen raspberries	1/8 tsp. salt
3/4 cup sugar	1/2 Tbs. butter
1 Tbs. cornstarch	1 Tbs. lemon juice

Strain the raspberries. Mix together in a sauce pan the raspberry juice, sugar, cornstarch, salt, butter, and lemon juice. Bring to a boil. Boil 1 minute, stirring gradually. Then add berries. Pour into baking dish.

2 cups flour	2 Tbs. sugar
3 tsp. baking powder	6 Tbs. lard
1 tsp. salt	1/4 cup milk

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Cut in lard. Stir in milk to make soft dough. Roll on slightly floured pastry cloth the size of the baking dish. Cover berries with dough and brush top with butter.

Bake at 425 degrees until medium brown on top. Makes 8 servings.

2-2 TALES

by Belle Buchan

We of the Birthday Club want to thank Martha Small and her husband for entertaining us so wonderfully at their Lake James cottage. It was a family picnic, and everyone had a swell time. Diets were forgotten and we filled ourselves with good food. Even the weatherman cooperated and held off the rain. . . . Jack Welch is in Wisconsin with his Army Reserve Unit, and we hope by the time he gets back his crew cut will have grown out. He looks better without it. . . . Don't let anyone tell you that there are no fish in Lake James. I saw some swell pike on a stringer hanging from Harold Hohman's pier. Harold said that he caught them right out in front of his cottage. That's what the man said. . . . Ethel Perry had her 25th birthday this week and she treated the gang to cherry pie ala-mode. Ethel said we were not to look forward to next year, as this was her last birthday. . . . This week we say goodbye to Harry Chism, who is going to Holland soon. Also, to Frank Shidler, who is going to the Winter St. plant. . . . We are happy to hear that Dorothy Askren's mother is getting along so well after her recent operation. . . . Mel Keissling and Bob Taylor sure picked a dizzy of a week for their vacation, even the ducks are disgusted with this weather.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

Happy birthday to Margaret Taylor, Sept. 7. . . . Hello girl! Last Thursday Phyllis Faulkner was the victim of a prankster. The way we understand it, a certain person put a note on poor Phyl's back reading, "Please say hello to me." How many people were polite and said "Hello" to you, Phyl? . . . Warning Notice: We now have a warning notice to all you hunters and target shooters. "Do not shoot across a Federal highway," because it is against the law. Our hunting pal, Larry Diller, reminded us of the warning last week. It seems he saw a nice target across a still yet unopened to the public highway and took advantage of it. A farmer in the neighborhood informed him of the law, but Larry thought since it was a closed highway at that time, he was doing no harm. But now he can tell us so we all will be wiser if we should be tempted in this direction some day. . . . New girl? Nope, just our Rachel back from the deep south with a new short haircut. Seems the heat was too much for her "dahn seeouth" and she had to cut it short, but we all like it, you all. . . . Ken Anderson, TE in Bob Loveland's group, left us last week to go to school. . . . He flew the coop: "Poor Teddy" Lowdermilk rode through the doorway on his master's shoulders, and zipped up to the wide blue yonder. We honestly hope someone finds him and returns him to you very soon. He is blue and gray and is named "Toddy" and says "Poor Toddy" and "Tick-Tickle." If you hear of anyone finding a parakeet, Serial No. 11x520-53, please report it to Ruth Lowdermilk. . . . Back from sunny California is Bill Rutledge. On a business trip of course, and looking none the worse when he returned to his desk last Monday. . . . TV HEADLINES: The Tom Doell's took off last Sunday and went to see the Waterloo tower. By what we heard, we understand that Tom had a very interesting time going through the TV equipment building and seeing the tower. We are glad to see that our fellow employees are interested in these modern devices. . . . Happy birthday to Margaret Taylor, Sept. 7, and to Paige Thompson on Sept. 8. . . . Don Meyer has returned from his two week's cruise. For the unusual experiences, please contact Don.

Margaret Kenyon must have a new profession, as MD. She brought three bottles of liniment in to some of the girls. It is good for those tired and aching joints and muscles such as you get working at the GE. Ask Margaret about it. . . . Vesta Risser, who has been with us for a long time, retired Tuesday of this week. We wish her a lot of rest and enjoyment with her husband, who also retired a few weeks ago. Come in and see us, Vesta, we will be glad to see you often. . . . A raise in production on the 21 frame has brought a couple new faces on the line. We welcome you all. . . . Mable Altimus is back to work after an illness. She is on days now in lead section. Glad to see you back, Mable. . . . Guess who came in to see us last week. It was Ethel Johnson, the apron sales lady, but she didn't have any this time. She was there in honor of Vesta Risser's retirement. We were very glad to see you, Ethel. Come in and see us often and don't get in trouble in any of those card or bingo games, remember. . . . Ruth LePradd, who is now in Section 114, called on us last week. We were glad to see us. . . . Will someone please pass her and wish she was back with a box for Bob Hull? He was nearly broke, only had a dollar and a bus check. Oh well, Bob, we all get that way, especially after vacation. . . . Our sympathy goes out to Larry Mellinger in the death of his wife. . . . Pearl Forshea was seen in the plant last week. She must be on days. Pearl will you please let us know where you are? We would like to hear some more of those good stories you told us before vacation.

With the day leagues all cleaned up except for the playoff on Blind Bogey Day, Sept. 11, the Owls put on a display of golf pyrotechnics that will be remembered for a long time to come.

PAUL BILLMAN

Wickliffe threw caution to the four winds and went all the way in carding two under par 34 and one under par 35, respectively. To make Billman's score all the more amazing he put together four birdies, two bogeys and three pars for the 34. Pars instead of bogeys would have totaled a 32. I think, however, even Paul is happy with this one. Wick on the other hand carded a bird on No. 11 and parred all the rest for his 35. Nice going, fellows, Tee Off Stauffer doffs his lid to you.

Par In	434-434-545-36
Billman	443-425-435-34
Wickliffe	433-434-545-35

The final week of Owl action found the leading Eagles with Billman as pacesetter slapping down the Pars to the tune of 21 points and winding up the campaign with a plus 66.

In second place are the Hot Shots who find themselves with a plus 22 as a result of a one point squeaker over the Bogeys. An even par card by Wick would have meant a tie. The loss puts the Bogeys in last place and out of contention in the forthcoming Owl playoff.

The Aces barged into the playoff by beating the Birdies by five points.

The league-winning Eagles draw a bye into the final 18 hole finale playing the winner of the round robin of the Hot Shots, Pars, Birdies, and Aces.

Warren Wickliffe with 39.1, Paul Billman with 39.6 and Jim Sternberger with an average of 40.2 lead the Owls for the season.

OWL (FINAL STANDINGS)

Eagles	Plus 66
Hot Shots	Plus 22
Pars	Minus 6
Birdies	Minus 9
Aces	Minus 35
*Bogeys	Minus 38

*Eliminated from playoff.

PONY League Closes Season

The PONY League season was officially closed August 26 with a dinner for the teams and coaching staffs at Goeglein's Barn.

Dan LaPointe and Bob Jones received outstanding player awards for General Electric. The GE Club team ended the season in third place. In the playoffs, they lost by a 9 to 8 score to Huber Business Machines.

Security Cartage were winners in the North division and also won the city championship.

The office serenaded Mr. Uncapher Tuesday morning with "happy birthday". . . . He said we sounded rehearsed. Happy birthday to Mr. Uncapher and Gertie.

MEN BEHIND GE CLUB GOLF—The GE Club golf committee which organizes and operates golf leagues for employees consists of: Shorty Poyser, Bldg. 4-6, league manager, kneeling. Standing (l-r): Stu Fisher, Winter St., league manager; Red Braden, Bldg. 2-2, chairman of the committee; Charlie Briggs, Section 417, Taylor St., and Denny Pease, Bldg. 26-2, league managers. Absent when picture was taken: Floyd Garland, Bldg. 2-2, league manager.

Employees' Favorite Summer Sport Is Game of Golf, GE Club Finds

One of the popular activities offered employees by the GE Club is golf. From May until the middle of September, you can see GE golfers blaze a trail on local links and hear them at work talking averages, team standings, and the good shots made and missed.

Providing this recreation for employees and operating it in a competitive manner is the job of the golf committee. Like all GE Club activities, their work is supported by the vend-

Jean Hockenberry is now another of those gals who will come in each morning looking droopy eyed. They are now the proud owners of a new TV set. . . . Dorothy Long has eyes for only Buicks nowadays. She can't even find someone in the office when they are only about 15 feet from their desk. It's OK Dorothy, that Buick is sure a beauty. . . . Another new car owner is Martha Newell, just a Chevrolet but she sure is proud of it. . . . Evelyn Mayfield just got back from a week's vacation. She said she didn't do anything special but she sure has a gleam in her eye. . . . Good luck to Kaye Schladenhaufen who left us last week for a job in 18-5. . . . Helen Elbert is trying to stay off sweets so if any of her co-workers see her trying to buy some, please stop her. . . . Johnny Logan has been doing double duty since Virgil McGuire is on his vacation. At least it won't last forever, Johnny, and we do hope Mac is having a good time in Minnesota. . . . Ruth Sorg finally got away for her vacation. Boy, we are all envious of all these vacations. But at least we will have next Monday to do as we please, so have a good time everyone.

ing machines located throughout the plants. Headed by Harold (Red) Braden, Bldg. 2-2, the committee consists of five league managers. In each of the leagues are six team captains. These men keep records of each player's average, team averages, and weekly scores. An adding machine might be considered a part of the golf committee's equipment when you see the many sheets of figures that are kept, representing many hours of enjoyment to lovers of the sport.

The current season of golf brought out 207 employees who participated in the following leagues: Monday Afternoon, Monday Evening, Tuesday Evening, Wednesday Evening (Winter St.), Thursday Morning Owl, and Industrial Owl.

Each league has six teams which play each other two times during the season. Totalling it all up, the players have completed 1440 nine-hole rounds of golf this year.

Besides participation in these leagues, the golfers take an active part in the Studebaker vs. GE tourney, National Industrial Golf Tourney, Annual Blind Bogey Tourney, and Midwest Industrial Golf Tourney.

Assisting chairman Braden with the task of running this activity are league managers Shorty Poyser, Bldg. 4-6; Denny Pease, Bldg. 26-2; Charlie Briggs, Section 417, Taylor St.; Stu Fisher, Winter St. and Floyd Garland, Bldg. 2-2.

Like all GE Club activities, the golf committee secures money for operating from funds from vending machines in the three plants here. With this money, awards are made at the end of the season to various types of winners. The presentations are made at the GE Club Athletic Banquet in the fall.

Each league winning team is awarded golf shirts for each member. The GE Club league champion team receives wind breakers and the runner-up team receives trophies. To the Industrial Owl League, which participates with teams from other local companies, go jackets for the members.

As a reward for their service, the league managers and golf chairman also receive jackets.

Little Betty was crying bitterly. Her mother asked what was the matter.

"Boo hoo! My new shoes hurt me!"

"Well, no wonder! You have them on the wrong feet," replied Mother.

Betty kept on crying and would not be comforted. "I haven't any other feet," she cried.

featuring ELECTRICAL "SUNSHINE-HEAT"

with G-E Radiant Heating Wire

General Electric radiant heating wire, installed in the ceilings of these new homes, gives controlled electrical heat with the healthful comfort of sunshine. You get even radiant heat from the ceilings without heating drafts or hot and cold spots. Each room can be kept at its own most comfortable temperature. The air and the whole house stay clean. There are no fumes, no danger of explosion, no smoke, soot or dust-laden air currents.

No Radiators - No Furnace -
Just Heat

G-E radiant heating gives these new homes more usable space, too. There are no radiators, wall heaters, heating ducts, or pipes to clutter up the beautiful interiors. No need to worry about a furnace, chimney, or fuel storage tanks—because there are none. And think of the extra space that makes! Here is heating that's as modern as these new homes—the last word in cleanliness and carefree comfort.

TAYLOR TRIAD by Kathryn Pfister Marylis Lenz Edith Robertson

Evelyn Dyar, Leola Johnson, Veora Habig, Mary Hostetter, and Thelma Bentley will be among the Elex girls attending the State Fair this week end. . . . We extend our sympathy to Neal Dowling on the death of his mother. . . . Adelia Forthright purchased a car recently. Just contact June Vaughn with any car owner's problems. . . . Harvey Anderson is vacationing on Sturgeon Bay for two weeks. Sort of combining business with pleasure. This business of getting away from the pollen causing hay fever is really a pleasure. . . . Mary K. Hostetter is transferring to the plant services section, so before she went back into the wild blue yonder, the girls had a surprise potluck for her. . . . We are expecting to see Bert Martin driving a Chevy one of these days. He just can't keep parking a Mercury around the Bueter residence indefinitely. . . . Some people have been known to put their foot in their mouth, but Mary Cooper must have managed both. At least there was a slight choking noise when she realized that while she was so heatedly criticizing people who leave things behind them, her package was a few miles behind her at the restaurant. . . . Shirley Girod has terminated her typing career with the ediphone room. We think her husband and son Scotty will really enjoy all the extra attention they will get for awhile, that is until they have to share it with another little Girod. . . . Clarice Peters and her husband Dick from Winter St. have a very unusual pet. It is a large spider who lives in the corner of the porch. They catch flies every night and feed it. Once they gave him a grasshopper and the next morning all that was left was the skeleton. Everyone to his own liking, we always say. . . . Paul Merkey always seemed like an honest person, but the other day he was seized with an uncontrollable desire for catsup. Not just a little blurb over his meat, no, he must have the whole huge container. Craftily he crept to his chair in the cafeteria, but some stool pigeon was watching and it was taken away, not without a struggle though. Warning to all eating establishments: This man has arms. He is considered dangerous. . . . We are sorry to learn Joe Yerina, trainee in Section 111, is ill and has returned to his home in Cincinnati to recuperate. . . . Carolyn Wyatt, Jo Franklin, and Jean Weist, our three accounting secretaries, all had the same logical excuse for being late to work Monday morning. The freight train was sooooo long and besides it crossed Brooklyn Ave. at the wrong time.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST. by Harry Parker

During the terrific rain storm one night last week, which was accompanied by a fierce electrical display, Josephine Eme had quite an experience. Awakened by the storm, which was pouring buckets of water through an open window upon the linoleum floor covering, she got out of the hay and made a dash for the window. Failing to observe the water on the floor, her feet flew out from under her. Down she came for a three-point landing. Now Joe, being of ample proportions, wallowed around on the wet floor, thoroughly soaking her sleep uniform. There was nothing left for her to do but don dry clothing and get busy with the mop, the time being 2 a.m. . . . No doubt a lot of you remember what a wash-out Sam Allmandinger's squirrel hunting expeditions were a year ago. He made several trips into the woodlands in quest of these little rodents, but failed to bag a single one. Well, this year he tells us is going to be different, due to the fact that he has been practicing all summer long on shooting, the rats that infested the large wood pile on the rear of his lot. He reports that he is becoming quite proficient in the handling of the rifle and shot gun, so a goodly bag of squirrels can be expected. A detailed report on this year's expeditions will be published later. . . . After work one afternoon last week as we were proceeding east on Jefferson St. and approaching the intersection of Broadway, we noticed that traffic was jammed up something terrific. After the arrival of the police, who succeeded in straightening out this mess, we observed the cause of all the trouble. Willard Hull, one of our pensioners, was breezing merrily along this thoroughfare when all of a sudden his kettle quit him cold. Try as he might he could not get a snort out of the old boy. Result: Traffic tie-up. The last thing we observed was Bill and his clunker being towed away by a wrecker.

The car trouble bugaboo in the machine design section has switched to Les Fanning who snapped the drive shaft in his Ford trying to unleash some of those horses under the hood. . . . The lathe section welcomes Paul Boedeker, who comes to us from Taylor St. . . . Russel Sage and John Snyder, formerly of the lathe section, are now on the bench in 19-5. Good luck, fellows. . . . Louis Paluszak is supposed to be on a diet, but certainly did a good job of forgetting about it last Friday. It seems a friend gave him seven big bluegills and after fixing some salad and mashed potatoes Louie sat down and made short work of the whole mess. You'll have to have a bread and water diet for a week to make up for that, Louie. . . . Paul Weaver must have been born under a lucky star. Not only did he catch a nine pound walleye while fishing in Minnesota, but he also was able to talk a Michigan State trooper out of giving him a ticket for speeding. . . . Ed Boedeker is in mid-season form, bowling a 232 last week. . . . Erl Lenz and Chet Burgette visited the new restaurant east of town to shoulder with elite. . . . Jule Franke returned from his third week vacation looking fit as a fiddle. He celebrated his 25th wedding anniversary during that week. . . . I noticed that Herb Boltz has a new hat. . . . Happy birthday to Frank Elder. . . . DADS vs. SONS: Leroy Cook's son belongs to the Little League and last Sunday they had a picnic. Why is it the dads waited until the last inning to beat the boys, Leroy? . . . What happened the other week to Claude Cline? He was supposed to go hunting with Forrest Reed, but ended up with Jerry Stanger. . . . Does anyone have an extra dishwasher? Reason: Slim Neireiter wants one for Clarence Nichter, so he won't get his hands dirty while inspecting cast iron castings. . . . The boys in the commutator section are having a squirrel hunting derby to see who can catch the most squirrels, verbally that is. . . . Henry Becker is going to supply his bicycle with pontoons. The other evening it seems he didn't think a water puddle was as big as it was and he got wet feet. Of course, it didn't make any difference, by the time he got to Fairfield and Creighton, he was wet all over. . . . We welcome George Phelps to Mr. Wagner's office. We hope he likes it here. . . . Herman Zuber is now the promoter of tap dancing. See him for full details. . . . Congratulations to "Slim" Neireiter on winning a suggestion award. . . . May everyone have a safe and happy Labor Day.

The number of middle-bracket families—with $4,000 to $7,500 income a year—has more than tripled in our country since 1929, increasing from a total of 5,400,000 families to more than 18,000,000 today.

Q-C Club Outing Tomorrow

FOOD FOR THOUGHT—As he prepares 500 pounds of ham and 295 pounds of beef for the Q-C outing, Bob Cutter, left, owner of Cutter's Catering, discusses the food list with Wally Beer, Q-C president, and Harry Zimmerman, food chairman.

Flag Raising at 9:30 a.m. to Open Q-C Folks 40th Anniversary Picnic

How much ham and beef does it take to serve 2000 Quarter Century Club members? A check of the list for the Q-C outing tomorrow at Franke Park reveals that 500 pounds of ham and 295 pounds of beef will be prepared.

A total of 600 pounds of potatoes will be served the 25-year men and women along with 400 pounds of cabbage, 210 quarts of green beans, 270 dozen butterfluff rolls, 105 gallons of coffee, and 400 ½ pints of milk. For dessert, the QC'ers will have 262 9-inch Dutch apple pies. Harry Zimmerman, retired, headed the food committee and worked with the catering firm, which will prepare and serve the dinner.

The record-breaking number of members expected at tomorrow's big event will be celebrating the 40th anniversary of the organization. As part of the festivities, five professional acts will be presented for the enjoyment of members.

The Zoppe Family has been signed for the outing. This group has toured the United States and Europe with large circuses and is an acrobatic group. Music and comedy will be presented by Benny Sharpe and his Three Sharps. They have played in theaters and clubs throughout the country. A picture

...Studies Manufacturing Potential

R. M. Hartigan On Tour of Brazil For IGE Company

Richard M. Hartigan, of the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department, is on a three-month leave of absence in Brazil where he is conducting an International General Electric study of manufacturing potential. Mr. Hartigan, who is manager of Fort Wayne manufacturing and manager of employee relations for the department, left New York City for Brazil August 17.

Oscar L. Dunn, general manager of DC Motor and Generator has announced that Paul S. Stough will serve as acting manager of Fort Wayne manufacturing for the department during Mr. Hartigan's absence. John Scarlett, of the Erie Plant, will be acting manager of employee relations.

War Vets Free Stag Picnic Is Tomorrow

Tomorrow is the date of the GE War Veterans Association free stag picnic. It will take place at the VFW Post, 2202 W. Main St. and will begin at 9 a.m.

Lunch and refreshments will be served and a program of entertainment has been planned. Those planning to attend should take their membership cards to show at the door. The event will continue until 6 p.m.

Herbert Koch, Bldg. 2-2, is chairman.

This is the first event of its kind held by the War Vets.

M&G Requires Safety Glasses For All Employees After Oct. 1

All employees in manufacturing areas of the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department will be required to wear safety glasses on the job as of Oct. 1, it was announced today by P. S. Stough, acting manager of manufacturing.

The 100 per cent eye protection program will be a condition of employment in the department, after that date, Mr. Stough said.

During the past year there have been between seven and eleven minor eye injuries per month and the new ruling is designed to eliminate these hazards.

At present 96.8 per cent of manufacturing employees have been fitted with safety glasses. Three employees saved their eyes since the first of the year by wearing glasses. They were Anthony Wiehman, Bldg. 19-3; Erwin L. Juergens, Bldg. 22, and Robert W. Lagemann, Bldg. 19-2.

Any Direct Current Motor & Generator employee who does not now have safety glasses should contact his foreman or supervisor. Employees requiring corrective lenses should furnish their prescriptions. Those who do not need corrective lenses may obtain glasses from the tool crib.

Employees or visitors in the department temporarily will be provided with safety goggles. Persons passing through DC M&G areas will be required to stay in safety aisles marked by yellow lines.

Test Engineers Change Club Name

The name of the Test Engineers Club has been changed to the Technical Program Club, Al Munster, president, announced this week. An amendment to the club's constitution changing the name was voted on and passed this week by the officers and board.

The change was made in order to qualify persons on all technical training programs for membership, the president stated. The club will now include members of the chemet, physics, technician, and co-op programs as well as engineering program personnel. The new group will be known as the TP Club.

As its first function, the new organization will have a free wiener roast Saturday, Sept. 11, at the New Hermitage.

Break Ground for Sound Room

Carl H. Rinne, general manager—Specialty Transformer Department; Lisle D. Hodell, general manager—General Purpose Component Motor Department; H. A. MacKinnon, vice president; J. J. Clarkson, general manager—Specialty Component Motor Department, and Claude M. Summers, manager—Fort Wayne Laboratory, attend ground breaking ceremonies for new sound room building.

Ground was broken last week for the Fort Wayne Laboratory's sound room building at the corner of Broadway and Swinney Avenue. The unique structure will house a sound room which will provide improved facilities for measuring sound in present and future designs of fractional horsepower motors, transformers, and ballasts.

At ceremonies initiating the project were H. A. MacKinnon, vice president; J. J. Clarkson, general manager of the Specialty Component Motor Department; Lisle D. Hodell, general manager of the General Purpose Component Motor Department; Carl H. Rinne, general manager of the Specialty Transformer Department, and Claude M. Summers, manager of the laboratory.

Quoting Mr. Edison . . .

"I start where the last man left off," explained Edison when asked about his incessant and tireless reading of scientific journals, technical papers, patents and books. He said he read to avoid useless repetition of old experiments.

What the world's most prolific inventor knew, and perhaps said in an unquoted moment, is that thousands of men would be needed to "start where he left off."

During the year that we celebrate the 75th anniversary of Edison's invention of the electric light, it is appropriate to relate one of his most-remembered quotations:

"Just wait a little while," prophesied Edison, "and we'll make electric light so cheap that only the wealthy can afford to burn candles."

Edison lived to see lamps that gave four times as much light and cost one-fifth as much to buy. And electric lighting has progressed far beyond that.

He recognized that an invention does not end a search. It begins a search.

The lamp was the beginning in forcing not only its own evolution but the evolution of meters, fuses, sockets, wiring, power distribution systems, transformers and generating stations.

He lived to see the company that was formed to carry on developments of electric light and power evolve into one of the world's most important research centers. Today, General Electric laboratories employ several thousand men and women who are seeking new things on widely different fronts.

It is 75 years since Edison lit the first successful carbon lamp. He will be remembered for inventions that changed the world. But let him be remembered, too, for inspiring so many men to start where he left off.

Begin At Home

A presidential election usually brings out a lot of enthusiasm and voters. The more people we have taking a voting interest in national politics, the better government we have.

But in all the furor over presidential elections and other national issues, it should be remembered that there is an old saying that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link. And the United States is a federal government born of a union of the states. Thus each state is a link in the chain of federal government, and as such is the most vital unit of our republic.

So when the time comes to vote in state and local primaries and elections, it is well to remember (even if the issues aren't as exciting as the Ike-Adlai battle) that democracy begins at home.

In order to be able to take your part in the General Election in Indiana Nov. 2, you must be properly registered before Oct. 4.

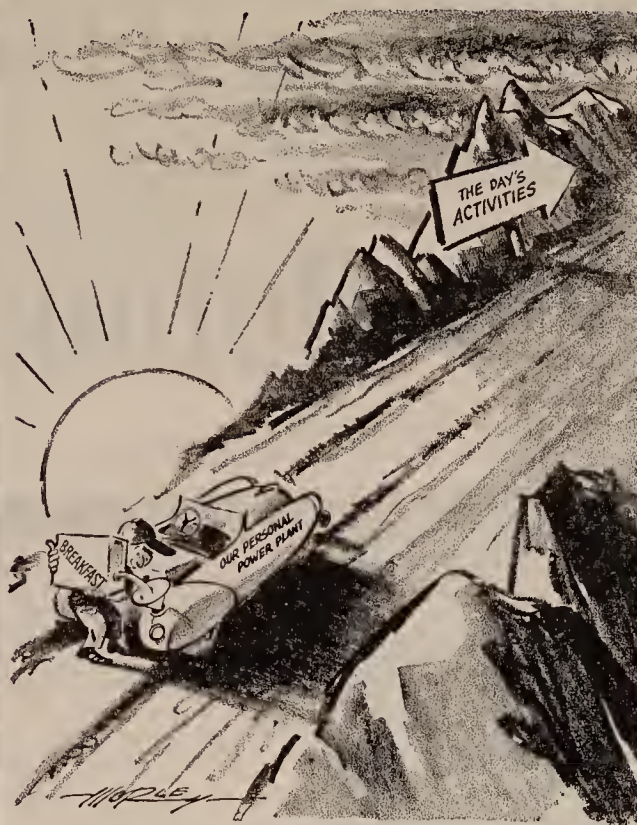

You are properly registered if you have previously registered and have voted in either the May Primary of 1954 or the General Election of 1952 or the May Primary of 1952, or if you have registered since the 1952 Primary. If you have changed your address, you must re-register.

The Registration office is in the County Board of Registration at the Court House.

School Daze

Small boys and girls have so many things to think about going to and from school—kicking a football, a chance to play end on the team, a pencil lost along the way, a squirrel climbing in a tree, a new dress, a trip to the country, an invitation to a party, carrying someone's books,—not much attention left to give to traffic. With this in mind, you must look out for them. Be especially careful when passing schools or children on the way to school.

This is also a good time of year for a reminder to all of us not to pass school buses stopped to take on or discharge school children. This applies on all roads and streets. Buses are plainly marked. Stop to save a life. Don't gamble a few seconds against a child's life.

TIME TO RE-FUEL

Little Known Food Facts

There is over 4 times as much iron in parsley as in spinach. One-half cup of parsley has 9.6 milligrams of iron while a similar helping of spinach has 2.5 milligrams. Sandwiches made of chopped parsley and butter are an excellent food, supplying blood building iron.

There is 2½ times more Vitamin C in a glass of orange juice than in the same size glass of tomato juice. To supply your daily requirements of vitamin C for healthy gums, you'll have to drink a double tomato juice.

Whole milk is loaded with Vitamin A which is an infection fighter. Other rich sources of Vitamin A are apricots, beet greens, broccoli, swiss chard, escarole, dandelion greens, endive, kale, mustard greens, and spinach.

A helping of 18 peanuts contains more Vitamin B1 or thiamin than 4 ozs. of lean beef. Vitamin B1 is an anti-fatigue vitamin and since peanuts are richly endowed with B1, it's a wise mother who gives the young ones peanut butter sandwiches with a glass of milk for snacks.

Liver is a rich source of Vitamin B2 or riboflavin which helps to keep eyes healthy. Milk, kidneys, brewer's yeast and cooked green vegetables are also rich sources of this Vitamin.

Milk and green vegetables are high in calcium, a bone and tooth builder. An adequate amount of calcium is necessary to individuals of all ages, and especially necessary to youngsters and oldsters. A pint to a pint and one-half of milk daily supplies the body needs of the average adult.

Vitamin D is produced by action of sun on skin oils. With the exception of fish-liver oils and Vitamin D enriched milk this vitamin is almost wholly absent from foods. This is the reason everyone should get some fresh air and sunshine every single day, for Vitamin D helps in the formation of good strong bones.

Seafoods are rich in iodine, a substance which aids thyroid glands to produce thyroxin. Thyroxin regulates the rate at which the body burns food, and so is important in regulating body growth and the maintenance of health throughout life. Some vegetables may contain iodine, but the amount is uncertain since the soil in which the vegetables is grown determines the iodine content. Best and surest source of iodine is from iodized table salt available at any grocery store. You'll be smart if you come to prefer that type.

Primer on Communism: No. 18

Who Runs Soviet Empire?

The Communist party runs the government; all candidates in so-called elections are put up by Communists or their affiliated organizations. Elections are therefore stacked, representing only the Communist view.

All important government posts are held by Communists and the top positions go to members of the Politburo, a superorganization of which Malenkov is leader. Malenkov, therefore, rules the Soviet empire.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Those attending the State Fair with Elex were Dolores Stapleton, Doris Rinehold, Erma Werling, Lois Bailey, Wanda Grimm, Winnie Coates, Velma Rose, Lonnie Rockstroh, Ellen Gerbers, Gertrude Kummerant, Helen Studler, Helen Leaman, Helen Coryell, Nellie Wendt, Dorothy Felt, Ilean Young and your reporter. . . . Dave Gilbert is the proud owner of a new 1954 Ford. There is no report on his choice of color. . . . Eugenia Fry attended a wedding and dance at Chicago. Says she had a wonderful time. . . . Happy birthday to Winnie Coates, Sept. 6; Ellen Gerbers, Sept. 14; and Frieda Brandyberry. . . . Mary Cordell needs instructions on sitting down without breaking her toe. . . . Edna Mapes says she could use an adding machine to tally up the count of her grandchildren. . . . Welcome Gene Boothby, stock man to the stacking section. . . . Mary Cordell's "Nipper" (a dog) had a tooth extracted and his nails manicured last week. It took two men to hold him although he weighs a mere couple pounds, if that. . . . We always wonder what kind of earrings Nancy McCrea will wear next. She has quite a collection. . . . Sorry you are ill, Art. Hurry back. . . . It can truthfully be said Frank Clifton doesn't need glasses. He never misses a single thing on the floor. . . . Erma Werling held open house Sunday. We hear there was plenty to eat and a wonderful time was had by all. . . . Will anyone who has a food chopper not in use, please lend it to Ed Lauer. He needs it badly.

SMOKEHOUSE

SAYINGS

by George Winans

Welcome to Luverne Wolfe, our new saw man, who comes from Bldg. 27. . . . So long and the best of luck to Ernie Pfeiffer, who leaves our office to go to Winter St. . . . Martha Musselman, the pretty blue-eyed blonde from 19-2 that passes our door each day, says that since she went on her diet she has lost 35 pounds and that the wolf howls she attracts have increased 75 per cent. In other words, the diet was a howling success. . . . Ollie Miller came to work one day last week with one brown and one black shoe on. When the fellows started laughing about it Ollie failed to see the joke. "What's so unusual about that?" said he, "I got another pair just like 'em at home!" . . . If anyone has a bed with sides on it that they would like to sell, will they please contact Mrs. Ralph Garrett? It seems Ralph has been falling out of bed lately. What's a matter, Ralph, bad dreams? . . . Jake Harshman of Bldg. 4-2 is an employee of 30 years service and was once a member of the smokehouse gang. Last week he started an economy drive by voluntarily cutting his own pay check in half. Seems he just wanted to trim the end off but he stuck the check in the shears too far and—clip. . . . Mildred Messer, our steno, is no watch repairman. Hers wasn't running so well so she pried off the back with a needle and oiled it with some of Officer Tieman's lighter fluid. She showed up for work next day wearing her husband's watch. Hers is in the shop. Last week's visitor—Charlie Mowery.

Memory Expert On Supervisors' Smoker Program

J. Timmons, memory expert, will be featured on the program of the Supervisors Club smoker Wednesday, Sept. 15 at the Southwest Conservation Club. The meeting, which begins the organization's fall program, will start at 7:45 p.m.

Mr. Timmons has appeared on television programs and in clubs in the area. Members will be able to listen to the heavyweight championship fight between Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles also. Lunch and refreshments will be served.

Reservations are due Monday, Sept. 13. Contact men will see all members for reservations.

Phil Singleton, Bldg. 18-4, and Ev Lane, Winter St., are co-chairmen of the meeting. They are administrators of Group 6.

The next program slated for the club is Civic Theater Night, which will be October 6. Members will treat their ladies to a performance of the play "Gigi." Members will be notified when details are completed.

Lubrication Engineers to Hold Meeting Thursday in Bldg. 16-2

Ray McMaken, of Socony Vacuum Oil Co. and technical consultant for the Indianapolis 500 mile races, will be guest speaker at the Thursday, Sept. 16 meeting of the American Society of Lubrication Engineers.

The meeting will take place in the Bldg. 16-2 cafeteria and will begin at 7:30 p.m. J. W. Buckner, Bldg. 19-5, is program chairman of the local chapter of the Society. He has announced that all employees interested in attending the meeting are invited to do so.

A well-known authority on developing fuel and motor oil, Mr. McMaken will show a color movie of the 500 mile race and also slides of the race cars in various stages of assembly. Along with these, he will discuss behind-the-scenes activity connected with the race.

Prior to the races, Mr. McMaken spends several months each year at the Indianapolis Speedway blending fuels and testing motor oils for racers. He has helped contribute greater speeds and power to the racing profession in the past ten years.

El-Par Plans Picnic At Potowatomi Inn

Members of El-Par Chapter of Elex Club will travel to Lake James to the Potowatomi Inn for a luncheon meeting Wednesday, Sept. 15. They will leave Fort Wayne at 10 a.m. that day. All those attending the meeting are asked to meet at the end of N. Clinton St. at that time.

The telephone committee will contact members for reservations which are due today. There will be a business meeting and entertainment program. Members will be able to join Elex at the meeting. Caroline Hans is chairman of the Elex membership and will take dues. They are $2 per person.

A smiling Senator Leverett Saltonstall recently called at the White House to present President Eisenhower with a personalized replica of the one-millionth exposure meter manufactured by General Electric's Instrument Department in Lynn, Mass. The senator also presented the Chief Executive with a small exposure meter for the First Lady.

COFFIN AWARD PRESENTATION—A replica of the Charles A. Coffin medal was presented the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. last week for "distinguished engineering concepts." H. A. MacKinnon (left), GE vice president, made the presentation to C. V. Sorenson (second from right), I&M vice president and general manager, who accepted on behalf of his company. Also attending the ceremony were Nicholas G. Smoley (second from left), sales engineer for the Lamp Division, and C. Fred Fitchey, manager of the Fort Wayne Apparatus Sales Office.

I&M Presented Replica Of Coffin Award Medal

The Indiana & Michigan Electric Company was presented last week a replica of the Charles A. Coffin Medal, the electric industry's highest honor.

H. A. MacKinnon, vice president, made the presentation to C. V. Sorenson, I&M vice president and general manager, at an informal ceremony at the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co.

Established to honor General Electric's first president, the award is presented in recognition of outstanding achievements by electric companies. I&M is one of three operating companies of the American Gas & Electric Company, which earned the award this year for "distinguished engineering concepts."

The award was based on two engineering advances made in 1953 by I&M's parent firm, American Gas & Electric: operation of the nation's first super-high voltage transmission lines of 330,000 volts; and the initiation of manufacture and installation of the nation's first electric power generating unit to utilize ultra-high pressure steam.

In accepting the award, Mr. Sorenson said: "We are proud to have had a part in the pioneering that merited this award—and prouder still that the achievements which have been thus recognized make possible more economical production and transmission of electric power to further benefit the territory in which we serve."

DMM Schedule Picnic For Families Sept. 20

A hamburger fry has been scheduled for their members and families by the Decimal Minute Men for Monday, Sept. 20. It will take place at Memorial Park beginning at 6 p.m. Vern Boyers, Bldg. 4-2, is chairman of the event.

Each family should take one covered dish and their own table service. Entertainment will include square dancing, movies for the kiddies, and movies of wildlife in Canada. Members should meet in the pavilion.

Reservations should be made with the contact men by Friday, Sept. 17. Hamburgers will be provided by the club. In charge of securing food are Eldon Moodie, Bldg. 18-1, and G. E. Hicks, Bldg. 4-6. Harold W. Scheer and S. A. Englemann, both of Bldg. 26-3, are in charge of the movies.

CUSTOMER INTEREST was shown by Robert Flannery, of the White-way Neon Sign and Maintenance Co., Chicago, when he came to tour production facilities of the Specialty Transformer Department recently. His company installs and maintains neon signs in the Chicago area. Conducting the customer on his tour are: Ray Kieffer, proposition engineer; Robert Grove, general foreman; Mr. Flannery, and E. M. Nesvig, sales engineer from the Chicago Office.

Dance Sept. 17 Opens Squares Club Program

The GE Squares Club will open their 1954-55 program and wind up their current membership drive with a semi-formal dance Friday, Sept. 17, at the Chamber of Commerce.

The dance will be open free of charge to members and their ladies. Bob Wiebke and his orchestra will present music for dancing from 9:30 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. Refreshments will be available. Al Larmann, Bldg. 26-2, and Guy Bradley, Bldg. 31-2, are co-chairmen of the dance.

Other events lined up for the club's coming year include:

- Sept. 30—Dinner.
- Oct. 9—Mixed party, style show.
- Oct. 19—Stag, brewery tour.
- Oct. 30—Halloween dance.
- Nov. 13—Bridge and record dance.
- Nov. 20—Square dance.
- Nov. 23—Stag.
- Dec. 23—Kiddies' Christmas party.
- Dec. 31—New Year's Eve dance.
- Jan. 18—Stunt night.
- Jan. 28—Record dance and amateur night.
- Feb. 1—Stag.
- Feb. 12—Valentine dance.
- Feb. 18—Bridge tournament.
- Feb. 25—Bridge tournament.
- March 4—Bridge tournament.
- March 12—Square dance.
- March 15—Stag.
- March 26—Mixed little theater.
- March 29—Stag.
- April 9—Costume party.
- April 23—Stag, sporting event, all day.
- May 3—Annual meeting.

In the current membership drive, contact men are seeing prospective members to enable them to sign up for the year. Dues are $7.50 per person.

Know Your GE Club

Bowling Committee Ready to Launch League Kegling Activity Monday

Smiles of satisfaction and looks of disgust will take over next week at the GE Club where all has been calm and quiet during the summer months. The bowling season has arrived!

One of the most popular activities offered employees by the GE Club, bowling has continued to draw the largest number of participants and faithful fans of any activity offered by the Club. Last year, 640 keggers participated in league bowling and an amazing total of 61,440 league games was rolled in the 15 leagues. In addition to league activity, the Club alleys were the site of several tournaments last year and in previous years.

Keeping this operation smoothly oiled and geared to the large number of followers is a task that falls on bowling chairman Joe Kramer, Bldg. 6-1½A. There are 15 league secretaries to assist him in setting up times when the 128 teams can bowl, keeping scores, and organizing the leagues each year. The chairman also becomes Keghead Kegler each week to do a column for the GE NEWS, keeping bowlers up-to-date on team standings.

With the money the committee receives from proceeds from vending machines awards such as sweaters, windbreakers, belt buckles, bracelets, and trophies are bought and presented winning teams at the end of the season. The champions are honored at the Spring athletic banquet. The committee also pays certain fees for GE bowlers in tournaments and awarded chickens for high games bowled prior to the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays last year.

Keeping the Club open and ready for the keggers to enjoy an evening of their favorite sport is part of the behind-the-scenes activity. Along with this is the securing of pin boys for the many games.

Each summer, the alleys are sanded and reconditioned so that the alleys are rated among the best in town.

All of this is done to provide recreation for all employees interested. Since each employee is automatically a member of the GE Club, each is invited to participate in one or more of the many activities offered.

REMINDER to keggers is posted by Ann Hawley, Taylor St.

Larry Volz, who served himself. We wondered why such a large serving, but he explained he had a wife and two children at home to feed, so we excused him. Ralph also got a new 1954 Oldsmobile 88, which he says his wife got him for his birthday. I wonder! . . . Glad to hear that Jack Lunde's wife is home from the hospital and getting along nicely. Surely hope this was her last trip there. She has been quite ill this summer. . . . Bob Benschling is taking a much needed vacation this week. We hope you have a grand time and get lots of good sleep, Bob. Bob Zollers will soon be taking the final step, and we won't have any bachelors left except Bob Benschling. Now, Bob, doesn't that give you any ideas? Who is that draftsman who is always talking so loud in the back row? . . . Fred Jennart has moved into his new home, but is still working on it. He says he isn't through yet, although they have been in two weeks now. . . . Ross Sills took the "Little Red Barn" train to Indianapolis Saturday to the State Fair. He had been planning all week on that trip too, for some reason, but Ross came in Friday morning looking so sad, and we couldn't figure out what happened. Finally he told us he had forgotten his wedding anniversary on Thursday until he got home and was reminded by Mrs. Sills that it was their 26th anniversary. So you see, he had cause to be worried. . . . Sorry to lose some of our fellow workers this past week. Ralph Kruse, Jim Hampton, Ben Clouse, and Gordon Perry are with the east side now. . . . Bert Meints says it pays to advertise. He is passing around cards to everyone entitled "HR-D-LITE." Anything you need for crop or soil improvement, rote tillers, life time oil filters, and etc. see Bert. Even Mrs. Meints is on the job, too. . . . I see they have marked off two big squares in the garage and painted the names of Reed in one and Fee in the other. But I can't seem to ever find either one of them in their own marked off area. . . . Someone called and asked us to tell anyone wanting Clyde Cree, the truck driver, to just call him Mary. He always answers to that best.

Squares Women's Division Starts Year's Events With Tea Tuesday

A friendship tea has been scheduled by the Women's Division of the GE Squares Club for Tuesday, Sept. 14 in the Squares Club rooms. Beginning at 8 p.m. the meeting will feature entertainment by the Capehart Chorals under the direction of William Luhman. Mrs. Jean Roth will accompany the group.

Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Richard Kilian and Mrs. Robert Rowe. Mrs. Joe Donahoo is chairman of the tea and is being assisted by Mrs. William Abbott, Mrs. Richard Abraham, Mrs. Elmer W. Auman, Mrs. Frank Kilcoin, Mrs. A. F. Lahrmann, Jr., Mrs. Verne Petersen, and Mrs. David Musgrave.

The remaining program of the organization for the coming year is:

- October 12—Fall potluck.
- November 9—Irene Meyers, guest speaker
- December 14—Kris Kringle's Frolic
- January 11—A one-act play, "The Little Prison."
- February 8—Sweetheart's potluck
- March 8—Style show and guest bridge
- April 12—Dudley Horth, guest speaker
- May 10—White elephant auction.

RACONTEUR

SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlaflen

Vern Daseler has a crooked left elbow on his backswing. Don't ask us how we know, but we do. Do you suppose he will start all over to correct it. . . . Why does Bill Weber take off every time anyone mentions the Cleveland Indians? Speaking of Bill, we heard he was in a hot pinochle game at Firehouse No. 5 with Chief Talarico, Ed Loraine, and Carl Langas. It seems Bill was so excited, he forgot to lay down his 300 meld. You'll never win that way, Bill. . . . Dallas Corson's merry Oldsmobile is leading a merry chase. Be careful of the judge, Dallas. . . . Abbie Oyer really had on some sharp shoes Sept. 1. Wonder why he was looking all over the shoe polish? Next time, Abbie, don't go in the garden before coming to work, or tie a string on your finger. . . . Welcome to Sam Herr who is new on the second trick. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reising on the birth of a son Aug. 21. . . . We extend our sympathy to Ted Brockmeier at the death of his mother-in-law. . . . Ray Fredericks has joined a new tribe that call themselves "Indian Guides." This is a father and son alliance. On Aug. 29 the tribe held a big pow wow at Blackman Lake. One of the braves demonstrated to his son how to enter a canoe in deep water and promptly turned over. These braves absorb all the merriment while the young bucks look on in wonderment. Some Indians! . . . Anyone wishing to rent a salamander ladder, please contact Bill Lavine. . . . The girls here in the office are forming a bowling team. The participants are Abbie Hartman, Louise Lamboley, Mary Ensley, Lou Anne Beauchamp and your reporter. Whatta team! . . . Lois Goble's daughter enters Indiana University soon. . . . Norm Gertz left last week to return to Purdue, where he is a senior. Everyone here certainly misses him. . . . Mike Brayer's daughter Nancy left for South Bend Wednesday, where she will enter nurses' training. . . . Wilmar Kruekeberg will be making that trip down the aisle Sept. 11 to give his daughter to her Marine. We wish the kids lots and lots of happiness. . . . Happy birthday to Anna Ruth Clements Sept. 9. . . . Cliff Witham is home from the hospital and is getting along just fine. . . . Congratulations to Harry DeWitt who will mark 30 years with the company Sept. 8. . . . Anna Ruth Clements, Neil Allen, and Clarence Shanebeck are on vacation this week. We hope they are having a swell time. . . . Polly Line's sister from Chicago visited her last week. Those taxies are expensive, aren't they, Polly? . . . Kathleen Jencks' husband starts school again this week. . . . Keith Kalb spent the Labor Day week end at Long Lake in Michigan. . . . Ernie Roman spent the week end at Ford City. We wonder if he will trade his Chevrolet for a Ford now. . . . Did you know that we have our own answer to Mario Lanza? Glenn MacNamara. We are thinking of installing a shower at his desk so Mac will be completely happy.

Such a nice birthday! Whose birthday? Why Ralph Clark's. He got such nice flowers, cards, and a beautiful cake. By the way, the cake was just as good as it was beautiful. Mrs. Elmer Mesing made the cake, and I believe it was still a little warm. Cake was served by Maxine Patterson to all who came in the office, except to

Six Have Leisure Days Ahead

FAREWELL GIFT—Flossie Greek (seated center) opens a retirement gift at one of the celebrations in her honor given by her co-workers. Mrs. Greek had been employed in general service since 1942. At retirement she was working in Bldg. 18.

WILLIAM KAISER RETIRES—William Kaiser (left) says good-bye to Kenneth D. Strong on his last day with GE after 34 years of service. He did electrical work in Bldg. 20-1 when he first came to GE and was an assembler in Bldg. 19-1 until last week.

RETIREMENT CELEBRATION—A large group of friends were on hand to say farewell to Arthur F. Stute, fourth from left in the photograph below. Mr. Stute came to GE in 1919 as a drill press operator in Bldg. 4-2 and was a punch press operator in Bldg. 19-3 when he left on optional retirement.

CUTS GOOD-BY CAKE—Alta Lee cuts her farewell cake on her last day at GE before retiring. At left is her husband, Harry Lee, Fairfield plant, Norbert J. Sordelet, and Leona Lethwaite. Mrs. Lee was a finisher in Bldg. 4-4 when she came to the company in 1943. She worked in Bldg. 26-5 prior to retirement.

LAST DAY AT GE—Bertha Banister (center) gets a big send off from General Electric from R. D. Grove (left) and Darreld Hirschfelder. When she first came to GE in 1922, she was employed in Bldg. 19-4. She worked in Bldg. 26-4 before retiring.

If you have adequate savings and life insurance, and are participating in the GE Savings and Stock Bonus Plan, you may want to invest any surplus income in common stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

What Investment Is Suitable For the Average Person?

As a result of the recent conversion of General Electric common stock and because over 20,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan have received a full share of stock as a bonus for the U. S. Savings Bonds purchased under the plan in 1948, a number of employees have asked us for information about stocks and bonds. Therefore, as a service to our readers we are currently presenting a series of eight articles on this subject. The article in today's issue is the last of the series.

We at General Electric have an opportunity through the General Electric Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan to set aside our basic savings through the purchases of U. S. Savings Bonds and to receive a bonus of General Electric stock equal to 15 per cent of the purchase price of the bonds which we leave on deposit with the company for a specified five year holding period. If you are participating in this plan and still have some extra savings which you would like to invest in securities, then you should choose your investment goals in relation to your means and your plans for the future. These goals usually fall into three classifications—income, safety and growth. Most of us usually want reasonable income and as much safety as possible from an investment. Growth is, of course, desirable but only long-term growth should seriously concern the average investor as much as income and safety. Most of us are not usually in a position to take excessive financial risks or to speculate on an increase in the value of any security within a short period of time. Therefore, we should look to the more stable securities but ones which have long-run growth potentialities when investing extra savings. The average person with extra savings to invest is usually most interested in adding regular amounts to his normal income or in adding to the future income which will be available to him at retirement. Therefore, he will want to invest in different kinds of securities and schedule the investment of his extra savings in such a way that he can obtain a reasonable return with the greatest safety over a long period of time.

This is best accomplished if he uses a part of his money to purchase bonds (usually U. S. Savings Bonds) and part to purchase stock.

The interest rate on bonds of the Government or of companies is generally fixed and is paid at regular intervals or at maturity, depending upon the type of bond.

They provide a fixed-dollar return which tends to protect the bond holder against deflation but this return does not increase with inflation. Common stocks usually rise in market value with a general increase in prices for goods and services and, therefore, usually have a variable-dollar value which has helped to give the investors a hedge against inflation. Of course, during periods of deflation the values go down. In addition, the extent to which investment in stocks may provide a successful hedge against inflation has been influenced in the past by the extent to which taxes may reduce any realized increase.

A balance of fixed and variable returns is an important safeguard to the person with an average amount of extra savings to invest. While an investment program of this type will not make one rich overnight, he may expect a fair return on his extra savings in the long run.

Because the market value of stock is variable, the average person may wish to plan the stock purchasing portion of his investment program so that he uses a regular part of his savings each month, quarter or year to obtain the stock of his choice. This procedure is referred to as "dollar-averaging" and is a widely used method of acquiring stock where safety is a major consideration. This method involves a minimum of speculation and if carried out thoroughly, generally results in a favorable return to the investor who retains his stock over a long period of time. Under this system, as stock prices rise, the regular periodic investments purchase fewer shares but as stock prices go down, the same sums purchase more shares so that the average amount paid per share over an extended period of time does not generally vary as much from the current market price at any given moment as it might if purchased without such regularity.

Anyone wishing to invest his extra savings in stocks may wish to consider using the Monthly Investment Plan established by the New York Stock Exchange in January 1954. Under this plan one can purchase any of more than 1200 stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange by making regular investments of as little as $40 every three months. One can start the plan whenever he wishes, can expand it when he wants to or stop it completely at any time.

If you would like to obtain more information about the Monthly Investment Plan, you should consult a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange.

Whatever method is used to purchase stock, an important fact to be remembered by the average investor is that while market values of stock and the dividends paid to share owners may vary year by year, the investor who purchases wisely and retains his shares over a long period of time has a good chance of obtaining a favorable return on his extra savings. A recent study by the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Michigan indicates that if one were to have invested a fixed sum of money every year from 1937 to 1950 in 92 randomly selected common stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange and if he reinvested all dividends which he would have received as a share owner, the market value of his holdings at the beginning of 1950 would have been 135 per cent more than the money invested in them. In other words, every $1 which one had invested in the selected stocks during this period, would have grown to $2.35.

Another study which suggests the value of a regular long term investment program was made recently by a member firm of the New York Stock Exchange. This study is much closer to home since those who conducted it computed the results that would have been obtained if a person had invested $40 a month in General Electric stock from Sept. 3, 1929 to Jan. 1, 1954. During that period, $40 invested the first day of each month would have meant a total investment of $11,640. Assuming again that all dividends, less commissions, were reinvested (but making no provision for income tax), the holdings at Jan. 1, 1954 would have been worth about $50,000 and would now provide an annual income of more than $2,700. Of course, all this would have happened since 1929 and there is no guarantee that one would benefit from the same kind of price advances over the next 20 to 25 years nor could the same dividends be guaranteed. However, this record does indicate that even with a depression during the early 1930's, a world war, a post-war economic adjustment, the Korean conflict, and the unrest in the world today, the long term effect could have been to the investor's advantage if he had purchased this stock on a dollar-averaging basis and if he had retained it to the present time. Of course, at any one date during this period the value of the stock may have been above or even below the original purchase price paid by the investor for his stock.

In summary then, if you have extra savings beyond those which you are investing regularly as a participant in the General Electric Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan, and if you want to invest these extra savings in securities, with the guidance of a qualified stock broker or a representative of your bank, you should be able to plan a long-term investment program which best suits your pocketbook, your present circumstances and your outlook for the future.

The Zoppe Family
To Appear at Quarter Century Outing

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

The end is near. At the end of the Blind Bogey festivities tomorrow evening, the GE Club golf season for 1954 will all be done except the mop up. Four Day League winners will tee off at 8:30 a.m. in quest of the day championship. The Owls on the other hand will have named their champion today.

Golf chairman Harold (Red) Braden said that the 8:30 time would enable those playoff players who belong to Quarter Century to get to the big party as early as possible. . . . A run down on those eligible for the 18 hole championship playoff is as follows:

MONDAY AFTERNOON (Wire Mill)
J. Steel	38.3
R. Hills	38.6
B. Penkul	41.1
R. Arnold	47.
G. Parkison	48.6

MONDAY EVENING (Pros)
L. Lahrman	42.4
A. Wickliffe	43.3
R. Hoffman	43.3
H. Dimke	44.
C. Denney	44.9
D. Webber	50.2

TUESDAY EVENING (Divot Diggers)
H. Posser	41.3
P. Esterline	42.9
B. Ryan	44.8
T. Dowling	45.
F. Carlson	45.9
J. Wolf	49.1
R. Langdon	49.8

WINTER STREET (Brassies)
J. Skevington	40.8
H. Staley	43.1
W. Hassenplug	48.5
J. Gerick	51.
W. Mollenberg	52.
O. Weitzman	57.6

Here I go out on a limb with a cross cut saw in my hand—Tee-Off prediction. Winter St., the champion, with Wire Mill a close runner up. Chop it off, boys! My neck is on the block.

In the Owl league the Aces were in last place up to the last day's play and now have eliminated the Pars and last year's champion Birdies to qualify themselves for the final 18-hole championship play-off with the league winning Eagles. The Birdies advanced to the semi-finals by clobbering the Hot Shots.

Next week the deck is swabbed for another year; oh why did it have to end so soon.

HANNA ST. NEWS

The longer Robert Goller is foreman, the bigger the tales get. Sixty bluegills last night. (He says). . . . Al Topp still comes to work in the best car built, a Chevy super. . . . G. Goller comes to work classy these days—a new Buick Super Catalina, no less. . . . The news boys at Hanna St. are hard put for a column since leaving their headliner Edna DeLeury back at Broadway. How are you doing, Edna? . . . Bob Barker is in good form from chasing Dutch Norwalt off the conveyor. . . . Glenn Keck says never again will he crab at Wayne Weimer after working in the new set up at Hanna St. . . . Further evidence of confusion at the Hanna St. plant: Karl Moore and Erv Hahn both went home leaving their cars in the parking lot. Wake up, boys. . . . Dick Goller and Harry Lehman are now going steady. Harry washes off Dick's desk and ash tray every morning. . . . Ora (Hopalong) Cagnet, Monroeville's classy looking sheriff, led the parade at the fair last Thursday as usual. . . . We were told by the Transformer management that things at the Hanna St. Plant would be different, and at times even slightly confusing but we didn't realize just how confusing it might be until Erv Hahn our planning expert was observed reversing the use of our washing and toilet facilities. . . . We hate to see Nancy leave for college. So long, Naney. . . . Welcome to Hanna St. plant Thelma Henry, Ina Montz and Katherine Erdly. . . . Bob Haupt keeps his safety badge well shined since Paul Peterson called him "Colonel". . . . Ted Lauterberg has a new hat ordered for protection from the overhead pidgeon roosts. . . . John Mueller and Ed Englert, our enterprising and energetic inspectors, have decided to leave truck driving to the truck drivers and to stick to inspection, after being pried out of a large hole where they recently drove one of our trucks.

Linda Rupert went fishing up in Michigan over the holidays. . . . Margaret Higleman is on her third week's vacation. . . . The topic of conversation this week has been what was seen and what wasn't seen at the Indiana State Fair. Maxine Root, Jane Laurent, Alga Weleh, and Jennie Hey attended the fair with the Elex. . . . Congratulations to Bill Twibell. He has a new baby boy. . . . Fritz Kyotke went fishing at Houghton Lake. Same old story—no fish. . . . Welcome to Simon Burge, who has come on days. Also to Walter Koehlinger from Taylor St. . . . If you're wondering what the sparkle is when you're talking to Martha Jessie, she's been visiting the dentist. . . . Donna Hahn was off her diet over the week-end. She attended a reunion. . . . Have you noticed that glow in Carolyn Girvin's eyes? Her boy friend is back in the States. . . . Barbara Smith Girvin paid the office a visit last week. . . . We hear Bill Curtis had some help with his painting at home. His little daughter spilled the paint. . . . Dorothy Duff spent the holidays in Michigan. . . . Irma and Eleanor also went to the State Fair with the Elex group. . . . Happy birthday to Bertha Poole. . . . Roxie Murray entertained her in-laws from Florida. . . . Next week the bowling season starts at the club, so from now on we should have some pretty good stories.

Squares Lead Softball League To Meet Lab for First Half Crown

by Dexter Marshall

After two weeks of postponed games due to inclement weather, there was a lot of activity in the Interdepartment Softball League last week when some rained out games were made up.

The Squares took two from the GE Vets by scores of 14 to 9 and 7 to 3. The first game was a makeup from the first round of play. This puts the Squares in a position to take the first half championship if they can take a playoff game from the Lab. The second win leaves the Squares tied for first place in the second half and dropped the Vets to fourth. In a third game, the Squares had a game forfeited to them by the Apparatus Sales Trainees.

The Lab continued their winning ways by taking a makeup game from the AST team by a 12 to 4 score. The two teams met again for a regularly scheduled game and this time the Lab took it 17 to 1. The Lab is tied for second place and the AST are in seventh.

The Apprentice School maintained a tie for second place by defeating the Test Engineers 7 to 6. This was an interesting game, but the TE's were hurt by errors and timely hitting by the Apprentice boys. The Apprentice School also took a 9 to 0 game from Winter St. by forfeit. This forfeit dropped Winter St. from the league in accord with league rules.

In other games last week, the MTP's were defeated by the GE Vets 10 to 3. This was a first half makeup game. The MTP boys then proceeded to trounce Winter St. 20 to 4 in a regularly scheduled game.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

On our sick list, Floyd Wygant is improving. Here is hoping he keeps it up. . . . Phil Burney, I understand turned down an offer to drive a hot rod. What is wrong, Phil, are you afraid of speed? . . . Paul Lichtsinn bought a new used car and it came full equipped with a hale of wire and ear jack. Not that it is going to fall apart, but I wonder what the additional things were for? . . . Pat Christie is back in action with his old timer ear. He drove it in the Hometown Fair parade last Thursday and Saturday. . . . Joe Burton finally persuaded Elmer Wagner to see the faisies play, or is it because Mr. Wagner has to be at the game because of his position in the Federation League? . . . Otto Pfueger is on vacation this week. He said he was staying home, but I hear he is going to take in some of the fairs now in progress. . . . Congratulations to Clayton Dafforn's parents, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last week. . . . Happy Birthday to Ross Snyder. . . . Frank Enderle is wearing a new type of safety shoes now. . . . Leroy Cook and his Cubs went to Chicago over Labor Day week end. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Clarence Hipp's wife, who is a patient in the St. Joseph Hospital.

Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

Hi, HO, Come to the Fair—Nine girls from Bldg. 6, second and third floor went to the Fair at Indianapolis with Elex—Betty Swift, Sue Stewart, Olga Weleh, Jane Laurents, Jennie Hey, Sarah Harris, Emma Meyer, and your reporter. It was a wonderful trip and we all hope Elex does it again next year. . . . Happy Birthday to Charles Von Behren, Melvin Schrader, Viola Haiber, and Thomas Fox. . . . Gertrude Koldevey says her horse still remembers her. Hominy is now living on a ranch not too far away. We still say he is a smart horse. . . . Ed David would like it to be known that there is no Irish blood in him as is indicated by the name under his picture in last week's News. . . . The name is Edward O. David. That's all right, Ed. We never did think you were an Irishman.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Don Arnold was all set to attend the Foremen's picnic held a couple of weeks ago at Robinson Park on the banks of the St. Joe river. While he was completing preparations, his wife took the family car and went to call on some friends. Don then decided to drive his truck, but soon discovered that his son had taken off in this. Not to be outdone and living close to the St. Joe river, he decided to row to the picnic. Arriving at the park tired and hungry, he asked one of the gang to help him tie up his boat. Much later when he returned to the river bank intending to depart for home, he discovered that the boat had slipped its moorings and was snagged upon a log in mid-stream. Since it was a nice evening for a dip, there was nothing for Don to do but swim for it. . . . Virgil Poland has been telling us all summer about his wonderful vegetable garden. It has produced far beyond his expectancy and every item has been of excellent quality with the exception of the cantaloupes. He tells us that they have grown to tremendous proportions but they taste like pumpkins. When we were invited over to his place to look at them, we discovered that they really were pumpkins. All of which goes to prove that Virgil surely does not know his cantaloupes. . . . The past week witnessed the retirement of another of our long-service employees. Walter Shelper leaves us after being a familiar figure upon our stage. One by one, our old-timers drop out of the picture. We do not relish this, but it is a way of life and we can do nothing about it. However, we wish Walter a long and pleasant life of retirement. In this manner, he wishes to thank his co-workers for the lovely gifts presented to him on his final work day. He also wishes us to know that he has thoroughly enjoyed our association and will miss it greatly as the days pass by. Now, Walter, don't fail to come and visit us occasionally as we will be expecting you.

TOOL BITS BLDG. 19-4 and 5 by Howard Demsey

Ralph Rosenberry was involved in one of those squeeze plays and put out at home. Impossible in baseball maybe, but he sold his home while building a new one and the new owners moved in before his home was finished enough to live in. He's now renting a house for the meanwhile and hoping we don't have any more bad weather to lengthen the meanwhile. . . . We are very happy to see Glenn Kline back and hope for his good health in the future. . . . Dick Richhart likes to put his best foot forward. In order to keep that foot best he comes to work with one safety shoe and one dress shoe on. . . . Bill Hoell's beautiful tiled bathroom is now open for inspection. Kindly have your dime ready for the turnstile before entering. . . . Happy vacations to John Bendell who is rollercoasting over the eastern mountains and to Joe Mettler who will spend a week at Spider Lake, Mich. . . . Perry Butts' ambition to become a professional baby sitter was blasted after a baby-sitting job the other night. Perry had been instructed to give the baby a bottle at a certain hour but when the hour came around and the baby was sleeping soundly he decided not to awaken it. The baby's mother was slightly perturbed when she came home to find the baby hadn't been fed and Perry received a pep talk on following instructions. You see this lady had a perfect right to bawl Perry out 'cause she was his wife. He promises to do better next time. . . . John Stetler and his wife attended the Michigan State Fair last week end and then watched the speed boat races at Detroit. This boat race affair usually causes John to speed up his outboard, so give him lots of room if you see him on the lake. . . . Jack Hurlless is spending the holiday resting up after a sick spell and says someone else will have to catch all the fish for a change. . . . John Roemer and family attended the Cleveland-Chicago baseball game last Sunday. . . . Rufus Niblick is back on the job, cheerful as ever, after a short illness. . . . Do you ever have that tied-down feeling? Glenn Ramsey and Paul Martin, the terrors of the noon euchre game, recently did. They were tied to their chairs by their apron strings when they tried to get up after the lunch period was over. . . . Paul Brinkroeger swore he would never buy a TV set but last week his two daughters and wife made him weaken and buy one. The only thing Paul complains of now is that he has to eat hamburgers for supper and do the dishes besides the washing and ironing. . . . Leading the Cub Scouts down the street in the Huntertown Fair parade was Scoutmaster Robert Truelove. Bob says his feet are tired; must be a tenderfoot. . . . Kenny Smith went to Sidney over the week end to see if he could interest his wife in a farm down there. . . . John Blair is now associated with the I D O group. We wish him success. . . . Rheinholt Lepper is looking ahead hopefully to a fishing jaunt on his third week vacation soon. . . . Dick Florent has a tune that he whistles all the time, the name of which is "Please Answer Me, My Love." His co-workers are hoping his plea is answered shortly so he can whistle some other tune. . . . Wilbur Lane got hold of a glass of water which was too heavy for him at the cafeteria the other noon and he spilled it all over his tray of food. The cafeteria management was very considerate and replaced his entire lunch. . . . We wonder how long Norm Jackemeyer can keep increasing the size of the tomatoes he brings for lunch. He started with one the size of a marble and is up to baseball size now. . . . Being able to catch paid off for Ed Boedeker the other day and he went home with a lunch pail full of tomatoes. . . . Walt Esterline and Glenn Ramsey are still keeping the onion farmers busy. Walt eats them with his sandwiches every day, and Glenn eats a sandwich with his onions every day. . . . Phyllis Jacquay, Louise Hegerfeld, Loide Luebke, and Virginia Simon attended the State Fair over the holiday week end. . . . The machine design unit welcomes Bob Novacs to their group. . . . In the used car field we can report that Gordon Yaeger now has a '52 Olds 88 and Bob Hirschmann is eyeing a 50 Olds 98. . . . Dick Arnold is golf champ in the design section, having beaten Les Fanning twice and Gordon Yaeger once last week. . . . Russ Hambly is looking forward to the day he can move into his country estate near Uniondale. . . . Kenny Fosnaugh, the apple king, grows five different kinds of apples, all on one tree that is. . . . Don (Sneezy) Clark reports that the hay fever situation is still unsettled. Some times the eyes have it and sometimes the nose. . . . Drive safely. Big accidents grow out of little chances.

2-2 TALES

by Belle Buchan

It won't be long before Walt Kryder will be renting boats on his private lake. As soon as the Cedar Creek dam is finished, Walt will have a boat landing right in his back yard. . . . If you see Ed Trabel, Bob Gebert or Ed Steger running around sans their sox, it is because they lost them in a left-handed golf game to Lefty Slack, Lefty Koch and Lefty Dent. Those boys do all right right-handed, too. . . . Vern Castle and his family have been playing host to the little grandson, but this week the baby's parents took him home. Why do parents have to do that? . . . Vic Cartwright had his desk moved this week, and right behind a post, too. Do you suppose he got tired of looking at John Magley and me? . . . Last week we said good-bye to Sally Lepper, who left us to return to school. All of the girls at Indiana U had better hang onto their boy friends, for Sally is mighty easy on the eyes. . . . We extend our sympathies to Alice Brockmeyer in the death of her mother. . . . If any of you get real hungry this winter, just go out to Lillie Pion's house, she should be able to give you a handout, what with all of the canning and deep freezing she has been doing lately.

"My wife wants to rearrange the room...."

Paul Lippey Takes New Post As Manufacturing Specialist

The appointment of Paul E. Lippey as manufacturing specialist in the Advanced Manufacturing Development Section of General Purpose Component Motor Department has been announced by Clarence A. Brenner, superintendent of manufacturing in the section. Mr. Lippey will work in special process equipment manufacturing.

Mr. Lippey came to the company this year. He completed a one year course in business administration with the Alexander Hamilton Institute in 1944. The previous year he completed a course in production planning and time and motion study at Rutgers University Extension.

He is a member of the American Society for Quality Control and the Foremen's Club of Fort Wayne. A native of Pennsylvania, Mr. Lippey, who is married, lives at R.R. 2, Roanoke.

Break Ground

Unique among present Fort Wayne buildings, the sound room will have a concrete floor and walls and will be floated on 64 springs to provide better vibration isolation. Its floor, walls, ceiling, and double doors will be covered on the inside with a soundproof material. This will be placed on these areas in the shape of waves, or ridges, two feet apart and three feet high. The material which is soft and the method of placing it will eliminate the reflection of sound.

A steel grating platform six feet wide will extend from the doors the length of the room. Products to be tested will be placed on this. Wires will lead from the room to equipment in the laboratory which surrounds the room. Testing and recording will be done from outside the room itself. Present plans call for completion of the building late this year.

Just a little ditty to start our column off with a chuckle. This poem expresses the sentiments of some of our co-workers who were on outings last week end:

There was a little chigger,
And he wasn't any bigger
Than the point of a very small pin.
But the bump that he raises
Does itch like hives.

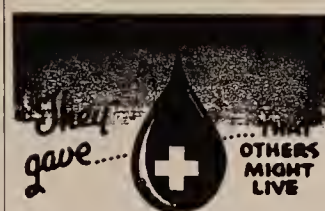

And that's where the rub comes in.
—Alma Raymer

We wondered why Bob Hull was all dressed up with a bow tie last Monday. We learned that his wife, Lorraine, had won the Women's Handicap Trophy of the Lutheran Athletic Golf Association. You should be very proud of her, Bob. . . . Lloyd Garrison and his wife attended the Music Festival in Chicago at Soldier's Field two weeks ago. This item was received by this column too late for the news last week, but better late than never! . . . Margaret Kenyon motored to Dayton two weeks ago and spent the week end with friends. Margaret also visited Rennie Phelps who was one of us in Section 417 until her retirement a year ago. Rennie is happy and enjoying good health. She says hello to all her friends at GE. She also looks forward to receiving

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Chris Flanagan Sept. 12. Are you going to treat this year, or de we have to wait until next year? Also happy birthday to E. M. Stanbery on Sept. 13; Virginia Gruber, Sept. 14; Carl Leitch and Julian Stark, Sept. 15. . . . TODAY we say so long for another year to two summer employees. Don Stapleton will attend Purdue Extension and Fritz Bartlett enters Purdue as the 1954 winner of the Griffing Scholarship. Good luck, boys, and come back some time. . . . RUMORS have it that Bonnie Leazier came to work unzipped and that's not all. She collected for the Friday pool and then forgot to turn the winnings over to the lucky person for several days. Oh well, perhaps she will come down to earth in a few weeks as tomorrow is the day she changes her name. She was honored at a noon luncheon by several of the girls and presented with a gift from the guests on Thursday. . . . NEWEST MEMBER of the Quarter Century Club is Sam Moore. He joined it last Friday, Sept. 3. Congratulations, Sam! . . . FAREWELL to Gale Buzzard who is leaving today and will return to college. . . . WELCOME to Don Kinsey who will be a permanent employee working for F. W. Suhr. . . . THE CHAMPION catsup eater of Bldg. 4-6 is now Ruth Lowdermilk. Last Friday Ruth sat down in the cafeteria to eat her usual meal. She started to put catsup on her hash and ended up with a plate full of catsup. Anyway, Ruth, we think you got your money's worth, don't you? . . . THE NEW CAR CLUB membership is growing again. One of the new members is Art Nickerson, who sports away in a new Olds 88. We heard that Jack Jennings has a new car too, but he keeps changing models. First it was a new Plymouth, and now it is supposed to be a Crosley. Since Jack is a little runt, we think a Crosley is just the right car for him. . . . THE FILE ROOM had a big Labor Day week-end. Alma Cox moved to her mansion on the Bass Road. Mark Smoak and Mary Harper went to the State Fair. Kathy Terveer is planning to paint her house green, of all colors. If anyone wants any hints about painting, please contact Kathy. . . . Lois Richter became a mermaid over the week-end as she went to the lake. Virginia Gruber just loafed along with Dorothy Connors. . . . Eileen Goehring entertained relatives from Cincinnati over Labor Day week end. . . . Congratulations to Carl Starke and Faye Jordan, who celebrated their birthdays Sept. 6 and 8 respectively. . . . Ed Dahlin will be a year younger Sept. 15. . . . We welcome Barbara Jean Nelson in the Purchasing section. Barbara will replace Carolyn Kocks who is leaving us today. Carolyn will become Mrs. Robert Gerard Sept. 18. The couple will then be moving near Wichita, Kans. Bob is stationed at McConnell Air Base.

The following employees from the Hermetic Motor and the DC Motor and Generator Departments donated blood during the week ending August 27:

A visitor in Accounting recently was Mae Bain, who was with us until last Spring when she terminated her career as a secretary to become a student at Indiana University. . . . Bob Ryan, Sales, is "batching" for two weeks while his wife vacations in Utica, N. Y. . . . Betty Williams' brother Jim, chemical engineer in Uncle Sam's Army, has returned from a year's assignment in England. . . . We extend our sympathy to Edith Robertson as she attempts to get her husband started to North Side this week; her son Kenneth to Indiana University next week, and daughter Nancy to Purdue the following. There will be a slight pause in news reporting until she recovers. . . . When we see that certain sparkle in Margaret Peckhart's eye, we know that Benny (Air Force) is about due for another leave. . . . The extra day we enjoyed enabled some of our people to try their hands at the unusual. Elmer Haugk has taken up plastering. If this proves to be a successful hobby, who knows, perhaps sculpturing will be next. . . . Walt Nielson returned to the home town, Wauseon, Ohio, for the long week-end. Hazel and Bill Lichtenstiger (Accounting and Sales) are vacationing for two weeks. Destination uncertain—we believe Michigan may be the final choice. . . . Helen Hopple, also on vacation, will spend some time in Chicago.

Everyone is rested and things are back to normal after a long Labor Day week end. . . . We would like to welcome Rovert Kovacs, a draftsman, to the Fort Wayne Apprentice School after being transferred from Schenectady. . . . The same welcome goes out to Kent Koons, who just entered the machinist-toolmaker course. . . . Beware of the fellow who offers you balls to throw if you ever go to a fair or carnival. This warning is very good advice say two broke and sorry apprentices who spent almost 60 dollars at just such an establishment at the local fair at the speedway. . . . Congratulations are in order for Don Sordet who tied the marriage knot Aug. 28. . . . On a recent week end outing Tim Beitel and Wes Craig found themselves amidst flying rods and pistons as they motored down the highway. It seems the oil pump on Tim's Dodge convertible stopped functioning and almost ruined the motor. . . . Tuesday marked the beginning of a new school year here at the Apprentice School. . . . Dave Jones is the possessor of a "fat lip" received from a collision during a recent ball game.

Tom: "My, but the girl you just introduced me to is magnetic."

Bill: "She ought to be. Everything she has on is charged."

Record Crowd at Q-C Outing

1,750 STRONG—Quarter Century Club members turned out in record numbers for the club's 40th anniversary outing last Saturday in Franke Park. There were 400 more 25-year folks at this year's event than turned out last year for the annual day of fun and fellowship.

LET FREEDOM RING

Let Freedom Ring

Maybe it's because our own school days always opened with the singing of America—followed by the Pledge of Allegiance. Or perhaps it's because the very idea of free schooling for all young men and women—whatever their color, creed or economic position—is so typically American.

Whatever the reason, it was the last three words of America that entered our mind first this week as we listened to the bells that signalled the re-opening of schools. "Let freedom ring"—we hummed—as thousands upon thousands of young Americans in big towns and small towns stood to Pledge Allegiance in opening another school year.

But the kids, by themselves, can only sing their prayer for freedom. If the bells of America's schools are to spell out F-R-E-E-D-O-M clearly to our own youngsters—and loudly to less fortunate boys and girls in other lands—those of us who have out-grown our school clothes must accept the challenge of those school bells.

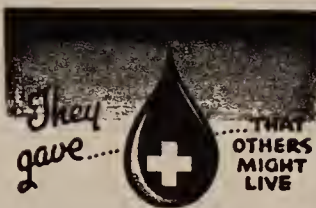

We must do more, in our homes, to teach basic ethics and good behavior to our own sons and daughters. Freedom will soon lose its hopeful ring if delinquent parents expect teachers to "make something" of the young monsters they've bred for themselves through neglect or indifference.

We must decide whether we want good schools or poor schools—and be ready to take the consequences either way. Freedom can be strangled by our rising birth rate if we scream about crowded classrooms, run-down schools and poor teachers while, at the same time, screaming when a bond issue to correct the problems is proposed.

We must keep learning ourselves—no matter how much we think we know—to prove, by example to our youngsters, that education is important. Behind the Iron Curtains of ignorance that shroud most of the world, we can see the burial places of freedoms that have lost their ring.

Freedom's survival will finally be wrought by the young men and women who went back to school this week.

As an added thought, all of us must drive with special care during the ten months ahead. Kids forget. Grown-ups can't. The kid we kill with our carelessness may be our own—or the one that freedom needed most.

The following employees from the Specialty Transformer, Small Integral Motor, and Specialty Component Motor Departments donated blood during the week ending September 3. This is the largest number of people to give blood in one week:

Don R. Batchelder, Vincent V. Busian, Walter L. Coolman, John J. Freely, Jimmie Roggensee, James M. Streit, James L. Waters, J. E. Bunner, Robert V. Dowell, Kathleen Emkow, George W. Harmeyer, Ralph R. Heminger, J. P. Hurtgen, Ralph W. Keller, George Lambroff, Eldon E. Moodie, Everald G. Myers, Thyal L. Neu, Marion F. Patty, Melvin A. Rose, Herb G. Siebold, Raymond L. Soughan, Henry W. Wiegman, William W. Anderson, Robert L. Black, Ralph E. Clark, Edith E. Dreifke, Raymond Finton, Gladys Forst, Arthur H. Fortier, *Ruth E. Freeland, Edward F. Grote, Melvin E. Guillaume, W. M. Hassenplug, Herbert Koch, Sylvia M. Lazoff, John L. Leffers, Nancy McCrea, Walter T. McDougall, John W. Oaks, Harold Orr, George W. Owens, Walter E. Pohler, Robert R. Good-bye and good luck to Frank Boyd and Roy Schindler. Frank is going to the apprentice school, and Roy is going to Syracuse. Frank left September 10, and Roy will leave today. We shall certainly miss them both. . . . Congratulations to Kathryn Erwin, who was grandma again Sept. 7. The baby's name is Cynthia JoAnn. . . . Paul Clendenen's son and daughter-in-law are visiting from California where his son was stationed in the Army. In two weeks they leave for South America for two years. That's a long way and a long time, isn't it, Paul? . . . Welcome to Don Ernst, who is replacing Frank Boyd. We hope you will like it here, Don. . . . Anyone have a spare leash? Marie MacDougall got lost at the State Fair. We wonder what was so interesting. . . . Ray Bobay was on vacation last week. Hope you had fun, Ray. . . . Sandra Brown came home from the hospital Sept. 10 and is reported to be doing fine. . . . Happy birthday to Eva Webber Sept. 7; Ina Armey, Sept. 9; Kathleen Jencks, Sept. 15; and to Dale Irwin, Sept. 18. . . . Carl Reynolds is all set for that soon-to-come vacation in Florida. All he needs is a pair of long socks to go with his Bermuda shorts. . . . Congratulations to Wilmer Kruekeberg's daughter and new son-in-law who were married September 11. We understand the wedding was very beautiful. . . . Two of the girls in the switch section, June and Rosie, evidently thought they ought to have another holiday. . . . Donna Smith is on a leave of absence to take care of her mother. We miss you, Donna, here's hoping you won't be gone long. . . . Paul Hitzmann has been running around in a bow tie for the last two weeks waiting for a grandson. His cat had kittens, so he wasn't wearing the tie in vain. . . . Fred Campbell's daughter is going to attend River Forest College. We wish her lots of luck and lots of fun. . . . Dorothy Money spent the holiday with her sister in her new home. . . . We would tell you all about Eddie Fisher, but we're afraid we would never stop. So all we'll say is "WOW." . . . Si Alspaugh is pretty proud of his daughter, Rita. We can see why. . . . Congratulations to Norb Meyer who is now grandpa. The baby girl was born Sept. 11. . . . Esther Bailey took the fuzz off a bushel of peaches. . . . We hear Ray Brown really cut a rug at Buck Lake Ranch on Labor Day. . . . Clarence Meyers spent the holidays with the elite in Chicago, 14 rooms with seven baths. . . . Lora Groten has the new GE Low Boy TV. . . . Florence Hargan's son Sam was 12 recently. She took him to the barber the day before to save a quarter. But the barber didn't put any stuff on his hair, so they had to buy some. Too bad, Florence, no savings. . . . Judy Lehman has no fish stories this week. What a dull week. . . . Bill Lavine says he is about ready to evict the salamanders from his new home and move in himself. . . . Charlie Hazen was the idol of the small fry at the Huntertown Fair last week. He had his electric trains set up again this year and a very nice layout, too. . . . Dick Nix has a "super speedy" way of reducing the size of reamers. He can take .125 in. off in 10 seconds. For particulars see Dick. . . . When Bob Duras was in Schenectady, he got in what he thought was a cab. After reaching his destination, he paid the driver plus a substantial tip. When the car drove away, he noticed it was a company car. Poor Bob!

Lots of happy birthdays in September: A. W. Bireley, Carl Mann, Dick Raber, and Alice Nichols, Leola Johnson, and Sol London. . . . Welcome to Karl Reid who transferred to engineering from the data bureau. . . . We bid farewell to Joe Feiertag who is leaving us to go back to school at Valparaiso. . . . Norma Poling and her husband spent their vacation in Texas. . . . Everyone will be seeing Max Harris dragging into work each morning until he gets the painting all done in his new home. . . . Olive Walters is spending her vacation in Michigan fishing. . . . Leola Johnson's house-hunting on her vacation this week. Her husband-to-be will attend Tri-State College. . . . Lucky people! Carolyn Petersen's gave the right answer for Dinner Winner. . . . We all want to wish Nina Chane a speedy recovery. She has left the hospital and is now resting home. . . . Bob Wildermuth has just moved into his new home in Anthony Wayne Village. It seems Bob waxed the bathroom floor and later found six tiny footprints on the floor. Well, I imagine Bob had another wax job, thanks to daughter Kathy Jo. . . . Glad to hear B. R. McClure is doing very well after an operation at Parkview Memorial Hospital. . . . The following Quarter Century members from second floor report a fine time and excellent food was enjoyed at the picnic last Saturday: Messrs: Breimeier, Brudi, Ditton, Gellert, Hanna, Haugk, Hodell, Kock, Kreischer, Stock, and Warner. Did you know that Doc Ditton's wife is also a Quarter Century member? Let's give honorable mention to Clarence Kreischer for the excellent catching he did on the softball team. . . . Beth and Russ Young saw the New York Yankees go down in defeat to the Indians in the double-header at Cleveland last Sunday. . . . The two new Buicks that are brightening up the front parking lot belong to Fred Schafenacker and Walt Leifheit. . . . Paul Kurtis has completed his test with Mr. Margerum's group and has left us to work on an electronics business study in New York City. . . . Bruce Kinsey is our new Marketing trainee. This is a third assignment for Bruce who has a M.A. degree in business from Indiana University. Bloomington is his home town. No, he isn't married. . . . Reid Allen is the new TE in Mr. Whearley's group. Reid is a graduate of Ohio State University with a B.S. degree in Agricultural Engineering. Reid is married and has two youngsters, Mark and Sarah. Hagerstown is the home town. . . . Adelia Forsythe (we spelled it right this time) certainly had her co-workers exclaiming over her very becoming hairdo. Some even mistook her for a new girl. . . . The limp that Walt Nielson has is not the result of a hot-foot but a cut-foot, from sliding into third base.

Primer on Communism: No. 20

Is Freedom of Worship Allowed in Red Empire?

No. All faiths have suffered ruthless persecution at Communist hands. Religious schools, societies and parishes are forbidden in Russia. Every church building must display a Red flag and a picture or icon of Stalin; every religious service must include prayers for him.

The Orthodox Church of Russia was given supremacy over Orthodox churches in satellite countries to permit tighter control by Russia. Communism in theory and practice is atheistic and therefore is irreconcilable to religion. This does not prevent Communists, however, from posing as pious church members when it suits their purpose. In 1946 they briefly and unsuccessfully tried to infiltrate the Roman Catholic Church in this pose.

(Adapted from the "Primer on Communism," published by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.)

CAUSE OF RUSH ORDER received by DC Motor and Generator employees for a five-unit set was the huge rock in the photo taken at the Ambuklao Dam project in the Philippine Islands. The rock toppled from a hill at the site and crashed into a large shovel operated by an M&G set.

Rush M&G Set to Rescue Of Dam Project in Philippines

Congratulations for excellent service were sent recently to employees of the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department by a customer and the people of the Philippine Islands.

Far off at the Islands' Ambuklao Dam project people are busy working on the site, thanks to the extra effort extended by DC M&G employees here in sending out a rush order for a five-unit motor and generator set.

On March 21 an extremely large rock toppled from a hill at the project and crashed into a large shovel, knocking out the DC M&G set which operated it. Without use of the shovel, several thousands of dollars were lost each day the huge machine was idle and work at the project was greatly slowed down.

Manufacturer of the shovel, the Bucyrus Erie Company, contacted the department here and in an amazing time, another five-unit set was manufactured by employees and shipped from San Francisco to the project, where it was received exactly one month from date of the accident. Normal manufacturing time for such a set is 16 weeks, but by rearranging schedules and putting on top speed, employees achieved the earlier shipping date and brought the thanks and appreciation of the customer.

Partizan to Install New Officers Tuesday

The 1954-55 officers of Partizan Chapter of Elex Club will be installed in a ceremony Tuesday, Sept. 21, at the Simpson Methodist Church. The dinner meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Irene Meyers, Bldg. 18-1, will install the officers and be the principal speaker. Outgoing officers will serve as hostesses. The telephone committee will contact members for reservations.

New officers are: Myrtle Bennett, president; Edna Berdelman, vice president; Burnis Cramer, secretary, and Betty Miller, treasurer.

The Simpson Methodist Church is located at 2501 S. Harrison St.

Foremen's Association Slates Oct. 6 For Annual Ladies Night Program

Foremen have marked Wednesday, Oct. 6, on their calendar as the special date when they will fete their wives at the Foremen's Association Ladies' Night program.

The event will begin at 6:30 p.m. and will take place at the American Legion Post No. 47 on West Washington Boulevard.

Nancy Lee and the Hilltoppers, popular radio artists, will provide music for round and square dancing from 9 p.m. until 12 midnight. They will also present a one-half hour variety show. Dinner music will be furnished by Principio Rosucci and his accordion.

R. Nelson Snider, principal of South Side High School, will be the guest speaker.

Tickets are $2 per person and may be secured from contact men. Deadline for making reservations is Wednesday, Sept. 29. William L. Paulson, president, Bldg. 19-4, is chairman of the event. He is being assisted with arrangements by Carl Hattendorf, Bldg. 17-4; Ross Strodel, Taylor St.; Kenneth Hyman, Bldg. 17-2, and Freeman Rohlfing, Bldg. 26-1.

Mad Modelers To Hold Meet At Smith Field

(Picture on Page 12)

Six GE employees will participate in the Mad Modelers Model Airplane Meet Sunday, Sept. 19, at Smith Field. The event, which is sponsored by the Fort Wayne Mad Modelers Club, is open free of charge to the public.

A total of 300 contestants have signed up for the contest which gets under way at 10 a.m. and continues through the afternoon. The contestants will come from the Tri-State area.

The six GE employees entered are: Joe Donahoo, Bldg. 4-6; Jack Faust, Taylor St.; John Young, Winter St.; Bob Wickstrom, Bldg. 4-6; Charles E. Derbyshire, Bldg. 26-2, and Jim Kennard, Bldg. 12-2.

Trophies to be awarded total $500 in cost. Four events in which contestants will vie for prizes are: stunt, radio control, combat, and free flight.

Danville GE Women to Host Fall Conference Oct. 16-17

Danville, Ill., will be the site of the 1954 Fall Conference of the GE women's clubs from the midwest area. Saturday, Oct. 16, and Sunday, Oct. 17, have been selected as dates for the event.

The DanGe Club of Danville plant women will be hostess.

Theme of the two-day meeting will be "Woman." Don Poland, will be the principal speaker at the Saturday evening banquet. He will discuss "Women in Industry."

Roqua Wibel, Broadway receptionist, will be guest speaker at the Sunday luncheon and she will discuss "Women of the Future."

The "Oscar" will be presented again this year to the club which presents the best skit at the Saturday banquet. Each club presenting a skit will act out an event in the life of a famous woman from a foreign country. Winner of the award for the past two years was the DanGe Club.

At business sessions Saturday and Sunday, reports will be given by each club represented on past year's activities and plans for the coming year.

Price of the conference is $19 per person. This includes reservation fee, Saturday evening banquet and Sunday luncheon. It does not include transportation or hotel room.

A bus will be chartered by Elex if enough members want this means of transportation. Price of the bus trip will be $4.80 per person. All bus reservations should be made with the Women's Activities Office, Bldg. 18-1. Reservations for the conference should be made with the Women's Activities offices at Broadway or Taylor St., or with Joyce Brumbaugh, Winter St. Deadline for making reservations is October 1.

Hotel reservations may be made by those planning to attend the conference by securing cards from any of the above listed locations.

Any cancellations must be made by October 14 to receive a refund. Nine clubs are included in the midwest area. These include in addition to Elex: DanGe, Danville; Gen-e-Dek, DeKalb; GeCode, Decatur; Gem, Morrison; Chi-Gens, Chicago; Gewatts, Tiffin; Partizan and El-Par chapters of Elex Club.

This will be the 20th fall conference attended by Elex Club members. They had their first conference at Camp Limberlost on Winona Lake. Since then they have traveled to many cities for the annual meetings including New York City where they met at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Apprentice Alumni Slate Stag Smoker

The Apprentice Alumni Association will hold a stag smoker Wednesday at the Southwest Conservation Club. The party will get under way at 8 p.m.

Movies, cards, and other entertainment are planned.

Tickets are 75 cents each and may be obtained from contact men.

Federal Safety Group To Visit Specialty

Members of the Federal Safety Council of Fort Wayne will visit General Electric Monday afternoon to study the safety program here. Herschel L. Smith, supervisor of safety, will speak to the group who will then tour Section 401 of the Specialty Component Motor Department.

Vets Picnic Tomorrow

The GE War Veterans Association will stage their free stag picnic tomorrow at the VFW Post, 2202 W. Main St. It will begin at 9 a.m.

Those attending should show their membership cards at the door. Herbert Koch, Bldg. 2-2, chairman, has asked his committee to meet with him at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Post to complete arrangements.

RETURN TO CENTRAL STANDARD TIME

At midnight Saturday, September 25, the Daylight Saving Schedule will end and clocks throughout the city will be set back one hour, returning to Central Standard Time. However, the company will not change its clocks until midnight Sunday, September 26.

Any third shift operators working on Sunday night will ring in on Daylight Saving Time and ring out on Central Standard Time so that the interval worked will be one hour more than the clock card registration. The Payroll sections will take care of this adjustment in time.

Two Apprentices Graduate As Machinist-Toolmakers

Two graduates of the GE Apprentice School were announced today by Richard Gebert, supervisor of the school. The two who are graduating today are Donald R. Batchelder and Jacob R. Gongaware.

Mr. Batchelder came to the company in June, 1950, and entered the Apprentice School. He graduates from the machinist-toolmaker course. From October, 1951 until October, 1952 he served in the U.S. Coast Guard. While in the Service he completed a six-month course in the Electronics Technician School.

In June, 1949 Mr. Batchelder graduated from Concordia High School. He is single and resides at 519 Colerick St.

Mr. Gongaware graduated from Leo High School in May, 1951. He came to GE at that time and entered the Apprentice School where he graduates from the machinist-toolmaker course.

Mr. and Mrs. Gongaware reside at R. R. 13, Mayfield Place.

Air Shuttling of Rush Job Keeps Customer on Schedule

Three flying trips between Chicago and Fort Wayne plus high-gear efforts on the parts of Specialty Transformer engineering and manufacturing kept a GE customer happy and on schedule last week.

The story began about three weeks ago when the Electric Service Engineering Co., of Joliet, Ill. sent in an order for 1,938 rectifier transformers, of which 195 were needed within two weeks. Normal shipping time is six weeks for these products. The rush was on because the customer had government contracts with severe penalties if shipment dates are missed.

Harold Prichard, of sales, and Bob Hunt, of manufacturing, worked up the rush order. Engineers S. J. Antalis and Richard Quinn designed the units to meet the customer's specific requirements.

On September 8, the Electric Service Engineering Co. called and broke the news that they needed four sets in Chicago on the following day. At 6:30 p.m. the same day, transformer folks completed the four sets. That night the customer sent his plane to Baer Field to pick up the order. Next day, the plane was back two more times. His second load totaled 1,025 pounds, just edging the weight limit for his small plane.

Once again, the GE combo of engineering, manufacturing and shipping clicked to keep a customer happy.

2-2 TALES by Belle Buchan

This week I am writing about no one but me. You see, for 20 years I have been reporting the happenings around me and the doings of the people I work with. Even when I worked in Bldg. 17-4, I wrote a column called "Sunbeams from 17-4" which to this day has earned me the name of "Sunbeam" by my good friend Lisle Hodell.

And what does this add up to? Just this, in one more week I will be just another old retired employee. Yes this is my "swan song" and I don't mind telling you that there is a tear in my heart as I write. One makes a lot of friends, and I hope no enemies, in 26 years of working together. There have been a great many changes since I came here back in 1928. I have only to close my eyes, to see Gus Kayser frantically running back and forth between the only two winding machines we had (one start and one main) encouraging Violet Brower

Elex Club Drive For Membership Closes Tuesday

The Elex Club membership drive closes Sept. 21 for all women employees now on payroll. Dues are $2 per person and membership cards may be secured from contact girls.

Opening the club's 1954-55 year will be the installation candlelight tea Saturday, Oct. 2 at the Fort Wayne Women's Club. Monday, Oct. 11 the regular monthly meetings will begin with the first featuring the Purdue University Glee Club under the direction of Al Stewart.

Persons who join the club for the coming year will be eligible to vote in the coming election, which takes place September 22, 23, and 24. Votes will be counted Monday, Sept. 27 at 7 p.m. in Bldg. 18-1, Women's Activities Office by the tellers committee. All candidates will receive telegrams that evening giving them the results of the election.

Chairman of the tellers committee is Maxine Baker, Bldg. 17-4. Assisting her will be Rachael Fisher, Bldg. 4-2; Peggy Turschman, Taylor St.; Marjorie Meyer, Bldg. 18-2; Maxine Root, Bldg. 6-4; Mildred Schaeff, Bldg. 26-5; Helen Engle, Bldg. 4-3; Ina Arney, Taylor St.; Emma Vaughn, Bldg. 6-2; Justine Brown, Winter St.; Elizabeth Wert, Bldg. 17-3; Mabel Fisher, Bldg. 6-3, and Esther Dalmann, Bldg. 31-1.

and Olive Smith, to make the pesky things work, not only well, but work at all. Oh yes, we have come a long way since then and we are well on our way to bigger and better things. Yes, I have a lot of memories to take away with me, such as Vern Castle with the mumps. Can you imagine Vern's plump face all swollen up with mumps? It wasn't funny, at least not to him. And in those days we had an hour lunch period but we worked five and one half and six days a week, and I made 25 cents an hour. Of course eggs were 12 and 15 cents a dozen too. There were no paid holidays and no paid vacations. I worked ten years before I got a week's paid vacation. But all in all, it has been a wonderful chapter in my "hook of life", and I wouldn't have missed it for anything in this world. Nothing can equal the experiences that I had with the General Electric. So now I close this chapter in my life and just say goodbye, and GOD BLESS ALL OF YOU. Do come out to "Buchan Acres" and visit with Buck and me. We will be so glad to see all of you.

MTP Wives to Hear Caribbean Travelog

Earl Kelsey, of Cleary and Kelsey Travel Bureau, will be the guest speaker at the MTP Wives meeting Wednesday, Sept. 22. Beginning at 8 p.m., the meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Anthony Gioia. Assisting hostess will be Mrs. William Hughes.

The guest speaker will show colored movies and give a travelog on the Caribbean Islands. Refreshments will be served.

Squares Wives Division Announce New Officers

Officers and members of the board of the Wives Division of the GE Squares were announced this week. New officers are: Mrs. Richard Kilian, president; Mrs. Chester Krasienko, vice president; Mrs. George Duncan, secretary; Mrs. E. M. Stanberry, treasurer; and Mrs. Stanley Antalis, Mrs. I. E. Ross, and Mrs. Robert Rowe, members-at-large.

The board for the 1954-55 year will consist of: Mrs. Milton DeJean and Mrs. Richard Hamilton, program; Mrs. James Capps, membership; Mrs. James Walley, telephone; Mrs. Arthur Wilson, publicity; Mrs. Martin Zernick and Mrs. Donald Mohrman, house.

Others on the board are: Mrs. Robert Rescorla, contact; Mrs. Donald Reek, nominating; Mrs. Guy Bradley, ways and means; Mrs. Bruce Rohn, sandwich bar; Mrs. Robert Barker, friendship; Mrs. Earl Elwonger, open house, and Mrs. George Girod and Mrs. Arthur Barnett, TE contact.

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Well, here goes the old "Night Wind" blowing as usual. We start off with a bang saying you all should have seen that two inch thick pork chop that Margaret Kenyon had the other night. Boy, was it a whopper! Margaret says she doesn't like skinny pork chops. She also likes ice cream, the home made kind. She had her fill at Woodburn over the holiday. She just got home in time for work Tuesday. . . . Our heart-felt sympathy to Mrs. Fred Pyle in the death of her mother. . . . We are missing our Elex contact girl, Irma Beard, who is on days. Virginia Free is taking over the membership drive, but won't do any selling. We think Virginia should be a full-fledged and show us those nice things that Elex has for sale at Christmas time. Please, Ginnie. . . . Fred Pyle was inquiring about a lake cottage at Bear Lake and was asking where the nudist colony was located. Listen, Fred the name is Bear not Bare! Oh yes, did you all hear about Fred getting a ticket from George Cogline at the Taylor St. parking lot last week? Better watch your parking, Fred. . . . We welcome Sophia Reig to the 21 frame assembly line. Also Melvin Lyttle. Mel came in a little late last Wednesday and was yawning. He says he can't get used to this second trick after being on first for so long. . . . Naomi Longworth news for the week is "We went to the State Fair and the birds and the bees were there." Did you get stung, Naomi? . . . Mable Altimus also was at the fair. She says it was really hot and dusty there, and she couldn't get a good drink (of water). Finally, when almost time to start home, she found some lemonade which refreshed her. . . . Morrie Siples has been a bad boy and is being punished by Bob Hull, who is putting him on first trick. . . . Anyone wishing to do a good deed and occupy his spare time come to Dorothy Hart's and build her a new chimney. It would be very much appreciated. . . . Elmer Evans is one of our good faithful co-workers. He is a packer on 10-20-30 line and will retire in about eleven weeks. Elmer was asked what he was going to do when he retired and he replied, "I am going to sleep until eight o'clock and have my wife serve my breakfast in bed. Then about nine have her bring me the paper. I will read the headlines and the death column, and if my name is not there I will turn over and go to sleep again." And if it is there, then what, Elmer?

Stores Plan Inventory

The Employee Stores at Broadway and Taylor St. will be closed next week on September 22, 23, and 24 for inventory, Ray L. Fischbach, manager, announced today.

There isn't any map of the Road to Success. You have to find your own way.

Quarter Century Club Outing

Quarter Century Outing

FRANKE PARK

Saturday, September 11, 1954

Q-C THROG ENJOYS BIG DAY

CHOW LINE—Quarter Century Club members line up for their choice of ham or swiss steak dinners at the annual picnic Saturday. Dinner was served cafeteria style to the 1,750 who attended the outing. Harry Zimmerman, retired, was chairman of the dinner committee.

Good weather, plenty of space, and lots of activities and food added up to a day of good fellowship for a record 1750 Quarter Century Club members who attended the annual outing Saturday, Sept. 11.

Old Man Weather sent sunshine and breezes to Franke Park for the occasion and helped to make the day more enjoyable. Under a new procedure, the officers for 1955 were elected prior to the outing and introduced to the members at the afternoon program. They are: Edward J. O'Neil, Bldg. 8-2, president; Charles Winans, Taylor St., vice president; Kenneth Redding, Taylor St., secretary; Gerald C. Michael, Taylor St., treasurer; and Sam Baumgartner, Bldg. 27, director. A total of 2200 votes were cast in the election. The officers will take over their duties January, 1955.

Registration at 9:30 a.m.

Beginning at 9:30 a.m. QC'ers started to arrive and register. As they did, they were presented with leather key cases engraved with the name and date of the event. One hundred and four of the retired members who registered came with their entries in the gourd and pumpkin "Green Thumb" contest. Awards of cash prizes and blue ribbons were presented winners of 19 different classifications and to each entrant went a pair of gloves with a green thumb along with a badge signifying their membership in the QC Green Thumb Club.

Manford Lee brought a 5½ pound gourd which took honors as the biggest gourd. A 25½ pound pumpkin raised by Frank Mintzer won first place as the heaviest pumpkin. William McClish really proved his gardening ability by having the most gourds entered, which were 54.

Food Galore

Lunchtime arrived and members proved that the outdoor air had whetted their appetites by consuming 500 pounds of baked ham, 295 pounds of swiss steak, 600 pounds of potatoes, 400 pounds of cabbage, 210 quarts of green beans, 270 dozen butterfluff rolls, 105 gallons of coffee, 400 ½ pints of milk, and 262 9-inch Dutch apple pies.

THIS WAY TO Q-C OUTING—The city policeman who directed guests to the outing also points the way to three pages of pictures taken at the 40th Anniversary picnic. These four pages may be slipped out of the GE NEWS and kept as a souvenir of the day.

SCENE OF THE OUTING was beautiful Franke Park where Outing guests began to congregate early in the morning for a day of fun and fellowship. This was the first year the affair had been held at a city park.

50-YEAR FAMILIES—Husband and wife teams, each GE employees with 25 or more years of service, pose for the photographer, while they have a get-together.

CLEAR SKIES OVERHEAD contributed much to the fun of the day, with the thermometer at a mild 70 degrees, and a warm September sun shining all day.

GREETINGS were the Order of the Day as guests began to gather at the Outing, to renew old acquaintances. A typical scene shows Veda Orff welcoming Ed Graham and Fred Duryee.

CHAMP GOURD GROWER—Alma Witte and Lois Miller admire Manford (Pappy) Lee's champion gourd in the Green Thumb contest. Mr. Lee's fancy product weighed 5½ pounds.

DINNER BELL at 12 noon called the more than 1700 guests to haked ham and swiss steak dinners topped off with Dutch apple pie. Operation Dinner went off without a hitch, with plenty of food for all.

BAND PLAYED ON—A special feature of the entertainment was a short performance by the Quarter Century Club orchestra, composed of Earl Gebert, Bldg. 4-2, piano; Jim Fay, Bldg. 31-1, trumpet; Glen Miller, Taylor St., saxophone; Ray Kreigh, Bldg. 8-1, drums; Dale Weaver, Winter St., string bass, and Chick Abbott, Bldg. 19-4 guitar.

THE 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE Q-C CLUB was the theme of this year's event. Shown is a group of members who worked for General Electric at the time the Quarter Century Club was born. All the employees in the photograph above have at least 40 years of service with the General Electric Company.

OLD TIMERS MEET—Two retired employees with 50 years of service each, (l-r) Harry Prange and John C. Schoedel, greet Henry C. Lepper, oldest retired employee. Mr. Lepper's son Arthur, stands behind his chair.

PRIZE GOURD GROWERS gather for a picture to display their Green Thumb talents in the contest sponsored by the Club this year. Seeds were sent out earlier this year to all retired members and 19 prizes awarded at the outing for outstanding gourds and pumpkins. There were 104 entries in the contest. A prize list appears on this page.

Q-C Outing Highlights

Serving all the members was performed smoothly with the aid of some of the female members. They served some of the older members who came for the event.

In addition to the dinner, members consumed large amounts of cold pop, popcorn, and ice cream bars. With this as all activities of the day, many volunteer members and committee chairmen were on hand to assure a smoothly operating procedure by offering their services.

In commemorating the 40th anniversary of the Club, all 40 year members were honored and 40 attendance prizes were awarded. The prizes consisted of $10 gift certificates redeemable for merchandise at the Employee Store. Any of the 40 winners who has not received his or her certificate should contact Wallace Beer, Bldg. 18-1, to secure it.

Sports and Games

Activities which brought out group participation included games for the ladies and a softball game for the men. The men divided into the Blue and the Grey teams, with the former managed by Jack Fox, Taylor St., and Otto Rodenbeck, Bldg. 19-5, managing the Grey team. After five strenuous innings, the Grey emerged the victor by a 6 to 2 score.

A model airplane demonstration captured the fancy of many folk as they watched Bob Wickstrom, Bldg. 4-6, and others perform with their model planes. A bait casting demonstration was another of the varied events offered for the enjoyment of members during the day.

BAIT CASTING—Three members practice for the bait casting demonstration, which was part of the morning activities.

INTRODUCING THE SPEAKER—Wally Beer, president of the Q-C Club introduces Ab Martin, general manager of the Hermetic Motor Department, who was the principal speaker of the day. Mr. Martin discussed GE's business forecast.

At the afternoon program, the group assembled in the comfortable and adequate outdoor theater at Franke Park. President Wallace E. Beer opened the program and paid tribute to the 46 members who died during the past year. Principal speaker Ab Martin, general manager of the Hermetic Motor Department, gave a short address, discussing GE's business forecast. He attended his first outing as a members of the Club.

Five professional acts came from engagements in various parts of the country to present an entertainment program. They were: The Zoppe Family, an acrobatic group; Benny Sharpe and his Three Sharps, musical and comedy quartet; Happy Hall, roller skating and dancing; The Chicagoans, a barbershop quartet, and Virginia Page, juggling and baton twirling artist.

Afternoon sun and shadows brought an end to a perfect day for the members and their annual get together.

NEW OFFICERS TAKE OVER—Something new at the 1954 outing was the introduction of newly-elected officers who will govern the club's activities for the coming year. Wally Beer, outgoing president, introduces and congratulates (l-r) Gerald C. (Gerry) Michael, treasurer, Taylor St.; Kenneth Redding, secretary, Taylor St.; Sam E. Baumgardner, director, Bldg. 27; Edward J. O'Neil, president, Bldg. 8-2; and Charles Winans, vice president, Taylor St. New officers will take over their duties in January, 1955.

END OF A PERFECT DAY came late in the afternoon, as the 1700 guests at the Quarter Century Club Outing said so-long for another year to their friends and the 40th anniversary Outing came to a close.

Tee Off

by Earl Stauffer

Twenty weeks ago we were shivering in the early May cold with little thought of Blind Bogey day that was scheduled for Sept. 11. Here it is! Mop up for another season. From now on until the major leagues go south for spring training and the buds burst out in beautiful spring blossom, this scribe will be dreaming of a new season and those horrible chip shots of the past year that spelled super dub instead of just dub. Well, enough crying, my hankie is all wet.

Ninety lads out of the five GE Club leagues braved the early morning cold and were rewarded with a beautiful day and a wonderful time. Thirty-five lucky participants shared the Blind Bogey melon, with Wendell Miller taking the top prize—a year's membership at Brookwood. Miller hails from Bldg. 26-2.

The big event of the day was, of course, the day league championship playoff. The new champions are the Pros out of Denny Pease' Monday Evening League. They played like real pros in spotting all of the other teams a handicap, but beat them all. Rollie Wickliffe was the medalist of the playoff, with an 80. Harold Dimke was close behind with an 81.

The following is the playoff run down.

PROS (Monday Evening)
Skeets Lahrman	82
Rollie Wickliffe	80
Artie Hoffman	87
Harold Dimke	86
	330
WIRE MILL (Monday Afternoon)
Carl Saaf	82
Benny Penkul	84
Harold Parkison	87
Garnell Parkison	86
Heap 5	319 — 334
DIVOT DIGGERS (Tuesday)
Shortie Poyser	84
om Dowling	88
Bob Ryan	91
John Wolf	91
Heap 12	354 — 312
BRASSIES (Winter Street)
Walt Hasenplug	98
Joe Gericks	90
Ry Mullenberg	104
Dick Fahling	96
Heap 30	388 — 338

I know I am a poor guesser, but I came out right on second place. As the results show Wire Mill was in the place position with the Brassies in show and the Divot Diggers, also rans.

The Blind Bogey medalist of all 90 players was Owl League's Warren Wickliffe with a score of 77.

In the money bogey, the winners were as follows: Herb Meyers, No. 414, T. St.; Jack Jennings, 4-6; Chet Krasiensko, 26-2; and Bill Miller, No. 317, T. St.

The pure bogey winners were listed as follows:

75-90 Group

Shortie Poyser, 4-6; Willie Adams, 27; Charlie Kronmiller, 26-2; Garnell Parkison, Wire Mill; Lowell Day, 17-3; Dave Mumma, 8-1; Bill Kayser, W. St.; Benny Penkul, Wire Mill; Joe Gericks, W. St.; and Bob Rowe, 26-2.

91-100 Group

Dick Fahling, W. St.; Walt Hasenplug, W. St.; Carl Reynolds,

Sect. 414; F. McBride, 22; Bob Ryan, 4-6; L. Putman, Sect. 413; C. Nicholson, 26-2; Al Happel, 4-6; Don Hower, 8-1; and Denny Pease, 26-2.

101-Up Group

Les Shroyer, 31-2; Cal Hapner, 26-3; J. R. Clark, 26-2; Irv Cirks, 4-6; Howard Hickman, 27; B. Butner, 31-2; Jack Baumgartner, 4-6; Milt DeJean, 4-6; Ansel Black, 27; and Sogi Soder, 4-6.

The above winners will be notified by golf commissioner Harold Braden.

The Owl league named their champion Friday with the powerful Eagles overpowering the surprised Aces. This makes three different champs in three years for the Owls, a good healthy condition. No report has come in on the final 18-hole match, except one of the Aces told me that 18 holes was just too much, and the Eagles were just too tough.

Very reluctantly I bring this golf guff to a close for another year, but not without giving credit where credit is due. I doff my lid to the league managers, Charlie Briggs, Denny Pease (or should I say his capable secretary), Shortie Poyser, Stu Fisher and Pappy Garland (again I should mention Pappy's ghost writer Dave Mumma) for their capable support in bringing this column to you. A heap of praise goes to the big Red Head for a very successful golf season. In his expert way the league play went off as smooth as silk.

For me it was a most enjoyable season and I for one am glad that the powers that be way back in 1929 or 1930 thought up and promoted the GE Club golf leagues.

So long 'till the first Robin of 1955 . . . TEE OFF STAUFFER SIGNING OFF.

Safety glasses prevented a bad accident last week in the shop. A tool broke on a screw machine and smashed Lem Robinson's safety glasses, thereby preventing the loss of an eye. . . . Last Friday was Stan Williams' last day in apprentice training. He is taking up Industrial Economics at Purdue. . . . Don Sordelet is back from his honeymoon in Florida. . . . Don Bohner announced his engagement. . . . Our hearty congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wagner who are the parents of a

Squares Take Title Playoff Game From Lab 21 to 18 in Extra Innings

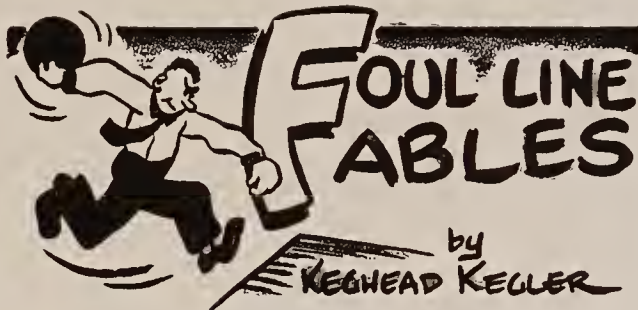

In a rained-out play-off game to determine the winner of the first half of play, the Squares of the Interdepartment League defeated the Lab 21 to 18. The game was tied up 14 to 14 at the end of 7 innings and went 10 innings before the Squares' victory.

Also in a Tuesday p.m. clash, the Apprentice team lost to the GE Vets by a 7 to 3 score. The winners had four homers in the game.

The Squares met the Lab men again Wednesday evening and heat them 12 to 10. The second game of the evening gave the Apprentice team a victory over the MTP's by a 14 to 10 tally. The Apparatus Sales Trainees forfeited to the Vets and Winter St. forfeited to the TE's.

A 4 to 3 game between the TE's and the Lab gave a victory to the TE's. A closely contested game with some lively hitting brought a 9 to 8 victory to the MTP lads who beat the AST team.

There was a resounding bang and once more the bowling season was on. After weeks of fishing and swearing off of the ten-pin sport, the starting week found the bowlers from past years returned to the leagues, and scattered throughout the various leagues are new bowlers. We want to extend a hearty welcome to the new bowlers.

The office league opened the 1954-1955 series and from the looks of the scores this is going to be a pretty rough league. Dick Grate rolled a 572 series which included a 218 game. Don Stoneman, 216; Wes Hahn, 213; Irv Cirks, 212; Frank Schlink, 210; A. Bruce, 210; and Ed Kiningham, 201. Johnny Johnson converted the 5-7 split twice.

Ladies Monday

Five teams are in a tie for first place; Teams 1, 4, 5, 9, and 11 each won all three of their initial starts. The high series was keyed by Ilo Matter a 500 count on games of 182, 164, and 154. Bonnie Wolf rolled a 197; Dorothy Fuhs, 194; and Alberta Roth, 170.

The remaining league will be reported on next week. Watch for activities of your league. If it doesn't show up in this column, see your secretary.

Two bowlers are needed in the Tuesday afternoon ladies league at 3:30 p.m. Contact Edna Bailey, Hanna St., Ext. 307, or Charlie Wilt, GE Club, Ext. 742.

baby girl born September 4th. Her name is Wendy Sue (Not Windy Sue says Dick). . . . Welcome to Ralph Schiewe who returns to us after two years in the service, and to Frank Boyd and Gerald Early, members of the M.T.P. program. . . . Several apprentices were moved last week. They were: Dewey Fields from Taylor St. Lab. to 12-2; Frank Houlihan from 12-2 to Taylor St. Lab; Frank Miller from 12-2 to 19-4, John Blair from 19-4 to 19-5; George Hagenjos from 19-5 to 12-2. . . . Lem Robinson, who is on the M.T.P. program and is from South Carolina, wants to know who the carpet-haggin' Yankees are who have been stealing his scales.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Our safety man, John Collins, has done it again. Poor John! A dull thud was heard and alas, John fell out of his chair. The only reported injury is John's pride. . . . Apparently Jim McGill has conceded the pennant to Cleveland. He says he is going to start paying off. Don't give up, Jim, miracles have happened before. . . . Larry "the poison ivy kid" Ehinger has been having a seige of it. Seriously, we are glad to hear you are on the road to recovery. . . . Congratulations to Hal Hoffman who has a new baby daughter named Susan Marie. Hal has two nice boys and was especially pleased with a little girl. . . . Mildred Leazier's daughter was married Saturday, Sept. 11. Congratulations to the new couple. . . . We Elex girls had a grand time at the State Fair but, oh so tired when we arrived home. . . . Anyone wanting to hear a solo, just wander over to the repair section. Gertrude Kummerant can oblige. . . . A belated welcome to Edna Mapes, Luella Frane, and Alma Darnall. Sorry we forgot, girls. Also to Helen Gresham, who has returned to work after a leave and Chloe Weitzman. . . . We express our sincere sympathies to Billie Tucker on the death of her husband. . . . Ruth Freeland must have been real hungry the other noon as she picked up two forks. . . . Did you ever hear of the state of Indiana keeping a person warm? Just ask Wanda Grimm about it. . . . Lois Bailey was interested in the bus driver we had on the return to Fort Wayne from the Fair. . . . Vera Hoover has turned to part-time painting—on the garage.

Bowling Notes

Women who wish to bowl in the second shift league at 12 noon are asked to call H-75832 before 12 noon any morning or attend the meeting at Scott's Bowling Alley at 1 p.m. tomorrow. Beginners are welcome.

Any second shift employees interested in participating in the Saturday Morning Owl bowling league are asked to contact Charlie Wilt at the GE Club, Ext. 742. The league will bowl at 9 a.m. Saturday.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

Happy birthday greetings to Helen Eger next Sunday, and to Sarah Harris and Sharon Shearer next Thursday. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Helene Nelson's husband, who is a patient at the Parkview Hospital. . . . Virgil McGuire claims he caught approximately 1462 fish on his vacation, Sounds fishy to us, Mac, or else you were just lucky there was no game warden around. . . . 'Twas good to see Dutch Wilson's smiling face last week. He paid us a visit. . . . Emma Meyer is spending her third week vacation entertaining company from California. . . . Edna Turnbaugh of Bad Axe, Mich., a former employee, brought her baby to the Lindley gate so the gang could get their first glimpse of him. He is only one month old and has already traveled over 300 miles.

Helen Brown recently visited with Ilene Richardson. She says Ilene is fine and Judy is cute as a button. Ilene used to work with us. . . . Gertrude Koldewey is absent because of illness. . . . Del Bucher is only half here. He has the upper part of his new dentures. . . . Ed David cannot say "paph"—no teeth. . . . Happy birthday to Ralph Miles and Evelyn Kissinger. . . . Helen and Dale Brown attended the Horse Show. Helen says it was a wonderful show and beautiful horses. . . . Eva Westrick's mother was seriously ill, but is a bit better at this time. . . . Marlene and Don Niccum are the proud parents of Bradford Eugene. Best wishes from all of us to you. Marlene recently worked with us in Regional. Oh yes, he weighed seven pounds six ounces. . . . Mabel Kepler has TV eyes, the reason being a lovely new GE television. Lucky girl! . . . Melvin Schrader treated us to some wonderful fudge the other day in honor of his birthday.

GE DEATHS

Rollo A. Browder

Rollo A. Browder Dies In Waterville, N. Y.

Rollo A. Browder, 72, retired employee, died Sunday, Sept. 12 at the home of his daughter, Janet, in Waterville, N. Y. Burial was in that location.

In March, 1917 Mr. Browder came to the General Electric Company and entered the laboratory as a chemist. He was chief chemist when he retired Oct. 1, 1945. Mr. Browder and his wife lived at 3424 Beaver Ave. until moving east. He was a Quarter Century Club member. Mr. Browder was the first laboratory employee to retire.

Survivors include his wife, Berniece, and daughter, Mrs. A. J. Vetter and her family at Waterville.

Earl H. Custard

Rites Held Wednesday For Earl Custard, 67

Services for Earl H. Custard, 67, were conducted Wednesday, Sept. 15 in the Roberts Funeral Home, Huntington. The Rev. Wayne Paulen officiated. Burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery at Huntington.

Mr. Custard died Sunday, Sept. 12 at his home, 2429 Juliette St. He came to GE in 1942 and went to work at the Winter St. Plant. He retired from Bldg. 26-2 in December, 1951.

In addition to his wife, Garnet, survivors include: three step-daughters, Mrs. Fred Whitted, Mrs. Harold Wedler, and Mrs. Boyd Evans; nine step-grandchildren, and three step-great-grandchildren.

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

Highlights of Elex at the State Fair: From all reports everyone had a grand time. Mark Zirkle bought some candy, then left it there. . . . Doris Ryan wondered why the horses had hats on their tails. . . . Virgie Mayer liked the fair so well, she would like to go back. . . . Elizabeth Wert, Ruth Limenstoll, and Lorena Buuck enjoyed the "kiddies" ride. . . . Frank Shidler was seen resting his doggies. . . . While watching the 4-H style show Mark Zirkle pulled off her shoes. She had a struggle getting them back on. Floetta Zartman offered her the extra pair she had along, but they were too small. . . . Bertha Witham bought a basket to carry her raincoat. . . . Stella Kempf received a nice sunburn while doing the midway. . . . Mildred Schoenlein and Marge Ponsot were seen with their arms full of dogs. . . . Can you imagine it? . . . Irene Meyers sure likes bananas! . . . Archie Evans and Ed Martin were seen waiting for their wives in the wee small hours. . . . Stella Kempf, Doris Lontz, and Freddie Reinking were enjoying a vacation last week. . . . Mabel Schaaf is on vacation this week. She went to Detroit. . . . Glad to see Luella Masson ringing in her elock card again. . . . Little Tommy is issuing his calling cards from the Johnny Hart residence. Congratulations to the new parents. . . . Congratulations to Maurice Allen and Jesse Hahn for being with the company for 25 years. . . . The other day when Peggy Wood made a beautiful three-point landing she looked up and said, "Well, anyway, all I broke was the handle of my cup." That was easily replaced, wasn't it? . . . Leona Hollis really likes catsup. The other day in the cafeteria, she put a whole bottle on her meat. . . . Verda Deal's son is home from the Army. Ted is entering Purdue this fall. . . . Charlie Rice came up to bid us good-by. He is going to the Winter St. plant. Best of luck in your new job. . . . Memo to Luella Knoche: Always put stamps on your letters or else they will come back.

When Paul Dole and wife returned from church last Sunday, they noticed the whole block was black with smelly smoke. After investigating they found that the firemen has just rescued their chicken dinner from the automatic oven which had failed to be automatic. . . . From the looks of Dick McNiece's eye we thought maybe he was talking when he should have been listening, but it turned out to be poison itchy. About all Chet Burgette and Vic Barcus have to do to break out is to read this. . . . Glenn Bowers was one of the lucky prize winners at the Quarter Century Outing. . . . Carl Schlenker had stars in his eyes last Sunday. These were the genuine type and he was on the receiving end of the 12 inch telescope at Indiana University. They told him they had it focused on Venus but he was disappointed when it turned out to be just a planet. . . . Bud Dunlap and Woodrow Hursh got skunked on a fishing trip to Coldwater Lake over the week end. . . . Gus Ormsby thought it was too early for election bets when he saw Bob Moshammer shining Maury Sordet's shoes, so he decided to get into the act and get his shined too. Now he thinks 50 cents is too high for a shine. . . . Paul Weaver is having some trouble with the delivery date but he hopes to have a new hard-top Buick before long. . . . If you find anything wrong with your Pet Milk in the near future take your complaints to Kenny McCague. He's been helping his son on his new Pet Milk route. . . . During a rainy day recently Ross Cohagen got a lot of ribbing about his favorite state, California, and her ankle-deep dew. . . . Don Eme and family spent their third week vacation at Coldwater Lake in Michigan and reported the fishing was poor. . . . Don't let anyone tell you that philately will get you nowhere. Henry Wittber has been elected vice-president of the Stamp Club. . . . The latest TV fans are Carl Click and Eric Bluhm. . . . Bob Calkins is spending his spare time painting his recently acquired home. . . . Richard Burns is busy making a supply of arrows for his proposed hunting expedition to Michigan. . . . The fellows in Bldg. 19-4 east end wish Lindy Bryant good luck on his new job in the steel room in Bldg. 19-5. . . . Del Stickler reports a very pleasant week-end. Del and two other men from his church at Markle attended a men's conference at Greencastle and also toured the campus of DePaul while there. . . . Happy birthday to Beth Jacobs. . . . Here is a 10-pound pike that Paul Weaver caught in Minnesota. Paul won the weekly prize for the biggest. When Walter Pook saw the picture he said Paul must run a fish market on the side in Minnesota. . . . Kurt Martin caught his limit of bluegills at Barbee Lake but he claims that a two-pound catfish tore a hole in the bottom of his fish sack and all he could find were 10 of his bluegills. . . . Dick Pohler received an unexpected compliment when he visited the nurse's quarters where his daughter is in nurse's training. As they walked through the corridors usually verboten to males, he heard someone call out, "Man on floor." . . . Art Dicke bought a new TV set and discovered some sets don't need a snow shovel. He needed a fire extinguisher for his. After Art turned the set on the smoke started rolling out and in a matter of minutes it was all burned up, as was Art. . . . At the Quarter Century outing Art Thieme noticed a small boy fishing with a casting rod and decided he would give him some expert advice and show him how to improve on his 25 foot casts. After several casts, the best of which reached five feet from shore, Art gave up and decided the boy didn't need any help. . . . Drive carefully. The man in the other car might owe you some money.

Prize Catch

A lot of guys are so busy learning the tricks of their trade that they forget to learn the trade.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Good-by and good luck to Dan Ferguson, Jason Black, and Eugene Miller. Jason goes to Bldg. 19-4, Eugene leaves GE to take a position with Sears Roebuck and Company, and we sincerely hope Dan finds employment real soon. . . . Welcome to Jerome Galland, our new second trick dispatcher. . . . We are sorry to hear that Max Lichty and his wife were injured in an auto accident. Max is back at work but he still looks a little scuffed up. . . . Ralph (Chick) Niman of Bldg. 27 enjoyed a trip to the State Fair with the Elex girls. Some guys get all the breaks! . . . Now that the kids are back in school and your pocketbook has partially recovered from its recent attack of book-itis, this little item should interest you. When Henry Wells purchased his cabin up in Canada, he acquired a selection of books left there by a previous owner. One particular book that took his eye was an attractively bound fourth grade history. Its leaves were of fine grade paper and the print was in large, easy to read type. But the thing that impressed Henry most was the price, listed directly below the publishing date of 1945, ten cents. . . . "No thanks," grunted the old miser as the usher passed the collection plate to him, "I don't believe in giving money to the church." "That's all right, sir," was the polite reply, "Take a little out then, it's for the heathen!"

SHAFT SHAVINGS

BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

ATTENTION: Anyone having a 1949 or 1950 Ford contact Wilbur Ayers. He is in the market for a new-used car fully-equipped. . . . Alvy Place has a new TV set. . . . Frank Kartholl is glad hay fever season is about over. . . . We wish a lot of luck to Lloyd Germano, who left us to work in Bldg. 19-B, also to Phil Burney. . . . If you wonder why Clayton Dafforn is not rushing around so much lately, it is because he fell off of his tractor while working on his farm. He should learn farm safety, a few of his friends say. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Charlie French's wife who is recovering from an operation. . . . Willie Irmischer is still on the sick list. . . . Roger Haifley has a new Ford station wagon. Applications are in order for family outings or hauling. . . . If you want to see the new look in safety glasses, contact Hubert Risser. . . . Andy Weisbrod is back from his vacation and ready for another year's work. . . . Claude Hurraw attended the Van Wert fair this past week. He started home and couldn't find his car. Three and one half hours later, and with the help of the State Police, he found it. Better mark it with a red X next time, Claude. . . . Fred Pauls has been helping John Redmerski in his line of work, lately. It seems that it has gone to John's head and he is a regular Simon Legree. Our recommendation, John, is when you get a good helper treat him right. . . . Blanche Cowell won't have to be writing as many dispensary passes from now on. It seems the fellows took up a collection and bought Herb Boltz a rubber hammer. Tony Wichman and Lawrence Bresler, especially seem to think it is a good idea.

SICK LIST

The following people have been reported on the sick list, dismissed from the hospital, and returned to work:

Sick List

William Hoel, Wesley Grover, Hilda LeCoque, Leonard Jenne, Erma Manor, Willard Smith, Hop Hatfield, Sandra F. Brown, Emmett Rasor, B. Rush McClure, Kenneth Applegate, Helen Kaminski, Harry Slater, and Frances Oberholtzer.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Eleanor Whitehouse bought some new bowling shoes. She said she thought she could bowl better in her 20 year old shoes. What was your score, Eleanor? . . . Mary Lou G. has a new sweater. She decorated her red sweater with green paint. We thought you were painting the porch, Mary Lou! . . . Carl Metker was one of the 86,000 people who watched the Cleveland Indians give the New York Yankees a lesson on baseball. . . . Merle Keesler knows how it feels to be locked out of his own house. His wife was working out in the yard and Merle thought he had better check and see if she was doing it right. As he went out the door, his son Mike slammed the door shut. Merle started talking to Mike like a good father should, about how to open the door. After much pleading, and his wife getting nervous, Merle was about to bust the door down when he happened to think of the bed room window. He ran around to the window and sure enough, it was open. When he got inside Mike was doing stunts on the dresser, and looked at Merle as if to say "You want to play too, pop?" As Merle says, "That's my boy!" . . . Andy Anderson and Ralph Weikart attended their first Quarter Century Outing last Saturday. Elmer Harshman also attended the affair and has a nice red head to prove it. . . . Sorry we haven't mentioned it before, but Millie Koehler's future Daisy girls' team won the league title. Congratulations, Millie! . . . Little Carrie is back with us on days. . . . Estella Peters, former inspector, is a proud mama of a new baby girl. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Junior Zolinger and to Anna Lehman.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

WE WISH A HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Bob Loveland, Sept. 22 (next Wednesday). Bob just returned from a three-week vacation, traveling all over the country, and also acquiring a new son-in-law. . . . THE NEW FACES ARE James Miller, new TE in Barrow's group. Jim is single, and comes to us on his test assignment, having spent previous tests at Evendale, MG at Fort Wayne, and Erie. He is a graduate of the Buffalo State Tech. Institute, and his home town is Fredonia, N. Y. Also we have Walter Cook, new TE in Bill Rutledge's group. Walt is married, and his home town is Waterloo, Iowa. He is a graduate of the Iowa State College. He has a BSME degree. This is his fifth test assignment, having been at Evendale for two assignments, A&OS, Schenectady, and the GE Lab, Schenectady. . . . BABIES, BABIES, BABIES—three brand new infants came to make their homes with members of the Specialty Motor Engineering Section. Number one is baby Jeannette, 6 lb. 10 oz. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ritchey, spelled with the "T", Sept. 7, at 11:30 p.m. The co-workers of Specialty Comp. Motor Dept. and Engr. and Drafting got a double treat Monday morning. The occasion was the arrival of Karen Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Kelso, and David Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Happel. The mothers are doing fine in the Lutheran Hospital and we expect the fathers to recover in time. A few rounds of golf will do the trick, eh, boys? . . . We understand that five members of Specialty Motor Engineering are in the money, and can consider themselves quite lucky as they carried off the money prizes in the golf tournament held last Saturday. The lucky people are: James Bumgartner, Shorty Poyser, Bob Knepple, Jack Jennings, and Al Happel. . . . We understand that Jack Jennings and Bob Knepple won a big chunk of prize money and didn't divide it with their other so-called golfing pals. We think you two are real cheap, don't you? . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Herb Osborne, Sept. 18. . . . WELCOME to Margaret Meeks, who will replace Bonnie Lepper. . . . FAREWELL to Jerry Williams, who returns to teach in college. . . . IT'S GOOD-BY to Bill Isaacs as he leaves for a new test assignment. We will miss you and your doodles, Bill. . . . THE WEDDING BELLS RANG

Saturday and the knot was tied for Bonnie Leazier and Bill Kimmel. They already have an addition to their family, Duke, a cute little cocker spaniel puppy. May your future be a happy one. . . . MR. STANBERY has been receiving some interesting birthday cards, especially the sympathy card. . . . WE THINK JOHN HECKE will agree with us that the Sunset Auto Theatre should chance its name to "Sunrise." John said he felt mighty foolish the other night when the sheriff's department had to wake him and a friend at 2 a.m. . . . WE ALWAYS THOUGHT RUSS BLACKBURN was on the ball, but after last Friday we have lost confidence in him. You should see the pencil sharpener he has rigged up for the Production Section. Free demonstrations available. . . . RALPH SHOAF is certainly a good Samaritan. Each week it seems someone leaves an unwanted cat or dog near Ralph's farm and he immediately gives them a home. The latest is "Calico." Does anyone want a cat? . . . ILENE HARDISTY and ARLENE DELLINGER, our twins, celebrated their birthdays on Sept. 14. Congratulations, girls. . . . WE PREDICT that Eileen Goehring and Ilene Hardisty will be star bowlers this season. . . . KITTY HABERSTROH, formerly with Sales, was welcomed with a little visitor Sept. 11. It was a boy and he was named Robert Williams. Congratulations, Kitty.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Art Brandenburger has just returned from a week's vacation spent at Spooner Lake, Wis. He intended to do quite a lot of fishing while there, but the weather turned out had with wind and rain most of the week. Night time temperatures averaged 37 degrees. He tells us that they used up a ton of coal that week trying to keep warm. Not being able to do much fishing, he decided to go on a tour of tavern inspections collecting a sample of wet goods from each one, which now decorates the mantle above his fireplace. Covering most of the northern part of this state with a side trip into Duluth, where he reports six inches of snow, giving up in disgust he returned to Indiana, suffering from a near heat prostration before arriving home. . . . Another late vacationer just returned to the fold is Clarence Steve. As you all know, he owns a cottage at Big Turkey Lake. Now this is a beautiful body of water but the fish in it are undersize and anemic, so Clarence spent the entire week studying up on what to do about them. Finally he came to the conclusion that what the fish in this body of water needed was a shot in the arm and a blood transfusion. . . . Kenny Jack Applegate entered Parkview Memorial Hospital Sept. 9 for a general overhaul job. He told us that he was seriously considering having himself cut over an entirely new pattern. Well good luck, Kenny, and we all hope that you will be back with us before long. . . . Preston Peter Hille has just returned to work after spending two weeks playing soldier at a camp near Madison, Wis. Being away for this length of time he was quite worried about his vegetable garden which showed promise of being a bonanza. Well, the neighbors in the vicinity of his garden took good care of it, eating up everything that had fully matured. Now Preston's garden worries are over.

Earl Sexton really hooked a big crappie. He got under Earl's boat and upset it, and of course the fish got away. . . . Helen Boedeker spends all her money for worms and gas and no fish! . . . John Figley has formed a new secret order called the "Gourd for G Club". . . . Avery Spayde is slowly adding to his collection of peening axes. This latest specimen is a combination peening wrench. . . . Congratulations to Alva Foulks who was married the 4th of September. . . . Mary Nute had a big day Sept. 12. Her folks celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary and they had a big open house for friends. . . . Jim Stauffer, Hazel's son, has gone back to Indiana for another year. . . . Grace Plattner took her daughter to I.U. where she has enrolled as a freshman student. . . . John Whillet sure looked good in his new sweater. . . . Clarence Weimer must think winter is here as he was seen wearing a heavy overcoat as work. . . . Janice Egolf's sister, who has had polio, has been released from the hospital and is getting along OK. . . . Gus Rutz will probably have plenty of fish stories to tell when he gets back from his vacation. . . . Paul Arnold finally got moved into his new home. It isn't finished but he had to move out of his old one. . . . The guys were glad to see Carl Kauffman at the Quarter Century picnic. They say he looks real good and retirement seems to agree with him. . . . Gus Heindrich, a pensioner, is in the hospital but is getting along real good from his operation. . . . Everett Lindeman is on his vacation this week. . . . Ralph Menne-wisch says the bright, glistening buttons on Eileen Brown's dress blind him. . . . Fern Hollowell was afraid too many people might get an upset stomach if she baked her own birthday cake, so she settled for a "boughten" one for her treat. . . . Bill Widdefield was going to take a long trip during her vacation, all the way to Woodburn. . . . It is good to see Maude Erhardt back at work after being sick. . . . Ralph Gilbert went to Cleveland to see the Yanks and Indians play and got to shake hands with Phil Rizuto. The cake was good, Ross. . . . Kathryn Hepker, Lorinda Byerlein, Julia Hohnhaus, Olka Johnson, and Clara Patterson enjoyed a day at the State Fair. Marie Griffin and Fern Painter went to the fair too. . . . Billie Tucker is the proud mother of twin girls. Born on her birthday too! Billie formerly worked in the field section. . . . Mardo Tobias locked himself out of his car the other day. Was he unhappy? . . . Marie Griffin's son came home over the week end. . . . Carl Kinsey drove to Michigan over the Labor Day week end. . . . Buelah Imler blows her coffee into her mouth with the air hose instead of drinking it like most people do. . . . Marjorie Hahn entertained a group of co-workers at a hamburger fry Monday. The husbands and wives were invited too. . . . Ivan Parrish ran into a little difficulty when going into his brother's former home, only to find strangers there. He opened the door and walked right in and asked if there were any ladies there. Need we say his face was red? . . . A speedy recovery to Gerna Cook, who is a patient at the Lutheran Hospital. . . . Our sympathy to Ed Ort in the death of his two year old granddaughter. . . . Evelyn Foulks is a happy grandmother these days as she has a new grandson, Jeffery Lynn.

GREETINGS FROM GOVERNOR—Lt. Gov. Harold W. Handley extends greetings to Voyce Brumbaugh, Elex Club president, and Florence Hargan, vice president, when he met the group upon their arrival at the State Fair this month. More than 400 members of the club attended the event in Indianapolis.

MAD MODELERS—Looking over a free flight model airplane are four entrants in the Mad Modelers Model Airplane Meet which is slated for Sunday, Sept. 19, at Smith Field. They are: Jim Kennard, Bldg. 12-2; Bob Wickstrom, Bldg. 4-6; Charles E. Derbyshire, Bldg. 26-2, and Jack Faust, Taylor St. (Story on page 3.)

SERVICE AWARD—Dolores Connin, Taylor St., right, was honored by Elex Club recently for her service to the organization. Dolores has provided piano music for Elex meetings for several years. Presenting her a free membership to the club is Mary Zirkle, Bldg. 17-3, second vice president.

JANE'S BACK—Lovely Jane Froman, star of CBS Television's "Jane Froman Show," returns to the Fort Wayne area Thursday, Sept. 30, 6:45 p.m. over WIN-T, Waterloo's new television station. The Jane Froman Show is sponsored by the Lamp Department and has been on the air since October, 1952. WIN-T is scheduled to start regular telecasting Sunday, Sept. 26.

191 Employees Reap $3,514 in Awards For Suggestions During July and August

Awards Worth $100 or More Paid to Eight For Good Ideas

Despite a two-week vacation lull, 191 suggesters managed to earn $3,514.50 during the months of July and August. High on the list was William Fowler, of the Hanna St. plant, who hauled in $245 on a suggestion to omit the center core bolts on Type M transformers and so save both time and material.

Douglas A. Blessing, a stock-keeper in general stores, took home a $200 award check. He suggested a method whereby tips could be re-used in welding torches, thereby saving tips.

A $170 suggestion award was paid to Raymond Barwiler, Bldg. 26-B, who suggested changing from spray painting to dip painting of certain transformer parts. Rudy Zelt, Bldg. 4-3, also earned $170. He suggested moving the copper turning lathe from one group to another, which eliminated a rough grinding operation in one group and also eliminated having to diamond turn the commutator before balance.

$140 Award

An idea for moving the feed closer to the casting brought $140 to E. J. Owens, Taylor St. His suggestion eliminated unnecessary feed time.

Two suggestions, one for $100 and the other $70, were awarded during the summer to Frank J. Kartholl, Bldg. 19-3. His $100 idea was for placing hydraulic couplings on starters thus expediting production. His $70 award was for suggesting that commutator shells be placed in stock.

A Section 417, Taylor St. employee, Charles A. Arnel, earned $110 when he came up with the idea that the oil thrower should be pressed on the half-inch shaft. When these shafts are torn down and pounded out, the bearings are ruined. He suggested making a fixture for the press in the repair shop which would press them out. The shafts would then be saved from scratching and the bearings would not be ruined.

Conserves Coal

Homer A. Markley, Taylor St., received $75 for suggesting a method to change the boiler feed pump and conserve coal used in the power house. Seventy dollars were paid Gladys Payne, Bldg. 26-4, for suggesting the elimination of the terminal masking operation on certain Permafil transformers.

Five $50 suggestion checks were paid during July and August: Charles J. Nord, Bldg. 22, suggested changing the position of the wrapper seam on the AC sta-

TOP IDEA—William F. Fowler (right) led both the July and August suggestion lists with an idea worth $245. He saved both time and material by suggesting the omission of center core bolts on Type M transformers. Looking over his idea are R. W. Barker and Ted Lauterberg. Mr. Fowler works in Bldg. 26-4.

IUE Employees' Increase Starts October 1 and 6

Employees represented by IUE-CIO will begin receiving their recent wage increase in pay received Wednesday, Oct. 6, for hourly employees and Friday, Oct. 1 for salaried employees.

Payroll units announced that retroactive portions of the increase, which became effective Aug. 2, will be included in pay checks received Wednesday, Oct. 13, and Friday, Oct. 15.

The new percentage general increase averages slightly more than 5 cents an hour, with a minimum of 4 cents and ranging to 8 cents and more per hour. It is figured by raising the present payroll "adder" to a new 15 per cent. The net increase on top of present pay is 2.68 per cent.

New GE Theater Premieres Sunday On New TV Station with New MC

Three "firsts" in television are scheduled for Sunday evening when the General Electric Theater returns to the air after the summer vacation. It will be a television debut for the completely revamped program and will feature a presentation of "Nora," locally it will be seen on WIN-T, Waterloo, on their first day of telecasting; and it will be the first night for Ronald Reagan, new program supervisor, as well as Don "Mr. Wizard" Herbert, GE's new progress reporter.

"Nora" is based on the famous Henrik Ibsen play, "A Doll's House." The story is about a pompous husband, Thomas Helmer, who has never given his wife the liberty of self-expression. After eight years of married life, Nora rebels against the insincerity on which her marriage is based.

As program supervisor for all shows which will be seen on the new General Electric Theater, Ronald Reagan will be in New York to present the program. Reagan was signed last spring by the company to fill the role of program supervisor, good-will ambassador and spokesman in connection with the television series. He has been at work all summer, reading scripts, talking with stars who will appear on the shows, meeting with directors and producers, in addition to being completely indoctrinated in policies of the General Electric Company.

During August, he worked on the filming of "High Green Wall," which stars Joseph Cotten in his telefilm debut, and "The Face Is Familiar" which stars Jack Benny in his initial appearance in a straight dramatic role.

Don Herbert has been signed as GE's Progress Reporter on the new series.

In his new role with General Electric, Herbert, known to millions as "Mr. Wizard" will present up-to-the-minute news of contributions to national safety and well-being through GE achievements in research engineering, and manufacturing techniques. Herbert's title of "Progress Reporter" stems from the General Electric slogan of "Progress Is Our Most Important Product."

Herbert's background as an actor, scientist, announcer, dictated his selection. He studied to be a high school science teacher at La Crosse State Teachers' College.

PUTTING QUALITY into the job is important today with competition getting keener in the fractional horsepower motor industry. Viola Martin, Bldg. 4-4, is one of the employees who do this in their jobs and take pride in their contribution to a finished quality product. See story page 5.

Marketing—Burden or Benefit?

Have you ever wondered why we, as final consumers, have to pay more than twice as much to buy things as it costs to "make" them?

Seeing a new kitchen gadget, we can judge from the materials and workmanship that money has gone into it. True, it must cost something to get goods from the hands of those who make them into the hands of those who use them. But just what are these marketing processes that seem so costly, and how much do we need them? Let's take a look:

First, and most obvious, is transportation. This part of marketing grew more complicated as industry developed. No more can the farmer order a plow from the village blacksmith and take it home in his own wagon. Now it must be transported, perhaps thousands of miles, from the factory.

Second, there is storage. Goods cannot be produced at exactly the time the user will want them. Storing is necessary and it costs money. Third, inventories must be carried. Ocean liners or locomotives are not kept in stock until someone comes along to buy them, but most of the goods we produce must be kept on hand, ready to be handed over the counter immediately. Stocking of goods means risk and expense.

Other marketing services are even less noticeable to the consumer. For instance, a cigarette factory will produce billions of cigarettes, yet the consumer wants to be able to buy one pack at a time. It is necessary that there be a way to break down immense output into smaller and smaller lots, to reach the ultimate consumer in convenient quantities.

Again, customers expect to find many products, coming from different places, side-by-side on the store shelf. So another task of marketing is to bring together numerous different products—a "line"—and assemble them in one store.

Another function is transmission of information, through salesmen and advertising, and it is highly important. Producers must know the wants and needs of consumers, who in turn must be informed on what producers have to offer.

Finally, there is the financial burden of carrying goods, from manufacture to final sale—or even beyond, when consumer credit is given.

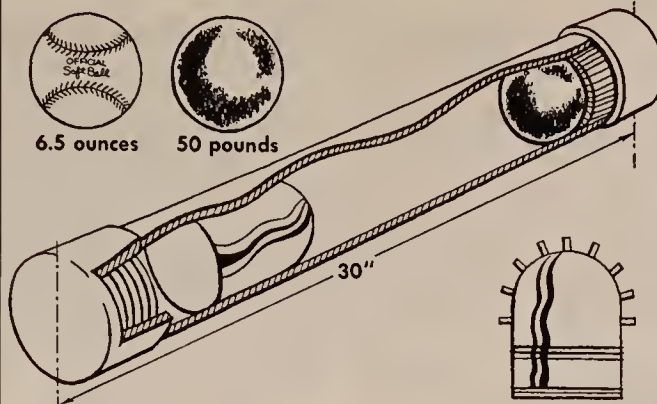

Marketing, under competitive enterprise, benefits everybody, not just manufacturers or merchants. The fact that a large part of the price of goods goes for marketing is not a sign of anything wrong. On the contrary, it is a characteristic of an advanced economy. Advanced economies need far more marketing services than does a backward economy.

Improvement of marketing techniques is a major area in which business can contribute to the future growth of the country. Marketing developments will be just as important as advances in technology. In fact, an improvement in technology might well be useless to the public without a parallel development in techniques for marketing the product.

Marketing in America earns its keep and more. It is, in no small way, responsible for our high living standards and will play a vital part in the future well-being of our rapidly growing nation.

What's in a Glass of Milk?

- ... A glass of whole milk contains 168 calories.
- ... Milk is a rich source of calcium. Calcium is important in the building of strong teeth and bones.
- ... Phosphorous which is also important in bone structure is present in every glass of milk.
- ... Milk is a source of vitamins of the B complex. The B vitamins help keep nerves healthy and prevent the nerve diseases called beriberi and polyneuritis.
- ... Ascorbic acid or Vitamin C in milk helps to keep gums in a healthy state.
- ... Milk is rich in protein which helps in the repair of body tissue.
- ... Milk also contains carbohydrates for energy.
- ... Whole milk is one of the foods richest in Vitamin A. This vitamin helps prevent infection, and helps keep eyes and skin healthy.
- ... The food value in skim milk is about the same as for whole milk except in number of calories and in Vitamin A content. The Vitamin A content is reduced when the butter fat is removed to make skim milk.
- ... Milk is the most nearly perfect food available to man. Babies and children thrive on it. You will, too.

GE Employees Alerted To Smuggled Red A-Bombs

Recognizing the fact that General Electric plants would be prime targets in any organized Communist plot to sabotage America's defense, Admiral W. R. Cooke, Manager, Security Sub-Section, at GE's top-secret Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory has alerted all GE employees to the possibility that the Russians may smuggle "pre-fab" atomic bombs into the United States.

While admitting that "it is impossible to describe exactly what a foreign atomic bomb will look like," the AEC reports that the "basic ideas that will govern the design" can be explained well enough for GE employees to "recognize bombs or parts of bombs which might be smuggled into the United States by enemy agents." For security's sake, employees are urged to report anything which seems to fit the AEC's description—not limiting this vital search to items pictured here.

"We will be able to help protect ourselves and our country if we can recognize any one of three essential A-bomb components," the AEC declares—fissionable material; gun-barrel type device; high explosives for implosion (a bursting inward rather than the bursting outward that we know as explosion).

"Fissionable material" is uranium and/or plutonium which are extremely heavy metals weighing half again as much as lead of the same size. Fifty pounds of these materials would be about the size of a football—approximately five inches in diameter if in the shape of a sphere. Both of these metals can be coated with other metals or plastics and can be machined into all sorts of shapes, so we should be especially alert regarding any article that is extremely heavy for its size. Pieces which might be smuggled would probably be of a size that could be carried on the person.

The "gun-barrel" type device will probably be made of steel. The diameter of the bore would probably not be less than two inches nor more than ten inches. We may expect the outer diameter of the gun barrel to range from about five inches as a minimum to about twelve inches as a maximum. Both ends of the barrel may be closed by breech block-type devices so that the bore of the gun will not be visible. The gun and the two breech blocks may be carried as three separate pieces; in this case the inner bore may be visible. The fissionable material for this gun-type weapon may be concealed within, and usually at the ends of, the gun barrel—or it may be carried in separate packages for later assembly within the barrel. We may visualize the gun-type device then as one in which a projectile of fissionable material is fired down a gun barrel into another plug of fissionable material in the muzzle. The length of the

What Group Is the MVD?

The MVD is the dread secret police of Russia and successor to the NKVD, OGPU, GPU and Cheka. Stalin, to whom the MVD is responsible, described it as "the unsheathed sword of the revolution." It has vast powers and its chief function is to insure blind obedience through terrorism.

It has its own armed forces, including air, tank and infantry divisions, guards Russia's borders, spies on all Russians, rounds up the "politically unreliable" for deportation to Siberia and runs slave-labor camps. Beyond Russian borders it handles assassinations of dangerous Russian opponents. Its powers include summary arrest, indefinite detention, sentencing without trial, secret execution and torture to extract "confessions."

(Adapted from the "Primer on Communism," published by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.)

"IT PAYS TO WEAR SAFETY GLASSES," states Lem Robinson, member of the Manufacturing Training Program. He proves this by showing what happened when he was operating a screw machine in Bldg. 12-2. A piece broke off a circular form tool and hit his safety glasses. The broken piece is shown where it hit his glasses.

Guest Speaker Booked For GE Squares Dinner

George F. Metcalf, consultant-engineering surveys and studies in General Electric's Engineering Services Division, New York City, will be guest speaker at a GE Squares Club dinner meeting, Thursday, Sept. 30.

The meeting will be at the GE Club auditorium, with dinner being served at two times, 5:30 and 6 p.m. Invitations have been sent members. Reservations should be made by returning the cards accompanying the invitations to Wallace E. Beer, Bldg. 18-1. Deadline for making reservations is Monday, Sept. 27.

Members attending the meeting should present their invitations for admission at the dinner time stated on their invitations.

Mr. Metcalf worked in the research laboratory from 1928 until 1935. Then he went to the Vacuum Tube Department and in 1946 became manager of the Electronics Laboratory. He served as manager of engineering in the Electronics Division in 1947 and became general manager of the Specialty Department the following year. From 1949 until his present position he was general manager of the Commercial and Government Equipment Department. Mr. Metcalf served as a colonel in the U. S. Air Force from 1942 until 1945.

Elex Members Schedule Installation Tea Oct. 2

Ushering in the new year for Elex Club, members will have a candlelight tea to install 1954-55 officers Saturday, Oct. 2, at the Fort Wayne Women's Club. The tea will begin at 5 p.m.

Kenneth W. Michael, manager of community relations, will conduct the installing of officers at the formal ceremonies.

Outgoing officers will participate in the service. Officers for the new year are being elected this week by members. Results of the election will be announced next week.

Tickets for the tea are 75 cents per person and may be secured from contact girls. Deadline for making reservations for the tea is Thursday, Sept. 30.

Moving into October events, Elex Club will be one of nine women's groups in the midwest plants to participate in the 1954 Fall Conference at Danville, Ill. The meeting will take place Saturday, Oct. 16 and Sunday, Oct. 17 at the Wolford Hotel, Danville.

Reservations for those who plan to attend the conference should be made by Friday, Oct. 1 with the Women's Activities offices at Broadway or Taylor St., or with Joyce Brumbaugh, Winter St. Price of the meeting is $10 per member. The price includes registration fee, Saturday evening banquet, and Sunday luncheon. It does not include transportation or hotel room.

The program for the two-day event has been announced as follows:

Saturday, Oct. 16

Four Appointments Announced In Advanced Manufacturing

Four appointments in General Purpose Component Motor Advanced Manufacturing Development have been announced by Clarence A. Brenner, superintendent of manufacturing in the development section.

Elmer W. Auman has been named supervisor of general tool manufacturing. David A. Bartle, Jr. has been appointed general foreman of special machine manufacturing. Russell L. Hambly, Jr. has been named supervisor of the expansion program. Harold R. Blauvelt has been appointed foreman of lathes and milling machines on second shift.

Elmer W. Auman

In August, 1915, Mr. Auman became a GE employee. He worked in the meter stock section. Later he entered the Apprentice School and graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course in 1919. He became assistant chief inspector in Bldg. 17-3 after graduation.

When he became a toolmaker in 1921 Mr. Auman went to Bldg. 26-4. Later he entered the general tool section on the same job and subsequently became a leading operator. He was appointed a foreman of the lamination die unit in Bldg. 26-5 later and then served as a foreman at Winter St. In 1936 he became a general foreman in Section 113.

After returning to Winter St. Mr. Auman became assistant superintendent and came back to Bldg. 19-5 on the same job. He was a general foreman in his present location prior to his present appointment.

Mr. Auman is a member of the Quarter Century Club, Foremen's Association, and GE Squares. He and his wife, who have three children, reside at 930 Pemberton Dr.

David A. Bartle, Jr.

Starting as a stocker in Section 113, Mr. Bartle came to GE in 1936. He entered the Apprentice School the following year and graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course in 1941. From there he went to Bldg. 26-5 as a machinist-toolmaker. Later that same year he became a production clerk and went on to jobs of methods planner and supervisor of production.

In 1950 Mr. Bartle became a foreman of a machine section. The next year he was named supervisor of expansion planning. This was his job before his present assignment.

Russell L. Hambly, Jr.

In October, 1948, Mr. Hambly joined the company and became a foreman in assembly of the Aircraft Gas Turbine Division at Evendale. He was made a planner in the same location in 1953. Later that year he moved to Fort Wayne, where he entered the General Tool Section as a planner and had this job until his present appointment.

Mr. Hambly studied chemical engineering at the University of Cincinnati for two years. He graduated from the Cincinnati Milling Machine Company's Apprentice School in 1944 after completing the four-year course. At present he is a member of the advisory board of the Aboite Township Community Association. The Hamblys and their three sons reside on Aboite Center Rd.

Hotel reservations at the Wolford Hotel may be made by securing cards from any of the three locations where reservations are made.

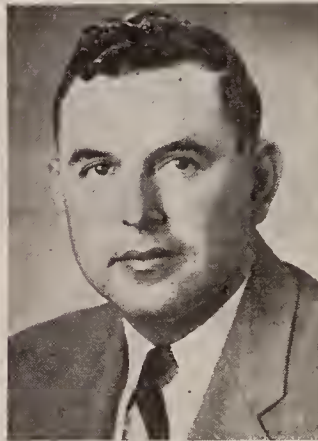

Russell L. Hambly, Jr.

David A. Bartle, Jr.

Elmer W. Auman

Harold R. Blauvelt

was his job before his present assignment.

Mr. Bartle is a member of the Supervisors Club, Foremen's Association, and Apprentice Alumni Association. The Bartles and their two children live at R. R. 2, Grabbill. Mr. Bartle is the son of David A. Bartle, Taylor St. employee.

Russell L. Hambly, Jr.

In October, 1948, Mr. Hambly joined the company and became a foreman in assembly of the Aircraft Gas Turbine Division at Evendale. He was made a planner in the same location in 1953. Later that year he moved to Fort Wayne, where he entered the General Tool Section as a planner and had this job until his present appointment.

Mr. Hambly studied chemical engineering at the University of Cincinnati for two years. He graduated from the Cincinnati Milling Machine Company's Apprentice School in 1944 after completing the four-year course. At present he is a member of the advisory board of the Aboite Township Community Association. The Hamblys and their three sons reside on Aboite Center Rd.

Harold R. Blauvelt

When he came to the company in 1942 Mr. Blauvelt entered the specialist training course in the Apprentice School. After completing the course five months later, he went into the general tool section as a bench lathe operator. Later he was a lathe operator at Taylor St.

From 1943 until 1946 Mr. Blauvelt served in the U. S. Army and was stationed in the European Theater of action during that period. In 1946 he returned to the tool room in Bldg. 26-5 where he was an engine lathe operator, Bridgeport mill operator, and vertical mill operator. He worked in the general tool room at Broadway and the tool room at Winter St.

In 1953 he was named an instructor in the Bldg. 19-5 toolroom and later became a leading operator. This was his position prior to his present appointment.

Mr. Blauvelt is a member of the Volunteer Firemen's Association. He has been active in Interdepartment bowling, basketball, and softball and Owl Industrial League softball and basketball for several years.

The Blauvelts have six children and reside in Monroeville.

MOVING MAN, SPARE THAT CHAIR- And comedy star Joan Davis means it. On the premiere of the new Fall "I Married Joan" series, Wednesday, on WKJG-TV, another family tries to take over the house Joan bought. Hubby Jim Backus is right behind his spouse in this scrap—and between the two, you know who'll win.

JOAN DAVIS OPENS FALL SEASON — Exciting innovations and surprise developments, which "I Married Joan" fans have come to expect of their favorite comedy star, Joan Davis, will be in evidence from the very beginning this season when the new cycle premieres on Wednesday, September 29, at 7 p.m., CST, over WKJG-TV.

In the opening telecast Joan and TV hubby, Jim Backus, will display for the first time the entirely new set to be used this year. The TV audience will see Joan and Jim (Judge Bradley Stevens) as they move into their new home, marking the first time in a filmed situation comedy show that a set has been dressed right in front of the cameras.

Of course, a 'madcap imbroiglio soon complicates life for the new incumbents. Another couple, it seems, has taken an option on the place and they proceed to move in right along with the Stevenses. There are two of everything—two refrigerators, two couches, two sets of living and dining room furniture, and so on, right through the house. Breakfast is cooked by two wives on two stoves for two husbands at two tables.

How Joan turns her talents into tricking the other couple into dropping their flimsy claim provides an amusing climax.

tor frame; Harold Baehler, Section 114, Taylor St., suggested an improved method of machining ball bearing flanges on the Snyder Trunion machine to cut down the number of rejected flanges; Arthur Hyser, Section 417, Taylor St., suggested discontinuing the use of air solenoid pressure valves on tapping machines and using a type with only one moving part, which is less expensive and needs very little attention. Clarence W. Kabisch, also of Section 417 at Taylor St., suggested a way to establish a reconditioning section for all 11-21 frame motors instead of having two repair departments. J. W. Badders, Bldg. 4-4, earned his $50 award for suggesting the purchasing of either zinc or aluminum castings and using them interchangeably so as to reduce set-up charges.

Less Than $50

Other employees on the suggestion lists were: Paul W. Faulkner, Taylor St., $40; Marlowe Shelper, Bldg. 4-4, $40; Leonard Jenne, Bldg. 4-5, $35; Jerome N. Galland, Bldg. 31-1, $35; Robert Bultemeier, Bldg. 26-B, $32.50; Vern Krohn, Bldg. 26-2, $30; and Cecelia I. Sidner, Taylor St., $30.

Those earning $25 awards were T. H. Wever, Taylor St.; Roland W. Ross, Taylor St.; Alton Andrews, Decatur; Alvin Hawkins, Decatur; F. Ranseier, Wire Mill; Lawrence Gardt, Bldg. 19-2; and Russell Kryder, Bldg. 26-B.

There were 177 awards, totaling $1497, which were under $25 in amount.

Cost Accountants Hear W. C. Wichman

Discussing "Measurement of Efficiency of Business Performance", William C. Wichman, vice president, Industrial Power Components Division, addressed members of the National Association of Cost Accountants, Fort Wayne Chapter, Tuesday evening.

The occasion was the 15th anniversary of the local chapter's founding and the opening meeting of the current year. Mr. Wichman was the first president of the Fort Wayne Chapter of NACA. He and other presidents of the local group were honored at the meeting.

Foreman Set Wed. As Ladies Night Ticket Deadline

Deadline for reservations for the Foremen's Association Ladies' Night program is Wednesday, Sept. 29, William L. Paulson, Bldg. 19-4, president, reported this week.

The event will take place Wednesday, Oct. 6 at the American Legion Post No. 47 beginning at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 per person and may be secured from contact men.

Music for round and square dancing will be provided by Nancy Lee and the Hilltoppers from 9 p.m. until 12 midnight. They will present a one-half hour variety show also. Principio Rosucci will furnish dinner music with his accordion.

R. Nelson Snider, principal of South Side High School, will be the guest speaker.

GE DEATHS

Rites Held Yesterday For Henry Deitschel

Funeral services for Henry P. Deitschel, 66, were conducted yesterday in the Getz & Cahill Funeral Home and the Most Precious Blood Catholic Church. The Rev. Sebastian J. Kremer officiated.

Mr. Deitschel died Monday, Sept. 20, in St. Joseph Hospital, where he had been a patient three weeks. He had been in poor health the past four months. Burial was in Compton Cemetery, Columbia City.

Joining the company in 1942, Mr. Deitschel was an inspector and had this job in Bldg. 17-2 prior to his retirement April 1, 1953.

Survivors include his wife, Vera; father, Andrew Deitschel, Sr.; and three brothers, Louis M., Andrew, Jr., and Charles H.

Ora S. Gross, 65, Dies From Heart Ailment

A former GE employee, Ora S. Gross, 65, died Sunday, Sept. 19 at his home in Honor, Mich. following a heart attack. Services were conducted at the Krider Funeral Home, Churubusco.

Mr. Gross came to the company in 1929 as a heat inspector in Bldg. 9. He left GE in 1937. Survivors include his wife, Daisy; a stepson, Howard Wilson, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Leona Baker.

Three "production stoppers" from the payroll section, namely Betty Bath, Helen McCoy, and Arden Dwyer, walked down the aisle recently staring intently at the floor. They were searching for an ear ring that Betty supposedly lost. Needless to say, it was found at home. This is hard to understand when you consider the fact that the ear ring was about the size of a barrel hoop (well, almost) and about as heavy. Betty must have walked lop-sided with that weight just hanging from one side. . . . Al Tyson found out what the price of an Oldsmobile window is. John Herney advises if you go hunting with Johnny Erb, you're in for a time. After parking their car near a woods, Johnny locked the keys in the trunk. He went to a farm house to call his wife, and left his hat and coat there. On top of that Mrs. Erb didn't appreciate having to drive out with another car key. . . . Can she bake a cherry pie? Yeah, she can! Several men can testify that Ceal Rieber can bake a pie. Ceal brought one in recently.

Building Quality into Motors

IT'S THE ANSWER TO A CUSTOMER'S DREAMS, —IT'S THE IMPORTANT JOB FOR GE FOLKS

With competition getting keener, you have to either fish or cut bait in the fractional horsepower motor industry today. GE fractional horsepower motor departments think they have found the answer to customer demands in one word—quality. Give the customer a quality product and the future of the business has a good chance.

An important way to accomplish this is by building quality into the motors at every

PRECISION mechanical inspection is being performed on an end flange by Harley H. Heckley, Bldg. 4-4, Boromatic operator. As part of the Quality Control Program in his area, Mr. Heckley checks his own work at intervals.

MATERIAL QUALITY is checked by Jay H. Michael and Harry P. Hyndman, both of Bldg. 4-4. Set-up man Michael brings some of the material with which he works to inspector Hyndman to check the hardness.

phase. Each fractional horsepower motor is a unit of quality, measured according to exacting size, properly constructed, and thoroughly tested to assure working order.

Putting quality into motors shipped to customers is the job of the men and women who build the motors. After correct engineering design has been achieved, it is up to the winders, set-up men, machine operators, grinders, finishers, inspectors, foremen, and others to perform jobs of quality. Each contributes his share to the finished product and has a sense of pride of workmanship.

Achieving quality is a process that begins when a new employee is hired. He is shown how to do the job right through training. The raw materials he uses are tested for quality. All along the manufacturing cycle the employee makes checks and watches for quality in materials while adding that touch of quality by the way he does his job.

In some areas of the fractional horsepower motor departments, Quality Control programs have been set up. These enable the operator to check his own work at intervals and it is again checked by an inspector to insure quality along the way.

Inspecting and testing are areas where a person might expect quality to be put to the test. It is, and with facilities that are constantly being improved to give the best answer to the question: "How good is the quality of this product?"

The four departments Specialty Component Motor, Hermetic Motor, General Purpose Component Motor, and Appliances, in DeKalb think they have the answer to this question with the achievement of top-notch quality.

Examples of how quality is put into the job are shown here by employees in Specialty Component Motor Series and Specialty Section 401.

you, can they Herman? . . . We wonder what Larry and Homer were laughing so hard about last week. Larry presented Homer with a little paper and the laugh started. I bet it wasn't fit to print in the GE NEWS, was it, boys? . . . Frances Oberhaltzer is another one of our girls who was working on days before she entered the hospital for an operation. We want to wish you a speedy recovery, along with Leona Taylor's daughter, who has been in the hospital with rheumatic fever. Leona was formerly in Section 417. . . . We have a couple more new operators we wish to welcome on the 21 line, and hope you like us. . . . Alma Raymer was on the sick list last Thursday and we sure missed her. We had most of the assembly line over to help us pack flanges to take her place.

Art Bear was in need of a plumber. He phoned and the voice on the other end had difficulty understanding that the column number was S3. So Art explained it was "S" like in Sitting Bull. Some time later the plumber arrived with an order that Sitting Bull needed a plumber and where was he. . . . Walt Niemeyer has some relations coming in the near future from California, Florida, and Germany. He says he may have to hock his Pontiac to keep them in food. He also says any donations like a side of beef, etc., will be welcome. . . . Dorelyn Kessens received a mysterious gift this week. It was wrapped beautifully. Oh, we almost forgot, it was a box of Kleenex. . . . Welcome back to Sandra Brown. It sure seems good to have you with us again. . . . Mike Brayer fried fish at the Southwest Conservation Club Friday night. He then left around midnight for the lake. That's what we call ambition. . . . Our very deepest sympathy to Fred Boehm, whose wife died last week-end. . . . Good-by to Dick Verhooven, who is going back to the Apprentice School. . . . Welcome to Section 114 to Max Gollmer, Betty Londd, Aleta McWherter, and Alta Stanley. . . . Tracy Bartel is in the Lutheran Hospital for surgery. We wish her a speedy recovery. . . . Happy birthday to Hazel Davis and Elmer Jockel. . . . It seems that Don Sterling wore the wrong pair of shoes to work on Wednesday. They looked like house slippers. How about it, Don? . . . Buck Seslar lost his euchre partner last Friday. Do you suppose it was because they got beat all week? . . . Judy Lehman has suddenly lost his appetite for chicken. . . . Lou Anne Beauchamp distributed asbestos gloves to the cost people last week for their red hot calculators. . . . Kenny Williams will be working in the office for a while now. . . . Kathleen Jencks and Polly Line are both off work. Hurry back, girls. . . . Herb Tons is back to work again looking better than ever. . . . Ask "Mousie" Burk about her midnight ride after her car broke down on the way home from work. . . . Among the various clocks in Art Bear's basement is one that has a very loud gong. One day last week a neighbor grabbed her purse and hurried outside to meet the bread man. No bread man was in sight. She swore she heard him, but it turned out to be Art's clock. . . . If any of you gals are wanting to paint your drapes, see Ted Frey. He threw paint on his, and the design is out of this world.

DECATURITES

by George Laurent

"Just going to spend the week around home" is the way Waldo Baumann tells of his vacation week. Waldo says that he intends to spend some time doing remodeling of his home. . . . Bring out the cake and put on the candles for the birthday of Fannie Amstutz. Fannie treated the gang to candy last Friday. . . . Ralph Roop celebrated his birthday September 17 and "Duffy" Heller celebrated his on September 23. . . . Dale Johnson braved the daylight and worked days last week while Art Bieberich was enjoying a week of vacation. Was it hard to keep your eyes open in the bright daylight, Dale? . . . It has happened before and so is no special privilege to be called grandpa. Hez Cochran and Harold Baughn have both added new grandchildren to their Christmas shopping list. Hez said that his grandson was rather independent acting and would not even look at him when he went to see him. . . . Several of the fellows are wondering just why they don't get such special service when they are all eating at the same restaurant. Seems as though Bob Owens ordered pie and, oh what service! They were willing to cut the pie in bites and feed it to Bob. Perhaps you ordered the wrong kind of pie, boys. . . . Jake Keller is spending his third week of vacation just fishing and relaxing away from his daily job of keeping everybody along the line busy and contented. Hope you catch some big ones, Jake. . . . Taking advantage of Labor Day Al Schneider and Fred Chronister enjoyed their third week of vacation. . . . Just how did he do it? Jack Teeple managed to get to work on time for a whole week, and that is something extra for Jack as he is usually a little late at least one day during the week. Did your wife set the clock ahead, Jack? . . . Betty Reichert spent the Labor Day vacation visiting friends in Michigan. . . . Oh, oh, was he ever busy? Grant Fry was supposed to send his grandchildren's clothes to the lake with a friend but he forgot. Grant sure did keep that telephone busy trying to locate the friend. But no luck. Grant had to take the clothes with him when he made the trip the next day. . . . If the rest of his vegetables are anything like the samples of large tomatoes and peppers brought in by Clyde Beery, he must have a wonderful garden and the know-how to grow things. . . . What's this we hear about George Cramer trying to sell five gallons of paint to Hub Omlor, and then finding the buckets only contain three and one-half gallons? Is my face red? . . . Congratulations to Dan Foreman, whose son Mark and his wife presented him with a new grandson last week. Mark and his wife are in Germany where Mark is serving Uncle Sam. This is Dan's fourth grandchild. . . . We wish to extend our sympathies to Ed Hammond upon the recent death of his father, Walter Hammond. . . . We also wish to extend our sympathies to Lew Nelson, whose mother passed away recently at her home in North Dakota. . . . Miriam Moore spent her third week vacation motoring to Illinois and Wisconsin visiting relatives en route at Streator, Ill. . . . Two local GE golfers are still in the thick of the fight for the Decatur City Golf championship. Johnny Baumann has reached the finals of the upper bracket, while Kenny Gaunt has reached the semi-finals in the lower bracket. The two local golfers are favored to meet in the finals. . . . Greetings and birthday wishes to Fred Engle and Ed Adler. Both are leaving this month for a life of retirement. Good luck, and a pleasant and long life of retirement for you both. . . . Oh, he has a big week planned for his vacation. Lohnas McClure intends to do some fishing, some loafing, and in general just enjoy himself for the entire week. . . . Just how hard will some folks work, just to build up those muscles for playing golf? Anyone having any grass to mow just contact Kenny Gaunt. . . . Do you hear the faint echo of those bells? Just 18 years ago, Sept. 16, Pat and Leona Patrick were married. Congratulations and best wishes to you, and may you have many more years together. . . . Information Please! If anybody knows exactly just what a "Snookie" is will they please tell Nellie Rumble? . . . Belated birthday greetings to Dick Noll, who celebrated the 16th. . . . After losing sleep for a week, and being nagged by his conscience for picking up two magazines and only paying for one, Grant Fry made another trip to Garrett and paid for the surplus magazine. What we are wondering is this: Did Grant ask the friend to whom he had given the magazine to pay also?

THE WESTERNERS

Bldg. 20-1

They say a friend in need is a friend indeed. Well, that is just what Jack Lunde has proven himself to be. Don Storeman was in need of first-aid and Jack came through. He got help from Jean Fry and in no time they came to the rescue of Don, and had him back on his feet, and working again. . . . Bob Zollers will have taken that final step by the time you read this, and will be honeymooning down in Florida for two weeks. Bob received two lovely gifts from his co-workers. They were a nice sandwich toaster and a pop-up toaster, both GE, of course. We all wish you both lots of happiness, Bob and Evelyn Zollers. . . . Poor Elmer Mesing had such a hard day Friday, and he was trying so hard to get all organized to go on vacation. First he didn't seem to get a check Friday morning until late, then before he went home his desk was so cluttered up that he couldn't get everything put away. Finally Elmer just threw up both hands and left for two weeks much needed rest. We do wish you a wonderful vacation, Elmer, in spite of it all. I'm sure Earl Rice got your desk all cleaned up for your return. . . . We see that Earl Bogard has a new office out in the garage, sign and all. Seems like all these fellows in the garage have their own special corners. Another new office out here was all equipped for Harry Kruge this past week. . . . Glad to see Verne Marbaugh back after a week's illness. Just get your time in now, Verne. We miss Eddie Kraft, who is off ill. Hope you will soon be back with us. . . . Sorry to lose some more of our fellows this last week. Robert Stephens has gone to Bldg. 26, and Hartman Deel has gone to east side. We also lost James Davenport and Dick Schieferstein. . . . FLASH: Latest newscast—Our former time clerk, Beverly Duffy, has a 6 pound baby boy, born last Friday at St. Joseph Hospital. Congratulations to the new parents, and son.

Mother of 10 children, expecting No. 11, a Missouri woman sued for divorce, charging her husband was "cold and indifferent."

Three Big Ideas

by Helen Engle

Fred Castor, Orville Coleman, and Lloyd Jacobs are all on their vacations next week. Lloyd wrote in for tickets to the World Series, but even if he can't get tickets they all can enjoy it on TV. . . . Ginny Burkett had three babies this week, guppies that is. Only one is still living. . . . Our sympathy to Billie Tucker in the death of her husband, and to Dorothy Weiler in the death of her mother. . . . Hilda LeCoque is on the sick list. Hurry and get well, Hilda. . . . Ardola Metker, Rosemary Diem, Bernie Lake, and Mary Nute didn't know they had so many muscles until after their first night of bowling. My, such aches and pains! . . . John Whillet has a new way of getting his beef for the winter, by hitting calves when they get in his way of driving. . . . Gertie Bender claims she was just 17 when she had that picture taken. . . . This is to let Mrs. Ed Hines know why Ed's white socks were so black on the bottom. He was caught walking on the ramp with no shoes on. . . . Ed Moser said he enjoyed his vacation last week doing nothing in particular. . . . Bill Weigman, who has been sick, is back at work again. . . . Mary Warren and Helen Franklin are back at work after a sick leave. Both girls are looking good. . . . Ed Taylor says he was robbed on that fight between Charles and Marciano. Who did you say was going to win, Ed? . . . Don't leave your lunch where Helen White can get hold of it, Marie. You know what happens every time. . . . Don Brighton is on his vacation this week. . . . Leon Gurevsky won all the money on the fight Friday night. Now he can remodel his house. . . . Earl Sexton has bluegills in his ice box. He says they are all big ones. . . . It is two anniversaries for Grace Ober this week. Her birthday the 25th and her 12th wedding anniversary the 26th. . . . Ida Haupt serves pecan milk gravy with her pork roast. Seems she picked up the glass that had pecans and poured it in the gravy and never discovered it until she was eating. . . . Some birthdays are coming up this next week: Ed Ort on Sept. 24th; Paul Arnold the 26th of Sept.; Erma Fredrick, Sept. 27th; and Harley Heckley, Sept. 28th. . . . Mrs. Arnold, I told Paul I wanted some cake and he just laughed and said he probably wouldn't even have a cake. How about that? . . . With all the scenio pictures on his (we think) pajama top, Cal Listenberger was the main attraction on the entire floor a few days ago. . . . When the news went to press there were still no big fish stories about Everett Lindeman's vacation, but he says he enjoyed it very much. . . . Paul Arnold was seen coming out of the courthouse the other morning. It seems he has septic tank trouble at his new house. Do you suppose he hooked that up like he did his wiring? . . . Belated birthday greetings to Art Witze-greuter. He celebrated on the 20th of September. . . . Cal Listenberger says you don't have to go fishing to get a bird's nest. . . . The loud scream came from Fern Hollowell's lungs. It seems she saw a big bug and is deathly afraid of such things. . . . Katie Gilbert says she has a three-month-old calf she will sell. She has made too much of a pet out of it to keep it herself.

If you must be a statistic—try being a good one!

OPENING the fall and winter season of GE Club athletic activities, Erv Huth, athletic committee chairman, Bldg. 8-2, checks equipment with committee members, Joe Bahr, Bldg. 20-1; Art Rasor, Taylor St., and Betty Puff, Bldg. 4-6.

Know Your GE Club

Athletic Committee Works Year-Round

More than 400 employees participate in GE Club activities which are directed by the athletic committee. Under the supervision of this committee leagues have been formed for interdepartment softball, basketball, and volleyball; GE Club sponsored teams have been entered in Major League Softball and Owl Industrial League softball; a recreation program featuring volleyball and other sports has been set up for women employees, and fencing classes have been instituted.

Through past years, it has been the policy of the committee to have available for employees those sports which most of them would like to take part in, thereby serving as many employees and members of the GE Club as possible. Past activities have included many other events, but as interests changed the athletic schedule did also and is now operating with the above listed events.

When the GE Club was organized in the late '20's, one of its major objectives was to provide a recreation program for employee relaxation and participation. This is still the job of the athletic committee today.

Headed by Erv Huth, Bldg. 8-2, the committee includes Bennie Penkul, Taylor St., who handles the management of Owl activities; Dexter Marshall, Winter St., interdepartment softball manager, and Dick Thomas, Major League softball manager.

Earl Stauffer, Bldg. 4-6, has been appointed to manage the Interdepartment Basketball League for the coming season. Art Rasor, Taylor St., is head of the volleyball league. Betty Puff, Bldg. 4-6, has started a ladies recreation program on Monday evenings from 6 to 7 o'clock in the GE Club while Joe Bahr, Bldg. 20-1, coaches a fencing class, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. Mondays.

Each member of the committee contributes much time and effort to his job in order that each activity may be the smooth running operation that it is. They also keep the GE NEWS supplied with information on games so that everyone can be informed on the progress of the events.

Winning teams receive awards at the end of the season at athletic banquets. Money for these awards comes from proceeds received by the GE Club from vending machines.

The committee invites any employees interested in participating in any of these events to inquire at the GE Club or talk with any of the members. Or, if you prefer watching your co-workers in interdepartment play or inter-city competition, spectators are always welcome, too.

Saturday Bowlers Wanted

Any employees interested in bowling at 9 a.m. Saturdays are asked to contact Charlie Wilt, GE Club, Ext. 742.

Slate Fall Sports Banquet For Oct. 14 at GE Club

The third semi-annual GE Club sports banquet will take place Thursday, Oct. 14, in the club auditorium, Harold Braden, Bldg. 2-2, chairman of the event, announced this week.

Carl Bennett, of the publicity and promotion department of Zollner Machine Works, Inc., will be the principal speaker. Approximately 70 winners of athletic awards in summer sports sponsored by the GE Club will be honored at the banquet.

Awards to be presented include tee shirts, windbreakers, trophies, and jackets. In addition a special set of golf awards will be presented to persons whose names are drawn. These are five golf bags and a set of woods which have been contributed by the Main Auto Sport Shop.

The banquet will get under way at 6 p.m. when dinner will be served. Invitations will be sent the winners of golf and softball and reservations should be made with Charlie Wilt, GE Club.

Assisting the chairman with arrangements for the event are: Erv Huth, Bldg. 8-2; Joe Kramer, Bldg. 6-1½A; Les Shroyer, Bldg. 31-2; Gordon Smith, Section 417, Taylor St., and Carl Reynolds, Section 114, Taylor St.

WIRE RAVELINGS TAYLOR ST. by Al Hambrock

A BAD PENNY always returns so here we are again as your GE NEWS columnist. We all well know a good job cannot be done without the help and cooperation of everyone. In order to make it more convenient for you, the following co-workers will be more than happy to take down any news that you may have. Mildred Vogt, Engineering and Planning; Ina Mae Dorsey, Production and Cost; Leo Elward, Drawing; Cletus Lothamer and Joe Hill, Fabric Covering; Virgil Dennis, Stock and Salvage; Joe Ceveris, Inspection; Virgil Nash, Die Room; Dean Inman, Carl Junk, Benny Penkul, and Harold Parkison, Wire Enameling. . . . CIGAR FISHING: Paul Rugman, Charley Pepple, and Eldon Swaidner went fishing at Houghton Lake. Paul, instead of throwing his line in where the fish could get at it, wrapped it around Charley's mouth and came up with the cigar that Charley was puffing on. Some fisherman! . . . FOR SEVERAL MONTHS NOW we have been listening to Forrest Gill tell of all the various things he has done so far in his life. We will let you in on just a few of them: Race car driver, planning supervisor, farmer, farm manager, hotel manager, medical student, surgeon's assistant, production specialist, copper mining, chain store manager (dry goods), body and fender business, part owner of fishing equipment manufacturing business, pheasant grower, shoe machinery salesman, barber, trained race horses, pugilist (of no mean ability), and bartender. All we can say, Forrest, you really get around! . . . BIRTHDAY CONGRATULATIONS for this week go to Don Pappert, Warren Harding, Mark Wright, Marian Kees, and Emmett (Pappy) Rasor, who is still on the sick list. Also still on the sick list are Betty Pickett and Russel Geradot. Speedy recovery to you all. . . . FAMOUS LAST WORDS of Nolan Riley, "I just can't tell you. I just don't know." . . . CHEAP MELONS? Bud Morris bought seven melons for a dollar from Paul Rugman.

The GE Squares did it! They are the champions of the 1954 Interdepartment Softball League. They cinched the championship last week by completing the second round of play with an undefeated record. Previously, they had won the first round in a playoff.

Winning their seventh and final game of the second half was a tough task for the champs as they faced a hard-playing Apprentice team. The game went 10 innings before Homer Porte of the Squares drove in the winning run and a 13 to 12 score was tallied.

The Apprentices jumped off to a 6 to 0 lead in the first two innings. Then the Squares tied the game when Gil Carl knocked two homers with two men on each time. Milt DeJean and Dick Miller provided the rest of the scoring for the Squares with home runs. The losers capitalized on errors and timely hitting for their scoring.

In another game last week, the TE lads trounced the GE Vets 15 to 6. It was a close game until the seventh inning when the TE's scored eight runs. Ken Frankenstein hit two homers for the victors.

Final standings for second half play are:

	W.	L.
GE Squares	7	0
GE Vets	5	2
Apprentice School	4	2
Test Engineers	4	2
MTP	2	3
Works Lab	2	3
AST	1	6

Not long after he purchased them they came up missing. A short time later they showed up again. Bud then decided to eat one. While in this process six again came up missing. Finally two of them showed up again. Now the question of cheap melons is melon, melon, who got the other four melons? . . . CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. and Mrs. George Andorfer on a 7 pound 12 ounce boy by the name of Keith Edward, born September 18. . . . WE WELCOME Sharon Joyce Altman to the Wire Production Office. Hope you will like us, Sharon Joyce.

Attorney: "Answer yes or no."
Gorgeous Witness: "My, but you are a fast worker."

APPRENTICE BROADCAST by Tim Beitel Charlie Wilson

If someone happens to see a fellow carrying a white cane in Bldg. 12-2 or 12-3, don't be alarmed, he isn't really blind. He could be very easily, though. The fellow with the cane is guilty of not having his glasses on and this is our way of reminding him to keep them on. He has to carry the cane until he sees someone else without their glasses on. Then the cane passes on to the next guilty fellow. . . . The Apprentice School bowling league played their first game last week. George Haggenjos bowled two 200 games. . . . We wish to express our sympathy to Gene Miller, who runs the tool crib in Bldg. 12-2, on the recent death of his mother-in-law. Don Meads took over the tool crib chores during Gene's absence. . . . The football season is back again! This is much in evidence if one happens to look in the park at noon on one of these sunny days. Some of the boys from Bldg. 12-2 have been playing football between bites of dinner.

EVENING'S HIGH—Joe Kramer, GE Club bowling committee chairman, congratulates Bob Guingrich on the evening high of 234, as the Small Motor League started their kegling season.

HAPPY MAN—Carl Brandt started out in mid-season form as he totaled 605 for the high three-game series on opening night. Bill Putt is shown with the current record holder.

NEW EQUIPMENT—Charlie Wilt, club manager, measures Henry Vance for a new ball to start his bowling season. Bowling balls may be purchased at the GE Club.

Six Celebrate Service Anniversaries

NEAL R. HENCH (third from left) gets heartiest congratulations as he celebrates his 35th anniversary with General Electric. With him are (l-r) G. E. Hicks, Allen J. Ruble, Henry F. Dannecker, L. C. Swager, and Liston Persing. Mr. Hench was a transfer clerk in Bldg. 26-3 when he joined the company in 1919. He is now hourly wage administration specialist.

HILDA WALDA (seated center) is greeted on her 35th anniversary by (l-r) Lucinda Pettit, LaMar E. Drake, W. L. O'Brien and Bruce A. Rohn. Miss Walda, who is an electrical tester in Bldg. 4-5, came to GE in 1919 as an inspector in Bldg. 17-3.

HARRY L. DeWITT (center), Section 114, Taylor St., recently reached the 30-year mark in company service. Congratulating him are D. A. Garton, Fred H. Campbell, and Ewald Stinsmuelen. ←

ISABELLE R. HAUSBACH (seated center) recently celebrated her 35th year with General Electric. Shown with her on her anniversary are Patricia Lahr and A. J. Lange and (standing) George H. Knoll and C. F. Hambrook. She is a stenotypist in Bldg. 26-2 at present. She formerly worked in Bldg. 18-4.

WALTER G. MUEHLENBRUCH (center) receives best wishes on his 35th anniversary from (l-r) R. E. McVay, Harry Beaty, A. Landis, and Fred Gerhard. Mr. Muehlenbruch is a production clerk in plant services at Taylor St. He joined GE in 1919 as a clerk in Bldg. 10.

"Lost" and "Found" articles must be cleared through the Plant Protection Office, Bldg. 10-2, or the Plant receptionist, who will place the Ad-Let and otherwise advertise the article.

No ad will be received over the telephone. Only one ad per employee may be inserted. Each ad must be limited to 20 words and cannot be repeated. All articles mentioned must be personal property of the employee. Ads will not be accepted unless accompanied by the name, pay number, and division of the employee. No plant building or telephone number may appear in any ad except transportation ads, only the home telephone number or address. Send all ads to G-E NEWS office, Bldg. 10-1.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

One of Bud Dunlap's harmonica band buddies, Herb Shriner, was in town last week. We couldn't help wondering why one of the two should have gone so much further than the other when they both had the same start. Don't let this discourage you though, Herb, you may still make good. . . . Elmer Auman is beginning to wonder if telephones are here to stay. He called Norm Jackemeyer's number the other day and asked, "Norm close by?" After a quick check with Norm, the answering party informed Elmer that there was no Norm Closeby working there and was he sure he worked in the grinding section? Rather than straighten that our Elmer decided on a personal visit. . . . Forrest Whonsettler is willing to give those billfold moths a little fresh air if he can find a good used TV set at the right (low) price. . . . After trying to drive an arbor apart before he found it was threaded together, Herb Ort has decided that teaching school is easier. . . . Congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stahl on their 25th wedding anniversary. . . . Dallas Kees found his garage window in his car the other day. Sounds like a step toward portable garages. . . . Harold Hoffman finally broke down and bought TV. He says he's sure going to miss those dark theaters. . . . Charley Shipman and Matt McGingan attended the Indian-Yankee game the other Sunday. Matt said if their seats would have been any further back they would have fallen into Lake Erie. . . . The Mold Section at the Perfect Bldg. welcomes Joe Hiday and Herb Ort. . . . Hayden Rice celebrated his birthday the 16th of September and brought in a wonderful homemade cake for his co-workers in the check room. . . . Reinholt Lepper and Ralph Foust are taking their last fling of the season at Arbutis Lake in Michigan. The sly ones shipped their wives off to Arkansas so they could go to Michigan. We wish them good fishing. . . . George Spittler and family made a trip to Petosky, Mich., over the week-end to give the new Nash a road test. . . . Henry Gerdon's entire third week vacation will be taken up by the fashion show and fishing. . . . Wilbur Lane was seen in Hires auto parts store. Wilbur, you better give up. You won't get more than 14 miles to the gallon no matter what you do. . . . Paul Richter and family visited some of Mrs. Richter's relatives in East Liverpool, Ohio, over the week-end. . . . Anyone wishing to have their jokes jumbled contact Wilbur Lane. We hope he's over his bum stomach episode by now. . . . Gus Rodenberg had the trunk of his Olds 88 dented in and while seeing about repairs must have run into a high-powered salesman. He was last seen driving a new Olds 88. . . . Woodrow Hursh and the men working around him were sampling muskmelons the other morning and from the looks on their faces it must have been good. . . . The lathe section in Bldg. 19-4 welcomes Richard Putnam to their group. Dick replaces Norm Koons who is working on the bench in Bldg. 19-5. . . . Looks like Chet Reynolds might have to live out of cans, for a while at least. Chet got his wife one of those streamlined can openers for her birthday and until the novelty wears off the Reynolds menu will include plenty of canned goods. . . . We don't like to come right out and say a fellow is absent-minded, but Johnny Roemer lined a job up in his machine and was all set to take a cut, when he discovered the job was finished. . . . Karl Zurcher, after a very unpleasant experience last week, has decided that his sandwiches must hereafter be made of more tender substance. It seems that Karl was a little too eager to eat a sandwich and as he bit into it he heard a cracking sound. To his despair he realized he had cracked his lower plate. . . . Glenn Ramsey sold Bill Akers a high scoring bowling ball but all Bill could get with it was 66, 76 and 95. The pin setter was Lowell Welker, which may bring up all sorts of alley-gations. . . . Joe Mettler promised free meals for five of his fellow workers if Marciano would win in the 8th. He did, and they ate. . . . Bernie Byanzki and Bill Akers caught 43 fish (one bucketful) at Rome City. . . . Wayne Winters is in the Lutheran Hospital for a foot operation. We hope you get along O. K. and come back to work soon, Wayne. . . . Drive carefully. Most accidents are caused by failure of the nut that holds the steering wheel.

TALES from TAYLOR

SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

This is a report on an event that recently transpired in the life of Frieda Ramm (now retired). While out roaming around her backyard the other day, she discovered a goodly sized hole in the ground. Being somewhat curious as to what might be in there, she procured a lengthy stick and began poking around, when all of a sudden out came a swarm of angry hornets. Frieda started for the house screaming, at the same time grabbing a towel from the wash line and began swatting at the hornets, which continued to pester her until she reached the kitchen door. Upon entering the house she was so overcome with fright that she fainted dead away. Some time later she awoke from her nap upon the kitchen floor to discover that the hornets had departed without doing much damage. After this, Frieda, beware of holes in the ground, as Pete the Python might come bouncing out. . . . We have told you about Virgil Poland having trouble distinguishing between cantaloupes and pumpkins. Now if you will remember, what he thought to be cantaloupes were really pumpkins. Well, he is now having trouble with his watermelons, not being sure as to whether they are melons or gourds. . . . While attending the QC Club outing held recently at Franke Park we heard Art Brandenburg's name being blasted over the loud speaker system. We have since learned that he purposely had his wife call him on the telephone so as to hear his name called in a loud manner. We always thought that Art was loud enough without being paged over the loud speaker. . . . One of the features of the entertainment at the QC Club outing was the awarding of 40 $10 certificates which could be redeemed at the Employee Store for merchandise. One of the lucky ones was Ray Schuckel, but when his name was called he failed to put in an appearance. We since have learned that he became stricken with stage fright and would not ascend to the rostrum to receive his award.

"I once had an Indian friend named Chief Hock-um-Watch."
"What tribe?"
"Pawnee."

THE BIG WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Rachel Mounsey

We want to wish Marg Mercer, Irma Beard, Arlein Helberg, and Mildred Orr all a very happy birthday. . . . Norm Wolf bet Bob Huhn on the fight the other night and the loser was to buy the other one a dinner in the cafeteria. Norm won, so Bob had to go hungry, as his wife only gave him 75 cents and Norm is a big eater. . . . Ralph McVay was seen picking up his pigs out of the front yard at Taylor St. Monday morning. . . . Ed Bierly has long dreamed of owning a Cadillac, but his dreams fell short. He is now driving a new Ford. . . . Chet Carey visited the Toledo Zoo Saturday. . . . Welcome to Martha Bennett and Bill Pappert on days. . . . Ross Strodel has a hobby of collecting pictures of past president Herbert Hoover. We hear he received quite a few last week. . . . Emma Heinrich, who was injured at work, is now back and we hope she doesn't have any more accidents for a while. . . . Iris Allen is all smiles and who wouldn't be? She is now driving a new 1954 Pontiac Chief-tain. . . . Marguerite Stahl enjoyed a birthday dinner for her husband and his mother at the Chester Burgette home Sunday. . . . Francis Oberholtzer wishes to thank all her co-workers and friends for the lovely cards and gifts she received while in the hospital and at home. We wish you a very speedy recovery, Francis, and hope to see you back soon.

by Mable Fisher

Mabel Kepler, our Sunday school teacher, had all the crying babies Sunday. No doubt it was their bad day, Mabel. . . . Anthony Settemi was transferred to the mail room and Ivan Ford went to Production Section 402. Sorry to see you two leaving. . . . Elex girls in this section are busy voting for their favorites. . . . Helen Eggeman attended the Fall Fashion Revue. Her fall wardrobe will be greatly influenced by what she saw, we suspect. . . . Happy birthday to Catherine Minehart and William Switzer. . . . Of course we are all looking forward to Friday—inventory.

R. E. McVay guarantees no more "pig rooting" in the front lawn. He's put a ring in each nose of the cardboard pigs found in the lawn Monday morning. . . . Welcome to Don Morris, Apprentice Draftsman, and good-bye to Virgil Curly, who went to Motor & Generator. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wildermuth on the arrival of Mark Allen, tipping the scales at 7 lbs. 8 ozs., on September 16. . . . Happy birthday to Frank Ross, Marge Walker, Mr. Ralston, and Jack Stillinger. . . . In a few week's time, persons wishing speeches written or delivered may contact George Knight and/or Bob Rondot, who by that time will be in good form because of the Effective Presentation

Cafeteria Favorites

May Didrick, of the Bldg. 16-2 cafeteria, serves a delicious plate of fried liver and french fried onion rings.

FRIED LIVER

2 lbs. liver
½ cup lard
1 cup flour
1 Tbs. salt

Sift flour and salt together. Dip liver in the mixture and brown in hot lard. When liver is brown, put in baking dish and make a thin gravy by adding 2 tablespoons of flour to the grease in which the liver was fried. Brown the flour, then add 1 pint of water. Pour over the liver and bake 1 hour.

FRENCH FRIED ONION RINGS

4 medium size onions
1 cup Drakes Mix (a prepared mixture)
1 cup water

Cut onions in ½ inch thick slices. Separate onion rings and dip in mixture of Drakes Mix and water. Then fry in deep fat at 350 degrees until golden brown. Serves a family of four.

Course they are attending. . . . Max Harris and family will be quite busy Saturday moving into their new home. . . . Al Hartman is back at work after suffering an infection in his hand from a thorn. . . . Did you see Delores Hahn's picture in the paper announcing wedding plans for October 16? . . . Contrary to the old saying "all work and no play, etc.", Hazel and Bill Lichtenstiger spent most of their vacation canning, working on their house, etc. They did celebrate their wedding anniversary last Wednesday, September 15, in Fort Wayne. . . . Nannette Haley McGiffin, who was formerly employed by the Accounting Section, is now back in Fort Wayne from California visiting her parents and sister, Barbara Haley, and will probably be here for several months. . . . Fidelis Birchmeyer had a birthday recently and passed such delicious candy, everyone's ready for another birthday! . . . The Accounting Office representative at Fort Wayne's style show, Katie Walper, reports that Gizelle McKenzie and Snookie Lanson were wonderful, and that the men's styles will simply put our eyes out this fall with pink shirts and black trousers or vice versa. . . . Phyllis Grace, Sales, reports that she liked the styles, but that she really thought Tex Beneke was "out of this world." . . . We know that Doc Ditton will really lend a helping hand at home this week while on his third week's vacation. Mrs. Ditton is recovering nicely, following a recent operation. . . . Congratulations to the Don Nelsons. It's little girl number three. . . . The Accounting Section also has an experienced canvasser in its midst in the person of Mr. R. L. Mace. After Saturday's experiences at the above, Mr. Mace ought to be good enough for Gallup! . . . Neil Dowling is a trifle uneasy as to just what reaction to expect from members of his Effective Presentation class. In home practice, he can't get beyond the first minute and a half of his three-minute speech without his young son yelling, "Stop it! Stop it! That's enough." . . . Everyone thought Max Greeno was taking a vacation, but it really was a business trip. . . . Glad to hear B. R. McClure will be dismissed from the hospital today. . . . H. N. Mettler asked if last week was the first printing of "Taylor Triad." He said he had such a busy summer he just couldn't keep up on his literature. Bet that's the first time we've been called that!

Motor vehicle traffic in U. S. surpassed one-half trillion miles in 1952.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

WAYNE PERRY AND DON MEYER were wished to Winter St. on Monday, having had assignments in both Developmental and Specialty Drafting. They both agreed they'll miss many pleasant faces and their elevator ride each morning. . . . John Crogan and Jack Robertson are seeking new experiences in the apprentice machine shop and Motor Generator Drafting section, respectively. Having received much assistance from many of our Bldg. 4-6 personnel, the four threatened to print, thank you, on their drawings of the past week, but the standards committee objected so they settled for this fine print here to say, "Thanks Bldg. 4-6 Folks."

. . . CHRIS FLANIGAN lost two springs off a switch and has not been able to find either one. He has had almost half of the office looking for them. They are so small they can hardly be seen with the naked eye. How much is the reward, Chris? . . . FAREWELL to Bonnie Lepper who leaves today to become a full time housewife. She was honored with a dinner and a gift Wednesday, also a gift from the office. . . . WELCOME to Joseph Kraft, an apprentice draftsman working for J. C. Dur-ye. Hope you like it with us. . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Don Niles and Carol Stitz, Sept. 25; Herb Reitz on Sunday the 26th; Jack Jennings on Monday the 27th, and to our boss, Ted Ross, Tuesday, Sept. 28. Congratulations to you all and many more happy birthdays. . . . WELCOME to the new TE in Bob Loveland's group. His name is John J. Parker, III. This is his third test assignment, having spent previous tests at Lynn, Schenectady, and Erie. He is single and he has a BSME from Cornell U. His home town is Youngstown, Ohio. . . . Also welcome to our new drafting apprentices, Gene Berghorn (can't help saying, "A chip off the Old Block"). He looks exactly like his Dad, Paul Berghorn; Kenneth White, and Charles Spear. . . . GOOD-BY to TE's Melvin Stanford and John Miyasaki, leaving us today for their next assignments. We'd like to add that Mel promised to have one perfect clock card before he left. Wonder if he made it? . . . WE ARE HAPPY to see Carl Leitch back at his desk this week. He was confined to his home for a week with the flu. . . . WE OFFER our sincere sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. O. Foltz on the recent death of Mrs. Foltz's mother. . . . ALMOST A MEMBER: We are sorry to hear that E. M. Stanbery failed by such a small margin to qualify for the Floor Sitters' Club at Wednesday Standards meeting. That is, we are sorry the margin wasn't a much safer one. (Ahem.) Boy, it was close, huh, Stan? Art Kabish deserves the medal of merit for helping Stan regain a safe and stable position without a fumble. It almost sounds like a football game.

All GE Pensioners to Get Social Security Increase

General Electric announced today that it would waive provisions of its Pension Plan to enable all of its more than 14,000 pensioners to benefit by the recently increased social security payments.

In addition to waiving the provision which calls for deductions in company payments when social security benefits are increased, General Electric announced that it would also increase its payments by $7 a month to its retired employees over 65 who were retired before social security benefits became payable and thus are not able to benefit from social security. This amount will match the average social security increase which other GE pensioners will receive.

Effective Sept. 1

The extra GE payment of $7 a month will be effective as of Sept. 1, the same as the new higher social security benefits. It is expected that the first payment will be included in pension checks sent out at the end of October.

The company stated that under the GE Pension Plan, the majority of its present and future pensioners will automatically receive the benefits of increases in social security payments. However, for a number of its present and future pensioners to receive the larger income, it is necessary for the company to waive provisions of its Pension Plan which call for offsetting pension payments by social security increases.

Purpose of Action

The purpose of the company's action, which is subject to approval by its board of directors, is to make certain that all of its pensioners over 65 either receive the benefit of social security increases or the extra payment by the company comparable to the social security increase. The pensioners have been notified of the company's proposed action by letters from local management.

Of GE employees retiring in the next year, about 150 of those who might be affected may be represented by unions. Before making this program effective for these employees, the company will ascertain that the interested union has no objections to GE making higher payments than those called for by continuing contracts which run to Sept. 15, 1955.

Increase For All

General Electric plans contemplate that all present pensioners as well as employees retiring in the future will, as they qualify for social security, have their incomes increased as a result of the 1954 increases in social security benefits.

Baldwin New Counsel Here; Moore Goes to Nela Park

Quincy D. Baldwin has been named counsel for company operations here by H. A. MacKinnon, vice president, succeeding Douglas S. Moore, who will assume the position of counsel for the Lamp Division with headquarters at Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Baldwin has been serving as Lamp Division counsel under D. L. Millham, vice president, prior to today's announcement of the organizational change.

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y. and a graduate of New York University, Mr. Baldwin joined General Electric in 1933, after several years of private law practice. In 1945, he was appointed counsel for the Lamp Division.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin will reside on Oakdale Drive. They have one married daughter who lives in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Moore has been counsel in Fort Wayne since 1951. He is a native of Paterson, N. J. and was graduated from Cornell University in 1941 and the Cornell Law School in 1943. He is a member of the Bar of the States of Indiana, New York, and the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Moores and their three children, who now reside at 1038 Maxine Drive, will move to Cleveland where they will live at 3699 Traver Road, Shaker Heights, Ohio.

W. St. Pilot Line Starts Production Of New Motor

Starting next week, regular production of Specialty Component Motor's new type shaded pole motor will get under way at the department's pilot line in Bldg. 8, Winter St.

Operating on a small-scale basis, the pilot line has been producing sample motor orders for customers until now. Regular production will continue at Winter St. until the extensive tooling program at Taylor St. has been completed.

Production of the new 39 frame motor is expected to begin at Taylor St. by Spring, 1955. The most modern equipment available today

Services Fund to Launch Campaign for New Members

Beginning Monday, Oct. 11 the GE Employees Community Services Fund will conduct its 1954 campaign among non-members in the Fort Wayne plants. Everett C. Smith, Bldg. 21, is campaign chairman, it was announced this week by the board of administrators.

Solicitors will contact non-members to give them the opportunity to contribute to 28 health and welfare agencies in Fort Wayne and Allen County through payroll deductions in weekly amounts or one lump sum.

The campaign is being conducted in conjunction with the United Fund drive which opens October 10 in Allen County. Employees contribute to the United Fund through membership in the Employees Community Services Fund. This year's goal for the United Fund, as announced by F. E. Schouweiler, president of the fund, is $935,388.

Another agency, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, has been added to those previously benefiting from the fund this year. The other health and welfare agencies are: Allen County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, Allen County Society for Crippled Children, USO-United Defense Fund, American Red Cross, and 23 Community Chest agencies.

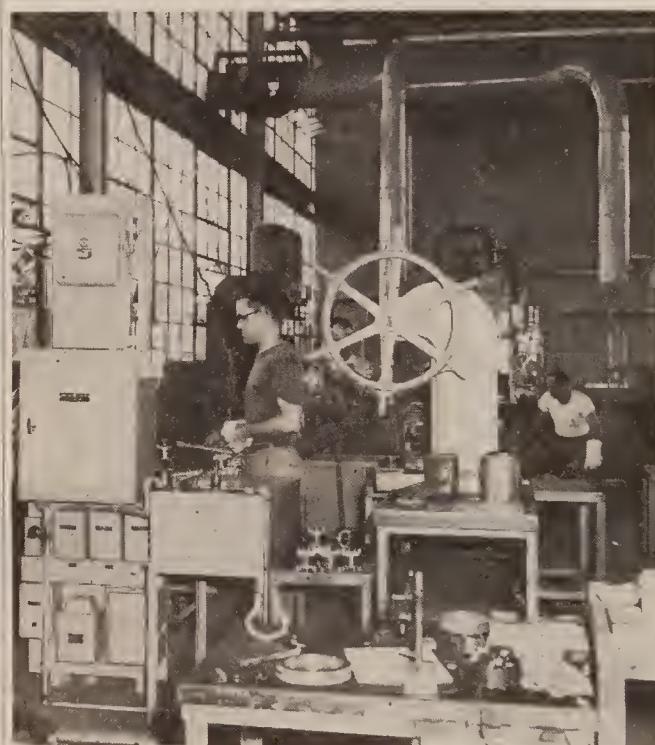

On behalf of the United Fund campaign, the Junior Chamber of Commerce will present a one and a half hour television show over WKJG-TV Monday, Oct. 4. The program, which will begin at 11 p.m., will feature six professional entertainment acts. It will be called "Vaudia Review".

Headlining the program will be Homer and Jethro, of radio, television, and recording fame. In addition there will be Prof. Backwards, who amazes audiences with his ability to read and spell backwards; Joy Whitney and the Visionaires, three men and a girl who present song and dance styling; Lee Marx and Billie, comedy juggling; Stan Kramer and Company, marionette act, and Kristopher and King dance team.

Chairman of the project is Bob

Preview of Things to Come

NEW MOTOR PILOT LINE—First regular production of Specialty Component Motor's new shaded pole motor will start next week on a pilot line at Winter St. The line will move to Taylor St. sometime next spring after an extensive tooling program is completed. Homer Ray is shown working in one phase of production for the 39 frame motor at the pilot line, where winding, assembly, and testing are being done.

IT'S FUN TO "DO IT YOURSELF"

It's Fun to Do It Yourself

Go anywhere. Talk to anyone. Chances are better than even, these days, that "home made" items of one kind or another will be the center of conversation and usage. And we can't help but view the nation's current "do it yourself" boom as a good thing for America and its people—no matter how many "non-doers" scoff at the whole idea (out of envy, in most cases).

In recent weeks, we've snuffed out our cigarettes in home-made ash trays that would put many museum pieces to shame. We've smacked our lips over the hickory-smoked goodness of hamburgers fresh from a backyard barbecue bricked-and-mortared by a bookkeeper who'd never seen a trowel until last Spring. Right now, we're bargaining with our own wife. If she'll make a batch of home-made peach preserves—as Joe's wife is doing—we'll return the favor by making and installing a fluorescent lighted valance in the kitchen. And we're not the only ones who are having fun with leisure-time effort.

Playing ping-pong in a knotty pine, asphalt-tiled basement that once resembled the Black Hole of Calcutta is an every-day pleasure for Ernie and his family. Watching home-made movies in a once-useless attic is the recreational miracle that Fred has fashioned with his own hands, some wallboard, and the insulation his kids installed with a stapling gun and shears loaned by a local building materials man. Joan papered the walls, refinished the pre-Pilgrims maple furniture, draped the windows, and spatter-painted the ancient flooring in her "furnished" room so effectively that her friend, an interior decorator, is frankly envious.

And these GE folks are all amateurs who were scared to death by anything more complicated than a nail—before they tried. Yet they've discovered two things in common with the real professionals in the GE family who've built their own houses, wired their own GE kitchens, paved their own driveways, launched their own boats, and turned out most of their own furniture in after hours time that would be largely wasted—if every shoemaker stuck only to his last and every machinist stuck to his lathe.

They've found that everyone in the family, and everyone who visits the family, gets more fun out of life when they

Related birthday greetings to Kate Biltz and Virginia Reed. We are sorry we missed you last week. . . . Garnet Marshall took her mother to a party and went to park the car, but she attended the wrong party and was eating with the wrong people before she knew it. Where was your mind, Garnet? . . . Norm Wolf is feeling much better now that someone brought him in such a pretty bouquet. Now he is going to have to do his own cooking so he won't be feeling well for a while. . . . We wish to welcome Ann Cueller Gonzales back to work. She was married while she was away. Congratulations to both of you. . . . Mildred Snyder is going to go to Canada on a hunting trip. What kind of deer are you going to bring back, Millie? Good luck anyway. . . . Jackie Johnson surely had a bad day Friday, especially helping take inventory. She had an accident so Peg Ballinger, Dallas Patton, Harry Todd, and Carl Sorenson carried her to the dispensary. But just before they got her there, they dropped the stretcher. If she wasn't hurt before, she surely was when she arrived. . . . Art Kurtz has left us to go to the Winter St. plant. Good luck on your new job, Art.

THE WESTERNERS

Bldg. 20-1

We say good-bye to John Hudack this week as he leaves us for his new assignment at the Erie Plant. Lots of luck, John. . . . We welcome Ross Rollins, who is starting with us this week from Taylor St. Hope you like us here in Bldg. 20. . . . Well, after all that help we gave to get to Hanna St. started and the first thing they do is get all stuck-up. But they had to call us for help. Ross Sills took a few men and went in out there on Sunday afternoon and by midnight they were well simmered down, and under control. They really had the varnish flowing deep, and were they a mess. . . . From our window we can see the parade of hats at noon hour and some are really pretty. Even the men pass their comments on them, for Paul Schoenherr was overheard saying he especially likes the ones with the feathers. If you don't believe it just ask him. . . . Ed Ream, George Coplen, Al Klein, Carl Garretson, Albert Hollenbaugh, and Gottlieb Essig, are all going on vacations this week. Some are going fishing and some are going on trips. Looks like nice weather for either. . . . George Huebner is back from his vacation and also Carl Williams. Sure is a good thing Carl got back when he did, as Charles Cook wouldn't have lasted another week without his partner, Carl. . . . Art Lantz is sure trying to get Simeon Faurote out of our join the "do it yourself" brigade. There's nothing like a borrowed (and returned) drill bit or ladder for bringing neighbors closer together. And when Mom, Dad, and Sister remake a room or refinish a table together, they can't help but draw closer together in all ways.

They've found, too, that many of the extras in life can be part of their life—in spite of out-of-date building codes and out-of-reach building labor—if they're willing to spend their own free time on something worthwhile.

All things considered, we really should take a crack at making and installing a fluorescent valance—whether or not the wife puts up those peach preserves.

ADVANTAGES OF GOOD EATING

People who eat right most of their lives enjoy many known advantages that others miss. It is possible that they may derive other benefits from good nutrition. Today studies are being conducted to find out what part if any poor nutrition plays in the aging process, in heart disease, alcoholism, mental illness, and even cancer. Among the visible values of correct eating, you can count these:

- 1) Healthy hair and skin. Hair should have luster and life, and scalp should be free from scaling, a symptom of dryness. Skin should be clear, free from infection, and should contain enough natural oil to keep the skin properly lubricated.
- 2) Eyes that are not extra sensitive to light, or to changes in darkness and light.
- 3) Healthy teeth and gums. Teeth should be resistant to decay. Gums should be a healthy pink in color and should not bleed when brushed.
- 4) Strong bones highly resistant to injury.
- 5) Development and maintenance of good muscular coordination. Strong muscles help to hold bodies erect. Correctly nourished muscles are less likely to become stiff and painful.
- 6) Greater resistance to infections and shorter duration of such infections leading to a quicker recovery.
- 7) Good appetite, digestion and elimination and healthy nerves.
- 8) A general feeling of well being, improved disposition, and increased vim and vigor.

These are the most important advantages to be gained from selecting daily servings from among the basic seven foods—leafy green and yellow vegetables; citrus fruits; potatoes and other vegetables and fruits; milk and milk products; meat, fish, or poultry; bread and cereals, and fats and oils.

Here's to your good health through good eating!

bachelor's cluh, I believe. How about it, Sim? . . . We want to extend our sympathy to Wally Reed in the loss of his sister last week. . . . The foremen want to let Elmer Mesing know that they are still paddling his canoe while he is gone, and just between us, I believe they miss you around here, Elmer. . . . Seems inventory was a little tiresome for some. Cliff Thicholt looked mighty tired late Friday afternoon. Saw Oscar Rodenbeck all relaxed though in an easy chair back in the stockroom, just writing. . . . Myron Cole is looking better now, or hadn't you noticed? His wife is home from the lake now to stay, and Myron's back on his regular meals, not his own cooking. . . . John Lare got a special letter in the mail last week, but he hurriedly mailed it on for fear he would break the chain, and yet—he doesn't want to die young.

WIRE RAVELINGS TAYLOR ST.

by Al Hambrock

CRAWLER — One night last week the janitor locked Al Swift's office door for which he has never had a key (Frank Kilcoin note). Being the quick thinking person his name implies, he promptly crawled on top of a desk, then through the small window which leads to his office. Imagine anyone being so anxious to get to his work that he crawls to it. . . . NEW IDEA — Bud Morris and Warren Harding both own Plymouths and ride to work together. But instead of calling it "share the ride," they call it "share the parts;" for if something goes wrong with the one car, they steal the part of the other one. . . . HOME LATE—Skin McGary went fishing and came home late. When Mrs. McGary asked why and the wherefor, Skin told her that as he was coming back down stream a tree fell across the river and he had to cut his way through with a pocket knife. He also told us he caught 18 small bass. Note: Every man to his own opinion. . . . MARILYN & LIBERACE — Don Pappert had a birthday last week and besides receiving many of last year's Christmas cards, he received a card from Marilyn and one from Liberace. At least, that's what the cards said. When we flapped our lip with Don about the card Marilyn sent him, he said, "I was just wondering if she would remember." Oh, boy! Now, as to Liberace, girls, Don is in no uncertain terms real competition. The only difference is that Liberace is more on the brunette side and plays the piano while Don is on the blond side and plays golf. Confidentially, girls, Don is still single and not engaged as far as we know. We are pretty sure he has never been out with a girl. For telephone number, please refer to directory. . . . CORN COBS—If you want any corn cobs, see Nolan Riley. He has a sack full of them left by someone on his front porch. No doubt these are the same cobs Nolan put on someone's car hood at the Bluffton Fair. . . . HOT DOG—Snuffy Junk had a wiener bake in his backyard the other night, but not for Snuffy. He had to eat soup as all his molars have gone down the drain. Better days are coming. Snuffy. . . . SORRY—Last week we told you Forest Gill was a surgeon's assistant, now he tells us this is wrong, he was a diamond cutter. Well, so be it, Forest. It's nicer to cut of diamonds than bodies anyway. . . . PRIZE WINNER—Ralph Hoover won four Grand Champion ribbons at the Bluffton Fair for his showing of his Leghorn Cockerels. Congratulations, Ralph. . . . Birthday greetings for next week go to Bob Johnson, Oct. 6; Melvin Yates, and Paul Loveless, Oct. 8. . . . We are very happy to see Betty Pickett back to work so soon. It's nice seeing you around, Betty.

GE DEPARTMENTS SPONSOR FIVE COMPANIES

Junior Achievement Starts Second Year of Activities

Open to young adults between the ages of 15 and 21, the Junior Achievement Center of Fort Wayne and Allen County will launch its second year of activity Monday, Oct. 4. Located at 109 W. Lewis St., the Center offers pre-business experience in sales, finance, and production to the boys and girls while they have fun organizing and operating small companies which sell products or services.

Anyone in the qualifying age group who wishes to participate in Junior Achievement activities may secure an application blank from his or her school office or from the Center office any evening Monday through Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Bill Kennedy, executive director of the Center, announced that there are still openings for any persons interested in becoming a Junior Achiever. More than 450 young adults have already enrolled in JA. They will become members of 26 companies this year. Each of the companies is sponsored by a local business or industry.

Five GE Companies

Again this year, each of the five General Electric departments in Fort Wayne is sponsoring a company. Twenty-six GE employees are serving as advisers to the five companies and as members of the Board of Directors and Center Committee.

On the Board and Center Committee, which direct the over-all operation of Junior Achievement in Fort Wayne and Allen County, are AB Martin, general manager—Hermetic Motor; L. C. Swager, manager of employee and plant community relations; Donald D. Brayer, plant engineer, Specialty Component Motor; Carl H. Rinne, general manager—Specialty Transformer; J. J. Clarkson, general manager—Specialty Component Motor, and Lisle D. Hodell, general manager—General Purpose Component Motor.

Hermetic Motor Department is sponsoring a JA company which will manufacture a wood product. Serving as advisers for this group will be R. H. Bender, George B. Howell, S. E. Kelker, and Joseph P. Orbin.

A mail box sign will be manufactured by the company sponsored by General Purpose Component Motor Department with the following employees serving as advisers: Clifford Bieber, Richard D. Abraham, Robert Mace, and R. D. Wildermuth.

To Market New Product

Members of the company sponsored by Specialty Component Motor Department have decided to make small metal tissue containers. Advising the young adults in this venture will be Joseph F. Jamison, Bruce A. Rohn, and G. A. Sloan.

Wooden dancing dolls will be made and sold by members of the company sponsored by Specialty Transformer Department. Dale Amstutz, David W. Day, P. G. Kuttner, and Robert Rowe will be advisers.

Winter St.'s Small Integral Motor Department will sponsor a company which has decided to manufacture Christmas candles and money clips. The five advisers in this group will be Paul A. Berg-horn, John W. Hinsel, R. C. Oliver, Clifford K. Bowman, and John Leininger.

The advisers will meet with the students one night each week from now until May for a two-hour session. During this period, all business of the companies will be carried on from setting them up and selling stock to gain funds to liquidating the companies at the end of the year and distributing the profits, if any, to the stockholders. This will be done by the achievers, with the advisers standing by to offer assistance when necessary.

Squares to Stage Fashion (?) Show For Wives Oct. 9

Joining with their wives, GE Squares Club members will stage a humorous style show Saturday, Oct. 9 in the Squares Hall. The show will depict fashions from the cave man, gay nineties, and flapper eras. Eight members and their wives will model fashions with Mrs. Rem Chatterley acting as commentator. A prize will be awarded the couple modeling the best fashions. Judges will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rescorla and Al Munster.

In addition, there will be a

Elect Georgette Hetzel New Elex President

Georgette Hetzel, Bldg. 26-2, has been elected president of Elex Club for the 1954-55 year. Other new officers who were announced this week are: E. Maxine DiGregory, Bldg. 4-3, first vice president; Peggy Bandt, Taylor St., second vice president, and Dorothy Olson, Taylor St., secretary.

The two newly elected directors are Betty Thompson, Winter St., and Mildred Koehler, Bldg. 6-4. The three new trustees are Helen Studler, Bldg. 26-3; Marian Leiter, Bldg. 4-6, and Phyllis Borkenstein, Bldg. 26-4.

Tomorrow afternoon, the new officers will be installed in a candlelight tea at the Fort Wayne Women's Club beginning at 5 p.m. Kenneth W. Michael, manager of community relations, will conduct the ceremony.

Elex will open its club year Monday, Oct. 11 at the GE Club with Al Stewart and the Purdue Glee Club. The dinner meeting will begin 4:45 p.m. Reservations may be made with contact girls. The meeting is open to members only.

With the final report on the membership drive not yet in, the tally of Elex members rose to 1507 this week. According to club constitution, the membership drive closes today for all women employees on payroll.

Only those persons off for a leave of absence or lack of work may join after that date.

John Laymon, Jr. Appointed GP Manufacturing Specialist

The appointment of John L. Laymon, Jr. as manufacturing specialist in the General Purpose Component Motor Department has been announced by Paul E. Merkey, manufacturing engineer.

In 1935 Mr. Laymon joined the company as a production record dance and refreshments will be available. Ted Briles, Winter St., is serving as general chairman for the event. Assisting him with arrangements for the show is Mrs. Earl Elwonger.

Models are: Mr. and Mrs. Max Barrows, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Abraham, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reek, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Donahoo, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hodell, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Krasienko, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Quinn, and Mr. and Mrs. John Leavell.

Supervisors Club To Attend 'Gigi' At Civic Oct. 6

Wednesday, Oct. 6, the doors of the Civic Theatre will open to members of the Supervisors Club and their ladies when they will attend a performance of the play "Gigi." The theatre will be open at 7:30 p.m. and curtain time is 8:15 p.m. There are no reserved seats.

Tickets for the performance may be obtained from contact men. Honoring their ladies, members will have flowers for them as they enter. The party is sponsored by Group 3 which is headed by Willis Lautzenheiser, Bldg. 31-2, and Herbert Foreman, Bldg. 19-5.

Setting for the play is Paris in the early 20th century. The title role of Gigi is portrayed by Carol Krull. The leading male part is played by George Koegel. Three experienced actresses in Civic and Light Opera Festival productions appear also. They are Carol McNally, Jayne Spillson, and Margery Suter.

clerk. He became a quotations clerk in Fractional Horsepower Motor renewal parts sales in 1939 and in 1942 went into operations planning. The following year he entered wage rate and time study work.

From November, 1943 until March, 1946 Mr. Laymon served in the U. S. Army and was stationed in the South Pacific Theater. When he returned to GE he went on time study and in 1948 moved to central wage rate where he was engaged in wage rate procedures and training. In 1951 he was named time standards specialist in FHP. Last year he entered advanced manufacturing developmental work in Bldg. 19-5 and had this position until his present appointment.

Mr. Laymon is a member of the Supervisors Club and Decimal Minute Men. He attended Indiana University and Purdue University Extension for two years majoring in business. The Laymons and their three children reside at 302 McKinnie Circle.

SOS OFFICERS—Employees of the Small Integral Motor offices have formed a new social club, the SOS Club, which derives its name from the words SIM office social. Officers are (l-r): Ted Lorenz, vice president; Justine Brown, president, and Dexter Marshall, secretary-treasurer. The group has plans for a record dance and semi-formal dance this fall.

Martin, Bldg. 6-1½ A. He is being assisted by R. A. Chatterley, Bldg. 26-2. In addition to the six acts, Hal Kerns and his orchestra will be on hand to lend musical atmosphere.

The 23 agencies of the Community Chest to which employees may contribute through membership in the Services Fund are: Allen County League for the Blind, American Hearing Society, Associated Catholic Charities, Boy Scouts, Children's Day Care Association, Family and Children's Services, Fort Wayne Jewish Federation, Fort Wayne Urban League, Girl Scouts, Goodwill Industries, Lutheran Social Services, Medical and Dental Services, Mental Health Association, National Probation and Parole Association, National Travelers Aid Association, Fort Wayne Rescue Home and Mission, St. Vincent's Villa, Salvation Army, Social Planning Council, Visiting Nurse Service, Westside Neighbor Center, YMCA, and YWCA.

New Motor

will be installed to produce the motor, A. J. Rose, manager of manufacturing, stated.

In order to start the new motor line, the department began work on the project in 1952. One and one-half years of engineering went into the design before December, 1953, when the Winter St. building was leased for the pilot line. After the building was ready for occupancy, the pilot line moved in during May and the first sample motors were produced in June of this year.

The Winter St. operation was set up to supply large quantities of sample motors to customers, to learn more about the motor from manufacturing and engineering standpoints, and acquaint employees with the motor. At present, winding, assembly, and testing are being done at Winter St. The other operations are being performed in Section 417, Taylor St.

When regular production begins, a second shift will be added to the pilot line. Ralph Keller and Fred Seip are the foremen in charge on the two shifts.

Customer reaction to the samples shipped them has been very favorable, J. J. Horan, manager of marketing, stated. "We anticipate a great demand for the new type shaded pole motor, especially with the increase in air conditioning business and the need for a larger and more quiet shaded pole motor." The department's new product answers this demand, he said.

The motor offers superior ventilation, shorter, trimmer design, all-angle operation, sealed-in lubrication, and mounting flexibility. When production begins at Taylor St. the motor will be manufactured in ratings from 1/20 to 1/6 hp. outputs.

Various types to be produced include single and double shaft, any direction mounting, with and without overload protection, single direction and reversible, open and enclosed shell, single and multi-speed, and with and without base.

In order to accommodate the new line at Taylor St., the 10, 20, 30 frame line in Section 417 will be moved to Bldg. 4-1. This move is scheduled to begin October 15. Section 415 is being rearranged in Bldg. 4-2 and Bldg. 4-5 over a period of about two months to provide space for the 10, 20, 30 frame line.

DECATURITES

by George Laurent

Johnny Baumann retained his Decatur City Golf championship in an all-GE finals match with Kenny Gaunt. Baumann won over Gaunt 3 and 2 after 36 holes of highly competitive, evenly matched golf. For his championship, Baumann received several valuable prizes besides the beautiful championship trophy. As runner-up Gaunt also received valuable prizes. Gaunt also lost in the semi-finals last year to Bauman, whose consistency in the clutches has made him Decatur's outstanding golfer for two consecutive years. . . . Vera Geels was honored with a surprise shower given by the office girls at the home of Mary Fennig last week and received many lovely gifts to assist her in her new role as Mrs. Gene Johnson. ## Joseph Cotten Makes TV Debut On General Electric Theater

Joseph Cotten, one of Hollywood's leading actors makes his television debut on "The General Electric Theater" Sunday, at 8 p.m., over WIN-T, Waterloo, Channel 15, when he stars in an adaptation of Evelyn Waugh's "High Green Wall."

Cotten, who starred in such films as "Since You Went Away," "The Third Man," "Duel In The Sun" and "Portrait of Jenny," portrays an explorer who is held captive in the jungle by a madman who likes Dickens is the background for the TV play, "High Green Wall." A lost explorer, Henty, is nursed back to health by a half-caste, McMaster, whose sole joy in life is having Charles Dickens read to him. Through several ruses, McMaster attempts to keep Henty from leaving the jungle and returning to civilization.

Many factors were responsible for luring the distinguished star into television. Charles Jackson, author of the best selling "The Lost Weekend," wrote the teleplay.

Nicholas Ray, one of filmdom's top creative talents, directed Mr. Cotten under the supervision of producer Leon Gordon, who is known for his many MGM pictures.

The teleplay gives Cotten a chance to recite many passages from the works of Charles Dickens, which should prove a treat to millions of viewers. Prior to his Hollywood bow, Cotten was known for one of the finest voices in radio, working with Orson Welles' Mercury Theatre. He is but one of the many top Hollywood stars who will make their television bow on "The General Electric Theater" during the forthcoming series.

BREAK—Ronald Reagan, left, and Joseph Cotten pause for a chat during the filming of "High Green Wall," suspenseful drama to be seen on "The General Electric Theater," Sunday, at 8 p.m. over WIN-T, Channel 15. Reagan is program supervisor of this elaborate new series. "High Green Wall" stars Cotten in the Evelyn Waugh story about an explorer who is held captive in the jungle by a half caste whose sole joy in life is having Charles Dickens read to him.

TELEPHONE PARTY LINE GETS JOAN IN TROUBLE—The telephone—a simple, useful and harmless gadget in the hands of virtually everyone but the unpredictable comedy star Joan Davis, gets that intrepid lady into a mess of trouble on the "I Married Joan" telecast of Wednesday at 7 p.m. over WKJG-TV.

Joan learns that her new neighbor, Mrs. Tobin (Shelia Bromley), shares her party line, and the antics of the two who try to beat each other to the telephone make for several zany situations.

leaving us Oct. 1 and will be married Oct. 9. She will make her new home in Waukegan, Ill., where Gene is serving in Uncle Sam's Navy. We will certainly miss Vera's cheerful disposition in the production section, but we want to wish the bride and groom our congratulations and best wishes for many, many years of married bliss.

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

Fall is here. Baseball is on its way out with the World Series this week. If your team didn't win, better luck next year. . . . Football will now be the talk. . . . Fall brings fairs. Don Macon went to the Bluffton Fair last week. After seeing himself on TV, he is wondering whether he should remain as a setup man at the GE, or go to Hollywood and be a stand-in for John Payne. . . . To the parents of Edith Clevenger, we send congratulations on their golden wedding anniversary. We wish you many, many, more years of health and happiness. . . . Congratulations to Mary Schumm and her husband on their 14th wedding anniversary. . . . This week we light another candle on the birthday cake for Marge Ponsot. . . . Max Fielitz was up to visit us last week. His life of ease is certainly agreeing with him. Stop in again, Max. . . . Mabel Schaaf was so anxious to join Elex this year, she tried to join twice. . . . Bob Davison was enjoying his vacation last week. . . . Margaret Monnot will be enjoying a vacation next week. . . . Dick Gidley didn't want us to know he was working days. How can we help but know, when you bring us up on the elevator?

SPECIAL BARGAIN—Free radio lamps like the one shown by Judy Berghorn, Bldg. 4-6, will be given away with the purchase of any General Electric clock-radio at the Employee Stores at Broadway and Taylor St. The special free offer opens today. The lamp has a wrought iron base and fibre-glass shade in black and white.

APPRENTICE SAFETY CAMPAIGN to remind Apprentice School members to wear safety glasses is demonstrated by Fred Wiedemann, Bldg. 12-3, left, and Dick Fischer, Bldg. 12-2, right. When an apprentice is caught in the school without his safety glasses on, he is given a white cane. He must keep it until he finds another member who is not wearing his safety glasses and so the cane is passed around as a reminder that it is better to wear safety glasses than to have need of a white cane.

10 GE Men Named Registered Engineers By Indiana Board

The Indiana State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors has granted Professional Engineers registration certificates to the following General Electric engineers:

W. H. Abbott, R. E. Anderson, J. R. Clark, R. A. O'Connor, and R. A. Quinn, all of Specialty Transformer Department; M. C. Halleck and F. H. Wright, both of the laboratory; C. E. Linkous and J. W. Taylor, both of Specialty Component Motor Department, and L. E. Staak, General Purpose Component Motor Department.

To fulfill the requirements of the Board, the engineer must submit evidence of education and experience and pass a 16-hour written examination.

Engineers not presently registered may contact J. L. Oldenkamp, president of the Fort Wayne Association of General Electric Engineers, for information on registration in Indiana. Mr. Oldenkamp's extension is 2158.

Cafeteria Favorites

An appetizing fall dish of stuffed mangoes is prepared by Gisella Wroegman, Bldg. 16-1 cafeteria.

Taylor St.

Harold McGary and a friend went fishing on the river. They caught their limit of bass(?) and started back. They were going merrily along their way when they saw that a tree had fallen across the river and they couldn't pass. So Skinny got out his pen knife and whittled at the log until it was in two and they could go on. To those who doubt this tale, Skinny swears that he has a very thin knife to prove it. However, he had to throw away the fish because after all that work, they were too big and too heavy to carry. . . . Harry Davis is a very ingenious fellow. He always carries a cooler in the trunk of his car when he travels. He has a hole in the floor of the trunk of his car to allow the water to drain. On a recent trip to Florida, he stopped to eat and discovered he had forgotten to bore a hole in the floor of his new car. He was doing just fine until he discovered that the gas tank on his new car is shaped differently and he was putting a hole in it. His wife wouldn't let the filling station attendant fix it until Harry explained how it got that way. It's still a good idea, Harry, but you should have inspected that Olds before adding improvements. . . . For any information you might want on the bone structure of any animal, just ask Florence Ham. . . . The people at Taylor St. were really surprised to see the "pigs" in the yard in front of the building. The yard had been plowed and it looked like a likely place for pigs. Ralph McVay nearly had a heart attack, thinking they were real, but he soon discovered that they were cardboard. He has received valuable information on hog calling and the latest prices on pigs. It certainly brought to reality the fact that the lawn looked like the "pigs had been rootin'" in it. . . . The pained expression on Glenn Carpenter's face is caused partly by the fact that he has quit smoking. . . . Johnny Heindselman had a habit of staying up late to watch TV, but not anymore. Since Terry made his first appearance this month, the entire household has changed its routine. Congratulations from all of us, Johnny, on the arrival of your son. . . . Wallace Geller just returned from three weeks of fishing in Wisconsin. His total catch—569!! He also brought back five quarts of strawberries that he picked himself. Imagine, fresh strawberries in September, yummy! . . . Have you noticed that Rosie Stalling has picked up the nick-name of "Judge"? How cum, Rosie? . . . "Slow" is the standard answer when we ask Vance Fennimore how he is getting along with the house he is building. He is still looking for volunteer painters. Still no comments.

John Redmerski was on his vacation last week and visited the Smoky Mountains. He also visited Chattanooga, Tenn., but he didn't see the choo-choo train. . . . Russell Greene was also on vacation and went to Michigan fishing. . . . Forrest Reed did quite a bit of hunting on his vacation. . . . We extend our sympathy to Lawrence and Leonard Bresler on the death of their mother, also to Roger

Johnson, who is taking Frank Karthol's place while he is on vacation, on the death of his uncle. . . . Douglas Heckman is still on the sick list. . . . Something new: Wilbur Ayers has a new fire-engine red Dodge with red seat covers. I understand from its description it can be used as a fire engine for Highway No. 114 and Roanoke. . . . Pat Christle drove his new car in the Bluffton Street Fair parade, also he has a new bread snatcher in the form of a duck, he won it by tossing nickles. . . . While speaking of the Fair, Malcolm Bender was seen listening to a lecture on "why you should buy this medicine" so you can live 10 years longer. Did you buy some, Malcolm? . . . Russell (Slim) Neireiter should be a little more careful, I understand he had quite a time with a drill the other day. Put a bell on it, Slim. . . . Elmer Wagner didn't think people noticed his right hand enough so he cut his finger and they had to wrap his whole hand. . . . We welcome Raul Cueller to Mr. Wagner's section. He comes from Bldg. 22. . . . We wish a lot of luck to Darwin Klenke who left us this week. . . . Hubert Russer was seen frequenting one particular place at the Bluffton Fair and I understand he owns one of the center posts now. . . . Blanche Cowell has the new look—safety glasses. Pretty nice, Blanche.

A lot of trouble in this world today is produced by those who don't produce anything else.

TAB DAY—The 1954 TAB Day ceremonies opened Saturday, Sept. 25 with a parade led by Grand Marshall I. E. Ross, Bldg. 4-6, and Explorer Scouts from Troop No. 11. The all-day program was held at Municipal Beach for members of GE training programs who had not previously attended a TAB Day. Purpose of the program is to help trainees get acquainted with members of management. Principal speaker of the day was Frank T. Lewis, manager of manufacturing personnel development, Schnectady. Highlight of the day was the athletic competition between four color teams.

They Say Good-By To Working Days

EDNA MILLER (center) looks over some of her gifts presented by her co-workers at a luncheon in her honor. Mrs. Miller came to GE in 1924 as a stenographer in Bldg. 19-1. She was a secretary in Bldg. 16-3 before leaving the company. With her are (l-r) Catherine Minehart, Helen Billskie, Helen Hardy, and Mary Cooper.

HENRY MULLER (center) gets a big send-off from his friends as he retires from General Electric. Left to right are H. Lehman, R. Enz, E. Englert, E. Deardoff, N. Foulks, E. Haunke, R. Conklin, R. Goller, and J. Hankee. Mr. Muller came to the company in 1926 as a helper in Bldg. 17-2. He was a packer at the Hanna St. plant before retiring this month.

WALTER SCHELPER (second from right) had his family to help him say farewell to General Electric after having worked here since 1916. Left to right are Lueille Schelper, his daughter; Rev. Arnold Schelper, his son; Norman Bender, and Mrs. Schelper. The long-served employee was a die grinder in Section 113 at Taylor St. when he retired.

GEORGE KAADE (center) retired from General Electric this month. He had worked for the company since 1919, when he was employed as a lathe hand in Bldg. 19-2. He was a varnish dipper in Section 113 at Taylor St. prior to retirement. Shown congratulating him are (l-r) Paul Wilcoxson, Ed Glazer, George England, Virgil Foland, William Smith, and Lawrence Garton.

WALTER J. PRINCE (second from right) had more than 42 years to his credit when he left General Electric on retirement this month. He joined General Electric in 1912 and was a Brown & Sharpe machine operator in Section 417 at Taylor St. prior to retiring. Offering him best wishes are (l-r) John Quinn, Carl Sorensen, George Grause, and Dallas Patten.

Inventory is over. It was a lot of work on everyone's part, but we had fun, too. . . . Ray Rodenbeck went to the hospital for surgery last week. He is reported to be doing as well as can be expected. . . . Bob Lauer is back after being off for two weeks due to illness. . . . Happy birthday to Ivan Osterman and Mel Warner today. . . . Dale Irwin and Ralph Fishback will be on vacation next week. Have fun, boys. . . . Bob Duras attended the Notre Dame football game last Saturday. . . . Mike Brayer's daughter was home from South Bend last week-end. Nancy is in nurses training there. . . . Welcome back to work to Polly Line. . . . Happy anniversary to Kathleen Jencks and her husband Eddie who were married two years Sept. 27. Eddie gave her an organ for an anniversary gift. . . . Walt Niemeyer was on vacation this week. It sure was quiet in Test and Inspection. . . . Jim Linzell won a quarter from Bill Weber on the Ohio State game. . . . Paul Smith finally weakened and bought a TV set. . . . Welcome to Section 114 to Marty Cleary. Marty is working with Al Ralston. We all hope he will like it here.

The man who really wants to do something finds a way; the other finds an excuse.

Q. What does calcium do in the body?

A. This is the most abundant mineral element in the body; there are about seven pounds of calcium in a man weighing 150 pounds. Approximately 99 per cent of the body's calcium is in the bones, and it also occurs in the teeth. The National Research Council, through its Committee on Food and Nutrition, recommends about a gram (1/28th ounce) of calcium per day. Milk and cheese are good sources of this important element.

Q. How could a rocket ship withstand the intense heat caused by its high speed?

A. High-speed airplanes get hot because of the friction with the atmosphere. A rocket ship, traveling in space outside the atmosphere of the Earth or another planet, would not be subjected to such a heating effect. Of course, in climbing from the surface of the Earth at the start of a journey, it would have to go through the atmosphere, and would be heated, but perhaps this maneuver could be completed quickly enough to avoid any serious over-heating.

Q. Why does salt water sometimes come out of oil wells?

A. Oil is formed from marine sediments, laid down on the beds of oceans that existed in past ages, which may have been far away from any present-day oceans. These would leave behind large deposits of salt, now associated with the oil deposits. If any water came in, after the oil had been drawn out, the salt might be dissolved and you would get salt water from the well. However, it is not always true that salt water comes up from such a well. There may be fresh water, and in many cases no water at all.

Q. Just what are the transformations that occur when a phonograph record is played?

A. The groove in the record is wavy; as it turns, the needle is moved a little from side to side. This mechanical movement is then converted into an electrical current with corresponding variations. The current is amplified, fed into the loud speaker, and then it is converted into a movement back and forth of the speaker diaphragm. This, in turn, sets up waves in the air, which are sound waves. When these reach the ear, sensations of sound are produced.

Q. Is there such a thing as a Ruhmkorff coil?

A. Yes, it is also called an induction coil, and is used to produce electric currents of very high voltage. A relatively few turns of heavy wire, wound around an iron core, form the "primary" coil, and around this are wound a large number of turns of finer wire to form the "secondary" coil. Direct current electricity, of relatively low voltage, may be supplied to the primary and rapidly interrupted, as with a vibrator working on the same principle as a doorbell. Every time the current is started and stopped, another current is made to flow in the secondary coil. This is of much higher voltage, depending on the ratio of the number of turns of wire in the two coils. If it reaches a peak voltage of 30,000 it will cause a spark capable of jumping across a gap an inch wide, between two points.

Q. How cold does it have to be in order to snow?

A. Usually, it snows when the temperature is below freezing (32 degrees F.) and rains when warmer. However, it is possible to have snow when the temperature is as high as 37 degrees F. When snow falls in a region that is above freezing, it usually means that a cold front is approaching, and that the snow originates in a colder mass of air above the ground. Also it is possible to have rain when the temperature is well below freezing. This would happen when the rain falls out of a warm region in the sky into a mass of colder air below.

A surprise birthday dinner was held Monday for Kate Minehart and to think her mother had fixed her such a nice lunch—especially the sandwich. Keep it, Katie, we may need it to start a fire this winter. The girls who enjoyed the dinner were Dorothy Porter, Claudine Gladbach, Carol Symonds, Virginia Goeglein, Eva Westrick, Katie Minehart, Evelyn Kissinger and Beverly Gebert. These same girls surprised Evelyn Kissinger on her birthday a few days earlier. Evelyn thought she was dining out with Eva Westrick; instead, the girls had a potluck all ready for her. Birthdays are nice after all, aren't they. . . . Evelyn treated us to delicious cup cakes and Katie gave us all those lovely Hershey bars. Two more have birthdays soon, Fred Wheeler and Ralph Heminger. Happy birthday, you two. . . . Helen Eggeman visited in Paulding, Ohio Sunday. . . . Please, Mr. Elevator Man, don't wait on Ed David after everyone is on the elevator and ready to go. We waited once, and after Ed got on, the door wouldn't shut and everyone had to walk unree flights.

the machine design section. Rumor has it that the Olds (Gordon Yaeger) was challenged to a dig by the Packard (Gene Mittermaier) and the "Red Beast" as the Olds has been named took the Packard by one and a half car lengths in a quarter mile run. . . . Bob Hirshman has been having trouble with birds whistling and singing in the exhaust pipe of his Buick. Anyone have any solutions? . . . Dick Uhen attended the Wisconsin-Marquette football game last Saturday. . . . Dick Burns drove to Northern Michigan over the week end to scout the deer-hunting possibilities. He is said to have tamed two of the 18 deer he saw and staked them out for future reference when the hunting season opens. . . . Who is the biggest liar or who has the toughest vocabulary? Jim Buchheit and Lowell Welker are wearing out Walt Greiner's dictionary on some of their meanies. We heard suggestions that they go on a TV panel. At least that's what we thought they meant when they said they should go back into the woodwork. . . . Woody Hursh's new shirt intrigues Paul Brinkroeger. Paul says it reminds him of the gypsies. Another shirt that attracts a lot of attention is Norm Jackmeyer's old auto shirt. That's a shirt with old autos on it, not an old shirt with autos on it. . . . Dan Baker is going to bring in that pumpkin he claims is as big as a garbage can and give it to Carl (Skeptical) Ahlersmeyer. . . . Joe Mettler was reported to be spending his third week vacation at Spider Lake, Mich., but one of our private eyes saw Joe on Broadway last Wednesday. Joe claims he went to Brown County first. . . . Welcome back to the U. S. A. to Gene Denig after his visit with his parents in Germany. . . . Rufus Niblick claims his TV picture has worms in it. Probably due to an inadequate spraying job at the factory. . . . Mrs. Wilson Garman had her picture on WKJG-TV twice in one day for her part as an official of Fort Wayne's Welcome Wagners. . . . The diamond-back rattlesnake that Bud Dunlap took away from one of his chickens turned out to be only a milk snake. . . . The Harlan PTA announces that its president for the coming year is David Bartle. . . . The small world story of the week comes from Rufus Niblick. He was attending the Bluffton Street Fair when he met an old school acquaintance who now lives in Florida and was visiting Indiana. . . . Hayden Rice is spending the week fishing at Drummond Island, Mich. . . . Otto Rodenbeck will enjoy part of his third week vacation in a reserved seat in front of his TV set for the World Series. . . . Jack Schemehorn reported he caught a mess of fish off the beds in a Canadian lake last week. What surprised us was the fish would be in bed later than Jack. . . . We don't know whether Jule Franke was nervous enough to chew fingernails or mad enough to bite nails while eating a candy bar the other day. . . . George Spittler says that one of our private eyes must need glasses. He doesn't have a new Nash and made the trip to Petosky as a passenger in a Cadillac. . . . At the end of every day you'll turn up as a statistic—either as one of the drivers who had no accidents or one who did. Drive safely today and be a living statistic tomorrow.

If you are an aggressive and impulsive person, watch out, for you belong to the class which has most of the auto driving accidents.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HELLO to A. Duane Peterson, new design engineer in Max Barrow's group. We welcome you to our large engineering family and hope you will like it with us. . . . WE ARE SORRY to report that Carl Leitch is again confined to his home due to illness. Now, Carl, please keep your chin up, we're all pulling for you. . . . "SMOK- EY" (Mary Smoak to you all) is off for a real vacation. She's not staying home doing housework this time. She's really out for a good time. . . . THAT NEW CADILLAC parked at 1604 East Wayne St. belongs to none other than our Norma Miller and her husband. What's gonna happen to that motorcycle now? . . . CLUBS, CLUBS AND MORE CLUBS—This time it's the "Nickelodean Club," a rather strange title but here's the story. It's much different from any club we have had before, it is a real oldey. The instigator of this new club is none other than our new daddy, Bob Mee. He and his pretty titian-haired spouse purchased a movie camera last Friday. They want to record their three-month-old daughter Cindy's baby days with the aid of movies. They came home with the camera—and all the accessories. Mrs. Mee settled down to add up the total of their purchases. When she had finished, she said, "Bob, do you think it is worth it?" But Bob had an answer ready for that question, "We'll charge everyone a nickel to see our movies." That is why the club is called the "Nickelodean." . . . THE WURMS HAVE JUST MOVED IN. Beware! All of you single girls in the vicinity of 232 E. Williams St., Charley Wurm and his brother Vic Wurm have moved there. And here is a little poem about the Wurm brothers. The Wurms have left the country sticks to mingle with the city chicks! . . . DEEPEST SYMPATHY to Cecil Harrod on the death of his brother. . . . FAREWELL to Lineu Barbosa, who left us last week, to take a test in Syracuse. He worked for R. W. Dochtermann. . . . JERRY DURYEE had a splinter in his finger, so he put some medicine on it, or thought he did. The next morning it did not feel any better, and much to his surprise, he had put the medicine on the wrong finger. Must have been a big splinter. . . . SOME PEOPLE SURE GET THE BREAKS—Duane Peterson, a new TE in Max Barrow's group, gets a two weeks vacation before he even starts working—for us, that is. . . . With all the rain we had in August it seems many things grew like crazy. Doran Hershberger's nice red apple. He left it on his desk—presto, it was gone. He accused Bonnie Kimmel of eating it. Next morning it turned up in his boss' desk. When his back was turned, out popped this worm. What a whopper and with red lips and buck teeth! This is not a fish story either.

MTP Group Plan Tour

The MTP Wives Club will tour the Centlivre Brewery Corp. with their husbands Tuesday, Oct. 5. They will meet at the brewery, 2501 Spy Run, at 8:15 p.m.

Following the tour, refreshments will be served and a program of record dancing has been planned.

TAYLOR TRIAD

We are pleased to report that Helen and Jud Hall have a new little son born Sept. 6, weighing 8 lbs. and 2 ozs., named Kenneth (Ken) E. Hall. Helen was formerly Carl Reiter's secretary. The Halls now reside in Rome, Ga. . . . We are sorry to say that we missed reporting the birth of a baby girl to the Dallas Weibels several weeks ago. We extend our belated congratulations. . . . After listening to descriptions of playful antics by Barbara Haley, Katie Walper, and Sally Ley concerning their dogs Freddie, Kim, and Rockie, respectively, such as chewing up favorite shoes, tearing hose, etc., we are wondering about that phrase "man's best friend." Marcile Oetting and Carolyn Wyatt are sticking with cats. . . . Congratulations to Elmer Haugk on his 35 years with the company. Elmer was quite the center of attraction Wednesday morning with flash bulbs snapping and hearty handshakes all around. . . . For correct spelling of words, don't bother with Mr. Webster, just ask Bob Lund. He has the dictionary well in mind, having studied it quite frequently lately. . . . f George Knight is slightly overweight as a result of the annual physical inventory, you can well understand. Mr. Knight inventoried the Taylor St. cafeteria! . . . Did you notice Harold Brudi's bright red tie and matching socks on inventory day? Mr. Brudi says he hopes he is the only thing that turns up "in the red" on that day. . . . For you who did not see Leola Johnson's picture in the paper announcing her wedding plans, the date is October 23. . . . Neighbors of two of our GE workers on South Hoagland have had reason to be concerned recently. However, the big hole that Danny Bowers and Jimmy Beck were digging in the Beck back yard didn't uncover any "Rear Window" stuff. Just the gas main which was hastily covered over again by Pat Beck when she returned home and found it exposed. Is it this type of parent cooperation that gives our children a feeling of frustration? . . . Wilbur Warner returning from a week's vacation at Bay View, Mich., reports two fish caught and lots of wood burned in the fireplace. . . . Don't mistake that happy look that Bob Ryan has this week for smugness. After all, how would you feel if your Alma Mater defeated Michigan State? . . . We understand Nate Horton has a crystal ball to exchange or sell at a bargain. Those things just can't be depended upon! . . . Tim Cobb, Employee Relations Program trainee, leaves us this week. Next assignment Motor & Generator. . . . June Vaughn is the new contact for Elex on the first floor. She replaces Mary K. Hostetter who, as you well-read people know, transferred to Section 172. . . . Quentin Ponder, who hails from Springfield, Mass., replaces Tim Cobb working with Walt Leifheit. This is a second assignment for Quent who has been with the Hermetic Motor Department. . . . Progress in Marketing Research at Taylor St. was being made at a rather slow rate last Monday morning. Seems that Walt Leifheit, supervisor thereof, was involved in a softball game at Tab Day, held last Saturday. Eye-witnesses to the event state candidly that they have never before seen such an acrobatic display as was furnished by friend Walt, playing left field for the Green team. Fully absorbed in watching a home run ball as it passed over his head, Walt ran head on into a waist-high fence and performed a perfect one and one-half forward somersault! Despite this sterling effort, Walt's team lost the game. That's adding insult to injury, isn't it, Walt?

KEGLING HAZARD—Whitey Lieberenz, of the Inter-Department bowling league, shows the dangers involved in howling when the soles of your shoes are dirty. Bowlers digging out their bowling equipment after a summer's rest can learn a lesson from Lieberenz and make sure their shoes are in good condition. New shoes can be purchased at the GE Club.

Small Motor

Tommy's Lunch has a record of 6 wins and no losses to lead the league. In second place with a record of 5 wins and 1 loss is Tommy's Tavern. Teams No. 8 and 9 and 12 are tied for the number three spot having won 4 games, while losing 2. Herm Conrad kegled the top game in the league, a 237 score. C. Swihart rolled a 233 score; Sam Macy, 210; F. Quinn, 209; G. Ormsby, 205; Hank (New Shoes) Vance, 201; and J. Hamilton, 200.

Tuesday Afternoon

Three ladies are still needed for the Tuesday Afternoon bowling league at the GE Club. The league bowls at 3:30 p.m. Contact Edna Bailey on Ext. 307 or Mary Nute, Ext. 2798.

GE Office

With 8 wins and 1 loss, M & G Sales are in the top spot. Specialty Motor and AC are tied for second place with 6 wins and 3 losses. G. France kegled a 611 score with games of 193, 218, and 200. S. Lahrman rolled 234; C. Briggs, 220-210; L. Hahn, 225; D. Edwards, 211; C. Rump, 224; L. Baker, 202; E. Whipple, 202; W. Miller, 201; and G. Baker, 200.

Apparatus

Paul Wilcoxson was in mid-season form and made the 6-7-10 split. Jim Carey kegled a 210 and Joe Matter, a 200. Both Jim and Joe are new members of the league. Charlie Briggs and Team No. 8 are leading the league with a 6 won, no loss record. Team No. 3 has won 5 and lost 1, while Team No. 12 is in second place with 4 wins and 2 losses.

Ladies Monday Night

Sporting a no loss record, Holeyrollers are leading the league with a record of 9 wins. Tied for second place with 7 wins and 2 losses are the Gutterettes, Keglerettes, and Team No. 9. Holeyrollers kegled a high series of 2242; Team No. 2 scored a three-game series of 2099. Ilo Matter rolled a 501 series on games of 183 and a pair of 159's. Winnie Scheurich rolled the high single count of 194; Francis Newman, 173; and Kay Bade, 171.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

With Sephus Jackson and Dave Wynn coming through with big 234 singles, the Flanges pounded out the high team game of the young season, a big 975. The Flanges had no mercy on the Office No. 1 team, winning all three games and increasing their overall standings to 6 wins, no losses. Incidentally Office No. 1 has yet to win a game in six tries. The Stators also maintained an unbeaten record by winning all 3 from the Shafts, who also have yet to win in 6 tries. Guy Lister's 209 and G. Schultz's 219 were best for the Stators. Office No. 2 broke the ice and came up with 2 wins over the Rotors. J. Beery's 219 was the leading score for the Office No. 2 gang. The Rotors now have a record of 4 and 2, while the Office No. 2 boys have 2 and 4.

GE Fraternal

West End Restaurant took over first place at 7 wins, 2 losses, by winning 3 from last week's leader Monroeville Lumber Co., who now have a record of 5 and 4. Peterson Elevator and Teeple Truck Lines exhibited the "good neighbor" policy by splitting games at 1½ each and also retaining a tie in the standings at 5½ wins and 3½ losses. The Elks took the odd game from the GE Club. The two teams have equal standings at 3 and 6. K of C and Riverview Gardens have 3 postponed games to be rolled later. 200 scores for the week were: G. Strickler, 211; P. Briede, 219; P. Hoffman, 213; G. Schultz, 224; J. Beery, 213; A. Zelt, 203; K. Bauserman, 210; and J. Hobbs, 203.

GE Women's League

The High Spots maintained their first place standing despite losing one game to the Office team which was led by Mary Miller's 172. Evelyn Plasterer led her Last Frames with a high score of 184 to 3 wins over the Spares which brought them up to second place along with the Office. High scores were: Plasterer, 184; Wellman, 166; Briede, 163; G. Reynolds, 163; Kleinhenz, 163; and M. Miller, 172.

Fencing Classes Start Monday

Beginning the second season of fencing sponsored by the GE Club, classes in the sport will begin Monday, Oct. 4, in the Club auditorium. Any employees interested in the sport are invited to attend the sessions which will be conducted every Monday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Joe Bahr, Bldg. 20-1, is instructor for the series.

Persons who plan to attend the sessions are asked to wear rubber, or soft soled shoes. The classes are free of charge.

CASH PAY-OFF FOR SUGGESTERS' IDEAS

RUDOLPH ZELT (left) earned $170 for a suggestion which eliminated a rough grinding operation and having to diamond turn commutators before balance. Elmer Robin and C. A. Hartman congratulate him. Mr. Zelt is a cylindrical grinder in Bldg. 4-4.

JAMES BADDERS (center), Bldg. 4-4, received $50 for suggesting the purchasing of either zine or aluminum castings and using them interchangeably to reduce set up charges. Shown with him are Emmet Mills (left) and Elmer Robin.

GLADYS PAYNE (center), was presented with a $70 suggestion check for her idea to eliminate the terminal masking operation on certain Permafil transformers. Mrs. Payne is employed in Bldg. 26-4. With her are R. D. Grove (left) and W. L. Heniser.

EMMETT J. OWENS (left), tells Oscar F. Schelper about his $140 idea for moving the feed closer to the casting and thus eliminating unnecessary feed time. Mr. Owens is an engine lathe operator in Section 114 at Taylor St. at present.

APPRENTICE BROADCAST

by Tim Beitel
Charlie Wilson

The apprentice bowling team, consisting of Harold Redman, Jim Schwartz, George Haggenjos, Bob Gotschall, and John Becker, last week chalked up victory number three. Jim Schwartz came close to a 600 with a 595. . . . Our hearty congratulations go to Grayson Knight, who is the proud father of a baby boy born last week. . . . Apprentice moving to new assignments were: Ned Spehager Bldg. 4-2 to Bldg. 12-2; Gene Bair from Bldg. 19-4 to Bldg. 12-2; Charlie Wilson from Bldg. 12-2 to Bldg. 4-2; Jerry Aldrich, Tim Beitel, Dewey Fields, Allen Brown, and Ralph Scheiwe all from Bldg. 12-2 to Bldg. 19-5; Glen Camp and Dick Fischer from Bldg. 12-2 to Bldg. 19-4, and Dean Hardy from Bldg. 20-1 to Bldg. 12-2. . . . Last week the drafting apprentices were given new assignments in 11 different drafting divisions and sections of the Fort Wayne plant. . . .

Apprentices from Bldg. 12 enjoyed the first of a series of noon movies. It dwelled on the subject of the correct supervision and control of hot-rods and their teen-age driver. . . . Rumor has it that Dick Wagner was with a young lady until four o'clock in the morning several times. Don't think too badly of Dick, because the young lady happened to be his daughter. . . . The Apprentice Broadcast reporters will be relieved of their duties Sept. 27 due to being moved to new assignments.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Carl Melker is getting warmed up for the ABC Bowling Tournament that will be held here next Spring by rolling a big count of 606 after starting off with a 158 game. . . . John Ormiston and Elmer Harshman are back to work after their third week's vacation. John had a busy week out at Sharkey's getting ready for Open House. Elmer took a trip to Brown County and Clifty Falls. . . . Andy Dager and Max Howard did all right at Sharkey's Open House. They both won radios, only Max's was a clock radio. . . . Billie Tucker wants to thank all her co-workers for the thoughtful gift. . . . The boys in Group 2x36 sang "Happy Birthday" to Ed Woodward last week. . . . Bob Pence is back to work after his recent rush to the hospital with pneumonia. . . . Walter Starke is on his third week of vacation and is attending the World Series games via television. . . . Donna Hahn is now one of the elite. She has talked her husband Erv into buying a TV set. Les Hubbard also is now a believer that TV is here to stay as he also bought a set. Last to join the ranks of Two Gun Playhouse is Harold Dalman. He bought a GE Lowboy. It looks as though the dog will have to go outside as with those outdoor scenes and the picture so low, the pooch may get ideas. . . . We're all very sorry to see C. B. Smith leave Bldg. 6-3 and 6-4. Here's wishing him the best of everything on his new assignment.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Every season hath its pleasures; Spring may boast her flowery prime, Yet the vineyard's ruby treasures brighten Autumn's somber time, Yellow, mellow, ripened days, sheltered in a golden coating; O'er the dreamy, listless haze, White and dainty cloudlets floating; Winking at the blushing trees, and the somber, furrow fallow; Smiling at the airy ease, Of the southward flying swallow. Sweet and smiling are thy ways, Beauteous, golden Autumn days.

As the Autumn season has arrived, all of us are looking forward to lapping up those luscious Indiana bananas that Archie (Paw-Paw) Boren brings around this time of the year. We are going to have him whip up a big batch of his famous PawPaw custard, which he serves either tossed or thrown—preferably thrown. Marilee Young has been chosen Queen of this year's Eel River Valley Paw-Paw festival. . . . Deborah Mulcahy has a suppressed desire to visit the birthplace of her father, a small village in the south of Ireland. Now we just cannot imagine why a young lady would have such a desire as most of the young Irishmen need a shave and a haircut, smoke a smelly old pipe and drive a horse and cart—but perhaps they've got something there at that.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

We're bustin' with pride this week 'cause one of our gang is a TV star now. Liberace and Eddie Fisher, each suffered a severe blow last week when they lost first place in the feminine TV audiences' hearts when the handsome profile of our own Officer Tieman was flashed on the screen. Chief dispatcher, special officer, and now a TV star. Gad! Is there no end to his qualifications? . . . Our sympathy goes out this week to Elmer Wagner, of Bldg. 19-3, who is nursing a damaged digit. Elmer has a habit of pointing when he talks to the boys and he got his index pinky too close to one of the fellows' trigger happy teeth. . . . Some of us may have imagined at some time or another that there was a little man sitting on our shoulders talking to us, but Al (Shorty) Klienrichart would have sworn it was happening to him last Friday. Shorty was taking inventory when a voice began talking to him from one of the shelves. After searching the shelves for the little elf, Shorty found the culprit. Frank Mathews was on the other side of the stock rack talking to him through some tubing. Shorty was disappointed. It would have been nice to have found someone shorter than himself. . . . Floyd Brown is back with us after enjoying a vacation in Miami. . . . Henry Wells, the fellow who throws those sand burrs on his co-workers, had the tables turned on him when someone plastered his north side with the stickers while he was facing south. To make matters worse, Charlie Nord offered him a chair and the unsuspecting Henry sat down. Ouch! . . . Looks like the little fellow with the arrow has shot Jerry Galland. I hear by the grapevine that he has been buying furniture. . . . Last week's visitor was Wilmer Zehr.

Most Fires Chalked Up to Carelessness

October 3-9 is National Fire Prevention Week. This is a week set aside to make us more fire safety conscious. Statistics show that this is well worth while.

The startling facts reveal that in the last decade, fire has killed more than 100,000 persons and burned or disfigured many hundreds of thousands more. In 1953 fires in the United States and Canada produced a total loss of more than 274 billion dollars. That's a lot of money to go up in smoke.

The cause behind almost all these fires is human carelessness. The principal causes of fires in the home are simple acts that produce disastrous results: careless smoking and handling of matches, misuse of electricity, defective or overheated cooking and heating equipment, improper disposal of rubbish, careless handling of kerosene and other flammable liquids, defective or overheated chimneys, and children and matches.

There are definite steps that all of us can take to cut down the possibility of fires.

First of these is to keep our homes and shops free from trash and litter which provide the breeding ground for many a fire. Now is the best time to clean out the attic, the basement, the garage. And don't forget the storage closets. Don't hoard junk. Throw it away.

Second, don't be ticketed as a careless smoker. Never smoke in bed and be sure to put out all burning cigarettes, cigars, and pipes in ash trays. Especially watch out for burning cigarettes in the woods and forests. Careless smokers have managed to destroy in a few hours what it took Mother Nature hundreds of years to build.

FIRE PREVENTION in the home is demonstrated by Helen Trentadue, Bldg. 21, under direction of GE Fire Chief Ernie Hanauer. Helen shows two good ways to put out a fire in a pan or skillet; first, smother the flames by placing a lid on the pan, thus cutting off the supply of oxygen to the fire. Ordinary baking soda is used in the second example.

Third, don't even neglect having a defective appliance or poor wiring repaired in your home. Your fire insurance may pay for the damage, but it can't restore your life or the life of one of your family.

Fourth, be sure that your children are taught the dangers of playing with matches, operating the gas stove, using electric appliances. Teach them the correct and safe ways to use such implements. You'll never regret the extra time you took to explain the hazards to them.

Remember fire was first man's best friend. We can keep it so by removing the danger of unwanted fires in observing these simple precautions.

MATERIALS that are fire hazards are shown as Chief Hanauer burns a piece of foam rubber, like the piece Helen Trentadue holds. Foam rubber and nylon, which is used in furniture today, burns quickly as do moth balls, dry shoe polish, and cotton or finely brushed wool that is used in sweaters and clothing.

The girls are wondering what the big attraction was that took Evelyn Foulks to Louisville, Ky? . . . Gerna Cook is coming along just fine since her operation and is now at home. . . . Katie Gilbert has a new TV—the right kind—a GE, and is really enjoying it. . . . Why does Ed Ort always lay on the floor to watch TV? . . . Louie Barrow is on his vacation this next week, planning a trip to the Smokies. . . . Emery Tucker claims he caught two wagon loads of fish up north, all dogfish! . . . Grace Ober took a trip to West Virginia over the week-end and isn't back yet! . . . From all reports Howard Hubart and his red-headed girl friend enjoyed the Bluffton Fair! . . . Merlin Heller is sporting TV eyes these days. He got a new GE TV. . . . We all feel sorry for Harry Meyers. He got his rather new car wrecked and now he is walking! . . . Earl Sexton had his hip boots stored in a shed at the lake, and when he put his foot in one he stepped right on a mother mouse and family. His cries were heard clear to the Boy Scout Island and they were all put on the alert! . . . Congratulations to Bonnie and Jim Birely on their new baby girl born last Friday. She will answer to the name of Debra Ann. Bonnie is a former co-worker. . . . Alice Fuchshuber's family increased over the week-end. Now she has a son as her daughter was married on Saturday. . . . Clarence Weimer really didn't know the sidewalk was so far down. But he has a nasty gash on his chin to show for his fall. . . . We are glad to know that Jessie Hamilton's granddaughter got along so good following her appendectomy. . . . Wonder where Sam (the butcher) Taylor got all the cuts on his hands? Could it be that John (the Ripper) Figley could be responsible? . . . Sam Taylor is the boss this week with Jake on his vacation. Wonder if "the Ripper," John Figley, is bringing him some tomatoes?

The following employees from the General Purpose Component Motor Department donated blood during the week ending Sept. 14: Albert W. Anspach, Harold Blauvelt, Walter J. Fruechtenicht, Bob W. Kahlenbeck, Victor D. Bareus, Noble E. Bell, Alice Brockmeyer, Benjamin F. Conner, Margaret Cowan, Opal Cuney, James C. Duff, D. C. Ewing, H. C. Foreman, Melvin M. Franke, Richard Gebert, George G. Hahn, Harry K. Hill, Irene Johns, Eugene P. Kelsey, Cletus E. Lothamer, Oscar R. Meyer, Ersil J. Norris, Leo Schlaudroff, Wallace E. Snyder, Robert J. Till, Frank C. Woenker, and Nancy Woodhull.

A PENNY WORTH THOUSANDS of dollars — When you substitute a penny for a fuse that has blown, you are providing a good chance for your home to burn down, Chief Hanauer demonstrates.

CLOSING THE SALE—GE and Haloid Company representatives met in Rochester, N. Y. this week to close an order for Specialty Transformer high-voltage power packs. In on the sale were (l-r) Ezra Hill, Bldg. 26-2; John Gruger, of Rochester Apparatus Sales Office; Aaron Krakower, Bldg. 26-2; Rolf W. Eichler and Robert Murphy, of Haloid.

Transformer Begins Work On New Power Pack Order

The Specialty Transformer Department added a big order to their sales this week when the Haloid Company of Rochester, N. Y., announced that it has adopted a high-voltage power pack produced by the department for use in one of its products.

Six months of development work on the power pack by GE engineers was climaxed recently at a meeting in Rochester between representatives of GE and Haloid with the closing of the order.

In reporting the order, Aaron Krakower, manager of electronic and high-voltage transformer sales, stated that Haloid had requested Specialty Transformer to develop the unit for use in a new type of multicopy processor they are manufacturing. The customer's regard for our quality products is evidenced by the fact that they will use the GE component in their entire production of the new copying machine, he said.

Production of the unit was begun last week in the department's Section 93, Bldg. 26-3. The first shipment of completed units is being made this week.

To secure the order, Ezra Hill, power pack development engineer, Bldg. 26-2, worked with John Gruger, of the Rochester Apparatus Sales Office, and representatives of Haloid, Rolf W. Eichler and Robert Murphy, both of the machine development division. This group of men met in Fort Wayne with Mr. Krakower March 19 and work on the project was begun then.

Haloid representatives have announced that they will use the Specialty Transformer power pack in manufacture of their new products and to modify current designs of copying machines now in the field.

R. C. Hanna Named Manager-Marketing For Trumbull Dept.

Robert C. Hanna has been named manager-marketing for the Trumbull Components Department of the General Electric Company, Plainville, Conn., according to an announcement by Lawrence E. Walkley, Trumbull general manager.

Prior to his new appointment Mr. Hanna served on the staff of H. A. MacKinnon, vice president. In line with the company's decentralization program and coincident with Mr. Hanna's new appointment, this staff marketing position was discontinued.

A graduate of Virginia Military Institute, Mr. Hanna came to Fort Wayne in 1931 upon completion of General Electric's Technical Program in Schenectady. He was assigned to the engineering organization of the Fractional Horsepower Motor Department and later entered sales, working with applica-

New Wagons Make Debut During Fire Prevention Week

Making their timely entrance in the middle of National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 3-9, four new fire equipment wagons have their debut today at the Broadway and Taylor St. plants.

Replacing out-dated and worn out equipment the new, bright red wagons carry 22 different fire fighting items in compact, easy-to-reach spaces. The larger wagons are replacing chemical and salvage carts at the four stations: East side Broadway, West side Broadway, North Taylor St., and South Taylor St. The wagons can be pulled easily to the area where needed and will place any equipment needed at the fingertips of the volunteer firemen, GE fire chief Ernie Hanauer states.

Included on each of the new additions to the fire department's equipment are the following extinguishers—15 pound CO<sub>2</sub>, 30 pound dry chemical, 30 pound dry chemical with a 10 foot pipe attachment or applicator, 1 gallon vaporizing liquid, 2½ gallon chemical foam, 2½ gallon water pump can, and a 2½ gallon water pump can equipped with 10 feet of hose.

Other salvage and fire fighting items installed on the wagons include two 12 by 14 salvage covers, 6 brooms, 3 shovels, bolt cutters, small wrecking bars, asbestos gloves, heavy rubber gloves, 2 all-service gas masks, fire axe, and 2 electric lanterns.

'MISS FT. WAYNE ON ICE OF 1954'—With stars in her eyes, petite Kitty Stevens, 13-year-old daughter of James F. Stevens, Bldg. 19-4, looks forward to making her debut under her new title this evening as she officially opens the Holiday on Ice show at the Memorial Coliseum. She will lead the cast of skaters onto the ice and receive a dozen roses from them. Papa's skating lessons paid off for Kitty Sunday, Sept. 30, when she won the title in competition at the Coliseum among 75 contestants.

Benefits Report

A report on GE Employee Benefits Plan payments and participation appears as an insert in this issue of the GE NEWS. It includes facts and figures which should be of interest to every employee and his family so they can be sure they are taking full advantage of GE's Employee Benefit Program.

LITTLE RED WAGONS for the GE Fire Department make their debut today. Members of the department who are loading one of the four wagons which will be used to haul fire and emergency equipment are (l-r): Merle Morkoetter, battalion chief; Maynard Spade, Bldg. 19-3, volunteer fireman; Buck Lydy, Bldg. 17-4, volunteer; Ernie Hanauer, GE fire chief; Darrell Richmond, inspector; and Dee Hamilton, Bldg. 27, volunteer.

ADDED ATTRACTIONS

To Help You Help Yourself

Early American pioneers were a hardy lot. Life, for them, was little more than one crisis or emergency after another. And yet they thrived. Pushing doggedly into the wilderness, defying sickness, hardship and even death, they set a pattern for courageous self-reliance that has become a distinguishing American characteristic down through the years.

Today, Indians are no longer a menace and food is just as available as the nearest supermarket, yet we moderns face many of the same problems and emergencies that confronted our forebearers. While we still believe that every man has the responsibility to provide his own protection against financial emergencies so far as he can we are fortunate in that addition help is available when we need it.

Take a look at the General Electric Benefits Report in this issue of the GE NEWS, for example. There's hardly a major personal crisis we can think of where some General Electric Benefit Program doesn't exist to help employees help themselves over the rough spots. That's because General Electric, too, was a pioneer.

Our company was among the very first to recognize the desirability of helping employees to cushion the financial impact of accidents, sickness or death in the family. And we've constantly improved our Benefit Plans to keep them in tune with the times so that today General Electric's Benefit Program ranks with the best in industry. These Benefit Plans demonstrate that General Electric is continually trying to exercise the same leadership voluntarily in the Employee Benefits field that it does in other areas of the business.

The company feels an obligation to do more than just help out in times of difficulty. It wants to do all it can for employees to help them to have a better life now and in the

THISA & THATA BLDG. 4-3 and 4-4

by Helen Engle

The 4-4 Office is going to have to be re-arranged! The aisles presently are approximately four feet wide, but Flo Korte doesn't seem to be able to get through without getting entangled in Harold Nagel's table. That table must have stuck its leg out as you were passing, Flo! After a struggle, the best legs won. (Still don't see how you could walk straight down an aisle with your feet pointed thataway) . . . The 4-4 Office Gals had their annual get-together at Bonnie Wolf's last week. They had a white elephant exchange and a lot of valuable gifts were exchanged. Oh, for the life of a junk dealer! Verna Meyer was especially proud of her fork. She said with a little cleaning, she should be able to use it for something. . . . John Montgomery was giving free lessons in jitterbugging. Martha Wichmann was learning fast, but only on one foot. If Vaughn Monroe had been there he could have found out what the heck is a mambo. Verna Meyer was instructing the Bunny Hop (ugh, my aching sacroiliac). The party was enjoyed by all. . . . Ruby Chrysler said she was sorry to have missed the retirement party held for Eva Warnement, when she left on pension last week. The girls had a nice luncheon for her and she received many nice gifts. We hope you enjoy yourself now that you are a lady of leisure, Eva. . . . We advise Glen Castle to take it a little slower when driving. The cops won't get you that way. . . . Katie Gilbert is somewhat richer since the World Series is over. Guess she must have been a Giant fan. . . . Perry Esterline is wearing his old shirts these days. He says that is all he has left since the games are over. . . . We were all happy with Bill Widdifield when the doctor pronounced his daughter OK after a very long siege of illness. . . . Olka Johnston is spending her third week of vacation at her sisters. Have fun, Olka. . . . Some girls are lucky. Helen White won the Series pool twice and Florence Byers, once. . . . Carl Kinsey is still betting on Cleveland to win. . . . Ed Taylor says he doesn't keep up on the ball games, he just watches the fights. . . . We wish Dave Dulin's mother a speedy recovery from her hospitalization. . . . The welcome mat is out to Paul Boyer and we hope your stay is a long one. . . . Wonder why Sam Taylor doesn't seem to care for flowers. Does he have an unknown admirer? . . . Wonder if Paul Hendricks is getting itchy fingers and feet now that it is getting close to the deer hunting season? . . . Jay Michaels is on his vacation this week. . . . Earl Sexton said there was a run on blue gills up the river in Michigan—all the way from 7 to 11 inches long. Come on, let us in on the secret. Don't you think you better slow down, Earl? . . . Merlin Heller is on his vacation this week, visiting the Smokey Mountains. . . . It seems that Louie Barrow didn't leave on his vacation and now says he is going next week, but time will tell. . . . Harley Heckley took a big stack of GE NEWS home with him and had his granddaughter pass them all over Ossian. His granddaughter said that was an easy buck she made. . . . Glen Schwartz said the girl show at the Bluffton Fair wasn't as good as the one was last year. No tassel-twirlers! . . . Emily Niernan visited Bertha and John Piper on her vacation at Big Star Lake in Michigan last week. . . . Speedy recovery to Mrs. Bobbie Black who has undergone surgery recently. . . . Betty Minard was a lucky one. She got to Cleveland and had tickets for the ball game. . . . Paul Castor enjoyed his vacation so much last week that he had to take an extra day to rest up before he could make it to work. Then again maybe he couldn't get his chin up after the poor showing of the Indians.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

As usual, my family and I made our annual visit to the Bluffton Fair the other week. With the usual high prices prevailing along the midway, a large family is somewhat restricted as to the number of shows they attend, or how much pink lemonade and cotton candy they consume. But all in all we had a fairly good time. On the way home the family was discussing the show that they enjoyed the most. It was a monkey show in which the monkeys drove hot rods around one of those wall of death motorhomes. They would drive with one hand while munching on an apple or a grape with the other, and when they got to going real fast they would close their eyes. "It sure was funny," laughed the little woman, "seeing those monkeys racing around there with one hand and with their eyes shut." Oh, it was all right I guess, but then on the other hand a fellow could have stayed right here at home and seen the same thing from any Fort Wayne street corner for nothing. . . . Congratulations from the gang to Mildred and Henry Wells, who celebrated their third wedding anniversary Sept. 29. . . . So long to two more of our old friends, Poncho and Henry Blair. . . . Frank (set 'em up in the other alley) Mathews is improving his bowling score. He rolled 114 the other night. That's good? . . . Kenny Handschy took his dog to the show and came home with two trophies. Did the pup win 'em both, Kenny?

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

In preparing to move some of the equipment in his garage to the new home across the street, Cecil Sible unearthed a nest of opossums. There are a number of young ones which he plans to raise to maturity and then there will be a big opossum hunt held in the alley back of his home. If any of you nimrods are interested, put your shooting irons in shape, bring your dogs, and a gala time will be had. That is, if the neighbors do not object. . . . Fred Keil appeared upon the scene the other day with two beautifully smoked lamps. Under quizzing him about them he explained that one evening last week he prepared to descend into the basement. Having on a new pair of safety shoes he failed to notice a paper on the top step. This caused him to slip, sending him headlong into the dungeon. Now perhaps if he had worn safety glasses he would not have had darkened orbs. . . . As the time of the year to close lake cottages approaches, Clarence Stove is faced with the problem of what to do with the TV set that has served them well the past summer at his lake retreat. In pondering the situation he hit upon the idea of installing it in the family living room along with the other set. Then they could tune one set in on WKJG and the other one on WIN-T, then place a swivel chair in the center of the room in order to view both sets to a better advantage. He explained that the swivel chair is necessary so as not to wear out his shirt collars. . . . Joe Turley has a big gripe all because of a poor guy who came to check upon his oil furnace. Joe states that upon the arrival of said expert, he explained that it would take but a short time to do the job. As time was running out for Joe he offered to help. The job was completed in less than a half hour, but in a few days a bill for services was received which amounted to $10. What burns Joe is the fact that he helped the expert, then for him to take him to town for that much dough was more than he could swallow.

THE BIG WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Rachel Mounsey

Chet Carey spent his third week's vacation in Mississippi. While there, he attended his son's graduation. . . . Virginia Reed is throwing her chest out now that she has become a grandmother. Virginia says it was the prettiest baby at St. Joe. They named her Linda Kay. . . . Woody Richardson rushed to the locker room the other day after bending over too far. Result, no seat in his pants, so they stapled them together so Woody could continue his work. . . . We are glad to see Ruby Stoops has come back with her old gang again. Hope you're back to stay without any more illness. . . . Congratulations to Francis Overholtzer, who became Mrs. Robert Masters. . . . Edith Carder retired last week and we'll all miss her. Don't work too hard, Edie. . . . We were wondering if Loretta Fletcher was going to open her eyes Monday morning. About the middle of the morning she finally made it. . . . Clarence Gardt is enjoying a third week's vacation.

future. The Savings and Stock Bonus Plan, the Suggestion Plan, Educational Assistance Program and the Pension Plan—all are designed to help employees to a richer life with opportunities and personal security undreamed of by their ancestors.

Read the 1953 Employee Benefits Report carefully. It is an accounting of General Electric's interest in helping you to provide for your personal welfare. If you are not now taking full advantage of the opportunities the GE Employees Benefits Program provides, don't delay. Your personal program for security is your own responsibility. But the company, as you can see, offers help and offers it generously. Next year, as has been done from time to time in the past, each individual employee will receive a report showing his personal status in the GE Benefit Plans.

133 GE Services Fund Solicitors Open New Member Drive Monday

One hundred thirty-three solicitors at the Broadway, Taylor St., and Winter St. plants will open the GE Employees Community Services Fund campaign for new members Monday, Oct. 11.

Non-members of the Fund will be contacted by solicitors and be given the opportunity to join the Fund by signing pledge cards. These provide employees with a way to contribute to the Fund through payroll deductions. Members may give their contributions in weekly amounts or one lump sum.

Meetings for instruction are being conducted this week for the solicitors. Those at Taylor St. will meet in the cafeteria at 2 p.m. today, while Broadway and Winter St. meetings were conducted yesterday and Wednesday.

A board of administrators, consisting of 16 employees, governs the Employees Services Fund, which contributes all money collected to the United Fund of Fort Wayne and Allen County.

In this manner, each member of the Services Fund contributes to 28 health and welfare agencies which make up the United Fund. Employees who are presently members of the Fund may also increase their pledges during the campaign if they wish to do so.

In connection with the community's United Fund campaign which is being conducted in the area, 38 employees are among volunteers in two divisions of solicitors. In Division 2, which is headed by Ab Martin, the following employees are working on the campaign: C. E. Slater, Arthur Bireley, Dean Thompson, Steve R. Capps, Joe P. Orbin, Robert Snyder, Robert Winner, Wallace E. Beer, Richard Gebert, L. C. Swager, George Howell, and James Walley.

In Division 9 of the Fort Wayne and Allen County United Fund are: R. P. Cheesman, captain; G. P. Clute, R. I. Eddy, H. W. Fisher, A. N. Krakower, W. D. McKinley, F. N. Nagy, P. T. Schuerman, and G. E. Shafer.

Captain of another section in Division 9 is Robert Davidson. Members of this section are Don Koestler, Loren Andrews, Gene Yealy, Frank Mason, Ted Lorenz, Warren McKrosky, Bernie Dunn, John Southland, Artie Hoffman, Dixon Hemphill, Bob Sieber, and Don Klas.

Don Dannecker is captain of another section of Division 9 and Harry K. Hill and Lloyd S. Stubbins are members of this section.

Twins to Form Club

Twins of all ages are forming a social club in the Tri-State area. Any twins from General Electric families who are interested in joining the group are asked to call Mrs. Richard Tholen, 3231 S. Calhoun St., H-90812.

Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Yapp, 1150 West Packard St., will celebrate their Golden Wedding anniversary with an open house Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. All their General Electric friends are welcome to attend.

100 Elex Members Plan To Attend Conference

Approximately 100 Elex members have registered to attend the 1954 Fall Conference of women's clubs from midwest General Electric plants. The two-day event will take place at Danville, Ill., Saturday, Oct. 16, and Sunday, Oct. 17.

A special bus has been chartered for those planning to attend the meeting from Fort Wayne. It will leave the Trailway Bus Terminal on W. Jefferson St. at 6:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 16, and return to Fort Wayne Sunday evening. Price of a round trip per person is $4.80. Payment should be made at the women's activities offices, Bldg. 18-1, Broadway or at Taylor St., or with Voyce Brumbaugh, Winter St. Deadline for making reservations for the bus is October 14.

Representatives of the nine clubs attending the conference are preparing skits to be presented at the Saturday evening banquet. Each skit will depict an incident in the life of a famous woman. Mary Olson, Taylor St., is in charge of the Elex skit. Myrtle Bennett, of Partizan, Chapter, and Mamie Allen, of El-Par Chapter, are in charge of skits for their groups. The "Oscar" will be awarded the group presenting the best skit.

C of C Sales School Hears GE Speaker On Public Relations

J. Stanford Smith, GE manager of general public relations services, Schenectady, was the principal speaker at the Chamber of Commerce Fall sales school, Monday evening, Oct. 1.

Discussing "Key to Public Relations" at the school's fourth session, Mr. Smith outlined the topic in this manner, "From the standpoint of business, public relations is the science and art of deserving, developing, and maintaining a favorable reputation for yourself, your company, and its products with all segments of the public."

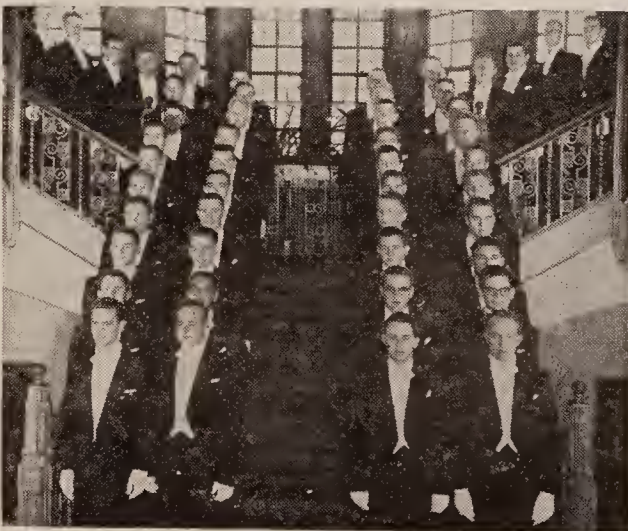

He pointed out that accomplishing this is 90 per cent doing and 10 per cent telling. Giving his ideas as to how to achieve this goal, he said that it can be done by gathering facts, appraising them, analysing them, measuring results, and continually correcting actions in terms of that measurement.

A total of 500 persons attended the sales school at this session.

SPECIALTY MOTORS Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

This past summer's extreme sunlight has impaired the eyesight of the sunshine boys in Bldg. 6-1 to such an extent that they have been forced to put on safety glasses for the winter months. . . . Ralph Miles in IBM and Evelyn Kissinger in shipping each have new TV sets. No wonder their eyes looked a little tired lately. . . . Helen Eggeman entertained relatives from Detroit this weekend. . . . Eva Westrick has a green thumb, we hope. She recently put out a branch from a rose bush. We are looking forward to lovely bouquets next summer, Eva. . . . Happy birthday to Robert Kurtz and Ira Jones. Speaking of birthdays, Fred Wheeler and Ralph Heminger each had one. They treated us all to bars and boxes of candy Monday. . . . Ruby Flaugh, Dorothy McCoy, and Jean Nebchy are absent because of illness. . . . Betty Swift in Order Service recently announced her engagement to Jack Debolt. There will be more on this subject a little later.

PURDUE GLEE CLUB, under the direction of Al Stewart, will be featured at the first meeting of Elex Club Monday, Oct. 11, in the GE Club auditorium. The dinner meeting will begin at 4:45 p.m. Tickets can be obtained from contact girls.

David Day to Address Illinois Chamber of Commerce Meeting

David W. Day, Bldg. 26-2, will address the annual meeting of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce Thursday, Oct. 14, in Chicago. Dr. Day, who is marketing research and product planning supervisor in the Specialty Transformer Department, will discuss the necessity and importance of trade area surveys as they apply to community markets. Included on the meeting's agenda is a thorough investigation of the various aspects of market research at the community level.

Other speakers scheduled for the meeting are Paul H. Douglas, U. S. senator from Illinois, Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Joseph T. Meek, Republican nominee for U. S. senator from Illinois.

Dr. Day received his BEE degree from the University of Minnesota in 1946. He received his MA degree in marketing in 1948 and Ph.D. degree in general business in 1951 from the State University of Iowa.

GE DEATHS

Zollinger Rites Held Oct. 5 at Funeral Home

A retired employee, Mrs. Garnet Faye Zollinger, 61, died Saturday, Oct. 1 in the Lutheran Hospital. Services were conducted Tuesday, Oct. 5 in the D. O. McComb & Sons Funeral Home by the Rev. Stewart G. Billings. Burial was in the IOOF Cemetery, New Haven.

Mrs. Zollinger joined the company in 1943 and retired from the Taylor St. plant July 1, 1953.

Surviving are three sons, Donald, Hillis, and Neil; a daughter, Mrs. Edward Cassidy; three brothers, George, Ernest, and Jacob, and six grandchildren.

Pensioner, 88, Dies In Lutheran Hospital

A Quarter Century Club member, William Walter Robertson, 88, died Saturday, Oct. 1, in the Lutheran Hospital. He came to General Electric in 1906 and retired from Bldg. 19, April 4, 1932.

Monday, Oct. 4, services were conducted in the Wellman Funeral Home. The Rev. G. Raymond Jewel and the Rev. Dale Osborn officiated. Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

Included among survivors are one son, Frank; a sister, Miss Margaret Robertson, and a brother, Wallace, all of Fort Wayne.

Lights Out!

Employees who drive to work are reminded to check that their lights are off when they leave their automobiles, Chief A. R. Vegalues, of plant protection, stated this week.

Several automobiles have been found in the lots with the lights still on.

PLANT SERVICES

Taylor St.

by Mary Saxton

George Scott was confined to Parkview Hospital for observation. The evening before he was scheduled for X-rays he ate the dinner of the poor man that was in the room with him, not realizing that the nurse had given him the meal in error. After it was discovered what had happened, George said he thought it was odd that they had given him all those white pills, a full meal, and a pint of castor oil. All in all it meant another day in the hospital for George. . . . Dick Everett thinks he is having his share of car trouble. He has had his own car torn apart for repairs since last winter and has been driving his dad's car. Recently on the way home he ran out of gas and also had to have the generator repaired. The next morning on the way to work he heard a terrific knock. He doesn't know if it is something trying to get in or something trying to get out of the motor. He will probably be the only guy around that will have two cars up on blocks and riding the bus to work. . . . Harold Smith was out to see us last week. He said he was just delivering the stock market report to Ralph McVay. . . . The yard at Taylor St. is beginning to look very strange. It is getting a familiar green color. Do we detect a slight smile on Ralph McVay's face? . . . Did you hear about the plumber that used an inventory card for a score sheet and then threw it away? It was finally found in a huge gondola and pieced back together again. Just the right size for a score sheet wasn't it, Leo? . . . Here we go! Dick Everett has a black eye. He said the oil pan of his car fell and hit him when he was putting it back on one of the cars. . . . Did you hear about Johnny Furge being nominated for national recognition for saving the life of his mother and several other relatives in a boating accident last summer? He is the son of Carl Furge, a foreman in Plant Services at Taylor St. Congratulations, Johnny.

Q. What is a tidal wave?

A. When an earthquake occurs on the ocean bottom it may set up a huge wave which travels a great distance, attaining a height of a hundred feet or more when it reaches shore. Such waves, which often do considerable damage, are mis-called tidal waves, although they have nothing to do with the tides. Oceanographers refer to them as tsunami, a Japanese word which means "storm wave."

Q. Does the body need iron?

A. Yes, particularly in the blood, where it forms part of the red coloring matter, call hemoglobin, that carries oxygen to the tissues from the lungs. However, the total amount needed is very small. The daily allowance of iron recommended by the Committee on Food and Nutrition of the National Research Council is 12 milligrams (about 1/2400th of an ounce) for adults and 15 milligrams for boys and girls between 13 and 20. These amounts are easily provided in any adequate diet. Fresh liver, oysters, dried beans, molasses and oatmeal are among the good sources of iron.

Q. What would cause a new blue dress, while hanging in a closet for a few months, to turn purple?

A. Probably it was dyed with a combination of several dyes, at least one of which was not sufficiently fast (permanent). When this faded, the color of the more permanent dyes would prevail, thus causing the change. No doubt the dress could be redyed to some other suitable color.

Q. What causes heat to be generated in an electrical transformer?

A. A transformer is one of the most efficient electrical devices—over 99 per cent in large units—but some energy is lost, and this shows up as heat. Some of the small loss there is occurs in the steel core, around which the wires are wound. Part of this results from continual magnetizing and demagnetizing of the steel by the alternating currents in the wire, and part from the small currents that are made to flow in the separate steel sheets that make up the core. The rest of the loss as heat occurs in the copper wires themselves, due to their resistance to the flow of current. The heat from the core and wires is absorbed by oil which circulates inside the transformer, thus heating the tank surfaces, whence the heat passes off into the surrounding air.

Q. What is meant by the term "radiation?"

A. This general term is applied scientifically to the transmission of energy through space by means of electromagnetic waves. These include visible light of all colors, ultraviolet, infrared, X-rays, certain components of cosmic rays, radio waves, etc. They differ only in wavelength and in frequency, which is the number of vibrations they make per second. Thus, visible light waves range in length from 1/40,000th inch for red light to 1/70,000th inch for violet. Shorter than the violet are the invisible ultraviolet rays, while on the longer side of the visible range is the infrared. Radio waves are millions of times longer than those of light, while X-rays are about a thousandth as long.

Q. What is a calorie?

A. The calorie is a unit of heat and there are two different ones. As used in connection with food needs, the large calorie, also called the "kilogram-calorie," is commonly used. This is the amount of heat needed to raise the temperature of one kilogram (2.2 pounds) of water one degree Centigrade (1.8 degree F.). It is a thousand times as great as the small, or gram-calorie, which is the heat required to raise the temperature of a gram (about 1/28th of an ounce) one degree C.

Q. How old is coal?

A. The oldest coals are about 300,000,000 years in age, that is, from the time that the plants from which they were formed were living on the Earth. The youngest are the lignites or brown coals and these go back about 100,000,000 years. It requires from a hundred to two hundred million years to form a good bituminous coal. Petroleum and natural gas vary in age, but roughly correspond with the coal deposits, although some may be much younger.

Q. Is there any scientific proof that the force of gravity varies in different parts of the world?

A. The principal cause of the difference in the strength of gravity at different places is the centrifugal force due to the Earth's rotation. This tends to throw things near the equator outwards, thus overcoming gravity slightly, so a thing that weighs 190 pounds at the North Pole would weigh only 189 pounds at the equator. Measurements of intensity of gravity are made by timing the swinging of a very accurate pendulum. The period is shorter the greater the pull of gravity. Such measurements show very clearly that gravity is weaker near the equator. Other conditions also cause differences in the force of gravity, and in making these observations proper allowance has to be made for the effects of the Earth's centrifugal force.

Q. What causes paint to peel on the outside of a house?

A. Although many factors may be involved, such peeling is generally caused by moisture, which may come from inside the house. It often occurs in the vicinity of the kitchen or bathroom, particularly as the house "breathes" in and out with temperature changes. Sometimes it helps to drill holes in the wall under the eaves, to allow air to circulate.

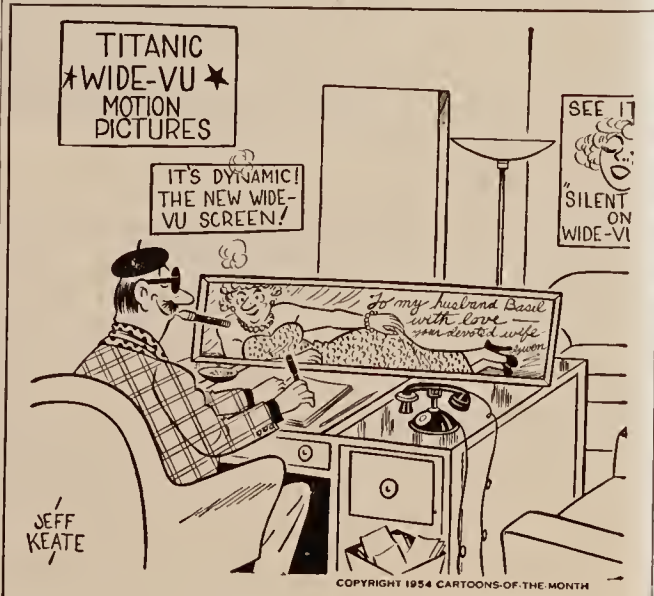

Q. Where are the Islands of Langerhans? I can't find them in my atlas.

A. No wonder. They are found in the pancreas, a gland located behind the stomach, from which is secreted a fluid used in digestion in the small intestine. The islands of Langerhans are certain regions in this gland, which secrete insulin, a substance essential in the body's utilization of sugar and other carbohydrates. When they fail to produce enough insulin, diabetes results.

Q. How can I remove rings that have been made on a marble bureau top where medicine bottles were left on it, and some of the medicine got on the marble?

A. If the rings cannot be washed off with common cleaning materials it is likely that acids in the medicine have etched the marble and if this is the case it would have to be ground and repolished to remove them. Marble is attacked even by rather weak acids and is converted to carbon dioxide and other substances.

MGM Allows GE Theater Story Rights To 'Edison the Man' on TV Sunday

In an unprecedented move, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has released the story rights of one of their outstanding movies, "Edison the Man," to "The General Electric Theater," to be seen Sunday, Oct. 17, at 9 p.m. (NYT) over the CBS-Television network. The television version will star Burgess Meredith in a live performance appearing in the role originally created by Spencer Tracy.

This is the first time that MGM, the movie industry's largest studio, has allowed one of its properties to be adapted for television. Episodes from the full-length movie are being extracted and adapted for a 25-minute television presentation, which will be produced live from New York.

The original story for the movie, "Edison the Man," was written by Dore Schary, who is now in charge of all production at MGM studios, and Hugo Butler.

The television version will concentrate on the early part of the young man Edison's life, showing the various facets of his personality as a dreamer and as a potential inventor.

In presenting this special Edison story, the General Electric Company marks the observance of the 75th anniversary of Light.

BURIED TREASURE LURES JOAN DAVIS—The lure of buried treasure has generated many an adventure plot in the past, but probably never with such zany results as when comedy star Joan Davis chases the golden rainbow on the Thursday, October 13, telecast of "I Married Joan," over WKJG-TV, at 7 p.m.

It all starts when Joan discovers a wall safe in her newly purchased home. She finds the safe when she removes a picture, becomes curious about its contents, but cannot open it because she doesn't know the combination. She dreams of riches left by the former owner, convincing herself that whatever the safe contains is now legally hers. Eagerly, Joan and a girl friend try to pry it open, but the attempt fails.

Finally, Joan engages the expert services of Light-Fingered Louie (Lou Lubin), an accomplished safe-cracker. It is a matter of a few moments for Louie to open the safe. Inside, Joan finds a map showing treasure buried on the premises by the eccentric who built the house.

After her husband, Brad (Jim Backus), leaves, Joan and her friend dig up the entire yard. A small metal box is found and what it contains makes for a surprise denouement.

P. J. Wolfson produces "I Married Joan."

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY BIRTHDAYS to Paul Lange today, Georgie Schroeder tomorrow, and Earl Stauffer next Wednesday. Talking about birth-days, how many years young are you (old man) Stauffer? We heard that you were too old for basket-ball, but the old saying is "Life begins at 40." Is that right, Earl, old boy? . . . WELCOME to Dick G. Berard, new TE in Bob Love-land's group. Dick is single and comes to us on his third test as-signment, having spent previous tests at Gas Turbine and Large M&G, both at Schenectady. His home town is Springfield, N.J. and he is a graduate of N.Y. City Community College with an AAS degree. . . . Also the welcome mat is out for John W. Lutteringer, a new test engineer in Bill Rutledge's group. His home is in San Antonio, Texas. His hobby is hunting, fish-ing, golf, and bowling. . . . At-tention to all you people who have food choppers or are planning to get them. We now have a free demonstration at Warren Berk-heiser's desk on how to use them. Warren demonstrates how to eat apples, steak, corn on the cob, etc. You do a very good demonstration job of eating an apple, Warren, but next time would you please pass a few samples around? All of us onlooking people get hungry looking at you eating that apple. . . . Now that Charlie Wurm is be-coming citified he wants receipts for quick meals. He is much too busy a man to be slaving over a hot stove all evening just for a few bites to eat. . . . It seems that we have a belated member of our TV club and it is none other than E. M. Stanbery. . . . We read about heroes and heroines every day in the newspapers, but seldom do we rub elbows with one, yet we have one with us. It happened a little more than a week ago when Ina Archer was visiting at her family's home in the southern part of the state. Some of the family decided to go for a boat ride. Ina felt uneasy about it since only her brother could swim so she pro-ceeded to give a lecture on what

She must have made an im-pression because the boat did turn over and the two sister-in-laws couldn't swim but followed Ina's instructions to the letter and so prevented a tragedy. We are proud of you, Ina. . . . Welcome to Ker-mit Quanbeck, a test engineer, working for Dochtermann. . . . We will all miss you Tom Lauer. Best of luck on your new job. . . . Have you noticed the look on Dallas Smith's face? He's $25 richer. As you know, Dallas, that $25 should be declared for income tax pur-poses. . . . Sally (Sam) Miller has all the girls in Billing wondering who the mystery man is. (Those odd telephone calls especially). . . . John Hecke thought it would be cheaper to use one of the com-pany's cars instead of a bus, but he had to pay a dollar for a push. Wouldn't it be cheaper to walk, John?

Thelma Hamilton found a new place to park her gum. On one of the buttons on her dress. . . . Jim Pritchard returned to work this morning after a week's vacation. Part of it he spent visiting friends in West Virginia. Male or female, Jim? . . . Vera Gross was really thrilled over a new nephew who arrived. Now there'll be a lot of changes made. Are you going to learn how to fold those three cornered pants? . . . Martha Newell, the lucky person, owns a set of brass lamps for just signing her name. . . . Jean Hockenberry came in looking weary Monday morning. She had company from back home in Pennsylvania last week end.

Just a word of commendation for some of these young boys driv-ing nowadays. Max Biggs had just nicely pulled into a parking spot down town last Tuesday, when he was confronted with a very red-faced excited woman who claimed she had been waiting a long time for that spot. Only then did he notice her car pulled up waiting to park, so he very politely told her that she could have the space and drove off in search of another. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Charlotte Daun who celebrated last Monday. Many more happy birthdays, Charlotte. . . . Dolores Miles is the proud owner of a TV set. . . . Rosie Ort is sure flying

Beware of loose blowing curtains around a stove. Always fasten curtains to the window frame so that they cannot catch fire by blowing over the stove flame.

Ladies Tuesday Afternoon

Team No. 3 has a one game lead on first place with a record of six wins and three losses. Teams No. 2, 4, and 6 are in a tie for second place, having won five while losing four. Lenora Gillard kegled a 174, and Mary Nute scored with a 177.

Small Motor

Team No. 12, captained by Corky Smith, stopped Tommy's Lunch the last game, and now Tommy's Lunch leads the league with eight wins and one loss. In second place is Tommy's Tavern with seven wins and two losses. Unlucky 113 are holding down third place with six wins and three losses. Arnie Johnson put in an extra supply of Mailpouch and really toppled the pins. He started with a 243, had a 159, finished with a 204 for a total of 606. Kenny Highland kegled a 223; Walt Rietdorf, 221; Sam Baumgartner, 219; Howard Stephen, 207; and Walt Kam-meyer, 200.

Interdivision League

After three weeks of bowling the Brower Tire and Battery team are on the top with a seven win two loss record. Right behind Browsers are the Apprentice, Summit City Heating, and Pindusters, with a six to three record. Last Wednesday Pindusters won three games from Five Pins. Trans-former won two games from Dead-heads, Tools won two games from the Apprentice, Kinney Kones-cions won two from Gumfoots, and Summit City Heating defeated Old Crown Beer and Ale in two of the three games. Browsers won two from Gutterdusters. Double century scores were kegled by Wiebke, 230; Hamilton, 223; Berry, 217; and Meeks, 200. Braun of the Pindusters converted the 6-7-10 split on alley number three.

Apparatus League

It is Team No. 8 still out in front with seven wins and two losses. Teams No. 1, 3, and 12 are tied for second place with six wins and three losses. Windy Boester and team No. 2 are two games behind the leaders with five wins and four losses. Bill Smith kegled the big count a 232 game; Ross Smith threw a 216; Fred Schaf-nacker scored 204; Herb Lenger's high game was a 202. Cliff Dun-ten, Kenny Vonderan, and Charlie Briggs converted the two to seven split.

Office

M & G Sales are out in front with a record of 11 wins and one loss. Specialty Motors with a record of eight wins and four losses are in second place. Frank Schlink kegled a 610 series on games of 188, 217, and 205. Clarence Rump scored a 217, Ed Whipple, and Ed DeCrappeo each rolled 204 scores.

Ladies Monday Night

Holyrollers are still continuing their winning ways. They now lead the league with a record of 12 wins and no losses. Alleykats are in second place with 10 wins and two losses. In third place, having won nine while losing three, are the Keglerettes. Ilo Matter rolled another 500 count this week. It was a 520 series on games of 197, 167, and 156. Kay Bade rolled a 195; Verna Meyer, 186; Winnie Schuerich, 180; Bonnie Wolf and Marianne Royse, 176; Loide Luebke rolled a ladder series in reverse, starting with a 95, then 94, and finished with a 93.

DECATUR*Men's Factory League

In a battle for the league lead, the Flanges took two from the Stators and now have a standing of eight to one, while the Stators were relegated to second place with seven to two. Hoffman's 220, Koos' 204, and Jackson's 201 were the big noise makers for the Flanges, while Bried's 216 was tops for the Stators. Office No. 2 went into third place with a five to four standing by winning three from the win-less Shafts. The Shafts have lost nine straight. Office No. 1 finally hit the win column by taking all three from the Rotors. The Rotors went down a notch in the standing with four wins and five losses. Office No. 1 is right behind with three to six. Schuster's 213 and Laurent's 205 were top scores for the winners.

GE Fraternal

Riverview Gardens took over first spot by taking all three from last week's leaders, West End Restaurant. Petrie had a 633 series for West End on games of 200, 219, and 214, but his individual efforts could not offset the combined team work of Riverview. Riverview now has an eight won and four lost record while West End is now in third place with seven to five. Teeple Truck Lines went into second place by taking two of three from GE Club. G. Schultz's 626 series (206-202-218) lead the Trunkers. Teeple now has a standing of 7½-4½ while the GE Club in seventh place has four to eight. B. Custer came up with a big 244 and a 216 and a 628 series to lead the Elks to two wins over Peterson Elevator. The Elks' stand is now five to seven, while Peterson's standing is 6½ to 5½. Monroeville Lumber stayed in the thick of the fight by winning two from K of C. Monroeville is now tied in third place with seven to five. K of C brings up the rear with three to nine.

Two hundred scores were rolled by: E. Bultemeier, 231; H. Strick-ler, 201; C. Cook, 200-200 (one of these was a Dutch 200); R. Lord, 212; O. Schultz, 217; P. Briede, 224; J. Beery, 203; L. Ulman, 230;

Know Your GE Club

It Takes Busy Hands All Year Long To Keep GE Club In Tip-Top Shape

It takes a heap of doin' to run the GE Club so that all employees may enjoy the many activities conducted there. For each activity in the Club building, there are unseen hands that keep the facilities cleaned, repaired, and in good condition.

From the bowling alleys in the basement to the training gym on the second floor, the building is kept in the best condition possible to provide members with pleasant surroundings and good equipment for their fun and recreation. This is accomplished by cigar-smoking manager Charlie Wilt; his secretary, Lucille Southworth, and four men who perform maintenance duties, Paul H. PeGan, Bill Brandt, Carl Miller, and Ed Scheef.

The GE Club constitution states that the club shall operate the Club house and this is what these six people do, according to what members want and need. General policy is set up by the board of directors and then the full-time staff of the Club building carry out these wishes.

In charge of the over-all operation of the house is Manager Wilt. He purchases supplies as authorized by the board, is responsible for all Club property, keeps a close tab on the condition of the facilities, keeps records, and generally looks out for the interests of the GE Club and its members. He may sit in on board meetings, but does not vote on the board, since he is not an elected official.

Helping Charlie with his many and varied duties is Lucille Southworth, his secretary. In addition to doing general office work, she keeps records of activities coming up on the calendar and schedules dates for employee groups that want to use Club facilities, which is a job, since the Club is usually bustling with activity.

Sporting equipment for family gatherings or picnics is kept by the Club for any employees who wish to borrow it. There is no charge for this service.

Two of the four maintenance men work almost full-time keeping the bowling alleys in a good condition that rates them among the best alleys in town. Paul PeGan takes care of the mechanical devices used on the alleys and Carl Miller keeps them cleaned and polished.

Keeping the gym and auditorium, lounge, restrooms, stairs,

J. Murphy, 224; and G. Baumgartner, 200.

GE Women's League

Despite the determined effort of the Spares the High Spots won two games and kept their top rung standing with a seven to two record. Mary Miller topped the evening and the season with a 548 series on games of 156, 198, and 194, as her Office team won one game and lost two very close games to the Last Frames, led by Evelyn Plasterer's 190. This breaks the second place tie of last week and puts the Last Frames in second place with a five to four record and the Office in third place with four to five, followed by the Spares with two to seven.

WELL KNOWN to most employees is Charlie Wilt, GE Club manager, who with his secretary, Lucille Southworth, checks the Club's schedule of events. Charlie's job is to keep the Club running smoothly for the enjoyment and recreation of every employee who wants to use facilities available in the building. With the busy Club season coming up, it is open almost every day and evening of the week.

chairs and equipment clean and repaired is the job of Bill Brandt on first shift and Ed Scheef on second shift.

These are the people who work to make our leisure hours at the GE Club more enjoyable. We give a hand to those who lend a hand toward making the Club a good place to go.

PAUL H. PEGAN is the Club bowling alley mechanic. It's Paul's main job to keep the mechanical devices on the alleys in top working order, and he also does other repair work.

BILL BRANDT is one of four men who keep the Club building in good shape. Conditioning the building in a thorough going over is done in the summer months and when activity picks up in the fall, the four men are at work keeping it clean and spotless. Ed Scheef, who was not present when the pictures were taken is on the job for the second shift.

BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

Eight teams answered the call to form the 1954-55 edition of the GE Club Interdivision Basketball League. The meeting was held in the trophy room.

Gone from last year's list of teams are Transformer, Hermetics, and the Airliners. The penthouse Dubs, Taylor St. Lab, and Business Training Course lads will join the old stand-by clubs—the Squares, Firemen, Test Engineers, Apprentice School, and Cylinders (MTP).

The league will be played in two halves with the winner of the first and second halves playing for the championship. Games will be played Tuesday and Thursday nights, with the first game slated for 7 p.m. and the last game for 8:15.

Tuesday, October 26, is the date set for prying off the lid of the new season.

Teams and captains for 1954-55 are: Squares, Tom Kreigbaum; Firemen, Virgil Howell; Test Engineers, Kermit Quanbeck; Apprentice School, Tom McCrea; Taylor St. Lab, Tony Gonzales; Penthouse Dubs, Al Happel; Cylinders (MTP), John Frey; and BTC, Bob Lund.

I am league manager and Bob Knepple is my worthy assistant manager.

Instead of eurling up in that comfortable chair Alma has provided for him, he has taken to caring for her filing cabinet. We don't know if he was cleaning house or was in search of some important papers. Anyway, he had pawed her bank book on the floor and was going for more. . . . Margaret Kenyon sure is a swell cook, and she likes it. She uses a lot of herbs in her cooking, which makes the food delicious. . . . Naomi Longworth won a duck at the Bluffton Fair. . . . Larry Martin's mother and father celebrated their golden wedding a short time ago. His mother was presented with a ring she had lost several years before and found after they moved. It was her wedding ring and was in perfect condition after being in Old Mother Earth for a number of years.

GE Club Changes Fall Sports Award Banquet Date to Nov. 1

The GE Club fall sports banquet has been postponed to Monday, Nov. 1, Red Braden, Bldg. 2-2, chairman of the event, announced this week. New invitations will be sent out next week to 70 winners of athletic awards and guests. Those who plan to attend should return their reservations to Charlie Wilt, GE Club.

The banquet will begin at 6 p.m. and will feature Carl Bennett, of the publicity and promotion department of Zollner Machine Works, Inc., as principal speaker.

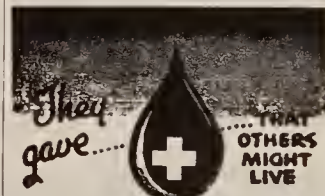

Winners of summer activities including golf and softball will be honored and receive awards. These include tee shirts, windbreakers, jackets, and trophies.

A special set of prizes will be awarded six lucky members of the golf leagues. The Main Auto Sport Shop will present five golf bags to a member of each golf league and to one person from the five leagues will go a set of woods.

Frank Treece on the arrival of a baby boy last week. . . . The Bldg. 19-5 bench section welcomes apprentices Allen Brown and Kenny Johnson. Also, a belated welcome to the drafting section to Eugene Lenz. . . . John Rocmer was one of the lucky fellows to have a ticket for the Notre Dame-Purdue game last Saturday. John's team lost the game, but John had the consolation of having his favorite team win the World Series, so the day wasn't a complete loss. . . . Harold Buell got a big thrill last Saturday while fishing at Turkey Lake. He got a 30 inch pike on a cane pole with a minnow. . . . Dick Burns went to northern Michigan with his bow and arrow, but the deer managed to stay out of range. . . . Rumor has it that Gene Mittermaier and his Packard have been challenged to a dig by a Pontiac owner in the machine design section. . . . It was reported last week that Bob Hirshman was troubled with birds singing in his auto. Last week end someone set a booby trap for the birds with an ignition bomb. Bob says it's all quiet now, and the old Buick runs just like a new Century. . . . Ken Brown is getting the moving fever. His new house is nearly finished except for some trim and painting. . . . The die repair gang wishes a speedy recovery to John Fleisher. . . . Dick Pohler was thrown into the dry cleaning business last week. At least he was in on the paying end of the cleaning. . . . Hubert Langer had trouble finding his clock card the other morning until he discovered he'd gotten off on the fourth floor. . . . Walter Pook has been cleaning out the crappie population of Papakeechee Lake the last few week ends. . . . Jim Stevens can be justly proud of his daughter, who has been chosen 'Miss Fort Wayne on Ice.' She will lead the parade of stars at this year's ice show. . . . Paul Weaver says that it is too early to go to Brown County. He started out, but when he saw that the leaves hadn't turned, he did and came home. . . . Some villain moved a water hydrant in front of Glenn Hoon the other night as he was stumbling around in the dark at the lake, and he has a skinned shin for a souvenir. . . . Hayden Rice returned from his fishing trip to Drummond Island with the usual fish stories. Of course, all the big ones got away but he did bring home some good-sized walleyes and northern pike. At one place he paid $2 for a beef sandwich and a cup of coffee. At that time he was glad he didn't have his boys with him, as he generally needs sandwiches by the half dozen then. . . . Hank Gerdorn just bought a TV set at which he will while away some of his spare time. . . . Otto Rodenbeck returned to work after a third week vacation looking fit as a fiddle and glad he hadn't wasted time and money to catch a World Series game. Sounds like he was one of those disappointed Indian fans.

Five Organization Changes Announced in Plant Services

Five appointments in General Purpose Component Motor's Plant Services Section at Taylor St. have been announced by A. W. Howard, plant engineer.

Ralph E. McVay has been appointed supervisor of plant services. Walter G. Muehlenbruch has been named supervisor of production. Kenneth A. Furney has been named buyer. Harold L. Miller has been appointed foreman of maintenance. Robert W. Deerwester has been appointed foreman of maintenance, shop, on second shift.

Ralph E. McVay

Mr. McVay joined the company in 1915 and was a messenger in the former Meter Department. Later he was a machine operator and did material testing in the laboratory. He went into tool room production in 1920 and later became chief dispatcher and foreman in Bldg. 4-2.

In 1945 Mr. McVay went to the Kokomo Plant as supervisor of planning. When he returned here in 1946, he went on special assignment in the former Fractional Horsepower Motor Department. Prior to his present assignment, he was a specialist on plant layout and material handling.

Mr. McVay is a member of the Quarter Century Club and Supervisors Club. One of his two sons, Roger E., works at the Lynn River Plant. Mr. and Mrs. McVay reside at 5304 N. Bend Dr.

Kenneth A. Furney

Starting with GE in January, 1951 Mr. Furney was a production clerk in Bldg. 20-2. In February this year he moved to Taylor St. where he was a production clerk and did expediting.

Mr. Furney attended the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago for two years, majoring in chemical engineering. He also completed a six-month course in production engineering at Purdue University Extension in 1942. The Furneys and their son reside at 3617 Monroe St.

Walter G. Muehlenbruch

When he came to GE in 1919 Mr. Muehlenbruch was a production shop clerk. He went into stock recording and ordering materials in 1927. Three years later he moved to Winter St. in the service section. In 1935 he went to Bldg.

20-2 where he followed construction and did expediting.

In 1941 Mr. Muehlenbruch began doing priority work on construction jobs. Later he went into contract terminations. He moved to plant engineering on construction jobs in 1947 and went to Taylor St. in October last year when he was buying materials in plant services. This was his position until his present job.

Mr. Muehlenbruch is a Quarter Century Club member. The Muehlenbruchs, who have two children, reside at 5401 S. Fairfield Ave.

Harold L. Miller

In April, 1941 Mr. Miller became a General Electric employee and went to Bldg. 20-1 where he did sheet metal work. In 1950 he transferred to plant services at Taylor St. where he did the same work until his present appointment.

From July, 1945 until February, 1946 Mr. Miller served in the U. S. Army. He is a member of the Foremen's Association. The Millers and their four children reside at R. R. 1, Waterloo.

Robert W. Deerwester

When he came to GE in 1941 Mr. Deerwester became a machinist in Bldg. 20. He moved to Taylor St. in 1946 and was a machinist in plant services until his present appointment.

Mr. Deerwester served in the U. S. Army from 1934 until 1937. He is a member of the Foremen's Association. Mr. and Mrs. Deerwester reside at 2721 Broadway.

Congratulations to Ann Purdy, who is the mother of a new baby girl. . . . Selma Haus couldn't find her little Crosby the other evening when she left work to go home. The police found it in Huntington. It was still in good shape. Selma, why don't you buy a bicycle lock? . . . We wish Dick Siebold's brother a speedy recovery. He is in a Detroit hospital with polio. Also, to Marge Deamond, who has a slight case of polio. . . . With all the flu bugs flying around, one bit Holly Mee. We hear he's getting along fine. . . . Our sympathy to Lovern Neat, whose father died recently. . . . Freddie Sarragen is back to work after his third week's vacation. He took a trip to Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich.

Dick Strain, who has spent the past two years with Mr. Whearley's group, has received that familiar "Greetings, you have been selected by your neighbors" call. Dick was presented a gift by the group before leaving for Denver to be inducted into Uncle Sam's Army. . . . For examples of classic portraits, ask Jean Weist and Jo Franklin for their pictures when they started working for GE. We dare you to ask for Carl Reiter's, we mean we dare him to show it to you! . . . Happy birthday to Dick Richards, Mike Davich, Denver Druessaw, and Marvin Snyder. . . . We are wondering what the story is behind the patch on George Knight's lip. Let us in on the secret, George! . . . Ginny France made a "flying" trip to Florida the past week-end. Just time enough to get the summer's tan renewed and enjoy a swim in the ocean. . . . Speaking of swimming in the ocean, Betty Foreman said that the waves kept knocking her down during her vacation at Daytona Beach, but that she liked Florida nevertheless. She also picked up her daughter and little grandson in Virginia and took them to Florida with her. That made the vacation doubly enjoyable for "Grandma." . . . The GPM Engineering Department extends its deepest sympathy to Carl Mann on the death of his father. . . . A quick poll taken in the Sales Section revealed that the following people were never in doubt as to the outcome of the Purdue-Notre Dame game. Reed Allen, Walt Leifheit, Steve Miles, Jim Pequignot, and Ken Whearley "knew it all the time!" . . . It is rumored (way of the grapevine) that Ingrid Swanson is having difficulty keeping her church funds separated from various other money accumulated during the World Series. . . . This week our Philharmonic Orchestra opened its series of concerts. If Thelma Bentley's eyes remained fixed upon the violin section it's because her husband plays in that section. . . . We wish to extend our sympathy to Olive Walters upon the death of her brother. . . . We hate to see the sunny days slip by. L. A. Erickson's office has had many different kinds of beautiful flowers all summer long which were from Mr. Erickson's own garden. . . .

If you remember last Monday was a rainy gloomy day. When Betty Williams arrived for work wearing one blue shoe and one black shoe, it might have passed unnoticed. However, the deciding factor was the fact that one shoe belonged to her sister and was a size too small. Betty made a hurried trip home and returned in 30 minutes with two blue shoes! . . . If you noticed Joe Cline walking in one position only Monday, it was due to sidewalks built at the lake over the week-end.

Amidst the roar of the beginning of football season and the end of the baseball season, the apprentice basketball squad began practice last Tuesday with hopes of another good season. . . . Any apprentice still interested in playing basketball should get in touch with Dave Jones. . . . Roger Elson, a former apprentice, who has been attending Ohio State University the past two years, paid the school a visit last week, at this time he informed us he is entering the Army. . . . Several changes were made this week. Francis Harter was moved from Bldg. 12-2 over to Bldg. 17-4. Jack Enyeart has also been assigned to Bldg. 17-4. Kenny Johnson left Bldg. 12-2 and now resides at Bldg. 19-5. Lem Robinson, an MTP, has left the Apprentice School for a new assignment. Good luck, Lem. . . . One sunny morning Paul Rosenhahn discovered a handle missing from his screw machine, but never fear, trusty vice grips were immediately put to work. And a threat was made as the vice grips snapped shut. . . . A word of warning to Kenny Johnson. Please don't be surprised if you find your steering wheel missing some evening. . . . Danny Alspach had a "bit" of trouble trying to cut oil hardened steel with a cold roll tool bit borrowed from Donald Sordet. . . . Myron Auer will probably never accept a ride home after class from anyone. Last week Jerry Frye offered him a ride home, which he accepted, but when he arrived home Myron remembered he had driven to work that morning, most likely sleeping at the wheel. . . . Fender banging Jim Schwartz has done it again. Well,

HANNA ST. NEWS

By Dutch Norwalt

At long last the new treating system was ready to go at Hanna St. The tanks were all charged with varnish, the button was pushed and, (censored). . . . Paul Peterson enjoyed the Notre Dame football game last Saturday (taking inventory at Hanna St.) . . . Bob Barker entertained Bill Crouse with lunch and a tour of the plant. Nice to see you, Bill. . . . Tom Freeman expands again. His son goes to Miami Beach on his honeymoon. Tom, ever the sharp business man, sent along a tub of night crawlers. How's the new project going, Tom? . . . Harry Keller is sure doing OK in Olen Lehman's absence. We saw five beautiful young ladies dining with Harry. . . . It is reported that John Kindle is very happy over his new white collared, push button job in treatment. . . . Tom Freeman replaced Bob Klaren in test while Bob is vacationing. Tom had to yell for help from the engineers the first day. Are you on a learning period, Tom? . . . The Transformer management are going all out to make it nice for the Hanna St. employees (varnished floors no less). . . . Famous words by Tom Freeman: Since Clarence Raney switched from loud shirts to white shirts we can tell what his face looks like. Go back to loud shirts, Clarence. . . . It looks like rain. Storm warnings again posted at the Hanna St. plant. . . . One of our able young foremen, after interviewing a new girl for a job, hurried her out to the gate just in time (as usual) to miss the bus to the Broadway plant. "She can ride with me," says Bob Barker. "I'm going to Broadway," and off to the parking lot they went, only to find no car. The "absent-minded professor" Bob, did not drive that day.

Just think three more fenders and he'll be the proud owner of a hot rod. . . . In a moment of madness, Everett Junge made the wild statement after the Giants had won three games, "I'll bet 25 bucks that the Indians win the series." Immediately John Kalb arrived upon the scene and was more than happy to oblige.

Four out of every five adults in the U. S. today play cards—more women than men. Five major companies turn out 75,000,000 decks of cards a year, and it's a $50,000,000 business.

OUR BOSSES CELEBRATE —and talk about wild parties! Four future General Electric share owners got together to celebrate their first birthday today with a party in the cafeteria. The four babies were born to Fort Wayne GE employees last October 15 on the company's 75th anniversary when each received a bonus of five shares of GE stock. During the year, because of the stock split, their holdings increased to 15 shares each. Getting wound up to hurl cake and screams through the air are Jerry Thomas, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry T. Schultz; John Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Long; Alicia Denise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Porter, Jr., son Steven James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Grunst.

GE TV Personality to Visit Fort Wayne Oct. 31 to Nov. 3

Ronald Reagan, prominent screen personality, will pay a visit to the Fort Wayne plants October 31 through November 3.

Mr. Reagan is currently on a tour of larger GE plants to familiarize himself with the GE family and its products. The well-known actor joined the company last summer as program supervisor for the "General Electric Theater" and TV spokesman for the company.

During his visit, he will tour various manufacturing sections in all departments of the Broadway, Taylor St., and Winter St. plants. He is also scheduled for radio and TV interviews and will attend community events during the three-day visit.

Reagan learned his acting the hard way. Cast in a series of "B" productions, he portrayed virtually every character even seen on the motion picture screen during his first years. Soon his talent began to over-ride the parts, and Ronnie was cast in more important films. His great acting in "Kings' Row" sent him on his way to real success.

Public Minded

Reagan has long been one of Hollywood's most vigorous public-minded citizens, having played more than 500 benefits for good causes, fought Communism from the day he detected it, and three years as president of the Screen Actors Guild.

Born in Tampico, Ill., February 6, Reagan grew up and was educated in that state. He played football, was lifeguard at local resorts, and took an active interest in dramatics in High School. He won a scholarship to Eureka College, Eureka, Ill., where he earned an A.B. degree. Except for three years in the Army, Reagan has been active in films since first hitting Hollywood. He married actress Nancy Davis in 1951. Their first child, Patricia Ann, was born Oct. 21, 1952.

Sect. 401 Works 1 Million Hours Without Accident

With the completion of their working day, Friday, Oct. 8, employees of Specialty Component Motor Section 401 chalked up a total of more than one million man hours without a lost-time accident.

From Oct. 21, 1953 up through last Friday, the section achieved 1,011,653 man hours without a lost-time accident. A certificate of commendation will be presented the section by J. J. Clarkson, general manager of the department, in honor of their safety performance.

This is the first section within the department to achieve this goal. Robert T. Blee, Bldg. 4-4, is chairman of the safety committee for the section. Twenty-three representatives from the section's manufacturing areas in Bldg. 4-4, 4-3, and 4-1 comprise the safety

Company Nine-Months Earnings Total 6.5 Cents Per Sales Dollar; September Sales Show Upturn

General Electric Company earnings for the first nine months of this year were $140,691,000, President Ralph J. Cordiner announced in New York City today.

Earnings per share for the three-quarter period amounted to $1.62 compared to last year's $1.34 for the same period.

The increased earnings, according to Mr. Cordiner, were realized despite a 7 per cent decline from last year's record nine-month sales of $2,341,048,000. Nine month sales this year totaled $2,167,397,000. Earnings for the nine month period amounted to 6.5 cents per dollar of sales as compared to last year's 5.0 cents.

Provision for Taxes

Provision for Federal taxes and renegotiation for the three-quarter period amounted to $153,000,000 compared to $257,000,000 for the same period in 1953.

Sales of the company as a whole for the month of September were much better than they had been for the past several months, Mr. Cordiner said. Sales of defense products continued to be lower, as anticipated, he added, but he predicted that sales of commercial lines for the year should nearly equal the high level attained in 1953.

Apparatus Orders Up

There was a marked increase in heavy apparatus orders in September, and sales of General Electric and Hotpoint appliances took a definite upturn during the ## Fund Membership Drive Ends Tues.

The GE Employees Community Services Fund campaign for new members will continue until Tuesday, Oct. 19, Everett C. Smith, chairman of the drive, reported today.

The percentage of employees who were members of the Fund prior to the current drive, which opened this week, was 80.4 per cent. "We hope to increase our percentage of membership and at the same time give every employee the opportunity to fulfill his community responsibilities through contributing to the Fund," Mr. Smith stated.

A total of 133 solicitors at the Broadway, Taylor St., and Winter St. plants will contact non-members and explain the Fund to them. Employees may make contributions to 28 local health and welfare agencies by joining the Services Fund and

LITTLE THINGS PILE UP

Little Things Mean A Lot

Generally speaking, the romantic "hit" tunes (which make plenty of money for the song-writers and sob-singers) have little dollars-and-cents meaning for those of us who draw our wages from American industry. But one current sensation, "Little Things Mean a Lot"—in title, at least, might have been written as a sad tribute to our daily scrap pile.

It is the little things that mean big money in spoiled material, a waste of our skill and effort, the down-time of mis-handled machine tools, and the customer complaints that can mean lost job opportunities for all of us.

A little tag, for instance, tells stock movers where to take bar stock for the next processing step in one GE plant. Too often, an operator ties the tag so carelessly that it falls off—and the partly-finished work goes to the scrap pile because no one can tell where it should go.

A little thread or lint, for example, falls from the dress or blouse of an operator on delicate electronic tubes in another GE plant. Sealed in the vacuum tube, the lint carbonizes and burns out the tube on final test—to give the scrap pile another push toward the sky.

A little grommet or screw, dropped inside the case of a precision instrument and ignored by the assembler of precision instrument in another GE plant, moves on to final test. The inaccurate instrument is junked—and the scrap pile goes higher.

And every time anything is added to the scrap pile anywhere in GE, a lot of money goes down the drain. The records indicate that a thousand employees may waste as much as a million-and-a-half dollars a year on scrapped work. That's $720 per hour—or almost as much as the per year cost of our entire GE job benefits package, which includes Hospitalization, Life Insurance, Educational Assistance, Employee Discounts, Pensions, etc. If the same amount of money could be channeled into the cash registers of Fort Wayne it would

TALES from TAYLOR

SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Last week Harold Hart took the third week of his vacation, telling us that he intended spending this time in north central Michigan where he could catch more nice fish. The truth of the whole thing is that he took off for Monticello where they are lowering the waters of Lake Shafer and Lake Freeman, preparatory to making necessary repairs on these two hydro-electric power plant dams. He brought back several bushels of carp which he plans on putting in his freezer for use this coming winter. . . . With colder weather not too far distant, we are looking forward to the dragging out by our co-workers of their disreputable looking blizzard blankets that have been worn to work for the past several years. Phil Schoppman tells us that last week he visited the home of Chet Price. While there he noticed that Chet's famous old green overcoat was hanging in the garage, so he prepared everyone for the reappearance of this ancient two-tone green benny. . . . Buck Adams spent the third week of his vacation putting the finishing touches on his new home at Lake Gilead, Mich. We are happy to report that no serious accidents marred his efforts and that his return to us was not on crutches. Due to the inclement weather during the week, not much fishing was done. He had intended trying his luck on snaring a goodly catch of cisco but reports that these wary fish are still hugging the lake's bottom.

buy 150 new homes or 600 new cars or 6000 new TV sets. The "little things" that make up our scrap pile could "mean a lot" to the local job picture.

More importantly, they could mean the difference between more customers or fewer customers during the coming months. We can gain new customers—and jobs—by cutting down the scrap and re-work costs that add to our selling prices. We can't help but lose old customers if waste and spoilage boost our costs above those of our competitors—or if our little boners show up too often as the customer complaints which stand as the biggest part of our scrap pile investment.

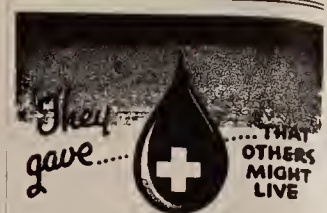

A steady job means more than anything else to most of us. So keeping our jobs off the scrap pile would seem to be worth a little extra care on everything we do each day.

THE NIGHT WIND

SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

It was reported Friday that our foreman, Bob Hull, was ill and wouldn't be in, but in a little while he came strolling down the aisle. They just can't keep a good man down, can they, Bob? . . . Fay Christie had a very pretty hairdo last Friday and left work early. She must have had a date? . . . Sophia Reig sat day-dreaming one day last week and we learned she had been reading her dream book. Now Sophia, we know they are interesting to read, but they are not always reliable. . . . Orval Tracey is our go, go, go, man on the 21 line and has made pool, but for some reason he didn't go-o-o to work last Thursday. We wonder why. . . . Louie Manns, formerly from Section 13, is on the 21 line now and we wish to welcome him and hope he gets to be our new steward. . . . We all should be as lucky as Margaret Turney. She looked from her window and saw she was getting a free paint job by a little neighbor boy. First the garage and then the fence. Did you like the color, Margaret? . . . Larry Martin has a new Sylvania Halo Light TV set. Much enjoyment to the Martins. . . . Johnny and Margaret Suci, formerly of Section 17, have a 9 lb. baby boy. Congratulations to you from Section 17. . . . Louise Reinhart and Jerry Fredrick are old pals. They have lived together for eight years. They journeyed to Paulding, Ohio, over the week end to see Louise's folks. . . . Freda Hobrock was telling us of a fancy pork chop disk she made. It sounded very delicious and made us hungry. Why not bring us a sample, Freda? . . . We asked the 21 frame sound room girls for some news and the answer was, "we are stupid and don't know anything." Now that doesn't sound just right for testers. Jinnie Free did say she was tired and felt she was about 50 years old. . . . Margaret Kenyon visited Gladys Disler, formerly of Section 21, over the week-end. . . . Larry Martin had a 5 o'clock fiesta last Friday and served us donuts. Thanks, Larry, very good. . . . Bob McKay had intended to spend the week-end in Detroit, but on account of his little girl's illness had to postpone his visit. . . . Charley Barnhouse had his car stolen from the Taylor St. parking lot last week. Now who in the world would do that? . . . Some people on the 21 line don't know 815 covers from 416. Not mentioning any names. . . . Audrey Brindle had her boy friend pick her up at work last Friday so she had company on that long drive home. And speaking of Audrey, she filled her deep freeze with pies while she was on leave. Anyone who is hungry for pie go to Audrey's. . . . Frances Oherholtzer is home from the hospital, and finally is married. She is Mrs. Frances Masters now. Congratulations, Frances.

THE WESTERNERS

You have heard of the man who says "laws are made for others." Well, it seems that we have one such man with us today. Earl Fee seemed to think just that until one day a state cop stopped him in Hicksville and said to Earl, "that straight pipe on that truck will cost you $15." Now they say Earl has a sign, "stainless steel mufflers for sale, two for $15, glass lined." He has to get that money back somehow, you know. . . . George Coplen went fishing in Minnesota on his vacation, but he didn't catch any fish. Now the boys are wondering if you really went fishing, George, or if you had to spend all of your vacation working on your car again. If so, they want you to be sure and not wait for two years again to tell them. They just can't believe you didn't get a bite at all. Just wait until George makes that trip to Canada before long to go fishing, he will have to make good those threats. . . . We want to say happy birthday to those having birthdays this month, Dick Boyle and George Blocker, Oct. 21; and Ray Strunk, Oct. 29. Belated greetings to Everett Sink, Al Klein, and Clem Bloom, who had birthdays the first of the month. . . . Verne Marbaugh has found it pretty hard to get paid on Wednesday without turning in his tip slips. We are hoping maybe Verne's reformed now. He misses Joe Robinson to keep him on his toes, but he will be back next week. . . . We are losing Simeon Faurete today, and we sure do hate to see you go, Sim. You'll be missed around here. . . . We wish to extend our sympathy to Gertrude Currie in the loss of her mother-in-law last week. . . . We hear from John Lare that he is really in Dog Patch country for sure down there in Arkansas, and trying his luck at a little fishing.

One reason so few recognize opportunity is because it's usually disguised as hard work.

Elex Second Shift Plans 'Autumn Flame' Luncheon

An "Autumn Flame" luncheon has been slated by second shift members of Elex Club for Thursday, Oct. 28. It will take place at Howard Johnson's restaurant beginning at 11:30 a.m.

E. Maxine DiGregory, Bldg. 4-2, first vice president, is in charge of the meeting. Tickets are $1.25 for the luncheon and may be obtained from contact girls. Deadline for securing tickets is Monday, Oct. 25.

Transportation can be secured through contact girls or at the Taylor St. or Broadway Women's Activities offices.

The board meeting for second shift board members will be the first Wednesday of each month. The next board meeting for first shift members will take place November 4.

Second shift committee chairmen as appointed by the first vice president are: Eveline Best, scrapbook for club; Bea Lantz, scrapbook for president; Evelyn Dyer and Martha Scott, hostesses; Florence Hargan, secretary and director; Eileen Foor and Aleta McWhirter, club representative.

Committee chairmen who have been appointed by President Gergette Hetzel for the first shift group are: Delores Haslup, scrapbook for club; Viola Brooks, scrapbook for president; Doris Olinger, rummage sale; Mary Peduto, Christmas collection; Mabel Fann, defense; Doris Salge and Novella Lape, Elex sales at meetings; Marian Leiter and Phyllis Borkenstein, sell items at dinners; Delores Connin, pianist; and Jeanne Harnes, Trotty Veeck books.

Mary Zirkle is Memorial Book chairman, and others appointed are: Maxine Baker, education; Lois Esters and Ernestine Malone, club representatives; Betty Thompson and Mildred Koehler, supper tickets; Madonna Bailey, door reservations; Hilda Walda, serving; Mary Jane Horrell, utility; Lonnie Rockstroh, coffee serving, and Peggy Bandt and Voyee Brumbaugh, hostesses.

Fort Wayne Hams May Be Eligible For Edison Trophy

Several amateur radio operators in the Fort Wayne area may be candidates for General Electric's Edison Radio Amateur Award, as the result of their service in the windstorm emergency last July 20.

With normal communications knocked out, amateurs used mobile auto radio sets to check open roads, locate obstructions, and distribute flares to road blocks.

The third annual Edison Award will be made next February to the "ham" judged to have performed the outstanding public service of the year. Anyone may nominate a candidate before nominations close next January 4.

Nominations should be sent to the Edison Award Committee, General Electric Tube Dept., Schenectady 5, N. Y., with the candidate's name, address, call letters, and a full description of the service performed.

The Edison Award, a trophy, is presented annually to spotlight amateur radio's contributions in the public interest. Besides the trophy winners for 1953 and 1952, nine other "hams" have received special citations for public service.

Decisions of the judges will be based upon the greatest benefit to an individual or group, and the amount of ingenuity or sacrifice displayed in performing the service.

Judges will be E. Roland Harriman, president, American National Red Cross; Val Peterson, Federal Civil Defense Administrator; Edward M. Webster, a member of the Federal Communications Commission; and Goodwin L. Dosland, president, American Radio Relay League.

Friend in Need

A friend in need is Robert Bultemeyer, Bldg. 26-B, who proved himself a good neighbor this week when he came to the aid of two-year-old William Nickols, 2816 S. Hanna St.

Wee William's eyes got the better of his reason when he took an extremely large hite of apple. It lodged in his throat and was choking him when Mr. Bultemeyer, who lives next door, came to the rescue. By applying artificial respiration, he dislodged the apple and William was breathing normally by the time the policemen arrived on the scene.

Mr. Bultemeyer learned to perform resuscitation by helping his 13-year-old daughter, Judy, with her Girl Scout project in first-aid. "It began," he states, "when she came home and started practicing artificial respiration on me."

DMM Tours Centlivre

A tour of the Centlivre Brewery has been planned by the Decimal Minute Men for Monday, Oct. 18. Members are to meet in the brewery office at 7:30 p.m. Following the tour, refreshments will be served.

In charge of the stag meeting is Marty Zernick, Hanna St. plant. Assisting him with arrangements are Vern Boyers, Bldg. 4-2, and Carl Swaim, Taylor St.

Closing the organization's activities for the year will be a regular business meeting in November.

Apprentice Alumni Set Oct. 22 for Hoedown

Apprentice Alumni members and their guests will sashay into Lunz Barn Friday, Oct. 22, for a square dance. Featuring the music and calling of John Wright and his orchestra, the informal event will take place from 8:30 p.m. until 12 midnight.

Attendance prizes will be awarded and a novelty stunt named "Paul Jones Slipper Dance" will be conducted with prizes going to the winners. Refreshments will be available.

Tickets are $1.50 per couple and may be obtained from contact men or at the door the evening of the dance.

Assisting the chairman, Carl Brandt, with arrangements are Wayne Bergman, publicity; Marc Junk, tickets; Arnold Kiefer, refreshments; John Leffers, attendance prizes, and Richard Burns, reception.

The next meeting coming up for the organization is the annual banquet in November. The Chamber of Commerce will be the site of the November 22 affair at which election of officers will take place.

The Apprentice School has been booming with athletic activities this past week. Volleyball practice started last Wednesday with Dick Wagner as the organizer. Dick would like to invite any apprentice interested in volleyball to get in contact with him or watch for notices on the bulletin boards. . . . The basketball team is well on its way with two practices under its belt, and sporting a very good roster. . . . The apprentice bowling team, headed by Captain George Haggenjos, won two out of a three-game series against Bob Mills' "Five Pens." At the present time the team is tied for second place. . . . This Saturday, Oct. 16, is a big day for Everett Junge, for he will enter into the happy state of matrimony with Delores Hahn who is also employed by the GE at the Taylor St. plant. . . . Many apprentices received new assignments this week. Robert Silk is leaving Bldg. 4-4 and returning to Bldg. 12-2. Clifford Creason is also returning to Bldg. 12-2 after a stay at Bldg. 19-5. Don Sordelet is now at Bldg. 19-4, and Jim Bird is at the Winter St. plant, both were in Bldg. 12-2. Jack Olinke left Winter St. and is now at Bldg. 12-2. Gerald Early, an MTP boy, has moved to Bldg. 26-2. George Hockenberry has left for Bldg. 4-4 on his final assignment. . . . Most people, when wishing a color change in their hair will resort to peroxide or dye, but Don Meads became a Textolite blond. How? Is it possible? It doesn't seem, but it did happen. . . . Yes, Everett Junge has succeeded in putting five, yes five, machines out of commission in one and a half days. Ranging from burned out motors to blown fuses. . . . The hero of the week (in his wife's estimation) is Rosie Rosenhahn. For last week the Rosenhahn's washing machine went on the blink and Rosie immediately came to the rescue. Upon inspection he discovered the motor had come unplugged. But he convinced his wife it was serious trouble. Rosie came forth with a large assortment of tools and immediately set to work. His wife, unable to see her machine destroyed, left to go shopping. One hour later she returned to find Rosie relaxing in front of TV and all the washing done. What a husband!

No person was ever honored for what he received. Honor has been the reward for what he gave.—Coolidge.

LADIES' NIGHT OUT—Setting up a special meeting to honor their ladies, members of the Foremen's Association staged a program especially for them last week. Greeting Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Ross is president William L. Paulson.

GREETING GUESTS—Guest speaker R. Nelson Snider, principal of South Side High School, chats with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice and Mr. and Mrs. Jess Hahn. The club also booked Nancy Lee and the Hilltoppers for the ladies' entertainment.

BURGESS MEREDITH STARS IN "EDISON THE MAN," on "The General Electric Theater," Sunday at 8 p.m. over WIN-T, Channel 15.

The television version is adapted from the story from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movie of the same title, which starred Spencer Tracy in the title role. MGM granted the story rights to "The General Electric Theater" as a public service in conjunction with the Electric industry's observance of the 75th anniversary of light.

The television show, which originates "live" from New York, is the story of the struggles of the young man Edison in the early years before he achieved final success.

Ronald Reagan, program supervisor for "The General Electric Theater," introduces the story and serves as narrator.

Don Medford directs and Mort Abrahams produces "Edison the Man."

JOAN DAVIS WINDS UP WITH THREE HUSBANDS—A friendly kiss from a former beau pyramids into a state of hilarious confusion before comedy star Joan Davis smoothes the ruffled feelings of her husband, Brad Stevens (Jim Backus), on "I Married Joan," Wednesday, October 20, at 7 p.m., over WKJG-TV.

As a conciliatory gesture, Joan shops for a present for Brad. While she is in a store a man asks her to try on a coat he is planning to buy for his wife. The wife, a jealous woman, barges in, and, believing her husband is buying the coat for Joan, threatens an alienation of affections suit.

Joan tries to straighten out the situation by proving to the jealous woman that she is happily married to Brad. But Brad is called away, and Joan, trying to enlist a "stand-in" husband, winds up with three "proxy" husbands.

P. J. Wolfson is the producer. Ezra Stone directs. The script was written by Howard Snyder. Hugh Wedlock, Jesse Goldstein and Phil Sharp.

BORROWED HUSBAND—Comedy star Joan Davis and Hal March enact a love scene on her "I Married Joan" show of Wednesday, October 20, at 7 p.m., over WKJG-TV. Joan's TV husband is out of town, and she borrows her milkman, played by March, in order to prove to a jealous wife that she has a husband of her own.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Two more of our boys have gone to Winter St., Joe Braun and Bob Rodgers. Good-by and good luck to both of them. . . . Welcome back to Chuck Minnick. . . . Last week's visitors were Ben Butler and Alma Newhard. Alma is going to be working in Bldg. 4-6 for a while. She sure looked stunning in that outfit she wore, and that perfume! It was called Foreman's Folly, or Knock-down-drag-out or something like that. . . . Congratulations to Frank Mathews, who celebrated his birthday Oct. 6. . . . Tinker Tale—This is the sad story of a duck that was given the name Tinker by our steno: Mildred Messer, whose daughter Sherry won him at the Kendallville Fair. Tinker was just a little tinker when they took him home, but like all ducks, he grew. Then too, he was a messy fellow and so even though they loved him very much, the Messer family thought it best for all concerned if Tinker was given a new home. So, Mildred began the task of contacting her co-workers, but it proved futile. Did you ever try to give away a duck? But finally her perseverance won out and Millie found a kind farmer named Honest Red Sutter, who agreed to take the duck, providing of course, she threw in a sack of feed and delivered him. After all, Red's farm is almost over in Ohio and there wouldn't be any profit in him driving clear over to Mildred's house for one duck. Last Thursday night Mr. and Mrs. Messer and the duck drove out to my place to see if I would show them the way to the Sutter farm. Always happy to be of service, I fell into the car (it's one of those underslung "Studybakers") and went along. Well, Red threw that duck over the fence with the chickens and Millie dabbed at the corners of her eyes with her kerchief, and said we had better go before she changed her mind about leaving him. When we left that farm I felt as though I was riding with a car-load of mourners that were just leaving the cemetery, and as we rounded the bend I swear I distinctly heard that duck call out Mildred's name. Millie says if Sherry wins any more prizes at the fairs they had better be Kewpie dolls.

Congratulations to Ted Schlup and his wife on their 25th wedding anniversary. . . . Everett Harris has a new mahogany TV set, because his wife won't allow anything in the house to remind her of a blond. . . . Merle Byers went on a fishing trip last week. Trying to shoot the rapids he ran into a lumber yard and someone forgot to yell "Timber", and he got a hole in his boat. Poor Byers!! . . . What happened to Wilbur Ayers and his new fire engine? It seems it stopped running in the GE parking lot. At least, Wilbur, it stopped in the right place. . . . Why is Ted Schlup walking around with such a long face lately? . . . Herb Boltz had an increase in his family last week—his granddaughter. . . . Claude Hurraw, Rudy Rastenburg, and "Curly" McCormick are all back after enjoying their vacations. . . . We extend our sympathy to Hubert Myers on the loss of his daughter, and Frank Enderle on the death of his sister-in-law. . . . The other week, "Slim" Neireter lost the air drill and was going to put a bell on it, but it seems he didn't get it on there quick enough because it is gone again. . . . Frank Kartholl took pictures at the ice show, but it seems the cheesecake pictures he wanted most didn't turn out. Better luck next time, Frank. . . . A poll taken at the east end on who liked daylight saving time proved everyone liked it but Leroy Cook. He says the reason is, his wife doesn't like it and he has to go along with what she says. . . . Congratulations to Frank Ruesswald on his 25 years with GE. . . . A lot of luck to Paul Cuellar and John Bailey who went to Winter St. to work. . . . If you want to hear some tall stories, see Hubert Risser. . . . Ludwig Stetler and Roy Prince have a new pet, a pigeon they feed every morning. . . . Walking by detail section you see John Redmerski still cracking the whip over Fred Paul.

What's Going On Here

MTP WIVES—Problems from infancy to five years of age will be discussed by child psychologist, Mrs. Roberta Edgington at the MTP Wives Club meeting Wednesday, Oct. 20.

Mrs. James Wilson, 3613 S. Monroe St., will be hostess for the meeting, which is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m. Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Duane Shull and Mrs. Quintin Ponder.

A teacher at Purdue University Extension, Mrs. Edgington will open the meeting to questions following her address. She will base her speech on questions sent her by members prior to the meeting.

Husbands of members are invited to attend also. Refreshments will be served following the program.

SQUARES—Two events marked on the GE Squares social calendar for October are a stag, Tuesday, Oct. 19, and a Hal-loween dance, Saturday, Oct. 30. The stag will consist of a tour of the Centlivre Brewery. Those planning to attend should meet in the social room of the brewery at 8 p.m., Oct. 19. John Harris, Taylor St., is chairman of the event.

Members will entertain their wives and guests at a Halloween dance Oct. 30 in the Squares Hall. From 9 p.m. until 12:30 a.m. music for dancing will be furnished by Hal Kern and his orchestra. Tickets may be secured from contact men for $1.45 per couple. Bob Davidson, Winter St., is heading the committee in charge of arrangements.

PARTIZAN—Tuesday, Oct. 19, the GE Club will be the scene of Partizan Chapter's Fall party. The meeting will get under way at 1 p.m. and will include dessert, entertainment, and a business session.

Margaret Tomson is chairman and is being assisted by hostesses Blanche Druessedow, Lola McCague, and Pearl Boise.

This week end, 13 members will travel to Danville for the Midwest 1954 Fall Conference of women's clubs from GE plants in the area. All those attending the two-day convention will participate in the skit to be presented by the chapter. They are: Myrtle Bennett, Edna Berdelman, Betty Miller, Burnis Cramer, Martha Zehender, Nora Coburn, Bea Helms, Myrtle Lauer, Annette Hastings, Jane Yergens, Oneta Tobias, Dorothea Slyby, and Margaret Tomson.

FORT WAYNE ENGINEERS—"Atoms in Action" will be the topic of the guest speaker at the Fort Wayne Engineers Club meeting Thursday, Oct. 21. The dinner meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in St. John's Evangelical and Reform Church.

Ray J. Stanish, assistant to the chief engineer of the Replacement Division of Thompson Products, Inc., Cleveland, will be the guest speaker.

Reservations may be secured with contact men. Tickets are $1.75 per person. GE engineers who wish to attend the meeting may obtain tickets from Richard Schults, Bldg. 19-5, or Richard Kilian, Bldg. 8-1.

The coffee speaker for the evening will be the Rev. Ervin E. Petznik, pastor of the First Evangelical Church. He will comment on the Christian and moral obligations in handling of atomic energy.

Mr. Standish has addressed many engineering groups in the Midwest and was acclaimed top speaker of the year in Ohio last year by the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers' president.

TAYLOR ST.'S NEW LOOK—The sign on the newly painted grass at Taylor St. might be a plea directed at the young, green blades to Please Grow, or it might be aimed at passersby to Please Be Patient and we'll have a nice looking lawn soon. Leonard Deal gets out a magnifying glass to show how nice the new grass looks.

Five GE People Head For Retirement Days

HUGH M. STEPHENSON (seated left), a member of the Advanced Engineering Development Section of the Specialty Component Motor Department, retired this month with 38 years of service. Mr. Stephenson holds 36 patents assigned to the General Electric Company and several more which he has personally taken out on items not of interest to GE, in the field of musical scales and harmonicas, one of his many hobbies. Shown are (seated l-r) H. B. Carter and R. D. Jones; and standing, W. W. Warner and J. H. Staak.

GEORGE HOLTHAUS (center) gets best wishes from a group of his co-workers as he leaves General Electric for retirement. Left to right are John Johnson, Herb Langer, Herman Brandt, Frank Brohman, Carl Clevenger, and J. Rippe. Mr. Holthaus came to GE in 1927 as a grinder in Bldg. 26-5. He was a grinder in Bldg. 17-2 when he left the company.

BELLE E. BUCHAN (third from left) said good-by to General Electric after 28 years of service with the company. Active in many GE organizations, Mrs. Buchan has served on the GE Club entertainment committee for many years and has been a GE NEWS columnist and active in the Elex Club. Shown are (l-r) Wayne Blake, her son; her husband Buck; and her daughter, Violet Elliott. Mrs. Buchan was employed in the Hermetic Motor Department at retirement.

DAVID BARTLE (left) retired from General Electric last month after more than 28 years of service. His brother George (center) and his son David, Jr., were on hand to bid him farewell. Mr. Bartle was a bench machinist in Section 113 at Taylor St.

BERNICE B. HARMES (left) gets special good-bys on her last day at General Electric from her daughter Jeanne, Bldg. 26-4, and her husband C. E. Harmes, Taylor St. Mrs. Harmes joined GE at the Kokomo plant in 1944. She has been a general clerk in Section 113 at Taylor St.

RACONTEUR

SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlaffen

Now that the World Series is over and everyone's bad debts are paid, Herb Lindberg can concentrate on his bowling again. . . . John Heine, looking as hale and hearty as ever, visited us last week. . . . Esther Bailey is baby sitting these days with her friend's dog, Sparkie. It cries at night like a baby. . . . John Mann is having pup trouble. Her name is Jill, and she is six weeks old. . . . Happy anniversary to Elaine Omo and her husband. They were married 10 years on Oct. 6. . . . Herb Lindberg has retracted his 14 lb. catfish story since he read about the 100 lb. catfish caught at Bluffton. . . . Judy Lehman says he has his freezer full of 18 in. bluegills. Oh yeah! . . . Bill Lavine says he doesn't want his name mentioned this week. . . . Looks like Virgil Snyder needs more practice at his bowling. His wife beat him two out of three games, and one of them was 234-179. . . . Rosie Tucker went back to her childhood days and got the mumps. . . . Oscar Miller has a new GE TV. . . . The girls going to the Elex Conference are Maltha Burk, Aleta McWitter, Betty Londt, and Florence Hargan. . . . We wish Opal Snyder a speedy recovery. . . . Has anyone noticed? Is Dorothy Baumgartner gaining weight, or what was the reason for throwing wedges all over the floor, just to pick them up again? . . . Pass the hat for Florence Hargan. She needs an umbrella so she won't have to dry out in the dispensary. . . . Saturday, Oct. 2, was a red letter day in the Charles Rupel family. Two weddings and one baby born in the family that day. Congratulations, Grandpa Rupel. . . . Lillian Wagner came back for a visit Oct. 6. . . . All city bus drivers will not discharge their passengers at the GE Company entrance in the morning, as Everett Mullen found out when he failed to pull the cord at the proper time. . . . Ted Brockmeier finally bought his wife a new GE TV set. . . . Someone had Abie Oyer in a cage last week. We all agreed that was a good place for him. . . . Cliff Witham came back to work Monday. Glad to have you back, Cliff. . . . We hear Paul Smith is getting along very well. Hurry back, Paul. . . . Happy birthday to Garnet Watkins and Dorothy White; to Becky Lisle and Timothy Shuttuck, both on Oct. 14. . . . Welcome into the office to Abbie Hartman. . . . Carl Reynolds is getting ready for that southern vacation, Bermuda shorts and all.

THISA & THATA

BLDG. 4-3 and 4-4

by Helen Engle

We extend sympathy to Mary Martin in the death of her father and to Edmee Dowden in the death of her husband. . . . Nora Dudgeon is vacationing this week in her home town, Willshire, Ohio. . . . Ed Hines has a new way of making compound which is on the floor. We don't know if he gets a better mixture that way, or if he forgot to shut the faucet off. Better luck next time, Ed. . . . Olga Johnson is back at work after her vacation and asked who prayed for rain? . . . Ed Taylor wants to bet with someone on the election now. . . . Carl Kinsey better not work on Saturdays. It seems he can't find his belongings on Monday. . . . Helen White is in the market for a horse. Anyone having a horse for sale see Helen. . . . Sorry to hear that "Pappy" Struver is in the hospital again. . . . Wonder if Sam Taylor is experimenting with a machine to de-bone chicken necks. He was expecting company and bought five ponds of necks. . . . John Figley says he has lots of green tomatoes. . . . Sorry to hear that Jay Michaels had such a wet vacation and he hopes it continues to rain and cool things off. . . . Bill Wiegman was afraid to say he had a TV because it isn't the right kind and the fellows would razz him about it. He can't even get Waterloo. He had to go to John Zimmermans for a free meal to get a look at it. . . . Howard Hubart sure was proud of his Merit Award from the stockholder. It seems he succeeded in getting 40 hours of work in. . . . Whitey Heller said he really saw the hill-billies in the Smokies! One was lying dead along the road with a shotgun laying beside him. . . . Eleanor Gligor said that Glen Schwartz must have gotten into the wrong show at Bluffton. Or then maybe he was interested in the grass skirts they wore. . . . Glen Castle was presented a group of tools to work his way out of jail and they were greatly appreciated. . . . Ross Hobbs says he and the wife have been fighting ever since they got their TV set. It seems he wants to enjoy the football games and she wants him to do some work. . . . So sorry it was JoAnn Montgomery and not John as was stated last week.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

Today we say good-bye and good luck to Phyllis Faulkner, who is leaving us to become a full-fledged housewife. Phyl was honored with a luncheon and several appropriate gifts were presented to her. Again, Phyl, our best wishes go with you. . . . We say farewell to George Halpin, TE in Mr. Stanbery's group. Good luck in your new assignment. . . . Now we say hello to our new TE's John Lutteringer, Jr., from Texas A&M (BSME 1954), who likes hunting, fishing, golf, and bowling, an all-around sportster. John is single and his home town is San Antonio, Texas. John works for Bill Rutledge, and the boys in Bill's group felt very hurt because our Rachel personally escorted a bosom-buddy (both from the southlands) through the office and made the proper introductions. Watsa matter, boy, jealous? . . . Also we have Alfred Landry, new TE in Jim Walley's group. Al is married and is a 1954 (BSFE) grad of the University of New Hampshire. His home town is Berlin, N. H. This is his second test with the company. He likes baseball and football, naturally. . . . We have a new girl in the file room, Elma Newhard. Happy to have you join our big family and hope you'll like us. Elma formerly worked in Bldg. 31. . . . We have been told the Jim Walleys are moving to Dayton—Dayton St.—that is, right here in Fort Wayne. How about a house-warming party, Jim? . . . Potted plants are very lovely and it is nice to put them around for people to enjoy, but Patty Curtis plants them in her typewriter. Nothing like being different! . . . Welcome back, Ralph Church, from your assignment down south. How does us Yankees look to you now that you are back? . . . Attention all swimmers! Everett Letsinger's pond is full of water. Next year it will be stocked with lotus flowers, lobsters, and mermaids. . . . We hid farewell to two test engineers last week by the name of Bill Sherman and Ed Schwarz. . . . A retirement party was given for Hugh Stephenson at the Squares Hall, Oct. 7. He received some very nice gifts. A skit titled "This Is Your Life" was put on by Don Reek and Bill Rutledge. This was a very enjoyable skit and we wish to thank the boys for their performance. Karl Feiertag was the narrator and a poem was read by Walter Whonselter. . . . Out of the mouths of babes: H. P. Love's five-year-old son was discussing with his mother what he would like to be when he grew up. Among other things, he mentioned cowboys and other professions, and he wondered which would be the easiest. His mother replied that to do anything well we have to work hard at it. "Oh well," he said, "I guess I'll be like my daddy." . . . Little Norma Tomkinson is an ardent listener to all TV commercials. She had watched the ice show ads for days and on Sunday she finally convinced her mommy and daddy they just had to see it. . . . And then, some time back Johnny Reuille's little daughter said to her mother after she had just taken a bath, "Mother, does my face look clean?" To which her mother replied, "Yes, it does." And then daughter proudly boasted, "I washed my face with Ajax, I washed all over with Ajax." . . . Tell us some of the wise sayings of your children and we'll share it with others.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Carl Brenner stopped all traffic on the Bluffton road last Friday noon. If you remember, it was a cold and gloomy day and Carl went to Hall's to eat his lunch. Instead of getting in out of the miserable weather, he ordered his lunch and sat at one of the outside tables and had a picnic. The reason I know this story is true is because a lot of his friends happened to drive by. . . . Hollie Mee is back at work, a little weak yet, but he's back. . . . Harold Ely and Freddie Sarrazin were overheard talking about the flood waters in their basements. . . . Ronnie Elliot had a long week-end off. Everyone was waiting for him Monday to start passing out cigars, but he says he didn't get married, yet. . . . Our sincerest get well wishes go to Martha Beugnot, Bldg. 6-3's office sunshine and flowers girl. Come back real soon, Mart, we all miss you. . . . Happy Carolyn Girvin's fiancé, John, is back home after his tour of duty in Korea. Nov. 19 has been set for the trip down the aisle. . . . We bid C. W. Smith a fond farewell a couple weeks ago, but we forgot to mention welcome to H. G. Seibold, our new superintendent. . . . Little Marie Kable is all smiles these days. Why? She's going to be a grandma. . . . Welcome to Ivan Ford, who replaces Jim Craw in the Bldg. 6-3 office. Jim's farewell gift was his heart's desire, a spinning rod and reel. Good luck, Jim, on your new job at Winter St. . . . The girls in the Bldg. 6-3 office wonder why their good looking southern MTP stopped playing euchre with them at noon. Was it because he never got a "lonah"? . . . We urge the Republicans (and Democrats, too) in Wells county to vote for our Pete Espich, Bldg. 6-3, candidate for Rockcreek Township Trustee. . . . Welcome to two new MTI's in the office. Ron Tinlin, working for Butch Konow, and John Fitzsimmons, getting pointers from Les Hubart. . . . Neva Scott is spending a few days in New York City. . . . Happy birthday to Lem Clouse, who celebrated last Wednesday.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

We express our deepest sympathy to Don Clark on the death of his father and to Herb Foreman on the death of his mother. . . . Harold Wherry's daughter competed in a Tri-State baton twirling exhibition and came away with top honors. . . . Milt Ray has all his corn in the shock and is all set for winter. He had a good crop this year and had enough to make a whole shock. . . . Did you notice that beaming smile on Dick Putnam's face last Monday when he came to work? Dick had a very special reason for the smile. His wife presented him with a fine baby boy, the second son for the Putnams. . . . Mervil Lowden has a birthday coming up tomorrow, and we understand that his secret desire is to receive a few remembrances. . . . Charley Bracht is considering entry into the 1955 Olympics now that he has mastered the high hurdles, using the elevator door for a practice workout. Willie Garman will go along as manager to tell him when to jump. . . . The fellows in the lathe section of Bldg. 19-4 welcome Don Sordelet to their group. He replaces Dick Goshorn who moved to the mill section. . . . Some something to eat, but in this case it really paid off. Louis Paluszak answered his phone the other evening and something caused him to change the usual greeting to "beefsteak." He was right, it was the Dinner Winner program. Nice going, Louie. . . . Lowell Welker was not seen (he hopes) going out to close the windows of his car at 4 a.m. in his pajamas during one of the recent heavy rains. . . . Bob Mosshammer has five more mouths to feed. His cocker spaniel had five pups, part cocker spaniel and part miscellaneous. . . . We welcome Ron Hile to the special machines lathe section and wish him success. . . . Ed Ellenburgh entered a sports car rally with his MG recently and Richard Nair acted as his navigator. They copped the first place honors after a night-long drive around the South Bend countryside and Ed will have a trophy to show for it. Then a week later when he went out to the parking lot after work he got that sinking feeling when he couldn't find his car. It turned out that it had been stolen and by the time it was recovered it had been repainted black. Some kind soul even gave the car stealers a push when they couldn't find the starter on the MG. It's getting so you'll have to ask to see the title of ownership before giving anybody a push. . . . About a month ago Wilbur Lane had his picture taken by the GE NEWS photographer and so far nobody has found out the details. Now he informs us he has bought a new bathroom outfit, complete with colored glass door on the shower, just like in the movies. Maybe we have a celebrity in our midst and don't realize it. . . . Kurt Martin has a neighbor who sold apples from his own trees. Kurt bought a couple bushels himself and happened to mention it to Bud Dunlap. Bud said he'd like to buy some apples, too, but when Kurt asked his neighbor he found that all he had left were two bushels he was saving for himself. A few days later the two bushels were stolen from the neighbor's back porch. Kurt, of course, had nothing to do with it, but says that circumstances made him look bad and he even noticed a slight look of suspicion from his neighbor. Looks like you're being framed, Kurt. Stand on your constitutional rights and don't say anything until you hire a mouthpiece.

COUNT OFF

SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Ruby Stoops

We sure hate to see Groups 17, 60, 61, and 62 leave us Friday, but we will be joining you all soon at Broadway. . . . Peggy Bandt surely missed those beautiful red, black, and white argyle socks in the window last week. She thought the man ahead of her on Calhoun St. was modeling them. What a disappointment! . . . We hear Elinor Laux, who is at Winter St. is grandmother again. Congratulations. . . . Anyone wishing a real special cake contact Sydonna Fox. . . . Congratulations to Peggy Bandt on her newly elected office in Elex. . . . I want to thank Gladys Pantizan for the swell job she did for me in writing the column, and to my friends and co-workers, thanks again for all my wonderful cards and lovely gifts. . . . Welcome to Clarence Hartman and Robert Gahman to group 17X41, and Jack Payton, our new dispatcher who took Chester Rein-king's place. . . . Eddie Bandt, what is this about you getting lost in Ross Strodel's department?

"Lost" and "Found" articles must be cleared through the Plant Protection Office, Bldg. 10-2, or the Plant Receptionist, who will place the Ad-let and otherwise advise the article.

No ad will be received over the telephone. Only one ad per employee may be inserted. Each ad must be limited to 20 words and cannot be repeated. PICK-UPS FROM 26-3
by Maxine Jordan

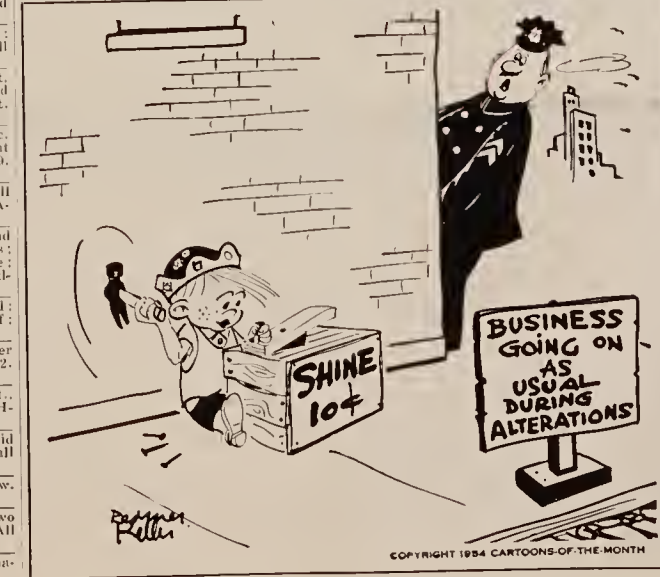

Emma Meyer treated her leading operator, Harry Brattain to a cigar. Harry returned the favor by giving Emma the worst job in finals to assemble, so Emma says in the future she is going to smoke her own cigars. . . . While on vacation, Mary Cordell and her dog, "Nipper" went to a high-class restaurant, one of those demanding a cover charge. She was politely told that no dogs were allowed and was gently asked to make her exit. However, after some choice words were exchanged, Mary was practically thrown out. It didn't matter that "Nipper" was a little dog, the fish weren't biting. . . . Five of the girls in the finishing section were planning their annual trek to the Auburn Fair. They decided to eat at Decatur because it was right on Route 27 on the way to Auburn. We assume the girls arrived there but we're wondering if they made their Decatur date. . . . It's a good thing the Auburn Fair only comes once a year. Some of our co-workers insisted on candy apples with worms and they refused to ride the ferris wheel because they wouldn't get their money's worth. We could go on and on but think this will suffice. . . . Edgar Alter hasn't made a bet in the last five years. He finally succumbed to Jim McGill and bet on a World Series game and lost. Too bad, Ed, your money should have been on the Giants. . . . Hattie Drinks was a happy spectator at the World Series in Cleveland on Saturday. . . . It isn't known for sure whether Almetta Till had a chill or expected zero weather. Anyway, she brought her fur coat to work on Thursday morning. . . . George and Erma Werling were running a race at the reception the other night. They were trying to see who could eat the most. Wonder who won? . . . Frank Clifton spent hours fixing a door on his coal bin. He did a wonderful job with the exception that he had the hinges on the wrong side. . . . Art Pequignot loves cars so well he not only sells them, he also carries them to work with him. He says business is so bad, the customers want to sell him instead of vice versa. . . . Will someone tell Danny Reuille it takes heat to warm up soup. . . . Mac McCray is very busy installing antennas these days. He says he gets by one way or another. . . . Glad to see Almetta Till back at work again after an illness. . . . Bill Oakley, who now lives in Florida, paid us a visit. He will be remembered as a foreman on our floor a few years ago. . . . Herman Curry is in the hospital for an operation. We wish him a speedy recovery. . . . A hearty welcome to Art Rail, who has returned to our midst. . . . Poor Jim McGill! First the Yankees, now Notre Dame, and if the Democrats lose this fall, the year will be a complete bust for him. . . . Why wouldn't Tilly show us the picture she had taken at Murphy's? . . . How will our friend, Erma, stay on a diet when Mildred and she put on a feed every day? . . . Dolores Stapleton and Martha Doehrmann attempted to eat a second piece of pie after a chicken dinner. Although the pie was delicious, the girls couldn't finish the task. . . . Nancy McCrea has a new way of operating and says it works fine. You just purchase anything you want, use it for a year, then if it doesn't suit your taste anymore, return it and ask for a refinish job or a replacement. Sounds good! . . . Frank Clifton has been inviting people to his home for fried chicken. Seems strange he isn't there when the guests arrive. . . . Wanda Grimm is carrying a broken heart in that new purse she received from Florida. . . . Are you interested in pepper? If so, see Pepper Wolf in the winding section. . . . Ed Becker bought a TV set and one of those new fangled TV rockers. However, the winders think Ed will do more sleeping in that rocker than watching TV. . . . Do you have a large foam rubber pillow that Lorraine Papp could borrow? Maybe then she won't have as many black and blue marks as she did on Monday. . . . Mildred Leazier froze up her winding machine on Thursday and blew up her electric stove on Friday morning. What seems to be the trouble, Millie?

Do you know why they call it take-home pay? It's because that's the only place you can afford to go with it.

STRAP: Carl (Snuffy) Junk finally got his new choppers, but before he started to wear them he wanted to get his gums toughened up. His way of doing this was chewing on a leather strap like he did before he got his very first baby teeth. Second childhood, eh, Snuffy? . . . WATERLOO: Warren Harding wants everyone to know that since he now can get Waterloo on his TV set, the price for those who want to view TV programs on his set has gone up from 25 cents to 30 cents per person. However, a special family rate of 25 cents still holds good for Harry Perl. . . . PRETTY BOY: At the Foremen's Club party the other night, Nancy Lee and the Hill Toppers entertained. Nancy Lee really went for Emmet Rasor, Jr. She kept referring to him all evening as the "pretty boy." Well, Nancy Lee, he is our pretty boy, too, but we both can't have him, or can we? . . . GRANDPA: Eubert Logan is a new grandpa by virtue of a daughter horn to Mr. and Mrs. Leon Grider. Congratulations, Eubert! . . . TURNIPS: If Vaughn Sheets ever expects to harvest his turnips it will either have to stop raining or he will have to buy a row boat. As the situation stands now, the turnips are growing in a new lake started in Vaughn's backyard. . . . BIRTHDAY CONGRATULATIONS for next week go to Don Reed, Oct. 17; Roland Schwartz, Oct. 19; Harry Arnold, Oct. 19; Louis Gunther, Robert Thain, and Bill Hattendorf, Oct. 21; and Galen Gillenwater, Oct. 23. . . . A CUTIE: Apple pie without cheese is like a kiss without a squeeze. . . . We welcome back Don Firks to the Die Room; also Franklin Davis, a new employee in the spool section. . . . LEM ROBINSON, manufacturing trainee, is the new fellow in the Engineering office. We hope you'll enjoy your stay with us, Lem. . . . Please hurry back from your vacation, Leo Elward. Your co-workers in the drawing section are very lonesome and unhappy. . . . VISITOR: Emmet (Pappy) Rasor, who is on sick leave, paid us a visit last week. We were very happy to see you, Pappy, and we wish you a speedy recovery. . . . WE WONDER if Don Pappert could be the cause of the break-up between Joe DiMaggio and Marilyn Monroe. Could be! After all, Don did receive a birthday card from Marilyn the other week. For shame, Don! . . . ABSENT MINDED: Harry Adams—he must be! Otherwise, why would he drive right past two of his regular riders the other night without picking them up at their usual waiting place? Tsk! Tsk! . . . The latest in pipes: Winnie Shank doesn't intend that anyone in New York, or for that matter any other city, is going to be any more stylish than she is. Ask to see her classy pipe. Jewel heeded, too, by golly! . . . CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meads, proud parents of a spanking new baby daughter, Deborah Kay. . . . WE DOUBT if you fellows will be able to drag Bill Skinner out on a fishing trip for many a month. Reason: He's too engrossed in listening to his new hi-fi record player. . . . FIGURE JUGGLER: Did you know that Don Pappert is juggling figures around? Accounting figures, that is. We fully approve. Additional schooling to increase one's knowledge and abilities never hurt anyone. Lots of success in your endeavors, Don. We mean it, too.

Ronald Reagan to be Guest at GE Club Awards Banquet

Ronald Reagan, prominent Hollywood actor and program supervisor for the "General Electric Theater," will make a guest appearance at the GE Club Fall sports banquet Monday, Nov. 1.

Mr. Reagan will attend the banquet as part of his three-day agenda of visiting with General Electric employees and organizations in Fort Wayne.

The semi-annual athletic event sponsored by the GE Club will begin at 6 p.m. in the Club auditorium. Carl Bennett, of the publicity and promotion department of Zollner Machine Works, Inc., will be principal speaker.

Managers of each league in softball and golf will extend personal invitations to award winners in their individual leagues. There are approximately 70 winners of GE Club sponsored athletic events for the spring and summer months.

In addition to awards earned by the winners, special prizes will be presented five men from each golf league. These are golf bags presented by the Main Auto Sport Shop. Also, a set of woods will be awarded one member from the five leagues. Names will be drawn for the winners of these awards.

Red Braden, Bldg. 2-2, is chairman of the event. He is being assisted by the committee of Erv Huth, Bldg. 8-2; Joe Kramer, Bldg. 6-1½A; Les Shroyer, Bldg. 21-2; Gordon Smith, Taylor St., and Carl Reynolds, Taylor St.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

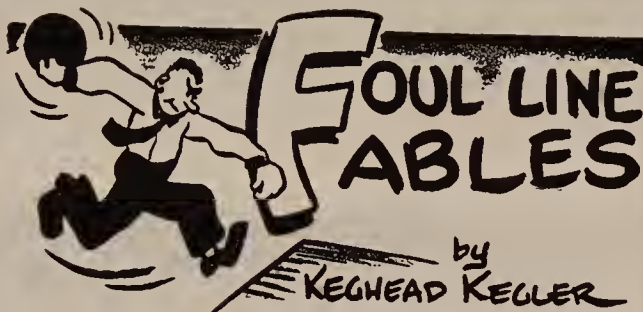

The sleepy look in Audrey Riee's eyes these days is that she is spending her nights learning to sew on her new sewing machine, which she purchased last week. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Helen Elbert, who celebrated last week. Many more happy birthdays, Helen. . . . Sarah Harris is spending her third week's vacation going here and there. . . . Peggy Ford's husband gave the bride away at his niece's wedding last week. He was trying to get her to laugh and almost forgot to smile himself.

One day last week Addie Levenberger visited our department. It was nice to see you, Addie, and we want you to come back. . . . Our deepest sympathy to Doris Kennedy in the death of her daughter-in-law, and to J. E. Rykowski in the death of his mother. . . . Arthur Koeneman is being transferred soon. Hope you like your new location. Arthur is our elevator man in the south elevator. . . . William Yarman is having his vacation for two weeks. We can guess what he is doing—rescuing his farm produce from the fields covered with high water. Why don't you leave them? Perhaps you could raise some giant vegetables. . . . We have no happy birthdays, but we do have rain and more rain. . . . Hardly a week goes by that your reporter doesn't loan her old shoes to someone who walked in the rain to work. It is the only time anyone is ever interested in the size of her shoes. P. S. Don't forget your umbrella.

Our top story of today concerns the activities of Bud Roggensee, who is stationed at Yokasuka, Japan. Bud bowled in the Friday night league before he entered service. On Sept. 29, while bowling in a league in Yokasuka, Bud kegled a big 701 series. In his first game he rolled a 235, in the second a 211, and then Bud really cut loose. A big 255 score was result of eight strikes and two spares. Our thanks to LaVern Thompson for this information about Bud Roggensee.

Interdivision

It is Brouwers out in front with a record of 10 wins and two losses. In a tie for second place are Kinney's, Apprentice, and Summit City, each with eight wins and four losses. Pindusters have won seven and lost five for fifth place. Brouwers rolled a big 1026 score, while Kinney's had a 991. Vic Rump came up with a 620 series. Les (the champ) Shroyer leads the league with a 192 average. Irv France has a 180 average for second place.

Small Motor

It was Walt Kammeyer and the Unlucky 113 that rolled over Tommy's Lunch in two games. Tommy's lunch now has a slim one game hold on top spot. They have won nine and lost three. In a tie for second place is Tommy's Tavern and Unlucky 113. Each have won eight while losing four. Team No. 12, Drafting and Office, are two games behind the leaders with a record of seven wins and five losses. Corky Smith tossed the high count of the night, a 222. Walt Lamboley kegled a 221; Sam Macy, 215; and Walt Riedorf, 204 and 215.

Ladies' Friday Evening

Lou Anne Beauchamp reports the following about the league. Team No. 1 is leading the league with nine wins and three losses. Teams 5 and 3 are tied for second place honors with seven wins and five losses. Sis Shearer rolled a 523 total with games of 153, 180, and 190. Single game high scores were kegled by Jo Korn, 191; Gertie Koldeway, 180; Kathy Crouse, 179; and Alice Des Granges, 171 and 177.

Ladies' Tuesday Afternoon

It is a tie between teams No. 3 and 6 for the top spot, each one having a seven won five lost record. Teams No. 2, 5, and 4 have a six won and six lost record and are tied for third place. Dortha Ramsey kegled games of 188 and 175, but just didn't get enough pins in the third game to make the 500 series.

Ladies' Monday Night

Holeyrollers are still leading the league with 13 wins and two losses. Close on their heels are the Alleykats with 11 wins and four losses. In third place are the Scatterpins and Keglerettes tied, each having won 10 while losing five. Alberta Roth kegled the high series of the night, a 504 on games of 177, 180, and 147. Rolling high games of the night were Kay Bade, 179; Ilo Matter, 178; Winnie Schuerick, 177; Betty Campbell, 174; and Bonnie Wolf, 175.

GE Office

It is M and G Sales out in front with 12 wins and three losses. Small Motor Development and Specialty Motors are tied for second place, each having won nine while losing six. High scores were kegled by Bob Langdon, 232; Wendel Miller, 213; Lem Gossman, 202; and Dick Kent, 200. Gerry Zehendner converted the 6-7-10 split and Erv Aumann made the 4-6-10.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

The last place Shafts finally broke their winless streak by capturing one from the Office No. 1, who advanced to a tie for fourth with five wins, seven losses. The league leading Flanges (ten and two) took two from the Rotors (five and seven), while the record place Stators (9½-2½) took two and tied one with Office No. 2 (5½ and 6½). J. Beery's 202 was the top score for the league.

GE Fraternal

The league leaders, Riverview Gardens (10-5) took two from Peterson Elevator (7½-7½), mainly through the efforts of E. Bultemeier, who rolled a big 648 (223-223-202). G. Baumgartner came up with a 606 on games of 191-213-202. West End Restaurant (9-6) won the odd game from the Elks (6-9) despite the 604 series (201-214-189) by B. Custer.

The K of C (6-9) poured on the Teeple Truck Lines for three wins.

Volleyball

by Art Rasor

Volleyball teams for the 1954-55 season are now organizing, Art Rasor, league manager, reported today. The Interdivision league will play Wednesday evenings at the GE Club starting November 3. Teams will play at 5, 6, 7, and 8 p.m. Practice sessions can be arranged by calling Rasor on Ext. 2608.

The Major League play will begin at the YMCA the first week in November. Dick Wagner will captain the GE Club entry in this league. Tryouts will be held Wednesday, October 20, at 7 p.m. in the GE Club gym.

Anyone interested in playing volleyball this year should fill out the blank below and mail it to E. A. Rasor, Wire Section, Taylor St.

Golf Awards

Winners of the Blind Soggy golf tourney are asked to pick up their awards at the GE Club from Charlie Wilt immediately. Red Braden, golf chairman, stated today. Several winners have not yet picked up their prizes, he said.

I would like to play volleyball this year.

L. Ulman's 625 (215-175-235) was the big noise for the night. GE Club (6-9) had too much balance for Monroeville Lumber (8-7) and our GE'ers took two out of three. 200 scores were produced by: H. Strickler, 206; D. House, 221; P. Briede, 203; T. Gage, 200; G. Schultz, 203-221; G. Laurent, 207; G. Strickler, 201; R. Maeklin, 205; A. Zelt, 216; O. Schultz, 222; W. Petrie, 213-202.

GE Women's League

G. Reynolds rolled out two high score games of 202 and 181 along with Halberstadt's 160 and 199 to win three games from the Last Frames and keep their first place standing with a 10-2 record. The Office won one game and lost two games to the spares which brought them back up to a second place tie with the Last Frames with a 5-7 record each. Despite two wins the Spares are still on bottom with four wins and eight losses.

Secretaries are reminded to get your section application turned in at the GE Club desk. Remember, you only have until November 1 and that isn't too far away.

committee. As part of their safety training in a department-wide program, the committeemen attend monthly meetings in which they are kept up-to-date on safety methods as applied to their areas. They carry this information to co-workers. These persons serve as safety aides to foremen by watching for and reporting hazards around them. Once a year, all employees attend a large meeting which brings home to them the importance of observing safety at work and in the home.

Members of the Section 401 safety committee are: Floyd True-love, Andrew Bordner, Merland Heller, Charles Bender, Odell Scott, John Putman, Paul Madden, Mildred Greene, Vergie Stephen, Francis Harter, and Bernadette Lake.

Others are: Homer McMaken, Henry Weigman, Harry Wagner, Clara Patterson, Eugene Wyss, Esther Lape, Max Buckmaster, Erma Fredericks, Martin Vogel, Wendell Beckley, Morris Peters, and Acra Brown.

Motor Production Hits 100 Million

MacKinnon Predicts Company Will Double Record by 1965

The 100 millionth fractional horsepower motor was produced by General Electric this week, according to an announcement by H. A. MacKinnon, vice president. The record in motor production was set 52 years after the company first manufactured this type of motor in 1902.

In announcing the achievement, MacKinnon predicted that the company will double this total by 1965, building a second 100 million motors in one-fifth the time required for the present record. In our highly competitive markets today, this goal, however, will require the concerted efforts of all employees concerned, he added.

"All employees who shared in the production of these 100 million motors in the last half century can be proud of their contributions to the improved American standard of living," MacKinnon said. "Approximately 70 per cent of our motors are used in the nation's homes," he explained, "a clear indication of the rate at which the American standard of living has risen in the past 52 years and of the way in which it will continue to rise."

He pointed out that the average American home today has six motors, usually those in refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, furnaces, freezers, food mixers and fans. The modern home under construction now has more than a dozen and 10 years from now the "electrified home of tomorrow" will contain 25 fractional horsepower motors.

Fractional horsepower motors are defined as electric motors of less than one horsepower rating, excluding clock and toy motors and certain types of miniature drives. They are manufactured by three departments with headquarters in Fort Wayne, General Purpose Component Motor, Hermetic Motor, Specialty Component Motor, and the Appliance Motor Department at DeKalb. Plants engaged in motor production are located at Fort Wayne, Decatur, Linton, Tiffin, Ohio, Jonesboro, Ark., and DeKalb, Ill.

The first U. S. Patent was taken out on an electric motor in 1837, but mass production methods did not make motors available until nearly a half century later.

IS THIS NO. 100,000,000?—Could be, because somewhere this week many GE employees handled the record-breaking 100 millionth fractional horsepower motor. Elmor Griswold, of the shipping section, Bldg. 6-1, loads a truck with GE motors, one of which may be the 100 millionth, after 52 years of motor manufacturing.

GE Club's Fall Revue to Feature Six Acts in Six Shows Nov. 13-14

Opening dates for the 1954 Fall Revue, sponsored by the GE Club, are Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 13-14, Gordon L. Smith, entertainment committee chairman, announced this week.

The annual entertainment event is open to all GE employees and members of their immediate families free of charge. This year's show will include six performances over the two-day period and will feature six professional acts at each program.

Starting times for the shows are 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13 and 1, 3, 5, and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 14. The six professional acts will be announced in later issues of the GE NEWS.

The Revue will be presented in the Club auditorium. Admission will be by ticket to each performance. Tickets will be available the first week in November and may be secured free of charge at the GE Club desk, Taylor St. employment office, or from any member of the Club entertainment committee. To obtain tickets for themselves and members of their immediate families, employees should present their 1954 GE Club membership card at any of the above listed locations after the first of November.

Members of the entertainment committee in addition to chairman Smith who is in Section 417, Taylor St., are: Kenneth Redding, Taylor St. shipping; Joe Wyss, Section 113, Taylor St.; Joe Gardt, Taylor St. office; Katherine Gardt, Bldg. 4-6; Earl Stauffer, Bldg. 4-6; Glen Seabold, Bldg. 2-2; Art Brockmeyer, Bldg. 2-1; Johnny August, Bldg. 22; Hubert Myers, Bldg. 19-3; Buck Buchan, Bldg. 19-2; Bob Glenn, Bldg. 26-2; Gayle Griffith, Winter St.; Susie Jones, Winter St.; Charlie Wilt, GE Club; Barbara Hyman, Bldg. 18-1.

Three Busy Days Scheduled For Reagan's Ft. Wayne Visit

A full three days of plant and community activities have been planned for Ronald Reagan during his visit to Fort Wayne Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Oct. 31 through Nov. 3.

One of Hollywood's finest actors and first citizens, Reagan is host and program supervisor for the new "General Electric Theater" Sunday evenings. He is currently on a goodwill tour of major GE plants to familiarize himself with the people and products of General Electric.

Reagan will arrive in Fort Wayne Sunday evening and will attend the Zollner Pistons-Boston Celtics basketball game at the Coliseum that evening. Hilliard Gates will interview him before the start of the second half over Radio Station WKJG.

Monday he will visit the Broadway Plant. He will meet the GE NEWS reporters in the morning and tour the Hermetic, Motor and Specialty Component Motor departments. In the afternoon he will tour Specialty Transformer and Direct Current Motor and Generator.

Monday evening he will attend the Athletic Awards banquet at the GE Club.

Tuesday, which is a plant holiday, (Continued on page 4)

Bulletin

A total of $133,000 was pledged to the United Fund campaign yesterday by the GE Employees Community Services Fund and the General Electric Company. The Services Fund pledged $90,000 and the company gift was $43,000.

With completion of the Services Fund drive within the Fort Wayne plants this week, 86 per cent of the employees are now enrolled as members of the Fund. This is an increase of 4 per cent over last year.

Plenty of Starch in Competition

Let anyone, in any field, get the idea that he doesn't have any competition, and it's a good bet that he'll start slowing down. To do a good job brings its own satisfactions, but even when a man enjoys the kind of work he does, he won't do his best unless he has an awareness of competition, to spur him on.

It may be comparatively easy for the man in the plant to forget that he is in competition. Not often does he meet it head on, like a ballplayer, a boxer or a salesman. And on top of the very human tendency to forget about things that aren't right in front of us, we have economic spellbinders who try to convince us that the mass-production methods and large business units of modern American industry have taken the starch out of competition.

Not So Tough?

We are told that the use of complex, expensive machinery has made it difficult for the smaller business to assemble enough up-to-date equipment to operate efficiently. Therefore, the argument goes, we are left with a comparatively few large enterprises in most fields—instead of numerous small ones—and so competition isn't nearly as tough as it used to be.

The truth of the matter is just the opposite. The many industrial improvements that have come about in the past half-century have made competition much harder, not easier.

The basis of competition is the number of choices open to buyers. Modern production and conditions have greatly increased the number of choices that every consumer has.

Effect of Automobiles

The automobile, for example, has been a tremendous force in making competition keener among retailers. Back in the horse and buggy days, every little village had an independent general store. But the owner faced very little real competition, because the customers didn't find it worthwhile to travel from one village to another to compare prices and values.

Modern automobiles and good roads, however, have enabled the average rural customer to travel considerable distances easily. Therefore, many different stores compete for his business.

Competition isn't limited to a company vs. company affair. Years ago, coal producers had, as competition, only other coal producers. Now they must compete also with producers of fuel oil, water power, and natural gas. Soon, perhaps, they will have to compete with power and heat from atomic energy.

Frozen foods compete with canned goods. Plastics compete with lumber and metal; synthetic rubber competes with natural rubber.

All for Buyer's Dollar

You could say that every business competes against all other businesses—not only those in the same line—for the buyer's dollar.

Those who try to sell the theory that competition is fading out of the picture are doing the employees of industry no favor. Competition today is hard, and it will get harder as more new products appear on the scene. Every employee is involved in the competitive race. The better he competes, the better his job will be.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Good-by and good luck to Kenny Evans, Al Kleinrichart, Frank McBride, Charles Nord, Luverne Wolf, and to the best Skipper the old Smokehouse ever had, Al Mason. We wish him a speedy recovery from his operation. . . . If I fail to mention anyone, believe me it is not intentional. The fellows are leaving so fast it is hard for me to keep track of them. Whoops! There goes another one. So long and good luck to Pat McCutcheon. . . . Charlie Castle got quite a start the other noon when he opened his lunch pail. Grinning at him from atop his sandwich was someone's upper plate. Charlie spent the next week looking into his co-worker's mouths, but to date the owner of the choppers remains a mystery. . . . Ralph (High-pockets) Garrett took a group of his friends to the Coliseum the other night and when they came out it was pouring down rain. As to be expected, Ralph lost his car and so he and his friends got soaked as they hunted for it. His guests found the car, but they couldn't get in for Ralph had it locked, so they had to find Ralph who had wandered far off in another direction. . . . Wonder what Mildred Messer, our steno, had on her mind the other day? Ferroll (Cupid) Hill asked her for an exchange order for a hammer and she wrote him out a dispensary pass. When he explained the mistake to her she laughed, tore up the pass, and made out a daywork slip. Still brooding over that duck, Mildred? . . . The big ones were really biting the other week end for Al Mason, who was pulling them out of Skinner Lake as fast as he could bait his hook. But when he hauled in his net to go home he found it empty. A large gaping hole was in the bottom. Now Al realizes he was catching the same fish over and over. It would just eat the bait, make the trip out of the water, through the net, and back for more food. . . . The title of "Meanest man of the month" goes to one of Honest Red Sutter's co-workers. This man brought two large cuts of mouth watering pie in his lunch and ate them both in front of our hero. Then after wiping the meringue from his mouth on Red's coat sleeve, he explained that his wife had sent the extra piece along for Red. . . . Last week's visitor, Charlie Mowery.

Mabel Keppler and her husband were shopping in Indianapolis this week end. Christmas presents for us we think. . . . We are sorry Evelyn Kissinger's cat, Roger, died. . . . If you think you see a blue streak about town, it isn't a streak, it's Fred Wheeler in his new blue Kaiser. . . . Norma Henshaw has a new Pontiac, so they say. . . . Catherine Minehart, Carl Oberwitt, and his wife and Bill Oberwitt are leaving soon for a week in Florida. Have a good time, you fortunate people. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Uncapher saw the Purdue-Michigan game and they got sopping wet. . . . Fred Wheeler looks very smart in his new suit and haircut. . . . Herman Ebel, the lucky man, is having his vacation this week. . . . Ralph Miles has returned to work after an illness. . . . Ernest Grimes enjoyed his vacation so much he didn't even send us a card. . . . Evelyn Kissinger, who just loves cake and coffee in the morning, had only cake one day last week. Because her thermos was in her lunch kit, she thought she had already filled it with coffee. The result being a nice clean empty bottle and a couple of drops of clear water.

Edith Robertson

Welcome to Ray Carr in the drafting section. He is from San Jose, Calif. . . . Denton Manecke enjoyed a nice vacation being chased up the east coast by Hazel. . . . Leola Johnson and Veora attended the GE Women's Conference at Danville last week end. They met a lot of old friends and made a lot of new ones. They also toured the GE plant located there. . . . Things were quite dull around the accounting section last week. This can be explained by two things. First of all, it was our monthly closing week and everyone was too busy to get into mischief. The other reason was the illness of Helen Pownor. We are all glad Helen is back and feeling much better, and we can again look forward to a lively week. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lenz have finally come to their long awaited day. They will move into their new home Saturday at 4926 Buell Drive. . . . A wonderful time was had by all at the party in honor of Delores Hahn and Leola Johnson at the English Terrace. . . . Harold Buck is back from a joyous wet week's vacation. . . . If anyone in the sales section needs financial help before next pay day, Neil Dowling is the boy to see. . . . Congratulations to Jim Crowe on his coming marriage November 27. . . . Bruce Kinsey reports that even though Michigan State won by a touchdown, Indiana really looked OK to him. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Thelma Bentley, a patient at Huntington County Hospital. . . . Jack Fox must have had strenuous vacation. Soooooo tired! That's the trouble with vacations, need another one to recuperate! . . . Happy birthday to Carol Arnold and Al Hartman. The ice cream and cake were delicious! . . . The accounting section is happy to welcome Betty Williams to its accounts payable unit. We hope Betty will like the west end of second floor as well as she did the east end. . . . Debbie Winans has come to make a home with Mr. and Mrs. Lick Winans. . . . Bill Shyroek has found a solution on how to get the teenagers off his party line. Several loud wolf whistles into the mouthpiece will do the trick. Unfortunately, his Buick is going to have to have some other form of treatment. Perhaps a Buick needs a more subtle touch. . . . Delores Hahn was a beautiful bride last Saturday. She is now Mrs. Everett Jung. . . . Marilyn Moore is busy huying Halloween masks to send to her husband in Korea. The boys are going to have a big party! . . . The recent heavy rains have Mel and Mary Wells thinking they're in the Orient! If it keeps up we'll probably be honoring the Wells' as the "bringer of rice paddies to Indiana" just as we honor Johnny Applesseed for our apple trees! . . . We extend our sympathy to Al Hartman on the death of his brother-in-law. . . . Karl Reid found out that some bus drivers won't accept bus tokens from another state. . . . J. H. Fox and H. N. Mettler attended the Notre Dame football game last Saturday. . . . Hero-of-the-week was Ken whearely, who, at great personal risk, pitched in to save a pair of twins from drowning Sunday. It's not really as exciting as it sounds, you see, the "twins" were his GE washer and dryer which were going down for the third time in two feet of water in Ken's basement!

What's Going On Here

APPRENTICE ALUMNI— Tonight at 8:30 p.m. the Lunz Barn will open to Apprentice Alumni members and their guests for a square dance. John Wright and his orchestra will furnish the musical background for round and square dancing until 12 o'clock midnight.

Tickets are $1.50 per couple and may be secured at the door this evening. Attendance prizes will be awarded and a novelty stunt will be conducted, with prizes for the winners. Refreshments will be available.

GE SQUARES— Entertaining their wives and guests, members of the GE Squares Club will stage a Halloween dance, Saturday, Oct. 30, in the Squares Hall. Hal Kern and his orchestra will provide music for dancing from 9 p.m. until 12:30 p.m. Tickets may be obtained from contact men for $1.45 per couple. Bob Davidson, Winter St., is chairman of the committee in charge of the dance.

TECHNICAL PROGRAM CLUB— Tuesday, Oct. 26, is the date set by the Technical Program Club for its next dinner meeting. The event will begin at 6:15 p.m. and will take place in the Chamber of Commerce building, corner of Wayne and Ewing Streets.

All engineering program, CheMet, physics, and IGE trainees are invited to attend the dinner.

Guest speaker will be D. P. Lawrence, of the Patent Section, Bldg. 18-2. He will discuss patent law.

Newly elected officers of the TP Club are Phil Smith, Bldg. 4-5, president; Buddy Powell, Winter St., vice president; Jack Parker, Bldg. 4-6, secretary; Harvey Johnson, Bldg. 26-2, treasurer, and Dave Engelman, Winter St., social chairman. At the election meeting, which took place October 12, Kermit Quanbeck, Bldg. 4-6, was appointed manager of the TP basketball team.

Specialty Motor Engineer Granted 20th U.S. Patent

Lawrance W. Wightman, manufacturing engineer in Specialty Component Motor Department, has been granted his 20th patent by the U. S. Patent Office. The latest patent issued Wightman covers a new submersible pump motor.

The invention covers a new conception of pumping gasoline and other non-corrosive fluids by means of a small diameter motor which can be connected to standard 60 cycle single phase power. Previously, it was necessary to use high frequency and high speed motors to obtain proper pump performance.

By a unique arrangement of motor pump parts, restrictions to the flow of gasoline were removed and the size of impellers increased to a point where satisfactory flow of fluid may be obtained at low speeds and with small diameter units. The invention made possible a practical solution to the problem of pumping highly volatile fluids, particularly the new higher octane gasoline coming into use.

Wightman joined the company in 1938 on the Test Engineers Program. He is a graduate of the University of Kansas, receiving his BSME degree in 1937. The Wightmans and their two children reside at 340 W. Woodland.

General Purpose Employees Set 'Best Safety Record'

General Purpose Component Motor employees have set the best safety record ever established in the Fort Wayne plants, it was revealed this week in a report issued on the Department's safety record for the first nine months of 1954.

According to figures released in the report by A. C. Hartman, safety specialist, the frequency rate and severity of accidents in all of the department's operations are lower than those of the entire company for the first six months of this year.

The frequency of .597 and severity of .012 for General Purpose compares with the company-wide totals of 3.92 for frequency and .228 for severity.

Individual sections which have achieved fine safety records include the Advanced Manufacturing Development Section which reached one million accident-free man hours Friday, Oct. 15. Their last lost-time accident occurred in September, 1953.

The Decatur Plant has worked a total of 1,646,630 man hours since their last accident in June, 1953. Another outstanding safety record is that accomplished by Wire Mill employees who have worked since October, 1952, without a lost-time accident and have accumulated 810,758 hours.

Section 113, Taylor St., tallied over four million accident free man hours from April, 1949, until August of this year when there was an accident in the section.

As Mr. Hartman points out in the report, no one individual can be credited with this outstanding performance. It took the combined efforts of conscientious safety committee members, supervision, and employees themselves to establish this fine record.

Safety programs at the department's three locations, Taylor St., Decatur, and Linton, consist of a year-round campaign to keep employees conscious of the importance of safety on the job. This is done by safety committees within each section and plant who work with other employees and supervision toward the goal of making safety a part of the job.

Elex Organizes New Chapter For Retired Women Employees

A third chapter of Elex Club will be organized with membership open to retired women employees only, Georgette Hetzel, Bldg. 26-2, president, announced this week.

A coffee hour will take place Wednesday, Nov. 10, in the Bldg. 16-2 private dining room at 9:30 a.m. to organize the new group. Persons attending this meeting will become charter members of the organization. Any retired women employees interested in joining this club should make reservations to attend the November 10 meeting by calling E-7431, Ext. 555.

The two other chapters of Elex are Partizan and El-Par. These two groups consist of former women employees.

The 1954-55 calendar of events for the first shift group of Elex was announced this week by Miss Hetzel. It includes classes in photography, square dancing, and a series of sessions built around the theme, "Let's Be Feminine." A one-day conference has been set up for January and a week end trip will be planned for 1955. The group will also conduct a rummage sale next year.

The Elex Corner Cupboard counter in the Bldg. 8-1 Employee Store opened this week for business and will continue to be open through the year during store hours. The club has several items for sale there.

The following themes for monthly meetings have been planned for the first shift and will take place in the GE Club in the evenings:

November—Spanish Fiesta
December—Frosty, the Snowman
January—Kathryn Turney Garten book review
February—Bosses Night
March—Easter Program
April—Elex Fair
May—Mother-Daughter party.

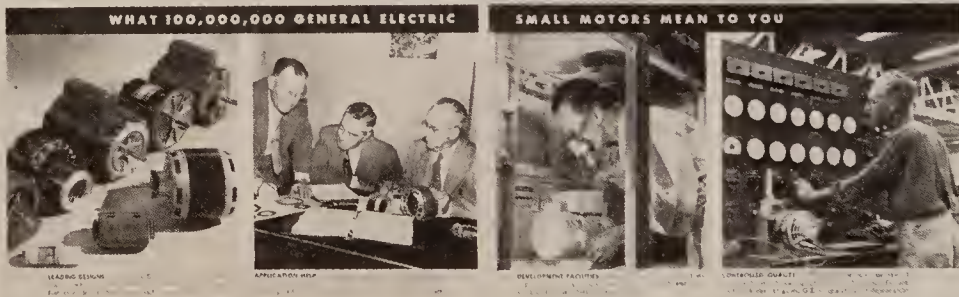

Second shift members of Elex have arranged the following schedule of monthly meetings to be conducted in the afternoons:

October 28—Autumn Flame luncheon
November 18—Thanksgiving
December 5—Christmas party
January 20—Theater party
February 17—Bingo
March 17—Easter "Light of the Cross"
April 14—Mad Hatters
May 3—Mother-Daughter party.

Comedy star Joan Davis learns that a housewife can't be a secretary to her husband and a champ in the kitchen at the same time on the "I Married Joan," episode of Wednesday, Oct. 27, at 7 p.m., over WKJG-TV.

Annoyed by the competence of Alice (Emlen Davies), who helps her husband, Judge Cushing (Paul Keast), prepare his legal decisions, Joan enrolls in a secretarial school so she can be more helpful to her husband, Judge Bradley Stevens (Jim Backus).

To surprise Brad, Joan agrees to do extra work for the president of the business school to pay for her tuition. Brad, working with Judge Cushing on a case, invites the Cushings to dinner and tells Joan he'd like to serve them Bombay duck, a dish requiring painstaking preparation.

At the school, Joan disrupts classes by trying to pluck and stuff the duck and type at the same time. And to top it all off, the school president gives her a staggering load of mailing work to do at home—which turns the Stevens kitchen into a nightmare of confusion.

Safety Glasses Pay Off Again!

Robert O. Kerr, Winter St. Tool Room employee, became a Wise Owl candidate this month, when his safety glasses came to his rescue.

Mr. Kerr was operating a milling machine when a 1/4" high-speed end mill broke and a small piece of steel struck his glasses shattering the left lens.

Without the protection of safety glasses, the accident probably would have caused serious damage and perhaps loss of sight, John Braden, safety specialist, said.

Mr. Kerr is the second Wise Owl candidate at the Winter St. plant since the wearing of safety glasses became a requirement there.

said, fractional horsepower motors have helped make it possible for the modern housewife to have her house heated and cooled automatically, her clothes washed and dried as easily as adjusting a dial, and her daily trips to the store eliminated by refrigerated home storage of food supplies. The office workers have motor-driven adding machines, comptometers, calculators, and typewriters to speed their work, and home workshop owners have motor-driven saws, drills, lathes, and sanders to ease their labors.

day, will find Reagan visiting the community. In the morning he will visit GE donors at the Red Cross Regional Blood Center and spend the rest of the day being interviewed by Radido Stations WANE, WOWO and WGL, WKJG and WKJG-TV.

Tuesday evening he will see GE companies in action at the Junior Achievement Center and attend the Komets-Toledo hockey game at the Coliseum. He will be interviewed by WOWO and introduced to the crowd there.

The Hollywood star will resume his tour of the Fort Wayne plants Wednesday morning with a visit to Taylor St. operations and meet for lunch with the presidents of all GE organizations. Wednesday afternoon he will tour Winter St. and be entertained from 3 to 5 p.m. with a reception by the Elex Club for its members. This will be held in the restaurant, Bldg. 16-2. Second shift members are asked to attend from 3 to 3:30

President to Pay Tribute to Edison On Diamond Jubilee of Light Show

President Dwight D. Eisenhower, appearing on "Diamond Jubilee of Light" Sunday, October 24, will pay tribute to Thomas A. Edison in the climax of this year's celebration of the 75th anniversary of Edison's invention of the Electric Light.

The two-hour program, being produced by David O. Selznick in his television debut, will be seen over 325 inter-connected stations of the ABC, CBS, Dumont, and NBC Networks. This will be the largest television network in television history. Both WKJG-TV and WIN-T will carry the program from 8 to 10 p.m.

"Diamond Jubilee of Light," the all-electrical industry show, will have a format which producer Selznick describes as "an entertainment tapestry woven around the theme of light." Specific details of the program's contents have not been announced.

It is known, however, that Ben Hecht, the famous author and dramatist, has collaborated with Mr. Selznick on writing the master script for the program and that material by Arthur Gordon, Irwin Shaw, Max Shulman, and John Steinbeck will be dramatized on the show. A special presentation of highlights of past and future electrical progress will also be an integral part of the program.

Judith Anderson, Walter Brennan, Joseph Cotten, Brandon De

Wilde, Eddie Fisher, Helen Hayes, Gay Madison, Thomas Mitchell, and Kim Novak have been announced among the stars who will play in "Diamond Jubilee of Light."

An original musical score for the production has been composed by Victor Young, to be played by his own orchestra. Settings for the various segments of the show, more than 40 in all, have been designed by Furth Ullman. Important segments of the program will be directed by King Vidor and Christian Nyby.

George J. Horner

George J. Horner Named Foreman At Hanna St.

The appointment of George J. Horner as foreman of metal parts on first shift at the Hanna St. Plant has been announced by Robert W. Barker, superintendent of Specialty Transformer Section 88.

In January, 1940 Mr. Horner joined the company and entered the Apprentice School. He graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course in January, 1943 and went to Bldg. 26-5 as a tool and die maker.

From February, 1945 until December, 1946 Mr. Horner served in the U. S. Army, spending 13 months in the Philippines. After he was discharged he returned to GE as a tool and die maker in Bldg. 19-4.

After moving to Bldg. 26-1 in 1948 Mr. Horner did factory process work. In June last year he went into planning in the same location and was a foreman in training in Bldg. 24 prior to his present appointment.

He is a member of the Apprentice Alumni Association. The Horners have three children and reside at 1223 Wildwood.

GE DEATHS

Cony Clark, 75, Dies At Home in Garrett

Cony I. Clark, 75, died October 5 at his home in Garrett. He had been ill for the past two years. Burial was in the Union Cemetery, northwest of Garrett.

Joining GE in 1943, Mr. Clark was an oiler at Taylor St. then. He worked in Bldg. 26-4 as a stock-keeper prior to his retirement November 1, 1946.

Surviving are his wife, Maude; two sons, Donald W. and Max K.; four daughters, Mrs. Esther Vice, Mrs. Vernon Vice, Mrs. T. C. Sonnenberg, and Mrs. Paul Bogner; a sister, Mrs. Charles Osburn, and 15 grandchildren.

Rites Held Monday For Henry Dressler

Services for Henry Dressler, 72, were conducted Monday, Oct. 18 in the Rodenbeck Funeral Home and St. Peter's Lutheran Church by the Rev. Henry Abram. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Mr. Dressler died Friday, Oct. 15 in Parkview Memorial Hospital, where he had been a patient two weeks.

A retired employee, Mr. Dressler joined the company in September, 1944 and worked in Bldg. 4-3. Prior to retirement in May, 1947 he worked in Section 113, Taylor St.

Included among survivors are a son, Erwin; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Nord; five brothers, Anton J., William, John, Gustave, and Rudolph; three sisters, Mrs. William Albersmeyer, Mrs. Minnie Lampe, and Mrs. Ed Burchard, and five grandchildren.

Former GE Employee Dies in Retirement

A former employee, Thomas W. Behan, 78, died September 24 in Binghamton, N. Y., where he lived. Mr. Behan had been ill with a heart ailment for several months.

After working at General Electric in Schenectady and Fort Wayne for 15 years prior to 1918, Mr. Behan went on to become president of The Nineteen Hundred Corp. The firm manufactured washing machines which were based on designs and patents held by Mr. Behan. He also served as president of the American Washing Machine Manufacturers' Association.

After retirement from business, Mr. Behan entered public life and served as mayor and public safety commissioner in Binghamton, N. Y.

Future Looks Great for FHP Motors

Department General Managers Tell 'Why' in Statements Issued Today

The prediction by H. A. MacKinnon, vice president, that General Electric would build its second 100 million fractional horsepower motors by 1965 was given quadruple emphasis this week as general managers of the four fhp motor departments issued the following optimistic statements.

Martin Predicts Air Conditioning Will Be Home Necessity by 1965

Air conditioning will be as common in the home as automatic central heating by 1965, according to Ab Martin, general manager of the General Electric Company's Hermetic Motor Department.

By that time, he said, sales of central air conditioning systems will begin to approach those of room coolers and small package installations, though the smaller units will continue to be used extensively in older residences, offices, hotels and in areas of the country where cooling demand is below average.

Speaking on the occasion of the company's announcement of the production of the 100 millionth GE fractional horsepower motor, he pointed out that since 1946, when air conditioning first began to enter the home market, sales of room air conditioners have soared past the million unit a year mark, yet market saturation has not passed four per cent.

"This foretells an extraordinarily bright market picture for the entire refrigeration and air conditioning industry," he said, "but it lays an equally heavy responsibility on all of us to be prepared for these increases, in terms of engineering, design, and manufacturing capacity."

He pointed out that his department will next year dedicate a new plant for manufacturing hermetic motors at Holland, Mich. The department's other facilities at Fort Wayne, and Tiffin, Ohio, will continue in full operation, with plans for future expansion in those areas, he said.

Clarkson Sees Upturn in Use Of Commutator Motor

The increasing trend to more complete automation of manufacturing operations is the basis for a tremendous upturn in the use of very special fractional horsepower machines, particularly descendants of the "old fashioned" commutator motor, J. J. Clarkson, Specialty Component Motor Department general manager, said today.

"Although it is the earliest of motor designs, the small, direct current, commutator-type motor and its derivatives are finding new applications as sensing and positioning devices on automatic production lines," Mr. Clarkson said.

Automatic fire control and various servo-devices on aircraft and other military applications, he explained, have shown industry how to use these highly specialized small motors for very accurate control of complicated motions from tiny, remote signals.

Mr. Clarkson termed as "nerves and muscles of automation" these small devices that sense, report, and govern the operation of ultra-high speed machine tools and transfer mechanisms.

Such devices, including amplidyne, tachometer generators, selsyns, and electronically controlled motors will become increasingly more in demand in the next decade, as the nation's industry gears itself steadily toward automatic production and processing.

As an example, Mr. Clarkson cited modern paper making machinery. A succession of rolls several hundred feet long, with each set of rolls operating at slightly different speeds, is held to an over-all system accuracy of less than 1/10 of 1 per cent by a combination of tachometer generators, electronic reference signals, amplidyne and d-c drive motors, he said. These systems can be started from standstill, or varied over a wide range of speeds while in operation without tearing the extremely delicate web of wet pulp that will become paper, he said.

Hodell Says Present Market Saturation Point Two Centuries Away

We will be nearing the 22nd century, approximately 140 years from now, before we begin to approach the market saturation point for fractional horsepower motors at the industry's present rate of production, Lisle D. Hodell, general manager of the General Purpose Component Motor Department, predicted today. This does not include the opening of a single new market, he added.

Mr. Hodell labeled as unrealistic the "prophets of doom" who talk about saturating the market for motors and appliances in the near future.

The industry's present production of approximately 44 million units per year is barely adequate, he said, "since most of that number are immediately absorbed by appliances in new houses, replacements, and general industrial use. Relatively few remain to be used in appliances sold to new consumer and for broader new uses in industry," he said.

The average American home now has six fractional horsepower motors in it, usually including one each in the refrigerator, vacuum cleaner, mixer, and fans, and one or more in the washing machine and furnace, he said. To add only one more motor per home will require 8 years at present production rates, he said.

The modern electrified home will soon have approximately 16 motors, and many will include more than 25 fractional horsepower motors by 1965, he said. To raise the national average to 23, which is the theoretical saturation point for only the most popular appliances now on the market, would require approximately 140 years, he said. This figure does not even take into account new markets and new applications for these motors, he pointed out.

New uses for motors being developed every year will in all probability soon carry this estimate far beyond 140 years, he said. For example, three appliances relatively unknown ten years ago—air conditioners, home freezers, and clothes dryers—already take approximately 7 per cent of the fractional horsepower industry's entire production, yet none of them has passed the 15 per cent saturation point, he said.

"We believe strongly in the future of this market because it is an expanding market with almost unlimited possibilities. Our faith in the future is such that this month, as we celebrate the production of the 100 millionth GE fractional horsepower motor, we are laying plans to equal that record by 1965," Mr. Hodell said.

Home Laundry System Shows Promising Market Potential, Moeller Points Out

One of the most promising areas of marketing potential in the consumer durables field is the automatic home laundry "system", according to Carl Moeller, general manager of the Appliance Motor Department.

Mr. Moeller pointed out that only five per cent of American families now have completely automatic home laundries, including both clothes washers and dryers.

"Too often", he said, "we are selling the idea of an automatic washer or dryer as such, instead of selling an automatic home laundry 'system', just as industrials sell drive systems or materials handling systems."

He pointed out that even at the present high rate of growth, only 35 per cent of American families will have such laundry systems in 1964. "Although this is a healthy increase and will bring well-deserved labor-saving convenience to millions of housewives," he said, "our sights are not set high enough."

"We could profitably enlarge this 'system' concept to that of a complete laundry and kitchen work center including automatic laundry, food storage, food preparation, automatic dishwashing and garbage disposal," he said. "For instance, only 4 per cent of American housewives have automatic dishwashers, yet this one component of a 'work center' can save many hours in everyday household routine," he said.

Mr. Moeller pointed out that successful development of this marketing approach will require concerted effort from all segments of the industry. "This means expansion not only in our marketing goals but also in the manufacturing, engineering, and marketing groups within producers, component suppliers, and selling organizations," he said.

Because forecasts indicate a tripling of present annual sales of dishwashers, clothes dryers and food waste disposers within the next decade, Mr. Moeller reported that his organization is making extensive, long range plans to meet this challenge.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

This is a story of neighborly good-will in which I know that all of our readers will be interested. Lillian Hall saw an advertisement in our local papers, placed there by a nearby farmer offering free equine fertilizer, the delivery of same being also on the free list. Now Lill, thinking it would be a good idea to get a small load and place it on her garden, called up said farmer telling him to bring her about what would fill a one ton pick up truck. When the truck arrived it was one of those five ton jobs with side boards filled to overflowing. Without any ceremony the load was dumped in the alley back of her place, completely blocking the narrow thoroughfare. Well, Lill was in a quandry as to what to do with all of this, so she began looking over her neighbor's yards as far distant as two blocks. Without asking them if they wanted some she procured a wheelbarrow and proceeded to give each and every one a goodly supply until she had the pile down to her size. By evening she was so all in she had to use a cane for support and did not crawl out of the hay until five p.m. the following day. Well, one cannot say that Lill was tight with her fertilizer. . . . One day last week Basil Bowley had a little business to attend to in the down town business district, but try and find a place to park. There just was no empty space, so he drove around the block four or five times finally spotting a vacancy. He grabbed it, then went about his business. When he returned to the car there was a pink ticket on the windshield. The meter on the curb registered violation. In his delight at being so fortunate in obtaining a parking space, he had failed to insert a nickel in the parking meter, therefore his parking privilege cost him a dollar. . . . Kenny Thompson, our expert handler of capacitors, ran into a very embarrassing situation one day last week while poking around with a large capacitor. For a complete fill-in on this event contact Roscoe Martin, as he was the only witness. As the story is long and our space limited, we cannot at this time print all that transpired.

Linda Wahrer is her old self again. Hockey games have started. . . . Happy birthday to Sydonna Fox and thanks for that delicious cake. . . . Mary Shreve and Clara Gidley attended the Elex Conference at Danville, Ill. this past week end. . . . Vadas Putt, Clarabelle Whiteman, and Agnes Dennie were transferred to Mr. Gardt's section. Sorry to lose you gals. . . . Congratulations to Glen Miller on that new Oldsmobile he is driving. . . . Skippy Frezell and Jimmy Wilson of Chatham, Ontario, Canada were guests of Linda Wahrer. . . . We hear Otto Gieger is spending his third week of vacation in the dentist chair. Just isn't fair! . . . Herb Richter and wife spent the week end in Michigan City visiting friends. . . . Hope Al Siefert likes his new job at Winter St. We miss you, Al. . . . The girls were sorry they forgot to mention Kenneth Brown's new choppers he acquired a week ago. . . . Jack Payton, our dispatcher, and Emily Rollins, our inspector, are on their third week of vacation.

MEN OF DISTINCTION—Four safe drivers from the Decatur Plant were honored this month with awards presented by Carl Rehling, right. Seated are Noble Drum, eight-year award, and Ray Moser, eight-year award. Standing are: Alva Buffenbarger, foreman; Clyde Jones, five-year award; Ed Kelly, five-year award, and Russell Owens, general foreman.

This past week the Apprentice School responded magnificently to an appeal for the United Fund Drive. As a result, a high 97 per cent of the school's enrollment is now contributing to this worthy cause. . . . This week three new apprentices have entered the school. They are Harry Reed and Arnold Linnemeier, from the Fort Wayne area, and Norman Clem, from Danville, Ill. . . . Several fellows have received new assignments this week. Danny Alspach and Jerry Carper have left Bldg. 12-2, and are now assigned to Bldg. 4-2 and Taylor St. respectively. Max Gollmer returns to Bldg. 12-2 from Taylor St., and Jack Shultz returns from Bldg. 4-2. Dick Arnold, a draftsman, also came to Bldg. 12-2 to serve his machine time. . . . Dick Putnam is now the proud father of a baby boy. Congratulations also to Mr. and Mrs. Hauke on the arrival of a boy, and to the George Malones (MTP) on the arrival of a daughter. . . . Dick Verhoeven says the mosquitoes here in Indiana are not really mosquitoes. They're really robots sent out by the Red Cross. . . . Kent Koons has been named "King Midas" of the Apprentice School. However, there is one slight difference between Kent and King Midas. Instead of everything Kent touches turning to gold, it rusts. . . . There were several apprentices who were slightly crippled last week. Luther Schrock suffered a sprained ankle at the volleyball practice, and Max Witzgreuter cut his thumb while working on the Do-all saw. Eight stitches were required to close the wound. . . . Last week Myron Auer purchased some scrap wood for a cabinet he was making. He removed the nails, filed the edges, and stacked the wood in a neat pile. Later, Bill Scott substituted a pile of small splintered pieces in place of Myron's wood. When Myron returned and found the splintered wood, he thought his dream of a beautiful cabinet was shattered. Later, Myron was greatly relieved when he found his wood was unharmed. . . . The apprentice basketball team has been cut to 12 men and they are really bearing down. The team is blessed with height, and should possess a well balanced scoring attack. . . . The Apprentice School hayride will be held Nov. 19 at Bullerman's farm. There will be fun for everyone. Don't miss it.

We've had a lot of rain this week, so if our column sounds rather corny you'll know it's because we're all wet. . . . Through an oversight we missed reporting that Lillian Harris is back to work after a long illness. She is now going strong and we are glad you are back, Lillian. . . . We welcome Louis Manns as our new steward, who was appointed officially last Wednesday. Good luck, Louie. . . . A certain party, who knows Naomi Longworth only by sight, remarked, "I bet she is a good egg and a lot of fun." I told them she was and a very nice person. We understand Naomi's husband, who is serving in the Army in Seattle, Wash. reads the GE NEWS, and any item about his wife he clips and sends to her. So we want to say to Mr. Longworth that he is a lucky guy to own such a fine person, we all love her. . . . Sophia Reig is leaving us for the day trick. We regret you are leaving, but wish you good luck and hope you like your new job. Sophia has received several telephone calls recently from her son in California and her daughter in Texas. . . . Guy Bragg is leaving us for days also, and we wish you luck, Guy. . . . Mary Brickley went to Pittsburgh to attend her sister-in-law's funeral. Our sympathy, Mary. . . . Will someone please bring a needle and thread so we can sew Homer's trousers for him? You might tear them more, Homer, and then it would be too bad. . . . Say, if you have any teeth that need pulling, just see Ross Sills and Cliff Mugg. They just about pulled a couple of wisdom teeth for this reporter. They have one good flash light, a pair of needle nose pliers, and Elmer Mesing's tiltback chair, and they really go to work fast. So don't open your mouth very wide and say "Ahhh" in their presence. . . . Carol Rogers and Andrew Pfefferkorn were married last Saturday at St. Michael's Church in Waterloo. They are honeymooning this week in the Smokey Mountains, and upon their return will make their home in Auburn. Carol received a very nice kitchen clock, and combination sandwich toaster and waffle iron co-workers. We wish you lots of good luck and happiness, Carol and Andy. . . . Have you noticed how much Wally Reed looks like a foreman lately? At least some people have mistaken him for a couple of our foremen around here. . . . Congratulations to Louie Lee and wife, on the arrival of a new baby girl at their house, Oct. 11. Mother and baby are doing fine, but we are doubtful about Louie. We haven't seen him since. . . . Howard Morton, Ralph Clark, and Pop Luebke toured the Ford Plant last Friday, in Detroit. Haven't heard yet for sure if they bought out the plant or not, or maybe traded an Olds for a Ford. Suppose? . . . We want to welcome George Lantz to our section this week. George is a brother to Art Lantz, but don't hold that against George. Maybe they are different. . . . Who was that seen with that little clothes pin apron on hanging out clothes last Saturday? None other than George Coplen. Do you use new blue Cheer in your laundry, George? Some of the welders want to know how you get them so white? . . . Someone said they are installing a new big heater out in the garage now since it is so frigid, so they can sort of warm things up out there. How about that? . . . Charles Dunifon and Floyd Brown are on vacation this week. Sure hope you have much nicer weather than we have had the past few weeks. . . . Welcome back to Joe Robinson, Gottlieb Essig, William Travis, Cletus Deck, and Mel Fulk. Hope you all had nice vacations in spite of the rain.

Happy birthday to Phyllis Gerke, who celebrated on the 18th. Phyllis treated the office gang with her own special homemade candy. We're all in favor of Phyllis having several birthdays a year if she's going to treat like that. . . . If you want to know a sure way to make some extra spending money see Jack Magarian. Jack sold life insurance on himself last week end when he flew home to Boston while Hurricane Hazel was blasting her trail. Those of us who didn't buy are happy to have you back safe and sound, Jack. . . . Mary Maloney wishes to thank the anonymous sender of the squeaking "pussy cat" card she received in the mail last week. It looks just like George. . . . Eleven GeCode Club girls, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Welch, motored to Danville, Ill. over the week end to attend the 1934 Fall Conference for the General Electric Girls' Clubs in the Midwest with the Dan-Ge girls as hostesses. The girls reported an enjoyable week end and want to congratulate Chicago on winning the Oscar. The girls attending were: Dorothy Schnepf, Rosemary Miller, Lucile Foor, Eloise Noll, Emma Goldner, Genny August, Harriet Pollock, Dora Mae Fairchild, Charlotte McDaniels, Ethel Slickman, and Mary Miller. . . . We wish to extend our deepest sympathies to Dan Foreman upon the death of his mother, and to Nora Smitley upon the death of her father. . . . We are happy to see Russell Hirschy back after spending two years with Uncle Sam. . . . The condition of Sol Lord, who is confined to the Adams County Hospital, remains serious at this writing. . . . Jack August is also convalescing at the Adams County Hospital. His condition is reported to be somewhat improved.

MORE HOMES: MORE MOTORS is the way marketing analysts figure it. With more homes being built each year to take care of the increasing population, the demand for motor-driven products will become greater. A new home owner, Ralph Rosenberry, Bldg. 19-5, works on the wiring in his house with the aid of Richard Abraham, Taylor St.

REPLACING OLD ITEMS with the new is another source for the future increase in FHP motor sales. Buying a new GE automatic washer and trading in their old GE wringer washer are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maxwell and 4-year-old Johnny. Concluding the sale at Schueler Appliance is William A. Moore, salesman. Mr. Maxwell, second from right, works in Bldg. 4-3.

DREAM HOME of the future, which is on display in Schenectady, N. Y., features many wonderful conveniences in modern living made possible by the "electric servant," the fractional horsepower motor. The many electrically powered items in the house, such as moving walls, are a source of future sales.

THE NEXT 100 MILLION MOTORS — Where They'll Go

Marking a milestone in motor manufacture with the production of the 100 millionth fractional horsepower motor this week, GE employees are now working on the next 100 million motors, which should sell like the proverbial hotcakes, according to marketing surveys.

While it took us 52 years to produce the first 100 million motors, analysts tell us that fhp employees will manufacture the second 100 million by 1965 due to increased demand.

To reach this conclusion, marketing shows us why the departments have put such faith in the future of the industry by presenting these facts: an increasing population provides a greater demand for motor-driven products; the field of some home applications has been saturated only five per cent; replacements of old and worn out products will require additional motors, and new ways to use the motors are continuing to open up.

70 Per Cent in Homes

Seventy per cent of the market for motors is centered in the home and forecasts indicate that where the average home today has six fhp motors in it, ten years hence there will be from 16 to 25 motors.

With our population increasing constantly, there will be more homes and increased buying power. This means more motors going into the homes to operate kitchen and laundry appliances, provide heat and air conditioning, and power sweepers and home tools. In homes of the future, motors will continue to offer more of existing conveniences and will perform marvelous tasks such as pulling drapes and moving walls.

Business Uses Increase

Not only is the future of the home market good, but business uses of the motor are on the increase. The big step toward more automation of manufacturing operations will provide the basis for sales of special fhp motors. Motors that sense, report, and govern operation of ultra-high speed machine equipment and transfer mechanisms will be used more frequently in the future. In addition, business machines, fans, blowers, machine and portable tools, conveyor equipment, and material handling equipment applications will be desired in larger amounts.

Aircraft and other military applications are the third sales source for fractional motors. Orders for these requirements are now being produced and marketing places its sites on achieving a larger amount of this business as demands appear.

NEW MARKETS for fractional horsepower motors include year-round home air conditioning and heating units like those owned by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Frank Feipel. Mr. Feipel, who retired in 1952, and his wife look over their newly installed GE units.

SALES SOURCE for fractional horsepower motors is centered in the home and family. Approximately 70 per cent of the market is in this unit. Marketing predictions expect this source to increase sales since the population is increasing. In their home is the James Storch family; Mr. Storch, Taylor St. employee; Diane, 12; Sandra, 7; Mrs. Storch; Kathy, 10. and Debra, 3½.

5 Employees Join Retirement Ranks

WILLIAM HEIT (left) has retired from General Electric after more than 35 years of service as a carpenter in Bldg. 10-1. William Altekruze (center) and Ed Trabel are shown presenting him with gifts from his GE friends during a visit to his home.

EVA WARNEMENT (center) is all set to go on retirement with luggage as a gift of her co-workers. She worked in Bldg. 4-3 as a finisher prior to retirement. Shown with her are her husband Julius and Bill Wickliffe. Mrs. Warnement has been with General Electric since 1943.

CHARLES W. MACKAY (seated) gets best wishes on his retirement from (l-r) Clifford Thebold, Forest Somers, Robert Kelker, G. I. Iverson, R. L. Whitaker, Ernie Hannauer, and Larry Volz. Mr. MacKay has been a mechanical engineer in Bldg. 20-2 since 1940.

EDWIN ADLER (third from right) retired from his job as inspector at Decatur this month with 30 years of service. Congratulating him are (l-r) Elmer Shase, Gordon Fralick, Fred Dellinger, Ora Brentlinger, Harold Messick, Edwin Adler, Oscar Teeple, and George Buckley.

GE Masonic League

Fellowcraft have got away to a fine start with 11 wins and only four losses and are leading the league. Patrols are second with nine wins and six losses. Trowels, Levels, Doric, and Ionic are tied for third place, each having won eight while losing seven. Ionic has rolled a 2734 series for season high to date. Squares have the single game effort, a 72 score. M. Buckmaster kegled a couple of double century counts, 224 and 105, R. Hickman, 214; C. Neddle, 214; H. Habig, 212; Larson, 208; W. Gidley, 202; Edwards, 202; Kohlenberg, 201; Schultz, 200; and H. Heckman, 200. Herb Habig has the high series for the season, 606, while A. Hickman rolled a 256, good for league high single game to date.

Small Motor

Tommy's Lunch barely squeaked by Koorsen Painters and won two games to remain at the top of the league with 11 wins and four losses. Tommy's Tavern, Unlucky 113, Drafting, and Office are in a tie for second place, each having won nine games while losing six games. Next in line are Smitty's and Hanna St., each with eight wins and seven losses. Double century scores were kegled by H. Conrad, 216; Kenny Vonderan, 212; Lloyd Pinkerton, 203; Boh Guinrich, 212; Walt (The Poet) Whonsetler, 201; H. Stephen, 201; and finally the Keghead made Joe Kramer 204 and 204.

Ladies Tuesday Afternoon

Edna Bailey converted the 4-7-10 split on a very nice shot. Lenora Gillard topped the most pins with a 184 count and Ruth Baker, 175. Team No. 5 and Team No. 6 are tied for the top spot with nine wins and six losses. Teams 2 and 3 have won eight while losing seven and are tied for third place.

Interdivision League

For the second week in a row, Vic Rump hit a 600 series in the Interdivision League. Last Wednesday he hit a 603 on games of 200-170-233. There was only one other 200 score rolled that night, Herb Thiele had a 209. Results of games: Deadheads downed the Apprentice for three games; Kinney Koncessions won two from the Pindusters; Five Pins beat the Gumfoots two games out of three; Transformer took two games from the Tools; Brouwer Tire and Battery won two games from Summit City Heating, and Old Crown Beer and Ale took two out of three from the Gutterdusters.

GE Office

In the GE Office League it is M and G Sales out in front with 15 wins and three losses. In a tie for second place are Transformer and Reproductions, each with 11 wins and seven losses. Les Hahn kegled the top score of the night, a 254 single count. Les also put games of 213 and 161 with his big top score for a big 628 series. Harry Dalman rolled 222; Carl Hattendorf, 219; Charlie Shipman, 217; Charlie Todd, 217; Harry Brown, 205; Hap Carter, 202; Johnny Johnson, 201. Glen France converted the 5-7 split.

Monday Girls

Team No. 1, Ranch House Barbecuers, are still in the lead with 14 wins and four losses, but close on their heels are the Scatterpins with 13 wins and five losses. In third place in a tie are Keglerettes, and the Gutterettes, each with 12 wins and six losses. Winnie Schuerich kegled the big series with a 576 on games of 171, 235, and 171. The 235 is high game bowled in the Ladies League at the club this season. Marian Wolf rolled a 502 on games of 142, 156, and 204. Other high scores were Barbara Waters, 177-192; Alberta Roth, 170; Jerry Stolp, 175; Bonnie Wolf, 176; and Pearl Houtz, 173.

Saturday Morning Owl League

The league swung into its second week of competition with Team 3 winning three games from Team 2, and Teams 5 and 6 each winning two games from Teams 4 and 1 respectively. The first place spotlight is now shared by Teams 1, 3, and 5, each having four wins and two defeats. Top honors for the day went to W. Dunmire who rolled a great big 205.

At present we are operating with two teams short and would like to bring our league up to eight teams. Anyone desiring to bowl on Saturday morning, please contact Gene Egts, league secretary on Ext. 2192.

Apparatus League

Teams 12 and 8 are tied for first with an 11 won and four lost record. Team No. 1 is all alone in second place with nine wins and six losses. Teams No. 2 and 3 are tied for third with eight wins and seven losses.

Team No. 8 came up with a big 2773 count to take over the lead in the high three game department, while team No. 12 rolled 992 to head the high single game list.

Tom Anderson rolled a 234 for high single game of the season and other 200 scores were as follows:

Erv Schlotterback, 226; Ford Burnau, 225; Ross Smith, 221; Max Buckmaster, 213; Kenny Vonderan, 211; Jus Heaston, 209; Toby Tyler, 202; and Boh (Sore Thumb) Blomker, 200.

Fred Schafenacker picked up the 3-7 split.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

The leading Flanges with 12 wins and three losses continued to roll at a fast clip and took two from the cellar dwelling Shafts who now have two wins and 13 losses.

The second place Stators, 11 and 4, got their wings clipped by the fast improving Rotors who now have seven wins and eight losses.

In a battle of the office crews No. 2 (7½-7½) took two from No. 1 (6-9).

200 scores were rolled by Jim Parent, 235; Pat Briede, 224; Milt Hoffman, 230; Gary Schultz, 214; Junior Lake, 201; and Laurent, 205-200.

GE Fraternal

Peterson Elevator stepped up to third place with 10½ wins and 7½ losses by trouncing GE Club all three games. GE Club with six and 12 standing are now lodged in the cellar.

Riverview Gardens at 12 and six hung on to the top spot by taking two from Monroeville who dropped to fifth with nine and nine.

West End Restaurant with 11 and seven clung to the leader's heels by winning two from K. of C. (7-11).

Teepie Truck Lines remained in fourth place with 9½ and 8½ by taking two from the Elks who are tied for sixth and seventh at seven and 11.

Series of 600 were rolled by: C. Cook, 614 (202, 208, 204); H. Strickler, 610 (224, 200, 186); and G. Schultz, 610 (193, 213, 204).

Mixed Doubles Tournament Slated for Nov. 6 at Club

The first Mixed Doubles Bowling Tournament of the current season will take place on GE Club alleys, Saturday, Nov. 6, Joe Kramer, bowling chairman, reported this week.

Sponsored by the GE Club, the tourney will be the first of a series of similar events which will take place on the first Saturday of every month during the bowling season.

Squads for the initial Mixed Doubles will roll at 6 and 8:30 p.m. All GE employees and GE Club bowlers are eligible to enter. They may register at the Club desk or call Ext. 742 by November 6.

First prize of $20 will be contributed by the Club. Remaining prizes will be determined by the number of entries. Prize ratio will be one for every four team entries.

Entry fees are $4.25 per team. This includes howling and prize money.

Girls' Volleyball

All girls interested in playing volleyball or participating in the girls reception program at the GE Club are invited to attend the sessions on Monday evenings from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the club gym. Those who plan to attend are asked to take gym shoes, shorts, or slacks.

For further information, contact Betty Puff, Bldg. 4-6, Ext. 726.

Kiningham who leaves us today to be an active member of Uncle Sam's large family. Ed, if you get anywhere near Boston, be sure to look up that minister, maybe you'd like that job better than the Army. No fooling, we do wish you good luck and patience—obey your officers and you won't have any trouble, we hope. Come back to us some time. . . . LAST THURSDAY at the farewell luncheon given for Phyl Faulkner, Shirley Doster made quite an impression on her friends. She likes a little bit of coffee in her cream. We counted all of ten bottles of cream in front of her plate. And then Georgia Garrett told of having read Dr. Brady the night before in which he said you were still young if you could turn a somersault. Yep, Georgia tried it—one end came down a little hard though she complained. . . . THAT WASN'T A GHOST floating around late last Sunday night gathering up flowers in the garden at 2610 Beacon St. It was a gal called Ruth, and she works in Specialty Motor Engineering, all dressed for the arms of Morpheus. . . . YESTERDAY, Oct. 21 Mary Smoak (Smokey) celebrated her 25th anniversary with the company. We congratulate you on this happy occasion, Mary, and thank you for all your kind services in the past years. . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Owen Vaught Wednesday, Oct. 27, and also to Lew Gossman Thursday, Oct. 28. . . . ANOTHER NEW CLUB has formed in 4-6 last week as usual. It is called the Big Laughing Donkey Tail Club. The villains are unknown, but we have the name of the victims. They are Shirley Doster and Jim Bain. It seems that everyone who was around Shirley Doster Dest was laughing. Nosey Jim Bain started to investigate. Jim saw the Donkey tail on Shirley and started to laugh in a big way until someone told him he had one on, too. So Jim next time you start to get nose, look around for a trap first. . . . LEE OMSPACH is happy now that she has "A Moses in the Bullrushes." She thought sure Moses had slipped through her fingers. . . . BIG SAYING FROM LITTLE PEOPLE Kenneth, 2-year-old son of Warren Anderson, is continually asking for something to eat between meals. One day last week was no exception, but Mrs. Anderson thought if she paid no attention perhaps he would forget the matter. After asking for a candy sucker the third time, he turned to his baby brother and said "I don't think mother hears so good." . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO Virginia Mosser Oct. 24 and Margaret Meeks Oct. 26. . . . MARGARET MEEKS, evidently did a lot of shopping over the week end and thought she would try for a free lunch at the cafeteria, so walked right by the checker without getting a ticket. Before she finished her lunch, she apologized to the checker and everything was OK. We know you did not do that on purpose, Margaret.

PLANT SERVICES

Taylor St.

by Mary Saxton

Hi to Don Sesler, Harold Nieman, Laney Williams, Alaska Norman, and Ernie Leffler. These fellows started working in Plant Services last week. . . . Did you hear that Wally Howard traded his "Baling Wire Special" for a station wagon? . . . The foremen took a collection (?) for Lois (Widow) Tarr. Her husband is working way down south in Tennessee and she gets SO lonesome. However, its doubtful that the amount collected would even get her to South Calhoun St. . . . One of the coons that Leo Nix gave to Charlie Hartman died. We all know that Charlie's farm is so poor that the birds carry their own feed when they fly over, but what we can't figure is why the birds didn't let the poor coon in on the deal. . . . Bob Fritz just got back from vacation in Florida. He bought land down there not too far from where Harry Davis built his house. Don't you think it would only be fair to warn the Chamber of Commerce of Florida about those two? . . . We are all glad to hear that Frank Meggison's son is home from the hospital. . . . Did you read in the paper about the man who saw the red and yellow object flying in the air? It's not true that that was George Miller off on a rampage. Did you get unhappy about something again George? . . . Mary Kay Hostetter has a new name, "Petunia". Isn't that sweet? . . . We finally found out how Ken Furney gets those good lunches he brings to work. He begs from the neighbors. . . . Lois Jensen slipped and fell while bowling last week, so she just stayed in her reclining position and watched the ball hit the pins for a strike. She tried it several times but unfortunately without as much luck.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Maureen Brake is very proud of her boxer puppy. She entered it in the Fort Wayne Dog Show and won three first place ribbons and two silver trays. It was the pup's first show. . . . Thelma Purdue was very quiet the other day. She had to leave her molars at the dentist for repairs and when she came to work she wouldn't smile or talk. In fact, people were so rough on her she didn't wait for 3:30 to go home, she left at 2:30 to hurry up the dentist. . . . Little cotton eater "Pondo" attended another one of those Bluffton Legion fish fries. Harold Stalder, Air Force inspector, beat Pondo's time this year as he got a front row seat. Roy Brower and Freddie Zink were also going to attend but for those last minute changes and they couldn't make it. Fritz Krotke wanted to go but couldn't find a Legion card. . . . We are very sorry to see Dick Seibold (foreman on 2x31 and 2x32 lines) leave us. He is going to Section 417, Taylor St. Welcome to Ray Swartzel who is replacing Dick. He is from Bldg. 6-2 and was an inspection foreman. . . . Lillian Bradtmiller has finally gotten her wish. She was transferred to Winter St. Since Lillian left and Marge Dearmond is still on the sick list, the girls in test and inspection need roller skates to get around. . . . Congratulations to Faye Wilson. It's a girl. . . . Our sympathy to Lois Burry whose father passed away last week.

Ruby Chrysler will be a very happy mother Saturday when her son Charles gets home on furlough from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. . . . Ruth Somers has a new cocker spaniel dog who answers to the name of Buffy. . . . Perry Esterline was indisposed over the week end. He claims his hay fever was so bad he had to go north. He went just across the line, but from other sources we hear the fishing was real good. . . . Birthday greetings to Gertrude Bursche Oct. 19. . . . Floyd Steinbacher is just relaxing on his vacation this week. . . . Ed Rohin felt so sorry for himself because he couldn't get Waterloo on his TV, so he spent all his vacation working on his antenna. Now he doesn't feel lonely any more because he enjoys Waterloo too. . . . Mary Nute had a difficult time at home. The plumber came and tore out all the bathroom fixtures and didn't return for two days. . . . Congratulations to Lavon Nesbit, a former co-worker. She has a baby girl who will answer to the name of Karen Sue. She was born Oct. 12. . . . Alice Fuschuber is an extra clean person when she wants to wash clean things over again. . . . Sorry to hear that Paul Ream was in an auto accident. He has a nice colorful gash on his head. . . . Cecil Foor finally broke down and bought his wife, he says, a GE TV. . . . Things are pretty quiet this week with John Figley on his vacation. . . . Congratulations to the Walt Riegers on their new boy. . . . Louie Barrow says he really likes the Smokey Mountains but doesn't think he will move down there. . . . Ralph Gilbert paid off his bet. He had to ride the "hobby horse" out in front of one of the down town stores. He was all decked out with a big bow tie so he looked more like a youngster. Now he claims he is a first cousin of the Lone Ranger. . . . It would be much more convenient for the large number of spectators to watch the water works at Avery Spayde's grinder if he would furnish a boat for them to sit in. . . . We are glad Glen Castle had enough money to pay his fine and didn't have to use the saw and file to get out of jail. They are still in fine condition if anyone needs them. . . . Irmgard Gehle is on her vacation this week, recuperating from her family reunion. . . . Reba Wilkerson fell out of the chair when she was using the phone. There she was laying on her back, the phone still at her ear. . . . Happy birthday to Reggie Engelman, Helen White, Marie Griffin, Florence Byers, Melinda Behrman, Fern Painter, Pat Hatch, and Peggy Bahde. Peggy celebrated with Helen by going to the wrestling match. . . . Mardo Tobias spent the week end in Holland, Mich. His son just moved up there to the new GE plant.

That happy look on Elmer Warner's face is that he has a new grandson. Congratulations, Elmer. . . . Frank Elder now has two automobiles. Some people just can't stand prosperity. . . . Question to Ted Schlup: Just wondering what his "40" Plymouth has. I understand he is asking a lot more for it than the reported $35 that they were worth. What is the secret, Ted? . . . Henry Becker had his troubles last week. It seems he lost his pocketbook, but after a little looking around and worrying about it, Honest "Slim" Neireiter showed up with it. . . . Congratulations to the Alvy Places on their 35th wedding anniversary. . . . We welcome Alfred Kleinreicht to Mr. Wagner's grinding section. He comes from Bldg. 22. . . . A speedy recovery to Donald Vorndran, who is ill, and also to Ross Snyder's wife, who is in the Lutheran Hospital recovering from an operation. . . . NOTICE TO GEORGE WINANS. Mr. Wagner says to tell you, that is what you get for making jest of old people when they injure themselves. Backfired with a smashed pinky, didn't it? If you can't drive that truck, Quote: "Park It". Unquote. . . . Kenny Hart would like a ferry built across Road No. 14, the water seems to be too deep for his Chevy. . . . Russ Greene had some luck on the Southwest Conservation Club drawing. Russ won a $55 rifle. Now you can really shoot things up, Russ. . . . Congratulations to the Paul Lichtsinns, who have a new baby girl, born October 18. . . . Rudy Rastenburg has a new TV set. Now he can keep up with the rest of the fellows. . . . Blanche Cowell is the new seamstress of Bldg. 19-3. Line forms at the right, boys, if you want a button sewed on. . . . Joe Burton wishes to thank everyone in Bldg. 19-3 for their contribution to the Southwest Conservation Club. . . . Yes, Girls, you can put on your long red flannels now. Winter is officially here as proven by the fact that Ed Klomp has donned his vest. . . . We offer our sincere congratulations and best wishes to Howard Brooks, who last week celebrated his 35th year with the company. . . . All the dog lovers, came to the front and presented our famous "Dog", Cy Seymour, with a special super-charged box of dog food. . . . A special greeting to all the new little arrivals: Charlie Hunt's boy, Dick Gottschall's girl, and Larry Reed's granddaughter. . . . Our deepest sympathy to Dick Seidel and his family on the passing of his mother-in-law. . . . Perhaps a bit late, but we were very glad to welcome Carl Hattendorf back from his recent illness. . . . Dick Tracey's comic strip has nothing on us since we have our own "Crewy Lou", Louise Hahn. . . . Another recent returnee, bum knee and all, was Rollie Miller. . . . In the believe it or not category, Jim Smith brought in two of the largest mushrooms, puff-balls he says, that we have ever laid eyes on. . . . For all those interested, Jim Schwartz now has one of those machines for enclosing pictures, social security cards, etc. in plastic for preservation of same. Here is a good chance to help yourself and help him too. . . . The age of miracles hasn't passed. Clarence Nussel refused food offered to him. Chicken, at that! . . . Sid Borton proudly presented and passed around apples grown in his own orchard. Very tasty, too. . . . For the first potluck of the season, the girls went all out with chicken and all the trimmings. From the slightly stuffed looks it was a huge success. . . . To date Bernice Mertz still hasn't seen her counterpart on the TV show of "I Love Lucy." . . . Although Herb Buck has reseeded his lawn with great success, the only drawback now is that the grass has grown so tall, and can't be cut for fear of trampling the new ground. Jerry Holgreve came to his rescue with the suggestion that he borrow some of Jerry's sheep, put soft, flat pads on their hooves, and let them crop the grass down to the desired height. . . . After months and months of holding out, the pressure became too great and Omer Mettler was forced into buying a television set. Now he can join Cy Seymour as two of the last to succumb to the wiles of civilization. It really isn't bad, fellows, relax, and enjoy it. . . . While it is a little late to report, Norm Haugh is still chuckling gleefully over the World Series bet he stuck Joe Prezbindowski with, but Joe paid up with a smile. . . . While we don't know the age that one acquires wisdom teeth, Carol Norman is now cutting three of them and is only 21. Is that significant or aren't we very smart before coming of age? . . . Joe Brossard takes a very dim view of the Churubusco authorities since they tagged him with several violations the other week. However, Joe says it won't make any difference now that he has that new red car. They will just think it is a fire engine tearing through town after this. . . . We offer our sympathy to Clara Kleint in the loss of her brother-in-law. . . . The aforementioned puffballs have brought doubts from Huston Williams, who swears they are frog food. . . . Quotation for the week: "Anger and Folly walk cheek by jowl; repentance follows close behind."

during the first nine months of 1954

In return for our output of goods and services during the first nine months of 1954, General Electric received more than 2,167 million customer dollars. Outsiders (suppliers and government) took about 54½ cents of each of these dollars. Employees received a little more than 39 cents. This left 6½ cents for profits, of which our share owners took only 4½ cents in dividends, leaving 2 cents in the business to work for a sounder future for all of us.

GE Club Members Can Get Fall Revue Tickets Nov. 3

Tickets for the GE Club Fall Revue will be available beginning Wednesday, Nov. 3. The Revue, which will take place Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 13-14 in the Club auditorium, will feature six professional acts at six performances. The six shows will start at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m., Nov. 13, and at 1, 3, 5, and 7:30 p.m., Nov. 14.

Employees may secure tickets for themselves and members of their immediate families free of charge for any of the performances by presenting their 1954 GE Club membership cards at any of the following locations: the GE Club desk, Taylor St. employment office, 16 members of the entertainment committee, or from Vera Reeves in the superintendent's office at Hanna St.

New employees or those who have lost their club membership cards should contact their foremen, who will obtain new cards for them through the employment office.

Headlining the Revue will be movie and television star, Jimmy Conlin, who presents a comedy act with his partner, Dorothy Ryan.

Coming from a Chicago engagement and appearances throughout the United States is the master of ceremonies, Billy Grant. Billed as "The Gloom Chaser," Grant presents an act of songs, imitations, and humor.

The Rivieres are a very unusual novelty comedy Apache dancing act brought from Paris to appear at such places as the Latin Quarter in New York City and the Desert Inn, Las Vegas.

Members of the entertainment committee who will have tickets for the shows are: Gordon L. Smith, Section 417, Taylor St.; Kenneth Redding, Taylor St. shipping; Joe Wyss, Section 113, Taylor St.; Joe Gardt, Taylor St. office; Katherine Gardt, Bldg. 4-6; Earl Stauffer, Bldg. 4-6; Glen Seabold, Bldg. 2-2; Art Brockmeyer, Bldg. 2-1; Johnny August, Bldg. 22; Hubert Myers, Bldg. 19-3; Buck Buchan, Bldg. 19-2; Bob Glenn, Bldg. 26-2; Gayle Griffith, Winter St.; Susie Jones, Winter St.; Charlie Wilt, GE Club; Barbara Hyman, Bldg. 18-1.

TRANSFORMER SECT. 93 MARKS 2 MILLION SAFE MAN HOURS

Specialty Transformer Section 93 passed the 2 million man hour mark with no lost time accidents at 2 p.m. yesterday. All power in the section was cut off at the exact moment the mark was reached and superintendent Robert Hunt introduced Carl H. Rinne, general manager, who congratulated Section 93 people on their safety record over the loud speaker system.

Breaking the news to Bldg. 26-3 employees, Mr. Rinne said, "A record such as this didn't just happen. This record of 2 million man hours without a lost-time accident resulted from the care, effort, and constant vigil of all you people pulling together, and keeping in mind constantly the safety and well-being of your associates as well as yourselves. You were co-operating not just to set a record, but so that you would spare yourselves, your families, friends, and co-workers the hardships, anxiety, and pain that thoughtless acts and careless practices can cause so easily."

A Word of Caution

"As I extend my hearty congratulations for this outstanding safety record, I want also to throw in a word of caution. We cannot rest on our past laurels or become complacent because there are still many accidents just looking for places to happen. We must continue to be safety conscious," he added.

Certificate Presented

Following the announcement, members of the safety committee met in the superintendent's office

Carl H. Rinne
... Breaks the Good News

for the presentation of a certificate in recognition of their meritorious safety performance.

The last lost time accident in the section occurred June 4, 1951, exactly 3 years, 4 months, and 24 days ago. That accident did not cause any permanent disability.

Section 93 is part of the former Specialty Transformer and Ballast Department which earned the National Safety Council Award of Honor in 1953 when the entire department worked 3,186,091 hours without a lost time accident.

Reagan to Arrive In Fort Wayne Sunday Evening

Ronald Reagan will arrive in Fort Wayne Sunday, Oct. 31 at 7:07 p.m. (EST) at the Pennsylvania Railroad station to begin his three-day visit with General Electric employees and the community.

The host and program supervisor for the "General Electric Theater" on Sunday evening television will have a full schedule during his stay so that he may meet as many employees as possible.

His tours of various sections in the departments include the following times: from 9 to 10 a.m. Monday, Nov. 1 he will be in Hermetic Motor; 10:15 to 11:30 a.m. in Specialty Component Motor; 1 to 2 p.m. in Specialty Transformer, and from 2:05 to 3:15 p.m. Monday in DC Motor and Generator.

Wednesday, Nov. 3 Mr. Reagan will visit General Purpose Component Motor at Taylor St. from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. That afternoon from 1 to 2:10 p.m. he will tour Winter St. Small Integral Motor, and from 2:20 to 2:45 p.m. in Hanna St. Plant.

Clarence H. Linder To Address FWAGEE At Meeting Thursday

Clarence H. Linder, GE vice president-engineering, will address members of the Fort Wayne Association of General Electric Engineers at their annual Fall smoker, Thursday, Nov. 4.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. and will take place in the Squares Hall. Mr. Linder's topic will be "General Electric Engineering." Two members of Mr. Linder's staff will attend the meeting.

John L. Oldenkamp, Bldg. 4-6, is president of FWAGEE and R. E. Anderson, Bldg. 26-2, is serving as chairman of the smoker. Refreshments will be available following the program.

Mr. Linder joined the company in 1924 after graduation from the University of Texas where he received a BSEE degree. He graduated from the Advanced Engineering Program in 1927 and served as a supervisor in that Program for two years. Prior to his present position, he was general manager of the Major Appliance Division in Louisville.

READY FOR RONNIE—Getting set to meet Ronald Reagan when he tours Specialty Component Motor sections Monday, Nov. 1 are Ellen Johnson, Barbara Ternet, and Ardola Metker, all of Bldg. 4-3. The girls put up a sign to show the popular movie star and GE television performer that he has plenty of fans in their area.

BULLETIN

At midnight Saturday, Oct. 30, in accordance with recent action of the Fort Wayne City Council, clocks throughout the city will be set forward one hour to Eastern Standard Time. However, the company will not change its clocks to Eastern Standard Time until midnight, Sunday, October 31, at which time the least number of people are working.

Any third shift operators working on Sunday night will ring in on Central Standard Time and ring out on Daylight Saving or Eastern Standard Time so that the interval worked will be one hour less than the clock card registration. The Payroll Sections will take care of this adjustment in time.

IT'S ALWAYS HALLOWEEN

It's Halloween Time

There's no need for alarm—but in a matter of hours, our town will become a Ghost Town. For the umpteenth time since Saman, the lord of death, presided over the first Convention for Wicked Souls on a dark Irish night, the ghosts and goblins will be having their annual fling.

These are ordinary, garden-variety ghosts—with no more deadly power than a witch's broom or a voodoo charm. Sure. They'll soap windows, ring doorbells, upset garbage cans, and lead a few sleepy cows into church belfries. But we can escape their clutches with a few paltry bribes—the nuts, fruits, and candies that have been buying working folks their Ghost Insurance ever since Roman chariot-drivers and spear-makers paid tribute to Pomona on the night of October 31st. In a few hours, these neighborhood ghosts will be gone—without leaving a scar on our lives.

There are, however, year-round ghosts in our town who have forgotten more havoc than the broom-riders will ever cause. To them, destroying a man's job and family, or taking his life, is a full-time career—with plenty of overtime throughout the year. Carelessness, for instance, starts work the minute a man's wife puts the coffee on each morning—and doesn't clock out for the day until our bed-time cigarette is positively snuffed out.

And the twin gremlins Waste and Spoilage. They've been taking a bite out of the workingman's earnings ever since the Roman spearmaker warped his first shaft—and thereby lost his bread ration for the day. The Waste and Spoilage kids really clean up when they team up with the invisible ghost—Bad Job Attitudes. Like Kilroy, this little prowler is really Mr. Big in ghost circles—the one who bosses the whole devilish mob. What a racket these characters have built up over the years—by making Halloween a year-round career!

Mrs. America pays 'em ransom in prices that are a lot higher than necessary because Waste and Spoilage are in the cost picture.

Mr. America pays in lower earnings, when the Poor Quality

ALERT ACTION—by three Specialty Transformer employees last week averted what could have been a fire causing considerable damage. The three point out to city fire captain, Walter Lindenberg, of No. 3 engine house, where the fire had started in Bldg. 26-1. The men who put out the fire are: Joseph Heckman, left; Gustave Kuhn, second from right, and Alfred DiGregory, right.

Alert Action of Three Employees Prevents Fire Damage in Bldg. 26

The fire that didn't happen made news this week. Thanks to the alertness of Gustave Kuhn, Bldg. 26-1, and two of his co-workers, Joseph Heckman and Alfred DiGregory, a fire was discovered in Bldg. 26-1 at the end of second shift Tuesday, Oct. 19 and extinguished by the three men.

A survey of the inspection room, where the fire had started, shows that the flames could have caused considerable damage should they have gone undetected at that time, GE Fire Chief Ernie Hanauer reports.

Not only could the fire have caused damage in the inspection room and shipping area next to it, but it would have meant that employees in the areas would not have had a place to work until repairs were made, the fire chief stated.

The three men are to be congratulated for their alertness and display of courage in putting out the fire, Hanauer said.

The fire was caused by an electrical failure of the cord on an inspectograph in the inspecting room. It was discovered by Kuhn just as he was going home at the end of second shift.

City firemen saw this area as well as others this week when they came to the GE plants on their annual inspection tours. Purpose of these is to acquaint the firemen who would make runs to our plants with the buildings, facilities, and hazardous areas.

Pensioners Parade

Mr. and Mrs. William N. Wehrs spent a week in Washington, D. C. this month with Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Reese. Their friends in Fort Wayne report that they were checking to see how things are going for the November election.

Mr. Jess T. Fredendall is recuperating from a recent illness at his home in Buffalo, N. Y. He became ill while visiting friends in town here the latter part of August.

Milo Rider Named Telephone Foreman

Milo Rider has been appointed foreman of the telephone and control systems in the Contributing Manufacturing Section of the General Purpose Component Motor Department, Robert L. Whitaker, engineer-buildings and utilities, announced this week.

In 1942 Mr. Rider joined GE and entered the telephone and control systems operation on installation work. Two years later, he moved into central office and maintenance work in the same area and served in this capacity until his present appointment.

Mr. Rider completed a course in telephony with the International Correspondence School in 1944. The Riders and their two children reside at 2014 St. Joe Blvd.

GeCode Club to Entertain 'Bosses' At Nov. 6 Meeting; Dave Lee to Speak

The Decatur GeCode Club will entertain their bosses at their next meeting, Saturday, Nov. 6 in the Moose Home. "Our Bosses" is the theme of the dinner meeting. All foremen and supervisors at the Decatur Plant have been invited to the event, which will begin at 5:30 p.m.

Dave Lee, news editor of radio station WKJG and WKJG-TV, will be the principal speaker. He will present a television report. John Welch, manager of the Decatur Plant, will address the group also. A musical program will be presented by the Aeolian Choir, which is composed of Decatur employees.

Today is the deadline for making reservations. They should be reported to either Mary Miller or Dorothy Schnepf, president.

Assisting the president with arrangements for the meeting are Lorena Keller and Lucille Foor.

'Do It Yourself' Awards Go to Three Employees

Three employees received prizes for their award-winning entries in the "Do-It-Yourself" show, which closed a nine-day run Sunday, Oct. 24 at the Memorial Coliseum.

Judged ninth place winner was John Kokosa, Bldg. 19-2. John, who is a stator winder, entered a stone chimney he built in the contest. Dallas F. Smith, Bldg. 19-4 toolmaker, designed original pull-out closets which he displayed at the show. These gained him the 12th place prize.

Charles F. Harrod, Bldg. 26-5 production engineer, placed 14th with his entry of furniture refinishing work.

New Elex Chapter To Organize Nov. 10

Retired women employees interested in joining a club affiliated with Elex Club will have the opportunity through a third chapter of Elex which will be organized Wednesday, Nov. 10 at a coffee hour.

The coffee hour will begin at 9:30 a.m. in Bldg. 16-2 private dining room. The new chapter of Elex will be open to retired women employees only. Those interested in attending the meeting should call E-7431, Ext. 555 to make reservations. All persons at the first session will become charter members of the new group.

GE Couple Celebrates Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Casper M. Holocher celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, Oct. 26 at their home, 2117 Andrews St. They were honored on the occasion by their children at a small family party.

Natives of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Holocher were married 50 years ago, October 26, 1904. A Quarter Century Club member, Mr. Holocher retired from the company September 1, 1947 from Bldg. 10-1.

The couple have five children, 12 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

by Harry Parker

If you think your luck is bad,
Don't gripe and holler.
If you lose a four bit stake,
Next try a dollar.
If it seems to rain too much,
Don't dry off growling.
If the sun shines hot too long,
Don't cool off howling.
Take things as they come, in strife
Don't stand there crying.
Life is all too short at best.
Why spend it dying?

In looking over a copy of the "Churubusco Weekly Bleat" we noticed a picture on the front page of inundated cottages on the north shore of Blue Lake. One of them happened to be owned by Basil Bowley. Due to the recent heavy rain fall this body of water raised several feet forcing the occupants to higher ground. Basil tells us that he has a good notion to install a heavy marine motor in the cottage and take off across the lake to a more suitable location. . . . Due to the fact that a lot of small wild game have decided to make the garages, trees and some basements on Fox Ave. their habitat for the coming winter, Cecil Sible called a meeting of the neighbors who decided to establish the Fox Ave. game reserve. Cecil was appointed chief warden while Harry Parker was elevated to the office of Chef-De-Dog. His duties will be to see that all neighborhood dogs are kept on leash so as not to destroy the game. We now have opossum, raccoon, rabbits, and squirrels aplenty. Cecil tells us that he would not be surprised to wake up some morning and find a black bear parked on his front stoop.

Often we are not responsible for all the things that happen to us, but we are responsible for the way we act when they do happen.

Pop and Junior Play Together On YMCA Father-Son Nights

SWIMMING COACH—Dave Musgrave, Bldg. 26-2, shows his son David, Jr. some of the finer points of swimming during a session at the YMCA's Father-Son Night. The 30-minute swim period follows the exercise program.

LIKE FATHER—Bob Rescorla, Bldg. 18-3, and his son Bobby practice some gymnastics on the wall bars.

PHYSICAL 'TORTURE'—That's what calisthenics seem like to fathers as they start the new season of exercising with their sons at the YMCA.

It may be a little rough on Pop to match energy with sons in the five to nine-year old age group, but more than 30 GE fathers and sons find the fun and fellowship of the YMCA Father-Son program well worth a few aching backs.

Taking part in this oldest continual physical education course offered by the Y, the boys and their fathers spend 45 minutes of exercise Tuesdays and Thursdays starting at 5:15 p.m., topped off with a 30-minute swim period.

The exercise period usually starts off with calisthenics, some marching and running. After the warm-up, the group has all sorts of gymnastic equipment available for use. Volleyball or basketball games, track time trials for the youngsters are also on the schedule.

Special "Learn to Swim" lessons are a part of the program and records are kept of growth, development, and skill achievement. The boys, who range from 5 to 9 years in age, meet on Saturdays at 2:30 p.m. for their swim class. Some of the youngsters have already passed the standard beginner's test, swimming 60 feet in deep water.

Mothers and sisters will get their chance to see the men of the family perform on four family nights planned for this year. The "girls" can even swim if they wish during the November Ladies Night program. Another evening of entertainment for the entire family is scheduled when the group will eat together and take part in a program planned by Clif Backstrom and Walter Kerley of the YMCA staff.

During the past 28 years since the Father-Son class was originated by L. A. Schwann, who recently retired from the Fort Wayne Y staff, some 500 men have taken part in the program. Many of them were boys themselves when they started and are now back in class with their own sons.

LOCKER ROOM SCENE—Bobby and Donny Woodward, sons of Ray Woodward, Bldg. 4-6, get some help from their dad as they get ready for calisthenics.

THAT OLD GO-GO-GO—Ab Martin, Bldg. 18-3, and his son Richard loosen up on the parallel bars during the recreation part of the Y program. More than 30 GE men and their sons are enrolled in the class.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Frenchy Chilcote and Cal Hanner are raising rabbits. At least, that was the consensus of opinion of some innocent bystanders last Friday when the latest type of rabbit hutch arrived for a rush shipment. Some fun, fellows, at least Cal and Frenchy thought so. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Al Rieman, who celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary October 22. . . . Now it can be told that Emma Meyer has completed her driver's lessons and test. She has a driver's license to prove it. . . . Wedding bells will ring in the future for two of our co-workers. Wilma Hambrook has received an engagement ring from Charles Kumfer. . . . Clara Cohagen has a time with her money. Last week, she forgot her billfold. However, we trust you, Clara. . . . Ed Lauer and Dale Amstutz, two of our foremen, have started wearing glasses. So much the better to see us. . . . Here's hoping Velma Rose enjoyed her third week vacation. . . . Due to the alertness of a second shift employee, Gustave Kuhn, Bldg. 26-1, a serious fire was averted in the receiving office on first floor. We are proud of our safety record in Bldg. 26-3 and appreciate the co-operation of the employees. . . . Art Pequignot doesn't seem to be able to get that Ford of his weaned from gas. On his way home from Chicago, he ran out of gas a block from home. You had better believe you gas gauge, Art. . . . Erma Werling loves to eat pears but we advise her against eating too many. . . . We are wondering what makes Frank Clifton late to work so regular. Can't he wake up or does he hate to leave a warm bed? . . . Cornelia Glass was heard talking to herself but she is still all right as no one heard her answer back. . . . Some of the girls in winding are very happy since their pasts have been reviewed and their futures predicted. . . . One morning at work Mildred Leazier was eating "breakfast" which consisted of cold pork chops and hot coffee. Ed Lauer drank the coffee, which was too hot for Millie, so production could keep rolling.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

CONGRATULATIONS TO WALT HAHN. The Quarter Century Club welcomed Walt as an official member last Tuesday, October 26. . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Wes Powers next Monday, November 1. . . . WELCOME to Richard Williams, new TE in Jim Walley's group. Dick is single and is a graduate of the Montana State College with a BSIE degree. His home aown is Miles City, Mont. He spent his previous test assignment at Detroit in Apparatus Sales. He likes sports of all kinds, reading, and music. Seems like two graduates in the same group from the same college is a little disheartening to other members of Jim's group. Bob Ritchey and Dick are gloating over the fact that they have the same alma mater. Also welcome to John E. Brandenstein, (Brandy) TE in Max Barrows' group. He is also single, and is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a BSIE degree. His home town is Erie, Pa. This is his fourth test, having spent previous assignments at L&CE, Erie; Refrigeration, and Large Steam Turbine-Generator, Schenectady Works. He likes music and sports. . . . SOCIETY—Well, well, now that Jim Baille and John Parker had their pictures on the front page of the Journal Gazette society page we wonder if they'll speak to the common folk. . . . INDIAN GIVER, OR THE CAT CAME BACK STORY OF THE WEEK. Walt Hahn has been dubbed "Indian Giver Hahn." We hear Walt gave the family's pet cat away to the little daughter of Earl Stauffer. The Stauffer family was very happy about the new addition to their family, but the Hahn family was very sad the daddy gave their cat away. So much so, that Indian Giver Hahn had to admit his plight to the Stauffers, who in turn thought it over and decided to return the cat to put Walt back in the good graces of his family. Bet you'll think twice before you get another idea like this, eh Walt? . . . OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES. Here's another one we've heard Johnny Reuille tell. He took Rosie and Rita to a show on a Saturday afternoon and they were such well-behaved little girls during the show that Johnny treated them at the Hobby House. Upon asking what they wanted, Rosie wanted a soda and Rita said she'd take an ice cream cone. Johnny told her to order something nicer than a cone and said "Don't you want a sundae?" to which Rita replied "No, I don't want it on Sunday, I want it today!" . . . QUESTION OF THE WEEK: How does the other guy look? Gil Baker appeared at his desk attired in a natty band aid at a cocky angle over one eye. He claims that the hood on his car fell on his head while he was working on the engine. There are those people who suspect he argued with his wife, when she said no! . . . ALSO ANOTHER QUESTION Everybody is wondering how Shorty Becker's wife will like the new doll he is bringing home. . . . PEOPLE ON 4-6 were a little puzzled when Cal Wheeler was introducing a distinguished gentleman around Monday as Calvin J. Wheeler. The mystery was soon cleared up as it was Calvin J. Wheeler, Junior's father. . . . THERE ARE MANY FAMOUS PEOPLE known to the world by some deed they have performed such as Johnny Applesed. We have one—Everett Lotussead. He brought some specimens in and has seed by the bucketful. . . . IT COULD HAPPEN TO A DOG, but it did to Herb Osborne as he fell asleep at 8:45 last Monday morning and almost joined The Floor Sitters Club. . . . THE BIG BANG in the Advanced Dev. Section was Roy Balke dumping over a file cabinet, and for a minute it sounded like Fibber McGee's closet. . . . HI CARL. We'd like to say "hello" to Carl Leitch who is still out for illness. He was admitted to the Lutheran Hospital for observation a week ago. We do hope they don't keep you too long, Carl. . . . Good by to James Cranshaw, test engineer in Jim Walley's group. He starts Monday on his next assignment at Louisville.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Charlie Castle is on vacation this week. That is if you want to call it a vacation. One night while he was reading his newspaper the little woman casually mentioned that the driveway needed some stone, should she order some and how much? Charlie doesn't remember what he said, but the next evening when he returned from work there was 15 tons of stone piled in his driveway. . . . When Kenny Evans and his wife picked out their new TV set they agreed on the size of the screen, the color of the cabinet, the make, the model, and just about everything. I say just about because he wanted one without doors and she wanted one with doors. So they decided on the one with doors. Of course they have never closed the doors but then they are always there in case one needs them. . . . Art Thompson is truly a knight of the road. Always the courteous driver, he stopped his car the other day to allow a woman driver to back out of a driveway. She rewarded him by caving in the side of his car. . . . If you think that all sprinters are thin, long legged fellows, then you should have seen Hank Alfeld break the 100-yard dash last week. Hank, who is about the same build as Santa Claus, was gathering hickory nuts when a big sow took after him. Hank beat the sow to the fence but he lost all his hickory nuts. . . . Last week's visitor—Dan Ferguson. . . . A speedy recovery to Sherry Varner (author of Shaft Shavings), who is in the hospital recuperating from an operation.

COUNT OFF SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Ruby Stoops

Our column gets smaller and smaller as each group moves out to Broadway. Groups 17x54 and 17x61 left us over the week-end. Next week will be our turn. Clara-belle, Vadas, Betty, Virginia, and Doris sure miss the girls. . . . Virginia Busching is already worrying about not seeing her name in print any more. . . . That is a very good looking wrist watch Eddie Bandt is wearing. . . . Sydonna Fox really did things over the week-end. First she purchased a new GE TV, then on Sunday she and her family motored to Chicago. . . . Emily Rollins has her fall house cleaning all finished now, so maybe she can help some of us! . . . We surely thought Jack Payton had a rough time on his vacation last week, as he came carrying in Band-Aids, Kleenex, Scotch Tape, and a number of other articles. But, he just informed us he was moving in to our department. . . . I know Ed Feidler thought he would escape the column by going to Broadway, but he won't!

Small Motor

Drafting defeated Tommy's Lunch 2½ games and are now in a tie for first place with Tommy's Lunch. Both teams have won 11½ while losing 6½ games. Tommy's Tavern, Unlucky 113, and Hanna St. are tied for third place with 10 wins and 8 losses. Carl Brandt rolled a 612 series on games of 160, 201, and 251. The 251 is high for the league. Ladies Monday J

The Scatterpins went out in front this week with 16 wins and 5 losses. Next are the Ranch House Bar-B-Ques with 15 wins and 6 losses. In third place are the Keglerettes with 14-7. Voyce Brumbaugh converted the 4-7-9 split. High game—Winnie Scheurich 182-169-190-541. Other high games—Ilo Matter, 172; Monica Dapp, 175; Ann Amstutz, 171; Betty Campbell, 171; Dorothy Fuhs, 174; Margaret Beugnot, 180; Bonnie Wolf, 187.

Ladies Friday Evening

Teams No. 1 and 5 are tied for first place league honors in the Friday evening ladies bowling league with 13 wins and 5 losses. The second place team is No. 3 with 11 wins and 7 losses.

Three 500 series were rolled last week, T. Williams, 180, 203, and 197, totaling 540; Liz Shearer, 182, 187, and 160, 529; and Virginia Bowman, 148, 177, 177, totaling 502.

Single high score honors go to Donna Schwartz with two 176 games; Liz Shearer with 182 and 187; and Virginia Trulove, a sensational 209.

Apparatus League

Teams 12 and 8 are still tied for first place with 13 wins and 5 losses. Team No. 1 is in second place with an 11 won, 7 lost record and Team No. 5 is in third place with 10 wins and 8 losses. Team No. 5 rolled a whopping 1012 to

GE Club to Present Trophies To Top Bowlers at Season's End

Trophies for top GE Club bowlers have been selected for presentation at the end of the kegling season, Joe Kramer, GE Club bowling chairman, disclosed today. Large trophies will be presented to both the man and woman with the year's high single score and the high three series score.

Smaller trophies also will be presented the individual in each league with the high single and high three series.

Currently leading among GE Club women bowlers is Winnie Scheurich with a high single score of 235. She rolls in the Monday Night League. Alice Des Granges, of the Friday Night League, leads in the high three series with a 590 tally.

Of the men bowlers, Art Hickman's 256 is high for a single game. Hickman bowls in the Masonic League. Vic Rump, of the Interdivision league has rolled the high three series so far this season, a 620.

Monroeville Lumber at 11-10 kept pace with two wins over Peterson Elevator (11½-9½). K. Bauserman had a 605 (209-208-188) for the Lumbermen.

K of C (9-12) edged out two wins over the Elks (8-13) in a battle for sixth and seventh place.

Rolling 200 scores were: Bulte-meier, 200; Mutschler, 213; Graber, 203; H. Struckler, 200; Cook, 202-200; Faulkner, 203; Beery, 214; Laurent, 226-213; Crates, 212; House, 204-210; Hobbs, 213; Baumgartner, 213; Werling, 204; L. Hoffmann, 215; Buuck, 205; Custer, 204; Macklin, 205-215.

GE Women's League

The High Spots (15½-2½) led by Kleinhenz' 190 slipped a little this week and lost ½ a game to the Spares. The Last Frames (10-8) remained in second place by winning three games from the Office and the Spares (5½-12½) led by Teeple's 162 pushed the Office (5-13) from a third place tie to fourth place by winning ½ a game from the High Spots. Hi scores: Teeple, 162; Kleinhenz, 190.

DEAD-EYE WELKER—Lowell Welker, Bldg. 19-4, left, shows his friends the score sheet on which he marked up a 716 three-game total in a game he bowled at the Court Classic alleys October 22. Looking at the score, which is among the best of the season, are (l-r): Eddie Kammeyer, Ed Bodeker, and Paul Bodeker, all of Bldg. 19-4.

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION

by Ruth Sorg

All the Elex Club members are sure "pretty'n up" these days. The big occasion is Ronald Reagan's visit. There is a contest to see who will get to shake his hand. I suppose that all Election Day will be spent shopping for new clothes for the reception on Wednesday. . . . Sharon Shearer could hardly stand it the other day when she saw five little children come in the drug store for one pop-sickle. It made her so unhappy because the oldest boy ate all of it. Well, why didn't you buy them each one, Sharon? . . . Birthday greeting to Emma Meyer and Helene Nelson who celebrated this week. . . . Martha Newell attended a sorority convention in Evansville over the week end. . . . Norma Durnell is leaving this week to spend a few weeks in Norfolk with her sailor husband.

TAYLOR TRIAD

by Kathryn Pfister
Marylis Lenz
Edith Robertson

Happy birthday to L. R. Beard, Elmer Sherbondy, and Jack Sheak. . . . Welcome to C. T. Johnson, service engineer, whose office is located on the first floor. . . . We understand that after a vacation in Kansas, G. T. Wright has troubles. Seems his three boys enjoyed riding the ponies out there so well that they're putting the pressure on dad. Anyone knowing where he can get three ponies, G07A—notify Mr. Wright. . . . Leola Johnson was a very sweet bride last week end. She is now Mrs. Donald Nelson. . . . Welcome to Barabara Hauser who has replaced Evelyn Harmeyer. . . . Two of our Sales people enjoyed the football and the ideal weather dished up over the week end. Reid Allen attended the Ohio State-Wisconsin game and Bert Martin the Purdue-Michigan State. . . . We will miss Ann Rastetter and B. R. McClure, who have moved to Broadway. Nice to see Mr. McClure back after his illness. . . . Isabel Bartholmew journeyed out of the city to Detroit to visit friends. . . . C. E. Slater is enjoying a fine vacation, relaxing at home. . . . The up and coming little gals in the picture are the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Borah. Could it be that Bill (GPM Sales) had just informed them that the hundred-millionth motor had just run off the line?

Twins

We are happy to welcome Marilyn McIlveen to our Accounts Payable Section as typist. This is Marilyn's first job at the GE and we hope she likes it. Marilyn is married and has a little boy age two. . . . A busy little bee was flying around Louise Goudy ane noon hour last week but Bob Rondott, Bob Lund, Paul Magnuson, and Glen Clifton didn't want to hurt the harmless (?) small insect so they kindly let it find its own way to an open window and freedom.

SPECIALTY MOTORS

Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

Herman Ebel is back after a vacation looking very rested and quite chipper. . . . Maurice Petgen treated all of us to candy bars last week in honor of his birthday. . . . Tony Koorsen and Helen Risser are absent because of illness. We never did find out why Helen Brown was clapping her hands together as she walked back to her desk. . . . Dixie Hogg spent the week end at Indiana University with friends. . . . Dixie has had a new GE TV for weeks and weeks, for some unknown reason your reporter is just getting around to telling the world about it. . . . My apologies to you, Dixie. Beverly Gebert is leaving us today to keep a date with a certain bird. The office gave her a gift and our very best wishes go with you, Beverly. Come back to see us. . . . We are behind with our happy birthdays—Robert Kurtz, Ira Jones, Russel Ramel, Louis Manz and Maurice Petgen each have our best wishes.

Bowling Notes

The GE Orphans Bowling League is operating at Scotts Alleys Saturday at 1 p.m. All women who wish to bowl in this league should contact Bea Lantz.

DECATURITES

by George Laurent

Congratulations and best wishes for many more years of married life to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Small, who celebrated their 16th anniversary on Oct. 22. . . . How did she ever do it? We hear that Helen has really survived after being married for 18 years to Erman Johnson. Belated congratulations and we hope you will get to celebrate many more anniversaries. . . . A fresh coat of paint is adding to the attractiveness of the Deinninger home. Dick fixes things to make it safe and convenient for his wife to do the painting. According to a report from Dick's friends, if his wife's health holds out the whole house will be painted this fall. . . . Blow out the candles and start singing happy birthday. We know of several having birthdays this month and wish to extend our greetings to them. They are Betty Reichert, Elmer Chase, Bill Dellinger, Helen Wellman, Edna Calow, and Nellie Ruple. . . . Bill Dellinger, an inspector on the Shaft line, retired from active work on Oct. 22. Although Bill says from "active work" we know that he will still keep quite busy. Bill was presented with a gift from his friends in the Decatur Plants. P.S. It might be noted that George Buckley was so excited about Bill's retirement that he broke the key off in his desk when attempting to get Bill's gift. However, Dwight Kimble came to the rescue and saved the day.

STORMY WEATHER

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

Now that we are going on fast time, Cy Seymour has solved the problem of keeping the correct time by installing a sun dial on his bench. What happens on a cloudy day, Cy? . . . Even though the prices on cattle are coming down, Sandy Bennett still refuses to come down to the price offered by Elmer Brown. But at last reports, Sandy seems to be weakening fast and Elmer has already ordered two bales of hay. . . . When he put a pork chop away in anticipation of a sandwich for his lunch, Charlie Kensill discovered that his wife, the next day, had substituted a chicken salad instead. Now he swears that henceforth he will personally make, wrap, and hide any special sandwich that he wants in order to enjoy it the next day. . . . Take a tip from Bob Lauer and don't run down the ramp at the Coliseum and across the parking lot if you want your legs to be able to carry you around the next day. . . . Loyd (Pinky) Pinkerton doesn't care how much it rains now that he has had his new plumbing installed. . . . Friday, October 29th, a party will be held at Ed Klomp's house honoring Karl Soest on his 35th year with the GE Company. Congratulations and best wishes, Karl. . . . Anyone interested in animal husbandry just see Ray Pflueger, who is now a sheep rancher proven by the sheep's tail that he was so proudly wearing. . . . Joe Prezbinowski has offered to take Larry Reed up for a plane ride, but stipulated that they must both wear parachutes. The one thing that puzzles Larry is the fact that Joe never wears one, so that makes the offer have a slight odor to it. . . . Even being sick hasn't kept Carl Hattendorf from being one of the top bowlers in the plant. It just proves you can't keep a good man down. . . . The best picture of the week was the one shown in the 1928 edition of the GE NEWS of Ed Klomp. Seriously though, it wasn't hard to identify him by the picture, except for less hair and more wrinkles. . . . This is too good to keep—Bill Weber of Section 114 lost a bet to Cy Seymour and Larry Reed, so, when the pay-off day came, two large paper bags stuffed with scrap paper and 50 pennies were delivered to the winners. That really is a case of rubbing salt in an open wound. . . . The frogs in the ravine back of Sol Andorfer's barn certainly must be taking a beating now since he was the proud winner of a new spinner. They say his luck at frog casting has been very good. . . . It isn't very often that the opportunity arises to prove one's self, so it's with pride that we single out our Ray Bowers who at the expense of getting burned himself, rescued a little girl who stood too close to a fire and caught her clothes afire. He quickly smothered the flames without injury to the girl and, we are sure, gained the deepest gratitude from all concerned. . . . Maxine Baker has decided definitely that the new Oldsmobile is the car for her. . . . Quotation for the Week: "A bachelor is a souvenir of some woman who found a better one at the last moment."

THE WESTERNERS

by Maxine Patterson

If you talk to Pearl Coulter and she doesn't hear you, or she doesn't notice you some morning, don't feel bad. Pearl's just dreaming about that new home. Sure sounds nice, and we don't blame you for dreaming, Pearl. . . . Gertrude Currie is in much need of a large bib or apron. Anyone having an extra, please bring it to Gertrude as it seems she can't peel her oranges without dripping orange juice on her blouses. She has a good record up to date, hasn't missed a single blouse yet. . . . We want to welcome Jack Vessely to our engineering group in Bldg. 20-2. Hope you like us, and your new assignment, too. Jack is married and has two little girls. We wish you lots of good luck. . . . Dewey Heaston has been transferred off his welding job, on the east side, and the welders over here want to know what kind of a job you have now, Dewey, since they saw you come to work Monday morning with your wife's apron? Do they have men matrons? . . . Have you noticed the shine on Speed Bachelor's head?

Some one said that glow comes from using Johnson's Glo-Coat, but Speed says it's clear nail polish. He buys it by the gallon. We notice that reflection in the office, too. Do you loan any out, Speed? . . . Such pretty orange wagons these maintenance men have now, and even their names are painted on them. They shouldn't be so hard to find now. Not even for Les Bland to locate, isn't that right, Les? . . . Seems that Carl Garretson is sure walking around with pride since he has that new electric welder. Keeps his head up in the air now for sure. . . . Sorry to lose Chalmer Hart. He left us to go back with Utility this week. Wilbur Morehaus and Donald Stanley are on vacation for the next two weeks. They have gone to Canada, hunting. Clem Myers wants someone to help him keep track of his request books. He is always losing them someplace and can't seem to find them. Maybe he needs a helper to take care of his books. . . . Don't forget November 2nd, Election Day. Don't come to work, but above all DON'T FORGET TO VOTE. IT IS YOUR PRIVILEGE, AND DUTY.

"Well," said the guest, "this is a surprise party! Only 38 candles on your birthday cake."

THE FELLOW WHO DROVE WON'T BE AROUND TO VOTE

Of all accidental death claims filed under the GE Insurance Plan last year, 64 per cent were for loss of life in automobile accidents.

We regret 56 GE people won't be around to vote November 2.

Each year with frightening regularity deaths and injuries caused by automobile mishaps mount. Many could be avoided.

Don't you become an automobile accident statistic. When you take to the road, after casting your ballot—

- Observe the rules of the road.
- Obey all signs.
- Adjust your driving speed to road conditions.
- Allow yourself plenty of time to get to your destination and back home again.
- Be courteous at all times.

THE NIGHT WIND

SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Elmer Evans is quite a guy, he has lost two jackets in a month's time. Last week he parked his jacket on a bench that was being moved to Broadway with the 10-20-30 frame, not thinking about it until quitting time, and of course his jacket was at Broadway and Elmer at Taylor St. It was quite cool that evening and Elmer got chilly. Fortunately Elmer got his jacket back, but the other one was taken at a business place in Busco. . . . Larry Martin is a life saver. He passes out Life Savers to pep us up a bit. We need a little pep about 11:48, Larry. . . . Bob McCague has a new pair of specks. We wonder if he really needs them or if he wears them for protection in case someone wishes to hit him. No offense, Bob, you really look nice with them. . . . Dorothy Hart spent Sunday with her son Harley and family in Garrett. . . . Ralph Snyder is back on 21 line again. Glad to see you back, Ralph. . . . Larry Martin seems to be our main spoke this week. He says a week from Tuesday he is taking the day off and drinking Scotch and soda all day. Evidently the Scotch has made him a poet. He quotes: "If wishes were horses beggars might ride, If fishes were wishes we would have some fried." Very good, Larry, and we say quite so. Larry gets quite vexed at times. After having his radio repaired several times it still was not in good order, so he walked to the alley and politely dumped it in the trash barrel. Now he has a new TV. . . . Audrey Brindle was accompanied home by her two granddaughters last week, who like it at the lake very much. . . . Sophia Rieg likes her new job very much and says it is much easier for her. Glad for you, Sophia.

SICK LIST

The following employees have been reported on the sick list and dismissed from the hospital.

Sick List

Herschel Gratts, Ray Barrand, Rita Bowman, Albert Hutchisson, Aaron M. Krakower, Al Mason, Lois B. Miller, Howard K. Treesh, Sherry Varner, Herbert Wise, John Fuller, Jr., Edgar Jenkins, Frank DeVaux, Donald Estel, and Matilda Nuttle.

Dismissed from Hospital

Albert Kudtz, Albert Hutchisson, Lois Miller, Eugenia Gooding, Rose Richard, and William Berning.

BLOOD DONORS

The following employees from the General Purpose Component Motor Department donated blood during the week ending October 15:

Waveland Bernardin, Kenneth W. Carpenter, Glen A. Castle, Edward E. Ellenburg, O. Harold Kibiger, Harry E. Rhodes, Arthur T. Rose, Glenn A. Rout, Robert W. Starkel, Melvin A. Blumenberg, William D. Caston, Wayne E. Chrystler, Joan M. Gausepohl, Max E. Greene, R. C. Haneline, Rosemary I. Hoevel, Claude Holmer, Beth Jacobs, Lois L. Jensen, Keith Kalb, Victor Leakey, Earl R. Liechty, Robert Lawrence Mace, E. N. Miller, Albert N. Nebur, Luther M. Ogg, Richard L. Stauffer, and Richard J. Wehrle.

GE Club Books Six Acts for Fall Revue

Tickets Still Available For Six Performances November 13 and 14

Three professional entertainment acts were booked for the Nov. 13-14 GE Club Fall Revue this week, bringing the total of acts to six for the two-day program.

The three are The Chevalles, Wilfred DuBois, and Joy Whitney and the Visionaires. The Chevalles are musical comedy-pantomimic artists. Originating in their homeland, Spain, the act of five men has toured the United States with a fast-moving presentation of musical humor.

"Master of Juggling" is the billing for Wilfred DuBois, professional performer who presents an act of unusual tricks in balancing and juggling. A song and dance act are Joy Whitney and the Visionaires.

The other three acts announced last week are The Rivieres, Billy Grant the master of ceremonies, and Jimmy Conlin and Dorothy Ryan.

Tickets for the six performances are available at the GE Club desk, Taylor St. employment office, from 16 members of entertainment committee, or from Vera Reeves in the superintendent's office at Hanna St. The six shows begin at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13, and at 1, 3, 5, and 7:30 p.m., Nov. 14.

Employees may obtain tickets free of charge by presenting their 1954 GE Club membership card at any of the above locations.

Reagan Scores Big Hit Here

"A REAL GUY AND WONDERFUL PERSON" was the way GE employees rated Ronald Reagan after the film star's three-day tour of GE plants and the community this week. Starting his busy schedule Monday, Nov. 1, Reagan met GE columnists at a press conference. He signs an autograph for Luana Patter, Taylor St., while Kathryn Pfister, Taylor St., waits to meet the movie star and host of GE's television theater. A picture coverage of Reagan's visit with employees and the community will appear in next week's GE NEWS.

120 Suggesters Take Home $1410 in Idea Cash Awards

Carl H. Einsiedel, Bldg. 19-4, led a list of 120 suggesters during September with his $110 award. He suggested changing certain transformer dies that lengthen the life of the dies. Einsiedel's award was part of $1410.50 which was paid for ideas last month.

A $65 suggestion award check went to Ralph N. Perry, Bldg. 31-2, who suggested that the tapped holes in the commutator and of all shafts for DC machines be eliminated and thus save both time and money.

Wendell Crum, Section 417 at Taylor St., earned $60 for suggesting a method of sorting pinch-off rings from covers for two sets of drawings. His idea saves 85 per cent of sorting time.

Other awards were paid to Carl Fletcher, Bldg. 26-2, $30; F. Lorain and Ed Gebhart, both of Bldg. 4-2, $48; Alfred Eisenacher, Wire Mill, $25; and to three Section 147 employees at Taylor St., Emma Hienrich, $45; J. R. Walters, $35; and Robert E. Brake, $30.

There were 111 awards of less than $25 in amount paid during September.

Veterans Day Parade Slated for Wednesday

All GE employees who are war veterans have been asked to participate in the city-wide veterans parade which will take place Wednesday, Nov. 10, on the eve of All Veterans Day. The invitation was extended this week by Roy Brower, Bldg. 6-4, president of the GE War Veterans Association.

Mr. Brower stated that persons participating in the parade are asked to march with the veteran organizations to which they belong in the city. The parade will form on Baker St. near Calhoun St. at 8 p.m., Nov. 10.

Thursday, Nov. 11, which is All Veterans Day, was formerly observed as Armistice Day.

Apprentice Alumni Announce Slate For Annual Election November 22

Candidates for office in the Apprentice Alumni Association were announced this week by president Walter Buesking, Winter St. The election will take place at the organization's Fall banquet, Monday, Nov. 22, at the Chamber of Commerce.

The candidates are:

ON VETERANS DAY, MAY WE RECALL—

"... the Great Task Remaining

Although November 11, Veterans Day, is a legal holiday in all states, its observance—in moments of silence, decoration of soldier graves, or parades—has not been general since World War II.

Formerly called Armistice Day, it signified the signing of the truce which ended World War I at 11 a.m., Nov. 11, 1918. It was first proclaimed a year later by President Woodrow Wilson "with solemn pride in the heroism of those who died in the country's service and with gratitude for the victory."

"In its very name," notes George R. Stewart in his recent book "American Ways of Life," remarking on the lack of general observance of the day, "there was a prophecy of the future . . . the outbreak of another conflict proved that Armistice Day had indeed celebrated only an armistice."

Perhaps that is why the words of Abraham Lincoln, spoken on another November day and on another battlefield (Nov. 19, 1863, the dedication of the military cemetery at Gettysburg, Pa.) have significance today. Said the martyred President, in closing his memorable address: "It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave their last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

While we will have no formal observance here at General Electric on Veterans Day, we could all take one moment during the day to re-dedicate ourselves to "the great task remaining."

"WE'D ALL EAT EVEN BETTER IF WE DIDN'T KEEP SUCH A BIG DOG!"

Sgt. William Butler

A former Bldg. 4-3 employee, William Butler is a sergeant in the U. S. Army stationed in Korea. He will return to the United States soon, his wife, Jeanne, Section 113, Taylor St., reports. After entering the Army in December, 1952, Bill served 16 months in Korea.

The following employees have entered the Armed Forces: Richard J. Gottschalk, Gilbert G. Gildner, Richard L. Strain, Laddie J. Petrucha, Harold C. Friedrich, Frank A. Beck, Robert L. Dafforn, and Ronald D. Fisher.

APPRENTICE BROADCAST

by

Jim Kennard

Mel Guillaume

It seems we have several wild drivers here at the school. Jim Kennard tried to make like a bulldozer with his Plymouth and found out that it didn't work. He is now keeping himself in shape for volleyball by walking. . . . Don Meyer (drafting) was fined for speeding. . . . Gene Miller will look twice now before he pulls any more tricks. His latest backfired. He thought he recognized Mel Guillaume driving behind him on Wells St. and figured Mel would pull into his mother-in-law's driveway. Since there were no other cars in sight, Gene stopped in the center of the street blocking the driveway. But he soon found out it wasn't Mel, and received a very interesting lecture about his driving. . . . John "Speedy" Kalb is at it again. It seems as though John was stopped for speeding, but immediately explained that some other car had tried to force him off the road. And that he was merely attempting to catch him. He was fortunate in getting off with a sermon. By the way, John, did you catch the other car? . . . Myron Auer has found that it is rather difficult to shave with his son Stevie hitting his arm. Jake came to work last week looking as though he had a fight with a cat. . . . Congratulations to Gene Ralstin on his graduation from the Apprentice School. Best of luck, Gene. . . . The apprentice bowling team has finally come through with two wins after several losses. Let's keep it up fellows. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Jack Becker. Jack is at Parkview Hospital. He had his appendix removed last week. . . . Jack Olinske was one person who needed no false face for Halloween. Last week Jack was going to take his wife out to supper after class. When he stopped at home to pick up his wife he left his keys in the car. When he tried the door he found it locked, the back door was locked and the windows all up. So he had to go back to his car for the keys to open the door of his house. When his wife answered she said that she had not answered because she thought it was trick or treaters. . . . The apprentice basketball team came through with a magnificent win over BTC's of 57-26. . . . Jim Schwartz was two hours late for work one day last week. He claims he overslept, but it is rumored he spent the time trying to part his long hair. Last week we received a letter from Darwyn Herbst, whom many of you will recall left us to go to the Army recently. He is in the X-ray school at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and is apparently enjoying Army life. . . . This week Don Meads and Dean Hardy both left Bldg. 12-2 to go to Bldg. 19-5. They will replace Lawrence Shinabery and Arnold Korte who are returning to Bldg. 12-2. . . . Don't forget the hayride, Nov. 19, at Bullerman's farm. It will be a combined hayride, card party, wiener roast, and square and round dance. A great time is assured for all who attend. . . . Dean Hardy has been having trouble getting his lunch bucket opened, just a little matter of its being soldered shut.

SICK LIST

The following employees have been reported on the sick list, dismissed from the hospital, and returned to work:

Sick List

Dismissed from Hospital

Beatrice Allen, Laura Black, Ray Yarnan, Thelma Bentley, Roy Barrand, Sherry Varner, Don Vorn-dran, and Edmund Bauers.

Returned to Work

B. Rush McClure, Edgar Jenkins, Harriet Palmer, John Fuller, Jr., Iris Hebble, Theodore Zinn, Mel-rose Bryson, Bertha Burnau, Raymond Loudonbach, George A. Scott, Richard Sholl, Sarah Chelf, Evannell Holman, Robert Mobberly, Elizabeth Youngs, Dee English, Charles Huffman, Emma Lou Ragan, William Irmischer, Don Vorn-dran, and Floyd Wygant.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

We're late with the news. No birthdays. No new faces. Still thrilled over meeting our GE TV star, Ron Reagan. He looks like a regular guy and I'm sure we'll all enjoy his shows. . . . It seems Mr. Ross has a busy day Saturday with appointments in preparation for Ronald Reagan's visit with us. . . . The little Angora kitten that lives at Alma Cox's residence still wears his white fur coat. Alma prefers pink but her husband wouldn't let her tint the kitten.

Money can work two ways. At times it talks—and at other times it stops talk.

The following employees from the Hermetic Motor Dept. and the Direct Current Motor and Generator Dept. donated blood during the week ending October 22:

Ralph W. Butler, William David, Jr., William A. Hazen, Joseph A. Haas, *Maurice Allen, Donald Dan-necker, Richard R. Didrick, James C. Ervin, Kenneth C. Highland, Willard C. Hughes, Bernon J. Huguenard, Charles P. McAfee, Calvin W. Marhenke, *John A. Marks, *Kenneth W. Michael, Charles J. Nord, Joseph P. Orbin, **Paul B. Perry, Donald Reek, Howard G. ## STORMY WEATHER

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

A very sneaky maneuver was executed last week. The carboly boys had told Karl Soest that if he brought in an anniversary cake they would buy him a turkey dinner. When that day arrived no cake was in sight, therefore, the boys told him he had missed out on five turkey dinners since that many had been offered to him. However, he had sneaked one in and then proceeded to display it, thereby getting the five turkey dinners, and believe it or not, he really ate them all. . . . Cy Seymour has been giving Carl Alter quite a rough time because Carl refuses to pass out the usual gifts in his race for political office. Carl says he can't afford to bribe anybody. . . . Our recent "come-of-age-voter," Carol Norman, has now extended her talents to no less than that of being chaperon to a group of Boy Scouts and her co-chaperon was a Scout Master. . . . Lenora Hanes was caught red-handed with her spoils from trick or treat when a Halloween sucker came to light in her lunch. Did you have a good time, Lenora? . . . According to reports, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Lowe went to a masquerade party in some very interesting costumes. . . . The parking problem at the Coliseum has been solved by Bob Lauer who will now have his very own and very private parking space. . . . We always knew Elmer Brown was a good workman but it comes to light now that he is also a fine conversationalist. However, he still has more hidden talents as proved by the party he went to as part of a team of "Beauty and the Beast"—naturally we know what part he played. . . . Stand back, boys, Omer Mettler is all fortified now since he has his winter's supply of hot peppers. . . . Larry Reed still contends he would go out to "trick or treat" if they gave liquid refreshments instead of candy. . . . Why the sudden great craving of apples by Clarence Nussel? Is it for his health or orders from headquarters? . . . Quotation for the Week: "If you would abolish avarice, you must abolish its mother, luxury."

R. C. Sebold Named Planning Supervisor In Specialty Sect. 417

Richard C. Sebold has been appointed supervisor of planning in Specialty Component Motor Section 417, Chester B. Smith, superintendent of the section, announced this week. Sebold will be supervisor of planning in shaded pole 11 and 21 frame motor manufacturing.

When he joined GE in 1941 Sebold was a punch press operator. The following year he entered the Apprentice School. In 1943 he went into the U. S. Air Force and served 22 months in the South Pacific Theater of action before being discharged in December, 1945.

After returning to the Apprentice School, Sebold graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course in 1949. He went on special assignment in administration under the works manager then and the next year entered the Manufacturing Training Course, which he completed in 1952.

Upon entering Section 401 in 1952 Sebold was a methods planner and was named a foreman in that section in 1953. He was a foreman in Section 402 prior to his present appointment.

Sebold is a member of the Apprentice Alumni Association and Foremen's Association. He attended Purdue University Extension one year. The Sebolds and their two children reside at 3914 Manito Blvd.

GE Squares Wives Club to Hear Irene Meyers Tuesday Evening

Irene Meyers, supervisor of women's activities, will be the guest speaker at the November 9 meeting of the GE Squares Wives. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the Squares Hall. Miss Meyers will discuss "Magic Flight to Europe."

Mrs. Dale Amstutz is chairman of the event. The program will be concluded with bridge and refreshments. Assisting the chairman are Mrs. John Taylor, Mrs. Frank Karoski, Mrs. Clovis Linkous, Mrs. Robert Huffman, Mrs. H. L. Kellogg, Mrs. Roy Woodward, Mrs.

Ruben Tschaekofske, Mrs. Bill Hunt, and Mrs. Homer Porte.

The ways and means committee reported that they will have home-made candles and fruit cake for sale at the November 9 meeting.

GE Squares Club members and their wives have been invited to attend the Friday, Nov. 5, movie at the Palace Theater as guests of theater management. The movie will be "The Man in the White Suit," starring Alec Guinness and Joan Greenwood.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

We say good-bye to Bouncey Becker this week who forsakes us for Winter St. Winter St. is getting a good man. Sharp, too! Why, only last week he was telling us how he got out of buying his wife a new girle by putting his neighbors up to telling her she was looking much thinner. . . . They're still buying TV sets. Two more new ones having been purchased by Jake Mattes and Max Brixley. Looks like you're the only holdout left, Hill. Why don't you break down and trade in that old gramophone? . . . We understand Art Thompson cleans picture frames in his spare time. . . . We've finally found out what makes our office steno so sweet. She was seen pouring Log Cabin syrup in her coffee. . . . Readers of this column, attention. Are you looking for a good used car? A real bargain? A once in a lifetime opportunity? Joe Ostrowski has decided to part with his faithful? 1935 Graham. It comes equipped with carbide lamps, goose horn, buggy whip, and duster, and can be purchased for a paltry $200. (He wants to give it away but his wife won't let him.) . . . Last week's visitor: Adam Farrell.

"It's smart to be afraid of the dark," is the tip from Indiana Traffic Safety Foundation. "It's about twice as dangerous to drive after dark. Slow down. Be alert and be sure you can stop in time."

Company Reports Record Number Of Share Owners

The General Electric Company reported a record 288,804 share owners as of September 24, an increase of 41,493 over a year ago.

Twenty thousand of the new owners are company employees who became share owners last June through General Electric's Employee Savings and Stock Bonus plan, the company said.

Under this payroll deduction plan, employees who purchase United States Savings Bonds and leave them on deposit for five years, receive a bonus in GE stock equal to 15 per cent of the purchase price. The first bonus distribution under this plan was made in June.

Since the previous record date, June 25, 1954, 11,580 new share owners have been added to the company's rolls. The company's common stock was converted, effective May 5, on the basis of three shares for one resulting in a lower market price per share.

Specialty Engineer Talks to NEMA Group

C. J. Herman of the Advanced Engineering Section—Specialty Component Motor Department, recently talked to the wire and cable section of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association in New York City on the subject of fractional horsepower motors.

Herman commented on the progress being made in the wire industry in the development of new enamel coatings for wire that will improve wire insulation for present applications as well as higher thermal ability for special applications of electrical apparatus. Component motors for existing aircraft require the ability of insulations to withstand high temperature and future designs will be dependent upon these new wire developments.

In order for all the members of the NEMA Section who control wire standardization for the industry to take full consideration of the future needs of General Electric, Herman pointed his remarks toward the magnet wire characteristics desired by the motor designers.

WENDELL CRUM (center) explains his $60 suggestion to Art Spoerhase (left) and Eric Hellwig. Crumm, who works in Section 417 at Taylor St., suggested an improved method of sorting pinch-off rings from covers for drawings, whereby 85 per cent of sorting time could be eliminated.

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST. by Luana Oehlaffen

The news reporters met Ronald Reagan at a special press meeting last Monday. Mr. Reagan was very gracious and really a very nice guy. He played football in high school and college, going into sports announcing later on. Mr. Reagan was asked how long it takes to prepare a show for the GE Theater. He said it depended on whether it was a film or a live show. Sometimes when a star is not available on a particular date, they make a film when the star is available for presentation at a later date. For a live show the schedule runs something like this: For a Sunday evening performance they start rehearsal on Wednesday. They rehearse four hours on Wednesday, four hours on Thursday, six hours on Friday, four hours on Saturday, and Sunday they are at the studio from 11 a.m. until 9:30 p.m. when the show is over. You can see how much work it takes just for a half-hour show. Mr. Reagan said that Jimmy Stewart and Alan Ladd will appear on the program sometime in the near future. Mr. Reagan has a very full schedule, and everyone was quite sorry when he had to leave. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lallow, who are the proud parents of a 6 lb. 10 oz. baby boy. . . . Our sympathy to Carl Reeves whose brother died in Long Beach, Calif. We are a bit late Carl, but we were very sorry to hear about it. . . . Welcome to Billie Wedlow, Ruby Boner, Blanche Sanders, and Gerold Carper. . . . Happy anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jockel. . . . Ray Rodenbeck is convalescing very nicely at his home and enjoying a TV set that his wife won at the Boston Store. . . . Sorry, kids, but we're going to have to cut the column down a little.

GE CODE GUEST SPEAKER—Dave Lee, news editor of radio station WKJG and WKJG-TV, will be guest speaker at the Decatur GeCode Club dinner meeting tomorrow evening in the Moose Home. "Our Bosses" is the theme of the event, which begins at 5:30 p.m.

EARN $65 ON IDEA—Ralph N. Perry (second from left) earned $65 on a suggestion to eliminate tapped holes in the commutator end of all shafts for DC machinery, thus saving both time and money. He shows his suggestion award to Donald E. Kaiser, E. F. Ginder, and Willis P. Lantzenheiser. Perry works in Bldg. 31-2.

Millie Kouder thought her chair had been re-upholstered last week, but found out afterward it was only a burr someone had planted there. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Evelyn Mayfield, who is in the Lutheran Hospital. . . . Wayne Jones was in the limelight again when he accepted a scroll from the Queen of the Netherlands at a recent community concert. On Monday and Tuesday he was in New York City taking in the sights. Shows too? . . . Anyone wanting to know how it feels to be deserted by your friends at noon just ask Emma Meyer. . . . Vera Poe bids us so-long today to take up her new duties as a full-time housewife. . . . Marie Dunn returned to work this morning after a sick leave. . . . Helen Elbert, looking fine after a week's vacation, returned to the old grind. . . . Beverly Davis is spending a few days in Chicago attending a sorority convention. . . . Your reporter was all thrilled about going to a press conference to see Ronald Reagan, even bought a new hat.

FEATURED WITH WARING—

Dee Harless, contralto, is one of the featured performers with Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, to be seen on "The General Electric Theater" Sunday at 9 p.m. over the WIN-T network. The program will be one of four starring Fred this season. It will be a musical salute to Autumn and will feature some of America's favorite songs.

Everett Sink says, quote, "I am sure glad I live a good clean life so no one can have anything to write about me." You had better watch out Everett, they are out after you now for sure. . . . Glad to see Jesse Fulmer back at work after being off on account of illness. . . . Charles Dunifon is still on the sick list and can't return to work as yet. Sure hope you can be back with us before long Charlie. We want to say happy birthday to Charlie on Nov. 8. Others having birthdays this month are: Wilbur Morehouse, Nov. 3; Charles Boren, Doc Stanley, and Otto Wise, Nov. 7; Jim Dawson, Nov. 13; Jack Lunde, Nov. 19; Jesse Fulmer, Nov. 21; Rudy Moreno, Nov. 27; Ed Meyer, Nov. 28; George Huebner, Joe Robinson, and Joe Bahr, Nov. 30. We wish you all a very happy birthday. . . . Wonder what happens to Speed Bachelor's thinner cans? Is it sort of a slip of memory, Speed, or are they really disappearing? . . . Clem Myers wants to cancel his ad for help to keep books on the job. He found his book on the front of his truck and he was searching everywhere for it and it was right under his nose all the time. . . . Earl Fee is sure hoping to get something on Verne Marbaugh, but Verne too, says he lives above reproach, and so Earl you will have to keep a keen eye on Verne to find out anything for the GE NEWS. Maybe you could play private detective. We hear that GE had two men out of 10,000 crazy people at the wrestling matches in Chicago last week. Of course Earl Fee doesn't believe that. Do you, Earl? They couldn't all be crazy, surely. . . . We wish to extend our sympathy to Dewey Hower of advance manufacturing section, in the news received here last week of the death of his grandson, Paul Bishop, in British Honduras. Paul was the son of Dewey's daughter, a missionary to the Honduras. . . . Ross Sills is on vacation this week. He says his wife had very little work laid out for him to do. He has the potatoes to dig, pears to pick, carrots to haul in, turnips to pull, cider to make, finish jiggling out his basement and so far hadn't planned what he would do in his spare time. Wonder how Ross will look when he returns next week, or will he be able to make it back? Hope you have a nice vacation, though, Ross, and come back feeling fine.

Bernard C. Weber

Bernard C. Weber, 68 Dies of Heart Ailment

Bernard C. Weber, 68, died Wednesday, Oct. 28, following a heart attack. A life-long resident of Fort Wayne, Mr. Weber was a retired employee. Services were conducted Saturday, Oct. 30, in the Getz & Eikenberry Funeral Home and the St. Patrick Catholic Church by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. D. Lawrence Monahan. Burial was in the Catholic Cemetery.

In 1916 Mr. Weber joined General Electric and was a heat treater in Bldg. 19-4 when he retired November 1, 1947. He was a Quarter Century Club member.

In addition to his wife, Frances, survivors include two sisters, Miss Margaret Weber and Mrs. Henry Papenbrock, and a brother, Harry.

We wish Chet Carey a very speedy recovery from a major operation at Parkview Hospital, and also to Fredia Meyer who is in St. Joe Hospital. . . . Welcome back to Laura Krauskopf and Goldie Tuck. Hope your stay with us will last this time, girls. . . . Doris Moon is spending her third week vacation this week and Louise Beamer will enjoy hers next week. . . . Congratulations are in order for Nellie Wiggins, a co-worker of ours, who has a baby boy named Michael Ellis. . . . Clair Forbes sure was turned around over the weekend. He went to Chicago, got lost and ended up in South Bend. Then he was confused so he went to Niles, Mich., before he got himself straightened out. We suggest he get himself a new compass. . . . Russell Gee really was raring to get to work the other morning. He got up, fried bacon, eggs, and potatoes, then dressed, but then he looked at the clock and it was 1 a.m. in the morning. We're wondering what time he went to bed to have a night's sleep in by then. . . . That loud noise you heard around the die cast section Friday morning was for Millie Snyder in her new leopard pedal pushers. Pretty sharp, Millie!

Mother Nature gave her feather bed a good shake last Saturday evening, just to let us know that we will have to start looking for our boots. . . . Now that Liberate will be on the air at an earlier time, everything should run smoothly on fast time. . . . Ray Miller made a hurried trip back to work one evening last week. Leoral Hart called him to see if he had taken an empty lunch bucket home or one well filled with Leoral's lunch. The bucket he took home wasn't empty. . . . We have a couple of new members in the "I gotta new car" class. Jeanette Brienfalk has a new Oldsmobile. Luella Masson is breezing along in a new Ford. . . . After this when Nellie Bellamy burns papers, she will probably be more careful after burning some of that green lettuce. . . . Dick Gidley finally broke down and got a new TV. Right kind, too. . . . We congratulate the son and daughter-in-law of Laura Antrup. They opened their hearts and home and adopted a little boy last Monday. The adopted grandma is quite proud and happy, too. . . . Verna Ramsey is back after a vacation in southern Indiana. . . . Bertha Furge moved into her new home last week. We didn't know whether Marie Lantz was planning to elope or just being serenaded after seeing the ladder at her window, but finally discovered it was Halloween pranksters. . . . Ida Sinn gets her money's worth on the bus. She fell asleep, riding out to the end of the line and getting off at the proper stop on the way back. . . . Virgie Mayer has a special assignment every afternoon at 3:30, directing traffic between Swinney and Stophlet avenues. . . . We are seeing a few familiar faces again. Glad to see you back. . . . Tillie Nuttle, who is on the sick list, wishes to thank everyone for the gift and cards. . . . We also wish former co-worker Marie Claycomb a speedy recovery. . . . Those advertisements appearing in our national magazines depicting beautiful bath room fixtures have always impressed Helen Hutchinson so much that she decided to revamp her victorian style bath room. The first effort was the installation of glass partitions around the old dip tank which has feet on it resembling tiger claws. We do not know whether or not she intends installing venetian blinds on those partitions, but we think that it would be a good idea. As to the rest of the fixtures, we do not know what her plans are regarding them, but no doubt they will be good. We intend to keep our readers informed from time to time as to the progress made in the revamping process. . . . Last week-end we paid a visit to our old friend and former co-worker, Conrad Hohnholz, who is in the Veterans' Hospital for observation and a general overhaul job. Coony looks good, he still does not have grey hair, his looks surely belie his age, and from all indications we feel sure that he will walk out of there before many weeks are past. He would enjoy a visit from his many friends here in the plant. . . . Stories of the sea have always intrigued Kenny Miller and never having had the opportunity to sail the briny deep, he intends to do something about it. He informs us that he always has wanted to be an admiral so he has started construction of the first unit of his own fleet, which is to be in the old manner. All vessels are to be windjammers. At present he is a very busy man collecting and fashioning the hardware for his flagship "The Davy Jones." His plans call for quite a large flotilla which will ply the waters of one of the largest northern Indiana lakes. He has not as yet decided which one it will be. Our self-styled admiral has already purchased his uniforms, one for summer, and a heavy one for fall and winter. . . . Last Thursday afternoon at quitting time Elva McMaken proceeded to the parking lot and piled into a car which she thought belonged to the person with whom she rides. She waited and waited, but none of the other riders put in an appearance. Finally after looking over the car she was sitting in it dawned upon her that she was in a car belonging to a second shift worker. Elva would certainly have had a long wait if she had continued to sit in that car!

We are glad to get this in about Sherry, as she is our columnist and never gets into the news. Now is our chance. . . . Hugo Kleint is a director on the board of Komet Boosters Club. How many free passes can you get, Hugo? . . . George Noffze is back from his vacation. Next time tell us when you leave so we can miss you before Thursday, George. . . . The new face in Wagner's office is Mary McCallum's. We welcome her and hope she will like working here. . . . Wonder what Ed Lepper does when he comes to a red light, when he can't see a fire engine red car in front of him soon enough to stop before hitting it. Of course, the ducks crossing the highway got the blame for it. . . . Now all the commutator boys can sit around and chat about TV programs. The last one to hold out was Henry Becker, but he finally weakened and got one. . . . Melvin Green has been wearing the new look. His sideburns are powdered white to give him the distinguished look. . . . A nice surprise visitor was Floyd Wygant who has been on the sick list. He looks good and the boys were glad to see him. . . . Willie Irmscher is back working with us after being off work all summer with a broken ankle. Welcome back, Willie. . . . According to Eugene Bly, there is a new angle for selling TV sets. The salesmen are trying to get Marilyn Monroe on TV at 7 p.m. Tuesday evening, the same time as Liberace so they can sell each household two sets. Doubtful if it will work out that way.

Happy birthday to Evelyn Turner, whose birthday was last Friday. Evelyn retired a few months ago but we still think of her often. Irma Beard, Jessie Wass, Mable Parker, and Anita Fitch visited Evelyn a few weeks ago at Royal Center where she is living with a brother. She is well and happy and said she would be looking for this item in the GE NEWS. . . . John Boyer injured his back while at work last week and is not able to work. We wish him a speedy recovery. We all miss you, John. . . . Margaret Kenyon, and her sister Grace from Bldg. 4-3, visited their sister in Detroit last week-end. . . . Margaret Turney was ill last Monday and was not at work. We missed you, Margaret. . . . Marcella Goyer is back on the 21 line again. Welcome, Marcella. . . . Dorothy Hart's new name is Dillie Dallis, given her by Mel Lytle. That's OK, Mel, I like it. . . . Alma Raymer knew when it was time to go home by what she found in the castings about quitting time last Monday. You're right, Alma, after that it's time to go-go-go. . . . Fay E. Cristie sure had bad luck last week. She injured her arm on a fan, and lost the diamond set from her ring. We hope things go better for you from here on, Fay. . . . Larry Martin's new name is "Petunia." He also has a new name for his car. It is "Sh-asta." Sh-asta have gas. Sh-asta have oil. Sh-asta have water. Quite an appropriate name, Larry. . . . We missed Betty Boldt last week. She took her third week's vacation. She said the week went too fast, even though she spent it at home. . . . We want to sa "hi" to Ruth Gunn over there in Bldg. 4. Ruth wants to come back to Taylor St. and we would like to have her too. Hope you can soon, Ruth. . . . Ruth LaPradd is back in Sec. 417 again on days. We are glad to see you back, Ruth. . . . This is all for this time. Contrary to popular opinion the members of GPM Department make news only on week-ends. Due to the early deadline last week, Friday noon, the reporters are forced to assume that these people work, work, work, from Monday through Friday! . . . Welcome to Herver Lhomme, who comes to us from Paris, France. He is working with Lou Staak. . . . Have you noticed the piano and candelabra that Helen Hopple is wearing? Now that pin just can't have the same significance as a fraternity pin. Even a guy like Liberace can't get by with this sort of thing! . . . Marcella Shady is a new member of the Accounting Section. . . . Congratulations to Marvin Snyder. His wife presented him with another boy. They now have a quartet. . . . ## SCIENCE QUESTION BOX

by SCIENTISTS OF THE G.E.
RESEARCH LABORATORY

Q. How can I remove the hard water scale that forms inside a teakettle?

A. It can usually be removed by putting vinegar in the kettle and warming it, then alternating with water and vinegar. This will loosen the scale, which may then dissolve away. Such a scale consists of a deposit of calcium carbonate (the same as marble) with some magnesium, and it is not considered harmful to humans.

Q. Can a submarine adjust its ballast tanks to sink to some desired depth, then remain there without further adjustment?

A. Water, in general, increases slightly in density with the depth. A submarine could, theoretically, take on enough water to give it a certain over-all density, and when it had reached water of the same density it would not sink any farther. However, this would not be a stable condition. Any very slight variation in the density, either of the water or of the submarine, would cause the vessel to go up or down. Therefore, it is generally necessary to make continual adjustment, letting water in, or pumping it out, in order to remain at a certain depth. Sometimes, however, there may be found a layer of considerably increased density, due to lower temperature or greater saltiness, with a rather sharply defined upper edge. Under such conditions, the submarine may be able to "sit" quietly at this depth, without changing the tanks.

Q. How long have men had balloons?

A. Two brothers in France, J. M. and J. E. Montgolfier, are generally credited with the invention of the balloon in 1782. These first were bags filled with heated air. Using a large one, in 1783, Pilatre de Rozier was the first man to go aloft. In the same year another Frenchman, J. A. C. Charles, constructed one which contained hydrogen gas and was able to travel in it a distance of 27 miles.

Q. Is it possible to connect two television picture tubes to the same TV receiver?

A. It can be done, but it is considerably more complicated than connecting two loud speakers to one radio set. Because of the yokes around the tubes, and the circuits needed to drive them, it is necessary to have separate sweep components for each picture tube. This would necessitate perhaps seven or eight more tubes to supply these circuits. The extra picture tube would require many of the components of another receiver associated with it.

Q. Why does the sky look blue?

A. Small particles of dust in the air, and even air molecules themselves, scatter light. Because of their minute size, they do this only for violet and blue

SETS LONG SERVICE RECORD—Clement M. Schnieders (seated center) reached a 45-year service mark last month. He has been with the General Electric Company since 1909, when he was employed as a clerk in Bldg. 18-2. He is now supervisor of budgets for the Specialty Component Motor Department. Congratulating him are J. J. Clarkson (seated left) and Paul M. Deal (seated right). Standing (l-r) are Lloyd Stubbins, Miles Cameron, Leslie R. Rivers, and Reinhold R. Hofmann.

rays, which have the shortest wavelengths. It is this scattered blue light that gives the sky its characteristic color. When there is some haze present, the sky may look white because the tiny water droplets that make up the haze are large enough to scatter all colors, which make up white light. After the blue and violet are thus partially eliminated from the Sun's rays, the light which goes on through is predominantly red, and this is the reason for the Sun's red color at sunset. The blue rays that fail to reach us are then making the sky blue in places west of us.

Q. What is meant by basal metabolism?

A. This term indicates the heat produced by a person, 14 or more hours after the last intake of food and when comfortably at rest physically and mentally. The heat thus given off by a resting man of average weight is about equal to that of a 60-watt electric lamp. This heat output increases with activity.

Q. What is chlorophyll?

A. Chlorophyll is the green coloring matter of plants. Chemically it consists of carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen, oxygen and magnesium, arranged in a complicated molecule. It is involved in the important process of photosynthesis, whereby plants utilize light to decompose water and build up carbon dioxide into carbohydrates, which are useful as food.

Q. If the Earth turned much faster than it does now, would people at the equator cease to have any weight?

A. If the Earth remained spherical and turned once in about 85 minutes, instead of the present 24 hours, centrifugal force at the equator would just counterbalance the pull of gravity inwards and objects there would have no weight. However, even at the present rate of rotation, centrifugal force causes the Earth to bulge a little at the equator. With increased speed, it would bulge even more. Objects at the equator, being farther from the center, would then be pulled less by gravity, and a rotation period longer than 85 minutes would make them weightless.

Q. Is the ocean dark at great depths?

A. Yes. Even though sea water in a glass may seem quite clear, it does absorb light, and if the thickness is great enough, it may be quite opaque. Even where the water is clearest, it would look quite dark to a man at 2000 feet. Experiments made at 3300 feet show that a photographic plate had to be exposed for more than a hour to cause any blackening. At 5600 feet a similar plate was unaffected after an exposure of two hours.

The Fall season is definitely with us. Jim McGill has started wearing bow ties again. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Lenore Luttman, Oct. 27, and Helen Coryell, Oct. 31. . . . Good hunting to Kermit Griffin, sample shop, who is deer hunting in Canada this week. . . . Last Friday a group of girls met at Winnie Coates' home to celebrate Helen Studler and Chloe Weitzmann's birthdays. There was plenty to eat and a good time was had by everyone. . . . Mac McCray knows when to have a flat tire. If you doubt our word, ask Louise Lengerich. . . . Ed Lauer reports all is well with him and his new bifocals. His new chompers are on the way so before long he will be in tip-top form. . . . Sorry to see Ed Price leave us. We hope he likes his new job. . . . What's this about telling Frank Clifton you're hungry and he will bring you some chicken? . . . Again we welcome Eugene Boothby to the department. . . . Wanda Grimm had Nancy McCrea worried the other night. Nancy thought Wanda was going to make her walk home. Seems Wanda almost had to do other things. . . . From now on Erma Werling should be careful where she puts that little brown sack. . . . From all reports, some of us faithfully attended the political rallies. Let's hope the best man won. . . . Ducks are again flying over the west end of the floor. Good luck to all of the hunters. . . . Shorty Jackson took Friday off to hunt. How many did you bag? . . . Lorraine Papp takes her co-workers home with her. At least, she is always dreaming about them. . . . Frank Clifton is coming to work without his breakfast so he can ring in on time. He is doing this in all respect for his foreman. Please note, Ed Lauer. . . . Shorty Pequinot is going hunting in Canada for a week. We are wondering if the skunk that slept with him last year will welcome him back again. . . . Nancy McCray was trying to point out a good looking fellow running for some office in an ad containing pictures of service station attendants. This happened the morning after a big rally.

The girls in 1x50 had a potluck supper at Gertrude Bertsche's house Thursday evening. Gertrude went on pension and she received a lovely orchid and beautiful watch from the department. She wishes to thank everyone for being so nice. Hope you enjoy your free time, Gertrude. . . . Florence Byers was fastening her sweater and not paying attention to what she was doing and she had it fastened to her blouse. . . . With the change in time Clara Patterson says she will be walking around and feeling her way in the dark on the way to work in the mornings. . . . When Gladys Stong goes home in the evening she goes home to the dogs! . . . If we would have had a deep snow Joyce Schroeder would have worn her old shoes back to work as she forgot to change before she went home. . . . So sorry, but Hazel Stauffer is not going on her vacation yet. . . . Hazel Niswonger has given instructions to watch Elbert, her husband, while she is on her vacation. . . . Joye Shroyer moved into her new home recently. . . . John Figley claims they switched his drivers and that is why he got on the wrong bus going home. . . . Willard Smith says the new Chevrolests are out of this world! A real automobile! It won't be long now until he will break down and get one. . . . Paul Arnold took his car to Ossian to have it worked on and the car repair was only $1, but he went over to Harley Heckleys and ate $2 worth of food and griped all the time because he didn't have a TV to watch. He also found out why his car wasn't working. Only five pistons were working instead of six! . . . Jake Kugler doesn't think the vitamins he is taking are too potent, as he isn't walking on the ceiling yet! . . . Congratulations to the Wayne Nicholes on the new boy, Dennis Wayne. . . . Barbara Ternet, Ardola Metker, and Ellen Johnson had their picture taken with Ronald Reagan's and quoting one of the girls, "they would rather hold the real thing instead of a picture." . . . It was nice seeing John and Bertha Piper when they paid us a visit. Come see us again. . . . Rena Hullinger looked the part of a glamor gal when she wore her new "Falstaff" earrings. . . . Glen Castle sure picked the wrong time to get sick. It rained and he couldn't even paint on his new house. . . . Ruby Chrysler took her soldier son and went to Cleveland to visit her sister. . . . We of Section 401 extend our sympathy to Robert Spitzer on the death of his mother. . . . Birthday greetings to Olive Elliott, Nov. 1; Cora Rice, Nov. 3; Joyce Schroeder, Nov. 3; Frank Brindle, Nov. 4; Clarence Rentschler, Nov. 5; Bill Wickliffe, Nov. 10; Margaret Erickson, Nov. 10; Cecil Onion, Nov. 13; Ella Staver, retired, Nov. 19; Clara Krudop Schneider, retired; Nov. 25; Vera Petro, retired, Nov. 19; Helen Struver, Nov. 25; and Paul Hendricks, Jr., Nov. 25.

SPECIALTY MOTORS Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

We think Marie Renz is quite generous with her Halloween pranksters. She even treats their parents, too. We will all be out too, Marie. . . . We wonder if Viola Haiber found out who placed the political card on her desk. . . . Philip Nearing is at the Parkview Memorial Hospital for observation. His room number is 314. . . . Beverly Gebert treated us to lovely cup cakes this morning and a little later she came along with chocolate bars. . . . We have received a card from Katie Minehart who is in Florida for a couple of weeks. Hope she sends us another pretty one soon. . . . We understand Beverly Gebert has her Christmas present already — a lovely TV set. Now you never will get anything done, Beverly. . . . Today it snowed a bit, makes us think of Christmas trees, Christmas cards, apples, and pop corn. . . . Dixie Hogg used Gertrude Koldewey's car the other day — and she left the lights on. What a trip that turned out to be — and the battery was still in good condition, wasn't it, Dixie? . . . Clinton Sorenson is in Wisconsin attending the funeral of a relative. . . . Hugo Herbst now has two entrances to his garage since Mrs. Herbst drove their car through the east end of their garage. . . . Which do you need most, Hugo? A carpenter or a mechanic. . . . Of course, we are waiting with bated breath for the arrival of Ronald Reagan.

COUNT OFF SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST. by Ruby Stoops

Stop! Look! Listen! Leo Miller just went by pushing a truck. Poor Leo, they don't furnish you even the electrical kind. . . . We're sure happy to have Bernie Warner and Louise Sims pay us a visit. . . . One night last week Herb Richter walked in the alley and a man was there moving a stove so he asked Herb if he would help lift it. Herb laid his thermos bottle down and what did they do but drop the stove on his thermos and smash it flat. Herb doesn't feel now like it pays to be a Good Samaritan! . . . Sydonna Fox and myself say farewell to Taylor St. this week. We have enjoyed it while we were here. . . . Oral Emerick is just sure he is going to lose some of his votes. Why?

TOOL BITS BLDG. 19-4 and 5 by Howard Demsey

There are all indications of a cold fierce winter if you can depend on the signs. The caterpillar has a heavier fur coating, the rabbit has a much thicker pelt and Maury Sordelet bought six electric blankets at the Employee Store. . . . Speaking of blankets, the expert judge of blanket quality is Elmer Sauerwein. He can pick out the heavyweights that weigh as much as six pounds more than average. Everyone acknowledged he got a "steel" in the blanket line at that price. . . . When a TV set that you bought goes bad, you can rightfully put up a howl; but when one that your wife won on a drawing gets that blank look, you begin to wonder whether you should look a gift TV set in the chassis. In Maury Sordelet's case he was able to find the minor trouble himself and correct it. . . . We wish to extend our sympathy to Clarence Meeks on the death of his mother and to Don Martz on the death of his father. . . . Anyone wishing to know the scores of games, football or otherwise, please contact Bob Mosshammer and Ken Gerber. They won two hockey game tickets by guessing scores on a TV program quiz. Of course, if you take their advice and happen to win two tickets you'd better think twice before using them. The day after they used them Ken didn't get in to work and Bob wished that he hadn't. . . . Jim McFeely is spending the weekend in Milwaukee attending the National Tool and Die Conference. . . . The Harlan basketball team hopes that they have the keys to a successful season in that two sons of Dallas Kees are members of the team this year. . . . Vic Barcus's sport coat is one of those you would most like to be wearing in the woods during deer hunting season. . . . Nolan Lowden, being a Boy Scout leader likes to practice what he preaches. On his birthday last Friday he brought in a cake measuring 27 by 18 by 4 inches for his friends who wished him many happy returns. That means they'd be happy if he returned with cake on future birthdays. . . . The buttons that were swept up from the floor belonged to Glenn Bower who is proud of joining the ranks of the 25-year men. . . . We extend our sympathy to Chet Reynolds on the death of his sister. . . . Earl Lenz was ticket-seller and taker and his wife did K. P. for the St. John fish fry which was attended by Marion More, Eldon Mee, Wilson Garman, George Spittler, Mart Walsh, and Bud Dunlap. . . . If any radio or TV sound effects men are looking for an imitation of a mule we suggest they contact Henry Wittber. It seems that his practicing was beginning to "bray" on the nerves of those working around him. . . . Kenny Sefton says that the only advantage he can see in the new DST schedule is that he doesn't have to hurry home so fast to see Pinky Lee. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hirschman on the birth of a baby girl. . . . Gene Denig was seen in a very serious mood standing on the stock room scales. If you have a sure-fire method to reduce, pass it along to Gene. He would like to take 10 or 20 pounds off his 200 pound frame. . . . Although Earl Lenz has mastered the building of better dies he found he hasn't yet reached the point of no return (from check-room, that is). . . . Ross Cohagen has decided to get a couple of Navy storm masks they're giving away with a breakfast cereal and convert them to smog masks for his next trip to California.

BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

The lid of the 1954-1955 season of the GE Club interdivision basketball season was lifted with a bang. The Squares and the Test Engineers got things into high gear with a 40 to 38 thriller and the Cylinders tripped the Penthouse Dubs also by a two-point victory, 41 to 39. Those were the Tuesday night encounters. On Thursday night the games were altogether different. The Apprentice School had too much on the ball for the BTC lads and swamped them to the tune of 57 to 26. The champion Firemen clobbered Taylor St. Works Lab 49 to 24.

GAMES NEXT WEEK

Tuesday, Nov. 9
7 p.m. Squares vs. Firemen
8:15 p.m. BTC vs. Cylinders
Thursday, Nov. 11
7 p.m. T.S. Works Lab vs. Penthouse Dubs
8:15 p.m. T.E.'s vs. Apprentice

Squares-TE's

The Squares hopped off to a 7 to 0 lead in the first minute and a half of play before the Test Engineers could get their offensive under way. Both teams played mid-season form and gave the new season a fine send-off.

Quanbeck and Engelman roared the TE's to a knotted count of 38 all with two and a half minutes to go. Carl had almost single handed kept the Squares in the ball game. At this point, the Squares went into a possession game that almost backfired. Carl was fouled and missed both charity tosses. On a quick play the TE's went under their bucket but the shot failed to connect. At a minute to go Walley sent a spinning quarter court fielder through the hoop for the victory.

Carl led the winners with a 12-point total, while Engelman of the TE's led both clubs with 15.

Cylinders—Penthouse Dubs

The Cylinders from over Winter St. way built up a 26 to 18 half time lead over the Penthouse Dubs but had to stave off a Dub rally in the last half to come out the winner by the score of 41 to 39.

Rhode, Walker and Smith led the Cylinder scoring in the first with 13 of their teams 15 scores. The Dubs uncovered a clever lad by the name of Warford who kept his team in contention throughout the game.

The Dubs came up to within three points of the Cylinders in the third stanza Croghan leading the way. Both teams were wild the final quarter and the Cylinders eked out the two point win.

You know, sometime ago Al Happel kidded me in his column about my age. You are only as old as you feel, boy. From the way you looked in those basketball trunks, brother, you had better stay on the bench and let the lads play the game.

Apprentice—BTC

The Apprentice presenting a real tough looking ball club bowled a much smaller but very aggressive BTC team by the score of 57 to 26.

Most of the Apprentice points were scored under the hoop while the BTC lads had to be content to fire away from the outside. Dick Buffenbarger canned six points, half of the school lads points in the initial stanza while Bob Farnbauch scored all of his teams tallies a total of seven.

All ten of the players on the School team got into the scoring act with Buffenbarger leading his mates with 12. Dick took a back seat to Bob Farnbauch of BTC however who was the games scoring leader with 16.

Firemen—Taylor St. Lab

The champion Firemen pulled a two platoon on the Lab team and won going away.

Big Chick Morketter led a first quarter assault with eight points leading the Firemen to a 13-3 bulge. Only Beltz a fine looking lad for the Lab team was able to score a fielder.

The second platoon took over and built up a half time lead of 20-11 at half time.

Scoring 15 points in the third the first platoon continued the slaughter. The lab registered only three. It was 35-15 Firemen.

Big Benny Penkul broke in the scoring column in the last session with three baskets from under the hoop. Beltz tossed in a pair in a futile effort for the Lab. The game ended 49 to 24.

Masonic League

Fellowcraft have won 12 and lost 6 for the top spot in the league. Patrols are in second place with 11 wins and 7 losses. In a tie for third place with 10 wins and 8 losses are Trowels and Ionic. Jones kegled 223; Edwards, 214; Quinn, 212; Peters, 212; Habig, 211; and Moore, 210.

Small Motor

Drafting took over top spot and have won 14½ while losing 6½. Tommy's Lunch dropped to second place with 12½ wins and 8½ losses. Tommy's Tavern, Unlucky 113, and Hanna St. are tied for third place with 12 wins and 9 losses. Walt Rietdorf kegled a 622 on games of 202, 233, and 187. Ed Schaefer, 215; Dick Webber, 233; E. Downie, 200-209; E. LeFavour, 202; Frank Quinn, 221; and Howard Stephen, 210.

Interdivision League

Last Wednesday's bowling in the Interdivision League tightened the race for first place. After the scores were all in it was found that Brouwer Tire & Battery and the Pindusters are tied for first place with 14 wins and 7 losses. Kinney Koncession and Summit City Heating right behind with 13 wins and 8 losses.

The Pindusters are ahead in the single game and three game total, they have a high single game of 1028 and a three game total of 2912.

Erv Trand has high single game of 247.

Vic Rump has high three-game total of 620.

The 200 count feud between Charley Wilt and Ralph Schroeder is still going on. Last Wednesday Schroeder had the last laugh when he got his 200 count and collected his bet from Charley.

Jerry Koehl rolled a gutterball and said that is the first time he ever put a ball in the gutter. First time since when, Jerry?

Counts of 200 last week were rolled by: Arnold, 201; Mills, 213; Schoenlein, 211; Shroyer, 205;

Schroeder, 200; Lenz, 209; Hagenjos, 214; France, 203; Matthews, 212; Luedeman, 202.

Ladies' Friday Evening

Teams No. 1 and 5 are still tied for first place league honors in the Friday evening ladies bowling league with 15 wins and 6 losses. The second place team is again Team 3 with 12 wins and 9 losses.

A. DesGranges rolled a 576 score with games of 176, 187, and 213; T. Williams, 546 with 176, 202, and 188 games; and C. Stanford a 503 total with 174, 138, and 191 games.

Kathy Crouse rolled a 177; Zella Howell, 172; Gertie Koldewey, 170; and Donna Schwartz, 177.

Apparatus League

Team No. 12, State Farm Mutual, is in first place with 14 wins and 7 losses. Team No. 8 is in second place with a 13 won, 8 lost record, and Team No. 1 is in third place with 12 wins and 9 losses. Team No. 3, Corner Shell Service, rolled into first place in the high single game division with a 1036 count. Team No. 11 took over first place in the high three-game column by rolling 2787.

Bob (Sore Thumb) Blomker's thumb must have healed considerably as he rolled 203, 215, and 201 for a 619. Tom Anderson's 601 was scored on games of 180, 211, and 210.

Erv Schlotterback came up with 244 to wrest the lead from Don Greenber, last week's leader in the high single game race. Other 200 scores follow: Harold Geise, 205; Charles Redding, 203; Ed Reese, 201; and Rolla Roe, 200.

STARTING SEASON—Bill Schible (right), president of the GE Club, hands over the season's first basketball. With him are (l-r) Earl Stauffer, league manager; Bob Knepple, assistant league manager; Erv Huth, athletic chairman; Gil Baker, scorer; and Charlie Wilt, GE Club manager. First tipoff of the season is shown in the center picture. The game between the Squares and TE's ended in a 40 to 38 victory for the Squares. In the picture at right, Walter Whonsetler, Bldg. 4-6, and Al Happel, manager of the Penthouse Dubs look over the final score of their opening night game with the Cylinders. Cylinders won 41 to 39.

MBA to Suspend Dues for Seven Weeks

Elex Night Girls Plan Luncheon, Theater Party

Second shift members of Elex Club will have a Theater Party Thursday, Nov. 18, Maxine Digregory, vice president, reported this week. Elexers will meet at the YWCA at 11:30 a.m. for a luncheon and will then travel to the Clyde theater to attend a movie.

The film will be "White Christmas" which stars Bing Crosby, Danny Kaye, Rosemary Clooney and Vera-Ellen. It is a musical filmed in Technicolor and featuring the new Vista-Vision.

Tickets for the luncheon are $1.25 and may be secured from contact girls. Deadline for obtaining tickets is Tuesday, Nov. 16, the vice president stated.

A total of 357 Elex Christmas boxes were shipped this week to GE employees now in the Armed Forces, Mabel Fann, chairman of the club defense program, reported. Of this amount, 192 boxes went to servicemen and women stationed overseas. The boxes contained two pounds of candies.

Members of the defense committee assisting the chairman are Donna Bauermeister, Marguerite Schnieders, and Hattie Drinks.

EXPLORER TO SPEAK

Foremen-Supervisors Joint Meeting To Feature 'Alaskan Sea Safari'

A sea voyage to Alaska awaits members of the Foremen's Association and Supervisors Club at their joint dinner meeting Wednesday, Dec. 1, in the GE Club auditorium.

Invitations will be mailed next week to all members. Dinner will be served in two shifts, at 5:30 and 6 p.m. Replies should be returned to Wallace E. Beer, Bldg. 18-1, by Monday, Nov. 29.

The program will feature Len Stuttman, and his color motion picture "Alaskan Sea Safari". The voyage will be made over the famous Inside Passage between the rocky Pacific Coast and a chain of rugged mountain islands. In the icy Straits area, the story unfolds. This is the Alaska that belonged to Russia less than 90 years ago.

The film was produced, photographed and is narrated by Stuttman, one of the youngest film lecturers in the business. At 28, Stuttman, a Michigan State College graduate, has made two trips to Alaska to record his adventures. He also produces educational, commercial, and television films when not preoccupied in graduate work at Michigan State.

His program shows the dynamics of the sea, trout fishing in high alpine lakes, an Indian village with colorful totems in concrete, the inhabitants of Alaska in town and wilderness.

'Story of Light' Now Showing at Palace

"The Story of Light," one of the latest of the Excursions in Science subjects opened yesterday at the Palace Theater along with "High and Dry" starring Paul Douglas. The film will be shown through Tuesday, Nov. 16.

To tell the story of man's efforts to combat darkness, General Electric has used the new stop-motion technique employed in Hollywood, Holland in the studios of Joop Geesink. The film was produced to honor Light's Diamond Jubilee.

Scenes from the past were recreated by exacting artists in the Geesink studios with tiny puppets which enhance the adventure in light. In producing the film, the lifelike puppets are moved imperceptibly by hand and the scenes shot frame by frame.

The 10 minute sound picture has an original musical score played by the London Symphony Orchestra and is filmed in Technicolor. The only line of narration is the quotation from the Book of Genesis which ends with "and the Lord said let there be light." From this point the music sets the mood.

October Finance Report Shows Total Assets $25.47 per Member

Payment of dues in the Mutual Benefit Association will be suspended next week for the 6,109 members for a period of seven weeks, Edward Witte, general chairman of MBA, announced today. This action has been approved by the general committee and is provided for by the MBA constitution.

The constitution states that payment of dues by members shall be suspended when the balance in the general fund amounts to $25 per member and shall be resumed when the balance has been reduced to $20 per member.

The October, 1954 financial report of the MBA Dependent Insurance Plan shows total assets of $155,951.37. With 6,109 members in the plan, the average is now $25.47 per member.

Based on Benefits

On the basis of the average benefits paid in recent months, the funds available for disbursement will be sufficient to suspend dues for seven weeks, the general chairman reported.

Deductions will cease with wages earned in the week beginning Nov. 15, 1954. Salaried employees will receive this pay check Nov. 19 and hourly rated employees will receive this pay check Dec. 1.

Dues will be resumed with the week beginning Jan. 3, 1955 for which salary will be paid January 7 and hourly rate will be paid Jan. 19.

This is the first suspension of dues in the MBA since it was organized in the MBA Dependent Plan since it was organized by GE employees in 1947. The plan has been operating on a schedule of increased benefits for hospital room and board, hospital extras, and surgical expenses since Feb. 15, 1954.

Dues 85 Cents

Also included in the plan are maternity benefits for the member's dependent. Dues were increased to 85 cents per week at that time. The dues are the same regardless of the number of dependents.

Hospital expense is provided by the plan in the amount up to $10 per day with a maximum of $700 per disability. Surgical expenses are provided up to $175, and hospital extras are given up to $100 for each disability.

MBA is operated by the members, who elect chairmen from their sections to represent them on the general committee. At present, there are 39 sections. In addition to the general chairman, there is a general secretary of the organization, Roslyn Kleeman. The two officers are located in Bldg. 18-1. Chairmen of the sections will be elected next month.

From their total assets of $155,951.37, the association has invested $132,000 in government bonds and savings deposits to earn an interest on the assets. These investments are approved by the general committee and company management.

Chemical Society Elects Lab Man Chairman

The Northeastern Indiana Section of the American Chemical Society has elected Dr. H. L. Thomas of the Laboratory as chairman for 1954 and 1955.

After graduation from Utica Free Academy, Utica, New York, in 1940, he entered Cornell University, Ithaca, New York. Dr. Thomas spent the years 1942-1946 in the Army, serving in the Field Artillery, the Armored Force, and Anti-aircraft Artillery. He then returned to Cornell, where he obtained an A.B. in chemistry in 1947 and an M.S. in organic chemistry in 1949. In 1952 he obtained his Ph.D. degree in organic chemistry at Indiana University.

Dr. Thomas joined the Chemical Insulation Unit of the Fort Wayne Laboratory in December, 1951, as an organic chemist in Applied Research.

Reward For Playing Safe

SUCKERS FOR SAFETY—Kenny Habecker, driver of the Broadway-Taylor St. bus, has hit on a good way to keep small children out of the street along Lindley Ave. He gives them suckers or other candy in exchange for their promises to stay out of the street, as he is doing with Larry Hughes, four years old.

BULLETIN

Night Traffic Accidents

Night brings many more accidents in proportion to the number of persons and vehicles on streets and highways. Reduced visibility is the most important difference but there are other important differences, too, according to Indiana Traffic Safety Foundation.

For instance, there is more heavy drinking at night and more drunken drivers and pedestrians. There is more tendency to drive recklessly due to the protection darkness affords from police observation. Often there are fewer traffic officers on duty to catch the violator. There is less traffic interference and even the law abiding are tempted to use too much speed. Crowds coming from gay parties and athletic events are often in an exuberant and reckless mood. Motorists who have driven long distances are weary and tend to become drowsy.

Each of these, in addition to inability to see well, make night driving more hazardous. The long hours of darkness at this time of year also include the evening peak hours of travel. All point to the need to slow down at sundown and to use even greater care. Many wise people are afraid of the dark.

How Do You Feel?

When you wake up in the morning do you feel good about things? Do you feel rested and anxious to face the day? If you can truthfully answer these questions "yes," the chances are you are physically and mentally in good health.

If your answers to these questions are "no" better take steps to find out why. Your problems may be simply not getting enough sleep—eight hours is the desirable amount. Or, perhaps you're not eating correctly. Extreme overweight can cause you to lose your zest for living. An unrecognized physical disorder—anemia, diabetes, TB, vitamin deficiency or even eye strain can change your whole outlook on life. Check these things periodically with your doctor.

Then again a tired feeling or lack of interest in life may be due to your mental outlook. You know it's just as important to keep yourself mentally healthy as well as physically healthy.

To feel good about life and yourself, be sure to pay attention to these:

- 1) Maintain good health habits. Sleep right, eat and drink sensibly and obey the rules of personal hygiene you have learned.
- 2) Cultivate some good interests in life in addition to an interest in your home and family. Engage in active or spectator sports, civic activities; learn to paint or to sew, or to take up some other hobby which interests you.
- 3) Live within your means. Money problems, real or fanciful, can cause lots of unhappiness. If you are smart you will live within your budget, and include a regular savings plan as part of your budget.
- 4) Don't stew and fret about your problems, and the decisions you have made, especially after they have been made. Best thing to do is to solve problems as they arise, and not to allow them to accumulate. Forget the water that has gone over the dam. Don't be afraid to seek outside help with really serious problems.

These are only a few of the ways to gain better mental health and to enjoy life more fully. There are any number of good books on the market today from which you can get more information. The librarian in any public library can help you select some.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

The other day Harold Hart was wondering if the change in environment had done Ralph Dunlap any good since he has been transferred to the Winter St. plant. We were in hopes that he would show great improvement, but from all reports he is worse now than he ever was while with us here at Taylor St. As you all know, Ralph has been troubled with a heavy foot while driving his car and has had several run-ins with the gendarmes due to excessive speed. He has become a speed maniac deluxe, throwing all caution to the winds. He really pushes that old kettle to the utmost and in doing so he recently piled it into the rear end of a concrete mixing truck, completely demolishing the car. Friend wife informed him that if and when they get a new one he absolutely cannot drive it. . . . If you will but remember, last year along about this time Howard Harold was peddling geese to his co-workers. It seems that he gave Harold Hart a prize goose then upped the price on the others he sold to make up for the one he gave away. At the time we gave publicity to his methods, so this year he informs us that he absolutely will not give away or sell to his co-workers. This is a good deal, Howard, as we all will save a little money. . . . A few weeks ago we printed a story about Lillian Hall and her gigantic load of fertilizer. In this story we made the statement that she got this fertilizer for free, but we wish to retract that statement as Lill informed us that it cost her $6.50. Our apologies to you, Lillian, as our informant was wrong. However, she tells that she still has an ample supply on hand and if anyone would like to have some just drive out to her place and you can have all you want for free. Hers is a non-profit organization.

Difficulty in news gathering arises from the feeling, as expressed by Tommy Thompson, Manager—Sales, "If you tell what happens to the other guy, you're tattling, and if you tell what happens to yourself, you're bragging." . . . We all extend our sympathy to Ken Whearley and family on the recent death of his father. . . . Donald Fry, from Green Bay, Wis., is our new sales TE in Mr. Robertson's section. Don has a BS degree in Business Administration from the University of Wisconsin. He is married, and his wife Pat, RN, is currently employed at the Veteran's Hospital. . . . If we observe Ingrid Swanson with a lean hungry look let's not be unduly concerned. Ingrid's mother, who has a reputation for being a really "super" cook is visiting in Everett, Wash. for several weeks. . . . Ray Kierspe is very proud of his granddaughter, born on his daughter's birthday. . . . Congratulations to Rosie Hoebel and Don Loraine on their engagement. . . . We wish Denton Manecke a speedy recovery. He was operated on a week ago at the St. Joseph's Hospital. . . . Welcome to Harvey Happ from Chicago. He is working for Mr. R. L. Hupp. . . . Marylis Lenz spent Wednesday in Toledo with her mother, Mrs. Kenneth Redding, who has undergone surgery at Parkview Hospital, Toledo. . . . Both Hazel Lichtenstiger and Donna Feber left the accounting section to become full-time housewives. . . . We are glad to welcome Alfred Meyer back to the accounting section after a two year sojourn with Uncle Sam. Al comes back to us on the BTC course. . . . Emeroh Deal is now all ready for winter. He has all the storm windows and doors up. However, he will probably need all winter to recover from the stiffness caused by this strenuous exercise. . . . Ronald Reagan so impressed the accounting office last week that they let him get completely through the office without having to sign one autograph. They made up for it later however. Katie Walper even had him to herself for a short time. Lucky girl! . . . Traffic tickets for running red lights come awfully expensive in Ohio, so says Jo Franklin who learned the hard lesson from experience last week end. Hmmm, what were you looking at Jo, if not the traffic lights? . . . We are wondering just what Louise Goudy was thinking about the other day when she walked up to the time clock and rang out at 11:30. Maybe she just couldn't wait for lunch. . . . The Taylor Triad reporters enjoyed the press conference with Ronald Reagan. Thanks so much, Virginia!

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Fay E. Patten is back in Section 17. After leaving the 51 frame she went to Broadway for a number of weeks. She came back to Taylor St. and spent several weeks in Section 14 and 13. We are glad to have you back Fay E. . . . Alma Raymer was all excited the other night. She thought she had left her lunch in the locker room and started out to get it and discovered she was carrying it with her all the time. . . . Audrey Brindle went home ill last Friday, but was back on the job again Monday. It just goes to show you that you can't keep a good person down. . . . We are glad to see John Boyer back to work after a back injury. . . . Margaret Kenyon had a fine time in Detroit last week end. She went shopping in the largest shopping center in the world, consisting of 800 acres near Detroit. . . . We have been missing our general foreman, Fred Pyle this week. He has been going to school. Better learning, Fred. . . . Louis Manns was absent last Friday to attend his son's wedding, Louis, Jr. who was married at the EUB church in Decatur. . . . The GE can't quite decide where they want Elmer Evans to work. One week at Broadway and the next at Taylor St. You see, Elmer will retire this month and they want him to get a view of the various working places at the GE. . . . We wonder what Bob Hull was stepping down the aisle so fast for with a certain gentleman. He was much concerned about something, but we guess it was OK as Bob returned soon. . . . Homer Huser reminds us of a school boy after a day at school. He is always starved. First you see him eating a piece of cake, then an apple, a sandwich, or a piece of candy. Always eating! Better watch that waist line, Homer. . . . We want to welcome Walter Childers to the 21 frame line. Hope you like your job and your co-workers, Walter. . . . We are glad to see some of our girls back on second trick tying section. It isn't so lonesome around here now. . . . That's all for now. See you next week.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to C. Elder on Nov. 13. . . . WELCOME TO OUR NEW TE, Lane Hinkley. He hails from Michigan and is a graduate of Michigan State. He works for C. J. Herman. Oh yes, girls, he is single. . . . BILL HOFFMEYER usually walks out the Broadway gate, so one day last week he started out Broadway but was soon seen going to the Fair field lot where he had his car. . . . BEST WISHES to Beverly Schoeph who is becoming a Giant this Saturday. Did we say Giant? Mrs. James L. Giant, that is. . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Joe Donahoe today, and to Chuck Kelson next Monday. . . . WAS HIS FACE RED? When Dick Lelio was asked "why the red mark?" on his clock card a week ago last Monday, he admitted he forgot to change his clock ahead. . . . CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mynhier (formerly Barbara Moore) on the birth of a 7 lb. son, Robin Gene on October 19. . . . HI TO CARL LEITCH still "taking life easy" in the Lutheran Hospital. . . . "THE DIXIE KID" they call him. Bob Susdorf was overheard to say (while in a telephone conversation) "Oh, that's just my southern accent, I'm from South Bend." . . . WE ARE HAPPY TO REPORT that Esther Batchelder is feeling fine after her operation. We, especially Eileen, will be looking forward to seeing her back at her desk in a few weeks. . . . CONGRATULATIONS TO PAUL HORSTMAYER, who celebrated his birthday on Nov. 10. Belated wishes to G. F. Bond, who had his birthday on Nov. 5. Of course, both the fellows are only 39. . . . RALPH SHOAF has a new grandson born October 22 to Robert and Joan. Already Ralph is baby sitting with the little tyke. . . . IF YOU HAVE SEEN A NEW FACE in the production section, it belongs to Ralph Derubo. He came to us from Schenectady and is replacing Russell Blackburn. No, Russ hasn't left us, he just moved next door in with the purchasing group. . . . ED DALLIN has moved to Bldg. 8-2. . . . PERRY ZAHN is devoting his spare time doing work on his new house on the Randall Road. . . . F. L. GALE will soon be moving into his new home on Buell Drive. . . . RUTH AND NED NEUMAN spent last week end at Piqua, Ohio. . . . YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN ILENE HARDISTY at a recent Halloween party. She represented Mrs. Fort Wayne and took second prize.

SPECIALTY MOTORS

Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

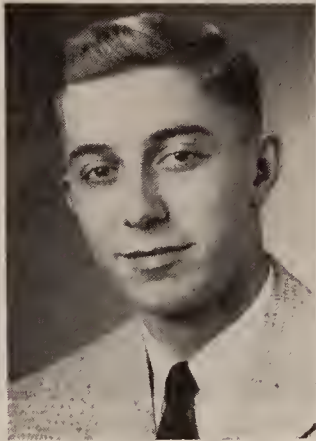

Catherine Minehart is back to work this week, after a sojourn in Florida, looking wonderful. She brought us some very good candy and some pretty shells to Viola Haiber. . . . If you thought Virginia Googlein was sitting lopsided on her chair Friday morning, you were right. She had fallen off the steps at home. Should you have had a pillow, Virginia? . . . We are happy to report Phil Nearing has left the hospital and is resting at home. We all wish you a speedy recovery, Phil. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Simeon King's wife, who is at the hospital at this time. . . . One of the highlights of our lives was meeting and talking with Ronald Reagan. The girls thought he was all they had hoped for—ummm and a little bit more.

Two Apprentices Graduate

Glenn M. Camp

Woodrow W. Trostel

Two members of the GE Apprentice School were graduated today from the machinist-tool-maker course, Richard Gebert, supervisor, has announced. The graduates are Glenn M. Camp and Woodrow W. Trostel.

In May, 1951 Camp joined the company and went to work in Bldg. 26-5 on assembly. The next month he entered the Apprentice School.

Camp is a member of the Indiana National Guard. He graduated from Garrett High School in May, 1951 and resides at R.R. 2, Avilla.

Also coming to GE in May, 1951 Trostel joined the Apprentice School in June the same year. He graduated from Garrett High School in May, 1951 and lives at R. R. 3, Auburn, Ind.

John McClure, 75, Dies In St. Joseph Hospital

A Quarter Century Club member, John Hamilton McClure, 75, died Friday, Nov. 5 in St. Joseph Hospital. He had been ill for ten days. Services were conducted Monday, Nov. 8 at the Munson Chapel Methodist Church by the Rev. Richard Unkenholtz. Burial was in the Roanoke IOOF Cemetery.

Mr. McClure, who resided on R.R. 1, Roanoke, came to General Electric in 1916. He was a punch press operator and operated an elevator in Bldg. 26 prior to retiring December 1, 1946.

John H. McClure

Survivors include seven sons, L. F. and C. C. McClure, of Roanoke; J. C. McClure, Flint, Mich.; O. E. McClure, Lima, Ohio; T. F. McClure, Columbia City; E. H. McClure, Flint, and Sgt. Harry R. McClure, with U. S. Army, Rock Springs, Wyoming; five daughters, Mrs. Ross Ringwalt and Mrs. William Grim, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Louis Kratzer, Rome City; Mrs. Joseph Friedl, Flint, and Mrs. Fred Fink, Wolcottville; two brothers, Frank and Ray; three sisters, Mrs. David Kohler, Mrs. Ray Taber, and Mrs. Hattie Karns; 40 grandchildren, and 40 great-grandchildren.

Halleck Gives Paper At NRC Conference

Marion C. Halleck, engineer in the Laboratory, recently presented a paper, prepared jointly with Dr. J. C. Devins, Research Laboratory, Schenectady, before the Conference on Electrical Insulation of the National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council held at Pocono Manor, Pa.

His paper entitled "Factors Influencing the Discharge Inception Voltage in Gas-Solid Dielectric Systems", deals with the phenomena and development of a graphical method of determining corona start voltage and variation of corona start voltage due to electrode configuration and in non-uniform fields.

ald was in our building and he made a special trip back to the office to sign an autograph for our steno, Meldred Messer. Long after he had gone Mildred sat at her desk with her eyes closed, a smile on her lips, and smoke coming out of her ears. Reminded me of an incense burner we used to have. . . . There's one in every outfit. Ralph (high-pockets) Garrett forgot about the fast time switch and came in an hour late last Monday. . . . Joe Ostrowski is up in Canada this week hunting deer. He came in to see us before he left so that we might get a look at him in his hunting outfit. Joe won't need a gun, he'll scare the deer to death. . . . Mildred, our steno, says she's heard so much about Scotland Yard that she'd like to see it. "It must be an awfully big place," says Millie. "I'd sure hate to be the one who cuts the grass!"

What's Going On Here

MTP WIVES TO MEET—Mrs. Jeanne Kirby, sportswear buyer at Nobbson's, will be featured on the MTP Wives program Wednesday, Nov. 17. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Gordon Walker, 41 Willoughby Place, Anthony Wayne Village.

Mrs. Kirby will demonstrate the use of accessories with various outfits and will give a preview of spring fashions. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. James Linzell and Mrs. Robert King, Jr. are in charge of arrangements.

PARTIZAN FOUNDERS' DAY—Partizan Chapter of Elex Club will observe its founders day at an anniversary tea Tuesday, Nov. 16, Myrtle Bennett, president, announced this week. Marking the eighth anniversary of the organization, the tea will take place at the Psi Ote house, Franke Park and will begin at 1 p.m.

Hostesses for the event are Wilma Garringer, Hilda Martin, Annette Hastings, and Edna Fletcher.

TRAINEES PLAN JOINT DINNER—Members of the Manufacturing Training Program and Employee and Plant Community Relations Program will conduct a dinner meeting Friday, Nov. 19 at the Colonial Restaurant. The meeting will begin at 7:15 p.m. in the private dining room.

W. D. Criswell, of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane Securities, will be the principal speaker. He will discuss "How to Invest."

Tickets for the dinner may be purchased from representatives in any of the evening classes in the program for $2.25. Deadline for obtaining tickets is Wednesday, Nov. 17.

The five representatives who will have tickets are: Richard Mills, Bldg. 31-1; Lem Robinson, Taylor St.; John Fitzsimmons, Bldg. 6-3; John Bryant, Bldg. 26-2, and David Berglin, Taylor St.

EL-PAR MEETS NOV. 17—Wednesday, Nov. 17 El-Par Chapter of Elex Club will meet in the GE Club at 1 p.m., Mamie Allen, president, reported this week. The meeting will include a dessert luncheon and games in addition to the business meeting.

Members are asked to take donations for the Thanksgiving baskets that will be contributed by El-Par to needy families.

Hostesses are in addition to the president Helen Scheer, Stella Morrois, and Roqua Wibel.

THE FORT WAYNE ENGINEERS CLUB will meet Wednesday, Nov. 17 at the Chamber of Commerce at 6:30 p.m. Robert Harter Snyder, head of the Architecture School, Cranbrook Academy, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., will be the guest speaker. "Community Planning" is the title of his address.

Entertainment will be provided. Dinner tickets, which may be purchased for $2.50 per member, may be obtained from any of the group's contact men.

Snyder is a nationally recognized authority on community planning. In his position at Cranbrook Academy, he has supervised studies in a number of communities, aimed at coordination of such factors as economics, recreational needs, and natural resources, all of which affect the future of the population.

A graduate of Syracuse University, Snyder was the recipient of the Henry Adams Award of Scholarship and the Edward Langly Prize for Design. He taught architecture at Syracuse for two years and took graduate study at Cranbrook. He served with Albert Kahn Associated Architects in the design of various war plants. Snyder has been at Cranbrook for the past four years.

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlhaffen

Hugh Neely received a phone call the other morning to the effect that he had locked his car and left the lights burning. Hugh went out to investigate and found that Henry Carnall had locked his car and left the motor running. I guess it just wasn't their day. . . . Art Bear is going on his vacation this week. He figures on doing some hunting. Wonder what his excuse will be this year. Last year the powder in the shells was dry and that's why he didn't get anything. . . . We wonder what happened to the feud between Otto Brandt and Walt Niemeyer. . . . Bob Till will soon have pressed duck for sale. He ran out of roasted chicken and is now running over every duck he sees. . . . Crappie fishing is done mostly at night and those crisp autumn evenings chill you through and through. At least that's what Carl Hattendorf experienced when he said, "Let's go home, Elmer, I'm cold." . . . Dorothy Klug is thrilled over the personal autograph from Ronald Reagan. . . . We are beginning to wonder if Section 114 will ever again be as it was, BRR. . . . Welcome to our office to Donna Bauermeister and Mary Rogers. . . . Happy birthday to Shirley Clark, and on Nov. 11 to Bill Skevington, from all of us. . . . Keith Kalb has moved into his new home. . . . We certainly hope that those thermos bottles we have been seeing around the office lately don't pack the power of the one on the TV play "Panic" . . . Most of the men who got autographs from Ronald Reagan got them for their daughters. We wonder who the one Kenny Williams got was for. . . . Jim Linzell tells us he heard Ernie Roman singing on the radio the other morning. Ernie says, "It's a great thrill to sing those grand old Gospel hymns and know they are reaching into hundreds of homes to help and cheer." . . . Ray Brown says hunting in the north woods isn't all it's cracked up to be. He didn't have any luck hunting, but he caught a beautiful cold. . . . If you happen to be in the office, be sure to notice the three distinctive autographs we have between Bob Duras' and Fred Campbell's offices. Of course, all our men are distinguished, but we weren't lucky enough to get their autographs.

TOOL BITS BLDG. 19-4 and 5 by Howard Demsey

Wilson Garman, Republican committeeman for precinct 4, and his assistant were a smashing success in their pre-election preparations. In moving a voting machine on election eve they dropped it into an oil pit, symbolizing no doubt, an oily defeat for the opposition. Elmer Sauerwein thinks it would be cheaper to get a new committeeman than to buy a new machine every year. . . . In more election news, Glenn Hoon served as one of the sheriffs at a polling place on election day and reports he didn't get out until after 10 p.m. . . . Mart Walsh is in Washington this week checking up on "Ike". While there he will also attend his niece's wedding. . . . Gene Denig claims he tips the scales at 185 instead of the 200 that was reported. You can forget the reading, Gene, but when the scales tip when you get on, look out. . . . Our duck hunting enthusiasts, Carl Click and Don Hoffman, armed with shotguns and duck stamps, sloshed through the swamps on opening day and found only one duck that forgot to. . . . We hear that the Wolf Lake Halloween party was a huge success. How could it miss with Boh Truelove and his wife as judges, and Bud Dunlap as one of the masters of ceremony? . . . We're sorry to hear that Ed Schafenacker broke his hand in an accident on his farm. He still has one good one and was seen using it at the polls last week. . . . Paul Strombeck left his permanent anti-freeze in the car last spring as many people do. But when it got around to that time again this fall, Paul thought he remembered draining his anti-freeze early this year and storing it in the basement. Of course, he drained the radiator out on the street before he checked the basement. After a fleeting thought of running out with a handful of blotters he resigned himself to buying a new supply. . . . After all of Woody Hursh's bragging about Leo's new school and gym, the place was only half big enough for the very first game against Monroeville. . . . Archie Gwaltney has only seen them play once but already has Elmhurst crowned county champs. . . . Dick Rice makes his father, Hayden Rice, mighty proud by playing in the starting five for Wolf Lake this year, even though he did foul out in the third quarter in the opener against Cromwell. . . . Bernie Byanski and Bill Akers, failing to get their bucketful last Saturday, had to do all their bragging about two 9½ inch bluegills. . . . The machine design section welcomes Woodrow Trostel and Ed Fabina. . . . All you popcorn lovers can buy your corn from Swede Mosser and help the Boy Scouts out at the same time. . . . That well-dressed fellow you saw around the shop one day last week was Bill Schible, and the occasion was a luncheon with Ronald Reagan.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS BLDG. 22

by George Winans

Congratulations from all of us to Don Voorhees, who will celebrate his 35th anniversary with GE on Nov. 14. . . . This prize winning German police dog is Princess, owned by Kenneth Handschy, our dashing second trick expeditor.

Prize Winner

Kenny wanted to get in the picture too, but Princess wouldn't let him. She says she won the trophies and she's not sharing the glory with anyone else. . . . One woman in the GE plant did not bother to look up from her work as Ronald Reagan passed through. Erv Frances' wife, Jo said she is too much in love with her husband to even notice another man. . . . Ron-

On Tour with Reagan—Our Three

DONNING SAFETY SPECS, Ronald Reagan toured DC Motor and Generator sections where he met Frank Newport, Andrew Einsiedel, George Telley, Reagan, Willard Smith, and George Zeis in Bldg. 19-1.

GREETING GALS in Specialty Transformer, Reagan meets Ellen Gerbers, Doris Rinehold, and Betty Warren in Bldg. 26-3 as they show him a display of the products they help to manufacture.

FAN CLUB RECEPTION — When he entered Bldg. 4-3 on his tour of Specialty Component Motor, Reagan found many gals and men from the building waiting for a glimpse of his friendly smile, firm handshake, and autograph. While Ardola Metker and Ellen Johnson wait, Reagan signs an autograph for Barbara Ternet.

STOPPING AT BLOOD CENTER, Reagan toured the center while GE employees were giving their donations. He and donor Robert McCollister, Wire Mill, look at a pint of processed plasma which nurse Betty Drennan holds up for their inspection.

SIGNING HIS NAME for the umpteenth time, Reagan cheerfully signed his signature for Small Integral Motor employees at Winter St., Dick Tholen, Boh Kerr, and Max Poling.

Day Date with GE's TV Theater Star

JA STOCKHOLDER—Ronald Reagan visited two of the Junior Achievement companies sponsored by GE departments and received a share of stock in the Hermetic Motor-Sponsored company from Gretchen Callihan, North Side High School student.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP IN ELEX was presented Reagan at an Elex reception by officers. Among those at the reception were Phyllis Borkenstein, Peggy Bandt, Georgette Hetzel, and Maxine DiGregory.

WIRE MILL JAUNT was taken by Reagan as he stopped and chatted with F. A. Arnold, Lloyd Meads, Richard Furthmiller, Reagan, Albert Hensen, and Joe Taylor.

AT AWARDS BANQUET sponsored by the GE Club, Reagan spoke to about 100 winners of athletic awards and saw the GE entry in the Main Auto Major League receive a trophy for the championship. Left to right are: Bob Etzler, Dick Thomas, Reagan, Main Auto Sport Shop general manager Fred Prange, and Erv Huth.

William Schible, GE Club; Ivan Standish, Employees Community Services Fund, and James McFeely, Lodge 70 IAM-AFL. Third row (l-r): Robert Rescorla, GE Squares Club; Glenn Stapleton, Credit Union; John Oldenkamp, FWAGEE; William Paulson, Foremen's Association; Paul Arnold, Volunteer Firemen's Association; Walter Buesking, Apprentice Alumni Association, and Roy Brower, GE Veterans Association.

FRIENDLY PERSONALITY of Ronald Reagan won him many fans from among GE employees who saw and met him during his three-day visit. Gals in Bldg. 17-3 met him during his Hermetic Motor tour. Getting his signature are Laura Starnier, in back of Reagan, and Bertha Witham, Edith Beatty, and Madeline Briggs.

"Lost" and "Found" articles must be cleared through the Plant Protection Office, Bldg. 10-2, or the Plant Reception office, which will place the Ad-let and otherwise advertise the article.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

Sherry Varner is home from the hospital and doing nicely. No luck this time either. She didn't get her interne, but she is offering a free drink to anyone that comes to see her. . . . Judy Keirns has a blouse she doesn't intend to wash and I don't blame her. When Ronald Reagan passed through, he autographed her collar. She is so thrilled. . . . To whom it may concern: The scratches on Bill Riley's face were caused by his razor, he says. . . . Windy Byers thinks he has bought interest in the Kinney Concession Co. He lost 20 cents Friday in the machine. . . . It was rather quiet around Elmer Wagner's office when he was on vacation, with Sherry off sick, too. It used to sound like the Grand Central Station, but when Mary McCallum gets hetter acquainted things will hum again. . . . By the way, Elmer had a better vacation this year. He didn't fall down the cellar steps as he did last year, but he did show us his lily white hands that washed the dishes, storm windows, and other little chores around the house. . . . Lost: One dog. Finder please return to Lawrence Bresler. He is down-hearted and can't work without it.

BATHNET—And baby carriage, both in good condition and priced reasonably. H-69902.

GIRL'S COAT—Poodle cloth, size 8-10. Good condition. E-72423.

TRANSPORTATION

RIDERS WANTED—Two from Auburn to Broadway, 7 to 3:30 p.m. Phone 347 Waterloo.

RIDE WANTED—From Leesburg Road and Belkne Road to Winter St. 7 to 3:30 p.m. E-79188.

RIDE WANTED To Winter St. plant from Anthony Wayne Village, 8 to 4:30 p.m. Ext. 326, Winter St.

THANK YOU

I wish to express my thanks to my co-workers and friends for the beautiful gift they gave me for retirement.

Gertrude Bertsche

I wish to take this means to express the deep feelings of gratitude your gift of a television set, presented upon my retirement, has given me. My years of service at the GE Winter St. plant were the most enjoyable work years of my life.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Alma Elliott

Hello everybody! Long time no see, or should we say, long time no read? . . . The girls from the Marketing section held a party Thursday evening for Marjorie Aughinbaugh, who left us Friday. Starting at the Flame with dinner, a good time was had by all. The girls gave Marjorie a gift and Friday the fellows in Marketing did likewise. We're sure the Aughinbaughs will have a wonderful trip to California since they have a new Olds to start in. Good luck, kids. . . . Of course the headline of the week was Ronald Reagan. His visit to us was accompanied by many sighs and swoons heard all over the SIM dept. Many flash bulbs were flashing around the place and Barb Walters and Mary Hainer were in a deep trance the rest of the day. Why, he asks, because they were in a picture with "Ronnie" of course. Oh you lucky girls. Stopping at Donna Tetlow's desk he said, "You know, my hair looks like that before I get it cut." Quite a humorist to say the least. We certainly are hoping that Mr. Reagan enjoyed his visit with us as much as we did having him. . . . Out looking for news Friday we were told by Agnes Hohman that she and Virginia Worden are the very last to find out anything around here. But don't let them kid you, they both had ring-side seats when Ronald was here. . . . Isn't it wonderful how all the girls on the bowling team are looking forward to finding out who is the new captain? Such enthusiasm we have never seen. As the story goes, no one wanted the job so whoever got the lowest score last week is "it". . . . News from the Accounting Dept. tells us they're all exhausted. Must be the overtime. . . . We're all wishing continuing success and happiness to Dorothy Dobler and her husband who celebrated their sixth wedding anniversary last week. . . . What's this we hear about Andy Docos wasting away to a mere shadow? Did we hear right, Andy, did you really lose five pounds in one night playing volleyball? . . . On the sick list for the week is Marianne Royse. Hurry back, Marianne, we all miss you. Most of you probably remember Mary Kiep. Well, she and Jim Geiger's wife, Eileen, shared the same hospital room in St. Joe last week. Hurry and get well girls. . . . We said goodbye to Marilyn Gerber Friday who is going down to join her husband in Alabama. . . . This is the story as it was told to me. Bob Elder and Red Braden went hunting a couple weeks ago. As they attempted to cross a ditch, famous last words were, "Oh sure, I can jump across this." Much to his surprise, Bob didn't make it and needless to say he got quite damp. On the way back it was suggested by Red that since Bob was already wet he should carry him across piggy back style. Again, if you use your imagination you'll know what happened, to Red. So they both went home damp. . . . We hear Art Brown has a new name. . . . Thanks to Ada and Bernie for their contribution. . . . It has been a matter of great concern to the testers as to Don Vondran's mode of locomotion. He was seen buying a coke as a treat last Friday. So we are sure that he can walk. . . . Amu Rupp's son, Quentin, who resides in Washington, went hunting and came home with one deer, a pheasant, and two geese. She certainly had a reason to be proud. . . . Sympathy is extended to Irene Miser in the death of her grandmother. . . . Anna Robinson wants a ramp over the railroad so she will be able to get to work on time, and we know what she means. . . . Now Works News is important, but is it really worth taking the wrong pills? Lela, you must be more careful, for we are counting on you. . . . We were very pleased to have Ronald Reagan with us last week. Of course we have our own Ronald right here in Hermetics, ask Mel. . . . Best wishes to Dessie George, who is absent due to illness. . . . We are happy to report that Millie Barrand's son expects removal of his cast this week. Best of luck to him. . . . Harry Meyers had nothing to report but he was nice enough to open the gate for us. . . . The girls had some news about Mary Jane but we were not sure it was true. How about that, Mary? . . . Mandolene Keel was seen flying low in Churubusco recently. . . . That's the news for SIM this week.

WIRE RAVELINGS

TAYLOR ST.

by Al Hambrock

SALESMAN Lou Maier sold Johnny Powner a new set of tires. The price Johnny paid should well afford a winter vacation trip to Florida for Lou. . . . MIXED UP—The change to daylight savings time really got Joe Cerveris all mixed up. Instead of coming in an hour earlier, Joe came in a whole day earlier. Joe, you're not that anxious, or are you? . . . WANTED, A thermostat or an old cook stove that will fit in an old '41 Plymouth so Howard Smith can keep warm. . . . DEMOCRAT, Robert Johnson drove several people to the polls election day, but it seems they were all Republicans. Gee, Johnson, can't you tell the difference? . . . RED SHIRT! When we came in Monday morning most of us thought we had bloodshot eyes, but after a thorough examination we found our eyes were not deceiving us. We were being blinded by that "vivi" red colored shirt Cleo Crowe was wearing. He bought the shirt on Maxwell St. in Chicago where he spent the week end. Old "Maxwell St. Crowe" he is known as these days. . . . CIGARETTES nowadays are not supposed to have a cough in a carload. Evidently Al Swift must like to cough, for he smokes his filled with rubber bands. . . . SORRY you have missed us for the past several weeks, but it was just one of those times when we didn't get done all the things we were supposed to do.

THISA & THATA

BLDG. 4-3 and 4-4

by Helen Engle

Florian Korte finally broke down, or should we say his family finally broke him down, and got a new TV, one of those "low jobs". . . . Sam Taylor was wondering what it was that Ronald Reagan had that he didn't have? Other than having hair and money there isn't much difference. . . . Rosemary Diem was kinda proud when she saw her son Stevie's picture on TV, only no one would recognize him as he was dressed as an ugly old woman. . . . Wonder if John Figley is trying to make peace with the police force or pave his way ahead of time by giving the police some tickets to a fish fry? Guess he just didn't want to get his hair cut. . . . Howard Stephen is taking time off to go rabbit hunting. In three days he should get enough rabbits for all of us. . . . After 30 some years one would think Jake Kugler would know his way around the GE, but he gets himself lost every once in awhile. . . . Don Mason has all his Christmas candy. Took all his kids trick or treating and got so much he plans on using it for Christmas candy. . . . Mona Hirschbiel is going to wear a glove as long as possible to preserve the Ronald Reagan hand shake. . . . Some of the girls were disappointed in not getting Ronald's autograph, so Bill Shuler came across with his for them. . . . Isabelle Kints is the new girl in the office who is replacing JoAnn Montgomery. JoAnn is getting married and moving to the east coast. Lots of luck, JoAnn. . . . Francine Cyr became Mrs. Jerry Mueller recently. Lots of happiness to you both. . . . George Allen was on his vacation last week. . . . John Zimmerman was very generous with his grandchildren's trick and treat stuff. . . . What was Harley Heckley doing at the corner of 33 and 6? The State Police Barracks is on the corner and we think he went up there for protection so Paul Arnold couldn't drop in on him again. His sore ribs came from his wife hitting him to keep his hands out of his pockets so the other fellow would pay the restaurant check! . . . Margaret Parisot is on the sick list. Get well soon, Margaret. . . . Gerna Cook was on the receiving end of a carton of cigarettes just cause she was sick. . . . They say there is rumor of a sauerkraut supper some place and Rudy Zelt or Roger Williams have tickets to sell. We wonder how Earl Sexton gets his cat to drink beer? A chip off the old block? . . . Birthday greetings to Dick Blust Oct. 29. . . . Chick Kortum is on his third week's vacation. . . . Elihu Lee is enjoying his vacation and plans to kill a few dozen rabbits. . . . Agnes Robinson thinks it would be easier to just fall off the roof than trying to come down the ladder. Next time she paints she is going to try it. . . . Bea Davis, Ruth Theurer, Peggy Bahde, and Clara Patterson got Ronald Reagan's autograph. We all think he is a wonderful person. . . . Helen White wasn't fooling Marie Griffin when she hid Marie's apron in the waste basket. Marie just went up to Helen, took her apron off, and put it on herself. Helen had to get Marie's apron out of the basket and wear it herself. . . . Marie Griffin took the long way to the voting polls last Tuesday. She went out and got in her car, drove around the block, and had to park in front of her house again. No place to park at the poll. It was only next door.

Retiring Employees Honored by Co-Workers

Y
ND.

EDWARD H. MINICK (third from left) receives best retirement wishes from (l-r) Hobert Stevenson, Carl Schafianski, Kenneth D. Strong, Joseph Miller, and Bertrom Epstein. Mr. Minick, who worked in Bldg. 27, first joined General Electric in 1934 as a sand blaster in Bldg. 4-B. Mr. Minick retired the last day of September.

HANNA ST. NEWS

By Dutch Norwalt

In case the Hanna St. management wants to contact Dick Blair, he is now on first trick. . . Ralph Beaden can't wake up by daylight saving time, so he leaves his headlights on the Pontiac all day. . . Bob Parker, president of the Daisy Fan Club is now sending out his able scout, Paul Peterson to recruit new members for the club. . . Lock your cars, folks. Kenny Klopfenstein had his green jacket stolen from his car. . . We welcome Ed Sembrowski as new head of the Production Dept. . . Every time Bill Fowler goes through the stacking section he grabs a tack hammer from one of the girls and scratches his back with it. It is reported that Bill is sending Santa Claus a letter asking for a back scratcher for Christmas. . . It is reported that John Wilder is now having a disposal unit installed. In a recent trip down the back stairs to the garbage can, John fell through a window. Twenty-four stitches and three pretty nurses were required to get John back together again. . . Clark Scheid, Hanna St. foreman, now has added duties. He is now conducting tours through the new boiler room. . . Benny Cohn is also having trouble with daylight saving time. Came to work with his pajama top on one morning this week. Wake up, Ben! . . . Congratulations to Joe Lothamer. He is the proud father of a new baby girl. . . Bill Fowler's face was unusually red this week. Bill grabbed a hat out of the rack and started merrily on his way home, only to find the owner of the hat in hot pursuit. Be more careful, Bill.

All Otto Proehl can say about daylight saving time is "Phooey". . . Carol Normal still maintains that bachelors lead a poor life, but her arguments in favor of old maids raised quite a storm of protest. . . Finally after a year of television, Ray Hoelle admits to receiving a good picture, but according to Buck Lydy, Ray must have accidentally bumped the right knob. You have to do a small bit of tuning, Ray, even with the best of sets. . . The TV program "This Is Your Life" is quite popular especially with Ezra Garringer who admits if, in 20 years he was brought on the program, he would be forced to use his handkerchief if some of his co-workers were to be there to help him celebrate. Naturally there are no names mentioned. . . Fast time certainly is rough on Rollie Miller, who for two days has had to hurry so fast that he didn't have time to change his pajama tops. . . Our most avid hockey fan is Clara Kleint, who has even formed her own club in every effort to cheer the Komets on to victory. . . Larry Reed finds it's getting rather expensive to feed two dogs, especially when the other one belongs to Don Baker. Larry claims Don sends the dog around to mooch a free meal because the dog can't even be driven away. Now to top it off, the dog is even bringing home shirts and sweaters. . . Such popularity must be deserved as proven by the petition going around to unanimously elect Charlie Kensill as president of the South West Conservation Club.

DECATURITES

The annual "Bosses" night GeCode Club dinner party held recently at the Moose Home was a smash success. The guest bosses were each seated in a cluster of employees and presented with a mum buttonaire quietly suggesting that they be gay but mum on orders. After a delicious dinner served in a gaily decorated room GeCode president Dorothy Schnepf gave the club welcome and John Welch responded for the bosses. During his response he gave a brief resume of the Decatur Plant business picture and stressed the fact that the transition to form G motors was almost completed. In other words the bosses' work has been done; whether or not the Decatur Plant can rise to meet or exceed expectations is now in the hands of the employees. . . A short hour program of popular hit tunes was presented by the Aeolian choir under the direction of David Emblar. . . Dave Lee, News Editor of WKJG radio and TV, took over the speech making and for the next 30 minutes told about the sometimes hilarious and sometimes maddening events that happen before, during, and after programs which most of us are unaware of. Before closing Dave gave the audience a sneak preview of his forthcoming Uncle Dave and Pete Show. . . Lucile Foor served as chairman of this joint day and night party and assisting her were Dorothy Schnepf, Lorena Keller, Rosemary Miller, and Irene Holt-house.

Little Clement Joseph is a very lucky boy. Clem and Anne Chomey Gibson have opened their hearts and home and taken him as their adopted son. Anne turned in her tools last week to become a full-time housekeeper. . . Congratulations on the pink bootied addition at the Fred and June Baumgartner home. The mama is a former co-worker. . . Congratulations to Esther Fox on being a new grandma. . . It was cold outside and as Jo Meehan was leaving work she just knew that she had forgotten something. It was her coat. . . Dale Sparks and Harold Stith went duck hunting. They got ducked up to the waist when they fell into some muskrat holes. . . Joe Bell thought things were getting a little monotonous, so he fell off a stepladder to liven things up a little. Joe is walking at a slow motion gait these days. . . It's a happy birthday to Mary Baker. . . Virginia Pelz had visions of washing dishes when she got up to the cashier in the cafeteria and no pocketbook. She was among friends. . . Fay Stockberger has a new GE TV. . . Joe Jensen has his shears all sharpened up in case some long neckties need to be made into bow ties. . . Tillie Nuttle's son is home from Japan. . . Lucille Bates spent last week-end in Kansas City, Mo. . . It's a good thing that Mildred Huntine has two thermos bottles, or she wouldn't have had coffee for a coffee break Friday morning. She left old faithful at the beauty shop Thursday evening. . . We extend our sympathy to Dan McGrath on the loss of his uncle. . . Our sympathy to Alice Jacobs on the death of her little granddaughter.

There were 28 teams entered in the GE Club tourney. The next mixed doubles is slated for Dec. 4.

Office

With 20 wins and 7 losses M and G Sales are out in front, followed closely by Transformer and Reproduction, each having won 17 while losing 10. C. Gnaul kegled a 221; E. Aumann, 218, and 214; A. Benching, 212; L. Gossman, 210; C. Hattendorf, 209; M. Junk, 206; C. Rump and D. Stoneman, 205; G. Owens and C. Shaw, 204; H. Brown, 201; and R. Grate, 200. Charlie Briggs converted the 4-10 split.

Small Motor

Drafting is leading the league with 14½ wins and 9½ losses. Hanna St. won 14 and lost 10, Tommy's Lunch is in third place with 13½ wins and 10½ losses. Tommy's Tavern and Unlucky 113 are tied for fourth place with 13 wins and 11 losses. Walt Kammerer kegled a 201; Hal Fletter, 203; Walt Lamboley, 201; Carl Brandt, 232; and Joe Kramer, 205 and 204.

Transformer

Lee Sales won three games from Toolers, Officers won two from Jets, and Deadwood scored two wins over Sobbers. Drake kegled a 210. Lee Sales are leading the league with nine wins and three losses. In second place are Officers with eight wins and four losses.

Interdivision League

Don Hoffman was high man last Wednesday night when he rolled a 603 count on games of 185, 224, and 194. Kinney Concessions defeated the Tool outfit two games out of three. Wiebke had a 212 for the Tools. For Kinney's Perry had a 213; Butcher, 208; and Wilt a 207. Charley says now he has his dollar back from Schroeder. Gutterdusters downed the Deadheads three games. Boner had a 209 game. Summit City Heating took two games from the Five Pins. Old Crown Beer and Ale won all three games from the Pindusters. Kuntz had a 201 game and Meeks a 205. Transformer took three games from the Apprentice. Lieberenz had a 207 game. Beery a 204; Brouwer Tire and Battery took all three from the Gumfoots.

Squares

The pins Friday night seemed to be flat on the bottom and extra heavy as the scores were low except for a few. Ross had the top series, a 535. Church, 529; and Watkins, 218. Mehlof and D. C. Meyers had split trouble. Stelling missed his first 200 count by three pins. Ross displaced his shoulder patch won by his triplicate series of 135's.

Ladies Monday Night

Seatterpins increased their lead by three games and are leading with 21 wins and 6 losses. In second place are the Gutterbells with 17½ wins and 9½ losses. Ranch House Bar B Qers are third with 17 wins and 10 losses. High scores rolled were Ilo Matter, 194; Gladys Fox, 177; Winnie Scheurich, 201; and Justine Brown, 173.

Ladies Friday Evening

Teams No. 1, 3, and 5 are tied for first place league honors in the Friday evening ladies bowling league with 16 wins and 8 losses. The second place team is Team No. 8 with 13 wins and 11 losses. Virginia Mollet rolled a 174; J. Korn rolled a 509 score with games of 163, 167, and 179; L. Shearer, 527 with 178, 182, and 167 games; and A. DesGranges a 556 total with 149, 203, and 204 games.

Apparatus League

Team No. 12, State Farm Mutual, is in first place with 16 wins and 8 losses. Teams No. 1, 6, and 8 are tied for second place, having won 14 games and lost 10. Teams No. 2 and 3, Corner Shell Service, are tied for third place with a 12 won, 12 lost record. Paul Perry celebrated his return to the bowling wars with a nice 611 count on games of 189, 209, and 213, which also helped his team roll into first place in the high three game division with 2841. Clarence (Jimmy) James made a strong bid for high single game honors, but blew the last frame to wind up in second place with 242. Other 200 games follow: Don Greenler, 228; Bob Stute, 220; Ed Reese, 210; Jim Carey, 204; and Ross Smith, 203.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

Paul Briede came up with 621 221-192-208) to top all bowlers in this league and lead the second place Stators (15½-8½) to two wins over third place Office No. 2 (11½-12½). Guy Lister produced a 202 game for the Stators, while J. Beery's 204 was the best effort of Office boys. The first place Flanges (19-5) increased their lead by sweeping three from the fifth place Rotors who now have a 9 and 15 record. H. Shoaf's 203 led the Flanges' scoring. Office No. 1 (11-13) jumped from fifth to third by overpowering the lowly Shafts all three games. Porter had 201; Schuster, 209-200; and Laurent, 242 for the Office No. 1 crew.

GE Fraternal

Monroeville Lumber (16-11) jumped from fourth to second place with three wins over Teeple Truck Lines (14½-12½) who dropped a notch to fourth place. Dale House's 602 (211-191-200) led the lumbermen. The leading River-view Gardens (18-9) snowed under the Elks by winning all three and dropping the Elks to the bottom of the heap. Bob Lord had a 605 (222-177-206) for West End Restaurant (13-14) but his single effort was offset by GE Club's balance. The GE'ers stepped out of the cellar to seventh place by their two wins and now have a standing of (10-7). K of C 12-15 took two from Peterson Elevator (15½-11½) and the Peterson boys dropped a notch to second place. K of C is in sixth. Scores of 200 were rolled by: Pillars, 212; O. Schultz, 201; Paul Briede, 207; M. Brown, 205; A. Buuck, 204; J. Murphy, 209; F. Wolpert, 203; W. Kuhnle, 217-201; and Custer, 212.

GE Women's League

The fourth place Spares (8½-15½) led by Babcock's 180 took three games from the Last Frames (11-13). The Office (10-14) won two victories over the High Spots (18½-5½) with M. Miller's 184 tops for the Office. A. Reynolds' 171 and Kleinhenz's 175 were top scores for the High Spots.

Mrs. Bittikoffer made a trip by plane to visit her son in Illinois and came from there just to see old friends in GE. She is living in Arlington, Va., with her police dog. Her address is 1715 S. Nelson St., Arlington 4, Va.

As for flying, Mrs. Bittikoffer is a strong supporter of planes as the ideal way to travel.

BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

The Election holiday shortened the cage activities but the difference was made up by a corking ball game between the Apprentice and the Firemen. The schoolboys were forced to go into an overtime to eke out a 38 to 36 win. The Squares notched their second win in an easier fashion by thumping the Penthouse Dubs 48 to 39.

The game of the week was the Apprentice, Firemen tussle. Dick Buffenbarger opened the game with a quick fielder for the Apprentice but was countered by two charity tosses by Don Rietdorf of the Firemen. Both clubs played cautiously in the opening period with the school lads leading 11-7. The tempo increased in the second stanza. Don Rietdorf canned three buckets for the Firemen along with fielders by Wehrle, Morkoetter, and Baals narrowing the half time gap to only two points 19-21. Ken Spiker's five points helped protect the Apprentice lead.

The fire fighters pecked away one more from the lead in the third which ended 28-27. Rietdorf tied the score at 31 with four minutes to go and Bob Baals followed up with a quarter court fielder to put the Firemen ahead for the first time in the ball game 33 to 31. Ron Young knotted the count with a basket from under the hoop. The Firemen went into a possession game for one last shot with 2:40 to go but failed to connect and the game went into overtime. The apprentices connected with two fielders and a free throw by Young, Fanning and Doepeke while the Firemen collected only three charity tosses, two by Wehrle and one by Rietdorf. The game ended 38-36 for Apprentice.

Don Rietdorf was the stellar performer for both teams by canning 16 points. Dick Buffenbarger led the balanced scoring of the School lads with seven.

The Squares with aggressive Ken Frankenstein leading the way ran up a 37 to 23 lead in the first three periods and then coasted to a 48 to 39 win. The Dubs have a wealth of material and could be very rough later on in the season but seem to need practice to obtain the polish necessary in the rough company of this league. It was good to see Dick Butler back from 16 months in Korea and in the pink of condition. He will be a big help to the Dubs.

Frankenstein led the Squares with seven baskets for 14 points while Perry led the losers with a ten point total.

Our First Thanksgiving

The first crop had been bountiful in the new strange land; the perils of its wilderness, while present still, were no longer unknown. So, bearing Bibles and muskets, the Pilgrims went, under the harvest moon, to the meeting house to offer prayers of thanksgiving on the eve of the day of the feast—girded spiritually and materially against all dangers. . . . As we today follow their example in the festive turkey, so should we be guided as they were that first Thanksgiving, against all who imperil us and our heritage of freedom.

Careless Smoker Starts Fire At GE Club During Fall Revue

A carelessly tossed lighted cigarette started a fire in a large wire waste basket at the GE Club last Sunday during a performance of the Fall Revue. While 1500 employees and their families watched the 5 p.m. show in the auditorium, the fire started in the men's room in the basement of the club.

Smoke from the fire was detected by Club Manager Charlie Wilt, who extinguished the flames before any damage occurred.

Had the fire gone undetected, Ernie M. Hanauer, GE fire chief, stated that the smoke could have caused a panic among the 1500 persons attending the Revue. He added that at times when programs are in progress in the auditorium, it is possible that such a fire as this one might create a large amount of smoke before being detected.

With the Kiddies' Christmas Party coming up at the club in December, Chief Hanauer asks that persons observe fire precautions and regulations at the club for the safety of everyone.

Result of fire started in waste basket at GE Club. The fire could have caused panic among the 1500 persons at the Revue.

Four Sales Managers Announced In GP Marketing Organization

Four appointments in the General Purpose Component Motor marketing section were announced this week by William R. Boggess, manager of marketing. Nathan T. Horton has been appointed manager of sales of pump and compressor motors. Harold C. Robertson has been named manager of sales for distributor, service, and renewal parts.

Roland A. Thompson is manager of sales of heating and ventilating motors. Kenneth R. Whearley is manager of sales for industrial, commercial and farm machinery motors.

Nathan T. Horton

In 1948 Mr. Horton came to General Electric and started on the Test Engineers Program at Schenectady. Later that year he was assigned to Fractional Horsepower Motor engineering. In June, 1950, he went into FHP Motor sales as home laundry motors application engineer. He became application and sales leader in pump and compressor motors, GPM marketing in 1952 and had this position until his present appointment.

A graduate of Oklahoma University, Mr. Horton received his BSME degree in 1948.

Harold C. Robertson

When he came to the company in 1946 Mr. Robertson began on the Test Engineers Program. He joined FHP Motor marketing the following year and in 1949 was transferred to the Milwaukee Apparatus Sales office as sales engineer. He was named Form G Motor specialist in GPM in 1953 and held this office until his present assignment.

In 1946 Mr. Robertson graduated from Colorado University with a BSEE degree.

Roland A. Thompson

After becoming a GE employee in 1941 Mr. Thompson entered Motor and Generator test. He moved to FHP Motor sales in 1945 as a proposition engineer. In 1952 he was appointed sales and application leader in heating and ventilating motors, GPM marketing. This was his position prior to his present appointment.

Graduating from Iowa State College, Mr. Thompson received his BS degree in industrial science in 1935.

Kenneth R. Whearley

In 1930 Mr. Whearley came to GE as a student sales engineer and later had various assignments in FHP Motor Division of Apparatus Sales Department as sales and application engineer. Appointed in charge of distribution, parts, and service sales of FHP Motor marketing in 1951, Mr. Whearley held this position until 1953. At this time he was named manager of sales and service, distributors and machinery motor applications. This was his position until his present one.

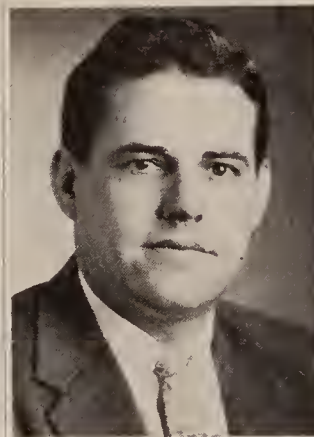

Mr. Whearley received his BSME degree from Purdue University in 1928.

Retired Elex Club Members Select Pen-El as Name for New Chapter

Pen-El is the name selected for the third chapter of Elex Club which was organized last week. Nettie Englebrecht, whose idea it was to organize a chapter for retired women employees only, was named founder of the organization.

Membership will be limited to 36 retired women employees. The 15 who were present at the initial session will be charter members of the group. It will meet the second Wednesday of every month at 2 p.m.

Grace Collins was elected president of the new group. Other officers are Bertha Gruber, vice president; Mabel Wagner, secretary, and Carrie Kranter, treasurer.

Dues for the organization will be 25 cents per month. The club colors selected by the charter members are red and white and the club flower is the red rose.

Elex Club will begin its education program January, 1955, Maxine Baker, educational chairman, reported. Photography classes and a series of eight classes listed under the general title, "Let's Be Feminine," will start Monday, Jan. 10, 1955. Square dance classes will be conducted also on dates to be announced later.

A FEW BAD APPLES SPOIL THE BARREL

A Few Bad Apples Spoil the Barrel

With apples ranking as prime farm products in many GE plant areas—and with all of us reaping the tasty rewards of this year's harvest as this is written—it seems timely to recall a famous old saying.

"A few bad apples," said Benjamin Franklin, in effect, "spoil the barrel."

In 1736, this Poor Richard's Almanack suggestion applied only to the orchard fruits of American toil. Today, it applies just as surely to the turbines and toasters, TV sets and transformers, capacitors and clocks that move out into the world of commerce wearing the GE monogram.

Customers, by and large, expect more from all GE products than they expect from items carrying a less-honored trade mark. We can ship millions of electrical items that give service far beyond reasonable life expectancy—without winning a single compliment. But let one GE product "act up the minute we plugged it in" and the customer sees every GE product in a bad light. We lose his future patronage. And we lost the favor of his friends—because the unhappy patron gives wide voice to his unhappiness with GE.

How do we lick the problem? The same way we won the widest customer confidence ever accorded to a single name in electrical merchandise: By making every GE item better. By inspecting every GE item carefully. By testing every GE item accurately. By packing every item proudly—as though it were carrying our own signature into the market place.

Job security begins—and ends—with the customer's decision. No one of us can win King Customer's tribute alone—but any one of us can lose business for all GE employees. If we want to grow, by continuing to lead the electrical field, there's only one answer to the problem of a few bad apples in a barrelful of good ones.

That answer is teamwork—all along the line in GE's plants, offices, warehouses and service shops. Customers are hard to win but easy to lose. Let's keep 'em.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

BLDG. 22

by George Winans

In case anyone has been wondering why this column has been growing shorter here of late, I would like to explain that the "Smokehouse" gang has been reduced by transfers to about half its original size. It is only a matter of time until our outfit moves east and the "Smokehouse" becomes but a memory. In the meantime I will try to give you some sort of news each week as long as I am here. . . . Our deepest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Mattes upon the death of their son, and to Frank Putt upon the death of his brother. . . . Henry Wells and Pappy Wright were not picking flowers out along the railroad track the other afternoon as some of us surmised. Those were sand burrs that they were gathering. Now what would they want with those? Oh, well, perhaps we'll get the point later! . . . If any of you have any cologne or perfume bottles at home with just a little bit in the bottom, don't discard them. Bring them in to Henry Wells. He dumps them on Waymon Morton. Best smelling saw man we ever had! . . . Last week's visitors: Charlie Mowery and Alfalfa Edwards.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

Carl Schlenker's daughter will tour the east with the Indiana University Symphony Orchestra. Included in the stops will be one at Carnegie Hall. . . . Al Berger paid a visit to the tool room the other day to check on the boys. . . . Marion More is wearing a canary bird color shirt with black prison stripes, a birthday gift, no doubt. . . . Gene Denig is giving Kurt Martin lessons in finance, or how to change 25 cents to 25 dollars. . . . Mart Walsh wanted to see the White House on his trip to Washington but happened to pick a day when there were no visiting hours. His visit wasn't a total loss, however, while he was at the gate the guard pointed out a car driving up carrying Secretary of State Dulles and Japanese Premier Yoshida. . . . Hayden Rice will soon become a father-in-law when his daughter gets married. . . . The second shift mill section welcomes Max Lindsey, Clifford Hallam, Everett Slofer, Dick Jackson, and Clarence Beverford. The lathe section welcomes Charles Stucky and Ernest Jones. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith on the arrival of Sharon Elaine Smith. . . . Harry Henline has been selected for jury duty in the near future. . . . Louis Stocker figured since he was driving in the Veteran's Day parade he was entitled to special privileges and parked his car on the sidewalk. The ticket was red. . . . Kenny Smith is now open for engagements with his new advance Christmas present, a blonde guitar. . . . Our fisherman supreme is Purl Schoeff who has received a citation from Minnesota, stating that the 6 lb. 1 oz. bass he caught on vacation won fourth prize. . . . Paul Boeder wonders whether it pays to be well dressed. After bowling the other night he reached for his new jacket and put it on. When he couldn't find his hands at the ends of the sleeves he realized someone had taken his jacket by mistake along with his car and tool box keys. He had an extra set of car keys but had to break into his tool box. Keep your fingers crossed, Paul, it may come back yet. . . . When Ross Cohagen gave 15 pennies to Carey Baker for his collection and only got a dime back it took him quite awhile to realize Carey was keeping the nickel as an installment on a 50-cent loan he had made to Ross. . . . Rumor has it that Gus Mittermaier expects to keep his Studebaker going even if the Study-Packard combine collapses. He just bought a complete set of garage tools to help with the overhaul. . . . Dick Burns had better luck at pheasant hunting than with the deer. . . . Les Fanning was seen drooling over a new Ford the other day. Even Gordon Yeager said he might have given the Fairlane some consideration if he hadn't just gotten his Olds. . . . Louie Paluszak spent his third week vacation at his sister's in Garrett. Two weeks ago Chet Reynolds spent his at home, and Carl Zurcher and DeWayne Schele are on vacation this week. . . . Sorry to hear that Ralph Foust's boy was injured in an accident at home over the week end. . . . The hour is approaching for Allen Brown. His wedding takes place on Thanksgiving Day. Congratulations, Allen. . . . The rabbit hunters are out in force. John Statler didn't get any but Perry Butts and John Roemer got a couple. The boys at the Perfect Bldg. brought their guns along on opening day and combed a bean field nearby during noon hour with no results. . . . We think Earl Brandon needs his glasses changed. After looking all over the grinding section for a tool cabinet that had been moved he found it right beside his machine.

Last week the Apprentice School produced two more apprentice graduates: Glenn Camp and Woodrow Trostel. Congratulations and good luck. . . . George Haggenjos is the proud father of a baby girl. Doesn't that make two girls and only one boy, George? . . . Last week the apprentice school received two new apprentices: Richard Bearman and Gregory Smith. Welcome, fellows. . . . Since rabbit season is now open we have heard many sad stories and tall tales. Yes, that cruel Dick Wagner is at it again. Last week while Dick was out hunting he saw a young rabbit just a few feet away. Slowly he raised his twin barrel 12 gauge at the poor fellow. The little rabbit looked up at the two big cannons that pointed his way and dropped over dead from a heart attack. . . . Dave Frazier has started a new fad. Cutting carboly and Rex AA with a mill-cutter—or at least attempting to do so. . . . A warning to all apprentices and instructors. Stay clear of Max Gollmer and his grinder. Mr. Gebert was almost drowned by the coolant from this wild grinder. . . . There were several transfers in the Apprentice School this past week. Ronnie Young and Lowell Deem left and are now at the Die Plant. Dick Goshorn and Larry Jones returned to Bldg. 12-2. Bob Silk and Ben Conner left Bldg. 12 and are now in Bldg. 19. Jim Preston, a draftsman, left Bldg. 12-2 to go to Taylor St.

Words by Walt

"THANK YOU, LORD"

Dear Lord, on this Thanksgiving Day,
I seek
No special favors, even though I'm weak;
Because, if prayers are items you record,
You'll find that most of mine start,
"Give me, Lord."

So on this day, by Government proclaimed
For giving thanks, I think I'd feel ashamed
To offer up my thanks to you and the Request some favor, ere I said Amen,

Of course, if in Thy wisdom, you may see
Some thing that would this day be good for me,
Don't pass me by, oh Lord, for if I've not Already asked for it, I just forgot.

It's mostly "Give me," often nothing more,
You hear three hundred, sixty days and four;
So it would seem for one day in the year,
Our "Thank you, Lord" is all you'd have to hear.

I said no favors, but, dear Lord, I find There's one more "Give me" I have in mind
I need; so won't you give me, Lord, I pray,
Sincerity and grateful heart this day.

I thank Thee for the health that I've enjoyed;
I'm grateful for the work where I'm employed;
I'm thankful for the friends you've given me;
And for my share in our prosperity.

I've had, of course, my normal aches and pains,
Some grief, some loss, but also many gains,
Some trouble and suspense have come
my way,
But still, dear Lord, I've no complaint today.

I'm thankful for the happiness I've shared;
I'm grateful for all ill that I've been spared;
And, Lord, accept my gratitude for when You've saved me from those things that might have been.

A few things happened, not quite understood;
A loved one taken when it seemed there could Have been, somehow, a little different way
Than death; but thanks for peace she has today.

Sometimes I ask for things then fail to see
The wisdom in your answer given me;
But since the way to God is through
His Son,
I've faith, through you, our Father's will is done.

So on this day that's set aside for you
To hear our thanks for all the good you do,
You'll find at least some gratitude in
I hope, oh Lord, before the day is done, everyone.

—W. L. WHONSETLER.

ECHOES from 19-2

by Fred McIntyre

We extend our sincere sympathy to Kenny Rinker in the death of his father, and to Al Johnson in the death of his mother-in-law. . . . Belated best wishes to Florence Hindman and Monte Kelsey, who were married Oct. 16. . . . We're glad to hear Clyde Musser is able to be at home after a week in the hospital with blood poison in his thumb. . . . Catherine Echenbarger took a nose dive off the hus the other evening, but fortunately landed on her feet, with only a few bruises as the result. . . . We're sorry to hear that Frank Schlink is a patient at the Lutheran Hospital, and Mrs. Arnett Clouse a patient at Parkview. . . . Ralph Smith and his son did some fishing over the week-end. Ralph said they had 18 nice ones to their credit. . . . Good luck to Merrill Melton, who is leaving us this week to work for GE in Schenectady. . . . Eleven girls from Bldg. 19-2 had a surprise party on Florence Hindman Kelsey at her home at 3606 Avondale. Those present were Bonnie Asies, Edna Etzler, Dewey Wickliffe, Shirley Cunningham, Fayne Harter, Flossie Shoopman, Marth Musselman, Ada Phillips, Wilma Burkholder, Cecile Hinton, and Gladys McMillan. . . . Congratulations to Dewey Wickliffe on twin great-nephews.

Article by Wendell B. Hughes Published in Trade Magazine

A technical article written by Wendell B. Hughes, Bldg. 26-2 Specialty Transformer Department, has been published in the November issue of "Electronic Equipment," a national trade magazine.

"Special Transformer Requirements" is the title of the article which was published to serve as a reference guide to point out the practical considerations of military specifications as they apply to electronic transformers.

In the two-page article, Mr. Hughes states "Since the specifications now used for the procurement of electronic transformers have grown both in volume and complexity during the past several years, their correct application has become increasingly difficult." Thus the reference guide was printed to serve manufacturers of electronic equipment who specify transformers as components for their products.

Mr. Hughes is group leader in electronic transformer sales in the department.

Unable to stand it any longer, Sandy Bennett finally traded his beat-up old Kaiser for a Buick. . . . As soon as he can get the down payment, Otto Fackler will get a television, but he demands free service. . . . It was a pleasant surprise to see Charlie Schild once more on his visit back to the floor and we must admit he is looking very well. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Zollinger spent a very enjoyable week end in Chicago during which time they toured the theatres, broadcasts, and museums. . . . At last reports Mrs. Don Thomas is doing very nicely during her hospital stay and we all wish her a speedy recovery. . . . The bigger the car the more speed, and the more speed, the more chance of being fined as Charlie Ostrander learned much to his regret. . . . A small group of his co-workers were present at the presentation of Clarence Nussel's admittance to the Quarter Century Club. Among the other things, he was presented with a collection of fine and timely insults. . . . We bid farewell to Elmer DeVaux of our tin shop who is leaving to seek his fortune in Louisiana. . . . As John Howard returned from his vacation, Russ Noll took off on his. Does this have any connection? . . . Since Sol Andorfer is now on third trick, he was able to harvest his crop of beans before the rains set in again. . . . Our real estate magnate, Ray Hoelle, is now safely entrenched in his new home, but so far no open house invitation is forthcoming. . . . Carl Hattendorf is still going like a house afire in bowling, but he still refuses to bet on the score for the evening. . . . Quotation for the week: The Brooklynite who calls the children's room the "Noisery" has given it the proper pronunciation.

GE DRIVERS WIN AWARD—GE truck and service car drivers, who were enrolled in the National Safety Council Truck Fleet Safety Contest, received the third place award at a banquet at the Chamber of Commerce recently. Jimmie L. Stroble

Stroble Completes Apprentice Course

Jimmie L. Stroble graduates from the GE Apprentice School today, it was announced by Richard Gebert, supervisor of apprentices.

After graduation from South Side High School in June, 1951, Mr. Stroble joined General Electric and entered the Apprentice School. He completed the machinist-toolmaker course.

Mr. and Mrs. Stroble and their daughter reside at 2326 Oliver St.

DAR Award Presented GE Guard's Daughter

Bonnie L. Fusselman, 17-year-old daughter of Earl Fusselman, Taylor St. guard, was honored last week when she received the Daughters of the American Revolution Best Citizen Award at Central High School.

The DAR award is based on personal characteristics, dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism. Bonnie, who is a senior, has been pianist for the Central concert choir for four years as well as being active in many school organizations and activities.

"Darkness brings more driving hazards," is the advice of Indiana Traffic Safety Foundation. "Slow down at sundown. Live and let live!"

THE NIGHT WIND
SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Alma Raymer's little grandson Timmy is real cute. While visiting her over the week-end he found a little gadget in her closet that fascinated him. After playing with it a while he said "Grandma, let's go back in the closet." She asked what for, and he said, "to see if we can find something else fantastic." . . . Birthday greetings to Jerry Fredrick whose birthday was last week. . . . Freda Hobrock looks very nice with her new permanent. . . . Dorothy Hart is having trouble with her electrical appliances. First the coffee maker burned out, then her stove, and now the refrigerator is on the blink. She says she is going to California to live, and we wager it won't be long until she does. Her son Harley from Garrett is moving there the last of November to join his brother Dale with B.F. Goodrich Co. in the shoe products. . . . Arlene Helberg is enjoying her third week's vacation in Chicago. . . . Audrey Brindle is always getting her directions mixed. When a little girl she was to go down the railroad track home after a music lesson and she went the wrong direction. She had to borrow a dime to call her father to come and get her. Of course, that was a few years ago, but we are glad he found you, Audrey. . . . Claude Alford walks straighter since election. He says they really straightened him out. . . . Grandma Raymer lost her specks but found them in time to read nursery rhymes to her two grandchildren Saturday evening while baby sitting. Alma can also amuse herself when alone by talking to herself. You have to talk to someone, Alma, so it might as well be yourself. . . . Birthday greetings to Roscoe Ruple and Bob Hull, who had birthdays recently. Bob was presented with a gift from his group, plus ice cream and cake. Roscoe says he is 22 but we know better than that. . . . Did you see the cute pin Margaret Kenyon was wearing last week? It was a red apple with a worm in it. . . . Margaret Turney and her son celebrated their wedding anniversaries last Wednesday. Margaret's third, and her son's fifth. . . . Homer Huser says there are too many chiefs and not enough Indians around here. . . . Did you see Margaret Kenyon demonstrating a character on the Ed Sullivan show last week? We think it was the bunny hop. . . . Clara Koomler and Helen Fraser are back in Section 17 again. Helen's daughter-in-law from Florida visited her recently.

Did you ever see anyone eat as much as Ross Hobbs? He eats all day long. . . . We have a Liberace right here at GE. It's none other than Ed Robbins himself. . . . Sorry to hear Helen White's grandfather is ill. We wish him a speedy recovery. . . . Marie Griffin's son may be one of our next top tune song writers. . . . Clara Patterson says she still thinks morning comes too soon. . . . Heard a lot of rabbit and pheasant stories. . . . Carl Tustison says he doesn't need a gun, he just sits on a stump and when they come out of the hole he grabs them with his hand. . . . Earl Sexton said he shot 37 rabbits sitting on a stump. Also caught 100 bluegills on Sunday. . . . Virgil Dahman got the limit of pheasant on Wednesday and George Haggenjas got five rabbits on Saturday. . . . Some of the other hunters didn't have such luck. It seems that Brer Rabbit is outwitting the hunters. . . . Ralph Mennewisch is taking his vacation Thanksgiving week. Plenty of time to get the turkey ready and recuperate after the big feast. . . . Someone inform Eileen Brown, we start work at 7 o'clock. She comes wandering in at 8:30. . . . Emily Nierman and Mary Cordell are driving Fort Wayne's first. It is a Fairlane sport Ford and it is a duzzy. . . . The blessed event which Chondos Hile was anticipating finally came around. To our surprise it was his own homemade candy. . . . Grace Ober spent Sunday in Indianapolis. . . . Don Mason has an odd way of getting shut up by himself to drink his coke and eat his candy. He goes upstairs to the library. Are you afraid you will have to share it with your fair weather "huddies," Don? . . . Rosemary Diem had better wear her glasses the next time she grabs for a jar. She washed her hair and then proceeded to rub some lanolin cream on her hair. The more she rubbed the stickier it got, finally she discovered it was a dry skin night cream she was using and it took four washings to get it all out. . . . Janice Egolf is thinking of walking down the center of the streets. She was walking in the dark on a sidewalk and fell over a bicycle. She got pretty well skinned up and bruised. . . . The next time John Zimmerman goes to a hockey game he is going to take his own peanuts because Paul Arnold won't share with him. . . . We extend our sympathy to Esther Ealy Walborn in the death of her brother. . . . Lucille Schriener and Ruth Kilgore are on their vacations this week, and Ray O'Brian, Betty Minard, and Martha Woodward have vacations coming next week. . . . Louise Smith found out that lighters don't work after a dunking in water. . . . Hazel Stauffer thought she was lost when she got off the elevator. She had gotten off one floor too soon and had to walk up. . . . Gerna Cook's husband, Herb is laid up with a bad back. Hope it isn't too serious. . . . Katie Gilbert is a regular farmer. They have three new calves, Jim, Ann, and Jo. . . . Paul Henricks, Jr. wishes all the girls working for Paul Boyer would learn his phone number so they will get hold of the right Paul. He got into a lengthy conversation with one of the co-workers before he realized he was talking to someone he didn't know. . . . Ruby Chrysler says her six-month-old granddaughter is singing already and mostly about her grandmother.

PICK-UPS from 26-3
by Maxine Jordan

We hear Helen Leaman gets so interested in her work she loses all track of time. . . . Being acquainted with most everyone on the floor, we are trying to figure out who is Norma Jean Bryant of final assembly? . . . Our sincere sympathies to Gerald Miller on the death of his mother, and Dorothy Fett on the death of her father. . . . Charlie Bailey has a new profession. However, there is a difference of opinion on what the finished product will be after he puts on the doors. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Frank Schultz's daughter who is seriously ill. . . . Since when do we use compads to assemble coils, Margaret Pelkey? . . . What is this new material Betty Scott is using in the stacking section? . . . Mary Cordell is the proud owner of a new 1955 Ford. . . . Anyone who has a shotgun for sale, see Mac McCray. He is getting desperate. . . . Shorty Pequignot had a wonderful time on his hunting trip. No reports on deer or skunks. . . . We can see Lonnie Rockstroh now that she is out of the sub-miniature corner. . . . Santa Claus came early this year for Ernie Clark. He has a new shotgun and a new pair of trousers. . . . Lorraine Papp has a new system of repairing coils but we don't think Velma Rose appreciates it. . . . Inside information to Lena Forker: The candy machine takes nickels, not pennies. . . . Ed Lauer wore his new teeth one day. Says he will try them again in the near future.

TALES from TAYLOR
SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Luther Putnam, tiring of mixing white lead and oil by hand, rigged up a device which, when attached to a drill press spindle, was supposed to be a great time and labor saver. The day he ran a test on this gimmick was an event long to be remembered. It mixed all right, but it threw the lead and oil in all directions. The machinery around was white instead of grey. Actually it threw the paint onto the girders supporting the roof. Try a lower speed, Luther, it might work. . . . One would think that Justin Heaston would get awfully tired of gargling soup every day for dinner. We notice that whenever Lee Cupp visits the Taylor St. plant Justin always has a well-filled tray of good solid food. The secret of it all is that Lee, being a good sport, picks up the checks on those days. . . . Clarence Stove, our little man of many ventures, has gone on another tangent. It seems that his efforts in peddling dog houses did not pay off so well, so now it is garages. He scours the countryside in search of them for sale. He buys them, dismantles them, and then will sell them to you for a good price. But, it must be understood that you are on your own when it comes to the transporting and setting up of these half dilapidated buildings.

JOHN CRAMER (left) is honored on his last day at General Electric after 37 years of service with the company. With him are George Reker and Mrs. Cramer. At retirement Mr. Cramer worked in Sect. 113 at Taylor St. on motor repair work.

JOHN S. MCCURDY (left) left GE last month on retirement. Wishing him good luck are George Mazer, Lee Dove, Herman J. Bobay, and Art Buchanan. Mr. McCurdy was a stockkeeper for DC M&G in Bldg. 6-1 before retiring. He joined GE in Bldg. 20 in 1942.

LUKE C. SHORTER (center) talks over his years at General Electric with Herb Cook (left) and Robert Morris on his last day of work. Mr. Shorter was hired as an assembler in Bldg. 4-2 in 1929. He was an assembler in Bldg. 6-2 at retirement.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Margie Hill

This week we're saying goodbye to Marianne Royse for awhile. . . . It's rumored that "Hutch" was taken out for dinner this week by a good looking lady friend. . . . Mary Bissonetti says it was worth 10 months of waiting to get a telephone. At least she has once again joined civilization. . . . This week we're welcoming all the Manufacturing trainees who are going to stay with us for awhile. Attention girls: There are a couple of eligibles in the group. . . . Speaking of eligibles—have any of you noticed the bachelor in Production? We're speaking of Cliff Havens of course. . . . Belated sympathy is extended to Gary Foerster in the death of his mother. . . . Ed Ehrman traveled to Purdue Saturday to see the Purdue-Ohio State football game. . . . Harold Bohde and Jim Barrick are going deer hunting next week in Michigan. . . . Tom Rockhill is a patient in the Parkview Hospital. We know Tom would like to hear from all of you. . . . They say that Bob Miller really got a big bang out of the joke that was played on him the other night. It seems his car was geared with a firecracker and exploded in the parking lot. . . . Jim Hunt's little two month old baby boy still likes the night life. . . . You may ask why George Kniss and Dale McCombs have been looking so tired first thing in the morning. The reason: They're both spending all their spare time on the new homes they're building. . . . What was all the big rush the other day when Iva Bixler ran out at 9 a.m.? She was grandmother for the third time. . . . Lora Summers and Nina Growcock are having coat troubles. They wore each other's home and didn't know it until the next morning. . . . It's good to have Elaine Guiff back again. She was home sick last week. . . . HERMETICALLY SPEAKING: Dorene Tully gave a hard time party Tuesday night, and from all reports it was a great success. . . . Winnie Hile is learning how to get along without a husband. Mr. Hile has gone to Arizona to accept work. . . . Helen Buck and Ellen Woodward are absent due to illness. A speedy recovery to them. Also to Lester Ralston's daughter, who had an appendectomy Friday. Dorothy Higgenbotham and Estella Brewer have returned to work. . . . Ruth Michelfelder and Edith Gephart have brand new Pontiacs. Marjorie Hough has a new recreation room, complete with matching furniture and television, GE of course. . . . STORY DEPARTMENT: Most of the girls have enough trouble placing 7½ hp coils, but there were two who thought it so easy that they thought they would try using wedges under the insulation. However, it was just too difficult. Is that true, Rachel and Violet? . . . Then we have Helen Smith who hit her right index finger with her hammer in her right hand. . . . Also a lad named Vondran who ran out of gas with his own wife. . . . Lona Cook came in an hour late the other day and this was her excuse: Her clock had a funny noise like a noisy speedometer. She went down to the basement and got a can of Bardol oil and gave it a squirt or two, then shook it gently and placed it on its face. Morning came, the alarm rang, and she came into work an hour late. Now what she failed to realize was, the oil was purchased for standard time use, so what could she expect? Also it was a brand new clock that she had bought in 1939. . . . Pat Pepple made the news by wearing a dress. . . . Grace Gigli had a dreamy look. The reason, the picture on the TV magazine was Liberace. . . . We were told to watch Leona Hollis, but anyone coming from Ege is sure to be OK. . . . Edmee Dowdan declares she is not responsible for her riders, who take other peoples' coats. (Nina Growcock and Laura Summers exchanged) . . . Crystall Waterman is one woman who gets paid for doing her own washing. When she finishes the wash, money just rolls out of the tub or does she wash the family bank roll? . . . Ruby Stucky visited her brother in Dayton, Ohio last week end.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

Elmer Schoenlein is back from vacation. He spent a few days in Chicago and while there attended a football game. . . . Congratulations to Elmer Warner for being a grandfather again. . . . Glen Goshorn was in a spot the other evening when he went to the parking lot to get his car. It wouldn't start and everyone else had gone. There sat Glen, his car battery dead. He finally got his car in a position to push it down hill and got it started. . . . Pat Christle should know better than to walk down the aisle with an open bag of cookies and candy. It's an invitation to help yourself. . . . Happy birthday to Ted Schlup, it was Nov. 11. Ted and Kenny Hart are trying to out-do each other on the produce on their farms. So far, Kenny is ahead. While husking corn Kenny's son found an ear of corn larger than the one Ted has. Now it's your turn, Ted. . . . Nov. 10 is a very hard day to explain being off work. You know it opens hunting season and Charlie "Mac" McCormick was off that day. Hmmm! . . . Happy anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Herb Boltz. It was the 33rd, Nov. 12. Many more to you. . . . We want to express our sympathy to Rudy Rastenburg in the death of his brother. . . . Otto Pfueger is a m-e-a-n man, if he can't win he won't let anyone else, so he tears up the deck of cards.

COPYRIGHT 1954 CARTOONS-OF-THE-MONTH

Two 600 counts and a total of nine 200 games were rolled last Wednesday in the Interdivision League. Erv France had a high three-game total of 624 on games of 234, 209, and 181. Art Seidel had a 611 on games of 188, 217, and 206. Other 200 games were rolled by Baciu, 202, for Summit City Heating; Luedeman, 201; D. Miller, 213, together with France's two games for Brouwer Tire and Battery; Perry, 232, for Kinney Concessions; Kuntz, 205, with Art Seidel's count for the Old Crown Beer and Ale.

Brouwer Tire and Battery continue to lead the league in the team standings with a 20 win and 7 loss record. Erv France leads in the individual standings with a 186-17 average.

Pindusters have high single and three game total. Single game total of 1028 and a 2912 for three games. Erv France has high single game of 247 and also leads in the three game with a 624 series.

Small Motor

Tommy's Lunch rolled back into the lead by 1/2 game while Tommy's Tavern and Unlucky 113 are tied for second with 16 wins and 11 losses. Drafting is in fourth place with 15 1/2 wins and 11 1/2 losses. O. Doherty kegled a 245, Bill Demsey, 200; Ray White, 203; E. LeFavour, 224; K. Vonderan, 212; H. Fletter, 206; and C. Brandt, 206.

Ladies Tuesday Afternoon

Team No. 4 and Team No. 6 are tied for the top spot each having won 14 while losing 10. Teams No. 2 and 3 have won 12 and lost 12 and are tied for third place. Dot Ramsey kegled a 505 series which included a 181 count, Mary Nute, 181; and Kate Auker, 174.

Office

Dick Kent kegled the high game of the night, a 220 count. C. Hattendorf scored a 215; M. Junk and L. Lahrmann each rolled 213 scores; E. Aumann, 207; R. Webber, 202; P. Ohnesorge, 202; and W. Miller 201. M and G Sales are still out in front with 22 wins and 8 losses. Reproductions have 20 and 10, while Small Motor Development and Transformer are tied for third place each with 17 wins and 13 losses.

Open Bowling

Don't forget you can practice at the GE Club alleys on Saturday from 3 p.m. until 11 p.m.

Monday Night Ladies

The Scatterpins are still leading the league with 22 wins and 8 losses. In second with 20 wins and 10 losses are the Ranch House Bar B-Qers. Leading the Keglerettes in fourth are the Gutterbelles with 18 1/2 wins and 11 1/2 losses to take third. High series for the evening went to Kay Bade, 160, 181, 161, 502, and Ilo Matter, 186, 160, 162, 508. High games were rolled by Alberta Roth, 179; Gladys Fox, 178; Ilo Matter, 186; Kay Bade, 181; Winnie Scheurich, 198; Donna Schooling, 174; and Dorothy Fuhs, 186.

Ladies Friday Evening

Team No. 1 is leading the Friday evening ladies bowling league with 19 wins and 8 losses. Second place is held by Team No. 5 with 18 wins and 9 losses.

Individual high single games were rolled by C. Miller, 183; D. Larimer, 198; T. Williams, 172; and J. Korn, 173. Individual high series honors go to Liz Shearer, 534, with games of 231, 172, and 131.

Apparatus League

Team No. 12, State Farm Mutual, is in first place with 19 wins and 8 losses. Teams No. 1 and 6 are tied for second place, winning 15 1/2 games and losing 15 1/2 games. Team No. 8 is in third place with a 14 won, 13 lost record.

Eddie Reese forged to the top of the high three game list with a big 634 on games of 203, 212, and 219. Irv Schlotterback picked up the 6-7-10 split. Vic Rump nearly made the select 600 group, but his first game of 180 was too much of a handicap for his 201 and 214 games to overcome, so he wound up with 595.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

The leading Flanges (22-5) made a clean sweep of the three games over the cellar dweller Shafts (6-21). Second place Stators (17 1/2-9 1/2) took two from sixth place Rotors (10-17). G. Schultz kegled a 203 for the Stators. The grudge battle between the two office teams ended in two wins for Office No. 1 (13-14) and the teams changed places in the standing. Office No. 2 now has (12 1/2-14 1/2). J. Beery's 231 enabled Office No. 2 to cop their one game, while R. Schuster led Office No. 1 with 214-201.

GE FRATERNAL

Mandy Zelt's 621 (194-202-225) led fifth place West End (15-15) to two wins over second place Monroeville (17-13). League leaders, Riverview Gardens (20-10) maintained their pace by taking two from K of C (13-17). Johnny Beery's 615 (179-236-200) led Teeple Truck Lines to two wins over Peterson Elevator, who were paced by Al Buuck's 619 (246-175-198). These teams are now tied for third with 16 1/2 wins 13 1/2 losses. GE Club (13-17) stepped up to a tie for sixth by winning all three from the Elks, who remain in the cellar with 9-21. Other 200 scores were: Lord, 205; Ladd, 221; Appelmann, 212; Andrews, 220-201; Crates, 235; House, 219; Custer, 201; Briede, 201; Bultemeier, 213;

H. Strickler, 203; Cook, 226; Ulman, 209; Faulkner, 22; G. Schultz, 208; and D. Gage, 206.

GE Women's League

The mighty High Spots (21-5 1/2) increased their lead by winning three games from the Spares (8 1/2-18 1/2). A Reynolds had a 180; V. McDonald, 173; Halberstadt, 162; and G. Reynolds, 179 for the High Spots, while B. Teeple's 167 was the high score for the Spares. The Office stole two games from the Last Frames. These teams are now tied for second place with 12-15 each. Mary Miller had three good games for the Office of 187, 190, and 174.

SPECIALTY MOTORS

Shipping—Receiving—Order

Service

by Mabel Fisher

We are glad to see Ernie Grimes back after several days' illness. . . . Dixie Hogg has recuperated from a week-end at Northwestern University. . . . We all congratulate Paul Klage on his suggestion award and the prizes too. . . . The GE Club Revue was greatly enjoyed by a number of employees in the Shipping Department, especially by Don and Mabel Keppeler, who received "smackers" from one of the performers. . . . Ed David was in a dither last week when his helpers went hunting and Ed was left with all the work to do. . . . Vicki Sue has come to live with Jim and Betty Kemp. She weighed 7 pounds 2 ounces. Betty worked in Shipping with us. . . . Two sleepy people around the office are Betty Swift, whose father has a new TV, and Tom Fox, who also has a new GE model. . . . One of our pensioners, Addie Levenberger has a new hobby. She fishes in the pear tree at home. It turned out quite nicely for us though, she gave us some of the pears. . . . Happy birthday to Helen Eggeman. . . . The Shipping and Receiving Department's great hunter, Hugo Herbst is taking his vacation the first week of the hunting season again. It is rumored they are calling him Hugo "Vitamin" Herbst now. You know, one bunny a day. . . . We understand Claudine Bladbach wanted all-day suckers for Christmas, and do you know, Monday morning Santa's helper left a sack of suckers, tied with a ribbon too. You are certainly a favorite of Santa's, Claudine. . . . Ed David and C. L. Tulley, Navy Inspector, the Toni twins, are giving a new $5 bill to anyone who can tell which has the Toni home permanent. Give your entries to Ed.

GE Squares Hoedown

Slated for Nov. 20

A square dance party has been lined up by the GE Squares Club for members and their guests Saturday, Nov. 20, at the Rhythm Ranch, D. C. Myers, Bldg. 28-2, and M. L. Miller, Bldg. 28-1, co-chairmen of the event, reported this week.

From 8:30 p.m. until 12 midnight, music will be furnished by the Rhythm Men, with dances being called by Earl Walker. Tickets are available from contact men and will be sold at the door. Price is $1.25 per couple. Refreshments will be available.

BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

Right now it looks like the first half of the interdivision basketball league will not be settled until the two king pin teams, the Squares and the Apprentice School, meet at 8:15 Tuesday, Dec. 7. Both have met and defeated the Firemen and the TE's and unless a sleeper catches them cold, the pay-off clash should be a honey.

On Tuesday night the Squares rudely brushed aside the Firemen to the tune of 63 to 40. As per usual Gil Carl gave the Firemen fits in scoring 18 points. Only Chick Morkoetter was in double figures for the Firemen with 15. Also on Tuesday the Cylinders took the measure of the BTC and won. The BTC lads could have made the score look different. They failed to cash in on 21 free throws.

The Penthouse Dubs notched their first win on Thursday night in beating the T. St. Lab by the score of 62 to 39. Bob Pauffman and Bill Butler led the Dubs with 13 each and Fred Beltz, a real toughie, scored a like count for the Lah lads.

The Apprentice School had to use reserves to subdue the Test Engineers who had only one on the bench. Quanbeck and Engelmann collaborated to send the TE's to a 10 to 2 lead in the first period before the School lads got started and caught up even at the end of the session 12-all. The Apprentice took over the lead midway in the second with a side shot by Spiker and held a 24 to 21 margin at half. The score was tied at 35 with a minute to go in the third stanza but the School boys skipped off to a four point lead at the start of the last period. It was nip and tuck in the fourth. Kerm Quanbeck pulled the TE's up even at 43 but that was the last threat. Spiker Doepke and Fanning hit baskets for the Apprentice and that was the ball game. The final score was 51 to 46 for the Apprentice School.

Quanbeck was the scoring leader for both clubs with 17 tallies. Spiker was one behind with 16 for the winners.

Steve Miles made a flying trip to a cattle ranch in the Black Hills, near Sun Dance, Wyo., last week to hunt deer. Steve states that it is hard enough to walk up and down those Black Hills without any snow on the ground but it really is something when the weatherman tosses in 18 inches of snow in the bargain. Steve reports good results anyway as he and his hunting companion, Frank Lawrence, Section 15, brought home their limit of four deer. . . . While most of us were commenting on the extremely fine weather enjoyed the past week-end, the following comment was made by John Duffey, "The home-coming week-end at Xavier was very, very 'wet'." . . . Don Fry made a leisurely 928 mile trip to Green Bay, Wis., for the week-end. He was sitting at his desk wide awake at 7:50 Monday morning. . . . Minneapolis in the fall looks good to Al Lee who has returned from a week's vacation spent with his brother in the "Twin City." . . . Bill Lichtenstiger continues to enjoy the good cooking and extra attention he is getting now that Hazel is home as a full time housewife. . . . We didn't know we had a Houdini in our midst in the Financial Section but it seems that Mr. Mayo was able to enter his office one Saturday morning even though the door was locked and he had no key. We wouldn't want to disclose any magical tricks of the trade so we will just let you guess how he did it. . . . If any of you girls are handy with a needle and thread, contact Al Meyer. He was calling for such able assistance last week. . . . The GPM Drafting Dept. welcomes back Jean Scheef. . . . We are all happy to see Herb Wise of GPM Engineering back to work after having an operation. . . . GPM Engineering extends their deepest sympathy to Harvey Hupp, whose father passed away last week. . . . We of GPM Drafting bid farewell to Marilyn Tilker who left us for a leave of absence.

Parts for Hi-Fidelity Now at Employee Store

Component parts of hi-fidelity systems are available now at the Broadway Employee Store, Ray L. Fischbach, manager, reported this week. The parts or entire systems can be purchased at employee discount prices.

The hi-fidelity parts may be used with radio, record players, television, or tape recorder. The pre-amplifier control unit is $48.10; the power amplifier is $39.90, and the dual coaxial speaker is $35.05.

Record players, which are equipped with variable reluctance cartridge, are on sale at the store to be used with the parts. These are $41.30 each at employee price.

Hi-fidelity is a system which provides the accurate reproduction of recorded sound.

A big hand for the entertainment committee for the fine Fall Revue program. . . . We are glad to see so many former co-workers back with us again. . . . Betty Blackburn left us last Friday to go to the Winter St. plant. . . . Now why would Elizabeth Wert think that the garage doors should be a little wider? . . . Sally Lawrence is on vacation this week. . . . Gertie Wheat will have plenty of time to get ready for Thanksgiving. She will vacation next week. . . . By the way, Mary Jane Redding, you won't need to come to work next Thursday. It's a holiday. . . . Geneva Farrell is driving a new Oldsmobile. We can't imagine why her theme song would be "I Love a Parade." . . . Lois Springer was seen cruising around in her daughter and son-in-law's new '55 Pontiac. . . . Stella Kempf, forgetting to ring out at noon, brought her card to the foreman for an OK. "These new people!" remarked Roger Crabill. Stella has been ringing in a card for only 28 years. . . . Ron Offord paid us a visit last week. He's gained 15 pounds and looking fine since being on Uncle Sam's payroll. . . . Jo Alles is back in the groove again. Glad to see you ringing in your card again. . . . The new time is confusing. Dorothy Johnson comes an hour early; Velma Seibt comes an hour late. They should get together and strike a happy medium. . . . Lucille Allen must be an overpowering conversationalist to have the awe stricken clerk at Bluffton cash her check without her signature. . . . It's howdy do de to Bertha Bertsch at the Lutheran Hospital. Hope you're feeling better today. . . . Belle Buchan, our lady of leisure, took a trip to Chicago. That's when her troubles began. The elevator operator at the hotel insisted that she go down, when she wanted to go up, and the shoe clerk tried to put a left shoe on the right foot and one size too small for her.

Lee Lindeman and Thelma Purdue went shopping last Wednesday evening. When they finished shopping they walked outside and Thelma said, "Look at all the people waiting on busses." She didn't know it was Veteran's Day and the people were waiting to watch the parade. . . . If you're wondering why some of our co-workers start putting their coats on at 8 o'clock in the morning, it's because they think they have been working all night and are ready to go home. . . . Last Friday morning Carl Metker went out to feed his ducks before coming to work. He was all dressed up and when he went in the building he felt something hit him on the back. It was dark but he had a good idea what it was as he has some chickens that roost on the rafters. He fed the ducks and went back into the house and asked his wife Ardola, "Is there anything on my back?" She said, "Get out of here and take that jacket off." Carl says if it hadn't been so dark and he could have found the guilty one they would have had chicken for Sunday dinner. (His jacket is now at the cleaners.) . . . Dorothy Duff is enjoying a deer hunting trip in northern Michigan. She and her husband are roughing it in a tent. . . . Bill McClure should go out and join the Komets hockey team and then he could explain the mouse (black eye to you) he has been wearing all week. Most of us were under the impression that Louis Maier went to Florida to spend his third week of vacation. Just to set the record right, we have heard through the grapevine that Lou's main reason for going to Florida was to inspect his vast real estate holdings. We also heard that the last time Lou

it. . . . Obie Oberholtzer went hunting Veteran's Day and said all the rabbits must have gone to town as he didn't see one all day. Zirk Rogers also went hunting but came in to work at noon. Same story, no rabbits. We should have better stories on hunting next week as two of our biggest story tellers are going out tomorrow, namely Fritz Krotke and Jack Hoopingardner. . . . Vi Elliot spent last week-end in Chicago doing her Christmas shopping. . . . Maxine Luker celebrated her birthday by passing out candy bars. . . . Happy birthday also to Bertha Click and Alma Merwin.

went to Florida, which was in 1920, all his holdings were under 27 ft. of water. However, after a quite lengthy discussion we came up with this calculation for Lou. If since 1920 the water went down only one foot per year, everything should be high and dry by now. We suggest you watch next week's GE NEWS for Lou's story. . . . Now it can be told that all the various greeting cards Art Razor has been receiving for the past several months were his very own. The postage stamps were, too. Someone has been taking Art's own cards and postage stamps from his desk drawer and sending them to him. Beware, whoever you are! This may lead to a Federal offense as far as the stamps are concerned. . . . Soup—George Andorfer was all set to lap up some nice warm soup for lunch the other day. He had the jar of soup sitting on top of a preannealer to keep it nice and warm. However, when it came time for lunch, George gently lifted the jar off the preannealer and then let the jar slip through his fingers onto the floor. George, dumbfounded by his clumsiness, just stood staring at the floor and his nice warm soup. . . . Thanks —The members of the Jolly Mixers

Max Biggs left us last Friday to become one of Uncle Sam's boys. . . . Birthday greetings to Virginia Archbold and Jean Hockenberry, who will be celebrating next week. . . . Welcome to Virginia Olson, the new typist. Hope you will enjoy working with us. . . . Dorothy Long has added another pet to her collection of cat and dog. Her husband came home with a boxer puppy. We suggest you call him "Enough." . . . Peggy Ford will be eating pheasant under glass one of these days as her husband bagged two last Saturday. . . . We hope that you won't eat too much turkey on Thanksgiving Day, and let's all take a few minutes out to really be thankful for all the blessings we have received in the past year.

Square Dance Club and Elaine Betz wish to extend their sincere thanks to all who purchased tickets and contributed to the polio benefit dance for Elaine Betz. . . . Red Birds—Joe Taylor and his Indiana Redbirds can now be heard each Saturday from radio station WOWO from 11 to 11:15 A.M. and from radio station WGL from 12 noon to 1 P.M. Tune in some time and listen to Joe and his gang. . . . From all reports everyone enjoyed the GE Club sponsored Fall Revue last Saturday and Sunday.

Happy birthday to Ruth Lowdermilk today, and to Helen Conrad tomorrow. On Thanksgiving Day Bill Manecke will celebrate his 39th birthday. Happy birthday to C. J. Herman on Nov. 15. . . . Many, many happy returns of the day to Lil Sitko on her belated birthday. . . . Good bye to Ralph Church who has been working for Max Barrows. Ralph will become a full-time member of our Bldg. 4-6 Marketing Group, so we'll be seeing him around. . . . It's a good thing it's November and not one of those sizzling hot days of last summer thought Ted Ross one day last week when he felt, of necessity, he should really keep his coat on in his office. Wonder why? . . . Questions of the week—How many cans of tobacco does it take to fill that over-size pipe Jack Baumgartner has been seen smoking? Also, how many rabbits will these so-called hunters get this winter? Some of the hunters are C. Kelso, Bob Mee, Bob Knepple, and the wise old hunter, Warren Berkeiser. Another question is, how Charley Kelso keeps that car of his running without falling apart? . . . What's this we hear about Evelyn Campbell taking a little bug all the way to Angola just to show some people? . . . Mille Mitchell seems to be all smiles again after her recent visit to Pittsburgh to see her fiancé. . . . Judy Berghorn's Charleston seems to have been one of the outstanding events of the evening at Beverly Schoeph's wedding reception. Get with it Jude! . . . Calvin J. Wheeler took off to the north woods to hunt a little deer—I mean to do a little deer hunting. He claims he only wants the skin. What are you doing with what is in the skin, Cal? . . . Jim Miller has his own hunting grounds. He flew home to hunt pheasants (didn't get any) then came back by train with about one hour of sleep.

THIS ONE IS SAFE...
TEMPORARILY !

This bird will not be on your table on Thanksgiving Day. But turkeys don't stay alive for very long. Sooner or later they end up on serving platters.

There's no need for you to make your life quite so temporary.

To stay safe on your holiday —

- Eat and drink sensibly.
- If you spend the day hunting, be sure to wear bright colors.
- Be perfectly sure it's a bird or a deer you're aiming at.
- If you're driving, observe the rules of the road.
- Adjust your driving speed to road conditions.
- Allow yourself plenty of time to get to your destination and back home again.
- Be courteous at all times.

Elex Club Books Gordon MacRae For Yule Party

Gordon MacRae, popular movie, television, stage, and recording artist, will star at the Elex Club Christmas party Sunday, Dec. 5, it was announced today by Georgette Hetzel, president.

"Frosty the Snowman" is the theme of the party which will begin at 2 p.m. in the GE Club. The party is open to first and second shift members only. Tickets may be purchased by 50 cents per person from contact girls. Deadline for securing tickets is Thursday, Dec. 2. Members must have their tickets and membership cards when attending the party.

Gifts will be presented all members attending, the president reported. Decorations in the club will carry out the theme of the event.

Stock Owners Need Intangible Stamps

Employees who have received shares of GE stock under the GE Savings and Stock Bonus Plan or who have purchased GE stock outside of the Plan are reminded that they are required to purchase stamps for each share of stock they own.

Indiana state law requires that any person owning stock in a company incorporated outside of the state of Indiana purchase intangible stamps for their shares each year they own such stock. If these stamps are not purchased for the stock, it cannot be sold in the state of Indiana.

The intangible stamps are available at the county treasurer's office on the second floor of the court house or at local banks. They cost 5 cents for each $20 worth of stock.

Deadline for securing stamps for 1954 is Jan. 10, 1955.

Paul Klage Earns $500 for Idea

HIS POCKETS JINGLE—Paul Klage, Bldg. 6-3, earned $500 on a suggestion this month for his idea that a lower tariff rate be applied for on shipments between Fort Wayne and Chicago because of the trucking volume between these two points.

$1132 Awarded to GE Employees For Suggestions During October

As a result of the suggestion he submitted, Paul Klage, Bldg. 6-3, has pockets that jingle, jangle, jingle with $500 and a promise of a very Merry Christmas for his family.

Klage, who is a traffic clerk in Specialty Component Motor shipping, became $500 richer this month for his idea that a low, tariff rate on shipments between Fort Wayne and Chicago be applied for. Due to the volume of truck shipments between these two points, he thought that a lower tariff rate could be secured. The idea is now in practice and Klage is busy preparing his Christmas list of presents for his wife and two sons, Tommie, 10, and Billy, 6.

This is the third suggestion which Klage has submitted since becoming a GE employee in 1942.

The October suggestion list, which does not include Klage's award, for Fort Wayne and Decatur plants shows $1132 paid to employees for their ideas. Leading the award-earners is Zella Disler, Bldg. 26-4, who received $80 as an additional award on her suggestion for a special insulation holder at the winding machine.

A $60 suggestion check went to Leonard Bresler, Bldg. 27 garage, for suggesting a locking device on all Warner and Swasey turret lathes. This device allows correct positioning of the chuck wrench in chucks and is a great aid in the maintenance of chucks.

Other awards paid were Harry Ribel, Bldg. 26-B, $45; Carl D. Hower, Taylor St., $42.50; Chalmers Hazen, Section 114, Taylor St., $35; Charles Martin, Wire Mill, $35; Vernon C. Dafforn, Bldg. 4-5, $30; Esther I. Bailey, Section 114, Taylor St., $25, and Raymond H. Christman, Bldg. 6-2, $25.

Eighty-six employees were paid amounts of less than $25 for their suggestions last month.

Apprentice Alumni Elect Carl Brandt President

Carl Brandt, Bldg. 12-3, was elected president of the Apprentice Alumni Association Monday evening at the organization's Fall banquet.

Other newly-elected officers for 1955 are George Horner, Hanna St., vice president; Don Alcott, Bldg. 19-5, financial secretary; Lyle Claphan, Taylor St., recording secretary; Ray Steinacker, Bldg. 19-5, treasurer, and Milton Allmandinger, Winter St., John Leiendecker, Taylor St., Robert Schuelke, Toolcraft Industries, Inc., Frank Woenker, Winter St., directors.

Rythm Ranch Site Of MTP Wives Dance

Friday, Dec. 10 has been selected as the date for an informal dance which the MTP Wives Club will sponsor. The dance will take place at the Rythm Ranch on the Miller Rd. from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. There will be games and refreshments also.

All members of training programs and their guests are invited to attend the event. Tickets are $2.50 per couple. They may be secured from Pete Rippens, and Gordon Walker, Winter St.; Ernest Roman, Taylor St.; Frank Boyd, Bldg. 12-3; Ralph Reed, Bldg. 4-4, and Clayton Brewer, Hanna St.

Four New Appointments Announced In General Purpose Marketing

Four appointments in the General Purpose Component Motor Department Marketing organization were announced this week by William R. Bogess, manager of marketing.

Walter L. Leifheit was named manager-research, promotion and administration; Wilbur W. Warner, product planner; Alfred H. Lee, industrial and gear motor specialist, and William F. Brunner, advertising and sales promotion specialist. All four appointments became effective Nov. 1.

A 1943 graduate of Purdue University with a BSEE degree, Mr. Leifheit came to General Electric in 1946 as a test engineer in Schenectady. In 1947, he joined the FHP motor engineering organization and a year later entered FHP sales work.

Mr. Leifheit was named sales engineer at the Rockford, Ill., Sales Office in 1949, where he served as Form G motor specialist until 1954, when he returned to Fort Wayne. A member of FWAGEE and the Supervisors Club, Mr. Leifheit is married and has two children. They reside at 1427 Waldron Circle.

Wonder Who Dunit?

No fooling, I'm scared. And so is Gertrude, my cosmic spouse. We've been house-haunting ever since Halloween, trying to dig up a spot that will hide two sheets from the wind until lily season opens next Spring. But all of the very best plots in the very best cemeteries have been taken by guys and gals who thought safety was something for sissies. You could learn a lot of things about safety in a hurry (but too late, as these gone guys and gals would tell you) just by reading the headstones, if the monument makers would let me and Gertrude do their ghost-writing.

Take that nice marble job, eight paces west of the shadow cast by a full moon. Maybe you knew the guy before I met him—and changed the headstone lettering to suit the facts:

"A widow and kids were left alone. Tom stopped for a drink before driving home."

And pause, for a moment, beside that low-slung granite piece near the gate. Nice fellow there. His name is—or was—George . . . just like mine. If you think high-voltage is child's play, read and heed:

"Consider the fate, in passing, stranger. Of men who ignore the signs marked DANGER!"

But don't get the idea that spinning blades and hopped-up volts do all the haunt-housing these days. Take a look at those fresh new tombstones over in our latest sub-division:

"Bill ran machines with earnest care. His wife left a broom on the cellar stair."

"Meet Frank the Foreman from Bldg. 5. Till he passed on a hill driving 75."

I know, I'm boring you. Just like those speeches and rules the Boss is always dishing out about wearing safety glasses, getting instructions straight before you tackle an unfamiliar machine, using the safety guards on every machine, and driving as though it was your own life you were trying to save. Sure. A working guy would look foolish doing everything the safe way.

But what's more foolish—than being ghoulish. Ask the man who owns one of these hillside lots. Tellum George sent you.

SICK LIST

The following employees have been reported on the sick list, and dismissed from the hospital:

Sick List

Harold Hilsmier, Everett King, Ethel Morrison, Herbert Bender, Herbert Cook, Tillie Petry, Robert Keller, Beatrice Hans, Harold Kroeger, Ralph Klaren, Patsy Vendrely, Lester W. Dafforn, Clyde D. Musser, George E. Schlink, Wilmer Adams, James Savio, John Kintz, Fred McIntyre, Gloria Miller, Theodore W. Mullen, Frank C. Rathert, and Edward Rowan.

Dismissed from Hospital

Harold Hilsmier, Lamar Drake, Wilma Oswald, Virgil Royer, Elsie Dunfee, Tillie Norris, Alta Stanley, Anna Lowe, Kathern Allriedge, Maurice Bennett, George F. Schlink, Edward Ellenberg, Jr., Virginia Jones, and Theodore Mullin.

The following employees from the General Purpose Component Motor Department donated blood during the week ending November 12:

Richard D. Burns, James E. Hoppel, James S. Moore, Yvonne Moore, Paul J. Schroeder, Noel L. Young, Kenneth J. Zurbuch, Donald Alcott, David Bartle, Jr., Donna Bloom, Emmett S. Bloom, James L. Brant, Donald W. Clark, Jack C. Farris, Eleanor M. Harber, Merritt L. Hartman, Orrell L. Hess, William H. Irwin, L. W. Jahnke, William M. Lipp, Elmer W. Sherbondy, Charles F. Shipman, Donald C. Jake Denis is our new interior decorating expert after putting plastic tile on his bathroom walls, with some help from his wife in the close spots. . . . Carl Click announces the arrival of a shipment of 1955 model puppies in various colors and body styles. . . . We're glad to see Art Jenne back after his recent illness. Congratulations on the completion of 35 years with the company this week, Art. . . . Chet Reynolds will soon learn not to buy anything for himself after November. It seems his family does their Christmas shopping early. When Chet started talking about buying a new thermos bottle the family got scared and brought out a new lunch bucket and thermos bottle. Chet said he didn't really need the lunch pail, his old one was only 20 years old. . . . Paul Richter celebrated his birthday last week and brought in a devil's food cake for the check room. . . . Ed Ellenburg is in the Lutheran Hospital to undergo minor surgery and will be out work several weeks. . . . The planning unit welcomes Don Macke back to their group. . . . Louis Paluszak must be losing his grip. When his son and family were leaving his apartment, Louie took his granddaughter's hand to help her down the steps. She was in a bit of a hurry and slipped and rolled down the steps reaching the bottom mighty scared but none the worse from the fall. The fact is, Louie felt much worse about the whole thing than she did. . . . Gus Ormsby is allergic to dirt. A piece of it in his carburetor caused him to hoof it to work one morning last week and get here late. . . . Kenny Smith wasn't playing fireman, he just opened the wrong valve when he wet down the east half of Bldg. 19-5 the other day. . . . This week is third week vacation time for Mike Brandon, Forrest Whonsetler, and Bob Pequignot. . . . The quality of the English language has improved considerably around the special machine section since Dallas Smith has a lady helper on the job. . . . Luther Ogg's family has had an increase with his hoy coming home after four years in the Navy. . . . After Carl Schlenker's new short haircut, Leo Schlaudroff had to introduce the apprentices to him all over again. . . . Lowell Welker will think twice every time he feels life coughing since he threw his back out of joint with a hearty cough the other day. . . . Ray Steinacker agrees it's getting very difficult to pick up any extra money these days, especially if it's nailed down.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Wonder what would happen in Bldg. 26-3 if Dale Amstutz didn't forget his glasses at least once a week; if Harry Bailey wouldn't have his weekly football pool; if Morris Felger ever sang in the right key; if Art Pequignot and Lena Forker wouldn't sing anymore; if Harry Brattain and Bob Thomas quit smoking cigars; if "Pop" Forschner didn't have change for a quarter; if Betty Haines wore the same hair-do all week? . . . We hid farewell to Fred Leinker and Art Rall who transferred to Bldg. 26-5, and Glenn Watson who transferred to Winter St. . . . A hearty welcome to Robert Frederick and Morris Mastin from Bldg. 26-4. . . . Ronald Davies is the proud father of a 7 lb. 4 oz. boy named Roger Lee. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Nellie Wendt, who celebrated on Nov. 17; Dorothy Campton, Nov. 23; and Millie Strickler, Nov. 11. . . . Lenore Luttman and your reporter have purchased new GE TV sets. . . . After 10 years of coaxing, Eugenia Fry finally treated the Sample Shop. . . . We hope Mac McCray had good hunting on his vacation last week. . . . The winders have been doing and saying strange things. For instance, Ruth Freeland put the sandwich meat in the silverware drawer; Lorraine Papp picked up what she thought was a hankie only to discover later it was one of the baby's anklets; Lonnie Rockstroh was telling about some of her favorite food-one turn to be toasted on peanut butter. . . . We caught Nancy McCrea all wrapped up in her work. One leg was, at least. . . . Art Pequignot's son Dick is home on leave from Great Lakes Naval Training Base. . . . Almetta Till is back on the job after a two-day illness. . . . Frank Cihon isn't sure what happened to his alarm clock. It has been badly damaged and he needs a new one.

The apprentice hayride, held last Friday night, was a big success. Despite the damp weather there was a good turnout. After the ride, "Cactus" Carl Brandt provided entertainment in the form of square and round dancing. The shindig was enjoyed by all. The class representatives, who were responsible for this fine evening, deserve a vote of thanks, and the apprentices should be commended on their cooperation. . . . A confederate in the Bldg. 12-2 mill section, Jack Olinski, has been collecting twenty dollar hills from Wheaties. He claims the south will rise again. . . . We have a new mic-man in the apprentice school. Jerry "Vice Grips" Jones has taken up the art of micrometer adjusting. . . . Any one interested in a good wife should contact the Bldg. 12-2 gear section. We have heard that John Kalb has been treating them to his marvelous cookies. The ptomaine type. . . . A suggestion has been made that Jim "Burr" Lehman provide his bench section with new files. How about that, Jim? . . . Thanksgiving Day Ray Watkins and Allen Brown said those fatal words, I do. Good luck, fellows. . . . Last week Mel Hutchison, who is operating the jig borer in Bldg. 12-3, was confronted with this question. What kind of drill press is that? This was asked by a new apprentice. . . . Paul Rosenhahn is the only transfer this week. He has been assigned to the Winter St. plant.

Company to Match GE Alumni Gifts Under New Educational Aid Plan

A new plan to provide additional financial assistance for American colleges and universities through direct grants of funds was announced today by trustees of the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund. The new plan, known as the Corporate Alumnus Program, becomes effective January 1. It is the intent within limits of the plan that gifts will be made from the fund in amounts equal to those made by GE employed alumni during 1955.

In announcing the plan, Philip D. Reed, chairman of the GE Board of Directors and chairman of the Fund's trustees, said the plan "is thought to be unique in business-education circles because it provides for joint participation in the giving program by individual employees who are college graduates, and by the Educational Fund.

Mr. Reed estimated the company employs some 23,000 college graduates with earned degrees from more than 540 U. S. colleges and universities. He said contributions of any such college graduate, up to $1,000, within the year, will be eligible for contributions from the Fund.

The plan further stipulates that contributing employees must have at least a year's service with the General Electric Company, the contributions must be an actual gift and not merely a pledge, and it must be made to an accredited U. S. college or university of which the contributor is an earned degree holder. Mr. Reed said the trustees will consider at the end of 1955 whether the program should be extended, and whether experience has indicated changes that might improve it.

The Corporate Alumnus program was described by Mr. Reed as "frankly an experiment, arrived at after long consideration of the whole subject of business support for higher education."

The trustees of the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund, he explained, are strongly convinced that one of the greatest untapped sources of continuing support for higher education lies in regular contributions by alumni. With the backing and cooperation of the General Electric Company, the trustees decided that a "Corporate Alumnus" program, with its provisions for joint action by the alumni and the fund, would do the most to stimulate colleges and universities to develop their own alumni-giving programs and thereby help themselves.

The broad program, in effect for many years, has consisted of gifts and endowments, grants-in-aid, equipment for instructional purposes, scholarships, fellowships for graduate study and various kinds of cooperative undertakings.

The General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund was created two years ago by the company to implement certain phases of the overall program. Paramount in this program, according to Mr. Reed, is the fostering of an adequate supply of educated manpower and the maintenance and improvement of an economic, social and political climate in which it can continue to do business, progress and prosper.

Married 55 Years

Yesterday, on Thanksgiving Day, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Leitz celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary at a reception for members of the immediate family. The couple, who reside at 2138 Broadway, have three children, Raymond of Decatur, and Paul and Edward C., both of Fort Wayne.

A Quarter Century Club member, Mr. Leitz joined the company in 1917. He worked in Bldg. 26-4 prior to retiring January 1, 1946.

Product Planners Hold Conference Here

Product planners from 16 different GE departments with large volumes of component business met in the Specialty Component Motor Department marketing offices last week to discuss mutual problems. Reading from left to right around the conference table are E. O. Vandeven, A. C. Gable, H. J. Chanon, H. E. Campbell, H. E. Herrman, A. E. Peltosalo, E. A. Green, A. F. Dickerson, J. Coullard, D. W. Day, H. E. Priwer, V. C. Campbell, W. B. Dexter, J. F. Jamison, J. H. McCulloch, and D. A. Hamilton.

The group met to exchange views on common problems. Topics discussed included the trend in power supply for the next decade, miniaturization, price vs. quality, component product trends, testing agency trends, standardization of products, and customer requirements. V. P. Gregg was the conference host.

A round table discussion of the Contributions of Product Planning to Department Operations was held at the luncheon, attended by general managers and marketing managers in the Fort Wayne area.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Ralph E. Hardesty

Ralph E. Hardesty, 45, died of a heart attack Monday in his home at 1927 Taylor St. Mr. Hardesty was found dead in bed by his wife, Minnie.

He was employed in the Hi-Bay section at Taylor St.

Survivors in addition to his widow are a daughter, Miss Sue Hardesty of Newcastle; his mother in Indianapolis; a brother William of Indianapolis, and two sisters, Mrs. Blanche Lytle of Crawfordsville, and Mrs. Mary Jane Ferguson of Shannondale.

Services will be held today in the Mungovan & Sons Mortuary.

Employees Can Get December Sale Price On Home Freezer

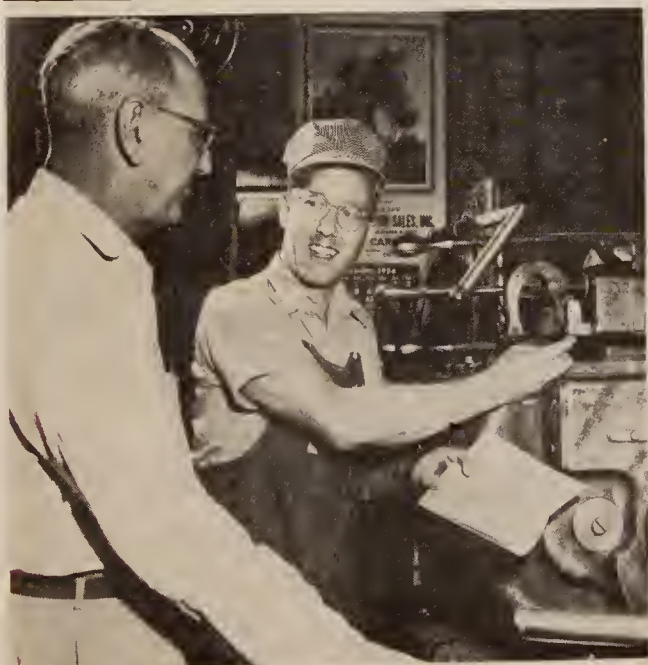

A special December price for GE employees has been announced on the home freezer model HU 15. The 15-foot upright freezer will sell for $341 to employees during the month of December, Mike Casey, of Commercial Electric, GE distributors in this area announced today.

The freezer may be purchased from some dealers in the area. Dealers also have a "skip payment" plan available to employees on all white goods, such as, washers, freezers, laundry equipment, ranges, refrigerators, etc. By this plan, employees may pay 10 per cent of the purchase price down and then no further payments are required until March.

As an example, the home freezer could be bought today for $34.10 down with a second payment not due until the last day of March.

SUGGESTION PAYS OFF—Leonard Bressler (right) shows Sam Baumgartner his idea which paid $60 last month. His suggestion was for a locking device on all Warner and Swasey turret lathes which aids in the maintenance of chucks. Bressler works in Bldg. 27.

Farewell Celebrations for Retiring Employees

ELAH E. GREEK, holding her granddaughter, Karen Baden, had many members of her family present on her last day at GE. Left to right are her daughter, Mrs. Amy Baden, Freeman Rohlfing, another daughter, Mrs. Glenna Stump, and Robert Hunt. Mrs. Greek came to GE in 1943. She was employed in Bldg. 26-1 at retirement.

Four Appointments

1917. During World War I he served in the Signal Corps of the U. S. Army.

Shortly after coming to General Electric in 1919, he was assigned to the FHP motor engineering department as a design and application engineer for hermetic and appliance motors.

From 1936 until 1942, Mr. Warner served in FHP motor sales, until he was given special assignments on World War II sub-contracts. He served from 1945 to 1952 as secretary of the FHP motor development committee.

Prior to his present appointment, Mr. Warner has been manager of sales for pumps, compressors, fans, blowers, and heating equipment in the General Purpose Motor Department.

He served as chairman of the FHP sub-committee of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association from 1949 to 1951. The Warners and their daughter live at 1042 Northwood Blvd.

Alfred H. Lee

Alfred H. Lee, newly appointed industrial and gear motor specialist, was graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1928 with a BSEE degree. Following graduation he entered the testing department in Schenectady as a student engineer.

In 1930, he came to Fort Wayne to work in the FHP engineering section. Five years later, Mr. Lee entered FHP motor sales work, where he has been serving until his recent assignment.

He is a member of the AIEE, GE Squares Club, and lives at 1734 Third St.

William F. Brunner

A native of Fort Wayne, Mr. Brunner joined the General Electric Company immediately following his graduation from South Side High School in 1934. He began his sales work in the Renewal Parts Sales section in 1937. Three years later he was assigned to FHP motor industrial sales.

In 1952, Mr. Brunner joined the advertising and sales promotion staff of the FHP motor department, his position until his present appointment.

He is a member of the Fort Wayne Advertising Club and the Supervisors Club. The Brunners and their son James live at 1427 Park Ave.

THE NIGHT WIND
SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.
by Dorothy V. Hart

Margaret Kenyon spent the week end at Clapman Lake with friends. . . . Dorothy Hart spent Thanksgiving with her son Harley and family in Garrett. . . . We have been missing Bob McCague who is on days, but reports are that he will be back on second soon. . . . Herman Keener was back in the 21 line last week. Herman just brought his wife home from the hospital a few days ago. He also bought a home on State St. recently. . . . Audrey Brindle is a city slicker now. She is rooming in Fort Wayne so she doesn't have to drive those long miles this winter. . . . Walter Childers was in the hospital a day, or so last week, but is back with us now. . . . Alma Raymer sprained her ankle and was absent last Tuesday. . . . Wayne Chapman is back on second trick with us again. . . . I believe we missed the birthday greeting last week to Homer Huser whose birthday was Nov. 18, anyway we say greetings just in case. . . . Dorothy Hart is able to cook again, she has a new electric stove and percolator. . . . Hope you all had a nice Thanksgiving. . . . Our week's chuckle—Small town: A place where everybody knows what everybody else is doing, but still reads the paper to see if they've been caught at it.

"One of the prisoners has been made editor of the prison publication."

"Well, he'll certainly be able to say a lot in one sentence."

DITTIES FROM DISTRIBUTION
by Ruth Sorg

Virginia Olsen's husband decided he'd turn baker boy and make some doughnuts. They turned out so hard that they couldn't eat them. Tell him, Ginny, that they would make good sinkers for a fishing line. . . . Millie had a day off last Wednesday. She almost had more when she tried to outsmart a Buick going down the street. . . . Everyone is wondering why Helen Eger is coming to work all dressed up these days. How about it, Helen? . . . Rosey Ort celebrated her birthday last week. She had a very delicious lunch. . . . Everyone had a big Thanksgiving dinner yesterday. Maybe everyone didn't have turkey, but everyone had plenty to eat anyway. Now that Thanksgiving is over we can all turn our thoughts to Christmas and all that Christmas shopping that is in store for us.

Tony Mandra bought himself an early Christmas present, a new Dodge. . . . Ray Swartzel thinks he should get double time for last Sunday night. He dreamed he was building wine cup rotors. . . . Moe Moffiet went hunting in his home state of Ohio the opening day. Results: Two birds, four rabbits, and was home by noon. . . . Merle Keesler bought his son Mike a boxer puppy. The first night Merle was up from 2 until 4 a.m. baby sitting with the dog. Merle said he had to sit with it because as soon as he started to bed the dog would start crying. . . . I told you that when Fritz Krotke and Jack Hoopingardner went hunting they would have some stories and what stories! Fritz went to his relative's to hunt on their farm. They have a hunting dog so he borrowed it and was told to be sure and not lose it. Fritz loaded the dog up and went to another farm and went in to see if he could hunt on their property. He said he was only in the house a couple of minutes, and when he got outside he couldn't find the dog. He whistled and hollered, but not dog. He noticed a car drive by with a couple of hunters in it and right then Fritz thought they took the dog. After while, and after climbing fences and cutting his hand on barbed wire, he went to tell the bad news about losing the dog. He explained what happened and his relation laughed and said the dog thought he was going hunting but when he went into that house the dog came on back home. . . . Jack's story is a little shorter. He said, "No rabbits, no birds, best I should have stayed in bed." . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Boren on their 7 pound 10 ounce baby hoy. . . . Also congratulations to Henry Pliett on a baby girl. Henry was a little red-eyed but said it was due to the cigarette smoke in the waiting room.

Only Ike's 43-pound bird will outdo Charlie Kensill's 35-pounder for Thanksgiving dinner and we believe it since Charlie so dearly loves turkey. . . . The plaster cast toted around by Jim Schwartz is no longer a novelty. He is still afraid he will cut his throat trying to shave left-handed. . . . Coon hunting is very enjoyable but tends to tire one out quite a hit as Buck Lydy will testify. . . . It's been mentioned that perhaps Ray Hoelle should have waited until summer to move since he is complaining that the gas furnace in his new home probably will run him $5 for that one day when the doors were opened and closed so much. . . . Since Clarence Nussel's complexion has turned so rosy (we call it beet-red) he has turned from red apples to yellow ones. What's the next stage, yellow jaundice? . . . With all the talk about new cars, Tommy Ambrose is strangely quiet on the subject of a new Oldsmobile. . . . Just as soon as Sol Andorfer got used to the third trick and planned to get in his corn, he sprained his back. Now it looks as though that corn will have to stand in the fields all winter. . . . So far no blows have been struck between Des Walker and Cy Seymour over the deal between the Yankees and Baltimore. However, the kettle might boil over any day, especially if Bill Weber shows up here. . . . Quotation for the Week: "A young man may have more money than brains—but not for long."

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Margie Hill

Dorothy Moore had a birthday last Thursday and with Betty Gentile supplying the cake there was a party. . . . Did any of you know it was also Boh Oliver's birthday? . . . Congratulations to John Hansel and wife, who are the new parents of a bouncing baby born, born Nov. 19 and weighing 8 lbs. and 2 ozs. . . . We're all extending congratulations to Mary Manz who celebrated 35 years with the company last Thursday, and to Millie Clark who celebrated 25 years with the company Saturday. . . . The welcome mat is out for Virginia Grabile who is going to be our new second shift nurse. Also to Lucile Ward who is replacing Berneta Welbaum for the week. Take it easy, Berneta, and have a good time while you're on vacation this week. . . . The news from the Tool Room tells us that Art Hickman is having a little trouble with his ironing. He's a bachelor now you know, with his wife in Detroit for a few weeks. . . . Did we hear right? Are Harold Bohde and Jim Barrick really throwing a feast with venison as the main dish? And is everyone invited? . . . The Tool Room gang is at it again. They claim Rudy Brown got lost in the fog the other day coming to work. . . . Ed Ehrman went to see the Purdue vs. Indiana game last week-end. Playing on the team, Ed, or on the sidelines? You've got a son in there who is doing all right for Purdue. . . . Oh, that was a funny one on Mary Peduto, wasn't it? It seems that Mary got tickets to the GE Revue for Saturday night. She swapped the tickets for the Sunday night performance, she went a whole week early. So, she swapped her tickets back again for the Saturday night show. She goofed! . . . Congratulations to Arno Taylor. She has a new granddaughter and this makes the fourth time a grandmother. . . . Take it from us and keep out of Vivian Curran's way when she's in a hurry. The other day she rushed out at 3:30 and bumped into a guy and the poor man fell into a crate and broke it all to pieces. . . . We're all wishing a speedy recovery to Tom Rockhill. Have you all been sending him cards while he is in Parkview Hospital? . . . HERMETICALLY SPEAKING: Each of us had many things to be thankful for. Helen Feiertag was very happy to have her daughter and son home for the holiday. Lucile Quirk enjoyed the day in Marion. . . . Eva Penn enjoyed turkey with her family. Tony was just going to paint and was thankful for the day. Irene Kaeding is happy the day is over, as she will move into her new home now, any day. . . . Ada Barnes was a model in a style show last week and with her hair sprayed in white streaks she made a lovely picture. . . . Ada Romanowski's son made All City football team, also varsity basketball and we guess the strain was too great for her, as she has been home for a few days since. . . . A get well wish for Jennie Mathias and Hazel's daughter, Shirley. Rachel Jackson is happy to report her daughter Rebecca will be able to return to work soon. . . . Marcelle is very happy to have Eva back as she does not care for winding. . . . Laura Gross and her daughter, Marjorie Brumbaugh, attended the Fall Revue and enjoyed it very much. . . . Happy birthday to Pat Hatch on Nov. 27. . . . Single phase line welcomes the following newcomers to their line: Mildred Briggs, Betty Johnson, Alice Snyder, Marian Hellin, Lois Johnson, Ethel Middleton, Willa Bryant, and Gladys Blue. . . . Sympathy is extended to Harold Cornish in the death of his grandfather. . . . Congratulations to Robert Sensac. It's a boy.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO Stan Tomkinson next Monday. . . . BELATED BIRTHDAY GREETINGS TO J. C. Duryee, Nov. 25, and Clara Mygrant. . . . "BOTTLENECK" Manecke you can call Bill Manecke from now on. He was caught with his "defense" down. He'd been getting quite a kick out of teasing a certain party about being a "bottleneck" in the parking lot, but that certain party in trying to locate some previous issues of magazines being circulated, found a stack of magazines a foot deep on Manecke's desk. . . . REPORTS FROM THE FAR NORTH: Lots of deer all still there. Heap big hunter, Cal Wheeler, returns empty handed. . . . PLEASANT SURPRISE: Along with the other gifts Ruth Lowdermilk received on her birthday last Friday, when she arrived home that night, she received a beautiful birthday cake from the Harry Connor's. . . . CHARLESTON KID: We heard that Joan McBride is trying to learn the Charleston. We also heard the reason is so she can teach her boy friend the Charleston. We bet that Joan and her boy friend will be the best Charleston dancers in all of Fort Wayne. . . . PARKING LOT PILL, Bob Mee has just inherited this name. The other day Bob was asked to move his car that was blocking a couple other cars. Maybe next time, Bob, you should not leave your brake on.

Benny Cohn not only comes to work with his pajama tops on, he also has other troubles. Ben is so short he can't see out of his Studebaker. After going over the curb and narrowly missing other cars, Ben now has two riders to help direct him to and from work. . . . Friends of Paul Peterson can now call him "Grandpa". Congratulations, Pete. . . . Oral (Buzz) Hyser is having his troubles these days. First Buzz burns a hole in his shirt and the company gives him a rubber apron for protection, next his bifocals get out of focus and he falls over the conveyer. As a safety measure the company is having special overhead lights installed. Happy landings, Buzz. . . . Dick Hall, well known Hanna St. stacker, was having a mite of trouble with his new Sunbeam Razor. It wouldn't cut. "Dick you have to plug it in." . . . Clarence Raney, Huntington's well known ridge runner, returned from vacation to further complicate things in production. . . . The boys at Hanna St. were happy to see Edna (Mert) DeLuery and Eva Refner on their recent visit to Hanna St. Come out again sometime Edna and Eva. . . . Al Topp is commercializing his lake property. It is reported he raises hogs in his front lawn. . . . It looks like Bill Fowler will have to put some antifreeze in his radiator. Ice is still forming in his pockets every time he stands still. . . . Dwight Jackson is back from two weeks vacation. We have been wondering why things have been running so smooth in wage rate. . . . Irene Meyers favored the Hanna St. girls by having lunch with them this week. . . . Doyle Johnson came to work Monday looking prettier than a coon hound. The occasion—his 25 years with General Electric. He has 20 more years to go. Condolence, Doyle. . . . Earl Bartling and Louie Miller recently transferred to Hanna St. to learn some of the finer points of production. Keep 'em coming hoys. . . . From the recent grouch Al Topp has been carrying, it seems he must have reached that period of life when he needs a stimulant. It was suggested by Tom Freeman that he get some of the ever ready pills carried by Dutch Norwalt. . . . It has been reliably reported that Walt Pohler's 1921 Dort, after 149,000 miles, finally gave up the ghost. Walt is now the proud owner of a 1929 Hupmobile. You are to be congratulated Walt. Let us be the first. . . . The management is now very happy. The Toonerville trolley was fixed and put back into operation in record time.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. and Mrs. David Bastian on the arrival of a new heir by the name of George Douglas, weighing 8 lbs. 5 oz. . . . TEETH: Nolan Riley is having his teeth pulled but it seems that he is trying to save all the time and money he can. The other night he was seen with a pair of pliers trying to pull all the loose ones himself. . . . PHEASANT VS. BANTY ROOSTER: Recently, Delmas Detter and Carl (Snuffy) Junk went hunting for pheasants. Since luck was not with them, and they were afraid to go home without a pheasant, Delmas and Snuffy decided to pay a visit to Alton Corson's farm. After a lengthy discussion, they finally talked Alton out of four banty roosters which they took home, making their wives believe they were real-for-sure pheasants. Boy, oh boy, what means a man won't go to in order to make his wife believe he is a real-for-sure hunter. It's unbelievable! By the way, Forrest Gill tells us his pheasants are now ready for marketing. Delmas and Snuffy, please note. . . . BASS: Dewey Wisner, Bill Skinner, and Herman Bertsch went fishing. Dewey was fortunate enough to catch a bass. On the way home an argument arose and a wager of five cents made by Bill and Herman that the bass weighed a pound-and-a-half. Dewey claimed it wouldn't weigh a pound. Arriving at Herman's home, Bill and Herman took the bass in the house to weigh it while Dewey waited in the car. Finding that it did weigh less than a pound, Bill and Herman filled it with stones to make it weigh over a pound. They then brought the scales and the fish out to the car to show Dewey that they had won the wager. What some people won't do for a nickel!

Fred Wheeler and Melvin Schrader went hunting Saturday, but we don't know yet just how many birds and rabbits they got. . . . The committee is busy with arrangements for our Christmas party. Don't forget the date, Dec. 16. . . . Congratulations to Dorothy McCoy on her service with the company of 25 years. . . . Faye Ann Betley and Sue Stewart were hostesses to a party and shower at the Colonial for Betty Swift, who is to be married. The girls who attended the affair were Catherine Minehart, Ruby Flaugh, Helen Eggeman, Eva Westrick, Mabel Fisher, Ilene Richardson, Helen Brown, Marie Renz, Gertrude Koldewey, Dixie Hogg, Marlene Niccum, and Sue Stewart. Betty's gifts were lovely and everyone enjoyed the evening so much. Betty will marry Jack DeBolt on Dec. 4, at the Zion Lutheran Church at 6:30 in the evening. . . . At this point, you all are probably still stuffed from Thanksgiving, but wasn't it nice? . . . Happy birthday to Claudine Gladbach, Hugo Herbst, David Bridges, and Sue Stewart.

After four years of hunting deer the first week of the season with no luck, Paul Henricks, Sr., has decided that he should go the second week and bag some that other hunters have already shot at. . . . Buddies of Don Mason thought that he was bringing in very small chicken legs for lunch until they found the answer. He took his son hunting one day and when they failed to get anything by the end of the day, they bagged some doves they saw in a tree. . . . Joan Armstrong better take the advice of back seat drivers in the future. Her car stalled in traffic and after sitting there for 20 minutes, she did as someone with her suggested and away they went. . . . We hear that Howard Pfeiffer is attempting to grow a mustache and beard. Could it be that he is trying to save money for Christmas presents? . . . We will be sorry when Jack Wilson leaves us soon. Imagine when he tells his grandchildren some day about all the women he worked with in Bldg. 4-3. . . . Edna Neal became a grandmother for the first time recently. . . . John Whillet is anxious for the first snowfall. He says there is a rabbit the size of a lamb running around Roanoke and he thinks he can track him down when there is snow. . . . Sam Taylor got his order of duck neck from Avery Spayde. That's the last of the ducks. . . . Jake Kuglar was on vacation the past week as were Geneva Worden, Art Bobay, Kathryn Hepker, and Lorinda Beyerlein. . . . Birthday greetings to Emily Nierman. . . . Serna Slater sat on her morning paper the other day and then tried to find it. . . . Guess we will have to call Freeman White "Stinke" from now on! . . . Bernie Lake has another grandson, whose initials are CAR. Guess he will be rich, if the slogan proves true. . . . Doris Stearns Hewes, a former co-worker, is the proud mother of another girl, Pamela Sue. . . . Birthday greetings to Fren Castor, Wilma Pfierman, Lloyd Dolan, Fred Ginzler, Mary Gebhardt, Joan Lindeman, Lillie Benz, and Lois Kauffman.

Jack Lunde seems to have lost his he-man strength. An elderly lady, walking down the street close to Jack, stumbled as she stepped from the curbing and grabbed onto Jack to keep from falling. Don't know who fell for whom, but they both fell down. So don't depend on Jack for a lift. He'll let you down every time. . . . It does pay to advertise, says Speed Bachellor. His thinner cans are coming home, but then we aren't too sure it isn't a little absence of mind too, Speed, on your part. Anyone that would lock up their keys inside their locker, and then couldn't get in, or was that for safe keeping? Speed is on vacation yet this week, but maybe it will all work out OK when he comes back all rested up. . . . Johnny Nail isn't quite sure which are the water and which are the air lines lately. At least, he tries to hook on to the air line and gets only water and more water. Just because Don Shoner tried to clean his pipe out with the water line, you didn't have to try it too, John. . . . Robert Ramsey has left us for a job at Taylor St. You will be seeing Earl Rice, now taking Bob's place in Bldg. 20-2. . . . George Coplen was trying to hurry to work the other morning, and kept trying to pass something in front of him. When he got to Leo, he found out it was a horse and buggy, but maybe the fog was to blame for his not making it past the horse. . . . Ralph Clark is spending two weeks in Florida on a belated vacation. Couldn't think of a better time to go South, and enjoy that sunshine. . . . Glad to see Charles Rogers returned to work after a long illness. . . . Elmer Mesing says he has lost another pound. He says it is from too hard work around here. Any comments? . . . Sorry you had to lose that bet, Wally, but the turkey was sure good, and no sore teeth.

Alice Nichens has left for Holland, Mich. Everyone had a nice time at the party given for her. How we will miss her! . . . Welcome to Alberta Roth who is working for Mr. Kuttner. Nice to have Alberta back among us after two years at Broadway. . . . We extend our deepest sympathy to H. A. Norr upon the death of his six-year-old daughter. . . . Hereafter Carl Reiter will be known as "Keeper of the Keys." While his people pace anxiously up and down, wondering when they are going to get in, Carl has the keys safely tucked away in his desk drawer. . . . That anxious look is beginning to fade from Don Nelson's face as he settles down for a comfortable winter in his new home. . . . The blue haze hanging over the second floor, reminiscent of the "Great Smokies" was in reality only the result of all the cigars Tom Dowling has been handing out. It's a baby girl! . . . And speaking of baby girls, Betty Ann is the new little namesake niece of Betty Walti. This makes Betty an aunt for the 23rd time. The Ann, by the way, is for "adopted aunt" Millie Ann Vermillion, Betty's co-worker. . . . Mr. Bireley spent last week on his vacation. . . . Sol London is spending next week on his vacation down in sunny Florida. . . . Glad to see Dent Manecek back at work after having an operation. . . . Arnold Bowers has a white rabbit to give away. Anyone wanting same contact Mr. Bowers on 2465. Whoever wants it has to keep it for a pet. . . . Carl Mann is enjoying a week's vacation. . . . Russ Carpenter's look of expectancy really turned to amazement while visiting in the sales section recently. Russ asked Steve Miles to dial a number for him and nearly fell off his chair when, instead of getting Jerry Schlund, the voice answered "Carpenter's telephone." . . . Congratulations: G. C. Michael is now a grandfather. . . . Harold Kastan, MTP trainee in Mr. Merkey's office, is the proud father of a baby girl.

Everyone is very sorry to see Carl Sorenson leave us to go to Winter St. It's been nice working with you and we hope you like your new job. . . . Butch Castel has moved into his new home so maybe he can get to work on time now. . . . Chet Carey was in to visit the gang the other day but is still on the sick list. We wish him a very speedy recovery and hope he can join us again soon. . . . Clair Teotes is now the proud owner of a road atlas so there's no excuse for him getting lost on the highways. . . . Marie Wilson is enjoying her third week vacation. . . . The girls wish to thank Mildred Orr for her remembrance and gifts they have received. . . . We hope Mildred Snyder gets her screen door taken down before they run out of rope. . . . Virginia Reed is ready to try all new ideas. She has one new use for the sweeper, but we hope her husband leaves the house before she starts. . . . Bill Harrison is just a country hick working in town. He doesn't even know how to use the telephone here yet. Don't give up, Bill, the boys will help you.

GE Club Industrial Owls Win League Opener from Salisbury Quintet 60-45

By Howard Colby

The Main Auto Industrial Owl League began their 1954-55 activities with two games at the GE Club gym last Thursday morning.

GE and Salisbury played in the opener at 9 a.m., with GE winning by a 60 to 45 score. Eckrich lost a hard fought game to Indiana Rod and Wire 34 to 31. The third game of the morning between Zollners and the FOP was re-scheduled.

GE and Salisbury had a close first quarter with Salisbury hanging on to a 9 to 7 edge over the GE boys. Scoring for the Club team was handled by baskets made by Dickey, Etter, and Blodgett, who also added a free throw.

The second period picked up in tempo as both teams began to settle down and overcome the opening game jitters.

John Anspach led the Club in the second period with three field goals. White and Blodgett each hit two fielders and Carl Wilson came up with a basket and a free throw. Warren Dickey added another free throw to make a total of 18 points. Salisbury hit for 13 to give the Owls a 25 to 22 half time bulge.

In the third stanza, GE pulled away from Salisbury by out-scoring them 23 to 10.

Carl Wilson took scoring honors in the third quarter by netting seven points. Ron Blodgett hit for five, Gene Etter and White two baskets each, with Dickey adding a basket and a free throw for a three quarter margin of 48 to 32.

The final quarter was a draw with each team matching point for point.

For the Club team it was Bob Markey leading the way with three field goals. Paul Somers and Dickey hit one each and White cashed in on two free throws for 12 points. Salisbury meanwhile rang up 13 on their side of the score making the final tally GE, 60, Salisbury, 45.

SOS Club Plans Dance At Van Orman Dec. 3

The SOS Club (SIM Office Social) has slated a "Winter Wonderland" dance which will take place at the Van Orman Hotel ballroom Friday, Dec. 3. Members and their guests will dance to the music of Jimmy Stier and his orchestra from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Tickets are $1.50 per person and may be secured from contact persons. Nancy Kelly is serving as general chairman of the event. Publicity chairman is Harold Fremion.

Miller led the D.P.'s with a 556 series, to a three game win over the Dabsters to move the D.P.'s in second position. Miller also had the high single of the night with 225, which is the second highest single of the league. Komets won two from the Hermetics to hold the first place position (17½ to 9½) with the D.P.'s (16 to 11) and Dabsters (15½ to 11½) in second and third positions. Komets also moved in second position in the high team singles with a 943. Narhwold picked up a 4-10 split.

Small Motor

Tommy's Tavern took over first place in the league with a record of 19 wins and 11 losses. Drafting is in second place with 17½ wins and 12½ losses. Unlucky 113 is third with 17 wins and 13 losses. Losing all three games dropped Tommy's Lunch to fourth place with 16½ wins, 13½ losses. Eating chicken on the GE Club are Webber, Lamboley, Hamilton, Hanson, Wheeler, and Wallin. Double Century scores were kegged by Webber, 232; Sexton, 201; Pinkerton, 212; Lantz, 202; Vance, 220; Stephen, 229; Hoffman, 205; Johnson, 209; Brandt, 206; Lamboley, 203; and Kammeyer, 202.

Thursday Afternoon

Dortha Ramsey kegged a 174 for high single game honors. Team No. 6 has won 16 and lost 11 for top spot in the league. In second place with a 15 won 12 lost record is Team No. 4. Team No. 2 have won 14 and lost 13 to hold down third place.

Masonic League

Fellowcraft have won 17 and lost 10 to lead the league. Levels and Patrols have each won 16 and lost 11 to tie for second. Doric and Corinthian are tied for fourth spot with a 15 and 12 record. Chicken winners are W. Gidley, R. Fredrick, R. Meyers, Judkins, E. Nietert, W. Lautzenheiser. R. Fredricks kegged a 608 series on scores of 215, 184, and 209. Edwards kegged a 214; R. Hickman, 211; Judkins, 209; Weddle, 205; Habig, 204; Peters, 203; Wietert, 203; R. Meyers, 201; and Lautzenheiser, 201.

Decatur

In a battle of the giants (in this league—that is) second place Stators (19½-10½) nipped the leading Flanges (23-7) for two wins. Paul Bried's 225 led the Stators, while H. Shoaf paced the Flanges with a 224. Office No. 1 (15-15) retained third place by overpowering the fifth place Rotors (11-18) for two games. G. Laurent's 614 (169-211-234) was the best score while Bill Porter with a 201, and Rog Schuster with a 200 chipped in to help the office boys. Jim Parent rolled a 202 in the Rotor's losing cause. The cellar dwelling Shafts (8-22) scalped the Office No. 2 crew for two games. Office No. 2 remained in fourth spot with a 13½-16½ standing.

GE Fraternal

West End Restaurant (17-18) got hot and came up with a big 1047 game to win two from the league leaders, Riverview Gardens (21-12). Bob Lord's 606 (225-154-227) led the lunchmen. Teeple Truck Lines (18½-14½) eked out two wins over GE Club (14-19) as G. Laurent came up with a 600 (245-159-196) for the Truckers. The two wins stepped the Truckers up to third place. The Club remained tied for sixth. The cellar dwelling Elks (11-22) surprised Peterson Elevator (17½-15½) by taking two and dropping the Elevator boys a notch to fourth place. Monroville Lumber (19-14) stayed in second place by edging out two wins over K of C (14-19) who are still tied for sixth with the GE Team. The lively interest and intense rivalry in this league can be attested to by the fact that only four games separate first and fifth place. Scores of 200 were kegged by: Petrie, 205; Appelman, 225; Andrews, 200; Zelt, 201; Mutschler, 204; Cook, 209; House, 206-202; Trenadue, 204; Ulman, 214; Steury, 218; Custer, 202; G. Strickler, 200; P. Hoffman, 203; L. Hoffman, 226; Briede, 224; Kreischer, 223; and Beery, 206.

GE Women's League

The Last Frames (14-16) took two games from those hard to beat High Spots (22½-7½) Plasterer's, 162-184; Bischoff's, 162; and Pendland's, 174 was the big noise for the Last Frames, while A. Reynolds', 160; Kleinhenz's, 181; and G. Reynolds' 175 were top scores for the High Spots. The Office (14-16) took two from the last place Spares (9½-20½) with M. Miller leading the victors with a 170 game. F. Engle had a 164 for the losers.

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

Last week's action gave further indication that the impending battle for league supremacy between the Apprentice School, coached by Tom McCrea, and Tom Krigbaum's Squares on Pearl Harbor Day at 8:15 p.m. will be the big one of the first half.

The Cylinders also have an unblemished record, but have faced only the Firemen and have yet to play the TE's, Squares, and the Apprentice School.

On Tuesday night the TE's whipped the T. St. Works Lab team by the score of 74 to 31. Engelman led the scoring with 22 points. Also on Tuesday the Cylinders scored a mild upset in tripping the Firemen 44 to 41. The lead see-sawed throughout the first three periods but the Cylinders took command in the last quarter. A last ditch effort pulled the Firemen up to within one point at 41-42 but the Cylinders' Rhode canned two big charity heaves to end the ball game.

On Thursday night, the School lads started their second stringers and cleaned up the Dubs 52 to 24. McCrea used his first team less than half of the game. Big Les Fanning collected 10 points for the winners.

The Squares, led by Ken Frankenstein, and Gil Carl clobbered BTC 63 to 30 in the other half of the Thursday bill. Ken ended up with nine buckets for 18 points to lead the winners, while Bob Lund paced the losers with 10.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Last Saturday morning Bernard Brake was sauntering along S. Lafayette St. wearing a ten gallon hat which was adorned with a large bright green feather. He explains that he was undecided as to whether or not he wanted to appear on the streets looking like a Texas cow puncher or a Swiss mountain climber, so he decided to combine the two. . . . One afternoon last week when I was driving along Brown St., I noticed a car sitting in the middle of the block with the hood up. Hovering around and peering into the engine pit was Herman Hake, Art Torbeck, and several others. At first glance I thought perhaps the engine had fallen out of the frame and well, it might for this clunker which belongs to Charlie "Cannon Ball" Winans, had sprung a leak. Almost all of his permanent anti-freeze was lost. . . . A year ago if you remember, Everett McKee took off for the upper peninsula of Michigan in the quest of deer and the results were negative. Well, he has gone again and our only hope is that he will get one this year and not bring back a cow, trying to kid us that the beef steak he passes out is venison.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

by Sherry Varner

We hope everyone had a happy and thankful Thanksgiving. . . . Floyd Mutton is back from vacation. He spent a few days in Kentucky and some time hunting. He really got some rabbits, he says. . . . Surprise!! Pat Christle and some other husbands appeared to crash a surprise birthday party their wives were having. When the men appeared it was a surprise, but it was planned that way by the hostess. . . . Baby Sitter: Available at all times. Call Herman Zuber, Bldg. 19-3 west. No age limit. . . . Goodbye to Bob Aldridge, who went to Winter St.; to Don Vorndran, who went to Bldg. 17 and to Malcom Bender, who went to Taylor St.—We will miss the boys. . . . Merle Byers, a hunting he did go, but nary a thing did he get, not even a cat. . . . Tony Wichman has a hard time keeping tab of his working tools, especially his hammer. It comes up missing quite often. . . . Henry Becker is back from vacation. He installed an overhead garage door and went to Chicago. . . . Happy Birthday to Dorothy Whonsetler. It was November 18th.

CORDINER ANNOUNCES EXECUTIVE CHANGES

GE Club Plans Party Dec. 18 For Children

Open to children of all GE employees, the GE Club Kiddies' Christmas party will take place Saturday, Dec. 18, in the club auditorium. Five shows have been slated so that all the employees' children will have the opportunity to attend.

Times for the five shows are: 10 a.m., 12 noon, 2, 3:45, and 5:30 p.m. Four professional acts have been signed to provide entertainment and Santa Claus will make his annual visit at each of the shows to chat with the small fry. Following each performance, there will be treats for each youngster under 12 years old who attends.

Tickets for the performance will be available beginning Wednesday, Dec. 8, at the GE Club, Taylor St. employment office, or from mem-

Belanger Named Group Executive For Industrial Products & Lamp

Important changes in the General Electric Company's organization at the Executive Office level were announced this week by President Ralph J. Cordiner. In brief, they included:

1. Important new responsibilities for Philip D. Reed,

Chairman of the Board of Directors.

2. Formation of the Distribution Group composed of the Apparatus Sales Division, the General Electric Supply Company, International General Electric Company, and the General Electric Credit Corporation. The Affiliated and Foreign Companies Group is discontinued.

3. Appointment of Executive Vice President Henry V. Erben as group executive in charge of the new Distribution Group and of Executive Vice President Robert Paxton to succeed Mr. Erben as group executive in charge of the Apparatus Group. Canadian General Electric Company becomes a part of the Apparatus Group.

4. Election of John W. Belanger as an Executive Vice President and appointment of Mr. Belanger as group executive in charge of the Industrial Products and Lamp Group, succeeding Mr. Paxton. The X-Ray Department becomes a part of the Industrial Products and Lamp Group.

5. The changing of the name of the Defense Products Group to the Atomic Energy and Defense Products Group and the assignment of group executive responsibility to Vice President Cramer W. LaPierre who succeeds Mr. Belanger. The new responsibilities for Mr.

Robert Paxton

John W. Belanger

Henry V. Erben

Cramer W. LaPierre

Reed are primarily in the area of Public and Government Liaison in which he becomes responsible for maintaining and enhancing essential over-all company relations

Four Foremen Cited By Safety Institute

For their outstanding contribution to accident prevention during 1952, four GE foremen were among 22 honored at the 14th annual Foremen's Safety Institute last evening at the Chamber of Commerce.

The four GE foremen who received Safety Ace awards are: Ralph Keller, Specialty Component Motor Department; Wehman L. Heniser, Specialty Transformer Department; Harold R. Knepp, Small Integral Motor Department, and Donald E. Egts, Direct Current Motor and Generator Department.

Walter W. Walb, president and general manager of American Steel Dredge Co., presented awards to the 22 men who represented Fort Wayne industry and who by their efforts have accomplished outstanding safety work in their sections.

Principal speaker at the dinner meeting was Miles Robson, director of training and consulting division, National Foremen's Institute, Inc., New London, Conn. He discussed "What the Worker Expects from You . . . His Supervisor."

MILLER REAPS 108TH AWARD

Bobay and Hess Share $600 Award At Transformer Suggestion Party

Wednesday, Nov. 24 was a "red letter day" for three Specialty Transformer Department employees who collected a total of $1,090 in suggestion awards on that date.

The three men are Emmet J. Bobay, Fred Hess, and Doyle D. Miller, who worked in Section 91 at the times they submitted their ideas. Bobay and Hess received a joint award of $600. Miller earned two checks, one of $340 as additional payment on an idea he submitted and the other of $150.

The awards were presented by general manager Carl H. Rinne at a meeting of all employees of Section 91. In honor of the occasion, three large cakes, decorated with turkeys and the amounts of money earned by each man, were cut and served along with coffee to all the employees by their foremen.

Turns in 190 Suggestions

Miller's award of $150 represents the 190th suggestion he has submitted since becoming a GE employee 31 years ago. Of this unusually high total of suggestions submitted, 108 have been adopted. He earned the $150 for an idea to install box strippers on certain dies so that the punches can be lubricated with light oil instead of compound. This suggestion eliminated rust spots on the punchings thereby reducing manufacturing losses.

Highest of any awards he has received, the $340 additional check presented Miller concerns his suggestion to use an adjustable die for punching and shearing lay-up core laminations. This represents a savings entirely in labor.

SUGGESTION PARTY—Honoring three employees who earned suggestion awards totaling $1,090, Specialty Transformer Department Section 91 served cake and coffee to all employees in the section following the presentation. In back of specially decorated cakes are award winners Fred Hess, Doyle D. Miller, and Emmet J. Bobay. The foremen who served the employees cake and coffee are James Stauffer, Foreman Rohlfing, Walter Wolf, and Darrell Hirschfelder.

Security — In A Sheepskin

The son of an assembler graduates from medical school and begins experiments in a drug company lab. And from his research the children of tomorrow may walk usefully into America's future without fearing the braces and despair of polio.

An immigrant's son steps from the college campus into a factory. And from his contribution to technology all Americans may gain better jobs, better food, better homes, and all of the other elements of a better life, at lower cost.

A cab driver's daughter lays aside her graduation gown to take up teaching, and hundreds of American children grow up better educated and more useful citizens.

These are the gains we all reap as our colleges plant the seeds of knowledge in more young men and women with each new generation of Americans. In a world where whole nations stand or fall on their ability to move forward materially and spiritually, these college graduates who unlock the secrets of medicine, science, technology, religion, and the humanities may well be our strongest task force in freedom's future.

That conviction was molded into dramatic action by General Electric management last week in a policy decision which again stamps GE as a pioneer in good corporate citizenship. Under a new addition to GE's already liberal "aid to education" program, the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund will match—on a dollar-for-dollar basis up to $1000—any contribution which any GE employee makes during 1955 to an accredited college from which he earned his degree.

Right now, approximately every tenth employee of GE is a college graduate—filling a job that helps to make the jobs of all employees secure for the future. They come from 540 different colleges—colleges which have then, to some degree, contributed to job security for all of us at General Electric.

The financial aid which these colleges receive from the gifts of their graduates working for General Electric will now be doubled in 1955 as a result of the company's contribution. This "turn-about" contribution by GE to America's colleges is something more than "fair play." It promises greater job security and a growing standard of living for all of us.

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlhaffen

That new look on Charlie Hazen was not originated by anyone in Paris, it is simply a mustache. . . . Paul Fremion went to the doctor to get a shot and took his three-year-old son, Joey, along. The nurse laid Paul's arm on a table and gave him the shot. Paul's arm soon began to rise. After nearly having a fit and calling for the nurse several times, Paul found Joey was turning the crank on the table. Perhaps Paul thought the nurse gave him a shot of helium. . . . Art Bear's excuse this year for not getting any pheasant was the foxes beat him to it. . . . Happy birthday to Eldon Bell on Nov. 20; Clarence Shanebeck, Nov. 21; and Nancy Cowan, Nov. 29. . . . Fred Campbell's daughter and grandson were here for the Thanksgiving holiday. . . . We discovered the other day that Don Ernst is 1-A. He says that he is disgustingly healthy. . . . Earl Greenlee took his wife coon hunting. We wonder who carried the game and the guns? . . . Why does Don Ernst always blush when anyone mentions Garrett? . . . Willadean Rathert is on her vacation this week. . . . Mrs. Niemeyer is wondering what she is going to use for a screen door next spring since Walt is using their present one for a TV aerial. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wiegman who were married Nov. 27. . . . Also congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hattendorf who celebrated their 22nd anniversary on Nov. 23. . . . Our sympathy to Joseph Schibler and family at the recent death of Mrs. Schibler. . . . Our best wishes to Loyd Foulks for a happy retirement beginning on Nov. 30. . . . Welcome to Jim Preston. . . . Good-bye to Gerry Carper who was transferred to Section 113. . . . Judy Lehman is looking for any used shotgun shells. It seems he uses so many shells on each rabbit he can't afford to shoot more than two rabbits each season. . . . Our deepest sympathy to Ralph Hardesty's family at his passing away. Everyone here will certainly miss him. . . . Thanks to all those who remembered your reporter's birthday.

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Morie Siple says his news for this week is "turkey." He bought a 19-pounder. It seems that most of us enjoyed the big bird and hope you all had a nice Thanksgiving. . . . Bob Hull entertained guests from Indianapolis over the holiday. . . . Margaret Kenyon spent Thanksgiving at her sister's in Decatur and entertained guests from Warsaw over the week-end. . . . Audrey Brindle entertained her family with the big gobbler Thanksgiving. . . . Alma Raymer spent the holiday with her son Richard and family of Fort Wayne. . . . Freda Holbrook really made the headlines this week. She is aunt to twin boys. . . . Bob McCague is looking for a used 20-inch tricycle for his little boy and we hope he finds it. . . . Bob Hull, you better be careful who you call George after this. . . . Thelma Trent is back in Section 417 again. Thelma just enjoyed a trip to New York recently and on returning home found her husband had returned from the service. . . . Mel Lytle has left us for days. We enjoyed working with you, Mel, and good luck always. . . . Martha Brown has a new grandniece. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Smith of Piqua, Ohio. . . . Erma Beard visited her son Don of Columbia City over the holiday and had turkey. . . . Helen Fraser entertained her lady friend Flossie Trout over the holiday. . . . We say good-bye and good luck to Elmer Evans who retired Tuesday. . . . Congratulations to Ray Stout whose birthday was Nov. 20. He says he has one more year to go. . . . Orval Tracy went home ill Wednesday evening. We hope he was able to eat turkey on Thanksgiving. . . . We understand that Bob Hull has a good bunch of testers, and we agree, Bob. . . . Claude Alford said he would have to have someone to do his stooping after Thanksgiving. . . . Better is a dry morsel with quiet, than a house full of feasting with strife. (Audrey Brindle.) . . . Margaret Kenyon says an engagement is a period of urge on the verge of a merge.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Margie Hill

We're starting off the news this week with congratulations to Harold R. Knepp who was chosen Safety Ace Foreman of 1954 for SIM. Harold was judged winner of the contest that was open for all foremen on safety. He was presented with the award at the Annual Foreman Safety Institute dinner held Dec. 2. . . . Say, what's this we hear about Frank Mason and Ross Sunday both driving new 1955 Fords? Even the same color! . . . We're glad to see Alice Dickmeyer back with us again. Welcome to the Shipping Dept., Alice. . . . John Rockhill is still on the sick list but we're looking forward to seeing him back again real soon. . . . Are you folks up there on the third floor being blinded? Don't worry, it's just the sparkle of Gloria Clendenen's new diamond. . . . Welcome to Carl Sorensen and John Bryant who are both foremen in the Manufacturing Section this week. . . . Welcome to Paul Rosenhahn, our new apprentice in the tool room. There were an awful lot of turkey sandwiches around the tool room last week. It's been reported that the fellows haven't been talking they just gobble. . . . Tom Rockhill is getting along just fine and all visitors and cards would be welcomed. . . . Karl Hofacker had an accident while roller skating the other day. It required four stitches in his chin to fix him up. . . . It seemed Susie Jones was pretty down hearted the other Sunday when she arrived at work discovering she had left her mid-morning snack, which was cherry pie, in church. But she was soon helped out when one of her friends gave her an apple pie. . . . Good luck to Charles Beal on his new job in Bldg. 4-3. They even had a cake for him when he left. . . . Have any of you ever heard of home grown Turkey? Ralph Knox has. He was asked what he had for Thanksgiving and replied: "Home grown Turkey." It seems his brother-in-law raises them. . . . HERMETICALLY SPEAKING: Ethel Koontz is indeed happy. Her son sailed from England on Dec. 1. . . . Gladys Blue is the most recent grandmother. It's a grandson. Also Lela Lines and Eva Penn are grandmothers. . . . Edna Keoster is motoring to Chicago for the week end. . . . Barbara Durnell moved into a new house, and acquired a new pup. . . . Betty Zolars came in black and blue. Reason: too much wax on her floor. . . . Lois Facks is without a husband. He has gone to Pennsylvania to bring back a deer. . . . Charles Scott entertained his sister from Honduras, whose husband is with the Government there, as an accountant. We hear Charles is getting his wife a Lincoln Capri for Christmas. Those are the reasons he has been on a cloud around here. . . . Paul had a little accident on inspecting a lake while hunting. Did you get wet, Paul? . . . Girls, if you are looking for a man who is also a chef, Paul Roberson cooked turkey and all the trimmings for his family of 15. . . . Family dinners were enjoyed at home by Doris, Ada, Amy Rupp, Lillian Mallo, Iva Stuckey, Evelyn Daugherty, and Pat Hatch, also her birthday. Mary Wolfe was a little late for dinner in Ohio, because she forgot her baby's shoes. Jerry spent the day in Leo, Mildred with her sister in Churubusco. Mildred Reynolds went home to Findley. Betty Kummer went to Muncie. . . . Amanda Longwell, was very happy. Her company brought the dinner, also her nephew was home from Purdue. . . . Helen Feiertag was lucky and didn't have to cook. . . . Have you seen Ruby Stucky's Christmas and other kinds of ribbon?

It's a toss-up to see who will take the job with Rev. Alvin, Elmer Mesing, or Oscar Rodenbeck. If you care to vote, send them in care of Howard Morton. He is helping the Reverend. . . . Ask Jack Lunde why he had his wife cut the little pink posey out of his black tie? . . . Sorry to hear Bob Rodenbeck's little six-month-old baby girl has fallen and broken a leg. Bob says she is doing real well. He is afraid the nurses will have her spoiled when she returns home. Hope she can be home real soon again. . . . Glen Boatman is spending some time on the Gulf of Mexico down in Florida, also we had a card from Ralph Clark, from Clearwater, Fla. The only thing is, it sounded a little hard to believe, because he said to tell the boys he was worrying about work, and we are a little doubtful of that statement, Ralph. We will be glad to see you back Monday bright and early. . . . John Lare is taking a few days vacation this week also. . . . Les Bland doesn't think Wayne Beck can take it on first trick, only working one day and then had to take a day off to rest. How can you afford that, Wayne? . . . We need bigger and better signs on our rest rooms, because Charles Cook is sure having trouble up in Bldg. 26-5, reading the signs. At least his face was sure red! . . . Charlie "Shorty" Dunifon, is still in the Parkview Hospital, and is not able to be released yet. Sure hope you can be back with us before long, and feeling fine again. . . . Also sorry to have Ed Rowan on the sick list. Ed has been off two weeks. . . . We extend our sympathy to Earl Fee in the death of his father-in-law last week. . . . We want to wish happy birthdays to those having birthdays in December. Carl Garretson, 5; Otto Otten, 7; Carl Williams, 14; Martin Mundt and Joe Shovlin, 16; Herb Bobay, 17; Otis Fitch, 20; Ross Silks, 22; and Don Price, 25. . . . Jack Vessely and family spent Thanksgiving week-end with relatives in Wisconsin, and returned full of that ole bird, the turkey. But then didn't we all? At least everyone sure looked stuffed.

Elex Club to Sponsor Class In Beginning Photography

A class in beginning photography will be sponsored by the Elex Club, Georgette Hetzel, president, announced this week. The eight-week class will begin Monday, January 10. Paul Perry, Bldg. 31-2, will be the instructor.

Sessions will be conducted Monday evenings beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The course is open to both members and non-members of Elex.

BIG CHIEFS who will guide the Apprentice Alumni Association for the coming club year are headed by the top man on the totem pole. Carl Brandt, president. Other new officers from top to bottom are: George Horner, vice president; Lyle Clapham, recording secretary; Don Aleott, financial secretary, and Ray Steinacker, treasurer.

Price of the course for members is $2 and for non-members it is $2.50. Reservations should be made either in the Women's Activities office, Bldg. 18-1, or with Veora Habig at Taylor St. Deadline for enrolling in the class is Jan. 3, 1955. Persons may attend individual sessions for the price of 50 cents per class.

The president also reported that the club has opened its Corner Cupboard counter at the Broadway Employee Store, Bldg. 8-1. The counter is open from 11:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. five days a week. Items on sale include Christmas cards and wrappings, toys, pecans, candy, and other gifts.

Since being grandpa, it seems that Paul Peterson is doing some of his own cooking. All Paul needs is a timer to turn on the timer on the range oven. . . . The Hanna St. plant received its second coat of varnish this week. Tank ran over again. . . . Doral Smith, the "Jefferson Center Flash," finally let his team down and lost three games in a row.

Set it on the fence
Anybody rooting for Jefferson Center
Ain't got any sense.
Johnny (19 stitch) Wilder crossed Doral Smith off his list. Every time John helps Doral, he gets his wrist cut again. . . . The Hanna St. management served all the employees with coffee and donuts Wednesday morning. Thank you very much. . . . Benny Cohn was seen in the coffee line Wednesday with a gallon bucket. Were SAFETY SMILE—Ivan Booher, of the Decatur plant, is a happy man these days and one who is looking at the world through both of his eyes because he wears safety glasses. Recently Mr. Booher, who is a set-up man on a die cast machine, had his safety glasses hit by flying metal from the machine. The force of the metal shattered his glasses and embedded the metal in one lens. Without safety glasses, his eye would have been injured and he might have lost the sight of one eye.

you entertaining Thursday, Ben? . . . We know now why Helen Doty is a regular attendant at New Haven basketball games. Helen is the hardest gum chewer there. . . . Doc "Boy Scout" Gordon did his good deed for the day. He spent all Wednesday morning doing repair work. . . . Big Chief R. Goller's wife sure is a trusting soul. She went to Florida and left Dick all alone in Fort Wayne. . . . Walt Pohler favored the Hanna St. boys with a short visit Wednesday, Nov. 24. . . . Maurice Casey now has a new respect for his kitchen table, after leaving a piece of hide from his balding head on the corner of the table. . . . Al Coxon is now on a sardine diet and gained four pounds. Nice going, Al, you can add crackers to the diet next week. . . . Ora Cagnet, the Monroeville sheriff, is again going to Arthur Murray School of the Dance. Ora got in the wrong square when they changed partners at his last barn dance. . . . The Hanna St. girls gave a going away party for Vera Reeves. It is reliably reported that Amy Reynolds had a severe case of L. K. What were you girls drinking?

George Wright to Manage Sales Of Specialty Shaded Pole Motors

George T. Wright has been appointed manager of sales of shaded pole motors in Specialty Component Motor Department, Joseph J. Horan, manager of marketing, announced this week.

Mr. Wright joined the company in 1936 and entered the Test Engineers Program at Schenectady. After completing the course in 1937 he came to Fort Wayne's Motor and Generator Department where he worked in design engineering. The following year he entered Fractional Horsepower Motor sales as a sales engineer. Later he was named manager of pricing and standards and subsequently became manager of marketing services in FHP. Prior to his present appointment, he was division manager of marketing services.

A graduate of the University of Kansas, Mr. Wright received his BS degree in Industrial Engineering in 1936. The Wrights and their three sons reside at 214 W. Fleming Ave.

Sembroski Takes Production Post At Hanna Street

Edmund S. Sembroski

Edmund S. Sembroski has been appointed supervisor of production in Specialty Transformer Section 88 at Hanna St., Robert W. Barker, superintendent of Section 88, announced this week.

When he came to GE in 1948, Mr. Sembroski went on the Advanced Production Training Program in Fort Wayne. He was assigned to Erie, Schenectady, and the Chicago Sales office before completing the course in 1950. At that time he became assistant to the supervisor of shipping and order service at Taylor St.

The next year Mr. Sembroski was named assistant to the supervisor of renewal parts in Fractional Horsepower Motor at Broadway. In 1952 he was appointed supervisor of production service in General Purpose Component Motor Section 113, Taylor St. This was his position prior to his present job.

From 1942 until December of 1945 Mr. Sembroski served in the U. S. Marine Corps, where he was stationed in the South Pacific theater of action. A graduate of Tri-State College, he received his BS degree in business administration in 1947.

GE Employees Score Best Safety Record

General Electric Company employees worked more safely during the first nine months of this year than in any similar period in the company's history, it was announced today.

C. R. DeReamer, manager of safety services for GE, said in a third-quarter report that the company's over-all lost-time accident frequency rate was 3.13 accidents per million man hours worked. This is a 20 per cent improvement on the company's 1953 rate. The all-industry average, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, is 11.8, or more than three times higher than the GE record.

APPRENTICE BROADCAST by Jim Kennard Mel Guillaume

The Apprentice School recently received three new apprentices. They were Jerry Morton, Jim Marchelletta, and Walter Kammerer. . . . There were also several transfers. George Bice went from the Die Plant to Bldg. 19-5, Dick Verhoeven went from Bldg. 19-2 to the Die Plant, and Gene Seider returned to Bldg. 12-2 from Bldg. 19-5. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gawthrop on the arrival of twins, a boy and a girl, Jerry and Terry. . . . Dick Goshorn has earned the nickname "Weepy." We understand that the show "The Last Time I Saw Paris" was real sad. Dick used one box of Kleenex. . . . We understand that Pete Zook and his wife were unable to attend the recent hayride because of an unfortunate accident. It's too bad because they really missed a swell time. . . . Our prediction of the week is that John Kalb will soon be going steady with Rosalie. . . . We have heard rumors that Bob Barnes could improve his television reception if he would use a three-inch shim under the left side of his set to straighten up the picture.

Engineers Set Dec. 8 For Christmas Party

The Fort Wayne Engineers Club has slated Wednesday, Dec. 8, as the date of its annual Christmas party, Robert F. Schulte, general chairman of the event, reported this week. The party, which is open to members and their guests, includes dancing to the music of Woody Neff and his orchestra and entertainment by the Magnachords, a quartet from Magnavox, and the GE Squares German band. There will be prizes and a buffet lunch.

Beginning at 8:30 p.m. the event will take place at the Fraternal Order of Police Country Club. Tickets are $1.25 per couple and may be secured at the door upon presentation of the Club 1954-55 membership card. Reservations should be made with contact men.

"SUPERIOR TEAM WORK" brought Specialty Component Motor employees the Appleton Apple Award for their "outstanding cooperation" with one of their customers, the Peninsula Tool Company. The award was presented by GE's Apparatus Division Sales Office in Appleton, Wisc. With the plaque and a bushel of apples sent with the award are (l-r): Roger Fuller, Emmett Mills, Harry Balz, and J. J. Clarkson, general manager.

Cordiner Announces

with Government departments and agencies concerned with subjects of vital interest to the company, such as, taxation, atomic energy, labor, tariffs, and defense expenditures. Mr. Reed also concerns himself with international affairs and with the creation of stronger relationships with important foreign and domestic customers. He serves as an over-all company spokesman, and represents the company in important situations affecting customers, share owners, employees, suppliers, and the public. He is chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Directors and continues to have responsibility for the guidance of the treasurer of the company who heads the Treasury Services Division. Mr. Reed also continues as Chairman of Trustees of the General Electric Pension Trust and five other company Trusts with combined assets exceeding $600,000,000.

The formation of the Distribution Group represents another significant step in the decentralization and integration of company operations initiated in 1951 and which Mr. Cordiner, at that time, described as necessarily a "gradual process."

According to Mr. Cordiner, the new group has been formed for the purpose of achieving "improved customer service, better service to the operating departments using these sales channels, and more clearly defined management responsibility."

Each of the components of the new group—Apparatus Sales Division, International General Electric, General Electric Supply Company, and General Electric Credit Corporation—is concerned with the distribution of products of many different operating departments and divisions in different operating groups. The marketing and sales organizations which serve single product departments or divisions—such as the GE Appliances Company which is the principal distributor for the Major Appliance Division—will continue to have the same responsibilities as heretofore. It was stressed that the formation of the new group does not alter the present relationships between distributors and the operating components or their responsibilities in regard to each other.

The assignment of Mr. Erben as group executive of the Distribution Group brings to the position a man with long experience in the sales field as well as in the operating phase of the company's apparatus business. Mr. Erben was elected a commercial vice-president of the company in 1944 and the following year was named assistant general manager of the company Apparatus Department. He became a vice-president and general manager of apparatus in 1948 and was elected an executive vice-president in 1951.

Mr. Paxton, who assumes group executive responsibility for the Apparatus Group, has during his GE career, been in direct charge of two of the major heavy equipment businesses which help constitute the group. He served in the switchgear business from 1924 to 1945 and in the transformer business from 1945 until his election as vice-president in charge of manufacturing in 1950.

In succeeding Mr. Paxton as executive vice-president of the Industrial Products and Lamp Group, Mr. Belanger transfers from the Defense Products Group which he headed since its formation in 1952.

A General Electric employee for nearly 38 years, Mr. Belanger has likewise had long experience in both the sales and manufacturing fields. He became manager of the company's Turbine Divisions in 1947, assistant general manager of the Apparatus Department in 1949, and general manager of the Large Apparatus Business in 1951.

Indicative of the significance the company is placing on atomic energy activities is the announcement that the Defense Products Group will now be known as the Atomic Energy and Defense Products Group. Mr. LaPierre, who has been assigned group executive responsibility, also will continue as general manager of the Aircraft Gas Turbine Division which, together with the Atomic Products Division and the Aeronautic and Ordnance Systems Division, will comprise the group.

Group responsibilities for the Appliance and Electronics Group remain under Executive Vice-President Roy W. Johnson.

bers of the entertainment committee. To obtain tickets, which are free of charge, employees should present their club membership cards at any of the above locations.

Three of the acts booked for the party were revealed this week by Gordon L. Smith, entertainment chairman for the club. They are The Lucky O'Days, Wanda and Amand, and the Madcaps.

The Lucky O'Days are a team which present feats of magic entertaining and appealing to everyone. Musical marionettes are made to perform by the team of Wanda and Amand. Five girls in colorful costumes present an act of tumbling and stunts under the name of the Madcaps. All the acts have appeared at clubs and theaters throughout the country.

Coffee Money

When Bobay and Hess submitted their joint idea they joked about getting enough to buy a cup of coffee apiece. Now with $300 each earned from their idea they will have enough to buy lots of coffee, even at current prices.

The joint award totaling $600 concerned corrugating the sides and tops of annealing hoods to strengthen them and thus have more use from them. Savings realized from this suggestion is in material.

Bobay, who works at the Hanna St. operations of Specialty Transformer now, had submitted 21 previous suggestions and had five of these adopted. For Hess it was a case of ringing the bell on the first suggestion he has submitted.

SHAFT SHAVINGS

BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

A Visitor: It was grand to see Sherry Varner when she came visiting. It won't be long until she is able to be back working again—we hope. . . . John Redmerski has a strange hobby saving bus transfers. He keeps his transfers and pays another token to ride to work. . . . A sardine can was making the rounds in the Commutator section. Smelly, wasn't it? . . . Muscles of steel were developed over Thanksgiving by Frank Enderle and Frank Elder. "Glass Knuckles" Coon soon found out when he did his daily dozen the other noon. The two Franks had steel plates on their arms just where LeRoy hit them. . . . Lawrence Bressler has one-fourth as much hair as any other man, but it takes him twice as long to comb it. . . . Elmer Wagner was so disappointed Friday when he stood two hours out in the cold at Sears Roebuck just to see Santa arrive in his helicopter, but because of the fog Santa arrived by car, so Elmer didn't get to see him. . . . Dorothy Whonsetler is back from vacation. Did a lot of loafing, we bet.

SMOKEHOUSE SAYINGS

by George Winans

We extend our sympathy to Floyd Brown upon the death of his sister. . . . Anyone wanting to buy a fuel pump see Dick Gieger. The other day when his car quit running he bought a new one before he found it was just out of gas. . . . New grandpop—Ralph (Highpockets) Garrett. Congratulations! . . . Thanks loads, Alma Newhard, for sending me that vial of "Foreman's Folly." I put some on our little kitten and she whipped the stuffin' out of our neighbor's police dog. . . . If at any time you are down town shopping and you run into Lester Bland and he's carrying a yard stick, don't be alarmed as he is not going to beat his wife. He's probably just going to buy some furniture. Awhile back he bought a deep freeze and when they delivered it they couldn't get it through the cellar door, so they had to knock out the basement wall. Then he bought a bedroom suite and he had to take off the stairway door and the banister. So from now on he's not taking any chances.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Ed Elzey, Virgil Buchanan, and Levi Carpenter enjoyed a third week vacation during Thanksgiving week. . . . The finishing section killed two birds with one stone by having a baby shower for Betty Warren and their Christmas exchange on December 1. . . . Madge Lechleitner celebrated her birthday on Nov. 22 and Lois Bailey Nov. 23. Belated greetings, girls. . . . Charlie Holtsclaw has a new grandson. His first one, named Bradley Allen. . . . Congratulations to Carolyn White. She is sporting a sparkler, third finger, left hand. . . . Ellen Gerbers said there was nothing much in our GE NEWS column because her name wasn't mentioned. A joke, we trust. . . . If you think that J. C. Caroline of Illinois University, Hal Hoffman's alma mater, doesn't wear shoes, Carolyn (Girvin) Warpup wasn't a bit nervous the day of her wedding, but she can't explain why she brought her toothpaste in to work. Could it be that she wanted a breath taking smile when she slipped the ring on her husband's right hand? . . . For an expert's advice on how to make a paper dog kennel, see Lem Clouse. Lem demonstrated and even gave free samples to a group of interested spectators in the Bldg. 6-3 office. Does Roxie Murray have a dog? . . . Tony Mandra is now driving a new Dodge. . . . Clarence Nahrwald has finally traded his faithful old Essex in on a new Olds 98. I wonder how Clarence is getting along now that he doesn't have to crank the new car and doesn't have to light those Prest-O-Lite headlights? Clarence says these modern conveniences are wonderful. (Note: He also just bought a TV set since it's been proven that they are here to stay.) . . . Pete Espich is still waiting on the recount from the recent election he won by two votes. Paul Kable says if they don't hurry up with that recount it will be time for another election and then Pete won't get his hand in the plumb. . . . Carl Metker is now a proud member of the American Bowling Congress Triplicate Club. He rolls on Saturday nights at Scotts in the mixed doubles league. Last Saturday he rolled three consecutive games of 156 each. . . . Happy birthday to Irma Haney who celebrates tomorrow.

Have you heard the latest news? Julia Rice has been operating a "goodies ring." She has been noticed bringing cookies for some of the fellows. . . . Claude Charles has been presented with a TV set from the department upon his retirement. . . . We are happy to see that Dean Shaffer has returned to work after a brief illness. . . .

The following employees from the Hermetic Motor Department and the DC Motor Generator Department donated blood during the week ending November 19:

William Pappert, Forest L. Tustison, Joe L. Allen, David J. Balser, Samuel E. Baumgartner, Leonard F. Bresler, Vernon R. Castle, Robert E. Dimick, H. D. Egger, Harry M. Golden, Richard A. Grossnickle, Clarence W. Hale, Arnold P. Schieferstein, George W. Thurber, Richard S. Tobias, Ralph W. Wickliffe, and Mabelle Woodward.

The following employees from the Specialty Transformer and the SIM Departments donated blood during the week ending November 26:

Don R. Batchelder, Vincent V. Busin, James H. Capps, Walter L. Coolman, James E. Hartzell, Dixon F. Hemphill, Frank J. Mongraw, and George B. Morgan.

Dave Balser still believes that the Cleveland Browns is the best football team. Wake up, boy! . . . News has been received that Kaye Shinbeckler has purchased a new top for a 1949 Buick. All he needs now is a new bottom to go with it. Maybe he could talk to Motor-Generator's Buick dealer, Al Edwards. . . . Stanley Tisovic is spending his vacation fishing for muskies in the St. Joe River. . . . Has anyone noticed the patches on Al J. Braun's head? It has been received from a reliable source that the hole in his head was put there to drain off the water from his brain. . . . We all wish Bob Walworth a speedy recovery from the mishap he received at home. Tough luck, Bob. . . . We all wish to pay tribute to all the guys and gals of this department who helped make it possible for Motor-Generator to win the award of 1,000,000 man hours of work without an accident. Nice going, gang. . . . We see where there is a possible chance of Vic Wurm and Keith Walda getting private secretaries from Bldg. 31-1.

G-E CLUB

WELCOME ABOARD—Escorted by Lisle D. Hodell, general manager of the General Purpose Component Motor Department, five members of the Armstrong Furnace Co. organization begin a tour of the Decatur plant. They were D. A. Kinnan, chairman of the board; N. H. Deck, plant manager; H. G. Hays, chief engineer; Charles Brooks, assistant to the president, and J. A. Howard, purchasing agent.

BETTER SHIPPING METHOD—Mr. Deck and Mr. Hodell examine the new tray type pallet used in shipping motors, which is easier to pack and unpack. The tray type means less bending for employees in the customer's plant because they can use the motors directly from the box in which they are shipped.

When a Customer Calls—

He Sees the Skilled Workmanship and Fine Materials Which Are Built into the Quality Products He Buys

When a customer comes to call, there's something about the visit that's reminiscent of bringing the boss home to dinner—a lot may hinge on a good impression. We hope our wives would get a warning to get out the best bib and tucker for the occasion, but unfortunately we don't always get that break when a customer comes to visit. He sees us as we are every day, and for all our sakes, we hope he likes the view.

Primarily the purpose of a customer's visit is very much like the boss's. He comes to meet the family and so everyone on both sides can get better acquainted. For one thing, he wants to meet management, to see just what kind of people are running the business. But more than that, he wants to see how we make the product he is buying, how we handle the material that goes into it, how we control the quality, and what processes we use in the overall production.

Last month, one of our good customers, the Armstrong Furnace Co., came to call at the Decatur plant. Armstrong is a customer for the General Purpose Component Motor Department's blower and oil burner motors, most of which are made in Decatur. They also buy from the Specialty Transformer Department.

Like most customers, they came to see what we're doing and how we do it. But we learn from the visit, too. We find out that a customer is more than a requisition number, he's a shopper like ourselves who wants to get the most for his dollar. We want him to see that we are giving him the best quality with the least waste, and on time. No amount of advertising in the world can tell him this, like a visit to the place where a good product is made by skilled hands with full care that each part will work smoothly and efficiently.

QUALITY TEST—R. A. Thompson, D. A. Kinnan, and John Welch check the wobble on end shields as in regular parts inspection.

LATEST MACHINES—Mr. Hodell shows Customer Deck one of the newer machines used in the manufacture of Form G motors.

FULL SKILL AND CARE—Customers watch employees carefully tying windings into position. The winding secures the windings for the baking process. Lack of proper care could send the motor to the scrap heap.

LATEST METHODS—Armstrong visitors see the latest method of placing coils in stator cores at the Decatur plant. Customers are interested to learn that most modern methods are being used in manufacture of the GE motors he buys.

"Lost" and "Found" articles must be cleared through the Plant Protection Office, Bldg. 10-2, or the Plant receptionist, who will place the Ad-let and otherwise advertise the article.

No ad will be received over the telephone. Only one ad per employee may be inserted. Each ad must be limited to 20 words and cannot be repeated. All articles mentioned must be personal property of the employee. Ads will not be accepted unless accompanied by the name, pay number, and division of the employee. No plant building or telephone number may appear in any ad except transportation ads, only the home telephone number or address. Send all ads to GE NEWS office, Bldg. 18-1.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

Hup, two, three, four—as of Monday, Nov. 29, Stanley Dascaloff has received his "Greetings" from Uncle Sam and will leave us on Friday, Dec. 3. He reports to Goshen, from which point he will be sent to his basic training center. Good luck, Stan, and keep us posted. . . . Back home again is Carl Leitch with the report that he is now recuperating in familiar surroundings after several weeks in the Lutheran Hospital. We hope you continue to improve, Carl, and will be back with us soon. . . . Remember Phyl Braun? She visited us last Monday looking much the same as always. Phyl left us two years ago to join her husband in the armed services while he was stationed in Denver. He is now in Korea. . . . Walley Clayton completed 25 years of service with the Company on Nov. 24. Congratulations, Wally! . . . Deepest sympathy to Vern Kempenin on the death of his father. . . . The new TE in Max Barrow's group is Dennis "Pete" Peterschmidt. This is Pete's fourth test, and he is from Westpoint, Iowa, and a 1951 graduate of Marquette with a BSME degree. Pete is single and likes all sports. . . . Happy birthday today to Everett Letsinger. . . . Happy birthday to E. R. Cunningham, Dec. 2; Marge Murphy, Dec. 5; C. Linkous, Dec. 8; and A. Zent, Dec. 8. . . . If you see baby shoes on the desks of various girls in Specialty Engineering, don't be too alarmed. They are making baby moccasins for Christmas gifts for friends and relatives. . . . The Bldg. 4-6 Floor Sitters Club just received a new Floor member. His name is Steve Nagy. The villian is supposed to be Harold Dimke or the so-so chair. Steve, you can take your pick and be happy it's over.

Fred Wheeler, Helen Risser, and Viola Haiber are back with us after vacations. They are all caught up on sleep and shopping, too. Fortunate people! . . . Norma Henshaw and her family visited in Bulls Gap, Tenn., over Thanksgiving. There are lots of hills and dales between here and there, says Norma. . . . Our sympathy to Ruby Flaugh in the death of her uncle. . . . Helen Eggegan won the cake Friday and she gave each of us a piece too. It was baked by Claudine Gladbach and was it ever good. . . . Paul Richter, we understand, has been on an onion diet. He brought a sack full for his lunch the other day. Onions and milk should be quite filling. . . . Happy birthday to Walter Lynch and John Malcolm.

STORMY WEATHER

by Bill Hurtt &amp; Larry Reed

When the rabbit season opened, Marion Sienkiewitz and two friends set out to do a bit of hunting. In the course of their traveling they came to a lake and there sat a nice bunch of geese. They quickly decided to rent three boats and attack the birds from three different directions. After maneuvering for an hour and a half, they were ready to draw a bead when a man arose from the brush and yelled out not to shoot his decoys. They have now firmly resolved to hunt only what they go after originally. . . . Fast time has finally caught up with Les Stauch or is it the new style? He showed up at work one morning with one crepe soled shoe and one black rubber soled shoe. He stoutly denies anything is wrong and even declares that he has another pair exactly like these at home. . . . Time after time Ray Plueger has gone rabbit hunting without success, so taking that into consideration, Alice bought three rabbits, but this time Ray fooled her and brought home seven rabbits. . . . On the day before Thanksgiving the office gang celebrated with a huge turkey and all the trimmings. The girls went all out for the decorations and even provided bibs for the fellows. A deep bow of gratitude goes to Mike Lowe's mother for the excellent job of cooking and to all the fellows for their splendid cooperation in making the feast a success which was amply proved by the stuffed and satisfied look that everyone had. Thanks again to each and all. . . . Quotation for the week: "When a husband's ego needs a little boosting, he asks his wife to describe the fellow she turned down to marry him."

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

After his wedding reception was over, Allen Brown started to haul the loot out of the hall but received a rude awakening when he was informed that the TV set was part of the furniture and stayed in the hall. . . . The city parking ticket fund was swelled by contributions from Jack Schemehorn and Glenn Hoon. Jack didn't know what day it was and parked at the Barr St. market while Glenn was making like a truck in a loading zone. . . . Henry Frey and North Side lost to Woody Hursh and Muncie last week. . . . We haven't found out whether he lost or gained a dependent, but Clarence Meek's daughter was married recently. . . . The honors for largest turkey gobblers go to Maury Sordelet and family who devoured a 26 1/2 pound bird. . . . Elmer Anderson had the misfortune of watching his teeth get flushed down the toilet bowl on Thanksgiving. Let's hope it was after dinner at least. . . . After missing the whole target sheet even with a four-power scope the first time he took his new high-powered rifle to the range, Ross Cohagen has decided to switch to elephants instead of deer. Then when he came to work wearing bedroom slippers the other day the only deduction we can make is that smog gets in his eyes. . . . Mart Walsh claims that the new pink and black socks he wears were all the rage in Washington, D. C. Who are you trying to kid, Mart? You know they steer clear of red or any shade of red there these days. . . . The gang is waiting for the word to storm up to open house ceremonies at Woody Hursh's new abode in Leo. . . . Lloyd Welbaum has turned real estate broker until he sells two farms this week to close an estate. . . . Ralph Steward is quite a bargain hunter. He bought an article for $6.95 and the next day it went on sale for $5.88. . . . Twenty-ninth and 25th wedding anniversary congratulations to Roy Paulson and Clyde Spangler, respectively. . . . Hayden Rice is the proud owner of a brand new Studebaker. He's trying to get it broken in good before cold weather so he can get to work on time. . . . Wilbur Lane drove 300 miles to a hunting site and used 17 shells to end up with one rabbit. . . . When Kurt Martin noticed his eggs had slipped off the outside window sill he was glad he had tied a string to the box. After he had gingerly hauled the boxes back up he was disgusted to find someone had substituted two egg boxes full of scrap for his hen fruit. . . . Since the taxi company repaired Wilson Garmon's car, Willy finds it's all he can do to keep the car from taking the long way home. . . . Richard Burn's Mercury was only slightly damaged in the rear when it amalgamated with another car two weeks ago. . . . The sales talks that all the married men in the Bldg. 20-1 group have been giving to bachelor Don Yaden have finally taken their toll. Don plans to end his bachelorship.

WIRE RAVELINGS

TAYLOR ST.

by Al Hambrock

OUR BOSS, Florian (Jake) Arnold, finally broke down and bought a TV set. He had not intended to buy one for at least another five years, but like the rest of us, Jake is only boss while he is at the GE. Congratulations, Mrs. Arnold! Maybe this little deal will keep our boss from kidding us about our TV eyes. We'll wager it won't be long before he has them too. He'll just love Liberace with his great big wink and curly hair. . . . DOG HOUSE: Since Eubert Logan seems to be in the dog house most of the time, we were wondering if it wouldn't be a good idea for Eubert to buy the one Hazel Scott has for sale. Better yet, Eubert, why don't you give Hazel a real sad story? Maybe she'll feel sorry for you and give you the dog house. On the other hand, you should live so long! . . . BETTER LATE than never. Hobart Friend came in late the other morning. His excuse was that he had purchased a 1949 Nash and had to take the garage doors off before he could get the car out of the garage. Seems as if he got it in the garage all right, but slightly sideways. . . . HE'S BACK: Louie Maier, that is. Remember our story a couple of weeks ago about Louie's vast real estate holdings in Florida. Louie's story now is this: His holdings are still under water and about 20 feet out in the ocean. He calculates that it will be about another 20 years before everything will be high and dry, providing, of course, it doesn't rain in the meantime. So there you are—and here we are. What next? . . . MORE MONEY: Lawrence (Wimpy) Lempert spent his third week of vacation in Washington, D. C., but he had a very down-in-the-mouth look when he came in Monday morning. Besides visiting many other places of interest, he went through the Bureau of Printing and Engraving where he says they make more money than he does. Do you mean with the farm and all, Wimpy?

Interdivision League

Old Crown Beer and Ale took over first place in the team standings last Wednesday by downing the Brouwer Tire and Battery outfit three games. Old Crown now has a 23 win and a 10 loss record. Kinney Concession, Brouwer Tire and Battery, and Summit City Heating are tied for second place with a 22-11 record. George Luedeman was high man for the night with a 648 count on games of 193-237-218. Jerry Koehl had a 637 series on games of 181-233-223. Other 200 games were rolled by W. Seidel, 203; A. Seidel, 230; Kuntz, 216; Mathews, 215; Lieurance, 203; and R. Schroeder, 201. Old Crown rolled a high three-game total of 2942, highest so far this season. Pindusters have a 1028 for high in the single game. Erv France has highest single game of 268, while George Luedeman took over the three-game high with his 648. Chicken winners last Wednesday were G. Luedeman, R. Schroeder, J. Henry, C. Lieurance, C. Mosley, and S. Reidenbach.

Monday Night Ladies

Scatterpins are leading the league with 28 wins and 8 losses. In second place are Ranch House Bar-B-Quers with 24 wins and 12 losses. In third are the Gutterettes with 23 wins and 13 losses. High games for the night are Bonnie Wolf, 179; Donna Homatzsch, 190;

Alberta Roth, 176; Paula Gerding, 179; Donna Murphy, 173; and Betty Benedict, 175. Peg Houston converted the 5-8-10 split.

Friday Night Ladies

Team No. 5 is leading the Friday evening ladies bowling league with 21 wins and 9 losses. Second place is held by Team No. 1 with 19 wins and 11 losses. Individual high single games were rolled by A. Dahman, 200; A. DesGranges, 187; B. Mechling, 208; and G. Koldeway, 173. D. Larimer rolled a 520 score with games of 167, 234, and 119; L. Shearer, 503 with 171, 169, and 163 games; T. Williams, 166, 154, and 182, totaling 502; and J. Korn a 510 total with 161, 175, and 174 games. The lucky chicken winners were Dorothy Larimer, Phyllis Aumiller, Bertie Mechling, and Lou Anne Beauchamp.

Office

Reproductions and M and G Sales are tied for top spot each with 22 wins and 14 losses. Transformer is in third place with 20 wins and 16 losses. Tonight was "chicken night" and the following men won chickens: Art Glass, Art Fortier, Herb Langer, Bob Blomker, and Gerry Widner. Vic Rump picked up the 4-7-9-10 split.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

Paul Briede gained the spotlight this week by rolling a big 277 as his second place Stator's got on the wagon with him to run up the high team game to date, a 1052. Paul's series was 644 (181-186-277). Despite their big scores, the Stators lost two to the Office No. 1 gang, as Chuck Cook came up with a 613 (194-184-235). Stators' standing is 20½-12½ while Office No. 1 is in third place with 17-16. Other 200 scores in this notch were: L. Kreischer, 208; G. Schultz, 210 for the Stators; and Rog Schuster's 217; and G. Laurent's, 223 for the Office No. 1. John Beery kegled a nice 616 (245-194-187) series to help fourth place Office No. 2 salvage one game from the league leading Flanges who now have 25 wins and 8 losses. Office No. 2 has a 14½-18½ standing. S. Jackson had 220 and H. Shoaf 200-208 for the leaders. Fifth place Rotors (13-20) had a little more punch and edged out two wins over last place Shafts (9-24). Boh Sheets had a 202 for the cellar dwellers.

GE Fraternal

The leading Riverview Gardens (23-13) won 2 from fourth place Peterson Elevator (18½-17½) as Clarence Oetting rolled a 618 series on games of 202-192-224. Teeple Truck Lines (21½-14½) stepped up to second place with 3 wins over K. of C. (14-22). The truckers were led by John Beery's 639 (188-219-232) and Ev Faulkner's 624 (212-224-188). The Elks (14-22) took three games from fifth place West End Restaurant while GE Club (15-21) was able to win only one from third place Monroeville Lumber (21-15). 200 scores: Ulman, 210; Wolpert, 203; Schuster, 219; Briede, 224; House, 203-205; Bauserman, 213-205; Hobbs, 224-233; Graber, 219-204; Baumgartner, 203; Custer, 208-202; G. Strickler, 224; Macklin, 232; O. Schultz, 201.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

Paul Wilcoxson is now busily engaged over week-ends on what one might call "Operation Jungle Bum." It seems that he has acquired a piece of property located on Highland Drive, a short distance south of the Paulding Road. The place has a nice orchard on it which, with the yard, has been allowed to grow into a wilderness, so each week-end Paul, armed with shovels, axes, saws, crow bars, and some light charges of dynamite, attacks this jungle. Progress has been fairly good to date. One can at least see the house. . . . Having been a reader of this column for quite a number of years, Sundsey Eastes' wife, Lucille, has admonished me several times for my failure to recognize some of the holidays throughout the year, especially Easter and Thanksgiving. Now, Lucille, I will say to you that it has been purely an oversight on my part, so I humbly beg your pardon and promise that in the future these days will be properly recognized. . . . Clarence Stove is still in a quandry as to how to move the garage he bought at Waynedale to his place at Big Turkey Lake without dismantling it. He has had a lot of suggestions as to how to accomplish this operation at the same time holding the cost to the minimum. One suggestion was to insure the building for $50 more than it cost then burn it to the ground. Another was to cut it up into kindling wood, tie it into bundles, then peddle them. We intend to keep our readers in-

BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

Interdivision basketball had lean pickin's because of the Thanksgiving holiday. Only two games were played. Both of the league leaders enhanced their unsoiled records by clobbering the opposition.

The Squares with Carl, Soder, and Frankenstein contributing 13, 14 and 15 respectively started the evening's activity by smearing the T. St. Lab club 63 to 28. Splitting the meshes for 21 points in both the first and last stanzas, the Squares coasted to the easy win. Only Weidman who heretofore we knew as Beltz went into double figures with 12 tallies.

Everybody got into the act as the Apprentice School plastered the Cylinders with the first loss to the tune of 70 to 37. Once again the second stringers for the School played the major part of the game. The Cylinders played without the services of their star center Smith and just couldn't cope with the superior height and shooting ability of the slick Apprentice team. McCrea's charges led going into the final quarter 45 to 29 and then really made a shambles of the Cylinder defense by pouring 25 points through the hoop. The losers managed only eight.

GE Owls Swamp Zollner 56 to 33

by Howard Colby

With Harold Somers piloting the GE Owls in the absence of regular coach Benny Penkul, they rang up a very impressive victory, 56 to 23, over Zollner at the Club gym last Thursday morning.

Ron Blodgett, the Owl's big center, led the scoring in the opening quarter by hitting four field goals and one foul shot for nine points, as White and Dickey each pushed two fielders through the hoops. Gene Etter had one, and Carl Wilson added a charity toss for a 20-point quarter, as they held Zollner to five points.

The second period scoring for GE was taken care of by one man, Paul Somers tallied four field goals for eight points, while Zollner could garner only three to give GE a 28 to 8 half-time lead.

Zollner hit from the field four times in the third quarter for eight points, which was the biggest quarter they had.

John Anspach waxed warm in the third period for GE, ringing up seven points. Etter dunked two baskets, Blodgett, one; and Dickey, a field goal along with a free throw, for a three-quarter lead of 44 to 14.

The final eight minutes of play found Zollner scoring seven points, led by Tyler who was their high point man for the game.

Al Anspach and Spice connected on two field goals each for GE, with Harold Somers and Paul Somers each dumping one, to round out the game at 56 to 23.

In the second game Salisbury dumped F.O.P. 53 to 26, and Indiana Rod beat out a fighting Eckrich squad, 44 to 43, in an overtime in the final game of the morning.

I remember when a guy told a girl a naughty story she blushed. Nowadays she memorizes it.

MANUFACTURING LOSSES result when flanges are improperly drilled and this leads to a poor job of tapping. In doing the job right, Forrest M. Voorhees prevents waste of materials.

WEIGHING of stator punchings accurately means a savings of labor later on in motor production, as William Kizer points out. Doing this job right results in the proper stacking height of stator cores.

ADJUSTING the switch on the assembly line is the job of Olen Swafford. If this operation is not done correctly it means labor wasted in final test or customer complaints.

Doing Your Job Right Can

STOP WASTE

Just as trying to catch water in a sieve is impossible, so it becomes impossible for a business to stay ahead of its competition when production costs are watered down with waste. With competition a prime factor in business today, a company must have not only a good product, but must offer it to the customer at a price not out of line with competitive companies.

One of the items that raises the cost is waste—in materials, labor, and time. As you can catch water in a sieve by plugging up all the little holes, so GE departments find that they can gain more customers by keeping costs down through elimination of costly waste in the many areas. Cutting out waste results in more customers and job security for every employee.

With a concerted effort going on in the General Purpose Component Motor Department to eliminate waste, employees of Section 114, Taylor St. show that by doing their jobs correctly they help to eliminate waste which might occur in these areas.

PACKING the right motor in the right box is Emil Zimmerman's job. He knows that slip-ups here cause inconvenience, delay, and waste to the customer.

CONNECTING proper leads with a good soldering job, as Helen Keim is doing, saves time on rework and contributes toward good customer relations.

Be an Elex shopper. Don't forget to get your Christmas cards, wraps, and candy from your Elex contact girl. . . . Little Martha Sharon is a Kentucky Babe for sure. She is issuing calling cards from the Oliver and Hassie Byrge home in Middlesboro, Ky. Little Pamela Sue is at the Don and Cindy Ormiston home. Both mamas are former co-workers. Congratulations to the new parents. . . . About a month ago, Edith Beatty did over her kitchen and was the proud possessor of a new electric stove. The other evening she walked into the kitchen and there was a second hand gas stove in the place of her electric stove. The gas stove was supposed to go to the apartment upstairs. The gas men came back and righted things, putting the gas stove upstairs and removed the electric stove from the garage where they had stored it and put it back where it belonged. Everything is again serene in the Beatty household. . . . It's a happy birthday tomorrow to Velma Seibt. . . . Marge Ponstot was in need of a sewing kit, but none was available. She tried to use a stapler without success. She finally resorted to our good old stand-by. . . . When Minnie Durnell mended her apron pocket, she had also sewed the bottom of the apron to the pocket. At least it looked different. . . . We think someone should perform a good neighbor deed and see that Marie Lantz gets a light bulb in her kitchen. It has been burned out for over a year and if it gets too dark

S-D DAY is coming December 15, as the badge worn by Iris Traylor, Bldg. 8-1 nurse, reminds all of us. This date was set aside by President Eisenhower's Action Committee for Traffic Safety as "Safe Driving Day." All motorists are being asked to cooperate with safety rules on this day to prove that traffic accidents can be reduced when both drivers and pedestrians do their part.

5-Year Holding Period Ends Dec. 31 For Savings & Stock Bonus Bonds

The five-year holding period for U. S. Savings Bonds, Series E, purchased by employees during 1949 under the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan terminates on Dec. 31, 1954. Employees who purchased bonds in 1949 and left those bonds on deposit with the company until Dec. 31, 1954, will receive next March the bonds purchased, a check for the income accumulated on the 1949 stock bonus for that period, and any full shares of General Electric Company stock due as stock bonus under the Plan.

Employees who purchased bonds in 1949 recently received a notice showing the amount of such bonds that are on deposit with the company under the Plan. The notice was accompanied by a transmittal form. Employees should deliver the transmittal forms with the custody receipts for their 1949 bonds, to their local payroll units as soon as possible.

Since it will take until about March 1, 1955 to complete the individual income calculations for 1954, the bonds and checks for income accumulation will be delivered to participants shortly thereafter. Certificates for full shares of stock representing stock bonus will be mailed to home ad-resses of employees by the end of March 1955. Fractional shares of stock earned on 1948 bond purchases will be added to the stock bonus on 1949 bond purchases to determine the number of full shares of stock to which an employee will be entitled as of the end of this year.

Any fractional stock bonus share earned and remaining to the credit of a participant after the issue of full shares as of Dec. 31, 1954, will not be delivered next March with his bond and income check. As provided under the plan the fractional share will remain to the credit of the participant until either the accumulation of fractional shares earned in subsequent years entitles him to a full share, or cash payment of the value of the fractional share is requested. It is important to note that during this period of accumu-

Decentralization of Payroll Announced for January 1

Central Payroll which services four Fort Wayne departments will be decentralized effective Jan. 1, 1955, it is announced today. After Jan. 1, each department will operate its individual payroll section.

The four departments will have payroll sections in the following locations after the first of the year: Specialty Component Motor, Bldg. 8-2; General Purpose Component Motor, Taylor St. office, third floor; Small Integral Motor, Winter St., and Hermetic Motor, Bldg. 8-2.

In connection with the decentralization, supervisors of payroll for two of the departments have been announced. Harry H. Reinking has been appointed to this position in Specialty Component Motor, Paul M. Deal, manager of finance for the department, reported. Henry J. Dannecker has been named supervisor of payroll in General Purpose Component Motor, Maurice H. Mayo, manager of finance for General Purpose, revealed.

Philip J. DePrinzio, who is supervisor of SIM payroll at Winter St., will have charge of all of that section's operations after Jan. 1.

Harry H. Reinking

In 1926 Mr. Reinking came to GE and was a messenger. From 1926 until 1941 he held various jobs in payroll sections. He was named supervisor of hourly rated payroll in 1941 and became assistant supervisor of Fractional Horsepower Motor payroll in 1948.

The following year Mr. Reinking was appointed supervisor of FHP payroll. In September 1952, he became supervisor of hourly and salary operations in Central Payroll and last year was named supervisor of Central Payroll. This was his position prior to his present assignment.

Mr. Reinking is a member of the Supervisors Club. The Reinkings and their five children reside at 3807 Hiawatha Blvd.

Never too young to learn

How's Your Mental Outlook?

The mental outlook and attitudes of all Americans are getting more and more attention each year. And it's small wonder when one considers the size of the problem created by unhealthy mental attitudes. Conservative estimates prepared by the National Association for Mental Health show:

- One out of two patients going to a medical doctor is suffering from a nervous disorder.
- The same is true for one out of 3 patients who go to general hospitals.
- Last year about 750,000 patients were treated in mental hospitals, as compared with about 500,000 ten years ago. This is as many as there are in all other hospitals combined.
- At least 9,000,000 Americans—1 in every 16—are suffering from disorders having no demonstrable physical basis.

These figures seem frightening, do they not? And besides we have no way of knowing how many people are suffering from emotional tensions which if not relieved could result in serious disorders. Yet, there is no reason for anyone to become unduly alarmed about his own mental outlook if he keeps these facts in mind—

People who are healthy in spirit all the time are probably as rare as people who never suffer even slight physical ailments. Most of us undergo periods during which we feel low, unhappy, frustrated, even mad at the world and at least some of the people in it. Even normally intelligent and well-adjusted people are apt to become disturbed when things go wrong or when they think injustice has occurred. Such reactions are healthy and make for fair treatment and progress! It is abnormal, however, to be disturbed unduly over a petty happening, or to fail to recover one's peace of mind after a big "storm" has passed.

Your mental health is probably good if you enjoy life most of the time; if you like most people, like your job, and your home; if you are able to solve your problems as they arise.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Margie Hill

We wished good luck and said good-by to Dick Harlow who left last week for San Francisco. . . . A lot of thanks and appreciation is being given to Nancy Kelley and her committee for the wonderful dance last Friday night, held at the Van Orman Ballroom. It was a grand success. The Simerama production which was great entertainment was produced by Dan Doolittle, Bob Wylie and John Stout and was terrific. Let's also give a big thank you to Dale Stedman who filmed this tremendous feature. . . . We are all happy to have Eileen Salmon back with us after her few days off for a minor operation Nov. 26. . . . Dec. 4 was the date for Barbara Hurni's wedding. Barb will be leaving us, to join her newly acquired husband, in another week. . . . Order Service will have another wedding Dec. 11 and the cute little bride is Jo Gardner. . . . Tom Cole has found the secret to popularity. His new contact lenses sure do attract people to his big blue eyes. . . . Katherine Camp and husband Glen (Bldg. 19-4) celebrated their first anniversary Dec. 5 by going to Chicago. . . . The welcome mat is out for two fellows from Section 16, Broadway. Bob Dent, Supv. Production-Hermetics, and Mel Kiessling, Planning. Mel will be with us only temporarily. . . . Joining the new '55 look are Dorothy and Gale (Bldg. 4-5) Rinehart with their new Pontiac. . . . Tom Rockhill is home from the hospital and is doing fine. . . . Congratulations to Wehler Porsch and William Sommers on their 35th year with the General Electric Co. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Dale Weaver on their 28th wedding anniversary, Dec. 2. . . . Cecelia Ferguson, Jessie Wass, and Mildred Clevenger have left us for second shift. . . . We welcome to the polyphase line, Ruth Denton, Deane Goshert, Dorothy Higginbotham, Dorothy Carey, Gladys Stidham, Ruth Byrd, Anita Carnahan, Celia Gordon, Juanita Moennig, Dorothy Savio, Dorothy Snapp, Marie Francis, Mary Barnes, Beatrice Bickel, Gladys Linsky, and last, but by no means least, a man, Byron Pfafman. . . . We are glad to see Bernice Klembek back at work and looking so well from her recent illness. . . . We are happy to hear John Rockhill is feeling better every day and hope he will soon be back with us. . . . We appreciate having Clara Heaston with us these past few weeks on the line. . . . Avis Rodermund treated the whole gang with Christmas cookies this week. . . . HERMETICALLY SPEAKING: Anyone wishing to contribute a few extra lights or ornaments for our Hermetic Christmas tree please bring them to Madonna Ranney and Irene Kaeding, our time clerks. . . . Doris Yerger is very proud of her daughter, who is to have a part in the Philharmonic play. . . . Marcelline Bandtel lost a very good navy blue coat with yellow and green stripes. . . . Marguerita Fortman is the new poacher on Frank's line. . . . Clara Peckhard has a very nice new hair cut. . . . Lavon Thompson's husband had an accident recently, fell out of the shower. . . . Ida Mae Ernest had a rather interesting accident. She went into the ditch. . . . Marcell Davis is a very unhappy girl. She lost her purse and contents last Wednesday uptown. . . . Ronald Elliott went to second trick. . . . NEW MEN: Dave Happel, Larry Moore, and Larry Waggoner. . . .

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

DEER (OR DEAR, COSTLY, ETC.) HUNTING: Another disappointed hunter was Bert Girardot. Are you fellas sure there are deer where you go? . . . THEY ALMOST MISSED THE BOAT—or THANKSGIVING DINNER. By pre-arranged plans, the Bill Hunts were to meet Bill's mother in Coldwater, Mich., at a certain corner where a Standard Oil station is directly across from a Methodist church, and they would enjoy their Thanksgiving dinner together. Bill waited and no mother. Finally at 1:30 she arrived. She had spotted a Standard Oil Station directly opposite from a Methodist church and thought she was in Coldwater. Several hours later when no Bill showed up, she discovered she was in the wrong town by the name of Tekonsha, so she proceeded on to Coldwater, where they finally met and everything turned out rosy after all. . . . BELATED HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO GENE MARTIN who celebrated his birthday last Tuesday, Dec. 7. . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY TODAY to Alfreda Sutton, and tomorrow to Warren Berkeiser. We'd also like to remember our old friend Walter Brake, who will celebrate his umpteenth birthday next Thursday, Dec. 16. . . . DID SHE BLUSH? Wouldn't you liked to have seen our Rachel Matthews in the cafeteria last Monday when, after having consumed her noon-day luncheon, she went to the cashier and much to her embarrassment discovered she had absolutely no money with her. Lucky she had a friend nearby, we say, or she would have been performing something very unusual in a secretary's job description. . . . CONGRATULATIONS to Glen Stapleton who, last Friday, Dec. 3, became a full-fledged member of the Quarter Century Club. He was presented with his pin, letter of congratulation, and picture in a special presentation in Mr. Ross' office on that day.

SPECIALTY MOTORS

Shipping—Receiving—Order Service

by Mabel Fisher

Ralph Miles has a new Plymouth, so if you think you saw a pink streak it probably was Ralph and Delores putting the miles on the convertible. . . . I have been your columnist for one year now and have enjoyed it a lot. . . . Happy birthday to George Parker. . . . Sue Stewart treated us to delicious candy bars on her birthday. . . . The Elx girls in this group enjoyed the party Sunday so much. They thought it one of the best yet. . . . Ruby Flaugh is enjoying a vacation this week. . . . We are glad to hear that Gertrude Koldewey's father is improving; we hope he continues. . . . We welcome Evelyn Tibbles back in Telegraph. . . . Dixie Hogg is being transferred to Winter St. We shall miss you so much, Dixie, hope you like your new place a lot. Come back to see us. . . . We saw Ilene Richardson the other day. She says Baby Judy is doing fine.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Congratulations to Nellie Wendt who became a Quarter Century Club member. . . . When Blanche Kanning came to work Friday after Thanksgiving, she was so mixed up she was asking folks what they did over the week-end. . . . Edna Mapes is so used to machine stacking that her feet keep going when she hand stacks. . . . We wish good luck to Betty Warren who is taking a leave to await the stork. . . . Dorothy Campton is replacing Guleia Ranier as floor reporter from the sample shop. Guleia has left the company to become a full-fledged housewife. . . . We welcome Lillian Krudop and Vi Schnepf to our floor. . . . Cal Hapner has joined the TV club with a new GE set. . . . Freida Brandyberry woke up to music and it took a few moments for her to realize she had taken her radio to bed. . . . We are wondering if that box passed around for Mildred Leazier was of any help. If so, we hope she lets us know as some of the girls are interested. . . . After Art Pequignot coaxed and begged for three weeks, he finally got a half day off. . . . Frank Pequignot was a welcome guest on our floor. . . . Let us hear from anyone in favor of buying Ed Lauer a Christmas present. We are thinking a pair of self-propelled roller skates would be ideal.

FROM 26-TOO

by C. A. Krasienko

Your prayers have been answered, we have a column in the GE NEWS! Now all we need is a steady flow of news items and a name for our column. Two free tickets to the next Fall Revue will be awarded to the person submitting the best name for this column. . . . Now to catch up on the news since the last time this column was written in 1949. Practically everybody in Bldg. 26-2 has changed jobs. . . . We've had "several" office rearrangements. . . . Almost all families have increased in size. . . . Bob Berghoff is still the senior bachelor in Engineering. . . . Georgie Hetzel is now the president of Elx. . . . Candy wagons have been replaced by vending machines. . . . Homer Meeker has been centrally located to boost stamp sales. . . . Dictaphones and cylinders are conspicuous in their absence. . . . Gone via retirement are the familiar faces of Fred Banks, Dorsey Merchant, Clarence Mentzer, and others. . . . Back long enough to whisk away our ballast was Pat Hayes. The old ship hasn't been steady since. . . . The Transformer Bowling League has folded up. . . . Paper towels have given way to piano roll towels. . . . H. Ulrich's Lab and P. Ohnesorge's Drafting keep spreading out, forcing some of us to move. . . . Noon-time card players fondly cherish memories of the hour and fifteen minute lunch hour. . . . Now it's late television shows and getting up for work in the dark. . . . Some current items: L. L. Genuit, Engineering, is the proud father of a nine pounds plus girl last week. . . . Eileen Arend, ex-Engineering, visited with the co-workers last week. . . . Clyde Nicholson won a bowling prize for having the most open frames in succession. He bowls with a group of us from Bldg. 26-2 on Saturday mornings at Key Lanes. We need more bowlers, too! . . . Don't forget to send your items of interest to me. If you're from Bldg. 26-2, we'll see that they get into this weekly column.

Reagan to Star In GE Theater On WIN-T Sunday

The General Electric Theater will star GE Ambassador Ronald Reagan in "Out of the Night" Sunday evening at 9 p.m. over WIN-T. This will be Reagan's second appearance in GE's dramatic series, of which he is host and program supervisor.

In the story, Dr. Joe Pavot (Ronald Reagan) is awakened in the middle of the night by a persistent ringing of his doorbell. He finds himself confronted with two teen-agers who demand medical assistance. Bud, about 17-years-old, is carrying Pee Wee, a smaller boy about the same age. Dr. Pavot escorts them to his consulting room, and upon examining Pee Wee, finds he is bleeding profusely from a bullet-wound. He knows he should contact the police, but when he reaches for the phone, Bud threatens him with a gun. The doctor's wife, Betty, is called in to assist with the operation. She feels that her husband has not been forceful enough in his efforts to report the boys to the police, and accuses him of being a coward. He cannot convince her that his only concern is her safety and the safety of their child. It is only when their lives become endangered, that she is reassured he is the "man of action" she knew him to be.

PLOTTERS—Comedy star Joan Davis, posing as a tough gun moll, enlists the services of Martin Logan, (played for Ben Weldon), famed for his gangster roles, on the Wednesday, December 15, telecast of "I Married Joan" over WKJG-TV, at 8 p.m. P. S.—The plot almost succeeds.

MORE THAN DOUBLE YEAR'S TOTAL

Drive Brings In 203 Suggestions In One Week at Hanna St. Plant

A plant-wide promotion of the suggestion system at Hanna St. brought a record number of 203 suggestions submitted the week of November 8-12. The figure represents participation by 80 per cent of Hanna St. employees. Conducted to stimulate interest in suggestions among employees of Specialty Transformer Section 88, the campaign resulted in more suggestions turned in during the one week in November than have been submitted during all of 1954 up to November 8. A total of 131 suggestions had been turned in this year prior to the week of the campaign.

In publicizing the drive, eye-catching posters were displayed throughout the plant the week prior to the campaign and on November 8, foremen distributed letters to each employee explaining the importance of turning in suggestions.

At present, the suggestion committee chairman, Paul Black, reports that the committee is busy processing the record total of suggestions. In appreciation to Section 88 employees for their efforts, the section served coffee and doughnuts to them the day prior to Thanksgiving.

Evans Named Engineering Manager In GP Manufacturing Development

The appointment of Carey A. Evans as manager of manufacturing development engineering in the General Purpose Component Motor Department has been announced by W. Kenneth Williams, manager of advanced manufacturing development.

In 1942 Mr. Evans joined the company and entered the Test Engineers Program at Schenectady. The following year he went on the Creative Engineering Program. Upon completion of this in 1944 he entered the general engineering laboratory at Schenectady as a development engineer.

After moving to the Hanford Plant in 1948 Mr. Evans became section engineer of mechanical development. He returned to the general engineering laboratory where he held the following positions: on the staff of the manager of engineering, section engineer of

Carey A. Evans

Squares Wives Plan Christmas Party Tues.

Kris Kringle's Frolic is the title of the GE Squares Wives Club meeting this month, Mrs. Richard Quinn, chairman, announced. The meeting will take place in the Squares Hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 14. There will be a 50 cent gift exchange among members.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes: Mrs. Jack Farris, Mrs. William Bloch, Mrs. Mark Tam, Mrs. Dwight Jackson, Mrs. Stephen Capps, Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mrs. James Stafford, Mrs. David Blake, and Mrs. Eugene Harmison.

Beam Instrument Section, and administrative assistant in Materials and Chemical Process Department.

Last year Mr. Evans went to the Louisville Plant where he was manufacturing development engineer on the staff of the manager of manufacturing. This was his location prior to his present appointment.

Mr. Evans graduated from the University of Louisville in 1940 with a BSME degree. He has completed two years work on his masters degree in mechanical engineering at the Illinois Institute of Technology. He is a member of the Fort Wayne Engineers Club and Supervisors Club. The Evans have one son.

Rhythm Ranch Site Of MTP Wives Dance

The Rhythm Ranch will be the site of an MTP Wives Club dance this evening. The informal dance will feature the music of the Rhythm Men from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Refreshments will be available also.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Price of admission is $2.50 per couple. All members of training programs and their guests are invited to attend the event.

An Interview with William R. Boggess

GP Marketing Manager Sees 1955 As Challenging Year for Business

"Make 1955 the best year in our history" is a good New Year's toast. It is one that can be applied to the future of business for General Purpose Component Motor also. As GP's marketing manager, William R. Boggess, points out, it is especially applicable to our business now.

In an interview with Mr. Boggess on marketing forecasts for GP, he said, "Never has our business faced a more exciting challenge than exists today. If each of us does a better job than persons doing the same work for our competitors, we can earn business from enough good customers to make 1955 the best year in our history!"

Marketing analysis, he reports, shows that the volume is available but competition is keen and so the degree of success will depend entirely on us.

In analyzing General Purpose business, it has been found that the item with the most room for improvement is waste, Mr. Boggess said. Excessive waste is a tremendous drawback when we try to hold customers in the face of stiff competition.

WILLIAM R. BOGGESS

... 1955 is an exciting challenge

In the first place, the marketing manager explains, waste forces our prices up and this means losing some customers to competition. Waste also prevents us from meeting our production schedules and shipping promises. There is nothing more aggravating to one of our customers than having to shut down his assembly lines due to a lack of motors. When this happens, he is an easy target for anyone who promises him better service. Losing customers because of price, service, or quality seriously affects each one of us.

Waste is our biggest enemy, and unfortunately every one of us contributes some measure of waste. We in marketing work on letters, quotations, and telegrams instead of stators, rotors, and end shields; but our human errors can create as much scrap as any in production.

For marketing, our pledge shall be to contribute our full share toward the department's objective—a 50 per cent reduction of all waste in our business. If we achieve this goal, Mr. Boggess states, all of us can enjoy a happy new year with the feeling of job security.

CUSTOMER ON TOUR—Representatives of Taco Heaters, Inc., a good customer of General Purpose Component Motor Department, drop in to watch the products they buy in production at the Decatur Plant. Observing the method of finishing stator cores are (l-r): John Welch, plant manager; John White, Taco president; W. H. Thornton, Providence sales office; Hans Springer, Taco design engineer, and H. A. Essley, Taco purchasing agent and plant manager.

5 Year Holding

lation of fractional shares, they continue to earn income which is credited annually. Income, of course, ceases if a participant requests cash payment of the value of the fractional share.

Employees who request the delivery of their 1949 bonds before Jan. 1, 1955 will forfeit the stock bonus on such bonds.

Savings bonds having a cost price of about $15,400,000 will be delivered to some 45,000 participants next March. For every $75 invested in bonds in 1949, participating employees will realize a return of about $52.60. Basing the value of the stock bonus at a market price of about $44 a share, the return on each $75 invested in the Stock Bonus Plan in 1949 is computed as follows:

- |   |         |
|---|---------|
| (1) Value of the bonus of a fractional share of GE Stock (90/100 of a share) at a stock value of $44 per share is.....     | $39.60 |
| (2) Accumulated income on the stock bonus based on actual earned income for years 1950-53 and estimated income for 1954.... | 6.00    |
| (3) An increase in the value of each bond since 1949 from $75 to $82.....   | 7.00    |

Total earnings on a $75 investment in 1949.....$52.60

This represents an increase of about 11 per cent per year (compounded semi-annually) on the employee's original investment, a substantially higher return than could have been received by investing in other high grade securities.

Over 75 per cent of the total earnings is made up of the stock bonus given by the company to participants for leaving their bonds on deposit for the required five-year holding period. The value of stock bonus full and fractional shares on 1949 bond purchases which participating employees will own outright after December 31, 1954, based on the market price of $44.00 a share, is $8,115,700. This is an increase of $5,810,100 in value since the end of 1949 when the stock was allocated. In addition the stock bonus shares have earned income of approximately $1,257,500 or about $6.00 for each $75 invested.

Savings bonds purchased under the Plan have also increased in value during the five-year holding period. A bond costing $75 in June 1949 was worth $82 on June 1, 1954. However, the greatest interest earning on these bonds is yet to come. During the last five years to maturity bonds costing $75 will grow in value by another $18. To obtain the maximum interest on their investments, participants should hold their bonds for at least the full 10-year maturity period, and bonds held beyond that time will continue to earn additional interest for another 10 years.

At the present time, there are approximately 106,000 participants in the GE Employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan. Over 3,150,000 bonds with a total cost price of about $112,948,000 are being held by the company for these participants.

Four Apprentices Graduate

Louis W. Dasher

Richard L. Fischer

Kenneth R. Spiker

Robert R. Rietdorf

Four graduates of the Apprentice School were announced today by Richard Gebert, supervisor of the school. Graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course were Louis W. Dasher, Richard L. Fischer, and Kenneth R. Spiker. Robert R. Rietdorf was graduated from the drafting course.

After graduation from Concordia High School in June, 1951, Dasher entered GE and the Apprentice School. He lives at R. R. 12, Fort Wayne.

Fischer joined GE July 10, 1951 and entered the school. He is a 1951 graduate of Calvert High School, Tiffin, Ohio. He resides at 3206 S. Webster St.

Joining the company in 1950, Rietdorf became a drafting trainee. The next year he entered the school. He graduated from Elmhurst High School in 1946 and entered the U. S. Army later that year. He served in Japan prior to being discharged in 1948. At that time he entered the Purdue Technical Institute Course where he studied drafting and mechanical technology two years before coming to the company. Mr. and Mrs. Rietdorf and their daughter reside at 1305 Rockhill St.

In Oct., 1950, Spiker became a GE employee and went to work in Bldg. 26-1. He entered the school in 1951. In June, 1944, he was graduated from Olney High School, Philadelphia, Pa. From Dec., 1943, until Nov., 1945, he served in the U. S. Air Corps.

The Spikers and their four children reside at 1404 Taylor St.

had worked in the office previous to this time. We'd also like to welcome back Floyd Wygant, who was off ill for quite some time. . . . Belated congratulations to Gillie Plummer, who has gained a daughter-in-law by his son's marriage. . . . We wish Pat Vendrely a very speedy recovery. She has been on the sick list for quite some time. . . . George Mopper was the proud and happy receiver of a $115 suggestion award just recently. . . . The Elex members of Bldg. 31-1 under the fine leadership of Doris Olinger and Esther Dalman had a bon voyage dinner in honor of Irene Meyers, who you all know is retiring. The food was plentiful and very delicious; a wonderful time was had by all. The dinner took place in the private dining room at Baer Field. . . . That is not a ghost you see walking around in Bldg. 31-1 these days. It is Mr. Charles (Bones) Townsend. Mr. Townsend recently decided to take off some excess weight and as a result has taken off 20 pounds in the last 30 days. . . . Happy birthday to Bob Blomker, who will celebrate next week. . . . Since we haven't had a column in the GE NEWS lately, we would like to have anybody with any newsy news from Bldg. 31-1 give it to either Don Shultz or Gladys Fox.

We understand that Roy Gawthrop is giving Gene Miller some competition. It seems he has his own tool crib in Bldg. 12-3, and business is really booming. . . . We want to welcome back Bill Owen who has just returned from a two-year hitch in the Army. Bill is now lathe instructor. . . . Frank Boyd left the Apprentice School this week, and Ronald Tinlin and Ralph Auer entered the school. All three men are on the Manufacturing Training Program. . . . Jim Paxson and Dick Goshorn have decided to give up chewing tobacco. It seems someone spiked their tobacco with ginger. . . . One day last week Larry Jones was milling a job for Roy Gawthrop. He accidentally knicked the piece with his cutter. Myron Auer came to the rescue and put his first-aid training to good use. Myron put iodine and a band-aid over the nick and told Roy it would soon be well. . . . We have heard that John Kalb and a friend have taken up farming. It seems they plowed up a farmer's field for him last Friday night. . . . After a slow start, the apprentice volleyball team has hopes of a good season. Since the GE Major League team has disbanded, Dick Wagner, Myron Auer, Warren Sloan, and Jack Enyeart have joined the Apprentice team. . . . Meanwhile the apprentice basketball team continues its winning ways, having won six straight games.

penter is becoming a full-time housewife this week and Sue Dague is Mr. Oman's new secretary. . . . We are happy to have Marcile Oetting return to the Accounting Section after a 10 day bout with a cold. . . . Barbara Haley will be our first bride of 1955 when she becomes Mrs. Ted Lorenz on Jan. 1. . . . Margaret Peckhart will be a lonely gal come January when her Benny is off to Tripoli with the Air Force. . . . Lucky bowler, John Margerum won $10 on a 7-10 split. . . . A swell pair, Hazel and Bill Lichtensteiger, have become a terrific threesome with the addition of their daughter Cindy Joe, now 10 days old. . . . Now that a certain couple have their own TV set they should have their vacuum cleaner serviced and maintain an ample larder as some friends plan a get-even party.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

During the rearrangement of the 60 and 70 frame rotor section things became badly jumbled. In looking for a certain item Albert Laubscher remarked to his foreman that what one needed was a bloodhound to ferret things out for them. A short time later Albert made a trip to the locker room. While there he decided to look outside. Upon opening the door he was just a little startled. There standing before him was a large but friendly mastiff who was very eager to be let inside, but Abe would not let the dog in, thereby muzzing his chance of obtaining able assistance in finding misplaced articles. . . . Chet Price lamented the fact that he was not mentioned as co-pilot of "Cannon Ball" Winan's car when it let them down cold one afternoon a few weeks ago while rolling along Brown St. The fact of the matter is that we did not see him in the crowd that surrounded the car. We have since learned that the reason he was not visible was due to the fact that he was down deep in the engine pit making a few necessary adjustments in order to get the old skate rolling again. . . . In a discussion among some of our co-workers about the size of rats, Joe Turley came up with a story that would surely win for him the Nobel prize if properly dressed up and published in book form. Joe told the boys that when he was a young fellow he worked for a time in the Pennsylvania coal mines where, said he, they have really big rats. He told them that the miners would rope them, then put them through a taming period after which they would put a collar and harness on them then use these rats to pull the loaded coal cars to the tippie. He also stated that they had to select the medium sized rats as the big ones would bump their heads on the roof of the mine galleries.

THE NIGHT WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

by Dorothy V. Hart

Naomi Longworth celebrated her birthday last week and treated us to the most delicious fudge. . . . We are glad to see several of our co-workers back with us. Freda Green says she is glad to be back. Mary Damos is back after six months' sick leave. She is on the 21 frame line and we welcome her. Orpha McCarey has been away from Taylor St. for some time, but is back with us again. . . . Ruth LaPradd and Clara Koomler are happy to be back on second trick again. . . . Virginia Free really had some pretty Christmas things to show us last week for the Elex. . . . Bob Hull says Orval Tracy really likes the shrinking job on 21 line, but what does Orval say? . . . Margaret Kenyon, our pantomime actress, really keeps us entertained. . . . Dorothy Hart's son, Harley, and family left for the west coast last Thursday afternoon. . . . Elmer Evans really was dressed up in his Sunday-go-to-meetin' outfit last week, and he really looked nice. As you know, Elmer is now on retirement. He was presented with a nice jacket from his co-workers. He also had a surprise supper awaiting him at the Green Grill in Churubusco on his arrival home. It was given by his friend with whom he rode to work. His wife was also present. . . . Our saying for this week: He who despises his neighbor is a sinner, but happy is he who is kind to the poor. So give to the Elex so they can make some poor family happy at Christmas.

SHAFT SHAVINGS BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

Welcome back to Sherry Varner. It's good to see her back on the job after being on the sick list for so many weeks. . . . So long to Mary McCallum, who will be working in Bldg. 19-2 west end office. . . . Francis Kartholl became uncle twice over the week-end. Not twins, either. . . . Swedish or French massage will be given by Masseur Herb Boltz upon request, so the sign reads. . . . A stone crusher is a new machine in Bldg. 27, so Delores Parker thought. She called service to have a belt repaired on it, but soon found out it was a drill press.

OVER OUR WAY BLDG. 19-1

by Clara Volz
Jack Robertson
Keith Walda

George Santon was going through his billfold and ran across a suggestion check dated last September that he had forgotten about. Just in time for Christmas, eh, George? . . . Bill Hoelle has vowed to quit going to basketball games. They are just too hard on him. . . . Ora Martin's favorite song is "Papa Loves Mambo." . . . Mrs. Hoelle isn't going to send Bill to the grocery store anymore. It seems Bill got a yearning for some candy, potato chips, pretzels, and cookies, and these weren't on the list. . . . I see Clyde Enslin ran short on will power. He gave up smoking for two months, then started in again. . . . George Winans has been transferred to our "neck of the woods," and we are glad of it. . . . Christmas can't be too far away. Art Braun has his electric train set up in his living room, ready and raring to go. I wonder who gets the biggest bang out of it, him or the grandkids? . . . We would like to extend a warm welcome to Beverly Meyers. She has joined the AC section. . . . Bob Walworth had the last stitch removed from his finger, and will soon be back at work. . . . We were sorry to hear that Harry Rife was admitted to the Lutheran Hospital last Sunday for an operation. He will be out in about two or three weeks. . . . Everyone is talking about the new cars. Robert Hickman has been thinking about getting a new Olds. But if you want a car that's altogether different, see Ralph Schiemann. . . . It seems one of the janitors found a couple of tickets to the Piston basketball game a couple of weeks ago. He found them in the waste basket. How do you suppose they got there? . . . Congratulations to William (Willie) Hughes for his award winning suggestions last week. He received two awards totaling $60. . . . Vic Crum has just become an apprentice this week. . . . It won't be long until Kaye Shinbecker will be heading for Florida. He will be on his honeymoon. Jean O'Dell is the lucky girl.

WIRE RAVELINGS TAYLOR ST.

by Al Hambrock

WRONG NUMBER: For some time now, someone has been moving Bill Rohe's car in the parking lot. Our Bill, besides being handsome, is usually pretty good-natured up to a point. However, the breaking point came the other day when someone again moved his car. Bill, thinking he knew who the culprit was, placed a sticker on a car telling the owner, of all people, including top management, to whom he had reported these incidents. Naturally, this worried the individual upon whose car Bill had placed the sticker, and he started to make an investigation.

Lo and behold, he found that Bill had placed the sticker on the wrong car. Was Bill's face ever red, for this individual, besides being a nice fellow, is also a law abiding citizen. . . . Girls, come early and avoid the rush! Porky Schoenefeld has a sprig of mistletoe suspended from the ceiling directly above his desk chair. . . . WE'RE DIFFERENT: When someone gets married, you usually read all about how the bride, her attendants, the mothers of the bride and groom, etc., were dressed. We're telling you what the bride's father (Al Swift) wore at his daughter's wedding last Saturday night. He wore a suit of underwear, a shirt and tie, a pair of pants (with a belt), a coat, and even a pair of socks and shoes (with laces). Oh yes, he had his black hair freshly cut, and combed in a pompadour. He will no doubt be one of the 10 nominees for the best dressed man in the Wire Mill.

TRICKS: New tricks, old tricks, but new or old, leave them all to our editor, A. Hambrock. He has a trick all his own. To bring the Christmas spirit and add a little cheer to their fellow employees it has been the practice in the production section to draw names and have a Christmas exchange. Our dear editor seizes upon this old custom to promote the Christmas spirit for himself as he had his name written on every slip of paper in the hat. If he had not tried to over-do it he probably would not have been caught. Without a doubt he sure is desperate for a visit from St. Nick, so we suggest he be well remembered by all at Christmas time.

Cafeteria Favorites

WILTED LETTUCE DRESSING FOR ENDIVE SALAD

Dice two or three strips of bacon in skillet and brown. Pour off about half of the meat drippings.

Mix: 1 egg
1 tsp. cornstarch
½ cup sugar
½ tsp. salt
½ cup vinegar
½ cup water

Add this mixture to bacon and fat. Then add 1 tsp. mustard. Cool and pour over endive, which has been cut in pieces. Add ½ of a small onion chopped finely, if desired.

"Lost" and "Found" articles must be cleared through the Plant Protection Office, Bldg. 10-2, or the Plant receptionist, who will place the Ad-let and otherwise advertise the article.

No ad will be received over the telephone. Only one ad per employee may be inserted. Each ad must be limited to 20 words and cannot be repeated. All articles mentioned must be personal property of the employee. Ads will not be accepted unless accompanied by the name, pay number, and division of the employee. No plant building or telephone number may appear in any ad except transportation ads, only the home telephone number or address. Send all ads to GE NEWS office, Bldg. 18-1.

THANK YOU

Ernest Yost wishes to thank his friends and co-workers for their cards and remembrances during his illness and while he was in the hospital.

ECHOES from 19-2

by Fred McIntyre

We're glad to hear Fred McIntyre is feeling much better, and hope that he will soon be back on the job. . . . Welcome back to Frank Schlink, after five weeks' illness. . . . Catherine Echenbarger is a patient at Parkview Hospital. . . . Flossie Shoopman is convalescing at Parkview, from her recent auto accident. . . . We're happy to hear Cecile Hinton's daughter-in-law and little granddaughter are recovering from their auto accident. . . . Clyde Musser has returned to work after three weeks' absence from blood poisoning in his thumb. . . . Al Johnson proves it isn't just the women that admire Liberace. We hear he called on him (or found his house) while touring California this summer. . . . Lee Anderson hopes to get caught up on his home work this week while enjoying his third week's vacation. . . . Buck and Belle Buchan had quite a scare recently. One morning Buck's driver stopped to bring him to work, telling him that he saw his tom cat down the road, run over by a car. When Buck returned home that evening, Belle told him she had bad news, but it was old news to Buck. Later in the evening Belle drove to the scene of the accident, loaded poor Tom into the trunk, carrying him home for burial. After Buck had done his duty, they were sympathizing with each other over the loss of their pet, when they heard a scratching on the door and investigating they found good old Tom standing there. . . . Shirley Cunningham's eyes are sparkling again, since she found the diamond out of her ring. . . . Lowell Kelsey went deer hunting in northern Michigan on his third week's vacation, but as far as Lowell's concerned no deer families were broken up on his account. . . . We were happy to have Ernie Linn as a visitor recently.

THE WESTERNERS BLDG. 20-1

by Maxine Patterson

Glad to see Ralph Clark back from Florida, and he sure got off to a good start on Monday. Seems everything was wrong, so he didn't lose a minute rolling up his sleeves, and forgetting the Florida sunshine and cool weather. . . . Glenn Boatman is also back from the southland ready for work. . . . George Coplen is taking his third week now and everyone sure is expecting some big fish, now George, and not just the big stories. . . . Howard Morton is taking two weeks' vacation. . . . Also Charles Bixby is taking his last week of vacation. . . . Pearl Coulter is in her new home, but still finding a lot to do. Even her new gas incinerator works fine. Pearl came in to work with burns on her arm to prove its efficiency. Bet she doesn't do that again soon. . . . Herb Prior, one of our former tinnners for Transformer, went deer hunting and now he tells us he didn't get any deer, but shot a porcupine. Poor excuse for a deer, wouldn't you say? . . . John Lare spent a few days last week in the east, and we said he was having a few days vacation. Sorry, we weren't trying to cheat you out of your vacation, John. . . . Ross Sills brought in carrots, turnips, and pears last week, so in case you saw everyone chewing on same, we weren't on diets, just helping Ross to get rid of his vegetables and fruit.

STORMY WEATHER
BLDG. 17-4
by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

By being an ardent angler and sportsman, Charlie (Isaac Walton) Hunt was the recipient of the very latest in fish lures. The new invention being known as "The Snorkel Bait" and from the latest reports, he is so excited over it that he can hardly wait to wet a line. Apparently one has to be well known to be picked as the first to use a brand new product. . . . It doesn't pay to mistrust animals as Joe Prezbindowski learned when he donned his hip boots and went out to drive his cow in the barn. When she refused, Joe aimed a kick at her, but she nimbly dodged him and now he is walking around with a twisted and swollen knee. . . . Once more the reward for good work is apparent as proved by the Navy "E" pin Larry Reed was so proudly wearing. However, he may lose it when his wife finds out he was the cause of her not getting to see her favorite TV program, "This Is Your Life." . . . Ezra Garringer returned from his vacation in Florida and was greeted with quite a few looks of envy. . . . Omer Mettler quietly celebrated his umpteenth birthday by munching on his favorite hot peppers. . . . The biggest laugh on the floor, according to Sy Seymour and Charlie Kensill who nearly collapsed from laughing, was the sight of Rollie Miller with his finger caught in the hole of a special bench job. However, Rollie had the last laugh when he removed his finger without any difficulty. . . . It took many years of study and observation, but at last Sol Andorfer learned the correct way to pick up a hot soldering iron. . . . Quotation for the week: "Parents who give their sons names like Algeron should also give them boxing lessons."

Harold N. Lehman

Apprentice Training
Foreman Appointed

The appointment of Harold N. Lehman as foreman of apprentice training in the Apprentice School has been announced by Richard Gebert, supervisor of apprentices.

In Jan. 1941 Mr. Lehman came to GE and entered the Apprentice School. After graduation from the machinist-toolmaker course in 1943 he became a toolmaker in the former general toolroom in Bldg. 26-5. From 1944 until 1946 he served in the U. S. Navy and was stationed in the Pacific Theater during that time.

After his discharge from the Service, Mr. Lehman returned to the tool room and in 1951 was named to tool inspection in Bldg. 19-4. From May this year until his present appointment he has been an instructor on milling machines in the Apprentice School.

Mr. Lehman is a member of the Apprentice Alumni Association. The Lehmans and their one son reside at 810 Grace Ave.

- Q. How can I figure the weight of coal in my coal bin?
- A. Roughly, for home sizes, you can figure the average density of a pile of coal at about 35 cubic feet per ton. Thus, if you get the top of your pile in the bin as level as possible, then measure the height, width and depth in feet, and multiply these together, you will have the volume in cubic feet. Dividing this figure by 35 will give the approximate weight in tons.
- Q. How can one get rid of algae in an outdoor pool?
- A. The algae are a widely-spread group of plants, which includes most of the seaweeds as well as many fresh-water varieties and some that do not grow in water. They are present in practically all surface water, and may become a nuisance if the temperature is above about 60 F, the water is in sunlight and contains dissolved nutrients for the plants. Copper sulfate ("blue vitriol") may be used to eliminate them. This should be used at the rate of from .5 to 1.0 parts per million of weight. In a pool that contained a thousand gallons of water, this would be about a tenth of an ounce of the chemical.
- Q. Do tides occur in inland lakes?
- A. Yes, but they are quite small, smaller than variations caused by wind and weather. At Chicago, for example, the range between high and low tide in Lake Michigan is less than two inches.
- Q. Do earthquakes make any noise?
- A. Yes. In addition to the sounds that may be produced as buildings and other structures are demolished by a severe earthquake, there may be other sounds, even in a region where there are no buildings. Most common is a low and heavy rumbling noise, a deep booming or low moaning, a roaring or a crushing grinding noise. Others have been described like a roaring wind, or a chimney on fire. The sound of an earthquake is generally very deep, almost too low in pitch to be heard at all.
- Q. Could a vacuum-tube amplifier be connected to a crystal-set radio so as to operate a loud-speaker?
- A. Yes. Although a crystal set ordinarily has to be used with headphones, because of its weak output, it is fairly simple to connect an amplifier using tubes, and increase the volume enough to operate a loud-speaker. For receiving ordinary broadcast programs, however, if tubes are used at all it would probably be better to use one more in place of the crystal detector. This would give greater selectivity between stations received. The chief advantage of a crystal set is that it requires no batteries or other electrical supply, but these are needed if any tubes are employed.

Apparatus League

Team No. 12, State Farm Mutual, retained its lead by winning three games from luckless Team No. 11. Team No. 12 has won 23 games and lost 10 games. Team No. 6 is still 2½ games off the pace with a 20½ won, 12½ lost record. Team No. 10 is in third place with 18 wins and 15 losses.

Team No. 2 scattered the pins for a big 2904 count to take first place in the high three game division, while Ford Burnau rolled a towering 256 to take top honors in the high single game race. Other 200 scores follow: Marv Van Skyock, 230; Bob Winkler, 211; Tom Anderson, 210; George Waggoner, 209; Wayne (Windy) Boester, 204; Paul Perry, 204; Eddie Reese, 203; Irv Schlotterback, 203; and Max Buckmaster, 202.

George Cowan bent one just right and converted the 4-7-10 split.

Ladies' Friday Night

Team No. 5 is leading the Friday evening ladies' bowling league with 27 wins and 9 losses. Second place is held by Team No. 3 with 23 wins and 13 losses.

Individual high single games were rolled by D. Schwartz, 187; D. Larimer, 170; L. Shearer, 202; G. Vance, 184; and M. Saxton, 184. C. Stanford rolled a 516 score with games of 185, 184, and 147; T. Williams, 156, 186, and 180.

GE Office

With 25 wins and 14 losses Reproductions are leading the league. M and G Sales are in second place with 23 wins and 16 losses. Third place goes to Transformer, who have won 22 and lost 17. Steve Nagy kegled a 223; Ed Whipple, 208; Gil Baker, 205; and Dudley Snyder, 202.

Small Motor

Unlucky 113 and Tommy's Tavern are in a tie for the top spot each with 22 wins and 14 losses. Just one-half game behind the leaders is Drafting with a record of 21½ wins and 14½ losses. A tie for fourth place exists between Hanna St. and 101 Club, each having won 19 while losing 17. Double Century scores were made by Leo Reffelt, 203; Ray Lindemuth, 200; Walt (The Poet) Whonsetter, 200; Don Sexton, 246; Lloyd Pinkerton, 219; Ray Brimeyer, 202; Herman Conrad, 215; Wes Goss, 211; Walt Reitdorf, 203; Dick Seidel, 200 and 203; Tony Koorsen, 234; and Joe Kramer, 212.

Masonic League

Fellowcraft with a record of 22 wins and 11 losses is leading the league. Patrols are in second place, having won 20 while losing 13. Doric with 19 wins and 14 losses are in third place. Levels have dropped 15 games while winning 18 and are in fourth place. Frank Quinn came up with counts of 211 and 206 but couldn't quite make the 600 series. Strahlem scored a 226; E. Meyer, 213; Weddle, 212; Crayton, 212; Lauterberg, 206; R. Meyers, 204; Edwards, 202; Fredrich, 202; and Garrett, 200.

Interdivision League

Old Crown Beer and Ale continued on their winning streak by taking three games from Kinney Koncessions. This makes six wins in a row that the Old Crown team has refused to go down in defeat. In other games the Deadheads took two games from the Pindusters. Five Pins downed Brouwer Tire and Battery two out of three. Transformer took all three from Summit City Heating. Cumfoots won two games from the Tools. Gutterdusters took two games from the Apprentice.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

Bob August came through with a neat 244 to lead the last place Shafts to two wins over second place Stators. Led by Johnny Beery's 212, fourth place Office No. 2 lowered the boom on the fifth place Rotors for all three games. Jim Parent had a 200 for the losers. George Laurent had his ball working and came through with a 679 on games of 208-246-225 to lead the third place Office No. 1 to two wins over the league leading Flanges. Laurent's 679 is high series for the season to date. For the Flanges Milt Hoffman had a 208; Seph Jackson, 212; and Harold Shoaf, 201.

GE Fraternal

Monroeville Lumber (24-15) jumped to the top by surprising the Riverview Gardens, the previous leaders, and winning all three games. Riverview now is second with 23 wins 16 losses. Teeple Truck Lines with 22½-16½, slipped back to third spot by losing two to the up and coming Elks who now have 16 and 23. Laurent

Browns Win Mixed Doubles On 1284 Score

by Les Shroyer

The GE Mixed Doubles should be renamed the "Browns Tournament" as they knocked off first place last Saturday with a 1284 on scores of 432-450-402. Justine had games of 176-175-158-509 and Ray had games of 172-191-160-523. Their prize was $20.

Second place went to Gladys and Hank Vance who had games of 407-429-407-1243 and $14 for their efforts.

Third place was captured by Winnie Schuerich and Joe Kramer. They had scores of 339-451-439-1229, and took home $11 for their efforts.

The rest of the prize list is as follows:

Fourth—Mr. and Mrs. Saylor..... 1227 $8

Fifth—Marge Rollins-Del Bucher 1211 $5

Sixth—Ilo Motter-Joe Haas.....1196 $4

Seventh—P. Hoover-Ralph Thomas..1183 $4

Eighth—Mr. and Mrs. Koorsen.....1182 $4

Ilo Motter picked up the 6-7-10 split. High scores for the tourney were Gladys Vance, 178; Winnie Schuerich, 193-172; Mrs. Saylor, 183; Del Bucher, 223; and Tony Koorsen, 206.

The next Mixed Doubles Tournament will be held at the GE Club Saturday, Jan. 8, 1955.

had a 636 (179-200-257) for the truckers. Leo Ulman came up with the evening's biggest series, 655, on games of 236-219-200, as the K. of C.'s thumped the West End Restaurant three games which now puts these two teams in fifth and sixth place tie at 17-22. Last place GE Club (15-24) didn't have the final punch in the close games and lost all three to fourth place Peterson Elevator 21½-17½. Al Buuck had a 621 (210-239-172), and Glen Baumgartner 608 (199-243-166) for the tough elevator boys.

GE Women's League

Those high and mighty High Spots (25½-7½) took three games from the Office (14-19). G. Reynolds topped the High Spots for the evening and also established a new high 565 series on games of 200-205-160. M. J. Gage also had a 170 for the High Spots. M. Miller's 168 was high score for the losers. The Last Frames (17-16) blossomed out to win three games from the last place Spares (9½-23½) and push the Office into third place. Briede's 160 and 179 was tops for the Last Frames.

GE Owls Edge Indiana Rod

by Howard Colby

In what was by far the tightest game of the season for the GE Club Owl team, they beat Indiana Rod in the last three minutes of play, 52 to 40. They scored 14 points after being tied up 38-all.

The first quarter was a very tight one with GE scoring 10 points, while Indiana Rod hit for eight. Gene Elter connected on two fielders with White, Markey, and Harold Somers tossing one each for a quarter lead of two points.

Indiana Rod out-scored GE 14 to 10 in the second period to gain a half time bulge of 22 to 20.

Baskets by White, H. Somers, and Elter followed by charity pitches each by Dickey and Wilson accounted for the tallies made in this stanza.

Battling on even terms in the third quarter GE scored 11 points with John Anspach dunking the extra bucket to make a tied-up ball game, 31 to 31.

The final period was a dilly with both teams playing great ball, the score see-sawing back and forth being tied 38-all with three minutes to go.

Then Coach Benny Penkul's GE boys really turned on the steam scoring 14 big points while holding the Rod men to just two.

Warren Dickey led this rally connecting on four field goals; H. Somers dumped two fielders and two free throws; Elter two baskets; and Markey one, with Wilson adding a foul shot to nail down a 52 to 40 victory.

ning seven buckets for 14 points. Timbrook picked off 10 for the Lab.

Ken Frankenstein and Gil Carl combined to lead the Squares to a win over a stubborn Cylinder club by a 67 to 58 score. Ken and Gil scored 18 and 17 but took a back seat in scoring honors to the Cylinders' Walker, who pitched in 10 fielders and added five charity heaves for a 25-point total.

Thursday night produced the best game that this writer has ever seen in the GE Club gym, bar none. The Firemen, a vastly improved ball club, and the BTC locked horns and the former won 69 to 54. The score does not tell the story. If statistics would have been computed at the end of the contest, I am sure that both teams would have hit for a fast 75 percent of shots taken. Big Chick Morkoetter bombarded the hoop with five buckets in the first stanza and aided by his mate held a 25 to 10 lead. At the half the score was 32 to 16. No matter who went in the game for either team the caliber of the ball game never changed. Both teams played good clean aggressive basketball. Going into the final session, the Firemen held a lead of 53 to 30 then the BTC boys got busy. Wright and Gerichs took charge and BTC tore the nets off with a 24-point burst. The Firemen added 16 and in all of that period, a very few shots were missed by either team.

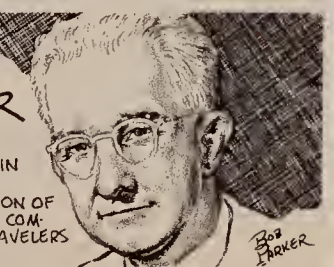

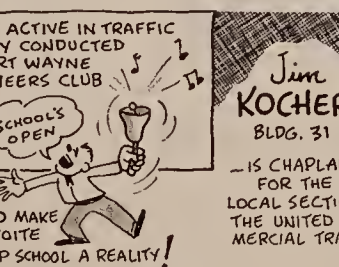

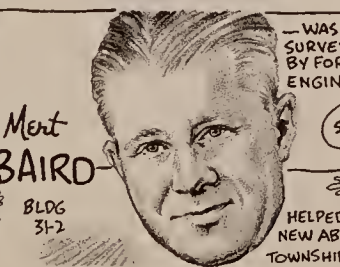

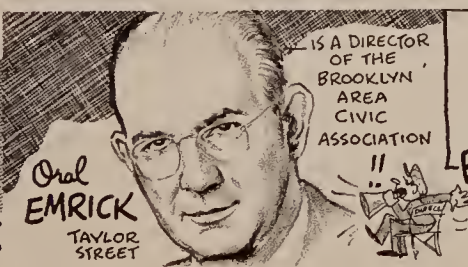

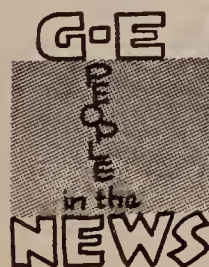

In the evening's final, the Test Engineers played four against four, all that showed up for the Penthouse Dubs, and subdued them 68 to 52. Kinsey and Engelmar accounted for 21 and 20 points for the winners, while Kipfer had a 25 point night for the losers.

Aeolian Choir on TV Dec. 24

The Aeolian Choir from the Decatur Plant will be featured in an all-Christmas program Friday, Dec. 24, from 1 to 2 p.m. over WKJG-TV. They will appear as guests of Charlie Powell on the "Here's Charlie" program from 1 to 1:30. Mr. Powell will interview David Embler, director, and the choir will sing two selections.

The program then will be extended for another half hour, during which time the choir will sing traditional and familiar Christmas music.

Social Security Tax Wage Base Goes Up Jan. 1

Due to the Social Security amendments of 1954, the wage base for computing the social security tax will be increased from $3600 to $4200 as of Jan. 1, 1955. This statutory amendment will result in a change in the wage base upon which contributions to the General Electric Pension Plan are based.

Accordingly, on Jan. 1, 1955, that portion of a participant's annual compensation subject to the 2 per cent contribution rate under the GE Pension Plan will automatically rise from $3600 to $4200. The 5 per cent contribution rate will then be applicable to that portion of annual compensation in excess of $4200.

The change in the wage base will also reduce from 5 per cent to 2 per cent the pension contributions on that portion of annual compensation between $3600 and $4200 on which the participant will have to pay Social Security tax after Jan. 1, 1955.

While the reduction in the amount of annual compensation subject to the 5 per cent pension contribution will reduce the amount of future pension, the increase in Social Security benefits will more than offset this reduction in all cases where the number of years of future service after Jan. 1, 1955 is up to 39 years and two months, and in some cases up to 50 years.

Ansel H. Graham Appointed SIM Manager of Engineering

The appointment of Ansel H. Graham as manager of engineering in the Small Integral Motor Department has been announced by Thorn L. Mayes, general manager.

Mr. Graham joined the company in 1939 and went on the Test Engineers Program at Erie. He completed assignments at Lynn and went to Schenectady in the fall of 1939. At that time he entered the Advanced Engineering Program. One year later he moved to the design engineering group of the former Transportation Motor Engineering Department at Erie.

In 1947 Mr. Graham became design section engineer in DC Armored Motors, Small and Medium Motor Department. The following year he was named manager of engineering in DC Armored Motors. In 1951 he was appointed assistant to the manager of engineering in Small and Medium Motor at Schenectady.

Last year Mr. Graham became manager of advance and development engineering in the Medium Induction Motor Department, Schenectady. This was his position prior to his present appointment.

A 1938 graduate of West Virginia University, Mr. Graham received his BSEE degree. He is a registered professional engineer in the State of Pennsylvania and is a member of the AIEE. Mr. and Mrs. Graham have two sons.

1955 Vacation Schedule

VACATIONS 1955—SALARIED AND HOURLY RATED EMPLOYEES

All departments and sections of the company in Fort Wayne, in general, plan to close on Saturday, July 30, 1955, for two weeks for vacation purposes, reopening for usual operations on Monday, August 15, 1955.

It is expected that this vacation shutdown will be as near 100 per cent as possible.

Some employees will be required to work during the shutdown period as follows:

1. It will be necessary for some few employees to work in order to protect the plant.
2. It may be necessary for some operating departments to maintain a small skeleton force.
3. It also may be found practical to utilize this shutdown period for the completion of some physical rearrangement of facilities or the accomplishment of some essential maintenance work that cannot be done effectively in the usual working periods.
4. Government defense work may require some operations not known at this time. Where this becomes necessary, as much advance notice as possible will be given to employees.

In all cases, department heads will arrange for this work and will notify those employees who are needed to be present during the shutdown period as far in advance as possible.

In accordance with the vacation plan, employees entitled to a third week of vacation will schedule this week immediately before or after the shutdown period; however, by mutual agreement, the third week may be scheduled at some other time.

Those becoming eligible for vacation allowance after the shutdown period and who were absent during the shutdown will not be required to take additional time off but will receive full payment when they qualify.

Winter Driving Rules

The Careful Driver Crusade which was so successfully carried on in Fort Wayne last August has been resumed this month and will continue through New Year's Day.

Sponsored by the Fort Wayne Police Department, Allen County Sheriff's Department, Indiana State Police and the Safety Council of the Chamber of Commerce, the Crusade will place emphasis on winter driving rules, crossing of the yellow center line, keeping the vehicle under control on ice and snow, speeding and driving while under the influence of alcohol.

The six basic rules for safe winter driving recommended for safe winter driving are:

1. Accept your responsibility to do all in your power to drive without accident. Don't blame the weatherman for an accident. Be prepared and meet the situation.
2. Get the "feel" of the road. Try brakes occasionally while driving slowly and away from traffic. Find out just how slippery the road is and adjust your speed to road and weather conditions.
3. Keep the windshield clear of snow and ice, fog and frost. Be sure headlights, windshield wiper blades and defrosters are in top condition. You have to see danger to avoid it.
4. Use tire chains and good tires. Don't rely on worn-smooth tires. Use tire chains on snow and ice. They cut stopping distance about half, give four to seven times more starting and climbing traction. But even with the help of chains, slower than normal speeds are a must on snow and ice.
5. Pump your brakes to slow down or stop. Jamming them on can lock the wheels and throw you into a dangerous skid.
6. Follow at a safe distance. Keep well back of the vehicle ahead—give yourself room to stop. Remember, without tire chains it takes 3 to 12 times as far to stop on snow and ice as on dry concrete.

Worries for Sale

Think your problems are the worst in the world? Chances are if you had an opportunity to exchange your difficulties for those of your next door neighbor, you'd elect to keep your own.

Why is this?

Some people claim it's because our own troubles are familiar to us. There is probably some truth to this, because by and large human beings like to stick to familiar surroundings and situations. However, there is probably another reason; and we may be quite unaware of this.

We all have a way of thinking that our problems are the worst and the only ones in the whole wide world. When we get out of ourselves and talk to our fellow men, we discover that this is not true. Life isn't easy for any of us. We begin to understand that having problems and solving those difficulties is a part of growing both older and wiser. Psychologists call this process maturing.

Learning to recognize a problem and doing something about it is a sign of maturity.

Realizing that the other fellow has as many problems or even more makes our own seem very small. This is known as having perspective. To see our problems in their proper light is very important. We should never minimize a problem nor should we magnify it either. Sometimes such problems tend to grow larger when we put off taking positive action. If we adopt such a negative attitude and refuse to recognize that a problem exists or put off solving the difficulty, just like a snowball rolling down hill, the problem can grow and grow. Best way to maintain good mental health is to:

1. Recognize problems for what they are;
2. Gain perspective in relation to them; and
3. Act promptly in solving them.

TIPS and QUIPS

BLDG. 31-1

by Don Shultz

Anyone seen limping around the plant undoubtedly hails from Bldg. 31-1. We no more than get our teletype operator off of crutches until we see two more people limping around. Seems the other day Jack Hively, while trying to do his good deed by helping push a stalled car, tore the muscles in his left leg. Doris Olinger is not rushing the season by wearing sandals to work, she tried to part two of her toes on the leg of a chair. . . . The other evening George (Oily) Mannisto was proceeding up Fairfield Ave. in the family car and minding his own business, when what should appear ahead but the rear of a big oil truck with a nice row of faucets on the back. George applied the brakes but didn't make it. He didn't hit very hard but broke off some of the faucets which turned loose 600 gallons of fuel oil. . . . What happened to the Archery Club lately? . . . It seems as though Monroe Brosius had a severe case of homesickness recently. Monroe along with Mike Sorgen went to Erie, Pa. to look over the GE there and to also look around the town. They will be employees of the Erie plant as of January 3. While we are wishing Mike and Monroe a bon voyage, we want to welcome back to Bldg. 31-1 Mr. Harry Brown. . . . Margaret Roth has her share of troubles since she is married. Her walls at home seem to be as rough as the walls at work. In fact, she always has scratched up knuckles. Also what Margaret likes to eat, Danny (her husband) doesn't. You will just have to cook what Danny likes. You know food is the way to a man's heart. . . . Birthday greetings are extended to Charley McAfee, who has a birthday Dec. 22.

6-4 AIRLINERS

by Moe Satterthwaite

Perry Jeffries took an unexpected bath last week. A water pipe broke above his machine. . . . Congratulations to Andy Anderson. He was presented a pin and welcomed into the Quarter Century Club. Andy celebrated by buying a new 21-inch GE TV set. . . . We wish a speedy recovery for Bessie France's daughter who is in the hospital. . . . Perhaps you would be interested to know that the Elex Christmas collection from our floor was a generous $44.40. Elex thanks you and we're sure the families in need will do the same. . . . Ruth Reed is back with us again after her third week's vacation. . . . I'm very sorry I didn't mention Les Hubart's birthday. It was last May. . . . Ray Snyder owns the only TV set in town that works without plugging it in the socket. . . . With Christmas just around the corner, two of our planners decided they would be Santa's little helpers. Combining their hidden talents, they made a beautiful cardboard tree, all decked with ornaments and complete with a star on top. The tree may not be large, but the spirit of Christmas is there. Thanks to Ralph Obringer and Harold Geise. . . . Rumors are flying that we have a Santa Claus in our midst—John Fitzsimmons, Bldg. 6-3 office trainee. John was unanimously elected because of his "Ho-Ho-Ho" to play the jolly fellow for his friends at the Hermitage. . . . Belated birthday greetings to Aleen Miller and also to Moe Moffiett. Moe says he didn't want anybody to know it because he didn't want his co-workers to buy him anything so close to Christmas. . . . The smile Jenny Hey is wearing is because her beloved Komets beat Cincinnati. . . . Ruth Baker doesn't keep her eye on the clock. Last Monday noon when the lunch whistle blew, she dropped everything and grabbed her coat. Thought it was a fire drill.

TOOL BITS

BLDG. 19-4 and 5

by Howard Demsey

Now that Ned Crum's son Tommy is four months old, everyone was surprised to hear that Ned had never done a diapering job. He probably feels glad that he hasn't gotten stuck with the job but no more so than Tommy is. . . . Eddie Kammeyer is being accused of being in the live bait business since the mouse jumped out of his bench drawer. . . . Speaking of bait, Walt Esterline is going to have to catch his winter's supply of minnows over again. His first 1,000 died. . . . Congratulations to Scott Click on winning a split in the current crossword puzzle contest. . . . Emory Skees is asking Santa for a new alarm clock so he can get to work on time. . . . When the TV repairman looking at Perry Butt's set needed a flashlight, Perry's wife thought that was as good a time as any to present him his Christmas present, a nice three-cell flashlight. . . . No, John Stetler's grandchildren weren't playing Indian, he just fell asleep in the barber chair and woke up in time to save a patch on top. . . . The next time Paul Boedeker hides a gift he's going to remember to also hide the sales slip. . . . Paul Brinkroeger couldn't get out of his jacket with a snarled zipper even with the help of Elmer Auman. He finally threw up his hands in despair and that was all he needed. He slid right out the bottom. . . . Although Carl Einsiedel claims his dog is a full-blooded Manchester, there are others who say it's a Heinz special or a curb stone setter. . . . These two gentlemen shown at the QC outing are Carey Baker, recently honored as being a high class musician in a low price bracket, and Ross (Deerslayer) Cohagen who intends to reduce the deer (we hope) population in the San Fernando Valley next fall. . . . When Hank Wittber found an ad for electric socks he immediately forwarded it to Bernie Byanski and Woody Hursh, the ice fishermen. . . . Kurt Martin was re-elected president of the Maencheror singing club. . . . While some men give their wives an occasional cold shoulder we can hardly sympathize with a man who sets his wife out on the streets of a neighboring town while all the stores were closed and he goes to visit friends. Mrs. Marion More will tell you it was pretty cold in Garrett one night last week. Marion still claims he didn't know the stores were closed. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Bennett on the arrival of a baby boy.

Carey and Ross

THE WESTERNERS

by Maxine Patterson

Joe Robinson and Verne Marbaugh are surely having trouble to see who is going to be boss on their jobs. The trouble they both have is that neither one pays any attention to the other one anyway. Joe says Verne just does as he pleases. . . . Wally Reed is taking his third week starting next week before Christmas, and it seems a lot of other people have picked the same week. Chuck Boren, Harold Canfield, Louie Witte, Everett Sink, Junior Essig, Frona Witsche, Ed Meyer, Roy Meeks, and Paul Schoenherr are all going to take vacations that last week. Ross Sills, and Bob Benschong of the office gang will be gone, too. . . . Charles Dunifon is still quite ill, and in the Lutheran Hospital. . . . Chuck Bixby is back from his vacation and can sort of get Everett Sink straightened out before Everett goes on his vacation next week. . . . We just found out a quick way to get Herb Jesse, is just call him Teddy. He was named after the great Teddy Roosevelt. . . . Joe Shovlin can hardly get along without his wife. She went away for a few days, and Joe just couldn't make it to work on time. He forgot to fix the clock so it would ring, he says. . . . Not only is the horse almost extinct, but so are people who work like one.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

WOMEN SUNDAY DRIVERS have taken their share of punning, but the men are now in the lime-light. Sunday morning Max Barrows collected his children to go to Sunday school, but didn't wait for them to get the door closed before backing out the drive. The door flew wide open just in time to connect with the house. . . . BEEF STEAK DENNIS: Dennis Peterschmidt claims that it was someone's elbow that caused that shiner—likely story. . . . CHARGE IT TO THE HOLIDAY RUSH: Last week Bob Ritchey (the good-looking one) parked his car in the parking lot, locked his car, and proceeded to the office. Half way he discovered his keys were missing, so he went back to his car and there they were, locked inside. And here he was, nothing else to do but get home somehow and get his wife's car key, which is exactly what he did. . . . OUR DEEPEST SYMPATHY to Jack Cochran who was forced to take precious vacation days to clean up the damage caused by the smoke smog which completely enveloped his basement. Jack wanted to do some work in his basement and started the burner. When he opened the basement door, smoke and smog rushed at him. . . . HAPPY BIRTHDAY to Jim Walley, Sunday, Dec. 19, and to Harvey von Gunten, Tuesday, Dec. 21. . . . WE WELCOME Bill Rinker to our fold. Bill is a new member of Jim Walley's group. He is a graduate of Rose Polytechnic Institute with a BSEE degree. There is a Mrs. Rinker and they call 4504 South Anthony Blvd. their home. . . . WANTED: TAMBOURINE—It seems Pat (the actor) Curtis is in the market for a new or used tambourine. She needs it for the dance she is doing in her modeling school Christmas exhibition. . . . THE CHRISTMAS REINDEER of Bldg. 4-6 is none other than Joan McBride. She came to work Monday with a Santa Claus pin. The Santa Claus pin was equipped with a lighted nose.

OLD FAN RETIRES—The owners of a 53-year-old General Electric fan manufactured in 1901 by what is now the Specialty Component Motor Department, recently received a replacement from W. L. Peoples (left) Cleveland GE representative. Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shreve live in Wooster, Ohio. M. O. Switzer (right), their local dealer, holds the old fan.

Fred Waring Returns to TV Sunday

"Music for Christmas" starring Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, in brilliant color as well as in black and white, is the presentation on "General Electric Theater" Sunday, at 9 p.m. over WIN-T.

Waring and his famous aggregation combine some of the world's favorite Christmas music in a half-hour of singing, dancing and instrumental arrangements designed to bring holiday joy to every member of the family.

A highlight of the show will be selections from the "Nutcracker Suite," with special Waring lyrics set to the music of "Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairies," "Trepak," and "Waltz of the Flowers." Featured soloists in this choreographic segment are Roberta Onigman and Ralph Linn.

There is a group of religious selections, including "Adeste Fidelis," "Cantique de Noel," and "Silent Night." In a street setting, caroleers sing "The First Noel," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "God Rest Ye Merrie, Gentlemen!"

This special Christmas show in color will originate "live" from New York and will be produced by Ernest Walling and directed by Kevin Joe Jonson. Ronald Reagan is program supervisor on "General Electric Theater."

GE Replaces Fan In Use 53 Years With New Model

One of the oldest electric fans and motors in this area was replaced last week and is headed for a museum berth.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shreve, of Wooster, Ohio, were given a 16-inch GE fan to replace the one which has been in service 53 years. The fan came to the attention of General Electric when the Shreves took it to their dealer for its first repair.

It developed that GE could find no part replacements for such a long-service fan of this old style. They then decided the fan should be retired. It will be sent to Fort Wayne for possible use in future advertising by the Specialty Component Motor Department.

Motter Gives Talk on Radio Interference

D. P. Motter, engineer on radio interference studies in the Laboratory, recently presented a paper entitled "Interference Control in Electrical Machinery," at the Chicago conference on Radio Interference Reduction.

The conference, held Dec. 7-8, at the Armour Research Foundation of the Illinois Institute of Technology, was sponsored jointly by the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics; Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, and the Wright Air Development Center.

Partizan Party Dec. 21

The home of Bertha Mattes, 1004 Woodview Blvd., will be the scene of Partizan Chapter's Christmas party, Tuesday, Dec. 21. It will begin at 1 p.m. In addition to entertainment, a one dollar gift exchange will be conducted.

Assisting hostesses are Frances Hart, Edna Tarmon, and Edith Venrick.

Credit Union Closed Dec. 24

The GE Credit Union will be closed Friday, Dec. 24, for the Christmas holiday. They will be open for business as usual Monday morning, Dec. 27.

VIEWING COMPETITION—Two General Purpose Component Motor Section 113 employees, Kenneth Miller and Lloyd Siebern, look over one of six competitors' motors which are currently on exhibit in the department. The mobile display is one of several that are being shown in connection with the concentrated effort being conducted against waste in the department.

Mobile Display Gives GPM Folks Chance to See Competitors' Products

Employees of General Purpose Component Motor Department are getting a chance to see the competition they face through mobile displays which exhibit six fractional horsepower motors manufactured by GPM competitors.

The displays are being shown in areas throughout the department as part of the concentrated effort being conducted against waste now. By seeing the six different FHP motors, employees have an opportunity to compare the motors they work on with those of competition just as customers do. The display points out the importance of each employee doing his job well and guarding against waste so that quality will remain high and costs will not rise.

Other displays are being prepared to serve as reminders of where employees can best concentrate their efforts toward reduction of waste. Ideas for these exhibits have been submitted by employees themselves.

Elex Reception For Irene Meyers

Members of Elex Club will honor their adviser, Irene Meyers, on her retirement with a reception Wednesday, Dec. 22, Georgette Hetzel, president, announced today. The reception will take place in the Bldg. 16-2 dining room from 2 to 5 p.m.

All employees are invited to attend the reception, the president stated. The 1954-55 officers are in charge of arrangements.

252 GE Firemen Honor Volunteers For Long Service

A total of 252 GE firemen attended the Volunteer Firemen's Association annual banquet December 9 in the Broadway dining room. Ten members received 10-year service buttons which were presented by Ernie Hanauer, GE fire chief.

Guest speaker, Lisle D. Hodell, general manager of General Purpose Component Motor Department, discussed his 1953 trip to Europe and European industries. He illustrated his discussion with slides.

The 10 firemen who have completed 10 years service each with the association are: Paul Frantz, Bldg. 12-1; William Witmer, Bldg. 19-2; Donald Stephan, Bldg. 4-4; Roy Gallspie, Taylor St.; Robert Deerweiser, Taylor St.; George Ely, Bldg. 10-1; Troy Long, Taylor St.; Harold VanCamp, Bldg. 8-1; Byron Blough, Bldg. 5-1, and Arthur Eizinger, Bldg. 27.

RECEIVING service awards from GE Fire Chief Ernie Hanauer, left, are Robert Deerweiser, Taylor St.; George Ely, Bldg. 10-1; Paul Frantz, Bldg. 12-1; and Troy Long, Taylor St. Others not shown who received awards are Harold VanCamp, Bldg. 8-1; Byron Blough, Bldg. 5-1, and Arthur Eizinger, Bldg. 27.

CONGRATULATIONS go to GE firemen who received 10-year service buttons from Lisle D. Hodell, left, guest speaker at the firemen's banquet last week. Four of the men honored are: Paul Frantz, Bldg. 12-1; William Witmer, Bldg. 19-2; Donald Stephan, Bldg. 4-4, and Roy Gallspie, Taylor St.

Six Say Good-by to GE

C. X. CHARLES (seated right), looks over a scrapbook of his GE activities presented him by his friends during a visit to his home. Seated (l-r) are D. E. Kaiser and E. F. Ginder. Standing (l-r) are J. H. Remmers, E. F. Richter (back), F. J. Kissell, G. A. Lewis, and R. E. Mungovan. Mr. Charles came to GE in 1920 as a draftsman in Bldg. 18-5. He was a drafting designer in Bldg. 31-2 at retirement.

GLENN L. CARNEY sits for the last time at the balancing machine in Bldg. 4-3 where he worked prior to retirement, while Fred Ginzel waits to wish him many happy years in retirement on behalf of his many GE friends. Mr. Carney first joined General Electric in 1919 as a handyman in Bldg. 17-4.

GE Club Books Impressionist For Kiddies Christmas Party

A fourth act featuring Ron McAdam has been added to the GE Club Kiddies' Christmas party, which takes place tomorrow. McAdam is a satirical impressionist and has appeared twice on the Ed Sullivan show as well as in theaters and clubs around the United States.

There are still a few tickets available for three of the five shows to be presented. Tickets for the 12 o'clock noon, 3:45 and 5:30 p.m. shows may be obtained at the GE Club desk when employees present their membership cards. Times of the other two shows are 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Parents accompanying children will need no tickets for themselves. The children will present their tickets when obtaining their gifts after each performance.

GE DEATHS

Bertha Bertsch Dies In Lutheran Hospital

A retired employee, Bertha K. Bertsch, 60, died Dec. 10, in the Lutheran Hospital. She had been a patient three months. Services were conducted at the D. O. McComb & Sons Funeral Home by the Rev. Edwin A. Nerger. Burial was in Leo Cemetery.

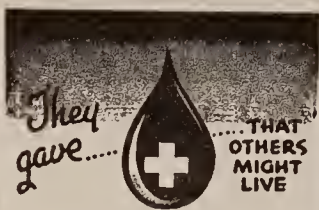

Joining GE in September, 1928, Mrs. Bertsch did armature work in Bldg. 17-2. She worked in Bldg. 17-3 prior to retiring Feb. 27, 1953.

In addition to her husband, Albert, survivors are a son, Walter Droege; three daughters, Mrs. Velma Gill, Mrs. Dorothy Obecný, and Mrs. Ludella Berkshire; two brothers, Martin Kiefer and Herman Kiefer, and five grandchildren.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Louis Rosselot, 62

A former employee, Louis Rosselot, 62, died Dec. 9, in the Luckey Hospital, Wolf Lake, where he had been a patient two days. Death was due to a heart attack.

Mr. Rosselot joined the company in 1941 and worked in Bldg. 4-4. He was a machinist in Bldg. 20 prior to leaving the company March 15, 1947.

The following employees from the Specialty Component Motor Department donated blood during the week ending Dec. 3:

Ronnell L. Allen, Harold H. Baker, A. R. Diehl, *Merthyn Evans, Ilene Hardisty, *Joseph Iacova, Ruby McBride, Richard B. Parker, Maurice E. Snyder, John Taylor, Jr., Stanley E. Tomkinson, Robert L. ### GE Films at Jefferson

The "Atom Goes to Sea," a General Electric produced film, is scheduled to be shown at the Jefferson Theater January 26-29. Another GE produced film, "Story of Light," will be shown at the same theater January 19-22.

Survivors include his wife, Leila; a son, Wayne; one brother, Clarence; two sisters, Mrs. Georgia Aumann and Mrs. Alma Ertel, and two grandchildren.

Services were conducted in the St. Joseph Methodist Church by the Rev. James Babbitt. Burial was in Parker Cemetery, Churuhuseo.

Ruth Ann Gumpper, 30 Dies Sunday at Home

Ruth Ann Gumpper, 30, died Sunday, Dec. 12, at her home, 132 E. Foster Parkway. Services for Miss Gumpper were conducted Wednesday, Dec. 14, in the Klaehn Funeral Home. The Rev. Willard H. Zinke officiated. Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

In March, 1947, Miss Gumpper joined General Electric and went to work in the Bank Building as a stenographer. This was her position in Bldg. 8-1 prior to her death.

Surviving are her mother, Mrs. Ruth H. Gumpper, and two sisters, Mrs. Dale Ferguson and Mrs. James VanBuskirk.

Whether you are walking or driving, darkness is a signal to proceed more cautiously and be more alert, says Indiana Traffic Safety Foundation. Be Alert—Stay Alive.

Apprentice School Holds First Graduation Ceremony; 19 Honored

The first graduation ceremony to be conducted by the Fort Wayne GE Apprentice School took place Thursday, Dec. 9, at a luncheon. Nineteen graduates received certificates, enjoyed lunch, and got some good advice and interesting comments from guest speaker, Lisle D. Hodell, general manager of the General Purpose Component Motor Department.

The ceremony was the first such service since the school was opened here in 1913. It has been difficult to conduct such programs previously because the students enter and complete training individually at different times, and during some had their training interrupted when they entered the Armed Forces. Those attending Thursday's program represent all the 1954 graduates.

In speaking to the graduates, Mr. Hodell pointed out that their education is like a tool. It should not be put away and forgotten, he said, but put to use and sharpened each year to remain proficient.

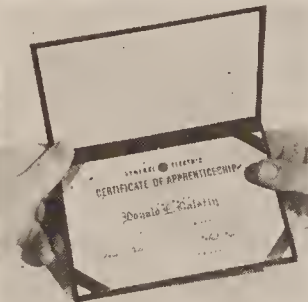

"Success comes to the man who gives more than he receives," Mr. Hodell asserted. "In your everyday living, you give of your talent and energy and by your living you teach others. Don't let this precious life that each of you has become dull like an uncared for tool."

Mr. Hodell also brought out some interesting facts about the 19 graduates. Of the total, 13 are married, 10 have children, eight are from places other than Fort Wayne, and four are sons of GE employees.

With the present total, there have been 741 graduates of the Apprentice School since it opened here. The local school is one of 24 throughout the company and currently has 151 apprentices enrolled, with Richard Gebert as supervisor of the school.

An apprentice committee has been organized this year by Mr. Gebert for the purpose of determining policy. Members of this group in addition to Mr. Gebert are: Harold F. Staley, Winter St.; A. LeRoy Rediger, Bldg. 18-3; George E. Hicks, Bldg. 4-6; Paul E. Merkey, Taylor St.; Clarence A. Brenner, Bldg. 19-5, and Herman Korte, Bldg. 26-2.

opened here in 1913. It has been difficult to conduct such programs previously because the students enter and complete training individually at different times, and during

FRIENDSHIP QUILT with 1600 names embroidered on it was presented Irene Meyers, right, supervisor of women's activities, by El-Par Chapter of Elex Club. The occasion was a party for Miss Meyers, who retires next week. Presenting the quilt are (l-r): Mamie Allen, El-Par president, Doris Reiter and Zella Whittmer, who were chairmen of the project to make the quilt.

Bieberich Granted First U. S. Patent

Walter A. Bieberich, Bldg. 31-1, was granted his first patent recently by the U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C. The patent covers an adjustable lead end head block for power operated coil spreaders. This head block forms the leads while the coil is being spread. Previously, the leads were formed by hand as a second operation.

A Direct Current Motor and Generator employee, Bieberich is a methods planner at present. He joined the company in 1940.

Congratulations to Neal Dowling who was selected best speaker in Bill Brunner's Effective Presentation class. We hope Neal can win first prize at the final EP banquet. Maybe it will make up for the money he hasn't been winning in the News-Sentinel Jackpost Crossword Puzzle Contest. . . . Al Ulmer is back from a week's vacation. . . . Welcome back to Marilyn Filker. . . . Mildred Quackenbush entertained the office girls with a lovely Christmas party at her home. . . . A member of our sales organization came to work Monday morning wearing lipstick. We place Mrs. Ried Allen at the top of our list for having her lipstick on at 7:30 a.m. . . . Judy Connin,

Judy Connin—

She is president of North Side Polar Y Club also. Judy has spent considerable time at Parkview Memorial Hospital as assistant to the director of volunteers. She was the first nurse at Parkview. She is 17 and will graduate from North Side next year. . . . Neighbors of the Swansons on Oakdale were really in a dither one day recently when they saw a man climbing into Ingrid's bedroom window! Her mother, who was supposed to be in Washington, had returned and was locked out so a city policeman came to the rescue and climbed in to unlock the door.

WIRE RAVELINGS

TAYLOR ST.

by Al Hambrock

WELCOME, Dave Jones, to our Wire Planning Section. Dave is a graduate of the Apprentice School. Hope you will like us, Dave. . . . SANTA CLAUS: Clarence Coulter played Santa Claus at the Union party last Sunday. As good old Santy, Clarence did a fine job, and his singing was really out of this world. Besides not starting with the music, he had a tune all his own—no high notes, no low notes—just notes. . . . CONGRATULATIONS to Bill Skinner in his new supervisory position in the Wire Mill. HE SAYS Cleo Crowe is planning to spend his third week of vacation in Florida during the holidays. Since he will not be home at Christmas time to receive Christmas cards, he wants all his friends who planned on sending him cards just to forget about the cards and give him the money they would have spent on the cards and stamps. . . . CONGRATULATIONS to Carl (Snuffy) Junk on the arrival of a new heir by the name of Mark Patrick. Snuffy is quite proud of the name Patrick, for he now has a son by the name of Pat and one by the name of Mike. P. S.—Imagine an old sauerkraut eater having sons named Pat and Mike! . . . OUR EDITOR: We really like him," says Bob Shirey and Florence (Wimpy) Lemper (and a few others). He's one of those guys who doesn't pull any punches. He really reports the news as he sees it, even if it's about himself. What these gentlemen are referring to is the article in last week's GE NEWS about one name being the only name in the hat for the Christmas exchange. Now, our question is this. If these gentlemen really mean what they say, what are they doing about it? Are they seeing to it that we get some kind of an award such as the "Ladies' Home Journal," "Woman's Home Companion," "Who's Who," etc.? If they are, we haven't heard about it.

Bill Billue was recently seen on TV, participating in a Civic play. . . . Sorry to hear that Katy Eckenbarger is on the sick list. . . . Don Kees is in the market for some "good" TV tubes. Don, I suggest you see Howard Funk. He is quite an expert on this TV business. . . . Here's a speedy recovery to the wives of Walter Cornelius and Charley Waltemath. They both had operations recently. . . . Welcome back to Sherry Varner of Bldg. 19-3, after a sick leave. . . . Bert Martz celebrated her birthday on Dec. 7. She treated the gang to fudge. . . . Charlie Waltemath has issued an invitation to anyone to come to Blue Lake, and help him get his boat out of the lake. Of course it goes without saying that refreshments will be provided for the "help." (Correct me if I'm wrong, Charlie.) . . . The dance held at the Coliseum Saturday night turned out to be quite a success. There was one dance in particular that caught everyone's interest. It sounded like a howling dog running loose, but it turned out to be Dave Balser. When questioned why all the howling, he replied, "That's the way they do it back in Pennsylvania." . . . Bob Walworth has returned to work after his mishap. . . . Did you know Al Braun is moving? He is now going to live far, far away over on Maumee. . . . Dick Regel's son, Bob, has just won a three-day trip east with the Zoller Pistons. It seems that he sold the most subscriptions to the Journal-Gazette. He is an eighth grade student at St. John's school. . . . Talk about luck. Last week Bob Braun won an electric coffee maker plus the tray, sugar bowl and creamer.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Congratulations to Ed Bak. He has a new baby son. . . . Our deepest sympathies to Mary Williamson on the death of her husband. . . . Doris Rinehold is our lucky girl this week. She is spending the week in Florida. . . . Larry Ehinger is trying to prove to his sons that he is a good hunter. He even broke his shotgun when he hit one over the head. But alas, no rabbits as yet. . . . Cal Hapner came to work sporting two different shoes. Needless to say, he tried to keep them hidden under the conveyor. . . . To keep up the trend on our floor, Frenchy Chilcote has new lowers and has replaced his upper teeth. . . . One would think Dale Amstutz was in his second childhood. He was seen playing with a dancing toy. Seriously, Dale is an interested party in the Junior Achievement program. . . . The winding section welcomes Beulah Shaffer and Erma Strater. . . . Rose Krieg and her husband have a new Mercury. . . . Congratulations to Nancy McCrea on her birthday. . . . Mildred Leazler and her family didn't have the heart to eat their pet turkey for Thanksgiving. They are going to make another attempt Christmas day. . . . We have heard lots of fish stories but here is one about rabbits. Ray Loveless shot six rabbits and laid three on the ground while he talked to another hunter. When he wanted to pick them up, they had crawled away to a brush pile.

Hello again! Thanks to Blanche Cowell, who has written the column for a while. . . . Welcome to Ted Schlup. Did your car stop the other day because of the antifreeze? . . . Leroy Cook is singing a new song to Frank Enderle this week: "I'm Waltzing with My Lois." . . . Merle Byers went hunting opening day, he shot so many rabbits his gun blew up. Wow, what a story! Byers, remember there is a limit on how many rabbits. . . . Why is the paint truck stopping at Joe Burton's house so much lately? . . . What a boo-boo: George Noffze brought Harry Woodward a job. When Harry finished welding it he wondered if George could use the table, too, because it was welded to it. What makes Harry perturbed is that it was one of his best welds. Better luck next time, Harry. . . . Happy birthday to Herb Boltz. . . . If you want to make an easy job seem mighty hard, just keep putting off doing it.

FROM 26-TOO

by C. A. Krasienko

Clarence Hambrock is back with us after an extended illness. . . . The GE Squares basketball team is well represented by Bldg. 26-2 personnel. Gil Carl, Stan Antalis, Bud Hoppler, Dick Miller, and Jack Webb are helping make the Squares a contender in the Inter-department League. . . . Bouquets to George Owens and Lee Rademaker for getting NO rabbits the first few times out, also to Clyde Nicholson, who again won the weekly bowling prize. This time he won with the lowest third game score, a big 99. . . . In case anyone missed it, Pat Daniels and Sue Snyder recently began sporting diamonds. . . . Welcome to Wayne Weimer's Task Force on M.T.S., a new group located near the west end of Bldg. 26-2. . . . It's an 8 pound 11 ounce girl for the Gil Carls. . . . Getting the day before Christmas off has complicated the office party set-up. Proponents of office parties are up in arms, while others consider it a good thing. . . . Welcome back to Roedean Dowell, formerly of Marketing, who has come back to help out in Engineering while Ruth Fields is recuperating from an emergency appendectomy.

skids under the building, hitch a tractor onto it, and take off for Big Turkey Lake. . . . A few days before Thanksgiving day Eddie Sordelet went in search of a turkey. Entering a super market he selected what he thought to be a dandy. The next evening, his wife in preparing the fowl for the oven, discovered it to be a big goose. He tells us that he now has plenty of goose grease on hand to rub on his chest in event of a chest cold. We would like to suggest that he also brew himself up jug of onion syrup to use along with the goose grease.

STORMY WEATHER

by Bill Hurtt & Larry Reed

Even though he put rubber pads on the steps, painted them and kept the stairway well lighted, Charley Kensill still managed to fall down the cellar stairs. However, the injuries weren't fatal even though he crippled around for awhile. . . . We were very glad to see two of our pensioners, John Hilsmer and Charlie Crankshaw on a recent visit to the department. . . . Assembling must be an occupational hazard for just after one man burns his hand, Walter Lorenz proceeds to jam a screwdriver in his. . . . According to Clarence Nussel, one good thing will come out of his third week's vacation, that of getting his attic cleaned. . . . Welcome to Bob Rose who has joined our group and may your editor thank each of you for your cooperation and hope that you will give the same help to your new editor, Don Baker. . . . Quotation for the week: "Most men would rather lose ten dollars on a race horse than a quarter through a hole in their pocket."

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

Our Christmas season is saddened by the loss of our former co-worker, Bertha Bertsch. Our sincere sympathy is extended to the family on the loss of their wife and mother. . . . We extend sympathy to Louie Wyss on the loss of his grandfather. . . . We wish a happy birthday to Hedy Harrison, Bernadine Humbarger, Marcille Harper, and Marcille Ramsey. . . . The twinkle in the eyes of Ethel Keller is from the pretty diamond she received. . . . Hazel Lockwood will be sunning herself in Riviera Beach, Fla. for the next three months. . . . Chet Tulley's little granddaughter is going to have to get her pet Toy Collie a fur coat for Christmas. The other morning she watched her daddy shave. Daddy was a little careless and didn't put his shaver away, so she shaved the dog. . . . Orville Kaufman is glad to be back on days. . . . There are twins at the Eileen Steinacher home. One arrived last week, and one the week before. She has a new automatic washer and dryer now. . . . Seventeenth wedding anniversary congratulations tomorrow to Bob and Ann Kensill.

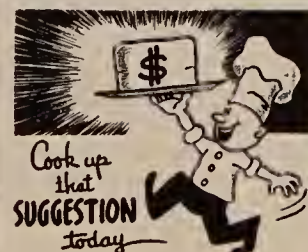

"Viewing it as objectively as is possible to judge one's self, I should say that my conduct has been exemplary"

TALES from TAYLOR

SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

You no doubt know about Harold Patterson's wood toy production activities. He has as his able assistant Paul Wilcoxson. Last Saturday Harold had Paul working on the rabbit and dog line. He was busy barreling out the bunnies when Harold stopped to check on him and discovered that Paul was cutting the bows off the rabbits' necks. In checking further he also discovered that Paul had whacked the hind legs off of several dogs. . . . The latest development on the Clarence Stove garage moving project: Not having had much success in procuring someone to do this job for him, he has given up the idea of having it moved on wheels and is now praying for a heavy snow. In event of this his plans call for putting

At the Foremen and Supervisors' party last week at Bill Shuler's home it seems as though several men had a little difficulty finding the house. Could it be because the lights were all out? ... The field section held their Christmas party at the Colonial followed by attending the Wayne King dance. The hostesses for the party were Peggy Bahde and Marie Griffin. ... Louise Sinn lost a yellow gold Bulova wrist watch. If you find it, she works in Bldg. 4-3 in Group 54. ... Billie Gawthrop is the proud mother of twins. She is a former co-worker in the field section. ... George Crickmore is driving a '55 Chevrolet. ... Leon Gurevsky's wife won a basket of groceries from one market and then proceeded on to another to do her shopping. ... Sam Taylor came to work with his hand bandaged up and the fellows in 1x20 wonder if you got your fingers caught in the coke machine trying to get the last drop. ... Charlie Spice was really embarrassed about the unexpected gift he found in his drawer. ... Robert Moberly is enjoying his new Lo Boy TV. ... Hazel Niswonger is on the sick list. ... We extend our sympathy to Ed Hines in the death of his sister; Sammy Warren whose father-in-law died; Glen Gudakunst whose father died; and to Evelyn Grawcock in the death of her 10-month-old granddaughter. ... Paul Arnold was playing so rough he got it in the back and couldn't make it to work. ... Two days before Julius Zumburg got his new car he ran his old one into a post. His wife says she is going to drive the new one. ... It was a funny sight to see Ivan Parrish's feet in the air when his chair slipped out from under him. ... Several people are going on their vacation next week. Al Erwin is going to Florida; Margaret Fuelling, Veva Healy, Hazel Stauffer, Alice Pfluger, Viola Donahue, and Maggie Bopp are all taking their vacations, too.

Scores of 200 are Tom Anderson, 208 and 203; Jim Carey, 214; Ross Smith, 209, and Herb Langer, 201.

Monday Office

The wood used Monday night sure must have been flat on the bottom and loaded with lead, only one double century score—a 201 count by Charlie Fisher. M and G Sales are out in front with a record of 20 wins and 16 losses. Reproductions have won 25 and lost 17 for second spot. Transformers are in third place with 24 wins and 18 losses.

DECATUR

Men's Factory League

The Shafts, who have been the doormat for the other teams all season, suddenly fired up and won all three from the fourth place Office No. 2 (17½-21½). The Shafts stepped up to a tie for fifth and sixth with 14 wins and 25 losses.

Office No. 1 (21-18) nosed out the Rotors (14-25) for two wins, as George Laurent rolled a 641 (202-219-220) and Bill Porter came up with a 209 and 201. For the Rotors Will Steele rolled a 222, his first 200 score, and Pat Briede had a 212 game.

The second place Stators (23½-15½) crept a little closer to the league leading Flanges with two wins. The Flanges now have 27 wins and 12 losses. Paul Briede's 214-201 and Gary Schultz's 222 were best for the Stators, while Milt Hoffman's 204 and Seph Jackson's 209 led the Flanges.

GE Fraternal

Oran Schultz came up with the top series in the league, rolling a nice 645 (207-226-212); his teammate, Mandy Zelt, had a 609 (225-202-182), however their West End Restaurant (18-24) dropped to sixth place by losing two to second place Teeple Truck Lines (24½-17½). Ev Faulkner contributed a 613 (208-205-200) for the truckers.

Riverview Gardens (26-16) regained the lead by taking all three games from last place GE Cluh (15-27).

Peterson Elevator (24½-17½) gained a tie for second place by topping last week's leaders, Monroeville Lumber (24-18) for three games, and dropping the lumbermen to fourth place. Al Buuck's 606 (191-193-222) led the winners; while Dale House had a 605 (204-201-200) for the losers.

K. of C. (20-22) jumped a notch to fifth place by taking all three from the Elks who are in seventh with 16-26. Lee Ulman's 610 (215-191-204) was best for K. of C.

Scores of 200: Baumgartner 210-214; Werling, 209; Leo Hoffman, 218; Reinking, 213; Check Cook, 201; Murphy, 205; Wolpert, 205; Custer, 207; Macklin, 224; D. Gage, 203; J. Beery, 233; Appelman, 225.

Women's League

The last place Spares (10½-25½) worked up enough steam to win one game (by 2 pins) from those ever leading High Spots (27½-8½). Kleinhenz's 199 was tops for the High Spots and Babcock's 181 was top score for the Spares.

The Office (16-20) stole two games from the Last Frames (18-18). M. Miller had three good games of 179-185-190 for the Office and Briede had a 169 for the Last Frames.

Owls Swamp FOP 56 to 19

by Howard Colby

With Coach Benny Penkul back at the helm, the Owls won their fourth straight game last Thursday morning by downing a game, but out-classed, F. O. P. squad, 56 to 19.

GE took a 10 to 6 lead in the first quarter on two baskets by Harold Somers, a basket and free throw each by John Anspach and Spice. Butts and Minnich scored the six points for F. O. P. Incidentally, these two boys accounted for the Cops entire 19 points.

In the second period, Spice hit two more field goals, Etter a field goal and a free throw, and Carl Wilson two free throws for nine points, while holding F. O. P. to three points for a half-time lead of 19 to 9.

The pace quickened in the third quarter as Gene Etter connected on three fielders and a free throw, John Anspach, a fielder and free throw, Markey and Wilson, a field goal each with White chipping in a charity toss, as F. O. P. hit for five points, giving GE a 34 to 14 lead going into the final period.

GE kept rolling in the final eight minutes with Wilson scoring eight points, Spice and White four each, a basket apiece by Markey and Al Anspach, with Etter dumping a charity toss, while F. O. P. were again held to five points to wind up the affair 56 to 19 with GE on the long end of the score.

Indiana Rod beat out Zollner 45 to 37 and Salisbury took Eckrich 40 to 28 to complete the morning round.

BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

To all intents and purposes the first half is history. The title game between the two league giants lived up to advance notices. The Apprentice School lads are the first half champs. The final score of 44 to 43 pretty much tells the story.

Les Fanning started the scoring by canning the second of a one and one attempt at the free throw line. Ken Frankenstein wiped out the lead with a fielder, but was countered by a bucket pitched in by Young of the Apprentice at the four minute mark. Sloan added to the lead with a side shot to make it 5 to 2. Walley chipped in a free throw for the Squares only to have Sloan dunk another fielder for 7 to 3. Carl and Doepke traded a pair of charity heaves to make it 9 to 5 at the quarter post.

After Young added to the Apprentice lead with a fielder the Squares picked up six straight points to tie the score at 11. Frankenstein made three; Carl, two, and Borah, one to turn the trick with three and a half to go. Spiker put the School boys in the lead again with a drive-in shot. Two free throws by Carl knotted the count again at 13. Doepke, Pinkerton and Linnemeier canned two pointers and at two minutes to go, the score was 19 to 13 Apprentice. Carl, the Squares' stalwart, dumped one in from the outside for 19 to 15. Doepke was fouled and made one. Soder scored a bucket underneath the hoop, but was countered at the horn by a side shot made by expectant papa Pinkerton. The intermission score was 22 to 17 in favor of the Apprentice School.

The Squares picked up three, one by Frankenstein and two by Soder in the third stanza before Big Les Fanning clipped one underneath for a 24 to 20 School lead. Here Carl took charge and made two buckets stick to tie the score at 24. Krigbaum put the Squares ahead with a fielder, but was quickly countered by a Fanning basket. Three free throws, one by Spiker and two by Doepke, put the Apprentice ahead 29 to 26. Carl flipped in two charity heaves to narrow the margin, but Doepke and Fanning made the lead secure with a pair of fielders at the end of the quarter, 33 to 28 Apprentice.

Ron Young added two as the final session began. Carl (that man again) made two free throws but Fanning got them back with a jump shot for a seven point lead 37 to 30. Baskets by Miller and Krigbaum and a pair of free heaves by Carl again narrowed the gap to one point with four minutes to go. Fanning canned a free throw and baskets by Doepke and Fanning put them ahead six points again with two and a half to go. Frankenstein made two free throws good, Fanning and Carl traded points at a minute to go. With a minute left Frankenstein slipped in from the side and laid one in to cut the Apprentice lead to two points, 43 to 41. Ron Young added a free throw at 40 seconds left. At this point Frankenstein was fouled and failed to cash in on either free throw. Two more charity tosses by Carl failed to pick up the necessary points and the Apprentice walked off the floor first half champions.

The School lads came off the better in the field goal statistics in canning 17 of 47 while the Squares were content with 12 for 49. At the 15-foot stripe the Apprentice made 10 for 22. The Squares 20 for 35. Of that number Gil Carl canned 13 for 17 and he also was high scorer for the game with 21 points. Les Fanning led the winners with 13 tallies.

GE Directors Elect Three To VP Posts

Election of three General Electric Company vice presidents by the Board of Directors was announced in New York Dec. 22 by GE President Ralph J. Cordiner.

The new vice presidents are Francis K. McCune, general manager of the Atomic Products Division, Schenectady, N. Y., Robert L. Gibson, general manager of the company's Chemical and Metallurgical Division, Pittsfield, Mass., and Willard H. Sahloff, general manager of the Small Appliance Division, Bridgeport, Conn.

Mr. McCune, top executive for the company's far-flung atomic energy activities, is a native of Santa Barbara, Calif. He was graduated from the University of California and joined General Electric in 1928, at Schenectady. Since then he has served in executive posts with various divisions of the company. In 1953, he was named general manager of the Atomic Products Division at Schenectady. In this post he is responsible for a vast coast-to-coast 11,000-man organization which includes the Hanford Atomic Products Division at Richland, Wash., the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory at Schenectady, N. Y., now building an atomic submarine power plant, and the Aircraft Nuclear Propulsion Department at Evendale, Ohio, now engaged in developing atomic engines for aircraft. The GE official is also charged with coordinating the company's activities in the nuclear CHRISTMAS CUTIES—Pamela, three-year-old daughter of Mary Odom, Bldg. 26-4, and Bobby, two-year-old son of Bill Rutledge, Bldg. 4-6, try to keep themselves busy while waiting for that important visit from St. Nick and his reindeer tomorrow night.

A Christmas Editorial

The Light No Curtain Can Hide

In a few hours, a special star will light the Eastern heavens. Wise men will see it and pray. Strong men will see it and wonder. Humble men will see it and hope.

For this is the star of all stars; the light of all light. This is the Star of Faith that has warmed the hearts of peaceful men and seared the souls of tyrants for nearly two thousand years.

There have been times when willful men have dedicated their lives to the extinction of this star and all that it speaks. They have succeeded, at times, for a few years—or even a few centuries. Jealous of the homage paid to the King of Kings, they have punished men who dared to hope and silenced men who dared to speak. In their greed, their lust, their fear of peace and brotherhood, they have drawn curtains around whole races of people—curtains of stone, of iron, of bamboo—seeking to shut out the light of the Star of Faith.

But the light that shines into the hearts of men still shines too high for treacherous men to reach. Sooner or later, the star that heralds again the birth of our Prince of Peace will shine for all men. For this is the star no curtain can hide, nor dictator destroy.

M&G Folks Receive NSC Merit Award

The National Safety Council's Award of Merit was presented to employees of the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department last week. The award recognizes the achievement of Fort Wayne and Erie M&G employees in working one million man hours without a lost-time accident.

Presentation of the plaque given with the award took place at a meeting of safety committee representatives and their foremen and supervisors. Oscar L. Dunn, general manager, and Cloyce S. Peden, safety specialist, accepted the plaque on behalf of all employees. Representing the NSC, G. Parker Gee, supervisor of safety engineering, O'Rourke Insurance Co., made the presentation and extended congratulations to employees for their achievement.

Employees at the department's two locations worked from April 26 through November 3 this year to achieve one million man hours without a lost-time accident.

This marks the first time that the department has received such an award. In 1951, the Award of Merit was presented the winding section in Bldg. 19-2, 19-3 of the department.

In accepting the award for his department, General Manager Dunn extended his congratulations to all DC Motor and Generator employees for achieving this record, which signifies that all employees have been on guard against injury to themselves and their co-workers.

Squares Reveal Plans for Annual New Year's Dance

The GE Squares will hold their annual New Year's Eve Dance in the ballroom of the Van Orman Hotel Dec. 31 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tickets will be $3.75 per couple and may be obtained from contact men.

Members may bring non-member guests, but since the number of tickets available is limited, members are urged to get their tickets early.

Group table reservations may be made by calling Irv Cirks, Ext. 614. Dress is optional, either semi-formal or formal. Dancing will be to the music of Bob Wiebke's orchestra. Noisemakers, fireproof confetti, hats and favors will be furnished to all attending.

On the committee are Irv Cirks, chairman, Dale Garvey, Guy Bradley, and Jack Amsterdam.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS OF STOCK BONUS PLAN

Employees who have U. S. Savings Bonds purchased in 1949 on deposit under the GE employees Savings and Stock Bonus Plan are urged to deliver their custody receipts together with transmittal form TD-374 to their payroll units before the end of the year. It is important that these receipts and the transmittal form be turned in promptly in order to avoid delay in delivery of bonds purchased in 1949 and of the check for income accumulated on the Stock Bonus due at the end of the holding period.

An employee who cannot locate any of his custody receipts should fill in and sign the statement of loss form on the reverse side of the transmittal form TD-374. If a co-owner is named in the bonds, that person should also sign the statement of loss. The form should then be delivered to the payroll unit.

Christmas is for Everyone

The family gathered around a glowing Yule log. Friends singing carols around a star-studded tree. Stockings on the hearth. A roast in the oven. Bells ringing from steeples and sleighs in every corner of the world. We've borrowed so many customs from other lands in building our own Christmas traditions that some folks may say there's nothing strictly American about Christmas. But there is a comfort and quiet in our celebrations that less-fortunate families elsewhere must look upon as something straight from a sugar-plum dream.

The small boy building skyscrapers from alphabet blocks. His little sister teaching "Silent Night" to a classroom full of dolls. Dad resting with the new pipe and a fine book of sporting prints he'd never buy for himself. And Mom, who never seems to rest, trying out the new vacuum cleaner on the tattered remnants of once-regal Christmas wrappings.

Having so much ourselves, we might easily forget the humble beginnings of Christmas in a Bethlehem stable. Living in a land where peace, brotherhood, and freedom are year-round experiences, we might casually accept these priceless gifts as something intended for us alone. But we dare not—so long as any of our world neighbors live in fear, privation, or despair. Counting our blessings at Christmas time, we should find time to pray:

May God in his goodness help us all, during the New Year, to share our peace on earth with all men of good will—wherever Bethlehem's star shines this Christmas Eve.

Christmas, Brings Out Our Best

It is always around about Christmas,
That I weigh all the things I have done;
It is then that I check with my conscience,
To see if I've harmed any one.

This doesn't mean checking my conscience
Should be done only once in the year.
But it never seems quite so important
As it does, when Christ's birthday draws near.

"Twould be better I know, if my conscience
Were cleared at the close of each day,
For there's no time like when I'm retiring
To take just one minute to pray.

But at times, and I hope God forgives me,
I thoughtlessly drop off to sleep,
With something I have on my conscience—
Some thought, I'd prefer not to keep.

So I say to myself, "Just forget it,
It's done, so that's all there is to it."
That may be the answer for some folks,
But for me, well I simply can't do it.

I may hide it away in my conscience,
But forget it, I can't seem to do.
So that's why around about Christmas,
I may do something special for you.

Now I don't mean that giving a present
Can correct something wrong I have done;
One can't buy forgiveness with presents,
A gift won't forgive any one.

I mean, when I say something special,
Some thing I sincerely may do;
It may be no more than a handshake,
But one that means something to you.

So much can be found in our actions
To show how sincerely we feel,
Some handshakes are offered politely,
And then there are some that are real.

There is nothing more downright effective,
And nothing so fine or worthwhile
As a handshake that feels like you mean it,
Along with kind words and a smile.

To me Christmas Cards serve a purpose
When sent to the friends we can't see.
But cards from the people I work with Don't seem too important to me.

I'd much rather feel a warm handshake
And hear those best wishes to me,
Than receive among dozens of others,
A card I may not even see.

It seems so pathetically hollow
To buy Christmas thoughts for a dime,
And mail them next door to a neighbor
Instead of just taking the time

To call and extend him in person,
Sincerely, your thoughts for the day.
I may be a little old-fashioned,
But I feel that's a much better way.

Yes, there's something we feel around Christmas,
That brings out the best in a man;
If the birth of our Savior can't do it,
It's doubtful if anything can.

So that's why with Christmas approaching,
I want to weigh all that I've done,
And I hope I don't find in my conscience
Where I've willfully harmed any one.

If I have, then I hope they'll forgive me,
For I'm sure that no present could be
So fine as the gift of forgiveness
For me under my Christmas tree.

So I close with this Christmas suggestion,
Cast all malice and ill will away,
Then with charity, love, and forgiveness,
Enjoy a real Christmas Day.

—W. L. Whonsetler

Christmas Round the World

ENGLAND: At midnight, bells ring throughout the land to announce the arrival of Christmas. In the morning, children help to bring in the great Yule log. This is usually cut the year before so that it may be thoroughly dry before it is used. It is placed in the fireplace and lighted with a piece of the log hurned the previous year, saved for this purpose.

GERMANY: Just before Christmas Eve someone strangely attired calls at each house and inquires if the children have been good. He carries a large bag and a bunch of switches. If the children have been good, he opens a bag and throws nuts about. If a child has not been good, a switch is left to be used in punishing him. This is "Ruprecht." Many children think this is all he does and that the Christ child himself brings their presents.

HOLLAND: The little Dutch children think that St. Nicholas drives a white horse. So they clean their wooden shoes, fill them with oats and hay for the white horse, and in the morning wake to find their shoes filled with candy and toys.

MEXICO: Christmas goodies are packed in gaily decorated bowls of pinata clay. The bowls are hung in the center of the room and broken with a stick to release the contents. The sweets are shared by all the guests.

FRANCE: Santa Claus is called Pere Noel, which means Father Christmas. He visits each home and rewards good children. Ruprecht, who carries switches for children, comes with Noel. Only the children receive presents. They place their shoes in one corner of the room, and in them Noel leaves their gifts.

SWEDEN: Swedish birds are made happy, too, during the holiday season. They are given a Christmas tree of their own, made from a sheaf of wheat mounted on a tiny evergreen tree.

ITALY: Saint Befano, The Good Fairy of Italian children leaves their toys in the "Urn of Fate" on the Eve of Epiphany. Naughty children find only ashes on Christmas morning.

The Christmas Story

Now it came to pass in those days, that a decree went forth from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. This first census took place while Cyrinus was governor of Syria. And all were going, each to his own town, to register.

And Joseph also went from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem, being of the family and house of David, to register together with Mary, his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled. And she brought forth her first-born son, wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night. And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone about them and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them,

"Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all people, for today, in the town of David, a Saviour has been born to you who is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign to you, you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying,

"Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

HIS FIRST CHRISTMAS in the United States comes this week for Paul Abey Sabbah, a native of Nigeria, as he celebrates it with one of the persons who helped to bring him here to study, Chauncey K. Tucker, Bldg. 4-3 employee.

True Christmas Spirit Found In Kind Hearts of GE Couple

With the pealing of Christmas bells heralding in good will to all men, comes a Christmas story in our own midst.

Twenty-two years ago in the far-off land of Nigeria, a baby was left in a hut without father or mother, or any relative. An American missionary took him to her care.

Along with others of his fellow men, he learned to celebrate the Christian Christmas which his own people, who were Mohammedan, did not observe. He and the others in the missionary camp were happy at this season with their simple gifts given them in tin cans, which were a special treat.

When the boy became old enough, he left the place of his birth and traveled to Liberia and went to school there. The missionary and her husband had since returned to the United States and had been considering the possibility of bringing the boy to the United States where he could go to school. They could not do this alone; and so a couple was sent them, who through the kindness of their hearts, co-sponsored the boy. After much difficulty, the boy arrived in this country. Now his hope is to enter the Fort Wayne Bible College and with the education received there to return to his people, practicing the brotherhood of men which he experienced.

The couple who co-sponsored this boy are Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey K. Tucker. Mr. Tucker works in Bldg. 4-3. The boy is a young man whose name is Paul Abey Sabbah. The missionaries are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Prentice.

Assures Abey of Home

As an assurance of their good intention and to prove that they would not abandon the young man once he was here, the Tuckers had to sign an affidavit assuring that their home would be open to the young man at all times.

Abey, as the young man likes to be called, makes his home with the Tuckers. He hopes to enter the Bible College in January. For the shy, friendly young man with a pleasant smile, it is a far different world from the one he left. In Liberia, he attended the Booker T. Washington School where he studied agriculture. Transportation there, as well as in his homeland, is by foot. One of the amazing sights here in Abey's eyes is the number of automobiles. He asks, wonderingly, "Why are so many cars necessary?"

Another amazing item is the quantity of food. He is stunned every time he accompanies the Tuckers on a shopping trip through a supermarket.

Prepares for Trip

Preparations for his trip to the U. S. are a story of difficulty in getting the necessary papers and proper signatures. A short time before his ship left Liberia, he had to walk over a mile in the rain to get a final paper signed. The procedure is not as swift as in this country.

When his ship, The African Glade, a cargo vessel, docked in New York harbor, he was met by Mr. and Mrs. Prentice. They took him to get a suit of clothes and went on to a meeting that same day at which Abey was a speaker. Since then, he has addressed about a dozen church and civic groups relating his story.

For Mr. and Mrs. Tucker it is not a new experience to aid young people. In addition to their five children, they have helped raise others with no families. Mr. Tucker is also pastor of God's Gospel Tabernacle, which is interdenominational and is in Bluffton.

For Abey and everyone in the Tucker household, this will be a joyous Christmas with good will to all.

GE Theater Stars Barry Fitzgerald In 'White Steed'

When TV viewers see "The White Steed" on "General Electric Theater" Sunday, Dec. 26, at 9 p.m. over Station WIN-T, Channel 15, and CBS-TV, it will mark the first time that the famed Broadway hit by Paul Vincent Carroll has been adapted for television.

Barry Fitzgerald, who won an Academy Award for his memorable performance in "Going My Way" with Bing Crosby, is seen in his original role of Canon Matt Lavelle.

And Dan O'Herlihy, whose unique portrayal in the title role of the new film, "Robinson Crusoe," has won him overnight fame, appears in the story as Father Shaughnessy, the crusading young priest whose over-zealous soul-saving campaign almost wrecks a parish.

The young priest takes over a parish from Canon Matt Lavelle, crippled with paralysis, and proceeds to start a personal campaign to clean up what he considers moral and spiritual laxity. When he starts indiscriminately to censor books, and orders a defiant librarian, Nora Fintry, out of town,

BIG FOUR of the Supervisors Club are the officers who were elected last week. They are, seated (l-r): Bret R. Young, Bldg. 26-2, president, and Wallace E. Beer, Bldg. 18-1, vice president. Standing (l-r): Wilbur K. Boltz, Bldg. 4-6, secretary, and B. L. Shuler, Bldg. 4-4, treasurer.

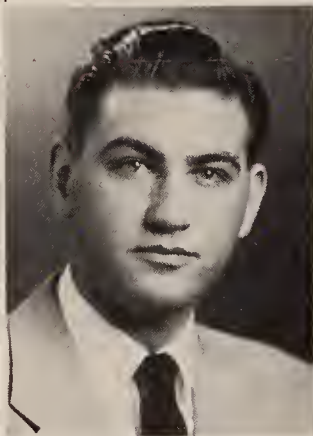

the Canon prays for enough strength to save the girl, as well as his own beloved town. He regains his ability to walk just in time to forestall a book burning which Father Shaughnessy's aggressiveness had instigated.

Sallie Brophy, lovely young newcomer, appears in the leading feminine assignment. She is presently playing Wendy in "Peter Pan," the musical production of the Barrie play starring Mary Martin, now on Broadway.

Dennis King, Jr., Kathryn Card, Nora Marlowe, Anne O'Neal and Tom Dillon share the other important roles in the play.

Three Apprentices Complete Course

Jerome W. Gibson

Carl W. McCartney

Thomas E. McCrea

Three graduates of the Apprentice School machinist-toolmaker course were announced today by Richard Gebert, supervisor of the school. They are Carl W. McCartney, Thomas E. McCrea, and Jerome W. Gibson.

McCartney came to the company May 14, 1951 and entered the school then. He graduated from Elmhurst High School in May, 1951. Mr. and Mrs. McCartney reside at 7515 Bluffton Rd.

September 4, 1951 McCrea joined GE and the Apprentice School. He is a May, 1951 graduate of Huntertown High School. The McCreas and their daughter reside at 1711 LaVerne Ave.

Jerome W. Gibson was graduated from the Apprentice School today, according to an announcement by Richard Gebert, supervisor of the school.

Mr. Gibson entered the school when he joined the company July, 1951. He graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course. He is a June, 1950, graduate of Central Catholic High School.

Y., Laminated and Insulating Products at Coshocton, O., the Plastics Department and the Chemical Materials Department, both at Pittsfield. A native of Washington, D. C., Mr. Gibson joined General Electric at Schenectady in 1925, following graduation from Park College, Mo. He served in several publicity posts until 1945 when he was named advertising and sales promotion manager of the Chemical Department in 1948. He was appointed manager of the Plastics Division and in 1951 became general manager of the Chemical Division. When the Chemical and Metallurgical Division was formed in July of this year from the former Chemical Division and the Carbonyl Department, Mr. Gibson was named general manager.

Mr. Sahloff, general manager of the Small Appliance Division since April 1953, is a native of Kingston, N. Y., and a graduate of Rutgers University. He joined General Electric in January 1950, as general manager of the Radio and Television Department at Syracuse, following years of experience in the merchandising field. Mr. Sahloff served as advertising manager of the Perth Amboy, N. J., Evening News from 1930 to 1933 and later became a buyer for L. Bamberger & Company, Newark, N. J., specializing in housewares and appliances. In 1940, he joined Montgomery Ward in Chicago as a division manager. He served in executive posts there until 1949 when he became president of the National Enameling & Stamping Co.

Aeolian Choir Gives Christmas Program On WKJG-TV Tomorrow

TV viewers are reminded that the Aeolian Choir from the Decatur Plant will be featured in an all-Christmas program tomorrow from 1 to 2 p.m. over WKJG-TV. They will appear as guests of Charlie Powell on the "Here's Charlie" program.

Director David Embler has selected a program of familiar Christmas music for the performance.

The following lucky persons, Oscar Martin, John Hoelle, Carl Bohde, George Santon and Clyde Ensen will be enjoying their third weeks' vacation during the holidays. . . . If you want to get a whiff of delicious beef pot pie, just go near the test office. George Prince prepares his lunch via the oven on the floor. Smelling all that good food surely gives a person an appetite. . . . When it comes to decorating Christmas trees, Margie Messer and Charlie Fisher have a certain knack that beats all others. The one they have in their office is a fine example. It's "gorgeous." . . . If Art Braun wants to get some extra work from John Hoelle, all Art has to do is feed John pickled herring. . . . As far as GE was concerned, Charlie Waltemath didn't work the week before last. Anyway, when Charlie opened his blue envelope that Friday morning, his check was a blank. After a talk with payroll, things looked a little brighter for our Charlie. . . . It's time to wish you a Merry Christmas, and I mean it from the bottom of my little ole' heart. . . . Harry Rife is home from the hospital, and is doing fine. . . . Beverly Chrysler has finally admitted to being the "dirty bird" that George Gobel always talks about. . . . Wally Chinworth says that his tender nose can't stand the smudge pots and ropes that Eugene Biberstine and John Wolf are burning. . . . Last week Charley Thompson went strutting into the cafeteria and had his coffee. When time came to pay, well you know the rest. He forgot his money. He thought for a while that he was going to do dishes.

SICK LIST

The following employees have been reported on the sick list, and dismissed from the hospital:

Sick List

Marguerite Kohr, Ernest Gerardot, Hobart Friend, Walter G. Rindchen, William Zierolf, Melvin Tulley, Mabel Cook, Hubert Sherlock, Paul Arnold, Mary Linkhart, Mildred Greene, Hazel Niswonger, L. Orr, Charles Sessler, Louis F. Witte, and Elizabeth Baker.

Dismissed from Hospital

Myrl Cornelius, Mary Hake, Merlin Gromeaux, Dallas Smith, George Barker, Ernest Gerardot, Harry Rife, Ruth Fields, William Stute, and Charles Dunifon.

AT PRESENTATION of safety award to DC Motor and Generator employees were (l-r): Walter J. Freehill, Harold W. Patterson, Joseph Sweeney, G. Parker Gee, who represents the National Safety Council; Clarence J. Nichter, Willis B. Noll, Clayton R. Dafforn, John C. Donovan, General Manager Oscar L. Dunn, Albert Johnson, Fred Lahrman, and David P. Kelker.

Maurice Weiner is our most recent TE, assigned to Mr. Whearley's group. Maurice hails from New York City and holds an ME degree from New York University. . . . GPM Sales girls enjoyed their annual Christmas party. Even though there were 13 girls on Dec. 13, everything went off as scheduled with Santa, turkey, and all the trimmings. . . . Steve Miles' 29-months-old daughter, Sarah Lee, who recently had a serious eye operation, was very much surprised when her bandages were removed to find that Santa Claus had left her Christmas tree. . . . Don Fry, Mr. Robertson's section, is the newly-elected president of the Technical Program Club. . . . Joe Hartman has tickets for the Rose Bowl Game—what a wonderful way to start the New Year. . . . Ernest A. Roman from Lynn, Mass., is on assignment in the Employee Relations section. He is a graduate of Lowell Institute. . . . Daylight Savings Time appears to be a bit too economical for Marcile Oetting. On one of those really dark mornings she arrived at work only to discover that in the "darkest before the dawn" period, she had gotten her blouse on wrong side out. . . . Merry Christmas to all!

FROM 26-TOO

by C. A. Krasienko

Correction: Bill Rectanus is the senior bachelor in Engineering, sorry, Bill. Explanation: Bldg. 26-2 columns were written by Norma Arnold and Georgia (Laurent) Doyle in recent years. My reference to a 1949 column pertained to one written by me. Well, anyway, it's good to know that someone is reading this column in spite of the errors. . . . Due to the large number of entries in the "Name this Column Contest," the judges decided to give all entrants two free tickets to the next Fall Revue. Winners please show GE Club Cards to Bob Glenn next Fall. . . . Ray Anderson, Engineering, is taking on two new jobs next year—he's getting married in January and he's leaving the department Feb. 1 for a one-year training period in the General Engineering Lab at Schenectady. . . . Here it is Christmas season again. We're reminded of it by the ever-increasing commercial enterprises. The mad rush of shoppers; the influx of Santas by helicopter, train, and car; the flood of flimsy toys; the rush to solicit Christmas savings clubs for next year; the idle talk of Christmas shopping to be done. These are all signs that modern Christmas is here. Fortunately, there are enough old-timers around who still remember what Christmas really stands for. It's the season of joy and happiness, of humble appreciation, of helping the needy, and of keeping Christ in Christmas. May you all have the happiest and fullest of holiday seasons and may your Christmas be one of the old-fashioned kind. At this writing, Santa brought the Krasienkos a 9 pound 5 ounce girl who also extends her sincerest wishes to all for a fruitful Holiday Season.

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

Some say there is no Santa,
But this cannot be true,
For in one way or another,
He always comes to you.

He might come in the summer
Winter, Spring or Fall,
And maybe not on your Christmas tree,
Or be toys or a ball.

But Christmas is the time of year,
When Santa seems to say,
"Be thankful everybody,
On this our King's birthday."

So, I'll wish a Merry Christmas
To everyone on this floor,
And a very Happy New Year
And blessings by the score.

—Mary Wright.

Yesterday noon the Elex girls from our floor had a farewell party for Irene Meyers. Now you can bake a cake with that new mixer. We are sorry to see you go, but do wish you lots of luck in your new work. . . . Jess Hahn recently attended a Supervisors of Training Institute at Notre Dame. He is just sure that the South Bend Chinese do not understand the English language. He took his laundry to a Chinese laundry and specified how he wanted his shirts starched. When he got the laundry back, his shirts were not starched at all and his shorts were starched stiff as a board. He could have gone to sleep standing up and not been worried about toppling over. His shorts would have kept him in an upright position. . . . The welcome mat is out for Ralph Reed, the new foreman on Line 4. He comes from Boston, Mass. . . . We light another candle on the cake and wish a happy birthday to Eva Fisher, Luella Masson, Millie Stoffey, Hugh Tigges and Bill Schrieber. . . . Belated greetings to Stella Kampf. . . . The Bill Martins will celebrate Christmas by driving a new Ford. . . . Pauline Kirchner is on vacation this week. . . . Violet Brower will vacation next week. . . . Fern Smith has been very busy making tiny garments, but not too busy to write an article that was accepted by Reader's Digest. . . . Congratulations to Lucy Alexander on her 32nd wedding anniversary. . . . Mildred McKonkey was almost to the end of Main St. when she asked the conductor if she was on a West Main St. bus. . . . Luella Knoche entertained some of the girls with a Christmas party. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Louie Wyss, who is on the sick list. Our sincere sympathy to Viola Jacobs on the loss of her sister.

"Glory be to God in the highest and Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will."

To have a Happy and Merry Christmas, man must have real love and peace in his heart, which comes only from Him who is all Love and the Prince of Peace. Our most sincere wish to you and yours is to have a very Happy and Merry Christmas. Attend the church of your choice and with a prayer on your lips, ask Him to make you love Him as He loves you. "My Lord and my God, I love Thee, and adore all things and for the love of Thee I love my neighbor as myself. Grant that I may love Thee more and more, and give me the grace of final perseverance that I may live a happy life, die a happy death, and glorify Thee eternally in heaven."

MERRY CHRISTMAS! GOD
LOVE YOU, ONE AND ALL.

TALES from TAYLOR SECTION 113 TAYLOR ST.

by Harry Parker

On this His day of birth, the whole Christian world prostrates itself in adoration around the crib of Bethlehem and rehearse in accents of love, a history which precedes all time and will endure throughout eternity. So let us prepare our hearts for the coming of the Saviour that His spirit may reign in our lives. He came that we might live, and live more abundantly. Let us also remember that if Christmas is to retain its radiance, we must think, not of what we receive, but what we give. Let us express our gratitude by thinking of those who still need to be helped in material ways. To be sure we cannot give to each one personally, but we can do it through our church. Surely if we have shared with others, the Christmas stars will shine brighter, the Christmas songs sound sweeter, and a spirit of peace and good will toward all men will fill our hearts.

Bill Crain is enjoying Christmas shopping for his little son. He was looking at cowboy hats all ready. Do they make them small enough, Bill? . . . Marie DeVaux has been sewing in her spare time. She made doll clothes for her granddaughter. They sure were cute, Marie. . . . We neglected to mention in the last issue that Mal Lawrence, Bldg. 6-3 Office trainee, will play the part of an elf, helping Santa Claus distribute gifts at the "Hermitage." . . . Thanks to Don Greenler for purchasing a tree for Bldg. 6-3 office and to Marie Kable and Carolyn Warpup for their artistic touch in decorating same. . . . Les Hubartt is enjoying his third week's vacation. . . . Roxie Murray will enjoy her Christmas holidays in Florida visiting her in-laws. . . . Joe Adams went hunting last Saturday to get meat for the Christmas feast but all he came home with was a cigarette lighter he found while looking for rabbits. . . . I hear little Pondo was at the Christmas party with his family. Are congratulations in order, Pondo? . . . Harold Dalman started his third week's vacation last Friday. He was going to Jonesboro, Ark., first to visit some of our former co-workers, namely Ralph Hare, Marv Hamilton, and Harry Crouse. Then he is going on down to the sunny states of Florida and Texas. . . . Andy Anderson started his third week's vacation Monday. He is hoping it gets cold so he can do a lot of ice fishing. . . . From all of us to all of you a very Merry Christmas and a special Merry Christmas to the folks who are off on sick leave from our floor. Herb Bender, Marge DeArmond, Ed Woodward, Deloris Soderquist, Tillie Norris, Marie Bruggentate, Eva Shaffer, Virginia Curtin, Charles Arnett, and Ralph Jones.

Bldg. 4-2 News

DEAR SANTA:

Marguerite, Bernice, and Ruth
Would like a diamond ring.
Maybe they'll be a wedding
Early in the spring.

Sheets wants a pipe.
Tracy, a Station hat,
Everett wants a Buick,
What do you think of that?

Perhaps a string of pearls
Would make Joan happy.
Bring a breakfast set
For Fern and her pappy.

Doctor, Charlie, and Cliff
Seem to be good guys.
They might need a shirt,
But listen, no neckties.

Don't forget Elizabeth,
She'd like a scarf and tam,
A pen for Glusenkamp
And something nice for Sam.

Floyd, Harry, and Louie
Are still just little boys,
Sure would be a lot of fun,
To fill their sock with toys.

Remember Harry and Ott
They're sure been fine and dandy.
No doubt Mary and Alma
Would enjoy a box of candy.

As for the other folks,
Don't forget to say,
Good health and happiness,
On this Christmas Day.

—Floyd Enos.

A Treat, A Trick, Old St. Nick Highlight Kiddies Party

SHOW STEALER—Paul Gebert and Mary Dahn talk with an old friend at the GE Club party for employees' children. As always, St. Nick stole the show from the professional acts.

TREAT LINE-UP—All children of employees less than 12 years old received treats at the show. The entertainment committee packaged treats for more than 4,100 children.

SOMETHING NEW for two-year-old Gary Crecelius, son of Bob Crecelius, was his introduction to Mr. S. Claus. He's pleased to meet him (he thinks).

AN OLD-FASHIONED TREE holds the attention of Galen Yordy, being held up for a closer look by his father, Elmer Yordy. With them are Gwen Yordy (in checked coat) and a friend, Mary Ann Harper.

AUDIENCE REACTION—Thomas Heidenreich, Don Bailey, and Bob Mettler were caught by the photographer during a moment of suspense in the show.

SORCERER'S APPRENTICE — Terry Dougherty takes part in one of the five shows as he assists Danny O'Day with one of his feats of magic.

A CHRISTMAS POEM

May this Christmas season bring to you
A stocking filled with cheer,
And happiness and the best of health,
And be with you all the year.

May all your joys be great,
And all your sorrows few,
Just keep the Christmas spirit,
Alive the whole year through.
Merry Christmas to one and all.

TIPS and QUIPS BLDG. 31-1

by Don Shultz

George Momper stopped at my desk the other day. As he explained the reason for his visit, he kept glancing at his desk. Noting our questioning look, he explained, "I am expecting an outside call. I brought my wife into Fort Wayne with me this morning and left her downtown. When I arrived at work, I discovered her purse in my pocket; don't know how it got there. Anyway, she is somewhere downtown without a cent of money." In our sympathetic manner, we explained that perhaps he was so money conscious that he grabbed anything which looked like it might contain a dollar. Later we learned that Mrs. Momper found a free phone and made arrangements for the return of her property, thus ending George's hoarding for the day. . . . Congratulations to the new father, Gene Whitacre, a former co-worker here, became the "proud poppa" of a baby girl Saturday, Dec. 11. . . . I guess some people can stop traffic. At least LaVerne Thompson can. The other evening while motoring home, her car stopped without warning. After several attempts to start the engine failed, she decided she was out of gas. In the end she had to have her car towed into the garage. The reason: Too much water, not enough gas. . . . Happy vacation to Esther Dalman, Ruth Schafenacker, Mike Sorgan, and George Murray. . . . We have received many compliments and words of approval concerning our new column which replaces "Motor-Generator Static." This is your column and its success or failure rests entirely with you. My co-worker, Gladys Fox, who has helped write the column, and I, now wish you all a very Merry Christmas. . . . Happy birthday to Bernice Fortman, Mary Ann Walker, Mary Middleton, and Susy Waggoner who celebrate this week.

RACONTEUR SECTION 114 TAYLOR ST.

by Luana Oehlhaften

Christmas is here again, how time flies! Doesn't it seem like you just took last year's tree down? . . . Tomorrow night anxious little eyes will find it hard to stay closed. Parents will be questioned as to whether reindeer can really fly and does Santa really live at the North Pole. . . . Christmas trees will be going up, and probably some glass balls will be broken. Mistletoe will be found all over, in the living room, dining room and maybe even the kitchen. . . . Ah, mistletoe—a wonderful custom. . . . It's really an exciting season with everyone doing that last-minute shopping, receiving Christmas cards and figuring out where to hide Dad's present. . . . Then Christmas Eve takes on a little more meaning. You sit around in front of the fireplace singing carols and then you go to church. You listen to the story of the first Christmas, and it seems more beautiful every time you hear it. On the way home you sort of get a glow, and you thank God that your family and you were born in this country. Christmas morning—the kids are up at 4 a.m. You talk them into going back to bed. By 5 a.m. there's no holding them, so you struggle out of bed and down to the living room. Wasn't it worth getting up that early to see their delighted faces? And Mom is so surprised with the gift she has been hinting for the last six months. Then it's into the kitchen with Mom. She just knows that her dressing will be too dry, but it turns out perfect just like always. . . . Soon friends and relatives start dropping in. The kids get together and mayhem breaks loose. Then it's outdoors to try out the new sleds and skates. . . . Now comes the fun, picking up paper and ribbons, sweeping up the broken lights, etc. You just get set down to rest and WHAM the kids are back in. And you wonder, is it worth it. . . . That night as you climb wearily into bed you know it was worth it, because the kids run in for an extra hug and kiss. . . . The reporters join me in wishing you the merriest Christmas ever.

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

Lucy Cartan has been floating around on clouds this week, with her husband coming home this week-end on leave from the Army. . . . The sparkle in Jerry Coyne's eyes is from her diamond. The wedding date is set for February 19. . . . Marcella Koehn received the most beautiful red roses from her Unit for her birthday, December 19. Everyone in SIM is wishing you many more happy years of success, Marc, along with good wishes and happiness. . . . The factory (second floor) did their little bit in contributing to the Christmas spirit by placing a home-made Santa Claus on the Factory-Office door. . . . The three pretty Christmas trees belong to Marcella Koehn's unit, Payroll and Accounting and Cost are sharing a tree. . . . Familiar faces on new jobs are those of Mary Ann Berghoff and Melrose Bryson. They are taking over the jobs of Pearl Baughman and Jackie Frey, who are leaving us Jan. 7 to anticipate baby-sitting in the spring. . . . Everett Keese is getting all ready for next summer. He has a new fibre glass boat just raring to go. . . . Lucky Ellis Bleke is on his second week vacation in Florida. . . . Ed Sharp is leaving SIM to work at the DeKalb Plant. Ed worked in Plant Engineering. . . . Bob Gross has a new '55 Buick. . . . We're saying good-by to Harriet Haase this Friday as she, too, is just dying to baby sit. . . . We would like to express our sympathy to Jane Cusenberry on the recent loss of her mother. . . . Tom Rockhill visited in the Tool Room last Monday and is really looking good. . . . Retired Carl Speckman visited us also last Tuesday. . . . Ed Ehrman is on vacation this week. . . . Art Hickman is off this week due to sickness.

HERMETICALLY SPEAKING: Lela Line, Agnes Wolfe, Mary Jane Bakle and Jerry Nahrwald have all been on our sick list. . . .

Anne Robinson wants to thank all the girls who bought cookies, in behalf of the White Shrine, for their State School Christmas party. . . . Welcome to the new girls in the Hermetic Room: Leona Hollis, Agnes Shane, Betty Magers, Dotia Jett, Anna Bixler, Mary Rizzo, Mildred Dailey, Ruth Nahrwald, and Margaret Curless. . . . Doty Clinger will be spending Christmas in Muncie. . . . Madonna and Irene want to thank all who contributed toward the Christmas treat offering and those who brought in lights and decorations. . . . Clarene Saylor and Paul Robinson have left us to go back to Broadway.

POLYPHASE LINE: Ruth Denton is the proud owner of a new Ford this week. Santa came a little early. . . . Deane Goshert made an early Christmas visit to her father, who lives at Warsaw on a farm, to make final plans for their annual Christmas dinner. . . . Geneva Harter is entertaining company from Evansville this week. . . . Hugh Reynolds made all the girls jewelry this week. . . . Vivian Curran looks real cute with her new hair-do. . . . Annie Jackson had a nice trip to Cincinnati this last week-end. . . . Mistletoe—What's that? Look out, fellows and girls, remember last year? . . . On behalf of all contributing reporters and myself, we would like to wish everyone the merriest Christmas ever.

SHAFT SHAVINGS BLDG. 19-3

by Sherry Varner

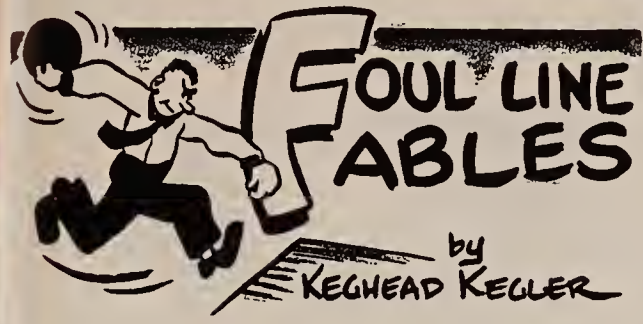

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Hart on the addition of a little girl. She was born Dec. 14 and answers to the name of Gloria Jean. . . . Rudy Rastenburg was ill for a few days, but he only got 150 bushels to the acre. . . . Happy birthday to Frank Kartholl. . . . Paul "Nature Boy" Lichtsin left early Wednesday because he thought that a storm was brewing and his Plymouth wouldn't get home. . . . Frank Enderle was so engrossed in a conversation at noon the other day he didn't remember eating his pie. The question is, was it chocolate, butterscotch, or lemon. . . . Dorothy Whonsetler and Blanche Cowell are in the Christmas spirit by wearing tree ornaments in their ears. . . . MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO EVERYONE.

THE BIG WIND SECTION 417 TAYLOR ST.

Mel Kestner finally got the new car licensed so he can drive it; but now his wife won't let him have it to go hunting. . . . Woody Richardson has acclaimed a new name, "Fluffo, the Frisco Kid." . . . Bill Harrison and Fredia Flaugh both are proud owners of new cars now. . . . Butch Castel should feed his little boy more and then he wouldn't be eating the bathroom fixtures. . . . Harry Kissler was in Missouri on a visit and came back with a bruised cheek. Was it a Missouri mule, Harry? . . . We are sorry to see Loretta Hause leave us for a while but good luck. . . . Laura Krausphaf and Kate O'Connor have joined the TV fans now. . . . Marguerite Stahl went to Chicago Saturday to get her son who is enjoying a 15-day pass from the Army. . . . We wish a speedy recovery to Sarah Reinhardt's mother who is quite ill. . . . We wish to welcome back all the new girls and old ones, too. Hope your stay will be a pleasant one.

Masonic

The inter-division basketball menu for the holiday season is almost as empty as Santa's sack will be the day after Christmas. The second half is scheduled to start Tuesday, Jan. 4. There were two ball games last week that were make-up games. The Firemen, looking better at every outing, Fellowcraft are in a tie for second place, each having won 23 and lost 16. Levels have won 21 while losing 18 which puts them in fourth place.

Ladies' Tuesday Afternoon

Team No. 6 is leading the league with 23 wins and 16 losses. In a tie for second place are teams No. 2 and No. 4, each having won 21 and lost 18. Team No. 3 is in fourth place with a record of 18 wins and 21 losses. M. Nute has the high single game, a 203 score, and J. Gladioux has kegled a 514 series for high in the league. M. Bischoff carries the high league average, a 144.

Small Motor

Unlucky 113 kegled into top spot in the Small Motor league with a record of 26 wins and 16 losses. Drafting dropped to second place with 24½ wins and 17½ losses. Tommy's Tavern is in third place, 24 wins and 18 losses. Chicken winners were H. Fletter, D. Sheets, D. Gordon, P. Merkert, E. Schaefer, G. Cowan.

Saturday Morning Owl

Alfred DeGregory, Jess Hulwick, R. Junk rolled the most pins over their averages and won the chickens in the Saturday morning Owl league which were donated by the GE Club. Team No. 1 dropped three games but still continues to lead the league with a record of 24 wins and 15 losses. In second place, just one game behind, is team No. 3 with 23 wins and 16 losses. Team No. 5 is in third place with 20½ wins and 18½ losses.

Mixed Doubles

Now is the time to get your entry in for the mixed doubles tournament to be held Jan. 8, 1955. Squads will roll at 6 and 8:30 p.m. Cost is only $4.25 per couple.

Suppose you could have reigned as king.
But chose to give your life?
Could you look down on mortal man
With all his toils and strife,
And say, "Yes, it was worth it;
My blessed children have a life that is redeeming—
A life I'm glad to give."
The thought oft leaves me wroth.
For I know that I am far
From the ideals that were born

But still I keep on striving
For the Savior up above.
How magnificent and wonderful,

GE Owls Win
Fifth Straight

by Howard Colby

GE ran their string to five last Thursday morning at the expense of Eckrich, 43 to 25. The Owls took a first quarter lead of 9 to 6 on two baskets and a foul shot by Gene Etter and a basket each by Dickey and White.

Scoring in the second period for GE were Carl Wilson and Warren Dickey who hit two fielders along with a charity toss each, and Ron Blodgett added a field goal to run the Club's half-time score to 21.

Eckrich came back in the third quarter to within four points of GE holding the Owls to three baskets, one each by Blodgett, Etter, and John Anspach to make it 27 to 23.

The Owls pulled away in the final period led by Carl Wilson who hit for five points; Etter and Dickey, four each; Ron Blodgett, two, and Benny Penkel added a free throw, while they held Eckrich to just a pair of free throws, making the final score GE 43, Eckrich 25.

BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

Those lucky chicken winners in the Masonic league were Anderberg with 126 pins over, Rodenberg 76 pins over, Schwartz 48 pins over, Strahlem 57 pins over, Braden 24 pins over, and Jones 61 pins over their averages. Patrols are leading the league with 25 wins and 14 losses, Doris and clobbered the Penthouse Dubs, 74 to 48. The Test Engineers took the measure of the BTC lads in the other encounter, 47 to 33.

"Big Chick" Morkoetter dumped in eight baskets to lead the Firemen while Dick Kipfer picked up 13 for the Dubs.

Kermit Quanbeck, one of the niftiest players in this league, played his last game for the Test Engineers and as per usual led his team in scoring. This time with 19 points. Kerm goes to the Navy in the near future. Dick Farnbaugh picked up 11 for the BTC lads.

Tip Off Stauffer wishes everybody a very Merry Christmas.

Transformer Marketing Announces Appointments of Two Managers

Appointment of two managers in the Specialty Transformer Department has been announced by Joseph P. Coughlin, manager of marketing. David W. Day has been appointed manager of marketing research and product planning. Calvin D. Pease has been appointed manager of marketing administration and promotional planning.

In July, 1952, Mr. Day joined the company and became supervisor of marketing research in the former Specialty Transformer and Ballast Department. Last year he assumed the position of supervisor of marketing research and product planning in Specialty Transformer.

Mr. Day received his BEE degree from the University of Minnesota in 1946. He received his master's degree in marketing in 1948 from the State University of Iowa and in 1951 received his Ph.D in general business from the latter university. He is a member of FWAGEE, the Supervisors Club, GE Squares, and is a Junior Achievement adviser. The Days and their four sons reside at 1018 Northwood Blvd.

When he came to GE in January, 1949, Mr. Pease entered the News Bureau at Schenectady as a technical publicist. The following year he went to the New York sales district as a district advertising and sales promotion specialist. In November, 1951, he came to Fort Wayne and was promotional service supervisor for STAB. He was supervisor of promotional planning in Specialty Transformer prior to his present appointment.

A graduate of Millikin University, Mr. Pease received his BA

November Suggesters Earn $3,804; Klage Big Winner

A total of $3,804 was paid to suggesters in November, according to reports issued by suggestion secretaries. Heading the list was a $500 award paid to Paul Klage, Bldg. 6-3, (GE NEWS, Nov. 26). Klage earned his award for suggesting that a lower tariff rate be applied for on shipments between Fort Wayne and Chicago because of the trucking volume between these two points.

Three high awards from the Specialty Transformer Department also appeared on the list (GE NEWS, Dec. 3). Doyle Miller, Bldg. 26-1, received two awards totaling $490, and Emmet Bobay and Fred Hess shared a joint award of $600. Bobay and Hess work in Bldg. 24.

A Section 114, Taylor St. man, Richard C. Nix, was $295 richer because of his suggestion for an improved method of casting rotors which eliminated air pockets causing waste. His idea effected savings in defective rotors.

Herbert C. Langer, Bldg. 17-2, took home a $255 check for suggesting the elimination of the matrix groove in all rotor repunch dies.

In the Direct Current Motor and Generator Department, John G. Momper, Bldg. 31-1, found that money could be saved by making certain armature flanges from cast iron instead of steel. He was awarded $115 for his suggestion.

Violet Yarnan, Bldg. 26-4, was presented with a $65 suggestion award for suggesting a special tool for notching coil spools, which resulted in labor savings.

The following people earned awards of less than $50 in amount during November:

Everett Ehle, Taylor St., $45; Willard C. Hughes, Bldg. 31-2, $45; Clarence Hartman, Linton

STARTS NEW YEAR RIGHT—Richard C. Nix (center) wound up 1954 with a $295 award for suggesting an improved method of casting rotors. Congratulating him are F. G. Campbell, Neil Allen, Henry Carnall, and Ewald Stinsmuehlen. Nix is employed in Section 114 at Taylor St.

Plant, $44; Roland W. Ross, Section 114 Taylor St., $40; Russell James, Bldg. 26-4, $40; Raymond Farrell, Bldg. 26-1, $30.

Receiving $25 awards were Herman Keller, Milton L. Hoffman, Richard Schafer, Betty Reichert, all of the Decatur Plant, and Harvey Reed, Bldg. 26-1.

There were 128 awards totaling $1,065 which were less than $25.

Blood Donations Top 1953 Total By 499 Pints

GE employees of the three Fort Wayne plants donated 1,270 pints of blood at the Red Cross Regional Blood Center during 1954. The donations were scheduled through the GE Blood Donor Program. This year's donation is 499 pints greater than the 1953 total.

Employees who are members of the GE program have cards on file with representatives in each of the six departments. Appointments to give blood at the Red Cross Center are made through these representatives. Any employee who is not enrolled in this program and wishes to donate blood should contact the representative in his or her department, who are listed below.

FIRST SUCCESSFUL SUBMERSIBLE MOTOR for gasoline pumps is being shown here to representatives of a west coast pump manufacturer. Announced by the General Purpose Component Motor Department last month, the gasoline lubricated motor has created considerable interest among pump manufacturers. It is the newest addition to GPM's line and is also the first production motor to have an "encapsulated" winding, one completely cased in an epoxy resin. John Carroccio, GPM application engineer (left) explains a feature of the new motor to J. E. Lynch and J. L. Dymas, Johnston Pump Co., Pasadena, Calif., (with badges), while J. J. Kessler and R. D. ## What Do You Do About A Problem?

Say you have a problem. Perhaps it's a simple one like whether or not to buy a new car. Maybe it's a more complicated one in human relationships—a family-problem or trouble with your fellow workers or the boss.

What do you do about such worries? Some people sit by and say to themselves or even to others, "I'll let things take care of themselves." It's smart to remember though that real "things" never take care of themselves. Only fanciful things vanish in thin air. Then too, if we let other people solve our problems, we should not complain about the results. We all know people who seem to be in a constant "stew" about their problems. They spend so much time with petty fears and even talking about their indecisions that they keep themselves constantly keyed up and confused.

Emotionally well-adjusted humans—mentally healthy people, in other words—once they have analyzed problems can come to grips with them and work out their difficulties. If they wonder whether to order a new car, they must explore not only their financial setup, but also the new and used car market and possible design changes. By exercising careful judgment they usually arrive at a sound conclusion. And once the decision is made wisely they dismiss the matter from their minds.

It is often hard to correct difficulties in the area of human relationships. However, there are competent authorities who can help and who should often be consulted by those who are having trouble either at home or at work. The family physician is one of these. A clergyman is another. Should additional help be necessary these individuals can usually recommend a good marriage counselor or domestic relations counselor, a trained social or personnel worker. Supervisors can usually help to solve the difficulties that are concerned with work. The plant physician or plant nurse can help with the solution of health problems.

If you ever have a severe difficulty, don't be afraid to seek competent help. While it is good to talk out your problems with a close friend, it is even better to get the advice of people who have had training in solving such problems.

By making every effort to solve your problems you'll be rewarded with greater satisfaction both at home and on your job. You'll like to get up in the morning and come to work and enjoy going home at night to be with your family.

PICK-UPS from 26-3

by Maxine Jordan

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Gene Bryant. It's a baby girl, named Judy Lynn. . . . When Morris Mastin decides between blonde or mahogany wood, he will buy a TV set. We expect a decision soon. . . . Frank Clifton is using a new kind of powder called "Mexene." Could it be the "Mexene Chili Powder?" . . . Mr. and Mrs. Dale Amstutz celebrated their seventh wedding anniversary Dec. 21. Dale composed a poem of their life together and we might add the poem was very good. Also, Dale was late to work that morning. . . . Charlie Bailey was nearly late one morning. He and his son were over half the morning paper route before they discovered an extra section for that issue. . . . Congratulations to Jack Sweet, a former co-worker and his wife, who have an 8 lb. 5 oz. son. . . . Happy birthday to Emma Meyer, Dec. 30. . . . Frank Clifton's wife hid the cookie jar from him so when he wants a cookie, he watches his sons and follows them right to it. . . . Louise Lengerich found the price of Christmas trees a little steep this year. She asked the man to cut a couple dollars worth off and lo and behold, he did! . . . That strange noise from the lead section was Cornelia Glass trying to play "Silent Night" on her toy horn. . . . Erma Werling was hitching rides last week. We have to renew that piece of paper every two years, Erma. . . . Art Pequignot crooned louder as Christmas drew nearer. . . . Bob Heyn shared our Christmas potluck with us. Welcome home, Bob. . . . We hope Mac McCray didn't crack anything when he took that graceful fall one morning. . . . Happy New Year to all!

WINTER STREET JOTTINGS

by Margie Hill

Happy birthday to Mary White-lock. . . . Patty Schrader is leaving us Thursday for motherhood duties. We hope it's a boy too, Patty. . . . Alice Chandler visited us last week one day and brought in pictures of her three-month-old son, Kim. . . . We all hope Don Poland will be back with us soon. . . . Jack Skevington has been acting head of the Tool Room while Ed Ehrman is on vacation. . . . Congratulations to Gene Janney for the assembly of his fender onto his car. . . . Dorothy Crawford is taking a week's vacation during the holidays. . . . We hope the following people will be able to come to work after spending New Year's skiing on Boyne Mountains in northern Michigan: Sharon Portman, Cliff Havens, Eileen Scheffer, Doris McDaniel, Bob Doelling and Jerry Levinson. . . . There are many new sparkles in SIM since Christmas. One of them is down in Marketing. Congratulations, Emily. . . . Getting ready in a hurry for church last Sunday, Berneta Welbaum's hair wouldn't stay in place so she grabbed in a hurry for her hair spray and came up with the insect bomb. . . . The Christmas trees are so pretty in the office, but don't think for one minute the factory didn't decorate a little, too. Wait until John Braden hears about this. The Specialty section decorated all their safety glasses. . . . From the Tool Room gang comes the news that "Stinke" Poling is very happy this week. He bought a brand new Del Roy Chevrolet coupe. . . . Mart Thullin (retired) visited the tool room last Wednesday. . . . Wehler Porsch is on vacation this week. . . . The Winter St. Tool Room received a very nice personal letter from Ronald Reagan. When he was going through our plant on his tour of Fort Wayne, it just so happened to be football time and of course many pools were being held. To make a long story short, he ended up winning $10. He wrote the letter expressing his thanks to the tool room fellows for sending him his winnings. A real nice letter. The fellows have it hanging out in the Tool Room, so if any of you would like to read it you can. . . . Jim Hunt is following his wife and family around the country, as usual this time of year. They are visiting her folks in Nebraska. . . . Word has it this week that Tom Rockhill is getting along fine. Many good cheer wishes are going out to him. . . . HERMETICALLY SPEAKING: Gift exchanges and potluck dinners were the order of the day last Thursday in the Hermetic Room and everyone enjoyed the Christmas spirit. . . . Gwen Robinson's son in the Air Force is home for the holidays. . . . Idamae Ernst spent Christmas at her home in Michigan; Betty Coomer went to Muncie; Elmore Ness to Columbia City, and Ruby Stuckey to Berne and Decatur. . . . Ada Gebhart's new Pontiac finally arrived just in time to be a Christmas present. . . . Winnie Hile has a new grandson. . . . Welcome to the new placers on Don's line: Violet Yarman, Hilda Doehrmann, Mildred Koehler, and Anna Allman. . . . Flo Cochran is back to work after being ill. Madeline Keel is on the sick list, and Doren Tully's husband is ill. We wish them a speedy recovery. . . . Dick Getty's dad was here for Christmas; Maggie Lowe had relatives visiting, and Rachel Jackson's son all were here from New Jersey. . . . Mildred Briggs and her riders had a flat tire on the way to work Thursday and when they went to put on the spare, it was flat too. . . . On behalf of all contributing reporters and myself, we would like to wish everyone a very Happy New Year. And remember, if you're going to a party, make the "one you have for the road" coffee.

Words by Walt

"IRENE"

Some folks are remembered
Long after they're dead,
For something important
That they may have said.

And then there are those Who had nothing to say
Who are often forgotten
When they're laid away.

Now you may sort of wonder
What this is about,
But keep right on reading
And you will find out.

I often start poems
Leaving people in doubt
As to what I'm referring
And what it's about.

But some place along
Toward the end you will find
The thought and the subject
That I have in mind.

Is it animal, vegetable,
Mineral or what?
Well, that's a good question,
So here's what we've got.

It is animal, two legs,
It's female and walks,
It is quite understanding,
And Lord, how it talks.

It loves and is loved,
And has human emotions;
It leads and is followed
In feminine notions.

It serves as a tonic
For those in the dumps,
It helps troubled women
Get over the humps.

It's modest, it's pleasant,
Appreciates fun,
So from that it would seem
It could be only one.

It is only one
So with that for a clue
The answer is simple
Irene, IT IS YOU.

I hope my beginning
Which now you have read Won't disturb you, because You're a long way from dead.

And 'twas nothing but a filler
That caused me to say
Some folks are forgotten
When they're laid away.

There is nothing about you
To cause any fears
That you won't be around
For a good many years.

Of course, not around
Like so long you have been
But at least not so far
That we all now and then

Can't be privileged to see you
And chat for a while,
And again be inspired
By your wonderful smile.

Yes, you may be remembered
For something you've said
By the thousands of girls
That, so long you have led.

But I'd sooner believe
That the reason by far
Will be simply because You're the girl that you are.

—W. L. Whonsetler.

A Citizen's Checklist

A yardstick which may help you decide whether or not a law, expenditure, or other government proposal is good for you and your fellow citizens.

1. Is it necessary? Or is it something that is not really needed or, perhaps, already being provided by a private or public group?
2. Can we afford it? Remember, there is no limit to what we would like, but there is a limit to what we can afford.
3. What will it cost ultimately? Many proposals are like icebergs—only a small fraction of the total cost is apparent on the surface.
4. How will it affect basic liberties? If it imposes unreasonable or illegal restraints on your life or that of others, it should be vigorously opposed.
5. Is it in the balanced best interest of all? If it is designed to benefit a small group or special interests while taking unfair advantage of others, work for its defeat.
6. Is it a "foot-in-the-door" proposition? Compromising a little now may bring an oppressive burden later either in more regulations or more taxes or a combination of both.
7. Does it place too much power in the hands of one individual or group? Once decisive power is granted to a non-elected public official, a commission or a municipal authority, the private citizens lose effective control.
8. Does it recognize the importance of the individual and the minority? This is a cornerstone of our Republic.
9. Is its appeal based on emotional propaganda or facts? The farther a proposition gets away from facts, the more critical one should be.
10. Does it square with your moral convictions? If so, fight for it. If not, oppose it.

An Interview with Lee R. Beard:

Purpose of Product Engineering Is Waste Reduction, GP Manager Says

Reducing waste is part of the job in all phases of business, but it is especially the goal of men in engineering. As Lee R. Beard, manager of General Purpose Component Motor engineering, states it, "Product engineering has one primary purpose in life—to reduce waste."

We know, Mr. Beard says, that every extra ounce of material designed into a product is waste material; every use of a more expensive material than necessary in a product is waste. Now customers are more and more choosing products which are designed with a minimum of waste.

"In designing the present line of GPM motors, we had as our objective to eliminate wasteful material and processes. The whole human effort and millions of dollars of expense which went into our present line of motors was an investment to achieve this goal," the engineering manager explains.

Lee Beard

At present, the objective of GP engineering is to obtain a product which will allow a smooth and consistent production flow. Mr. Beard states that those items which are difficult to produce or have a high manufacturing loss are being examined with one purpose in mind—waste reduction. He explains that peculiar side effects are involved also; such as the amount of electrical power necessary for the processing of parts and the complete motor.

For example, the electrical power required for drying the paint is substantial. Anything that can be done to lower the temperature in drying will eliminate wasted kilowatt hours. A reduction in the necessary annealing will eliminate thousands of wasted cubic feet of gas.

Many other areas are involved if the effort of our section to reduce waste is to be a thorough one, Mr. Beard adds. "Time required to correct errors is wasted time and particularly bad if it involves a customer and causes him to waste time also. Every unnecessary piece of paper issued; every print or drawing issued which does not have a real need; every trip, telephone call, or letter which does not contribute to the production of motors or field position, and every sample motor which is built but does not obtain more business for us are items of waste in engineering."

As we tear down waste, we build up our business and our jobs and this is the goal of product engineering, Mr. Beard states.

240 Employees Become Eligible For Quarter Century Club in 1955

A total of 240 employees here will become eligible for Quarter Century Club membership in 1955, Edward J. O'Neill, president, Bldg. 8-2, reported today. The current membership is 2,680, including 554 retired members.

O'Neill, along with other officers elected to the QC outing in September, will take office as of January 1. Other officers for the 1955 year are: Charles Winans, vice president, Taylor St.; Kenneth Redding, secretary, Taylor St.; Gerald C. Michael, treasurer, Taylor St., and Sam E. Baumgardner, director, Bldg. 27.

Four directors who will continue in office through the coming year are: George Buckley, Decatur; Arthur Kabisch, Bldg. 8-2; Carl Hattendorf, Bldg. 17-4, and Hilda Walda, Bldg. 4-2. Each director holds office for five years.

The new officers and directors will make plans for the fall outing celebrating the 41st anniversary of the organization in Fort Wayne.

A. C. Hume, 62, Dies After Brief Illness

Arthur Carlyle Hume, 62, died Monday, Dec. 27, in St. Joseph Hospital. He had been a patient there since Wednesday, Dec. 22, when he suffered a brain hemorrhage.

Services were conducted Wednesday, Dec. 29, in the Chalfant-Perry Funeral Home by Dr. Gerald H. Jones. Burial was in Lindenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Hume joined the company in 1922 and entered a training course. Later he was a grinder and prior to death operated an annealing furnace at Winter St. His last day at work was Tuesday, Dec. 21. He was a Quarter Century Club member and member of the Volunteer Firemen's Association at Winter St. He was a World War I veteran.

Surviving are his wife, Myrtle; two sons, James K. and Max R.; one sister, Mrs. Harry Erwin, and one grandson.

Iverson, Tam, Hess Named to New Posts In Contributing Manufacturing Section

Three appointments in the Contributing Manufacturing Section of General Purpose Component Motor Department have been announced by Robert L. Whitaker, engineer—buildings and utilities.

Garfield I. Iverson has been appointed supervisor of buildings and grounds engineering. Mark H. Tam has been named supervisor of electrical and power plant facilities engineering. Orrell L. Hess has been appointed general foreman of power plant operations at Broadway and Taylor St.

Garfield I. Iverson

In 1940 Mr. Iverson joined GE and entered Motor and Generator as a student engineer. Later he went into drafting in the same location. He entered Plant Engineering where he worked in the mechanical section, of which he was named supervisor. Prior to his present appointment, he was in the mechanical section of buildings and utilities.

Graduating from the University of Minnesota in 1939 Mr. Iverson received his BSME degree. He is a member of the Fort Wayne Engineers Club and Supervisors Club. He is a registered professional engineer in the State of Indiana.

The Iversons have one son and reside at 2611 Reed St.

Mark H. Tam

Joining the company in 1925 Mr. Tam worked in the former Apparatus Department cutting insulation. He later entered general service electrical maintenance and in 1930 became a tester in refrigeration. After entering the power plant he was a switchboard operator and later became foreman of the Broadway power plant and in 1941 was named general foreman of the Taylor St. power plant. In 1945 he became an engineer in plant engineering's electrical section. He was an engineer in buildings and utilities until his present appointment.

In 1932 Mr. Tam graduated from Purdue University receiving his BSEE degree. He is a registered professional engineer in the State of Indiana. He is a member of NSPE, FWAGEE, GE Squares, and Fort Wayne Engineers Club.

The Tams have two children and live at 5606 Covington Rd.

Orrell L. Hess

When he came with GE in 1925 Mr. Hess was a meter tester. Later he entered the power plant and was a switchboard operator and was named a foreman of the Broadway power plant in 1942. This was his position until his present appointment.

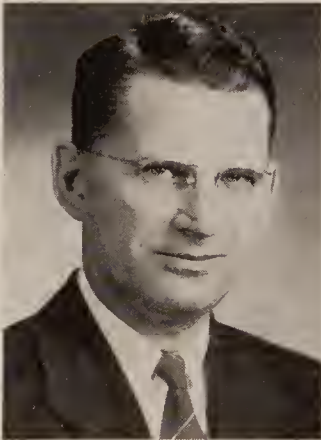

In 1924 Mr. Hess completed a course in practical electricity at the Coine Electrical School in Chicago. He is a member of the Foremen's Association. Mr. and Mrs. Hess reside at 1416 Spring St.

Jim Henry

Jim F. Henry was graduated from the GE Apprentice School today, Richard Gebert, supervisor of the school, announced. Mr. Henry completed the drafting course.

In July, 1951 Mr. Henry entered GE and the Apprentice School. He graduated from Central High School June 7, 1951.

C. J. Herman

Ralph D. Hodges

Two Engineers Granted Joint U.S. Patent on 'Insulated Conductor'

Ralph D. Hodges, Bldg. 28-2, and C. J. Herman, Bldg. 4-6, have been granted a joint patent by the U. S. Patent Office.

The patent entitled "Insulated Conductor and Process of Making Same," covers an invention of a magnet wire type of conductor which has insulation of minimum thickness for winding into electrical equipment and capable of withstanding service temperature of at least 200 C. and possessing other desirable properties.

Mr. Hodges is supervising engineer in the Chemical Insulation Unit of the Fort Wayne laboratory. He joined the company in 1929 and entered the laboratory. In 1949 he received a joint Coffin Award with W. G. Skinner for development of a solvent recovery system in the magnet wire department. He graduated from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1927 with a degree in chemical engineering. This is Mr. Hodges' first patent.

Mr. Herman is group leader in Specialty Component Motor insulation and finishes unit of Advanced Engineering Development Section. He joined GE in 1937. A graduate of the University of Nebraska, he received his BSEE degree in 1929. This is the fifth patent assigned Mr. Herman.

'Irene' Honored By GE Friends At Elex Reception

More than 2,000 GE friends of Irene Meyers attended a reception in her honor last week to say good-by and wish her well in her years ahead. The reception in her honor was given by the Elex Club in the Bldg. 16-2 cafeteria honoring the woman who for more than 20 years had served as counsel and leader of the organization.

Many gifts and expressions of gratitude came to Miss Meyers, who through her 35 years with General Electric had made helping those in need and in trouble the one ambition of her life.

All her General Electric friends presented her with a television set and a cedar chest. Other gifts poured in from individuals who worked with and knew the warmth of her friendship during her 35 years with General Electric.

A native of Fort Wayne, Irene joined the company in 1919 as a clerk and later transferred to the factory. For the past 20 years she has served as supervisor of women's activities and adviser to the Elex Club.

She received the Charles A. Coffin Award in 1950 in recognition of outstanding contributions toward company progress through unusual and meritorious accomplishments made in the name of better relations. She was twice named Fort Wayne's "Citizen of the Week."

After her retirement this month under the optional provisions of the retirement plan, she plans to devote her time to lecturing and speaking engagements.

a rusty old used corn picker, two pair of used gloves—one red pair and one gray pair—a used necktie, a spray gun (used), flea powder, mole remover, a used flower pot (with dirt), china bowls, toilet tissue (½ roll), bottle openers (new), a deck of used cards, used coffee grounds, a pair of old, moldy shoe laces, and many more articles too numerous to mention. As was said before, the value cannot be estimated since it is not what you give or how much you give, but the spirit in which it is given. We all had a lot of fun and laughter opening these packages. To all of you who contributed so generously of your time and effort, together with the fine wrapping paper, your editor says "Thank you, from the bottom of my shoe soles."

Happy birthday this week to Millie Kouder. . . . Mary Ann Laurent is enjoying a week's vacation. . . . Congratulations to Pat Fuhrman who has a sparkle in her eyes and a sparkler on the third finger of her left hand. . . . Virginia Olson is getting younger every day. She came to work wearing a Hopalong Cassidy wrist watch. . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Logan are the proud parents of a baby girl born last Wednesday. . . . Lots of fun was had over the exchange last Thursday. Anyone wishing to travel should see Marie Dunn, as she received the latest in cars.

LOOKING AHEAD to her speaking engagements, Irene Meyers, supervisor of women's activities and adviser of Elex Club, reminisces with her former supervisor I. H. Freeman, left, who retired in 1952; K. W. Michael, and L. C. Swager, her supervisor prior to her retirement this month.

Reker and Havens Assume New Posts In SIM Manufacturing at Winter St.

Two appointments in Small Integral Motor manufacturing have been announced by J. Herbert Behm, manager of manufacturing. George B. Reker has been appointed general foreman of the special motor line. Clifton D. Havens has been named inventory control and systems specialist in the materials section.

In 1912 Mr. Reker became a GE employee and started as a machine operator in the former Fractional Horsepower Motor Department. Later he moved to Motor and Generator on the same type of work and went to Winter St. in 1925 when he entered the toolroom. Appointed a machine shop foreman in 1929 he had this position until 1939. At that time he went to FHP where he was a foreman. He was a foreman in Section 113, Taylor St. prior to his present appointment.

A member of the Foremen's Association, Mr. Reker resides at 932 W. Berry St.

When he came to the company in September, 1950, Mr. Havens went into material moving at the Burlington, Vermont plant. The following year he went to Schenectady where he was a member of the Aeronautic and Ordnance Systems Division production training program. He completed this at Johnson City in 1953. At that time he was appointed inventory control analyst in Burlington. He had this position until his present assignment.

A graduate of the University of Vermont, Mr. Havens received his BS degree in industrial education in 1950. He served in the U. S. Army Air Corps from April, 1945 until December, 1945. He resides at R. R. 15, Lincoln Highway W.

Arnold White of the Erie plant visited with his former co-workers last Thursday. . . . I hear that Joe Laisure is quite a carpenter. I don't know if he is a good one, but he certainly is loud. His office is directly above ours, and Joe had a little repair job, covering up a crack on their floor. As a result, we got in on the party. . . . Now I know why Jim Blake is so proud of his daughter Barbara. Her picture was in the GE NEWS last week. She's a doll. Jim. . . . The Assembly gang had a real for sure Christmas dinner. Ham and all the trimmings was served. Chalmer Steele brought in a tape recorder, and a nice talk was given by Kenny Strong. . . . We hope that everyone had a very enjoyable Christmas. . . . John Wolf wishes to thank everyone for his generous contributions in the Christmas pool. . . . Julia Rice also was very pleased for the perfume she received from the "milk getters." . . . Harold Garrett is spending the holidays in Tampa, Fla. . . . Bill Ryerson will spend the Christmas holidays with his folks in Muskegon, Mich. . . . Robert Braun is sporting a different car. He now drives a '52 Ford. He's really getting up in this world, but he still insists on a Ford. . . . Not long ago a couple of the young fellows made the transfer over to the apprentice program. We neglected to mention Al Smith's name. Congratulations, Al. . . . One of our younger apprentices received a home-made knit pair of argyles. Who would it be? . . . We would like to wish everyone the happiest of all New Years.

George Hartman, for one person, hasn't recovered from the Christmas rush. The last we saw of him he was still limping from the effects of decorating the Christmas tree. He wasn't trying to hang himself on the tree, he just leaned over too far on the stepladder. . . . Everyone is happy that Frank Glenn has returned to work after a prolonged illness. . . . John Bendel and John Henry were often seen working together before John Henry retired. To continue the tradition, John Bendel was seen drilling for oil (and striking it) in Bldg. 19-4 while his former partner is in Texas where the real oil is. . . . Paul "Smiley" Schroeder pestered Glenn Brendel for weeks for a small amount "just a brush full", of a certain kind of paint. Glenn finally sent him an old dried up paint brush full of paint, C.O.D. $1.50. . . . The Production section welcomes Thelma Fields and the Cost section welcomes Beverly Willig. . . . Les Hines rushed to the barber shop last Wednesday and hurried home to get to a Christmas party on time. He made it—the party was Thursday night. . . . Warren Antoine is the first one to work now since he moved to Hale Avenue. . . . Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gattton on the birth of a baby girl. . . . There was a bunch of mistletoe hanging above Ken Smith's chair, but all it attracted was a couple of male co-workers. . . . Elmer Anderson's Christmas will be far better than his Thanksgiving as he has his teeth again. He didn't have to dig up the sewer, he bought a new set. . . . More vacation are being enjoyed by Elmer Davidson, Ray Steinacker, Del Rehm, and Rufus Niblick. . . . Anyone having the opportunity of making a trip to California for New Year's day should see Art Jenne. He has a ticket to the Rose Bowl he will be glad to let you have. . . . Ed Ellenburg is starting his new year by answering a draft notice Jan. 6. . . . Chet Burgette finally fell victim to the TV craze and got a set in time for Christmas. . . . BASKETBALL

Tip Off

by Earl Stauffer

The first half of the Interdivision Basketball league is history and ended in a flurry. The flurry was a pair of games that looked like all four teams were battling for the championship.

The BTC lads tried to toy with the T. St. Lab team, but found that they had to go all out in the third stanza to settle the issue. Wright canned five fielders to aid his mates to a 13 point cushion 45-32 going into the final period. BTC won the game 51 to 45. Farnhauch led the scoring for the winners with 16 but both Schrock and Timbrook of the losers topped him with 21 and 18, respectively.

Kermit Quanbeck left for the Navy so Dave Engelman replaced his ace with newcomer Bob Meyers and he promptly took over where Quanbeck left off and aided the Test Engineers to subdue a clever Cylinder quintet by the score of 53 to 51. This was a rough, tough encounter with 18 fouls being called on the Cylinders and 15 on the TE's.

The TE's led at each quarter post 10-7, 25-24, 43-36, but then had to stave off a determined rally by the Cylinders in the last quarter to gain the win. Big Dave Engelman was the big gun for the winners. Along with scoring 18 big points Dave held Phil Smith, the Cylinder center, scoreless. John Frey with a nine-point last stanza matched Engelman's output of 18 points. The new TE, Meyers, tallied 16.

The second half of league play will start Tuesday, Jan. 4. The first week's schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, Jan. 4—
7:00 P.M.—Firemen vs. Cylinders.
8:15 P.M.—T. St. Lab. vs. TE's.

Thursday, Jan. 6—
7:00 P.M.—Penthouse Duhs vs. Apprentice.
8:15 P.M.—Squares vs. BTC.

TIPS and QUIPS

BLDG. 31-1

by Don Shultz

We are happy to report that Jack Hively is able to travel without his cane. Jack is our Planning Section Boy Scout who injured his leg while assisting friends to start their car a few weeks ago. . . . One of life's tragedies: Bill Meyer makes an egg sandwich for lunch and forgets to place the egg between two slices of bread. . . . We are glad to see Merrill Melton back from Schenectady for the holidays. . . . Christmas potlucks were a real success. A real good time was had. . . . News is scarce this week, however, we wish you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

GE Quintet Hold Owl League Lead; Edge Salisbury

by Howard Colby

The GE Owls, coached by Benny Penkul, continued on their winning way last week by taking a good ball game from a very tough Salisbury ball club, 51 to 40.

The first quarter was close all the way with GE holding a one point lead at 9 to 8. Dickey and White scored two baskets each and Carl Wilson a free throw to account for GE's nine points.

The second period found GE steadily pulling away as Harold Somers hit three field goals; Anspach, one; Markey, a fielder and a free throw. Blodgett canned a pair of foul shots, and White, one. Salisbury was held to five points for a half-time score of 23 to 13.

Gene Etter set the scoring pace for GE in the third quarter, netting eight points; Dickey, three; and White, two for a quarter total of 36, while Salisbury posted 25.

In the final eight minutes of play both teams matched each other point for point, getting 15 each to wind up the ball game with GE on top 51 and Salisbury 40.

In the second game of the morning Indiana Rod beat F.O.P. 37 to 34. Eckrich downed Zollner 37 to 27 in the third and last game of the morning.

SLEUTHING in 4-6

by Al Happel

Happy birthdays to Norma Miller and Bill Rinker on the last day of 1954; to Cal Wheeler, on the first day of 1955; and to Betty Puff, Jan. 7. . . . We wish to thank Mr. Carter for the popcorn, candy, and cigars. . . . The riddle was solved. We couldn't find our GE NEWS until late last Friday. The reason, so we hear, is that Bill Rutledge was so very proud of his young son's picture on the front page that he confiscated all the copies. We finally found some left over up in the front corridor of Bldg. 4-6. . . . We said good-by last Thursday to John Lutteringer, TE in Bill Rutledge's group, and to Dick Berard (TE in Bob Loveland's group) last Wednesday. Today we bid farewell to Jim Miller, TE in Max Barrow's group. . . . We have the welcome mat out for John Duvall, TE assigned to Bob Loveland for the next three months. John is married and is a graduate of S. W. Louisiana Institute with a BSEE degree. His home town is Jefferson Island, La. This is his third test and he likes photography for a hobby. . . . Pat Miller and Joan McBride seem to be all smiles now that their boyfriends are home for the holidays. . . . Helen Smith played the part of Old Mother Hubbard over the Christmas week-end by buying her poor dogs a bone. . . . We wish you all a very Happy New Year.

FOUL LINE FABLES

by KEGHEAD KEGLER

Margaret Rollins kegled a 199 score and won a chicken for Christmas. Joan Armstrong and Stella Ostrowski were the other chicken winners in the Ladies' Tuesday Afternoon League. Team No. 6 is leading the league with a record of 24 wins and 18 losses. Just one game behind is team No. 2 with 23 wins and 19 losses. Team No. 4 has won 22 and lost 20. Jeanne Gladieux scored with a 170 count.

Masonic League
C. Biedenweg scored a 619 series which included a 238 single game count. N. Boerger rolled a 223; H. Habig, 208; B. Quillen, 203; and C. Lauterberg, 200. Patrols have won 28 and lost 14; Doric has won 26 and lost 16. Fellowcraft is the team in third place with a record of 25 wins and 17 losses.

Small Motor
Drafting has taken over top spot in the league with a record of 27½ wins and 17½ losses. Unlucky 113 dropped to second place with 26 wins and 19 losses. Tommy's Tavern is in third place with 25 wins and 20 losses. In fourth place is Tommy's Lunch with 24½ wins and 20½ losses. Double century scores were made by Herm Conrad, 222; Sid Hanson, 207; Lloyd Pinkerton, 202; and Joe Kramer, 211.

Ladies' Monday Night
The Scatterpins are still leading by two games with 32 wins and 13 losses. Close behind are the Gutterettes with 30 wins and 15 losses. In third place by only ½ game is the Keglerettes with 27½ wins and 17½ losses. Tied for fourth place with 27 and 18 records are the Ranch House Bar-B-Ques and the Gutterbells. Chicken winners were Francis Newman, Arlene Dellinger, Ann Amstutz, Beth Moore, Dorothy Dabler, and Joan Gausepahl. High games rolled were Kay Bade, 174, and Betty Thompson, 174. T/C 5's rolled a ladder series of 604, 605, and 606.

Apparatus League
Team No. 12, State Farm Mutual, with 29 wins and 13 losses, is still leading the league. Team No. 6 is in second place, winning 26½ and losing 15½ games. Teams No. 8 and No. 10 are tied for third place with a 23 won and 19 lost record.

Tonight was chicken night and Don Greener made sure of his with a count of 611 on games of 204, 199, 208. Other chicken winners were: Cliff Dunten, Glenn Goshorn, Kenny Vonderau, Robert Dicke and John Meyer. The following players rolled 200 or better: Bill Piercy, 209; Bob Dicke, 206; Vic Rump, 200; Herb Langer, 200; Charlie (Pappy) Briggs, 222; Eddie Reece, 211 and 210; Kenny Fosnaugh, 200 and 207; Pete Dannecker, 212; Ford Burnau, 215, and Jim Carey, 205. Tom Anderson rolled scores of 201, 205, and 209 for a 615 series.

GE Women's League
There's just no beating those High Spots (30½-8½), they took three games from second place Last Frames (18-21). Briede's 169 was high score for the losers and G. Reynolds' 164-184, and A. Reynolds' 163 was tops for the High Spots.

The Spares (13½-25½) were in there plugging again this week and managed to take three games from the Office (16-23). Babcock led the Spares with 178-161, and Mary Miller led the Office with 172.

17-3 NEWSIES

by Wilhelmina Beeth

Happy New Year, everybody. . . . We thought some on our floor had been attending a street fair after seeing all of the cotton candy. The boys on fourth floor were experimenting with a cotton candy machine. But just why did Joe Bell put his cotton candy in a sack? . . . Leona Scott spent the Christmas holidays in Florida. . . . Margaret Zumbrun was in Michigan. . . . Mary Murphy went to Kentucky. . . . Congratulations to Marlene Miller on her third wedding anniversary. . . . It's a happy birthday to Lorena Buuck. . . . Violet Brower decided to change the color of the rims of her glasses. She did it with Rit. She used navy blue and they came out a pretty shade of brown. She said she liked brown better anyway. . . . Eileen Steinacher isn't used to her new clothes dryer yet. She took the clothes out the other day and they were still wet. She forgot to turn on the juice. . . . Walter Kryder is getting a son this week-end. His daughter, Arlene, is going to middle-aisle it. We wish them lots of happiness.

APPRENTICE BROADCAST

by
Jim Kennard
Mel Guillaume

All the apprentices in Bldg. 12 enjoyed the Christmas meal last Thursday noon immensely. Gene Bair wanted to be sure he got enough to eat, so he brought his lunch, too. . . . Everyone will agree that Jack Olinske bakes a very good cake. . . . The Apprentice School had two distinguished visitors at that time. They were Walter Wolf and Santa Claus. We understand that Dick Gebert had trouble talking "Santa" Barnes into visiting the school. After the boys saw how pleasurable certain phases of Santa's job are, Dick reports he has many applications from fellows who want to be Santa in 1955. . . . Max Witzgreuter became engaged to Barbara Snowball on Christmas day. Congratulations, Max. Congratulations also to Jerry Gibson, Tom McCrea, and Carl McCartney. They graduated from the machinist-toolmaker course. . . . Last Wednesday was a lucky day for Ron Davis. He won $20. . . . Last Thursday John Kalb took a chance on a used GE washer from Bill Owen. Later Bill informed John he had won and immediately presented him with a one-inch flat washer. . . . There is a rumor that Jim Paxson has been experimenting with a new type internal grinding wheel. . . . There were several transfers this week. Dick Hess and Luther Schrock returned to Bldg. 12-2 from Bldg. 19-5 and Jim Paxson went from Bldg. 12-2 to Bldg. 4-2. . . . It was announced last week that Myron Auer will be leaving us next month to take a job in Bldg. 4-2. We will all miss Myron, and we want to wish him the best of luck on his new job. . . . Bill Cox got so excited about a euchre recently that he fell off his chair. . . . Harold Lehman was seen buying an electric train last week for his son. We all hope Harold will have a lot of fun with it. . . . We want to wish everyone a very Happy New Year. . . . Welcome to Mary Ann Walker who joins the office staff.

It's number five for Walt Hein. This one was a girl, and it's boys for Larry Bishop and Garland Roby. . . . Things are getting pretty tough. Wilson Sims sold a parcel of his Texas land to Chet Ellis last July. Anybody interested in this land, see Chet. . . . Sad Story: Bob Rowe got so tired of beating Stan Antalis at horseshoes last fall that he had to buy a horse to get his money out of the horseshoes. Bob hasn't figured out yet how to switch from oats and timothy to sawdust and shavings. . . . Since this is the last edition of the year, the following New Year's resolutions have been sent to me: Resolved: Dean Lockwood to quit buying cokes for everyone. George Knoll to continue opening the south windows in the winter time. Everybody else to continue shutting the south windows two minutes later. Dora Augenbaugh to either keep that cat penned up or to buy cat food by the case from Del Hartman. Clyde Nicholson to improve averages by interchanging bowling and golf scores. Larry Bishop to pray harder for a girl to keep his four boys company. Lee Rademaker not to dislocate his shoulder, especially at a picnic. Harry Kellogg to beat Harold, Jr., at bowling on just one of the next few Saturday mornings. . . . Russ Clark to go out and shoot his own rabbits instead of picking up wounded rabbits at his back door. Ez Hill and Bob Rowe to continue their good work with the Girl Scouts and Junior Achievement groups, respectively. . . . Merle Marsh to pick up his FWAGEE anti-freeze before Easter. . . . Happy New Year to all.

GPM Marketing Group really enjoyed the noon Christmas party held the Thursday before Christmas. The committee in charge did a "bang up" job. Doc Ditton, who has just completed 35 years with GE was our honored guest at the party. . . . Tom Duffey leaves us this week for the Detroit office. . . . Tom Krigbaum, appearing with the Light Opera Festival Group last Friday evening, is our TV celebrity of the week. Tom has returned to Marketing recently, after completing an assignment in Engineering. . . . Charlotte and Jim Jellison announce the Christmas Day arrival of a baby boy, James Logan Jellison III. Both Charlotte and Jim were formerly in GPM Marketing. . . . Adelia Forsythe transferred from the Employee Relations Section to Mr. Wefel's cost group in Section 417. . . . Thelma Bentley is back at work after her recent illness. . . . Some collision in the factory the other day—a pedestrian ran into a pedestrian! John Laymon was nearly knocked out. Guess we need a speed limit on pedestrians. . . . Everyone in the GPM Department had a very Merry Christmas. Glen Rout went home to Anderson. . . . Jim Capps had an open house Christmas night. A good time was had by all. . . . Norma Poling had an emergency appendectomy. We wish her a speedy recovery. . . . GPM Engineering had their annual Christmas party Dec. 21 at the Orchard Ridge Country Club. Everyone had a good time.

We wonder if Joe Prezbindowski thanked Don Thomas? It seems that Joe left his car parked in the wrong place Friday. If Don hadn't tipped Joe off, his car might have been towed away at the owner's expense. Anyway, Joe's speed in getting there would have done credit to a GE fireman. . . . Russ Noll likes his spuds well done it seems. Anyway, when you leave them in the oven for four days, they're bound to be pretty well done. . . . This floor had all the earmarks of a county fair Tuesday. The test department had the job of testing a cotton candy maker and as usual, we all had to test the results. It was a little messy, but good. . . . We wonder if Clarence Nussel got all the cobwebs cleaned out of his attic? He looks pretty well rested after last week's vacation. We don't believe he could do all the work he said he was going to do and come back looking so refreshed. . . . Congratulations to Joe Prezbindowski on the birth of a son, "Tommy." . . . We hope everyone had a Merry Christmas and we wish every one a safe and Happy New Year. . . . Sage Sayings: "In the old days the biggest grab from a man's pay envelope took place after he got home."

Goldie Tuck sure believes in measuring every piece of pie in the cafeteria at noon. Then she takes the biggest just to get her money's worth. . . . Mel Kestner didn't quite get all his breakfast off his chin Monday morning. Was he in that much of a hurry? . . . We are wondering if Irene Winniki is as tired as she looks here lately. . . . Marge Mercer gave a box of candy to a married man and his wife ate it. . . . Alberta Watt gave a Christmas party for the girls the other night—Bernadine Warner, Louise Sinn, Kathryn Chilcote, Kathryn Meyer, and Betty Bertch. Everyone had a wonderful time. . . . Earl Glass is spending his third week vacation hunting. . . . Eddy Andrews reformed lately just so Santa would come and see him, but look out now that Christmas is all over.
